

INDIAN CASES

11/16

CONTAINING FULL REPORTS OF DECISIONS OF

The Privy Council, the High Courts of Allahabad, Bombay, Calcutta and Madras, the Chief Courts of Lower Burma and the Punjab, the Courts of the Judicial Commissioners of Central Provinces, Oudh, Sind and Upper Burma REPORTED IN

The following 22 Legal Periodicals:

Allahabad (1) Indian Law Reports, (2) Law Journal; Bombay (1) Indian Law Reports, (2) Law Reporter; Burma (1) Law Times, (2) Lower Burma Rulings, (3) Upper Burma Rulings; Calcutta
(1) Indian Law Reports, (2) Law Journal, (3) Weekly
Notes; Madras (1) Indian Law Reports, (2) Law
Journal, (3) Law Times, (4) Law Weekly, (5) Weekly
Notes; Nagpur Law Reports; Oudh (1) Cases,
(2) Law Journal; Punjab (1) Law Reporter, (2) Record, (3) Weekly Reporter; Sind Law Reporter

WITH

A large number of extra Rulings not reported elsewhere.

VOLUME XXXI, 1915.

EDITOR:

S. D. CHAUDHRI, B.A., LL.B.,
PLEADER, CHIEF COURT, PUNJAB, LAHORE.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THE MANAGER, AT THE "LAW PUBLISHING PRESS," LAHORE.

S. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Lahore & Kashmir
Srinagar.

CONSOLIDATED

Comparative Tables showing seriatim the Volumes and Pages of all Indian Law Journals and Reports, for the months of November and December 1915, with the corresponding Volumes and Pages of Indian Cases.

Table 1

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

(A).—37 I. L. R., ALLAHABAD SERIES, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 37 I. L. R., All. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 37 I. L. R., All. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
545	Ganga Sahni v. Kesri	30	265	624	Emperor v. Ewaz Ali	30	647
557	Musammatt Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh	30	290	628	Emperor v. Bateshar	30	653
567	Damodar Das v. Birj Lal	30	77	631	Kauleshar Prasad Misra v. Abadi Bibi	30	512
573	Khayali Ram v. Kali Charan	29	1000	634	Kesar Kunwar v. Kashi Ram	30	777
575	Bisheshar Das v. Ambika Prasad	29	622	638	Prem Nath Tiwari v. Chatarpal Man Tewari	30	521
583	Shib Sahni v. Saraswati	30	803	640	Qasim Beg v. Muhammad Zia Beg	29	968
585	Ashraf Ali v. Kalyan Das	30	945	646	Abdul Hakim v. Karan Singh	30	931
589	Kalyan Singh v. Jagan Prasad	30	523	649	Kundan Lal v. Jagannath	30	92
591	Munna Lal v. Radha Kishan	30	186	654	Tulshi Ram v. Abrar Ahmad	30	1002
595	Shiva Chandar Singh v. Ram Chandar Singh	30	550	656	Kedar v. Deo Narain	30	89
597	Jia Bibi v. Ilahi Baksh	30	573	658	Nathu v. Gokalia	30	215
600	Jahangir v. Sheoraj Singh	30	505	660	Drigpal Singh v. Kallu	30	956
604	Buddha Singh v. Laltu Singh	30	529	662	Suraj Bhan v. Sonwarपुरi	30	949

J. N. Das

Advocate High Court

Jammu & Kashmir

Srinagar.

(B).—13 ALLAHABAD LAW JOURNAL, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 13 A. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 13 A. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1007	Buddha Singh v. Laltu Singh ...	30	529	1084	Munni Koer v. Madan Gopal ...	31	792
1026	Merwanji Muncherji Cama v. Sec- retary of State for India in Council ...	30	539	1089	Paran Mal v. Tarif ...	30	2
1034	Thakurani Tara Kumari v. Chat- turbhuj Narayan Singh ...	30	833	1094	Mathura Prasad v. Karim Baksh ...	31	805
1043	Rustom v. Emperor ...	31	817	1098	Sakhawat Ali Shah v. Muhammad Abdul Karim Khan ...	31	809
1046	Miharban Singh v. Emperor ...	31	821	1101	Gurprasad Singh v. Ram Samajhi Singh ...	31	876
1050	Bhole Singh v. Emperor ...	31	823	1104	Khetra Pal v. Muntaaz Begam ...	31	879
1055	Hakim Singh v. Emperor ...	31	826	1107	Har Prasad v. Mukand Lal ...	31	882
1058	Emperor v. Ram Dayal ...	31	828	1109	Jiban Kuar v. Gobind Das ...	31	404
1059	Kalka Prasad v. Emperor ...	31	829	1111	Kidma Singh v. Emperor ...	31	993
1064	Desraj v. Sagar Mal ...	31	716	1114	Ram Sarup v. Jaswant Rai ...	31	906
1067	Prag Das Bhargava v. Daulat Ram ...	31	1001	1115	Ram Ugrah Pande v. Acharaj Nath Pande ...	31	899
1070	Emperor v. Mian Din ...	31	1002	1122	Sital Prasad v. Lal Bahadur ...	31	902
1072	Dhani Ram v. Emperor ...	31	1005	1129	Har Narnia v. Bishambhar Nath ...	31	907
1075	Jotkaran v. Janki Sahu ...	33	369	1131	Sohan Lal v. Emperor ...	31	951
1077	Emperor v. Panchu ...	32	136	1137	Shree Mangal Singh v. Chedu ...	31	914
1079	Municipal Board of Allahabad v. Tikandarjang ...	30	584	1141	Barati Lal v. Salik Ram ...	31	919

Table 2

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

(A).—39 I. L. R., BOMBAY SERIES, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 39 I. L. R., Bom. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 39 I. L. R., Bom. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
563	Amir Bibi v. Aziza Bibi ...	26	906	604	Narayan Vithal Samant v. Janki- bai ...	30	560
568	Tribhovandas Narotamdas v. Ab- dulally Hakimji Paghdivala ...	28	506	625	Secretary of State for India in Council v. Bai Rajbai ...	30	303
572	Secretary of State for India in Council v. Bapuji Mahadeo Govaikar ...	31	277	664	Merwanji Muncherji Cama v. Sec- retary of State for India in Council ...	30	539
580	Suleman Haji Usman v. Shaikh Ismael Shaikh Oostman ...	30	17	682	Khimji Vassonji v. Narsi Dhanji ...	28	408
587	Ramachandra Venkaji Naik v. Kallo Devji Deshpande ...	30	306	715	Joharnal Ladhoooram v. Chetram Harising ...	28	538
593	Parvatibai v. Bhagwant Vishwa- nath Pathak ...	31	280	729	Virchand Vajikaranshet v. Konda Pranjivandas Shivalal v. Ichharam Vijbhokhandas ...	31	180
600	Municipality of Ratnagiri v. Vasu- deo Balkrishna Lotlikar ...	30	390	734		30	918

(B).—17 BOMBAY LAW REPORTER, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 17 Bom. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 17 Bom. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
979	Wasappa Timappa Sonagar v. Sec- retary of State for India	31	498	1080	Emperor v. Manilal Mangalji	31	1003
985	W. T. Halai v. Chaturbhuj Gopalji	31	500	1085	Emperor v. Devendra Shivappa Limbhavar	31	1008
989	Mahomed Haji Essack v. Shaikh Abdul Rahman	31	507	1087	Karl Ettlinger & Co. v. Chazandas & Co.	33	205
998	Ganga Sahai v. Kesri	30	265	1097	Bai Arrani v. Deepsing Baria	33	358
1006	Musammal Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh	30	299	1106	Pakirchand Lallubhai v. Nagen chand Kalidas	33	423
1012	Thakurani Tara Kumari v. Chatur- bhuj Narayan Singh	30	833	1115	Manilal Gangadas Desai v. Secre- tary of State for India	33	428
1022	Buddha Singh v. Lattu Singh	30	529	1131	Javer Jijibhai v. Haribhai Hansji	33	426
1040	Bai Bhicaji v. Perojahaw Jivanji Kerawalla	33	192	1134	Balappa Dundappa Todkal v. Chanbasappa Shivlingappa Patil	33	444
1059	Emperor v. Fakira Appaya	33	309	1137a	Anandappa v. Todappa	33	441
1072	Emperor v. Daji Yesaba	31	994	1146	Assistant Collector of Kaira v. Vithaldas Vallavadas	33	464
1074	Emperor v. Nathu Rewa	31	1000
1078	Emperor v. Babilal Balwant	32	130

Table 3

BURMA (LOWER) CHIEF COURT.

(A)—8 BURMA LAW TIMES, FROM AUGUST TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 8 Bur. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 8 Bur. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
203	In re Ma Sein Ton v. Ma Son	30	588	242	Nga Shwe Kin v. Emperor	30	133
214	Maung Ma Tun v. U Kaing	29	941	243	Maung Tun Myaing v. Nga Kauk San	30	999
216	In re Hajee Mahomed Hady v. M. Joakim	32	492	244	N. M. Dey v. Emperor	31	364
217	In re Bank of Bengal v. R. M. M. L. Muthia Chetty	30	705	246	Emperor v. Nga Aw	32	654
220	Nga Mya v. Emperor	32	641	247	S. P. Ghosh v. Emperor	30	724
234	Maung Po Shin v. Mahomed Thumbi	30	753	259	A. K. A. M. Firm v. Ahmed Suleman Mapara	33	559
237	U Wilatha v. U Thiri	30	112	261	Maung San Bwin v. A. N. K. Nagamutu	30	710
238	Ramdayal v. Kumar Gangadhar Bogla	29	943	264	Annamaly Chetty v. Ma Shwe May	33	580
239	Mi Amina v. Karam Ali	32	488	266	Basant Singh v. Burma Railways Coy.	30	278
240	Ma Tun v. Ma Waing Tha	29	892

8 BURMA LAW TIMES, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 8 Bur. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 8 Bur. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
268	Maung Po Gyi v. P. N. Vellian Chetty	33	610	280	Maung Maung Gyi v. Maung Sein Nyun	33	669
269	Lall Mahomed v. Mra Tha Aung	30	20	282	Maung Po Mya v. Maung Po Kyin	30	943
273	British India Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., v. Jiwoola	30	939	283	Maung Shwe Paw v. Mi Pan Zi	31	332
274	Yang Tsz Insurance Association, Ltd., v. British India Steam Navigation Co., Ltd.	30	974	286	Emperor v. Nga E Moung	30	654
278	A. J. Robertson v. H. V. Murray	30	930	288	Zeri Khan v. Emperor	30	446
				290	Mi Mi v. Sohan Singh	33	595
				292	Mi Kyan Me v. Mi Ein Chou	33	600

(B).—8 LOWER BURMA RULINGS, FROM JULY TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 8 L. B. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 8 L. B. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
113	Po Hman v. Maung Tin	29	756	166	Shwe Kiu v. Emperor	30	133
115	Shwe Po v. Maung Bein	27	632	168	Bank of Rangoon, Limited v. Soma-sundrum Chetty	26	253
125	Kya Nyun v. Emperor	33	634	185	Lal Mahomed v. Mra Tha Aung	30	20
130	Oodayappa Chetty v. Ramasawmy Chetty	24	268	189	Kyi Hlaing v. Ma Hta	30	640
143	Emperor v. Po Ba	24	946	190	Pan Nyun v. Hla Sein	30	665
145	U Wisaya v. U Zaw Ta	27	112	197	Ma Ein v. Tin Nga	30	594
146	Tun U v. Y. P. S. P. L. Palaniappa Chetty	27	829	202	Vithaldas Khandas v. S. N. Indraveloo	29	936
149	Ebrahim Ahmed Mehter v. S. Abdul Huq	27	879	204	Nyein Hla v. Aung Gyi	29	21
155	T. Katchi Rowther v. K. Naina Mohammad	28	300	205	Ma Tun v. Waing Tha	29	892
157	San Nyein v. Ma Kyaw	33	554	208	Saw Maung Gyi v. Thu Kha	30	715
159	Arunachellam Chetty v. Meenatchi Archi	29	27	211	Arunachallam Pillay v. Iyama	29	768
163	Collector of Rangoon v. Chandrama	28	260	213	Ma Gun alias Fuljan Bibi v. R. Moniandy Survey	33	664
164	Bamsilall Abeychand v. Mohamed Ebrahim Mulla	30	675	215	In re Maung Mra Tun v. U Kaing	29	941
165	Maung Te v. Maung On	29	894	217	Emperor v. Nga Aw	32	654
				219	Bank of Bengal v. R. M. M. L. Muthia Chetty	30	765

Table 4

BURMA (UPPER) JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

2 UPPER BURMA RULINGS, FROM JULY TO DECEMBER 1915.

Page of U. B. R., II, 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of U. B. R., II, 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
83	Nga San Choin v. So Okaram	32	674	92	Nga San Baw v. Nga Lu E	33	666
86	Nga Po Hmi v. Emperor	32	677	95	Jagga v. Pala	33	817
87	Mi Man v. Maung Gyi	32	539	98	Nga Nyo v. Mi Te	33	673
89	Mi Hla Yin v. Mi Hman	33	506	101	Nga Ba Sin v. Nga Po Han	33	659
91	Nga Kyaw Zan v. Nga Kyi Dan	32	651	102	Nga Chit Wet v. Kwanan	33	624

Table 5

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

(A).—42 I. L. R., CALCUTTA SERIES, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 42 I. L. R., Cal. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 42 I. L. R., Cal. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
957	Amrita Lal Hazra v. Emperor	29	513	1140	Chaitram Rambilas v. Bridhichand Kesrichand	30	681
1029	Ram Kanai Singh Deb Darpanaha v. Mathewson	30	55	1146	Prokash Chandra Ghose v. Hasan Banu Bibi	28	450
1043	Kedar Nath Mitra v. Dina-bandhu Saha	31	626	1153	Harsha Nath Chatterjee v. Emperor	26	313
1050	Patiram Banerjee v. Kanknarran Co., Ltd.	31	607	1169	Marshall v. Grandhi Venkata Ratnam	30	4
1066	Brijnandan Singh v. Bidya Prasad Singh	29	629	1179	Tara Kumari v. Chaturbhuj Narayan Singh	30	533
1094	Indar Chand v. Emperor	33	289
1135	Ali Hafiz v. Abdur Rahaman	32	801

(B).—22 CALCUTTA LAW JOURNAL, FROM OCTOBER 16TH TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 22 C. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 22 C. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
375	Nikunjarani Chaudharani v. Secretary of State for India in Council	31	460	516	Musammat Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh	30	299
380	Narak Lal v. Magoo Lal	13	455	522	Ananda Kumari Debi Choudhary v. Durga Charan Chakravarty	32	1
383	Fateh Chaud v. Narsing Das	16	988	525	Mohunt Krishen Doyal Gir v. Irshad Ali Khan	31	965
390	Gangadhar Muradi v. Bambaishi Padlihari	24	208	546	Raj Mohan De v. Mati Lal Sahu Poddar	33	331
391	Ananga Mohan Chakraverty v. Bejoy Chandra Dutta	32	491	551	Moheswar Panda v. Sunder Narain Pattanaik	33	342
394	Abjal Majhi v. Intu Bepari	32	494	552	Madhusudan Sen v. Rakhal Chandra Das Basak	30	607
397	Akinannessa Bibi v. Bepin Behari Mitter	32	499	561	Prasanna Kumari Debi v. Sris Chandra Majumdar	33	344
400	Panit Narayan Singh v. Rajkumari Goshabari Koeri	32	580	564	Mohin Chunder Pal Chowdhry v. Mirza Ahmad Ali Khan	33	346
404	Kunjamani Das v. Nikunja Behari Das	32	523	566	Bhudar Chandra Goswami v. C. R. S. Betts	33	347
409	Satya Chandra Ghose v. Ramswari Das	31	804	569	Nawab Sir Salimullah Bahadur v. Kaliprosunno Parbat	33	349
412	Abdul Rahaman v. Saradat Ali	31	896	571	Gobinda Chandra Saha Sardar v. Lalit Mohan Roy	33	352
415	Jhumak Kumri v. Debu Lal Singh	16	898	574	Ramsumran Pershad v. Rampertab Singh	29	841
419	Hemendra Nath Roy v. Upendra Narain Roy	32	437	577	Atinannessa Bibi v. Abdul Sobhan	32	21
452	Upendra Nath Bose v. Bindeshri Prosad	32	468	589	Tarasankar Ghose v. Baziraddi	29	476
481	Buddha Singh v. Lattu Singh	30	529
498	Thakurani Tara Kumari v. Chaturbhuj Narayan Singh	30	833
508	Ganga Saha v. Kesri	30	265

(C).—19 CALCUTTA WEEKLY NOTES, FROM AUGUST 16TH TO SEPTEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 19 C. W. N. 1914-15.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 19 C. W. N. 1914-15.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1119	Thakurani Tara Kumari v. Chaturbhuj Narayan Singh	30	833	1143	Sasibhusan Dey v. Umakanta Dey	25	171
1125	Harai Saha v. Faizur Rahman	18	839	1148	Babu Gomez v. Idoo Mian	22	654
1127	Hari Mohon Pal v. Atul Krishna Bose	32	503	1151	Rajab Ali Choudhury v. Hadayet Ali Choudhury	29	699
1129	Meher Ali v. Kalai Khalasi	29	461	1159	Syed Mohiuddin v. Pirthichand Lal Choudhury	31	664
1132	Raja Peary Mohon Mukherji v. Chandra Sekhar	33	59	1167	Dino Nath Das v. Jogendra Nath Bhounik	26	890
1141	Musammat Hira Koer v. Lachman Gope	21	958

(C).—19 CALCUTTA WEEKLY NOTES, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 19 C. W. N. 1914-15.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.	Page of Vol. 19 C. W. N. 1914-15.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V. P.			V. P.
1169	Indubala Dasi v. Panchumani Das ...	28 578	1269	Dwarka Nath Das v. Monmedhan Tafadar ...	30 34
1172	Ram Chunder Hanka v. Rawat-mull ...	31 672	1271	Byomkesh Chakravarty v. Hahadur Mandal ...	31 700
1175	Ganga Sahai v. Kesri ...	30 265	1272	Cheta Bahira Salaha v. Purna Chandra ...	27 982
1181	Kedar Nath Banerjee v. Haridas Ghosh ...	29 790	1280	Mohendra Nath Biswas v. Shams-unnessa Khatun ...	27 954
1182	Keshab Chandra Pramanik v. Ajahar Ali Biswas ...	28 837	1287	Mahendra Nath Maity v. Giris Chandra Maity ...	31 561
1183	Ramdhari Singh v. Permanand Singh ...	21 716	1290	Biswa Nath Sinha v. Bidhuma-kho Dasi ...	31 677
1188	Gurai Kar v. Rani Kuarmoni Singha Mandhata ...	29 312	1291	Sheogobinda Singh v. Dhanuk-dhari Singh ...	21 774
1191	Jagdeep Narain Singh v. Jaibasi Koer ...	22 928	1295	Muktanath Roy Choudhury v. Jitendra Nath Roy Choudhury ...	29 677
1198	Rani Kuarmoni Singha Mandhata v. Wasif Ali Meerza ...	28 818	1297	Sabitri Thakurain v. P. A. Savi ...	29 743
1197	Akhoy Kumar Chatterjee v. Akman Molla ...	27 397	1303	Nabaghan Badhai v. Ragonath Babu ...	30 61
1200	Promotha Nath Chakravarti v. Mohini Mohan Sen ...	31 573	1305	Rajah Ali v. Dina Nath Saha ...	33 261
1202	Balmer Lawrie & Co. v. Jadunath Bannerjee ...	27 644	1307	Chandi Prasanno Sen v. Gour Chandra Dey ...	33 434
1205	Deb Nath Das Bairagi v. Ram Sundar Barman ...	31 579	1309	Musammal Rakmini Koeri v. Nilmani Bandyopadhyaya ...	32 170
1207	Musammal Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh ...	30 299	1311	Rohim Beksh Mandal v. Shajad Ahmad Chaudhury ...	26 463
1211	Madan Mohan Chakravarty v. Sashi Bhusan Mukherji ...	31 549	1319	Matookdhari Shukul v. Jugdip Narain Singh ...	28 743
1217	Abdul Rahman Chowdhuri v. Ahmadar Rahman ...	31 554	1322	Gurbuksh Proshad Tewari v. Kali Prosad Narain Singh ...	32 167
1226	Maharam Ali v. Ayosa Khatun ...	31 562	1326	Keshari Chand Surana v. Asharam Mahato ...	33 250
1228	Kusodhaj Bhakta v. Brojo Mohan Bhakta ...	31 13	1328	Akbar Ali Khan v. Syed Abbas ...	32 164
1231	Kshirode Sundari Dasi v. Nabin Chandra Saha ...	30 64	1330	Bhuban Mohini Dasi v. Gajalakshmi Debi ...	32 119
1236	Safer Ali Mondal v. Golam Mondal ...	31 177	1332	Shaik Galim v. Sadarjan Bibi ...	29 621
1239	Indra Chand v. King-Emporer ...	33 289

(C).—20 CALCUTTA WEEKLY NOTES, FROM NOVEMBER 22ND TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 20 C. W. N. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 20 C. W. N. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1	Buddha Singh v. Lattu Singh	30	529	105	A. K. A. S. Jamal v. Moolia Dawood, Sons & Company	31	949
14	Ganpat Malton v. Bishal Singh	33	978
19	Rerki v. Lak Pati Pajari	27	39	110	Kunja Lal Banerjee v. Narsamba Debi	31	6
25	Porneshwar Dubey v. Gobind Dubey	33	190	111	Thakur Madan Mohan Nath Sahi Deo v. Maharaja Pratap Udai Nath Sahi Deo	34	22
28	Sarat Chandra Pal v. Benode Kumari Dassi	33	143	113	Atimannessa Bibi v. Abdul Solan	32	21
31	Ananda Kumari Debi v. Durga Mohan Chuckerbutty	32	1	122	Achyutananda Das v. Jagannath Das	27	739
35	Rajwant Prasad v. Mahant Ram Ratan Gir	30	849	128	Deputy Legal Remembrancer, Behar and Orissa v. Matukdhari Singh	32	137
39	Ahmadulla Chowdry v. Prayag Sahu	27	176	137	Thakur Umed Singh v. Rai Bahadur Seth Sobhag Mal Dhadhu	32	161
40	Abdur Rahaman Sarkar v. Pro- mode Behary Dutt	28	182	140	In re Goherdhone Seal; Lakhyria Dasi v. Rajkishori Dasi	32	3
43	Hira Lal Pal v. Etbar Mandal	32	866	142	Choudhury Soressur Misser v. Musammat Mohesh Rani Mesrain	31	983
48	Hiranmoy Kumar v. Ramjan Ali Dewan	29	694	147	Hanuman Persad Thakur v. Jatunandan Thakur	29	787
49	Nistarini Dasya v. Sarat Chandra Mazumdar	29	680	149	Khagendra Nath Chatterjee v. Sonatan Guha	31	987
51	Loke Nath Singh v. Dhakeshwar Prosad Narayan Singh	27	465	156	Nawab Sir Salimulla Bahadur v. Rahemddi	30	68
58	Kali Charan Nath v. Sukhoda Sundari Debi	30	824	159	Kali Kanta Shaha v. Ismail	27	7
62	Bhota Santal v. Dama Santal	33	304	163	Kali Kumar Chuckerbutty v. Aslam	33	139
63	Gangadhar Pradhan v. King-Em- peror	33	626	166	Samanta Dhupi v. King-Emperor	32	132
66	J. I. J. Hyam v. M. E. Gubbay	32	53
103	Niras Purbe v. Musammat Tetri Pasin	32	82

Table 6
MADRAS HIGH COURT.

(A).—38 I. L. R., MADRAS SERIES, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 38 I. L. R., Mad. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 38 I. L. R., Mad. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
997	Kandalam Rajagopalacharyulu v. The Secretary of State for India in Council	22	107	1028 1026	Re Sinna Goondan Muthu Ramakrishna Naicken v. Marimuthu Goondan	23	188
						24	363

(A).—38 I. L. R., MADRAS SERIES, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 38 I. L. R., Mad. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 38 I. L. R., Mad. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1042	S. Chidambaram Pillai v. Mutham- mal	23	524	1125	Thayammal v. Kuppanna Komandan	26	179
1044	Re Narayana Nadan	23	479	1128	Sri Meerja Raja Sri Poosapati Vijayaraja v. Collector of Vizagapatam	25	780
1052	Kunhambi v. Kalanthar	24	528	1134	P. Alwar Chetty v. P. Chidambaram Mudali	26	792
1064	C. Prasanna Venkatachella Red- diar v. Collector of Trichi- nopoly	33	45	1140	C. Baglumatha Row Sahib v. Vellancoonji Goundan	25	941
1071	Vaikuntarama Pillai v. Anthimoo- lam Chettiar	23	799	1144	Meenackshi v. Mudiandi Panikkan	25	957
1076	Pasumarti Payidanna v. Gadi Lakshminarasamma	29	314	1155	Kanti Venkanna v. Sri Raja Cheli- kani Rama Row Garu	26	510
1088	Re Karuthan Ambalam	33	308	1158	Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban	25	772
1091	Venkatrama Aiyar v. Krishna Aiyar	27	192	1162	Gandha Pedda Naganna v. Siva- nappa	26	232
1096	Kunthalammal v. P. N. K. Surya- prakasaroja Mudaliar	31	494	1171	Arunachala Aiyar v. T. Ramasami Aiyar	25	618
1099	Mohideen Bee v. Syed Meer Sahib	32	1002	1176	A. Thiruvengadathaiyangar v. R. Ponnappiengar	25	965
1102	James Russel McLaren v. V. Veeriah Naidu	32	1003	1184	Rajagopala Naidu v. M. R. Vijayaraghavalu Naidu	25	683
1105	Sree Sree Sree Madana Mohana Ananga Bheema Deo Kesari v. Sree Sree Sree Purushothama Ananga	24	999	1187	Davur Subba Reddi v. Kakuturi Venkatrami Reddi	26	983
1120	Devaguptapu Kameswaramma v. Vaddadi Venkata Subba Row	24	474	1192	Venkatesha Malia v. B. Ramaya Hegade	26	202

(B).—29 MADRAS LAW JOURNAL, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER 1915.

Page of Vol. 29 M. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 29 M. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
617	V. Muthukumara Chetty v. Anthony Udayan	24	120	645	Vyapuri v. Sonamma Boi Annami	31	412
629	Sivasamba Iyer v. Kuppan Samban	32	709	663	Ramakrishna Pillai v. Muthuperu- mal Pillai	31	924
632	Sultain Adi Raja Ahmad Ali, Raja of Arakal v. Churia Kunhi Kannan	31	482	667	Kuthaledath Narayana Moothod v. Dewan of Cochin	30	511
639	Sree Rajah Vatsavaya Venkata Simhadri Jagapatiraja Bahadur Garu v. Sree Rajah Thyada Pasupati Rudra Sri Lakshmi Nrusimha Roopa Sudrasan- namarad Dugaraju Dakshina Kavata Dugaraju Bahadur Garu	31	255	669	Rajam Aiyar v. Anantharatnam Aiyar	31	318
				671	J. Subbier v. M. Abboy Naidu	31	502
				680	Alamelammal v. Suryapraka- saroya Mudaliar	31	491
				682	Kunthalammal v. Suryapraka- saroya Mudaliar	31	494
				685	Muthu Gounden v. Anantha Gounden	31	528

(B).—29 MADRAS LAW JOURNAL, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 29 M. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 29 M. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
693	Sillu Pedda Yelligadu v. Sree Raja Ravi Venkata Kurnara Mahipati Surya Rao	31	542	746	C. V. C. T. Chidambaram Chetty v. Ayyavu	32	919
694	K. R. Manickam Mudaliar v. Kummalungottay Munusami Naidu	31	246	749	S. V. A. R. Vellayao Chetty v. K. L. S. T. Kulandaveluappa Chetty	31	783
698	Gnanambal Ammal v. Veerasami Chetty	31	920	755	Tiruvenkata Chariar v. Thangayi Ammal	29	294
704	Firm of K. E. P. T. V. Draviam Pillai v. Cruz Fernandez	31	322	758	In re G. G. Jeremiah	31	373
708	Dharmaraja Aiyar v. K. G. Srinivasa Mudaliar	31	249	760	Para Koothan v. Para Kulla Vandu	31	720
710	Karuturi Gopalan v. Karuturi Ven- kataraghavalu	31	574	763	Sheik Ibrahim Rowther v. Muhammad Ibrahim Rowther	30	806
717	A. Bharadwaja Mudaliar v. Kolundavelu Mudaliar	31	786	772	Nana Nair v. Kantan Asha Moorthi Nambudripad	29	386
721	Kathari Narasinha Ragu v. Bhopati Ragu Raghunatha Ragu	31	52	773	Saekaravolu Pillai v. Muthusawmi Pillai	31	260
724	Savanna Vena Ramachetty v. A. L. A. R. R. M. Arunachalam Chettiar	31	98	784	Keppilacheri Parkum Cheepothi Ammal v. Ambalathau Kandi Ayissa	31	74
728	M. Narayan Singh v. Aiyasami Reddi	31	188	786	Venkatarama Aiyar v. Rajagopala Iyer	31	704
730	Sri Sri Vikramadeva Maharajulu Garu, Maharaja of Jeypore v. Hari Krishna Patro	32	226	788	Kalianji Singji Bahai v. Bank of Madras	31	583
733	Alamunayakunigari Nubi Sub v. Murukuti Pappiah	29	439	793	Soundararajam v. Arumachalam Chetty	33	858
				816	Soundararajam, v. Arumachalam Chetty	33	858
				851	V. Venkatarayana Pillai v. V. Subbammal	29	298
				856	Subramanian Chettiar v. Rajah Rajeswara Dorn	32	258

(C).—18 MADRAS LAW TIMES, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 18 M. L. T. 1915	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 18 M. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
409	Budha Singh v. Lattu Singh	30	529	434	Kuppusamy Reddy v. Venkata- lakshmi Ammal	31	855
424	Velayutham Pillai v. Subbaroya Pillai	31	398	436	Vynpuri v. Sonamma Bai Ammani	31	412
426	Narayanaswamy Aiyar v. D. Ven- kataramana Aiyar	31	326	450	Subramania Iyer v. Sellammal	31	296
				457	Marji Jeta v. Honnavar Puthu Hari Pai	31	234

(C).—18 MADRAS LAW TIMES, 1915—concl.

Page of Vol. 18 M. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 18 M. L. T. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
459	Tirumalanadham Sornaya v. Tirumalanadham Bapirazu ...	31	335	515	Anantha Desikachariar v. Viswanatha Mudaly ...	30	199
460	Indoor Subama Reddi v. Nelatur Sundarama Iyengar ...	31	312	517	Maha Patro v. Narayanapanigrahi ...	31	853
464	Rajah Venkata Simhadri Jagapathiraju v. Rajah Dugaraja ...	31	255	518	Draviam Pillai v. Cruz Fernandez ...	31	322
469	Subbier v. Abboy Naidu ...	31	552	521	Venkatasubbier v. Muthuswami Iyer ...	31	487
475	Rajam Iyer v. Anantharathnam Iyer ...	31	318	524	Narasimha v. Secretary of State ...	31	404
476	Muthu Goundan v. Anantha Goundan ...	31	528	525	Akbar Hussain Sahib v. Shonkhah Begam Sahiba ...	31	657
483	Govindasami Pillai v. Ramasami Aiyar ...	31	604	532	Narasimham v. Venkiah ...	31	796
486	Dharmaraj Iyer v. Sreenivasa Mudaliar ...	31	240	533	Venkatasubbiah Chetty v. Subba Naidu ...	31	152
488	In re Kallara Ramalingam ...	31	653	542	Krishnaswami Naidu v. Seetha Lakshmi Ammal ...	31	803
492	Chinnappa Thevan v. Pazhaniappa Pillai ...	31	630	543	Sitaramanujachari v. Vellamma ...	30	822
494	Silu Peda Yelligadu v. Sree Raja Surya Row ...	31	542	545	Subba Reddi v. Alagammal ...	31	674
495	Murugesu Mudaliar v. Ramaswami Chetty ...	31	200	549	District Judge of Kistna v. Hanumanulu ...	32	326
497	Sankaravelu Pillay v. Muthusami Pillai ...	31	260	552	Sounderarajan v. Arunachalam Chetty ...	33	858
500	Manicka Mudaliar v. Munuswami Naidu ...	31	246	568	Sounderarajan v. Arunachalam Chetty ...	33	858
504	Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha ...	31	590	591	In re Karri Venkanna Patrudu ...	32	330
511	Whitton v. Mammad Maistry ...	31	377	596	Ranga Iyengar v. Narayanachariar ...	32	30
				601	Murugesu Chetty v. Arumuga Chetty ...	31	923
				602	Mahomed Kanni Rowther v. Pattani Inayathalla Sahib ...	31	819

(D).—2 LAW WEEKLY, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 2 L. W. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 L. W. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1037	Narayanaswamy Aiyar v. Venkatarama Aiyar ...	31	326	1066	Subhanadri Appa Row v. Secta Ramiah ...	31	305
1046	Jagapathiraju Bahadur Garu v. Dugaraja Bahadur Garu ...	31	255	1067	In re Chidipatu Somayya ...	31	307
1056	Periakaruppan Chettiar v. Manikka Vachaga ...	31	293	1069	Whitton v. Mammad Maistry ...	31	377
1057	Subramania Aiyar v. Sellammal ...	31	256	1074	Dharmaraja Aiyar v. Sreenivasa Mudaliar ...	31	240
				1078	In re Jeremiah ...	31	373

(D).—2 LAW WEEKLY, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 2 L. W. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 L. W. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
1080	Vyapuri v. Somanna Boi Ammani	31	412	1184	Ayyakutti Mankondan v. Peria- sam Koundan	31	615
1099	Subbier v. Abboy Naidu	31	502	1186	Govindagami Pillai v. Ramasami Aiyar	31	604
1107	Muthu Goundan v. Anantha Goundan	31	528	1191	Akbar Hussain Sahib v. Shoukhah Begam Saheba	31	657
1115	Ratnam alias Nanjunda Chetty v. Ramasamy Chetti	31	536	1200	Mahomed Kanni Rowther v. Pattani Inayathulla Sahib	31	819
1117	Arunachelum Chetty v. Syad Ahamed Ambalam	31	539	1205	Murugesu Chetti v. Arumuga Chetti	31	923
1120	In re Damodara Naidu	31	656	1207	Gopiseti Narayanaswami Naidu Garu v. Muthyala Venkata- ratnam	32	816
1122	Silu Pida Yelligadu v. Raja Rava Venkata Kumara Mahipati Surya	31	542	1208	Velayuda Kone v. Narayana Kone	31	645
1124	Narasammal v. Secretary of State	31	404	1210	Velayudham Pillai v. Perumal Naicker	31	811
1126	Basavana Gowd v. Krishna Rao Naidu	31	650	1212	Adaparka Bapanna v. Sri Raja Inuganti Rajagopala Rao	31	813
1129	Naina Pillai Maracayar v. Arumuga Mudaly	31	387	1214	Viewanathaswami Naiker v. Kannulu Ammal	31	833
1132	Chinnappa Thevan v. Pazhaniappa Pillai	31	630	1244	Bugtha Simhadri Naidu v. Behava Sitharama Patrudu	32	129
1135	Kalluru Ramalingam v. Thupili Subbaranayya	31	653	1247	Sundarajam v. Arunachalam Chetty	33	858
1140	Hussain Saib v. Hassan Saib	31	927
1175	Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha	31	510

(E).—(1915) MADRAS WEEKLY NOTES, FROM SEPTEMBER TO DECEMBER.

Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
605	Sellam Iyengar v. Veerappa Chetty	30	522	626	Jagannada Raju v. Bulasurya Prasada Row	29	241
606	Karmali Abdulla Allarakhia v. Vora Karimji	26	915	631	Muddusami Siddappa v. Bhaskara Lakshmi Narasappa	30	853
614	Ayyamperumal Odayan v. Rama- sami Chettiar	30	983	633	Jehangir Dadabhoi v. Kaikushru Kavasha	27	53
621	Sengoda Goundan v. Emperor	30	435	636	Secretary of State v. Ramanujal Jeer Swanigal	30	605
621	Mahomed Musa v. Aghore Kumar Ganguli	28	930	637	Ratna Naidu v. Aiyana Chariar	29	991

(E).—(1915) MADRAS WEEKLY NOTES—contd.

Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
638	In re Para Thuringe ...	30	258	785	Bombay Cotton Manufacturing Co. v. Motilal Shiv Lal	29	229
639	Mailthi Hengsu v. Soma	30	484	790	Motilal Shiv Lal v. Bombay Cotton Manufacturing Co.	30	59
640	Kunhan Moothad v. A. R. Banerji	30	351	791	Nallaya Koundar v. Sadaya Koundar	32	809
642	Bagga v. Saleha ...	29	1005	792	Venkadu v. Receiver of Nidavole and Medlar Estates	30	812
643	Singaravelu Pillai v. Santhana-krishna Mudaliar	31	9	793	Veeraraghava Row v. Mallapara-gada Gurnnada Row	30	246
643	Lakshmi Amma v. Venkappa Ulluru	33	234	793	Raman Nayar v. Kannath	31	184
644	Venkatasubba Rao v. Asiatic Steam Navigation Co.	30	840	797	Parvathi Ammal v. Govindasami Pillai	30	827
650	Arunachellam Chetti v. Venkateshchellapathi	33	216	801	Rama Chetty v. Arunachalam Chettiar	31	98
371	Secretary of State v. Kannepalli Janakiramayya	30	609	805	Purnyil Seethi v. Ummayya	30	977
701	Muruga Chetty v. Rajaswamy	30	669	810	Bangarayudu v. Perayya Sastry	30	927
703	Padarath Helwai v. Ram Nain Upadhia	30	366	813	Raja of Pittapuram v. Venkata-subba Rao	31	93
713	Ganga Sahai v. Kesri	30	265	815	Chenna Reddi v. Buddha Reddy	31	55
717	Thakurani Tarakumari v. Chaturbhuj Narayan Singh	30	833	817	Patkum Cheepothi Ammal v. Ambalathau Kandy	31	74
722	Muthuswami Nandan v. Sankara-lingam Chetty	30	675	819	Narasimha Raju v. Ragunatha Raju	31	52
725	Srinivasa Mudaly v. Ramasami Mudaly	30	522	822	Venkata Subbiah Chetty v. Subba Naidu	31	152
726	Krishnacharya v. Anthaki	31	12	829	Suppa Bhattar v. Suppu Sakkaya Bhattar	30	932
728	Venkataramanjulu Naidu v. Ramasami Naidu	30	353	836	Thekkethil Mosa v. Pathummal	30	924
731	Sundaram Iyer v. Kulathu Aiyar	31	81	838	Ramayya v. Jaganadham	30	880
736	Rajwant Prasad Pande v. Ram Ratan Gir	30	849	841	Crown Prosecutor v. Govindarajulu	30	752
740	Chakkara Kannau v. Kunhi Pokker	30	755	842	Sitaramanuja Charri v. Vallamma	30	822
755	Subramaniam Chettiar v. Soma-sundaram Chettiar	30	777	844	Chinnakaruppan Chetty v. Meyyappa Chetty	30	753
757	Kunwar v. Ranjit Singh	30	299	845	Sivarama Aiyar v. Alagappa Chetty	31	211
761	Suppayya Pattar v. Haji Ahamed Sait	32	703	846	Subraya Acharya v. Kesava Upadhyaya	31	206
763	Vonkatesvaradu v. Bala Tripura-sundari	30	769	847	Vythinaatha Aiyar v. Vaithilinga Mudaliar	31	206
765	Augustus Brothers v. Fernandez	31	59	850	Arunachellam Chettiar v. Lakshmana Iyer	31	231
768	Rata Pathan v. Para Sundaram	30	634	852	Hakeem Patle Muhammad v. Shaik Davood	30	569
769	Varadaraja Mudali v. Murugesam Pillai	30	707	857	Appayya Chetty v. Mahammade Beari	30	596
772	Budha Singh v. Laltu Singh	30	529	864	Payidayya v. Venkata Reddi	31	913
784	Ramaya Gounden v. Sadagopa Chariar	32	759	864	Venkatarama v. Official Receiver	32	691
785	Ramaswami Iyar v. Madras Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd.	32	610	865	Narayanawami Naidu v. Gantayya	32	691
786	Kanakasabhai v. Emperor	30	745	866	Chinnappa Rowther v. Ibrahim Rowther	30	806
787	Shivalingappa Basappa v. Revappa	29	717	873	Velayutham Pillai v. Subbaraya Pillai	31	398

(E).—(1915) MADRAS WEEKLY NOTES—concl'd.

Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of (1915) M. W. N.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
876	Salfalla Sahib v. Vajibuahla Sahib	31	281	956	Sankaraveta Pillai v. Muthusami Pillai	31	260
880	Hussain Saib v. Hassan Saib	31	927	960	Kuppuswami Reddi v. Venkata-lakshmi Ammal	31	835
907	Nagoor Meera Sahib v. Sookulal Sowcar	30	488	962	Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha	31	590
908	Surapa Raja v. Venkayya	32	802	968	Viswanathaswami Naiker v. Kaniulu Ammal	31	833
911	Manickam Mudaliar v. Muriswami Naidu	31	246	1021	Sabharani Reddi v. Sundararaja Aiyangar	31	312
914	Yegnanarayana v. Makayya	31	478	1023	Jermiah v. Emperor	31	373
915	Subbanna v. Secretary of State	31	267	1025	Secretary of State v. Maharajah of Bobbili	32	279
916	Thatha Chariar v. Thiruvankada Chariar	31	46	1043	Ramanathan Chetty v. Ramasami Chetty	32	5
921	Narayanadaswamy Aiyar v. Venkataramana Aiyar	31	326	1050	District Judge of Krishna v. Hanumanulu	32	326
927	Vyapuri v. Sonamma Bai Ammani	31	412
941	Subramania Aiyar v. Sellammal	31	296
947	Kasturamma v. Venkatasurayya	30	878

Table 7

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

11 NAGPUR LAW REPORTS, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 11 N. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 11 N. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
164	Dina v. Bishambhar Singh	31	464	177	Motilal v. Ganga Bai	31	867
170	Gopikisan v. Kulpat	31	470	180	Daolat Rai v. Sheikh Chand	31	869
174	Ali Mohamad v. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company	31	474	183	Goverdhan v. Maruti	31	872
				186	Pirbhu v. Musammat Wazirbi	31	877
				189	Meghraj v. Johnson	31	880

Table 8

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

(A).—18 OUDH CASES, FROM SEPTEMBER TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 18 O. C. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 18 O. C. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
256	Raghunandan v. Jageshar Singh...	32	424	347	Sheo Indar Bahadur Singh v. Ghaz Zieuddin ...	33	243
263	Inayat Ali v. Jaitun Bibi ...	32	362	353	Nihal Singh v. Raja Raghuraj Bahadur Singh ...	32	202
268	Achambhit Lal v. Chhanga Mal ...	32	420	359	Dharam Raj Kuar v. Lachman Bhuj ...	33	557
272	Aijaz Husain v. Mirza Mohammad Sajjad ...	32	432	361	Lachman Singh v. Thakurnain Sarfaraz Kunwar ...	33	560
275	Raghubar Dayal v. Bank of Upper India ...	32	451	363	Nihal Singh v. Dular Singh ...	33	615
280	Musammal Husaini alias Hashmat v. Ram Charan ...	32	341	364	Etizad Hussin v. Beni Bahadur ...	33	619
282	Mohammad Hadi v. Saiyed Moham- mad Taki ...	32	465	367	Ram Prasad v. Rahat Bibi ...	33	622
289	Ghisa Singh v. Thakur Gajraj Singh ...	33	571	369	Mahesh Bakhsh Singh v. Manohar Lal ...	33	657
340	Jamshed Ali Khan v. Zahur-ul- Hassan Khan ...	33	357	372	Musammal Habibun-Nissa v. Musharruf Ali ...	33	661
341	Narain Dat v. Gopal Das ...	33	361	374	Gauri Shankar v. Musammal Lach- min Kunwar ...	33	663
343	Dhanesh Prasad v. Gaya Prasad...	33	365	377	Genda Singh v. Fateh Singh ...	33	258
345	Khanjan Singh v. Anup ...	33	367	380	Ram Jiawan v. Jadunath ...	33	555

(B).—2 OUDH LAW JOURNAL, FROM OCTOBER TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
593	Raza Husain v. Amar Chand Pal ...	32	715	620	Raja Abdul Hasan Khan v. Musam- mat Jagwanta ...	32	729
595	Raghunandan v. Jageshar Singh ...	32	424	625	Sri Ram v. Ram Pargash ...	32	732
601	Chauharja Bakhsh v. Ram Harakh ...	32	740	629	Thakurdin Singh v. Musammal Bhagwant Kuar ...	32	734
607	Basdeo Singh v. Ram Phal Singh ...	32	748	634	Lal Muneshar Bakhsh Singh v. Gaya Bakhsh ...	33	729
610	Hon'ble Raja Syed Abu Jafar v. Sat Narain Goshain ...	32	769	636	Ghulam Abbas Khan v. Bibi Ummatul Fatima ...	31	748
611	Delhi and London Bank Limited v. Ram Ratan ...	32	754	707	Ram Adhin v. Maharaja Bhag- wati Prasad Singh ...	33	141
614	Syed Wasi Ali v. Jang Bahadur Singh ...	31	48

(B).—2 OUDH LAW JOURNAL, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
709	Bhagwan Din v. Shankar Prasad	33	161	737	Musammat Lachman v. Belahra Estate	33	257
711	Ram Singh v. Bisheswar Dayal	33	166	739	Rai Krishna Prasad Singh v. Suraj Pal Singh	33	214
712	Suraj Bali v. Manager of Nanpara Estate	33	168	740	Channu Shah v. Ewaz Ali	33	214
714	Jagdeo Singh v. Karam Ali	33	170	741	Jaggiwan Bakhsh v. Ashbur Husain	33	260
716	Dost Muhammad Khan v. Rahman Khan	33	180	742	Kandhaiya Lal v. Narain Das	33	262
717	Achhaibir Singh v. Dalip Singh	33	234	743	Kunj Bihari v. Anuresh Babadur Singh	33	263
718	Shah Hayat Ahmad v. Hadri Pande	33	236	745	Jageshar Bakhsh Singh v. Han- wanta Singh	33	262
720	Jamil-ud-din Ahmad v. Syed Tawakkul Husain	33	237	746	Tribhuvan Das v. Raja Muham- mad Abul Hasan Khan	33	264
722	Lal Tribhuvan Nath Singh v. Musammat Ganga Dei	33	232	748	Mir Buniyad Husain v. Ram Sahai Singh	33	266
723	Ram Raj v. Rameshar	33	205	750	Musammat Jagra v. Kalpi	33	270
724	Sahdeo v. Mahadeo	33	215	753	Kishan Dayal v. Chandhri Thakur Prasad	33	203
725	Raja Rameshar Bakhsh Singh v. Raghobar	33	163	754	Puloi Khan v. Raja Muhammad Mohd Ali Khan	33	203
726	Chheddi Tewari v. Hayat Ahmad	33	157	755	Raghobar v. Takardio	33	204
727	Ram Nath v. Avadh Bihari	33	210	757	Raja Rameshar Bakhsh Singh v. Sada Sheo	33	137
728	Raja Udit Narayan Singh v. Musammat Indra Kuar	33	145	758	Azam Shah v. Ahmad Shah	33	516
729	Mahabir Singh v. Manager, Court of Wards Ajodhya Estate	33	246	772	Thakur Gauri Shankar v. Abu Muhammad	33	147
730	Jagorohan Upadhyay v. Kanuta Shiroman Prasad Singh	33	247	774	Pitam Singh v. Debi Prasad	29	675
732	Pandit Buddhu Lal v. Ram Sarup	33	250	776	Raja Raghuraj Singh v. Ram Lotan Dube	33	186
733	Raja Oudh Indra Pratap Sahi v. Nakehhed Singh	33	254
735	Mata Din Singh v. Dwarka Kurni	31	447

Table 9

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

(A).—16 PUNJAB LAW REPORTER, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 16 P. L. R. 1915	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		No. of Vol. 16 P. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
237	Natha Singh v. Mangat ..	26	812	242	Jangli Mal v. Pioneer Flour Mills	27	115
238	Musammal Hayat Khatun v. Musammal Sharm Khatun ..	26	524	243	Rahim Bakhsh v. Umar Din ..	29	382
239	Shuja-ud-Din v. Musammal Aisha Bi ..	26	342	244	Muhammad Zaman v. Musammal Hasni ..	Not reportable.
240	Musammal Sharaf Noor v. Ahmad	30	505	245	Aslam v. Emperor	Do.
241	Fuzl Khan v. Musammal Karam Begam ..	27	113	246	Balmokand v. Emperor	28	738

(B).—50 PUNJAB RECORD, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 50 P. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.	No. of Vol. 50 P. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
	Civil.	V. P.		Civil—contd.	V. P.
85	Narpat Rai v. Devi Das ...	31 634	103	Safdar Ali v. Ghulam Mohi-ud-din	30 526
86	Bodhu Ram v. Muhammad Din ...	32 315	104	Bahadur Singh v. Bhagel Singh ..	32 11
87	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah ...	31 463	105	Pala Singh v. Musammal Lachhmi	32 16
88	Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali ...	31 469	106	Bishen Das v. Ram Labhaya ...	32 18
89	Kishen Singh v. Bhagwan Das ...	31 476	107	Amin Chand v. Bujha ...	32 29
90	Muhammad Bakhsh v. Muhammad	31 533	108	Musammal Budhan v. Radha
91	Robert Skinner v. Mrs. James Skinner ...	31 537	109	Kishen	32 33
92	Chandan Mal v. Musammal Wasindi	31 541	110	Sultan Singh v. Hashmat Ullah ...	29 804
93	Padman v. Hanwanta ...	29 867		Raja v. Allah Ditta ...	29 802
94	Muhammad Hayat v. Muhammad Ali ...	31 489
95	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh ...	31 493		Criminal.
96	Allah Din v. Salam Din ...	31 497	28	Daulat Rai v. Crown	29 105
97	Umar Bakhsh v. Baldeo Singh ...	32 35	29	Musammal Budho v. Crown ...	32 148
98	Skinner v. Badri Kishen ...	31 196	30	Crown v. Musammal Naurati ...	32 155
99	Musammal Gulab Khatun v. Ohandhri ...	32 250		Revenue.
100	Chiragh Din v. Bhagwan Das ...	32 40
101	Musammal Kahan Devi v. Musam- mat Nihal Devi ...	32 43	5	Khadiun Hussain Khan v. Musam- mat Murad Bibi ...	32 102
102	Harbhaj Mal v. Diwan Chand ...	32 88

(C).—10 PUNJAB WEEKLY REPORTER, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 10 P. W. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		No. of Vol. 10 P. W. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
	Civil.				Civil—concl.
149	Sher Singh v. Salig	31	241	169	Allah Din v. Salam Din	31	497
150	Musammam Tara Devi v. Dhanpat Rai	31	797	170	Mahammad Bakhsh v. Muham- mad	31	533
151	Kura v. Madho	31	159	171	Atliana Bank of Simla v. Amritsar Bank	31	215
152	Ditta Ram v. Rup Chand	31	802	172	Gul Muhammad v. Tota Ram	31	221
153	Sham Sundar v. Abdul Ahad	31	808	173	Jowala Singh v. Palsa Ram	31	212
154	Ram Adin v. Munshi Ram	31	209	174	Lola v. Ram Chand	31	294
155	Buaditta v. Musammam Rattan Devi	28	12	175	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh	31	493
156	Bhamba Ram v. Allah Bakhsh	31	191	176	Musammam Mahan Devi v. Madho	31	237
157	Pritbmi Chand v. Safa Chand	31	202	177	Musammam Maya Devi v. Ram Chand	31	186
158	Fazl Ahmadi v. Jiwan Mal	31	800	178	Sawan Mal v. Shih Dyal	31	254
159	Karam Chand v. Ghulam Hassan	31	199	179	R. H. Skinner v. Badri Krishen	31	196
160	Nihal Singh v. Mal Singh	31	862	180	Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali	31	469
161	Musammam Sahib Zaili v. Allah Bakhsh	31	863	181	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah	31	463
162	Hakim Rai v. The Official Liqui- dator of Peshawar Bank, Limit- ed, Multan	31	865	182	Indian Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Company, Delhi v. Wazir Singh	31	595
163	Sundar Singh v. Musammam Gur- devi	31	27		Criminal.
164	Gaman v. Imam Bakhsh	31	205	40	Umar Din v. Crown	30	731
165	Budha Ram v. Muhammad Din	32	315	41	Mangaya Shah v. Crown	32	660
166	Chuni Lal v. Beli Ram	30	104	42	Raghubir Singh v. Crown	31	375
167	Jumna v. Mularik Khan	30	87
168	Chandau Mal v. Musammam Wa- sindi	31	541

Table 10
SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.
9 SIND LAW REPORTER, FOR JULY TO OCTOBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 9 S. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 9 S. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
101	Premji Ladha v. Visram Amul	33	615	150	Ramsing v. Paramal	32	582
108	Hirji v. Goverdhandas	32	530	158	Faiz Mahomed v. Crown	32	669
116	Firm of Lutafali Fuddoo Allidina v. Royal Exchange Corpora- tion	32	549	160	Firm of Ruttonji Burjorji v. Firm of Motomal Bhagchand	32	720
126	Municipality of Karachi v. Ma- hommed Ali Essaji	33	675	164	Khiantomal v. Nawab Fateh Ma- hommed	32	629
132	Re Application by Henry Robert Smith	32	575	167	Gehimal v. Manager Encumbered Estates in Sind	32	616
134	Hemandas Ramrakhiomal v. Chellaram Dhalumal	32	554	170	Ratansi Daya v. Crown	32	688
137	Daulatram Valsabdas v. Ali Bhai Ibrahimji	33	668	171	Dhanibux v. Crown	32	671
141	Aludomal v. Crown	32	679	174	Mir Husseinbux Khan v. Kando	32	689
143	Bibi Saheb Zadi v. Mir Mohamed Shah	32	548	176	Nadirshah v. Crown	32	669
148	Motising v. Sobhomal	33	634	177	Firm of Doulomal Khushaldas v. Secretary of State for India in Council	32	551
				181	Re Application by Messrs. Fleming Shaw & Co.	32	565

Table 8

ODDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

(A).—18 OUDH CASES, FROM SEPTEMBER TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 18 O. C. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 18 O. C. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
256	Raghuuandan v. Jageshar Singh...	32	424	347	Sheo Indar Bahadur Singh v. Ghaz Ziauddin	33	243
263	Inayat Ali v. Jaitun Bibi	32	362	353	Nihal Singh v. Raja Raghuuaj Bahadur Singh	32	202
268	Achambhit Lal v. Chhanga Mal	32	429	359	Dharam Raj Kumar v. Lachman Bhuj	33	557
272	Aijaz Husain v. Mirza Mohammad Sajjad	32	432	361	Lachman Singh v. Thakurnin Sarfaraz Kunwar	33	560
275	Raghubar Dayal v. Bank of Upper India	32	451	363	Nihal Singh v. Dular Singh	33	615
280	Musammam Husaini alias Hashmat v. Ram Charan	32	341	364	Etizad Husain v. Beni Bahadur	33	619
282	Mohammad Hadi v. Saiyed Moham- mad Taki	32	465	367	Ram Prasad v. Rabat Bibi	33	622
289	Ghisa Singh v. Thakur Gajraj Singh	33	371	369	Mahesh Bakhsh Singh v. Manohar Lal	33	657
340	Jamshed Ali Khan v. Zahur-ul- Hassan Khan	33	357	372	Musammam Habibun-Nissa v. Musharraf Ali	33	661
341	Narain Dat v. Gopal Das	33	361	374	Gauri Shankar v. Musammam Lach- man Kunwar	33	663
343	Dhanesh Prasad v. Gaya Prasad...	33	365	377	Genda Singh v. Fatch Singh	33	258
345	Khanjan Singh v. Anup	33	367	380	Ram Jiawan v. Jadunath	33	555

(B).—2 OUDH LAW JOURNAL, FROM OCTOBER TO DECEMBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
593	Raza Husain v. Amar Chand Pal	32	715	620	Raja Abdul Hasan Khan v. Musam- mat Jagwanta	32	729
595	Raghuuandan v. Jageshar Singh	32	424	625	Sri Ram v. Ram Pargash	32	742
601	Chacharja Bakhsh v. Ram Harakh	32	740	629	Thakurdin Singh v. Musammam Bhagwant Kuar	32	734
607	Basdeo Singh v. Ram Phal Singh	32	748	634	Lal Muneshar Bakhsh Singh v. Gaya Bakhsh	33	729
610	Hon'ble Raja Syed Abu Jafar v. Sat Narain Goshain	32	769	636	Ghulam Abbas Khan v. Bibi Ummatul Fatima	31	748
611	Delhi and London Bank Limited v. Ram Ratan	32	754	707	Ram Adhin v. Maharaja Bhag- wati Prasad Singh	33	141
614	Syed Wasi Ali v. Jang Bahadur Singh	34	48

(B).—2 OUDH LAW JOURNAL, 1915—concl'd.

Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 2 O. L. J.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
709	Bhagwan Din v. Shankar Prasad	33	161	737	Muhammad Lachhman v. Belahira Estate	33	257
711	Ram Singh v. Bisheshwar Dayal	33	166	739	Rai Krishna Prasad Singh v. Suraj Pal Singh	33	214
712	Suraj Bali v. Manager of Nanpara Estate	33	168	740	Channu Shah v. Ewaz Ali	33	214
714	Jagdeo Singh v. Karam Ali	33	170	741	Jaggiwan Bakhsh v. Ashfaq Husain	33	260
716	Dost Muhammad Khan v. Rahman Khan	33	180	742	Kandhaiya Lal v. Narain Das	33	262
717	Achhaibir Singh v. Dalip Singh	33	234	743	Kunj Bihari v. Amresh Bahadur Singh	33	263
718	Shah Hayat Ahmad v. Badri Pande	33	236	745	Jageshar Bakhsh Singh v. Hanwanta Singh	33	252
720	Jamil-ud-din Ahmad v. Syed Tawakkul Husain	33	237	746	Tribhuvan Dat v. Raja Muhammad Abul Hasan Khan	33	264
722	Lal Tribhuvan Nath Singh v. Muhammad Ganga Dei	33	232	748	Mir Baniyad Husain v. Rani Sahai Singh	33	266
723	Ram Raj v. Rameshar	33	205	750	Muhammad Jagra v. Kalpi	33	270
724	Sahdeo v. Mahadeo	33	215	753	Kishan Dayal v. Chaudhri Thakur Prasad	33	203
725	Raja Rameshar Bakhsh Singh v. Raghobar	33	163	754	Pudai Khan v. Raja Muhammad Mehdi Ali Khan	33	203
726	Chheddi Tewari v. Hayat Ahmad	33	157	755	Raghobar v. Takurdiu	33	204
727	Ram Nath v. Avadh Bihari	33	210	757	Raja Rameshar Bakhsh Singh v. Sada Sheo	33	137
728	Raja Udit Narayan Singh v. Muhammad Indra Kuar	33	145	758	Azam Shah v. Ahmad Shah	33	516
729	Mahabir Singh v. Manager, Court of Wards Ajodhya Estate	33	246	772	Thakur Gauri Shankar v. Abu Muhammad	33	147
730	Jagmohan Upadhyay v. Kaunda Shiromani Prasad-Singh	33	247	774	Pitani Singh v. Debi Prasad	29	675
732	Pandit Buddha Lal v. Ram Sarup	33	250	776	Raja Raghuraj Singh v. Ram Lotan Dube	33	186
733	Raja Oudh Indra Pratap Sahi v. Nakhsh Singh	33	254
735	Mata Din Singh v. Dwarka Kurmi	31	447

Table 9

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

(A).—16 PUNJAB LAW REPORTER, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 16 P. L. R. 1915	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		No. of Vol. 16 P. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
237	Natha Singh v. Mangal	26	812	242	Jangli Mal v. Pioneer Flour Mills	27	115
238	Musammat Hayat Khatun v. Musammat Sharm Khatun	26	524	243	Rahim Bakhsh v. Umar Din	29	382
239	Shuja-ud-Din v. Musammat Aisha Bi	26	342	244	Muhammad Zaman v. Musammat Hasni	Not report- able. Do.
240	Musammat Sharaf Noor v. Ahmad	30	505	245	Azlam v. Emperor
241	Fazl Khan v. Musammat Karam Begum	27	113	246	Balmokand v. Emperor	28	738

(B).—50 PUNJAB RECORD, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 50 P. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.	No. of Vol. 50 P. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
	Civil.	V. P.		Civil—contd.	V. P.
85	Narpat Rai v. Devi Das ...	31 634	103	Safdar Ali v. Ghulam Mohi-ud-din	30 526
86	Budhu Ram v. Muhammad Din ...	32 315	104	Bahadur Singh v. Bhagel Singh ...	32 11
87	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah ...	31 463	105	Pala Singh v. Musammat Lachhmi	32 16
88	Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali ...	31 469	106	Bishen Das v. Ram Labhaya ...	32 18
89	Kishen Singh v. Bhagwan Das ...	31 476	107	Amin Chand v. Bujha ...	32 20
90	Muhammad Bakhsh v. Muhammad	31 533	108	Musammat Budhan v. Radha
91	Robert Skinner v. Mrs. James Skinner ...	31 537	109	Kishen ...	32 33
92	Chandan Mal v. Musammat Wasiudi	31 541	110	Sultan Singh v. Hashmat Ullah ...	29 804
93	Padman v. Hanwanta ...	29 807		Raja v. Allah Ditta ...	29 802
94	Muhammad Hayat v. Muhammad Ali ...	31 489
95	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh ...	31 493		Criminal.
96	Allah Din v. Salam Din ...	31 497	28	Daulat Rai v. Crown	29 105
97	Umar Bakhsh v. Baldeo Singh ...	32 35	29	Musammat Budho v. Crown ...	32 148
98	Skinner v. Badri Kishen ...	31 196	30	Crown v. Musammat Naurati ...	32 155
99	Musammat Gulab Khatun v. Chaudhri ...	32 250		Revenue.
100	Chiragh Din v. Bhagwan Das ...	32 40
101	Musammat Kahan Devi v. Musam- mat Nihal Devi ...	32 43	5	Khadiun Hussain Khan v. Musam- mat Murad Bibi ...	32 102
102	Harbhaj Mal v. Diwan Chand ...	32 88

(C).—10 PUNJAB WEEKLY REPORTER, FOR NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1915.

No. of Vol. 10 P. W. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		No. of Vol. 10 P. W. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
149	Civil, Sher Singh v. Salig	31	241	169	Civil—concl. Allah Din v. Salan Din	31	497
150	Musammat Tara Devi v. Dhanpat Rai	31	797	170	Malatamad Bakhsh v. Muham- mad	31	533
151	Kura v. Madho	31	159	171	Alliance Bank of Simla v. Amritsar Bank	31	215
152	Ditta Ram v. Rup Chand	31	802	172	Gul Muhammad v. Tota Ram	31	221
153	Sham Sundar v. Abdul Ahad	31	808	173	Jowala Singh v. Talsa Ram	31	212
154	Ram Adin v. Munshi Ram	31	209	174	Lelu v. Ram Chand	31	294
155	Bouditta v. Musammat Rattan Devi	28	12	175	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh	31	493
156	Bhamba Ram v. Allah Bakhsh	31	191	176	Musammat Mahan Devi v. Madho	31	237
157	Prithvi Chand v. Safa Chand	31	232	177	Musammat Maya Devi v. Ram Chand	31	186
158	Fazl Ahmad v. Jiwari Mal	31	800	178	Sawan Mal v. Shih Diyal	31	254
159	Karam Chand v. Ghulam Hassan	31	199	179	R. H. Skinner v. Badri Krishen	31	196
160	Nihal Singh v. Mal Singh	31	862	180	Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali	31	469
161	Musammat Sahib Zadi v. Allah Bakhsh	31	863	181	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah	31	463
162	Hakim Rai v. The Official Liqui- dator of Peshawar Bank, Limit- ed, Multan	31	865	182	Indian Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Company, Delhi v. Wazir Singh	31	595
163	Sundar Singh v. Musammat Gar- devi	31	27		Criminal.
164	Gaman v. Imam Bakhsh	31	205	40	Umar Din v. Crown	30	731
165	Bodha Ram v. Muhammad Din	32	315	41	Mangaya Shah v. Crown	32	660
166	Chuni Lal v. Beli Ram	30	101	42	Raghubir Singh v. Crown	31	375
167	Jumna v. Mubarik Khan	30	87
168	Chandan Mal v. Musammat Wa- sindi	31	541

Table 10
SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.
9 SIND LAW REPORTER, FOR JULY TO OCTOBER, 1915.

Page of Vol. 9 S. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.		Page of Vol. 9 S. L. R. 1915.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding Vol. and page of Ind. Cas.
		V.	P.			V.	P.
101	Premji Ladha v. Vistram Amul	33	615	150	Ramsing v. Paramal	32	582
108	Hirji v. Goverdhandas	32	530	158	Faiz Mahomed v. Crown	32	669
116	Firm of Lutafali Fuddoo Allidina v. Royal Exchange Corpora- tion	32	543	160	Firm of Ruttonji Burjorji v. Firm of Motamal Bhagchand	32	720
120	Municipality of Karachi v. Ma- hommed Alli Essaji	33	675	164	Khiantomal v. Nawab Fateh Ma- hommed	32	629
132	Re Application by Henry Robert Smith	32	575	167	Gehimal v. Manager Encumbered Estates in Sind	32	616
134	Hemandas Ramrakhiomal v. Chellaram Dhalumal	32	554	170	Ratansi Daya v. Crown	32	688
137	Daulatram Valabdas v. Ali Bhai Ibrahimji	33	668	171	Dhanibux v. Crown	32	671
141	Aludomal v. Crown	32	679	174	Mir Husseinbux Khan v. Kando	32	689
143	Bibi Saheb Zadi v. Mir Mohamed Shah	32	548	176	Nadirshah v. Crown	32	669
148	Motising v. Sobhomal	33	634	177	Firm of Doulomal Khushaldas v. Secretary of State for India in Council	32	551
				181	Re Application by Messrs. Fleming Shaw & Co.	32	565

Comparative Tables showing seriatim the Volumes and Pages of all Indian Law Journals and Reports, for the year 1915, with the corresponding Volumes and Pages of Indian Cases Volumes I to 34.

*Allahabad, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVII.*

Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol. Page.
1 ...	XXV 193
7 ...	XXVII 54
9 ...	XXVI 206
12 ...	" 121
13 ...	" 91
20 ...	" 647
22 ...	" 21
26 ...	" 632
30 ...	" 653
31 ...	" 635
33 ...	" 638
40 ...	XXVII 533
41 ...	XXVI 731
45 ...	XXVII 862
49 ...	XXVIII 422
57 ...	XXVI 25
59 ...	" 458
65 ...	" 926
69 ...	" 795
72 ...	" 427
76 ...	" 783
81 ...	" 521
86 ...	" 778
91 ...	" 445
94 ...	XXVII 511
97 ...	XXVI 597
99 ...	XXVII 509
101 ...	XXVI 417
106 ...	XXVII 497
107 ...	" 109
110 ...	" 223
113 ...	XXVI 507
115 ...	XXVII 737
120 ...	" 698
124 ...	" 878
125 ...	" 501
127 ...	XXVIII 103
128 ...	XXVI 646
129 ...	XXVIII 24
144 ...	XXVI 446
155 ...	XXVII 694
159 ...	" 731
162 ...	XXVI 871
165 ...	XXVII 795
177 ...	XXVIII 896
179 ...	XXVII 623
185 ...	XXVIII 139
187 ...	" 658
189 ...	XXVIII 502
195 ...	XXVI 737
203 ...	" 922
208 ...	XXVIII 261

*Allahabad, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVII—contd.*

Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol. Page.
212 ...	XXVII 871
214 ...	XXVIII 593
220 ...	" 143
223 ...	XXVII 913
226 ...	" 771
230 ...	XXVIII 734
232 ...	XXIX 638
233 ...	XXVII 712
241 ...	XXVIII 561
247 ...	" 653
252 ...	" 573
254 ...	" 552
262 ...	" 272
264 ...	" 348
267 ...	" 265
272 ...	" 298
273 ...	" 384
278 ...	" 278
280 ...	" 432
283 ...	" 616
286 ...	" 652
289 ...	" 655
292 ...	" 949
296 ...	" 681
298 ...	XXIX 724
309 ...	XXVIII 973
313 ...	XXIX 53
318 ...	XXVIII 953
323 ...	XXIX 50
326 ...	XXVIII 877
331 ...	XXIX 323
334 ...	" 89
338 ...	" 146
344 ...	" 97
347 ...	XXX 245
350 ...	XXIX 218
353 ...	" 335
355 ...	XXVIII 1005
359 ...	XXIX 617
369 ...	" 781
380 ...	" 133
383 ...	" 263
390 ...	" 984
395 ...	" 67
400 ...	XXVIII 910
412 ...	XXIX 15
414 ...	" 593
419 ...	XXX 138
422 ...	XXIX 302
423 ...	" 601
426 ...	" 606
429 ...	" 998

*Allahabad, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVII—concltd.*

Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol. Page.
434 ...	XXIX 347
439 ...	" 329
440 ...	" 994
444 ...	" 215
446 ...	" 987
450 ...	" 998
452 ...	" 990
456 ...	" 411
460 ...	" 553
463 ...	XXX 400
467 ...	" 404
471 ...	" 158
472 ...	XXIX 393
474 ...	XXX 366
485 ...	" 849
496 ...	" 657
515 ...	XXIX 416
518 ...	XXX 877
522 ...	XXIX 495
524 ...	" 1001
527 ...	" 479
529 ...	" 1000
531 ...	XXX 775
535 ...	" 789
542 ...	" 787
545 ...	" 265
557 ...	" 292
567 ...	" 77
573 ...	XXIX 1000
575 ...	" 632
583 ...	XXX 903
585 ...	" 945
589 ...	" 523
591 ...	" 186
595 ...	" 550
597 ...	" 573
600 ...	" 565
604 ...	" 529
624 ...	" 647
625 ...	" 653
631 ...	" 512
634 ...	" 777
618 ...	" 521
640 ...	XXIX 968
646 ...	XXX 951
649 ...	" 92
654 ...	" 1002
656 ...	" 89
658 ...	" 215
661 ...	" 916
652 ...	" 949

*Allahabad Law Journal,
Vol. XIII.*

Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol. Page.
1 ...	XXVI 445
4 ...	XXVII 208
6 ...	" 503
9 ...	XXVI 427
14 ...	" 521
19 ...	XXVII 509
21 ...	" 497
24 ...	XXVI 507
26 ...	" 778
31 ...	XXVII 511
34 ...	XXVI 417
38 ...	" 597
41 ...	" 783
47 ...	XXVII 501
49 ...	XXVI 419
53 ...	XXVII 223
55 ...	" 622
57 ...	" 378
58 ...	" 629
60 ...	" 922
66 ...	XXVI 620
69 ...	" 871
73 ...	XXVII 737
79 ...	" 646
81 ...	" 637
85 ...	" 697
91 ...	" 707
94 ...	" 687
96 ...	" 731
98 ...	" 694
102 ...	" 532
104 ...	XXVIII 103
105 ...	XXVII 696
109 ...	XXVI 646
110 ...	XXVII 701
111 ...	" 203
113 ...	XXIV 499
117 ...	XXVII 26
121 ...	XXVI 915
129 ...	XXVIII 422
136 ...	XXVII 804
138 ...	" 795
150 ...	" 720
154 ...	XXIV 304
162 ...	XXVII 560
165 ...	" 865
168 ...	XXVI 446
179 ...	XXVII 623
185 ...	" 733
194 ...	XXVIII 502
195 ...	XXVI 787
204 ...	" 922

Allahabad Law Journal,
Vol. XIII—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
209	XXVIII	622
211		593
217	XXVII	53
223		674
229	XXVIII	920
236		34
246		21
249		568
251		651
252		139
254		658
255	XXVII	712
263	XXVIII	561
268		744
270		573
272		737
273	XXVII	631
278		913
281		871
283	XXVIII	261
286		265
288		272
290	XXVII	874
291	XXVIII	143
295	XXVII	914
298	XXVIII	276
300		278
302		298
305		381
307	XXVII	771
312	XXVIII	384
317		387
322		390
326		432
329		302
333		600
335		348
337		663
342		602
345		616
347		601
351		270
353		652
356		655
359		816
361		674
364		552
372		677
376		630
379		681
381		687
383		691
385		962
394		969
397		973
401		948
402		940
407		953
412		325
417	XXIX	207
424		223
428		213
434		217

Allahabad Law Journal,
Vol. XIII—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
435	XXIX	176
437		220
439		335
441		133
444	XXVIII	857
449	XXIX	50
452	XXVIII	587
455	XXIX	53
459		146
466		97
469		77
470		91
473	XXX	33
475		145
477	XXIX	65
479		89
482		975
487		980
489		981
494		986
497	XXVIII	1005
501		699
510		910
521	XXIX	263
529		223
534	XXX	55
540	XXVIII	710
546	XXIX	830
548		2 2
551		302
553		363
555		15
557		593
562		595
565		601
567		606
570		639
594	XXX	677
612	XXIX	292
616		218
619	XXX	722
623	XXIX	499
625		67
630	XXX	138
632	XXIX	245
635		1003
638	XXX	480
637	XXIX	1002
639		996
642		998
647		437
649		215
651	XXX	593
653	XXIX	411
658	XXX	400
662		404
666	XXIX	274
669	XXX	410
673	XXIX	594
677		452
679		553
681		722

Allahabad Law Journal,
Vol. XIII—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
683	XXIX	1078
685		329
686		347
691	XXX	141
694	XXIX	247
695		988
697		987
700		990
704		993
706		479
709		540
711		1000
712		1000
714		465
717		1001
719	XXX	158
721	XXIX	617
732		622
739		628
742		416
745	XXX	782
750		747
753		789
760		877
764		775
769		77
775	XXIX	692
779	XXX	189
783		192
786		933
788		173
791		941
793		189
796		945
801	XXIX	807
809	XXX	366
817		505
821		508
824		512
826		521
829		523
841		525
833		565
837		573
840		653
843		546
846		549
848		647
851		550
854		551
857		552
857		564
881		576
886		581
889		777
893		779
901		792
908		92
913	XXIX	663
919	XXX	89
921		908
925		911
929		951

Allahabad Law Journal,
Vol. XIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
92	XXX	1002
935		830
937		849
945		956
947		215
949		949
951		947
953		303
979	XXXI	995
985	XXX	494
991		290
999		266
1007		529
1026		539
1034		833
1041	XXXI	817
1046		821
1050		824
1055		826
1058		828
1059		829
1064		716
1067		1001
1070		1002
1072		1005
1075	XXXIII	369
1077	XXXII	136
1079	XXX	584
1084	XXXI	792
1089	XXX	2
1094	XXXI	805
1098		809
1101		876
1104		879
1107		882
1109		404
1111		593
1114		906
1115		899
1122		903
1129		907
1131		651
1137		914
1141		919

Revenue cases.

1	XXVIII	691
3		693
5	XXXI	624
9	XXIX	427
10	XXXI	617

Bombay, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXIX.

1	XXIV	743
16	XXV	234
20	XXVI	242
26	XXVIII	139
29	XXVI	444
34		265

*Bombay, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXIX—contd.*

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
41 ...	XXVII	249
47 ...	"	44
52 ...	"	165
55 ...	"	613
58 ...	XXVI	138
68 ...	XXVIII	12
73 ...	XXVII	59
80 ...	XXVIII	18
87 ...	XXVII	167
113 ...	"	356
119 ...	XXVI	751
124 ...	"	892
131 ...	XXVII	350
186 ...	XXVI	599
138 ...	XXVII	1605
149 ...	XXVIII	921
165 ...	XXVI	606
168 ...	"	607
175 ...	"	754
182 ...	XXVII	494
191 ...	XXV	241
245 ...	XXVIII	473
256 ...	"	478
261 ...	XXVI	915
279 ...	XXVII	16
286 ...	"	53
310 ...	"	147
316 ...	XXIII	880
323 ...	XXVI	995
331 ...	XXVII	325
335 ...	XXVIII	24
339 ...	XXVI	885
352 ...	XXVIII	485
358 ...	"	442
373 ...	"	967
383 ...	"	359
386 ...	XXIX	229
399 ...	"	223
40 ...	XXVIII	178
421 ...	"	461
422 ...	"	589
434 ...	"	584
438 ...	"	597
441 ...	XXIX	639
472 ...	XXVIII	846
478 ...	XXIX	600
485 ...	"	545
494 ...	"	480
507 ...	"	497
513 ...	XXVI	896
523 ...	XXIX	69
528 ...	"	943
538 ...	"	952
545 ...	"	949
552 ...	"	954
558 ...	XXX	137
563 ...	XXVI	906
568 ...	XXVIII	606
572 ...	XXXI	277
580 ...	XXX	17
587 ...	"	296
593 ...	XXXI	280
600 ...	XXX	390
604 ...	"	560

*Bombay, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXIX—concl.*

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
625 ...	XXX	303
664 ...	"	539
682 ...	XXVIII	468
715 ...	"	528
729 ...	XXXI	180
734 ...	XXX	918

*Bombay Law Reporter,
Vol. XVII.*

1 ...	XXIV	294
5 ...	"	507
13 ...	"	499
18 ...	XXV	417
32 ...	XXVI	676
44 ...	XXVII	892
49 ...	"	478
56 ...	"	494
63 ...	"	407
65 ...	"	505
69 ...	"	552
69 ...	"	545
72 ...	"	826
76 ...	"	837
79 ...	"	767
82 ...	"	657
100 ...	"	20
103 ...	XXVI	915
115 ...	XXVII	946
128 ...	XXVIII	12
133 ...	"	18
141 ...	"	24
144 ...	XXVII	1005
153 ...	"	927
157 ...	XXVIII	921
169 ...	"	473
175 ...	"	478
182 ...	"	480
187 ...	"	485
192 ...	"	489
197 ...	XXVII	53
203 ...	XXVIII	493
207 ...	"	359
209 ...	"	506
212 ...	"	517
217 ...	"	641
222 ...	"	645
225 ...	"	408
249 ...	"	433
259 ...	"	442
271 ...	"	451
273 ...	"	529
293 ...	"	693
303 ...	"	538
315 ...	"	544
320 ...	"	588
324 ...	"	584
332 ...	"	589
335 ...	"	597
339 ...	"	946
342 ...	"	948
361 ...	"	983
"	"	967

*Bombay Law Reporter,
Vol. XVII—contd.*

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
372 ...	XXVIII	978
382 ...	XXIX	66
384 ...	"	69
389 ...	"	65
393 ...	XXVIII	34
404 ...	XXVI	624
468 ...	XXVII	683
413 ...	XXVIII	422
420 ...	"	930
426 ...	XXVII	674
432 ...	XXVIII	710
442 ...	"	699
449 ...	XXX	55
455 ...	XXIX	219
460 ...	"	223
467 ...	XXV	190
468 ...	XXIX	298
475 ...	"	724
484 ...	XXX	59
487 ...	XXIX	334
490 ...	"	666
496 ...	"	545
504 ...	"	500
510 ...	"	504
513 ...	"	490
522 ...	"	497
527 ...	"	639
549 ...	"	617
556 ...	"	781
566 ...	"	943
574 ...	"	949
579 ...	"	954
584 ...	"	952
590 ...	XXXI	354
600 ...	XXX	124
603 ...	"	137
607 ...	"	133
609 ...	XXIX	867
617 ...	XXX	366
625 ...	"	17
630 ...	"	366
635 ...	"	369
641 ...	XXXI	277
646 ...	"	280
652 ...	XXX	190
655 ...	"	560
670 ...	"	649
676 ...	"	652
678 ...	"	641
680 ...	"	545
682 ...	"	548
685 ...	XXXI	180
689 ...	XXX	863
693 ...	"	904
698 ...	"	909
701 ...	"	913
705 ...	"	915
712 ...	"	918
725 ...	"	925
730 ...	"	203
754 ...	"	849
762 ...	"	864
770 ...	"	870
763 ...	XXXI	718

*Bombay Law Reporter,
Vol. XVII—concl.*

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
799 ...	XXXI	106
881 ...	"	362
885 ...	"	572
890 ...	"	371
892 ...	"	765
895 ...	"	238
898 ...	"	340
906 ...	"	345
910 ...	"	347
918 ...	"	352
921 ...	"	381
922 ...	"	383
924 ...	"	868
925 ...	"	948
928 ...	"	388
938 ...	"	441
948 ...	"	331
950 ...	"	445
1055 ...	"	301
962 ...	"	505
967 ...	"	311
974 ...	XXXII	405
979 ...	XXXI	498
985 ...	"	500
989 ...	"	507
1098 ...	XXX	265
1006 ...	"	299
1012 ...	"	833
1022 ...	"	529
1040 ...	XXXIII	192
1059 ...	"	309
1072 ...	XXXI	994
1074 ...	"	1000
1078 ...	XXXII	130
1080 ...	XXXI	1003
1085 ...	"	1008
1087 ...	XXXIII	205
1097 ...	"	358
1106 ...	"	423
1115 ...	"	428
1131 ...	"	426
1134 ...	"	444
1137 ...	"	441
1140 ...	"	464

*Burma Law Times,
Vol. VII.*

December, 1914.

267 ...	XXIV	132
280 ...	"	601
292 ...	"	946
293 ...	"	588
294 ...	"	710
298 ...	"	915
301 ...	"	960
304 ...	XXV	339
304 ...	"	222
308 ...	"	220
310 ...	XXVI	240

Burma (Lower) Ratings,
Vol. VIII.

Burma (Lower) Ratings,
Vol. VIII—concl.

Burma (Lower) Ratings,
Vol. VIII.

Burma (Upper) Ratings,
Vol. II, 1914-15—concl.

Ind. Cas.			Ind. Cas.			Ind. Cas.			Ind. Cas.
Page.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
1	XXVI	253	161	XXIX	9-6	1	XXIII	433	52	XXIX	686
14	"	264	163	XXX	675	16	"	661	53	"	659
15	"	270	164	"	678	38	XXIV	321	55	"	663
17	"	306	165	"	680	50	XXIX	863	56	"	607
18	XXIX	628	167	XXXI	512	54	"	866	58	"	610
20	"	822	191	XXX	772	58	XXIV	132	61	"	613
22	"	714	196	XXIX	706	62	"	725	66	XXXI	87
25	XXVII	632	198	XXX	715	64	"	911	74	"	94
32	"	604	201	XXIX	21	70	XXIX	870	80	"	101
35	XXVI	329	203	XXX	588	71	"	872	81	"	103
39	"	129	214	XXIX	941	77	"	876	83	XXXII	674
43	"	135	216	XXXII	492	78	"	881	84	"	677
44	XXV	7	217	XXX	705	80	XXIV	431	87	"	539
45	XXIX	736	220	XXXII	641	91	"	969	89	XXXIII	506
51	"	741	234	XXX	753	94	XXVI	129	91	XXXII	651
53	"	825	137	"	112	99	"	505	92	XXXIII	666
57	"	684	238	XXIX	943	102	"	478	95	"	817
59	XXVI	505	239	XXXII	498	105	XXVII	841	98	"	673
62	XXVII	112	240	XXIX	892	106	XXXI	264	101	"	639
63	XXVI	877	242	XXX	133	112	"	271	102	"	624
66	XXIX	881	243	"	999	113	XXIX	756
69	"	883	244	XXXI	364	115	XXVII	632
70	"	886	246	XXXII	654	125	XXXIII	634
72	"	888	247	XXX	724	130	XXIV	268
73	"	890	259	XXXIII	559	143	"	946
75	XXVI	39	261	XXX	710	145	XXVII	112
79	XXVII	218	264	XXXIII	580	146	"	829
80	"	656	266	XXX	278	149	"	879
81	"	610	268	XXXIII	610	155	XXVIII	300
82	XXV	515	269	XXX	20	157	XXXIII	554	1	XXVII	644
85	XXVII	777	273	"	939	159	XXIX	27	10	XXIII	556
87	XXVI	102	274	"	974	163	XXVIII	260	19	"	700
92	XXVII	706	278	"	930	164	XXX	675	25	XXVII	839
93	"	829	280	XXXIII	6-9	165	XXIX	894	28	XXIV	193
96	"	803	232	XXX	943	166	XXX	133	29	"	273
97	"	783	233	XXXI	332	168	XXVI	253	46	"	300
98	"	802	286	XXX	654	185	XXX	29	56	"	296
99	"	784	288	"	446	189	"	640	67	XXV	280
101	"	732	290	XXXIII	595	190	"	665	72	XXIV	304
103	XXVI	743	292	"	600	197	"	594	85	XXVIII	463
104	"	111				202	XXIX	936	109	"	469
113	XXX	633				204	"	21	116	XXV	451
114	"	637				205	"	892	151	XXVI	893
116	XXVII	879				208	XXX	715	153	"	146
121	"	896				211	XXIX	768	164	"	2-3
122	XXIX	800				213	XXXIII	664	172	XXVII	61
124	XXX	692				215	XXIX	941	225	XXVI	836
125	XXVII	868				217	XXXII	654	240	XXIV	571
127	XXIX	894				219	XXX	705	244	"	501
128	"	768	301	XXIV	60				254	XXVII	235
129	XXVIII	155	304	"	777				262	"	493
131	"	152	306	XXIII	689				286	XXVIII	713
133	XXX	744	319	"	175				289	XXX	82
134	XXX	480	333	"	111				294	"	719
135	Not reportable.		336	XXVIII	492				300	"	721
138	XXX	658	379	XXIII	833				315	XXVIII	610
140	XXIX	756	343	"	322				334	XXX	174
141	XXX	635	347	"	242				346	XXV	819
145	"	584	351	XXIV	170				351	"	229
149	"	665	356	"	783				361	XXVIII	692
154	"	640	359	"	823				365	XXVII	212
155	"	601	362	"	134				370	XXX	111
157	"	602	367	XXVIII	468				374	XXVI	134
160	"	604							877	"	81

Calcutta, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XLII.

Burma (Upper) Ratings,
Vol. II, 1914-15.

Calcutta, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XLII—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
381 ...	XXVII 672
384 ...	XXV 290
422 ...	XXVII 554
433 ...	XXX 165
440 ...	XXVII 328
451 ...	XXVIII 446
455 ...	XXVII 400
480 ...	XXVIII 586
489 ...	XXV 467
536 ...	XXIV 899
546 ...	XXX 804
550 ...	XXVI 296
561 ...	XXX 798
582 ...	XXV 417
608 ...	XXVIII 799
612 ...	XXVII 186
625 ...	" 261
638 ...	" 258
652 ...	" 815
667 ...	XXX 743
676 ...	XXVIII 865
690 ...	XXIX 843
702 ...	XXVIII 799
706 ...	" 663
708 ...	" 672
710 ...	XXVI 676
720 ...	XXX 746
736 ...	XXXI 228
739 ...	XXIX 334
742 ...	XXX 955
745 ...	XXXI 19
751 ...	XXVII 271
756 ...	" 184
760 ...	" 184
765 ...	XXIX 290
776 ...	XXVII 683
780 ...	XXX 988
784 ...	XXVIII 795
769 ...	" 657
793 ...	XXVI 235
801 ...	XXVIII 920
819 ...	XXX 980
826 ...	XXXI 6
830 ...	XXIX 282
842 ...	" 935
849 ...	" 869
850 ...	XXVI 657
876 ...	XXVII 674
888 ...	XXVIII 245
897 ...	" 649
914 ...	" 710
926 ...	XXVII 917
933 ...	XXX 686
942 ...	XXXI 581
953 ...	XXVIII 972
957 ...	XXIX 513
1029 ...	XXX 55
1043 ...	XXXI 626
1060 ...	" 607
1068 ...	XXIX 629
1094 ...	XXXIII 289
1135 ...	XXXII 801
1140 ...	XXX 681
1146 ...	XXVIII 450

Calcutta, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XLII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
1153 ...	XXVI 313
1169 ...	XXX 4
1179 ...	" 833

Calcutta Law Journal,
Vol. XXI.

1 ...	XXIV 307
4 ...	" 499
9 ...	XXV 417
23 ...	XXIV 194
26 ...	XXVII 892
31 ...	XXVI 676
42 ...	XIII 425
45 ...	XXV 286
53 ...	XXVII 186
65 ...	XXXIV 215
68 ...	XXVI 296
75 ...	XXVII 813
79 ...	" 815
88 ...	" 715
96 ...	" 729
104 ...	" 780
112 ...	XXVI 335
116 ...	XXVII 224
118 ...	" 683
122 ...	XXVI 915
134 ...	XXVII 26
137 ...	XXVI 924
141 ...	XXVII 972
144 ...	" 982
154 ...	" 821
157 ...	" 954
167 ...	XXIX 128
174 ...	XXVII 805
177 ...	" 261
185 ...	" 1003
187 ...	" 235
192 ...	XXVIII 22
195 ...	XXVI 307
198 ...	XXVIII 334
201 ...	XXVI 313
210 ...	XXVII 53
218 ...	XXVIII 422
225 ...	XXVII 674
231 ...	XXVIII 920
237 ...	" 34
248 ...	XIX 941
253 ...	XXVII 465
261 ...	XXVIII 343
265 ...	XXVI 436
273 ...	XXVIII 557
279 ...	" 567
281 ...	" 569
284 ...	" 571
287 ...	" 574
292 ...	" 578
296 ...	" 580
302 ...	" 576
305 ...	" 508

Calcutta Law Journal,
Vol. XXI—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
309 ...	XXVIII 498
315 ...	" 510
319 ...	" 191
325 ...	XXV 829
331 ...	XXIX 513
377 ...	XXX 113
396 ...	" 128
412 ...	XXVIII 699
419 ...	" 710
429 ...	XXIX 929
437 ...	" 935
441 ...	" 733
446 ...	XXX 55
452 ...	XXIX 752
454 ...	XXVII 425
458 ...	XXIX 748
459 ...	XXIV 18
462 ...	XXIX 848
464 ...	XXVII 647
469 ...	XXIX 855
473 ...	" 859
475 ...	XXVIII 839
478 ...	XXIX 879
480 ...	XXVIII 477
483 ...	XXIX 880
485 ...	" 883
487 ...	" 896
489 ...	" 885
492 ...	XXVIII 657
495 ...	XXIX 321
497 ...	XXVIII 653
499 ...	XXIX 724
507 ...	" 223
515 ...	" 298
522 ...	" 334
524 ...	XXX 59
528 ...	XXIX 229
532 ...	" 621
535 ...	XXVIII 133
537 ...	XXIX 625
543 ...	" 629
555 ...	XXX 12
557 ...	" 161
565 ...	XXIX 260
570 ...	" 956
571 ...	" 969
574 ...	XXII 833
576 ...	XXX 1
578 ...	" 4
584 ...	" 681
590 ...	" 412
592 ...	" 414
596 ...	" 398
599 ...	" 418
603 ...	XVIII 240
605 ...	XXX 420
611 ...	" 34
612 ...	" 36
614 ...	" 38
618 ...	XXIX 453
621 ...	XXVIII 595
624 ...	XXX 49
628 ...	" 45
629 ...	XXVII 538

Calcutta Law Journal,
Vol. XXI—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
632 ...	XXX 45
635 ...	" 47
637 ...	" 53
640 ...	XXIX 385
642 ...	XXVIII 713
644 ...	XXX 58
646 ...	" 61
650 ...	XXIX 877
653 ...	XXX 64
659 ...	" 68

Vol. XXII.
1 ...	XXIX 639
22 ...	XXXIII 247
27 ...	XXX 855
40 ...	XXX 862
41 ...	XXXI 238
42 ...	XXIX 226
44 ...	XXVIII 879
57 ...	XXX 862
61 ...	" 868
69 ...	XXVIII 211
70 ...	XXX 875
72 ...	" 878
74 ...	" 886
75 ...	XXI 937
78 ...	XXX 887
81 ...	" 283
86 ...	" 891
88 ...	" 320
90 ...	" 321
92 ...	" 796
95 ...	XXV 880
97 ...	XXX 894
99 ...	" 808
106 ...	XXVII 176
108 ...	XXVIII 182
113 ...	XXX 916
117 ...	" 916
119 ...	" 914
122 ...	" 917
124 ...	XXIV 424
126 ...	" 319
129 ...	XXX 806
132 ...	" 902
134 ...	XXIV 354
135 ...	XXX 931
140 ...	" 937
144 ...	" 939
147 ...	" 942
148 ...	" 944
151 ...	" 946
153 ...	" 948
154 ...	" 949
156 ...	" 953
160 ...	" 958
165 ...	" 366
172 ...	XXIX 807
180 ...	" 781
190 ...	" 617
197 ...	" 699
209 ...	XXXIII 251
212 ...	XXVIII 245
219 ...	XXXI 16

Calcutta Law Journal,
Vol. XXII—concl'd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
223 ...	XXXI	19
227 ...	"	22
232 ...	"	26
235 ...	"	29
237 ...	"	33
241 ...	"	35
244 ...	XXIX	318
249 ...	XXXI	177
254 ...	"	181
259 ...	"	189
262 ...	XXVII	677
266 ...	XVI	690
270 ...	XXX	821
272 ...	"	824
279 ...	XXIX	680
283 ...	XXXI	242
290 ...	"	249
293 ...	"	315
298 ...	"	319
304 ...	"	321
305 ...	XXXII	851
308 ...	"	856
309 ...	XXXI	391
311 ...	"	394
316 ...	"	405
323 ...	"	424
333 ...	"	426
339 ...	"	490
345 ...	"	433
352 ...	XXXII	5-7
356 ...	XXXI	554
370 ...	XXX	794
375 ...	XXXI	460
380 ...	XIII	455
383 ...	XVI	988
390 ...	XXIV	208
391 ...	XXXII	491
394 ...	"	494
397 ...	"	419
400 ...	"	580
404 ...	"	823
409 ...	XXXI	894
412 ...	"	896
415 ...	XVI	898
419 ...	XXXII	437
452 ...	"	468
481 ...	XXX	519
488 ...	"	833
508 ...	"	265
510 ...	"	299
522 ...	XXXII	1
525 ...	XXXI	165
546 ...	XXXIII	331
551 ...	"	242
552 ...	XXX	197
561 ...	XXXIII	344
564 ...	"	346
566 ...	"	247
569 ...	"	349
571 ...	"	352
574 ...	XXIX	841
577 ...	XXXII	21
589 ...	XXXI	476

Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol. XIX.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
1 ...	XXVII	483
18 ...	XXVI	436
25 ...	XXVII	492
28 ...	"	554
33 ...	"	442
35 ...	"	446
37 ...	"	261
43 ...	"	271
45 ...	"	459
52 ...	"	239
54 ...	"	268
56 ...	XXV	274
62 ...	XXI	970
64 ...	XXVIII	838
65 ...	XXVI	676
76 ...	XXVII	96
79 ...	"	114
80 ...	XXII	304
84 ...	XXVI	275
89 ...	XXIII	214
95 ...	XXII	679
97 ...	XXV	105
102 ...	XXIX	419
112 ...	XXVIII	683
117 ...	XX	53
118 ...	XXVII	227
120 ...	XXIII	618
121 ...	XXVIII	732
123 ...	"	651
124 ...	XXVII	672
125 ...	XXVIII	645
127 ...	"	656
129 ...	XXXI	618
136 ...	XXVIII	708
138 ...	XXVI	893
140 ...	XI	696
143 ...	XXIII	69
149 ...	XXII	663
152 ...	XXVIII	693
157 ...	XXIX	128
161 ...	XXIV	290
162 ...	XXIII	642
165 ...	XXXI	597
170 ...	XXIII	587
174 ...	XIX	752
178 ...	XXVII	265
179 ...	"	184
181 ...	"	184
184 ...	"	186
193 ...	XXVI	924
197 ...	XXVII	892
200 ...	XXII	778
203 ...	XXV	819
205 ...	XXVII	617
208 ...	"	600
217 ...	XXVIII	649
220 ...	"	663
221 ...	XXVI	335
223 ...	XXVIII	648
224 ...	"	672
225 ...	XXIV	499
229 ...	XX	781
233 ...	XXVIII	446
234 ...	XXII	677

Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol. XIX—concl'd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
237 ...	XX	857
240 ...	XXVII	715
246 ...	XX	698
248 ...	XV	655
250 ...	XXVIII	920
260 ...	XXIV	266
263 ...	XXII	650
265 ...	XX	248
268 ...	XXVII	561
270 ...	XXVI	182
273 ...	XXVIII	1000
282 ...	"	422
287 ...	XXII	685
290 ...	XXVIII	703
290 ...	XXV	229
295 ...	XXVI	657
305 ...	XXVII	26
313 ...	XXV	84
321 ...	"	819
325 ...	XXIX	692
326 ...	XXIII	839
329 ...	XXVIII	560
330 ...	"	795
342 ...	"	799
344 ...	"	658
345 ...	"	759
347 ...	XXVI	915
347 ...	XXXI	616
356 ...	XXVIII	879
359 ...	XXIII	442
361 ...	"	12
366 ...	"	762
366 ...	XXVIII	686
370 ...	XXVII	674
375 ...	XXVIII	811
383 ...	"	713
386 ...	XXI	179
390 ...	XXVIII	450
393 ...	"	653
401 ...	"	34
407 ...	"	665
410 ...	XXII	665
412 ...	XXI	779
415 ...	"	104
419 ...	XXVI	180
419 ...	XXVII	628
422 ...	XXVI	131
426 ...	XXVII	53
433 ...	XXVIII	623
435 ...	"	314
439 ...	XXIII	597
442 ...	XXIV	813
446 ...	XXVIII	598
447 ...	"	324
449 ...	"	710
458 ...	XXVII	56
461 ...	"	695
464 ...	XXVIII	876
468 ...	"	610
468 ...	XXI	618
470 ...	XXIX	120
472 ...	XXVI	503
473 ...	XXVIII	211
476 ...	XXVI	697

Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol XIX—concl'd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
478 ...	XXI	197
481 ...	XXVIII	899
489 ...	XXVI	962
490 ...	XXVIII	241
502 ...	"	191
507 ...	XXIX	290
513 ...	XXVIII	972
514 ...	XXVII	614
517 ...	"	311
520 ...	"	328
525 ...	XXIV	181
531 ...	"	294
535 ...	XXIX	226
547 ...	XXVII	139
542 ...	XXIV	899
546 ...	XXVIII	510
549 ...	XXVII	5
551 ...	"	821
553 ...	XXIV	249
556 ...	XXIX	321
557 ...	XXVIII	668
561 ...	XXVII	693
565 ...	XXIX	155
578 ...	XXVII	538
580 ...	XXVIII	675
582 ...	"	133
594 ...	"	657
585 ...	XXX	55
593 ...	XXII	324
609 ...	XXX	990
611 ...	XXVIII	705
614 ...	XXVII	773
617 ...	XXIX	229
621 ...	XXX	19
623 ...	XXXI	607
633 ...	XXVII	805
636 ...	XXIX	122
637 ...	XXVIII	981
638 ...	XXIII	615
641 ...	XXIX	298
646 ...	XXVIII	595
649 ...	XXIX	120
650 ...	XXI	926
652 ...	XXII	272
653 ...	XXX	113
657 ...	XXVI	207
672 ...	XXIX	334
674 ...	"	513
676 ...	XXVI	318
706 ...	XXIX	223
713 ...	"	724
718 ...	XXXI	626
724 ...	XXIX	639
729 ...	XXVIII	574
747 ...	XXVII	729
751 ...	"	317
755 ...	XXIX	395
758 ...	"	406
760 ...	"	717
762 ...	XXXIV	283
764 ...	XXIX	811
768 ...	"	216
772 ...	XXVII	815
775 ...	XXIX	350
782 ...	"

Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol. XIX—contd.Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol. XIX—contd.Calcutta Weekly Notes,
Vol. XIX—contd.Madras, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVIII—contd.

Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.
Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.
787 ...	XXXI	637	1030 ...	XXVII	258	1319 ...	XXXVIII	343
791 ...	XXIX	935	1034 ...	XXVIII	245	1323 ...	XXXII	167
794 ...	XXVIII	563	1038 ...	XXXI	41	1326 ...	XXXIII	250
794 ...	XXX	510	1043 ...	"	164	1328 ...	XXXII	164
796 ...	XXVII	471	1056 ...	XXX	539	1330 ...	"	119
804 ...	XXIX	282	1061 ...	"	658	1332 ...	XXIX	621
809 ...	"	843	1068 ...	"	690
814 ...	"	877	1070 ...	"	697
817 ...	XXX	406	1077 ...	"	698
820 ...	"	681	1082 ...	XXIX	337
823 ...	XXIX	826	1085 ...	XXX	684
825 ...	XXX	412	1087 ...	"	303
826 ...	XXVII	276	1108 ...	XXXI	702
835 ...	XXV	267	1110 ...	XXVIII	267
841 ...	XXIX	617	1113 ...	XXXI	706
849 ...	"	629	1115 ...	"	707
858 ...	XXVIII	374	1117 ...	XXVIII	570
860 ...	XXXI	30	1118 ...	XXX	935
864 ...	XXIX	565	1119 ...	XXX	833
865 ...	"	814	1125 ...	XVIII	839
867 ...	"	807	1127 ...	XXXII	503
870 ...	XXVIII	371	1129 ...	XXIX	461
872 ...	XXIX	806	1132 ...	XXXIII	59
873 ...	"	781	1141 ...	XXI	958
880 ...	XXXI	662	1143 ...	XXV	171
882 ...	XXX	161	1149 ...	XXII	654
887 ...	XXVII	244	1151 ...	XXIX	699
895 ...	XXX	111	1159 ...	XXXI	664
897 ...	XXIX	871	1167 ...	XXVI	890
899 ...	"	869	1169 ...	XXVIII	578
900 ...	XXVII	972	1172 ...	XXXI	672
903 ...	XXII	407	1175 ...	XXX	265
905 ...	XXXI	684	1181 ...	XXIX	790
911 ...	XXVII	883	1182 ...	XXVIII	857
914 ...	XXVIII	839	1183 ...	XXI	716
916 ...	XXIX	862	1188 ...	XXIX	312
919 ...	"	625	1191 ...	XXII	928
923 ...	XXX	128	1193 ...	XXVIII	818
929 ...	XXIX	807	1197 ...	XXVII	397
933 ...	"	689	1200 ...	XXXI	573
935 ...	XXVII	449	1202 ...	XXVII	614
942 ...	XXVI	673	1205 ...	XXXI	579
947 ...	XXIX	875	1207 ...	XXX	299
948 ...	XXVIII	557	1211 ...	XXXI	549
953 ...	XXIX	309	1217 ...	"	554
957 ...	XXX	1007	1226 ...	"	562
959 ...	"	142	1228 ...	"	13
961 ...	XXIX	149	1231 ...	XXX	64
963 ...	XXVII	825	1236 ...	XXXI	177
967 ...	XXXII	701	1239 ...	XXXIII	289
970 ...	XXIX	476	1269 ...	XXX	74
972 ...	XXX	465	1271 ...	XXXI	700
990 ...	"	159	1272 ...	XXVII	982
991 ...	"	366	1280 ...	"	954
998 ...	XXXI	691	1287 ...	XXXI	561
1001 ...	XXVI	197	1290 ...	"	677
1008 ...	"	866	1291 ...	XXI	774
1015 ...	XXXI	695	1295 ...	XXIX	677
1017 ...	XXX	255	1297 ...	"	743
1019 ...	XXXI	697	1301 ...	XXX	61
1021 ...	XXVIII	204	1305 ...	XXXIII	261
1022 ...	XXX	442	1307 ...	"	434
1023 ...	XXIX	1005	1309 ...	XXXII	170
1027 ...	XXXI	10	1311 ...	XXVI	466

Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.		Ind. Cas.
Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.
92 ...	XXVIII	617	92 ...	XXVIII	617	101 ...	"	64
101 ...	"	41	108 ...	"	203	114 ...	"	410
118 ...	XXI	135	124 ...	XXVIII	520	139 ...	"	80
141 ...	XIX	62	149 ...	XXI	200	153 ...	XXVIII	719
155 ...	XXVIII	258	158 ...	XXI	319	160 ...	"	225
163 ...	XIX	452	166 ...	"	462	178 ...	"	32
199 ...	XXI	579	203 ...	XXIX	239	221 ...	XXIX	924
226 ...	XX	445	238 ...	"	418	250 ...	XIX	690
247 ...	"	368	250 ...	XXI	290	256 ...	XXI	700
260 ...	XXVIII	275	263 ...	XIX	65	274 ...	XXIX	156
275 ...	XXI	914	280 ...	XXIX	449	291 ...	XXI	316
295 ...	XXIX	882	297 ...	XXI	157	302 ...	XXIX	329
302 ...	XXI	367	304 ...	XXIX	857	305 ...	"	596
308 ...	"	865	308 ...	XXI	694	310 ...	XXI	73
310 ...	XXVIII	24	310 ...	XXI	389	312 ...	"	389
321 ...	"	625	321 ...	XXIX	298	321 ...	XXX	402
327 ...	XXIX	423	327 ...	"	425	327 ...	"	664
337 ...	"	302	337 ...	XXI	568	337 ...	"	930
338 ...	XXII	976	338 ...	XX	413	338 ...	XXX	956
339 ...	XX	913	339 ...	XX	432	339 ...	XXI	615
340 ...	XXIX	77	340 ...	"	698	340 ...	XXX	411
341 ...	XXI	47	341 ...	XXI	453	341 ...	XXI	964
342 ...	XXX	487	342 ...	"

Madras, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVIII.

1 ...	XVII	112
6 ...	"	158
15 ...	XVI	540
18 ...	"	877
25 ...	XVII	425
33 ...	"	120
36 ...	"	420
41 ...	XVI	971
45 ...	"	939
48 ...	XVII	769
67 ...	"	337
71 ...	"	597
79 ...	XVIII	1
86 ...	XVII	933

Vol. XX.

1 ...	XXX	529
14 ...	XXXIII	978
19 ...	XXVII	39
25 ...	XXXIII	190
28 ...	"	143
31 ...	XXXII	1
35 ...	XXX	849
39 ...	XXVII	176
40 ...	XXVIII	182
43 ...	XXXII	866
48 ...	XXIX	694
49 ...	"	680
51 ...	XXVII	465
58 ...	XXX	824
62 ...	XXXIII	504
63 ...	"	626
66 ...	XXXII	53
103 ...	"	82
105 ...	XXXI	949
110 ...	"	6
111 ...	XXXIV	22
113 ...	XXXII	21
122 ...	XXVII	739
128 ...	XXXII	137
137 ...	"	161
140 ...	"	3
142 ...	XXXI	983
147 ...	XXIX	787
149 ...	XXXI	987
156 ...	XXX	68
159 ...	XXVII	7
163 ...	XXXIII	139
166 ...	XXXII	132

Madras, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVIII.

1 ...	XVII	112
6 ...	"	158
16 ...	XVI	820
18 ...	"	877
25 ...	XVII	425
33 ...	"	120
36 ...	"	420
41 ...	XVI	971
45 ...	"	939
48 ...	XVII	769
67 ...	"	337
71 ...	"	597
79 ...	XVIII	1
86 ...	XVII	933

92 ...	XXIII	617
101 ...	"	64
108 ...	"	41
114 ...	"	203
118 ...	XXI	410
124 ...	XVIII	135
139 ...	"	520
141 ...	XIX	80
149 ...	XXI	62
153 ...	XXVIII	200
155 ...	XVIII	719
158 ...	XXI	258
160 ...	"	319
163 ...	XIX	225
166 ...	"	452
178 ...	"	462
199 ...	XXI	32
203 ...	XIX	579
221 ...	XXIX	239
228 ...	XX	924
235 ...	"	445
247 ...	"	418
250 ...	XIX	690
256 ...	XXI	308
260 ...	XXVIII	290
274 ...	XIX	700
275 ...	XXI	65
280 ...	XXIX	156
291 ...	XX	914
295 ...	XXIX	449
297 ...	XXI	316
302 ...	XXII	157
304 ...	XXIX	329
305 ...	"	882
308 ...	XXI	367
310 ...	XVII	857
321 ...	XIX	596
349 ...	XX	865
356 ...	XIX	694
369 ...	XXI	73
374 ...	"	24
387 ...	"	369
396 ...	XX	625
406 ...	XXIX	298
414 ...	XXX	402
419 ...	"	423
424 ...	"	425
432 ...	XXI	564
438 ...	"	302
442 ...	"	568
445 ...	XXII	930
450 ...	XX	976
452 ...	XXX	413
456 ...	XX	956
459 ...	XXI	913
464 ...	XXX	432
466 ...	XXI	615
472 ...	"	77
474 ...	"	698
479 ...	XXX	411
482 ...	XXI	47
489 ...	XXX	453
491 ...	XXI	964
493 ...	"	467

Madras, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
560 ...	XXII 566
509 ...	XXI 842
512 ...	" 681
514 ...	" 458
519 ...	XXX 469
524 ...	XXI 556
527 ...	" 546
531 ...	XXX 430
535 ...	XXV 11
548 ...	XXVIII 566
550 ...	XXII 737
551 ...	XXX 453
552 ...	XXII 764
553 ...	" 39
555 ...	XXX 455
556 ...	XXIII 264
556 ...	XXX 456
581 ...	XXV 345
585 ...	" 1601
589 ...	XXIV 106
594 ...	XVI 451
602 ...	XXI 618
608 ...	XXII 339
610 ...	XXI 871
629 ...	" 587
625 ...	" 910
639 ...	XXVI 116
643 ...	XXII 160
646 ...	XXI 876
650 ...	" 629
655 ...	XXIV 754
660 ...	XXI 864
664 ...	XXX 950
667 ...	XXII 54
674 ...	XXI 840
677 ...	XXIII 515
680 ...	XXII 1
682 ...	XXXI 198
684 ...	XXII 556
695 ...	XXIII 533
698 ...	XXII 912
705 ...	XXVII 323
710 ...	XXI 583
738 ...	" 532
746 ...	" 445
753 ...	XXIII 951
766 ...	XXII 89
773 ...	" 747
775 ...	" 193
779 ...	" 991
783 ...	XXIII 174
788 ...	XXIV 943
791 ...	" 873
793 ...	XXIII 503
795 ...	XXIV 374
797 ...	" 957
801 ...	XXVI 228
807 ...	XXIV 290
823 ...	XXII 775
829 ...	XXVIII 679
832 ...	XXIII 235
843 ...	XXII 826
850 ...	XXIV 217
	XXIII 72

Madras, I. L. R. Series,
Vol. XXXVIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
867 ...	XXIV 120
879 ...	XXIII 398
883 ...	" 102
887 ...	" 570
891 ...	XXIV 224
903 ...	XXII 615
916 ...	XXIII 806
922 ...	XXVIII 79
927 ...	XXX 317
941 ...	XX 546
954 ...	XXIII 321
959 ...	" 581
972 ...	XXII 870
988 ...	XXXI 491
101 ...	XXXII 350
107 ...	XXII 107
1028 ...	XXIII 188
1036 ...	XXIV 363
1042 ...	XXIII 524
1044 ...	" 479
1052 ...	XXIV 528
1064 ...	XXXIII 45
1071 ...	XXIII 759
1076 ...	XXIX 314
1088 ...	XXXIII 308
1091 ...	XXVII 192
1096 ...	XXXI 494
1099 ...	XXXII 1002
1102 ...	" 1003
1105 ...	XXIV 199
1120 ...	" 474
1125 ...	XXVI 179
1128 ...	XXV 780
1134 ...	XXVI 792
1140 ...	XXV 941
1144 ...	" 957
1155 ...	XXVI 510
1158 ...	XXV 772
1162 ...	XXVI 232
1171 ...	XXV 618
1176 ...	" 966
1184 ...	" 683
1187 ...	XXVI 983
1192 ...	" 202

Madras Law Journal,
Vol. XXIII.

1 ...	XXVI 757
41 ...	XXVII 785
51 ...	XXVI 692
59 ...	" 460
67 ...	XXVIII 64
72 ...	XXVII 775
75 ...	XXIII 576
81 ...	XXVII 683
92 ...	XXVI 819
96 ...	XXVII 921
98 ...	XXVI 800

Madras Law Journal,
Vol. XXVIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
115 ...	XXVIII 378
118 ...	" 79
123 ...	" 97
127 ...	XXVII 679
132 ...	XXII 721
134 ...	XXVII 220
136 ...	" 569
138 ...	XXVIII 83
140 ...	XXVI 710
147 ...	XXVIII 45
154 ...	XXVII 122
167 ...	" 53
174 ...	" 874
179 ...	" 26
184 ...	" 989
197 ...	XXVIII 141
199 ...	" 135
204 ...	XXVII 192
209 ...	XXV 505
217 ...	XXVI 841
251 ...	XXVIII 205
256 ...	XXVI 528
260 ...	XXVIII 200
262 ...	XXVII 952
266 ...	XXVIII 69
285 ...	" 221
297 ...	XXVIII 471
301 ...	XXVI 364
304 ...	XXVIII 842
307 ...	" 527
310 ...	" 194
323 ...	" 450
326 ...	" 818
327 ...	XXIX 228
329 ...	XXVIII 518
334 ...	" 694
338 ...	" 284
347 ...	" 290
361 ...	XXVII 104
363 ...	XXVIII 392
372 ...	" 688
377 ...	XXIX 195
378 ...	XXVIII 271
379 ...	XXXIV 305
381 ...	XXVIII 522
384 ...	" 309
392 ...	" 639
397 ...	" 659
403 ...	XXIX 37
410 ...	XXVIII 337
423 ...	" 625
441 ...	XXIX 213
442 ...	" 4
444 ...	" 192
448 ...	XXVI 924
453 ...	XXVII 866
457 ...	XXVI 676
470 ...	XXVII 683
471 ...	XXVIII 871
480 ...	XXIX 290
483 ...	XXVIII 662
484 ...	" 568
486 ...	XXIX 71
488 ...	XXVIII 970

Madras Law Journal,
Vol. XXVIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
491 ...	XXIX 142
494 ...	" 16
495 ...	" 184
505 ...	" 109
510 ...	" 189
513 ...	" 34
515 ...	XXVI 915
525 ...	XXIX 314
535 ...	" 298
542 ...	XXVI 249
548 ...	XXVII 26
556 ...	XXVIII 34
565 ...	XXVII 674
571 ...	XXIX 1
577 ...	XXVII 422
583 ...	XXVIII 699
589 ...	XXIX 223
593 ...	" 229
596 ...	XXX 59
598 ...	XXIX 60
600 ...	" 908
617 ...	" 12
624 ...	" 356
642 ...	XXIX 970
650 ...	" 241
662 ...	" 982
666 ...	XXVI 353
669 ...	XXIV 519
685 ...	XXVI 455
690 ...	XXIX 830
692 ...	XXX 152
696 ...	XXIX 957

Vol. XXIX.

1 ...	XXX 94
12 ...	XXIX 846
16 ...	" 879
18 ...	XXX 106
34 ...	XXIX 639
53 ...	XXX 41
60 ...	" 159
63 ...	XXIX 617
70 ...	XXVIII 710
75 ...	XXIX 724
80 ...	XXX 55
86 ...	" 370
87 ...	XXIX 397
91 ...	" 248
96 ...	" 231
101 ...	XXX 145
110 ...	" 286
120 ...	" 188
122 ...	XXIX 394
125 ...	" 449
130 ...	" 781
137 ...	" 1005
142 ...	XXVIII 624
144 ...	XXIX 770
159 ...	XXX 266
165 ...	" 849
172 ...	XXIX 119
175 ...	XXVI 136

Madras Law Journal, Vol. XXIX—contd.			Madras Law Journal, Vol. XXIX—concl.			Madras Law Times, Vol. XXII—contd.			Madras Law Times, Vol. XXII—concl.
Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
178 ...	XXIX	331	667 ...	XXX	511	143 ...	XXVIII	990	419 ...	XXIX	241
182 ...	XXX	332	669 ...	XXXI	318	148 ...	"	422	424 ...	"	237
183 ...	"	565	671 ...	"	502	154 ...	"	79	427 ...	"	231
184 ...	XXVIII	252	680 ...	"	491	158 ...	"	205	432 ...	"	204
195 ...	XXX	317	682 ...	"	494	160 ...	"	57	435 ...	"	298
200 ...	XXIX	485	685 ...	"	528	164 ...	XXVII	192	441 ...	"	234
214 ...	"	549	693 ...	"	542	168 ...	XXVIII	85	443 ...	XXX	59
219 ...	XXX	257	694 ...	"	246	170 ...	"	69	446 ...	XXIX	71
229 ...	XXIX	588	698 ...	"	920	186 ...	XXVII	1001	447 ...	"	593
231 ...	XXXI	226	704 ...	"	322	188 ...	XXVIII	249	449 ...	"	303
233 ...	XXVI	347	708 ...	"	240	190 ...	"	169	453 ...	"	248
236 ...	XXX	971	710 ...	"	574	191 ...	"	898	457 ...	"	830
242 ...	"	503	717 ...	"	786	191 ...	"	156
269 ...	XXIX	178	721 ...	"	52	193 ...	"	34	Vol. XXIII.
274 ...	XXX	434	724 ...	"	58	202 ...	XXVI	271
276 ...	"	355	728 ...	"	188	203 ...	XXVII	53	1 ...	XXIX	639
280 ...	XXXI	224	730 ...	XXXII	226	208 ...	XXVIII	367	19 ...	XXX	106
291 ...	XXX	713	733 ...	XXIX	439	214 ...	"	518	25 ...	XXIX	331
299 ...	"	539	746 ...	XXXII	919	218 ...	"	373	28 ...	"	197
307 ...	XXIX	808	749 ...	XXXI	783	220 ...	"	375	31 ...	"	781
314 ...	XXXI	13	755 ...	XXIX	294	222 ...	"	376	39 ...	"	724
316 ...	XXIX	286	758 ...	XXXI	373	223 ...	"	214	46 ...	"	846
319 ...	"	113	760 ...	"	720	224 ...	"	377	48 ...	"	849
329 ...	XXX	265	763 ...	XXX	806	225 ...	"	332	54 ...	"	807
335 ...	"	299	772 ...	XXIX	786	229 ...	"	318	61 ...	"	617
342 ...	"	840	779 ...	XXXI	160	232 ...	"	313	67 ...	XXX	94
353 ...	"	333	784 ...	"	74	234 ...	"	309	75 ...	XXIX	588
357 ...	"	853	786 ...	"	704	241 ...	XXIX	49	76 ...	XXVIII	871
362 ...	"	983	788 ...	"	583	242 ...	XXVIII	659	81 ...	XXIX	435
371 ...	"	833	793 ...	XXXIII	858	247 ...	XXIX	37	85 ...	XXX	365
381 ...	"	596	816 ...	"	858	253 ...	XXVIII	635	92 ...	XXIX	668
389 ...	"	6'9	851 ...	XXIX	298	256 ...	"	459	93 ...	XXX	260
474 ...	"	529	856 ...	XXXII	258	260 ...	"	670	94 ...	"	258
461 ...	XXVII	144				263 ...	XXVII	813	95 ...	"	145
452 ...	XXX	484				264 ...	XXVIII	490	103 ...	"	438
454 ...	XXXI	179				266 ...	"	688	108 ...	"	7
457 ...	XXVI	286	Madras Law Times, Vol. XXII.			268 ...	XXVII	904	110 ...	XXIX	916
464 ...	XXVIII	828	1 ...	XXVI	676	269 ...	XXIX	188	119 ...	XXX	493
467 ...	XXX	827	10 ...	XXVII	892	271 ...	XXVI	841	121 ...	"	435
474 ...	XXXI	69	15 ...	"	179	300 ...	XXVIII	625	122 ...	"	74
478 ...	XXX	375	18 ...	XXVI	269	311 ...	"	709	124 ...	XXIX	549
481 ...	"	755	29 ...	"	692	312 ...	"	710	127 ...	XXX	382
504 ...	XXXII	44	35 ...	"	915	321 ...	"	699	129 ...	"	272
505 ...	XXXI	81	45 ...	"	924	326 ...	XXIX	192	135 ...	XXVIII	387
514 ...	"	273	48 ...	"	927	350 ...	XXVIII	602	142 ...	XXX	46
521 ...	"	350	57 ...	XXVIII	232	331 ...	"	612	145 ...	"	380
525 ...	XXX	503	61 ...	XXVII	849	347 ...	XXIX	160	147 ...	"	256
535 ...	XXXI	214	76 ...	"	26	357 ...	"	178	148 ...	"	375
538 ...	XXX	879	78 ...	"	44	361 ...	"	183	150 ...	"	414
546 ...	"	101	80 ...	"	747	363 ...	"	184	151 ...	"	355
551 ...	XXXI	216	83 ...	XXVI	152	369 ...	XXVI	460	155 ...	XXIX	485
558 ...	XXX	962	84 ...	"	226	377 ...	XXX	55	161 ...	XXX	497
569 ...	XXXI	234	85 ...	"	991	382 ...	XXIX	135	163 ...	"	351
572 ...	"	104	85 ...	XXVII	861	385 ...	"	142	164 ...	"	253
574 ...	XXX	669	87 ...	XXVI	757	387 ...	"	60	171 ...	"	529
583 ...	XXIX	916	115 ...	XXVII	674	389 ...	"	4	171 ...	"	522
597 ...	XXX	178	120 ...	"	683	391 ...	XXX	144	173 ...	"	849
607 ...	XXXI	326	125 ...	"	679	391 ...	XXIX	12	179 ...	"	201
617 ...	XXIV	120	129 ...	"	688	392 ...	"	321	190 ...	"	544
629 ...	XXXII	769	139 ...	"	695	393 ...	"	54	200 ...	"	706
632 ...	XXXI	452	179 ...	XXVIII	15	398 ...	"	109	203 ...	"	265
639 ...	"	255	142 ...	XXVII	767	402 ...	"	223	209 ...	"	569
645 ...	"	412				438 ...	"	229	216 ...	"	574
653 ...	"	924				411 ...	"	113	218 ...	XXXI	12

Madras Law Times,
Vol. XVIII—contd.

Madras Law Times,
Vol. XVIII—contd.

Law Weekly,
Vol. II—contd.

Law Weekly,
Vol. II—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.
220 ...	XXX	713	XXXI	553	XXXVII	560	XXIX
223 ...	"	853	"	322	XXXVIII	93	"
226 ...	"	991	"	487	XXXVII	26	"
228 ...	"	833	"	404	"	97	"
226 ...	"	840	"	657	"	952	"
243 ...	"	845	"	796	"	192	"
247 ...	"	785	"	152	"	944	"
248 ...	"	299	"	803	"	53	"
254 ...	"	488	"	822	"	930	"
255 ...	"	755	XXX	674	"	674	"
273 ...	"	675	XXXI	326	XXXVIII	186	"
277 ...	"	109	XXXII	858	"	189	"
310 ...	"	656	XXXIII	858	"	156	"
312 ...	"	942	"	330	"	195	"
313 ...	"	707	XXXII	70	"	210	"
316 ...	XXXI	81	XXXI	913	"	221	"
322 ...	"	161	"	819	"	269	XXVIII
327 ...	XXX	699	"			540	XXIX
326 ...	"	596	"			542	"
343 ...	XXXI	55				930	XXX
346 ...	XXX	685				522	"
348 ...	XXXI	93				271	XXIX
349 ...	"	93				277	"
353 ...	XXX	878				278	XXX
360 ...	"	889				422	"
364 ...	XXIX	594				683	XXIX
366 ...	XXXI	46				373	"
371 ...	"	52				392	"
374 ...	"	206				294	XXX
377 ...	"	53				34	"
381 ...	"	350				37	"
383 ...	"	74				49	"
385 ...	"	224				63	"
387 ...	"	172				543	XXIX
389 ...	XXX	977				551	XXX
391 ...	"	101				303	"
398 ...	XXXI	104				632	"
400 ...	XXX	751				633	"
401 ...	XXIX	579				635	"
402 ...	XXX	562				637	"
409 ...	"	529				637	"
424 ...	XXXI	393				670	XXIX
426 ...	"	326				648	XXX
434 ...	"	855				639	"
436 ...	"	412				702	"
450 ...	"	296				56	XXIX
457 ...	"	334				704	XXX
459 ...	"	335				707	"
460 ...	"	312				714	"
464 ...	"	255				858	"
469 ...	"	502				710	"
475 ...	"	318				612	XXIX
476 ...	"	528				142	XXX
483 ...	"	694				145	"
486 ...	"	210				144	"
488 ...	"	653				151	XXIX
492 ...	"	680				154	"
494 ...	"	542				184	"
495 ...	"	200				290	"
497 ...	"	260				12	"
500 ...	"	246				295	"
504 ...	"	590				758	"
511 ...	"	377				763	"
515 ...	XXX	869				803	"

Law Weekly,
Vol. II—contd.

Law Weekly,
Vol. II—contd.

Madras Weekly Notes,
1915—contd.

Madras Weekly Notes,
1915—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
805 ...	XXX	840	XXXI	1129 ...	XXXI	181 ...	XXVII
813 ...	"	669	"	1132 ...	"	185 ...	"
823 ...	"	675	"	1135 ...	"	187 ...	XXVIII
828 ...	"	679	"	1140 ...	"	188 ...	"
830 ...	"	299	"	1175 ...	"	189 ...	"
837 ...	"	265	"	1184 ...	"	190 ...	XXVII
843 ...	"	833	"	1186 ...	"	192 ...	XXVIII
850 ...	"	815	"	1191 ...	"	201 ...	"
853 ...	"	818	"	1200 ...	"	203 ...	XXVII
858 ...	"	822	"	1205 ...	"	204 ...	XXVIII
861 ...	"	827	"	1207 ...	XXXII	208 ...	"
867 ...	XXXI	81	XXXI	1209 ...	XXXI	209 ...	"
874 ...	XXX	859	"	1210 ...	"	211 ...	"
881 ...	XXIX	617	"	1212 ...	"	215 ...	"
887 ...	XXX	685	"	1214 ...	"	217 ...	"
890 ...	XXXI	59	XXXII	1244 ...	XXXII	221 ...	"
894 ...	XXX	924	XXXIII	1247 ...	XXXIII	222 ...	"
897 ...	"	529	—			225 ...	"
912 ...	XXXI	55				227 ...	"
916 ...	XXX	895				228 ...	"
918 ...	XXXI	179				229 ...	"
929 ...	XXX	878				233 ...	"
933 ...	"	1005				236 ...	"
937 ...	"	752				237 ...	"
939 ...	"	447				239 ...	"
941 ...	XXXI	184				240 ...	"
946 ...	"	211				241 ...	"
948 ...	"	38				245 ...	"
952 ...	XXX	101				246 ...	"
958 ...	XXXI	175				249 ...	"
960 ...	"	206				252 ...	XXX
964 ...	"	52				253 ...	XXVIII
969 ...	XXX	977				254 ...	"
977 ...	XXXI	152				256 ...	"
980 ...	"	398				258 ...	XXIX
992 ...	"	46				267 ...	XXVIII
999 ...	"	74				269 ...	"
1002 ...	"	234				271 ...	"
1005 ...	XXX	962				272 ...	"
1018 ...	XXXI	279				273 ...	"
1018 ...	"	281				274 ...	"
1024 ...	"	285				275 ...	"
1025 ...	XXX	927				276 ...	"
1031 ...	XXXI	104				276 ...	XXVII
1034 ...	"	263				277 ...	XXVIII
1035 ...	XXX	749				278 ...	"
1037 ...	XXXI	326				280 ...	"
1046 ...	"	255				281 ...	"
1055 ...	"	293				290 ...	"
1057 ...	"	296				303 ...	"
1066 ...	"	305				313 ...	XXIX
1067 ...	"	307				316 ...	"
1069 ...	"	377				319 ...	"
1074 ...	"	240				321 ...	"
1078 ...	"	373				325 ...	"
1080 ...	"	412				327 ...	"
1099 ...	"	502				330 ...	"
1107 ...	"	528				330 ...	"
1115 ...	"	536				332 ...	"
1117 ...	"	539				334 ...	"
1120 ...	"	656				337 ...	"
1122 ...	"	542				339 ...	"
1124 ...	"	404				346 ...	"
1126 ...	"	650				353 ...	"

Madras Weekly Notes,
1915.

1 ...	XXVII	77
8 ...	XXVI	489
12 ...	"	847
15 ...	"	353
17 ...	XXVII	736
19 ...	"	775
21 ...	XXVI	274
22 ...	"	366
23 ...	XXVII	807
25 ...	"	919
26 ...	XXVI	455
29 ...	"	904
31 ...	XXVII	891
33 ...	XXVI	360
34 ...	"	318
34 ...	"	332
37 ...	XXVII	920
39 ...	"	723
45 ...	"	323
48 ...	XXVI	785
53 ...	"	757
76 ...	"	841
101 ...	XXVIII	64
105 ...	"	69
118 ...	"	79
122 ...	XXVI	927
130 ...	XXVII	679
132 ...	"	688
140 ...	"	179
143 ...	XXVIII	45
148 ...	"	51
150 ...	"	57
154 ...	XXVI	863
157 ...	"	279
159 ...	XXVIII	62
162 ...	XXVI	287
170 ...	XXVIII	1
174 ...	"	232
177 ...	"	97
180 ...	"	260

233 ...	"	643
236 ...	"	373
237 ...	"	536
239 ...	"	624
240 ...	"	733
241 ...	"	659
245 ...	"	551
246 ...	"	635
249 ...	"	318
252 ...	XXX	63
253 ...	XXVIII	103
254 ...	"	670
256 ...	"	309
262 ...	XXIX	37
267 ...	XXVIII	332
269 ...	"	156
271 ...	"	599
272 ...	"	999
273 ...	"	702
274 ...	"	637
275 ...	"	180
276 ...	"	639
276 ...	XXVII	843
277 ...	XXVIII	916
278 ...	"	102
280 ...	"	556
281 ...	"	604
290 ...	"	612
303 ...	"	625
313 ...	XXIX	188
316 ...	"	192
319 ...	"	195
321 ...	"	252
325 ...	"	201
327 ...	"	142
330 ...	"	203
330 ...	"	4
332 ...	"	204
334 ...	"	231
337 ...	"	62
339 ...	"	113
346 ...	"	365
353 ...	"	103

369 ...	XXIX	356
376 ...	"	908
387 ...	XXIII	642
389 ...	XXIV	499
392 ...	XXVI	924
394 ...	XXVII	892
397 ...	XXIX	916
405 ...	"	549
408 ...	"	149
411 ...	"	830
413 ...	XXX	447
414 ...	XXIX	740
414 ...	"	976
418 ...	"	331
421 ...	"	457
422 ...	"	394
424 ...	XXX	106
430 ...	XXXI	545
442 ...	XXX	7
448 ...	XXIX	588
449 ...	"	781
454 ...	"	639
467 ...	XXX	178
478 ...	"	225
485 ...	XXVIII	710
488 ...	XXIX	957
500 ...	"	808
504 ...	XXX	145
511 ...	XXVII	674
514 ...	XXIX	617
519 ...	"	462
522 ...	"	223
526 ...	"	724
531 ...	XXX	74
533 ...	"	493
534 ...	"	511
536 ...	"	539
540 ...	"	152
543 ...	"	154
543 ...	"	507
544 ...	"	439
546 ...	XXIX	668
547 ...	XXX	94
554 ...	XXXI	176
556 ...	XXIX	298
559 ...	XXVIII	699
563 ...	XXX	303
577 ...	"	101
581 ...	XXVIII	34
586 ...	XXX	713
590 ...	"	375
592 ...	XXVIII	422
596 ...	"	871
603 ...	XXVII	26
605 ...	XXX	522
606 ...	XXVI	915
614 ...	XXX	983
621 ...	"	435
621 ...	XXVIII	930
626 ...	XXIX	241
631 ...	XXX	853
633 ...	XXVII	53
636 ...	XXX	605
637 ...	XXIX	991

Madras Weekly Notes,
1915—concl.Madras Weekly Notes,
1915—concl.Nagpur Law Reports,
Vol. XI—concl.Oudh Cases,
Vol. XVIII—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
638 ...	XXX	258	876 ...	XXXI	281	126 ...	XXXI	307	162 ...	XXXI	717
639 ...	"	484	880 ...	"	927	130 ...	"	58	169 ...	"	728
640 ...	"	351	907 ...	XXX	488	132 ...	"	62	188 ...	"	748
642 ...	XXIX	1005	908 ...	XXXII	802	153 ...	XXX	981	256 ...	XXXII	424
643 ...	XXXI	9	911 ...	XXXI	246	155 ...	"	980	263 ...	"	362
643 ...	XXXIII	234	914 ...	"	478	160 ...	XXXI	5	268 ...	"	429
644 ...	XXX	840	915 ...	"	267	162 ...	XXX	993	272 ...	"	432
650 ...	XXXIII	216	916 ...	"	46	164 ...	XXXI	464	275 ...	"	451
671 ...	XXX	649	921 ...	"	326	170 ...	"	470	280 ...	"	341
701 ...	"	669	927 ...	"	412	171 ...	"	474	282 ...	"	465
709 ...	"	366	941 ...	"	296	177 ...	"	467	289 ...	XXXIII	371
713 ...	"	265	947 ...	XXX	878	189 ...	"	469	340 ...	"	357
717 ...	"	833	956 ...	XXXI	260	183 ...	"	872	341 ...	"	361
722 ...	"	675	960 ...	"	835	186 ...	"	877	343 ...	"	365
725 ...	"	522	962 ...	"	590	189 ...	"	880	345 ...	"	367
726 ...	XXXI	12	968 ...	"	833				347 ...	"	243
728 ...	XXX	353	1621 ...	"	312				353 ...	XXXII	202
731 ...	XXXI	81	1623 ...	"	373				359 ...	XXXIII	557
735 ...	XXX	849	1625 ...	XXXII	279				361 ...	"	560
740 ...	"	755	1641 ...	"	5				363 ...	"	615
755 ...	"	777	1659 ...	"	324				364 ...	"	619
757 ...	"	249							367 ...	"	622
761 ...	XXXII	763							369 ...	"	657
763 ...	XXX	769							372 ...	"	661
765 ...	XXXI	59							374 ...	"	663
768 ...	XXX	634							377 ...	"	258
769 ...	"	707							380 ...	"	555
772 ...	"	529
784 ...	XXXII	759
785 ...	"	610
786 ...	XXX	745
787 ...	XXIX	717
788 ...	"	229
790 ...	XXX	59
791 ...	XXXII	809
792 ...	XXX	832
793 ...	"	246
793 ...	XXXI	184
797 ...	XXX	827
801 ...	XXXI	98
805 ...	XXX	977
810 ...	"	927
813 ...	XXXI	93
815 ...	"	55
817 ...	"	74
819 ...	"	52
822 ...	"	152
829 ...	XXX	962
836 ...	"	924
838 ...	"	859
841 ...	"	752
842 ...	"	822
844 ...	"	753
845 ...	XXXI	211
846 ...	"	206
847 ...	"	206
850 ...	"	234
852 ...	XXX	569
857 ...	"	596
864 ...	XXXI	913
864 ...	XXXII	691
865 ...	"	691
866 ...	XXX	86
873 ...	XXXI	398

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
126 ...	XXXI	307	162 ...	XXXI	717	130 ...	"	58	169 ...	"	728
132 ...	"	62	188 ...	"	748	153 ...	XXX	981	256 ...	XXXII	424
155 ...	"	980	263 ...	"	362	156 ...	"	980	263 ...	"	362
160 ...	XXXI	5	268 ...	"	429	160 ...	XXXI	993	272 ...	"	432
162 ...	XXX	993	275 ...	"	451	162 ...	XXX	464	275 ...	"	451
164 ...	XXXI	464	280 ...	"	341	164 ...	XXXI	464	275 ...	"	451
170 ...	"	470	282 ...	"	465	170 ...	"	470	280 ...	"	341
171 ...	"	474	289 ...	XXXIII	371	171 ...	"	474	282 ...	"	465
177 ...	"	467	340 ...	"	357	177 ...	"	467	289 ...	XXXIII	371
189 ...	"	469	341 ...	"	361	189 ...	"	469	340 ...	"	357
183 ...	"	872	343 ...	"	365	183 ...	"	872	341 ...	"	361
186 ...	"	877	345 ...	"	367	186 ...	"	877	343 ...	"	365
189 ...	"	880	347 ...	"	243	189 ...	"	880	345 ...	"	367
			349 ...	"	202				347 ...	"	243
			353 ...	XXXII	202				349 ...	"	202
			359 ...	XXXIII	557				353 ...	XXXII	202
			361 ...	"	560				359 ...	XXXIII	557
			363 ...	"	615				361 ...	"	560
			364 ...	"	619				363 ...	"	615
			367 ...	"	622				364 ...	"	619
			369 ...	"	657				367 ...	"	622
			372 ...	"	661				369 ...	"	657
			374 ...	"	663				372 ...	"	661
			377 ...	"	258				374 ...	"	663
			380 ...	"	555				377 ...	"	258
									380 ...	"	555

Health Cases,
Vol. XXIII.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
1 ...	XXVIII	184	10 ...	"	236	30 ...	"	161	280 ...	"	555
5 ...	"	236	10 ...	"	161	30 ...	"	161	280 ...	"	555
10 ...	"	161	30 ...	"	171	34 ...	XXVII	118
30 ...	"	171	34 ...	XXVII	118	38 ...	"	380
34 ...	XXVII	118	38 ...	"	380	43 ...	XXVIII	855
38 ...	"	380	43 ...	XXVIII	855	48 ...	"	859
43 ...	XXVIII	855	48 ...	"	859	51 ...	XXVII	938
48 ...	"	859	51 ...	XXVII	938	55 ...	"	72
51 ...	XXVII	938	55 ...	"	72	58 ...	XXVIII	842
55 ...	"	72	58 ...	XXVIII	842	61 ...	"	357
58 ...	XXVIII	842	61 ...	"	357	61 ...	XXVI	714
61 ...	"	357	61 ...	XXVI	714	66 ...	XXVII	121
61 ...	XXVI	714	66 ...	XXVII	121	69 ...	XXIX	669
66 ...	XXVII	121	69 ...	XXIX	669	70 ...	XXVII	670
69 ...	"	669	70 ...	XXVII	670	74 ...	XXVIII	366
70 ...	XXVII	670	74 ...	XXVIII	366	76 ...	XXVII	509
74 ...	XXVIII	366	76 ...	XXVII	509	80 ...	"	543
76 ...	XXVII	509	80 ...	"	543	84 ...	"	567
80 ...	"	543	84 ...	"	567	86 ...	"	543
84 ...	"	567	86 ...	"	543	90 ...	"	609
86 ...	"	543	90 ...	"	609	92 ...	XXVIII	158
90 ...	"	609	92 ...	XXVIII	158	95 ...	XXX	193
92 ...	XXVIII	158	95 ...	XXX	193	104 ...	"	285
95 ...	XXX	193	104 ...	"	285	105 ...	"	377
104 ...	"	285	105 ...	"	377	109 ...	"	232
105 ...	"	377	109 ...	"	232	114 ...	"	492
109 ...	"	232	114 ...	"	492	115 ...	"	200
114 ...	"	492	115 ...	"	200	121 ...	"	497
115 ...	"	200	121 ...	"	497	122 ...	XXVIII	180
121 ...	"	497	122 ...	XXVIII	180	125 ...	XXX	694
122 ...	XXVIII	180	125 ...	XXX	694	131 ...	"	253
125 ...	XXX	694	131 ...	"	253	134 ...	"	161
131 ...	"	253	134 ...	"	161	138 ...	"	295
134 ...	"	161	138 ...	"	295	143 ...	"	768
138 ...	"	295	143 ...	"	768	147 ...	"	269
143 ...	"	768	147 ...	"	269	154 ...	"	371
147 ...	"	269	154 ...	"	371	157 ...	XXXI	744
154 ...	"	371	157 ...	XXXI	744	160 ...	XXX	273
157 ...	XXXI	744	160 ...	XXX	273

Health Journal,
Vol. II.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.
Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
1 ...	XXVII	581	10 ...	"	585	30 ...	"	516
10 ...	"	585	30 ...	"	516	41 ...	"	532
30 ...	"	516	41 ...	"	532	42 ...	"	534
41 ...	"	532	42 ...	"	534	44 ...	"	537
42 ...	"	534	44 ...	"	537	46 ...	"	540
44 ...	"	537	46 ...	"	540	50 ...	"	561
46 ...	"	540	50 ...	"	561	51 ...	"	513
50 ...	"	561	51 ...	"	513	55 ...	"	567
51 ...	"	513	55 ...	"	567	57 ...	"	570
55 ...	"	567	57 ...	"	570	63 ...	"	525
57 ...	"	570	63 ...	"	525	65 ...	"	935
63 ...	"	525	65 ...	"	935	67 ...	"	938
65 ...	"	935	67 ...	"	938	71 ...	"	930
67 ...	"	938	71 ...	"	930	73 ...	"	970
71 ...	"	930	73 ...	"	970	78 ...	"	974
73 ...	"	970	78 ...	"	974	94 ...	XXVIII	158
78 ...	"	974	94 ...	XXVIII	158	97 ...	"	180
94 ...	XXVIII	158	97 ...	"	180	101 ...	"	201
97 ...	"	180	101 ...	"	201	102 ...	"	208
101 ...	"	201	102 ...	"	208	112 ...	"	211
102 ...	"	208	112 ...	"	211	113 ...	"	217
112 ...	"	211	113 ...	"	217

Oudh Cases,
Vol. XVIII.Oudh Law Journal,
Vol. II.

Oudh Lave Journal,
Vol. II—contd.

Quech. Law Journal,
Vol. II—contd.

Smith Law Journal,
Vol. II—completd.

Punjab Land Reports,
Vol. XVI—1915—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.	Ind. Cas.	No.	Ind. Cas.
Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Vol.
121	XXVIII	229	XXX	371	XXXIII	163	XXVI
123	"	236	"	375	"	157	XXVIII
127	"	239	"	384	"	210	XXVII
129	XXVII	424	"	387	"	145	"
131	XXVIII	307	"	388	"	246	"
137	"	357	"	392	"	247	"
140	"	360	"	374	"	250	XXVIII
145	"	303	"	577	"	254	"
147	XXX	68	"	350	XXXI	447	"
148	XXVI	517	"	382	XXXIII	257	XXVII
151	XXVIII	379	"	316	"	214	"
154	"	919	"	490	"	214	"
156	"	929	"	502	"	260	XXVIII
159	"	366	"	503	"	262	XXVII
161	"	440	"	384	"	263	"
162	"	458	XXVIII	471	"	252	XXVIII
165	"	161	XXX	253	"	264	XXVII
190	"	736	"	323	"	266	XXVIII
191	"	847	"	351	"	270	"
193	XXX	263	"	449	"	203	XXVII
195	"	198	XXXII	356	"	203	"
198	"	199	"	321	"	204	XXVIII
200	"	200	"	359	"	137	"
206	"	203	"	314	"	516	XXVII
208	"	204	"	397	"	147	"
212	"	205	"	341	"	675	XXVIII
214	"	239	"	209	"	186	XXVII
216	"	230	"	345	"
220	"	232	"	347	"
225	"	235	"	349	"
228	"	193	"	353	"
237	"	216	"	291	"
241	"	218	"	328	"
246	"	220	"	370	"
251	"	433	"	376	"
254	"	86	"	380	"
255	"	86	XXXI	624	"
257	"	322	XXXII	362	"
259	"	240	"	365	"
269	"	249	"	368	"
275	"	257	"	715	"
276	"	258	"	424	"
279	"	261	"	740	"
283	"	279	"	748	"
285	"	281	"	769	"
289	"	285	"	754	"
291	"	289	XXXIV	48	"
298	XXIX	656	XXXII	729	"
299	XXX	292	"	732	"
305	"	295	"	734	"
313	"	269	XXXIII	729	"
320	"	276	XXXI	748	"
321	"	209	XXXIII	141	"
325	"	211	"	161	"
327	"	213	"	166	"
332	"	223	"	163	"
335	"	207	"	170	"
338	"	234	"	180	"
346	XXVIII	855	"	234	"
351	XXX	208	"	236	"
352	"	206	"	237	"
353	"	425	"	232	"
357	"	224	"	235	"
359	"	373	"	215	"

Punjab Law Reporter,
Vol. XVI—1915.

No.	Ind. Cas.	No.	Ind. Cas.
1	XXVII 645	64	XXVI 404
2	" 673	65	XXVII 621
3	" 647	66	XXVI 402
4	" 219	67	XXVII 620
5	" 221	68	" 703
6	" 650	69	XXVI 430
7	" 639	70	XXVII 598
8	" 637	71	" 393
9	" 630	72	XXIX 1

Punjab Law Reporter,
Vol. XVI—1915—contd.

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
97	XXVIII	421
98	XXVI	385
99	XXVIII	431
100	XXVI	415
101	XXVIII	507
102	XXVI	450
103	XXVIII	298
104	"	550
105	"	375
106	XXVI	497
107	XXIX	766
108	"	766
109	"	769
110	"	770
111	"	778
112	"	780
113	XXVIII	600
114	XXIX	785
115	"	789
116	"	796
117	"	799
118	"	801
119	XXX	157
120	XXVII	593
121	XXVI	426
122	"	530
123	"	590
124	"	481
125	XXVII	29
126	XXIX	137
127	XXVII	837
128	"	481
129	"	840
130	"	838
131	"	216
132	XXIX	94
133	XXVI	519
134	"	666
135	"	910
136	"	833
137	"	686
138	XXVIII	142
139	XXIX	755
140	"	759
141	XXVIII	234
142	XXVII	769
143	XXVIII	238
144	XXIX	761
145	"	687
146	XXVIII	402
147	XXIX	271
148	"	904
149	"	901
150	"	887
151	"	891
152	"	888
153	"	895
154	"	893
155	XXX	717
156	"	524
157	"	528
158	"	526
159	XXVIII	488
160	XXIX	731

Punjab Law Reporter,
Vol. XVI—1915—contd.

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
161	XXIX	7
162	"	86
163	"	101
164	"	75
165	"	92
166	"	751
167	"	105
168	"	750
169	XXX	452
170	"	455
171	"	429
172	"	500
173	"	272
174	"	481
175	"	482
176	"	485
177	"	487
178	"	491
179	XXIX	754
180	XXVIII	951
181	Not reportable.
182	XXX	657
183	XXVIII	600
184	"	107
185	"	154
186	"	695
187	XXXI	722
188	XXX	747
189	"	813
190	XXVIII	213
191	"	524
192	Not reportable
193	XXXII	312
194	XXVIII	113
195	"	441
196	XXXII	315
197	XXVI	882
198	XXV	831
199	"	867
200	"	854
201	XXVII	381
202	"	93
203	"	94
204	"	203
205	"	210
206	"	200
207	"	901
208	XXVI	305
209	"	323
210	XXIX	993
211	XXVII	446
212	XXVI	667
213	"	998
214	XXVII	158
215	"	154
216	XXII	398
217	XXV	697
218	XXVII	69
219	"	833
220	XXVI	1005
221	"	1001
222	XXVIII	145
223	XXVI	625
224	XXVII	812

Punjab Law Reporter,
Vol. XVI—1915—contd.

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
225	XXVII	844
226	"	664
227	"	897
228	XXVI	756
229	XXVII	417
230	"	791
231	"	745
232	XXVI	441
233	"	743
234	"	543
235	"	486
236	"	797
237	"	812
238	"	524
239	"	342
240	XXX	505
241	XXVII	113
242	"	115
243	XXIX	382
244	Not reportable
245	"
246	XXVIII	738

Punjab Record, Vol. L,
1915, Civil.

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
1	XXVIII	273
2	"	113
3	XXV	480
4	"	856
5	XXVI	686
6	XXVIII	213
7	"	262
8	"	441
9	"	957
10	"	220
11	"	248
12	XXIV	931
13	XXV	88
14	"	35
15	XXVII	535
16	XXVI	404
17	XXVIII	695
18	"	722
19	XXIV	361
20	XXIX	272
21	XXVI	433
22	"	402
23	"	415
24	XXIX	346
25	"	348
26	XXVII	577
27	XXIX	354
28	"	361
29	XXVII	449
30	"	625
31	"	685
32	XXIV	358
33	XXVI	450
34	"	492

Punjab Record, Vol. L,
1915, Civil—contd.

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
35	XXIX	561
36	XXVIII	431
37	XXIX	567
38	"	570
39	"	572
40	XXVIII	286
41	XXI	951
42	XXX	84
43	XXVII	29
44	XXIX	655
45	XXVIII	951
46	XXIX	265
47	"	7
48	XXVIII	402
49	XXIX	382
50	"	650
51	XXIX	938
52	XXX	71
53	XXVII	542
54	XXVIII	53
55	XXX	87
56	"	90
57	"	100
58	"	104
59	XXXI	64
60	XXVII	594
61	XXXI	45
62	XXVIII	455
63	"	975
64	XXXI	73
65	"	76
66	"	80
67	"	85
68	"	159
69	"	191
70	XXIX	253
71	XXX	517
72	XXXI	241
73	XXIX	778
74	XXXI	149
75	"	202
76	"	209
77	"	205
78	"	212
79	"	215
80	"	722
81	"	254
82	"	221
83	"	230
84	"	237
85	"	674
86	XXXII	315
87	XXXI	463
88	"	469
89	"	476
90	"	533
91	"	537
92	"	541
93	XXIX	807
94	XXXI	489
95	"	493
96	"	497
97	XXXII	35
98	XXXI	196

*Punjab Record, Vol. I,
1915, Civil—concl.*

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
99 ...	XXXII	250
100 ...	"	40
101 ...	"	43
102 ...	"	88
103 ...	XXX	516
104 ...	XXXII	11
105 ...	"	16
106 ...	"	18
107 ...	"	29
108 ...	"	33
109 ...	XXIX	804
110 ...	"	802

Criminal.

1 ...	XXIX	92
2 ...	XXVIII	734
3 ...	"	524
4 ...	"	336
5 ...	"	329
6 ...	"	335
7 ...	XXX	155
8 ...	XXVIII	796
9 ...	XXIX	669
10 ...	"	821
11 ...	"	817
12 ...	"	823
13 ...	XXVIII	107
14 ...	XXIX	826
15 ...	"	827
16 ...	XXX	737
17 ...	XXVIII	738
18 ...	XXXI	641
19 ...	XXVIII	322
20 ...	XXXI	382
21 ...	"	643
22 ...	"	375
23 ...	XXX	731
24 ...	XXXI	386
25 ...	"	646
26 ...	"	644
27 ...	"	380
28 ...	XXIX	105
29 ...	XXXII	148
30 ...	"	155

Revenue.

1 ...	XXIX	498
2 ...	"	502
3 ...	XXXI	400
4 ...	"	238
5 ...	XXXII	102

*Punjab Weekly Reporter,
Vol. X, 1915, Civil.*

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
1 ...	XXVII	608
2 ...	XXVI	492
3 ...	XXVII	542
4 ...	"	561
5 ...	"	562
6 ...	"	565
7 ...	"	589
8 ...	"	593
9 ...	"	313
10 ...	"	518
11 ...	"	603
12 ...	"	607
13 ...	"	606
14 ...	"	622
15 ...	"	646
16 ...	XXVI	426
17 ...	XXVII	703
18 ...	XXVI	430
19 ...	XXVII	699
20 ...	XXVI	402
21 ...	XXVII	610
22 ...	XXVI	404
23 ...	XXVII	621
24 ...	"	722
25 ...	"	723
26 ...	"	625
27 ...	"	927
28 ...	"	701
29 ...	XXVI	388
30 ...	XXVIII	421
31 ...	"	427
32 ...	"	431
33 ...	XXVII	659
34 ...	"	637
35 ...	"	620
36 ...	XXVI	415
37 ...	XXVIII	507
38 ...	XXVI	450
39 ...	"	497
40 ...	XXVIII	375
41 ...	"	550
42 ...	"	555
43 ...	XXVI	520
44 ...	XXVIII	600
45 ...	XXVII	650
46 ...	XXVI	590
47 ...	XXVII	594
48 ...	"	29
49 ...	XXVI	481
50 ...	XXVIII	341
51 ...	"	926
52 ...	XXIX	137
53 ...	XXVII	481
54 ...	XXIX	271
55 ...	XXVIII	347
56 ...	XXVII	766
57 ...	XXVIII	142
58 ...	"	288
59 ...	"	234
60 ...	XXIX	755
61 ...	"	759
62 ...	"	761
63 ...	XXVIII	402

*Punjab Weekly Reporter,
Vol. X, 1915, Civil—concl.*

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
63 ...	XXIX	146
64 ...	"	778
65 ...	"	769
66 ...	"	687
67 ...	"	766
68 ...	"	766
69 ...	XXVIII	975
70 ...	"	488
71 ...	XXIX	265
72 ...	"	731
73 ...	"	901
74 ...	"	901
75 ...	"	780
76 ...	"	887
77 ...	"	888
78 ...	"	891
79 ...	"	893
80 ...	"	895
81 ...	XXX	717
82 ...	XXIX	700
83 ...	"	751
84 ...	"	754
85 ...	XXVI	519
86 ...	XXVIII	951
87 ...	XXVI	833
88 ...	XXIX	194
89 ...	"	7
90 ...	"	311
91 ...	XXX	387
92 ...	"	389
93 ...	XXIX	152
94 ...	"	150
95 ...	"	253
96 ...	"	199
97 ...	XXX	505
98 ...	"	507
99 ...	XXIX	650
100 ...	"	655
101 ...	"	567
102 ...	"	570
103 ...	"	572
104 ...	"	505
105 ...	XXX	509
106 ...	"	500
107 ...	"	429
108 ...	"	513
109 ...	"	517
110 ...	XXIX	807
111 ...	"	382
112 ...	"	802
113 ...	XXX	481
114 ...	XXXI	272
115 ...	XXX	482
116 ...	"	487
117 ...	"	485
118 ...	"	491
119 ...	XXIX	804
120 ...	"	791
121 ...	XXX	817
122 ...	XXIX	854
123 ...	"	857
124 ...	XXX	657
125 ...	XXXI	722

*Punjab Weekly Reporter,
Vol. X, 1915, Civil—concl.*

No.	Ind. Cas.	Vol.	Page.
126 ...	XXX	843
127 ...	"	28
128 ...	"	31
129 ...	"	22
130 ...	"	84
131 ...	XXVII	616
132 ...	XXVIII	286
133 ...	XXXI	287
134 ...	XXX	100
135 ...	"	90
136 ...	XXXI	45
137 ...	XXVIII	455
138 ...	Not comparable.
139 ...	XXXI	54
140 ...	XXXI	312
141 ...	XXXI	230
142 ...	"	73
143 ...	XXX	524
144 ...	XXXI	76
145 ...	XXX	526
146 ...	XXXI	80
147 ...	XXX	578
148 ...	XXXI	85
149 ...	"	241
150 ...	"	797
151 ...	"	159
152 ...	"	802
153 ...	"	808
154 ...	"	209
155 ...	XXVIII	12
156 ...	XXXI	191
157 ...	"	202
158 ...	"	800
159 ...	"	199
160 ...	"	862
161 ...	"	863
162 ...	"	865
163 ...	"	27
164 ...	"	205
165 ...	XXXII	315
166 ...	XXX	104
167 ...	"	87
168 ...	XXXI	541
169 ...	"	497
170 ...	"	533
171 ...	"	215
172 ...	"	221
173 ...	"	212
174 ...	"	294
175 ...	"	493
176 ...	"	287
177 ...	"	186
178 ...	"	154
179 ...	"	196
180 ...	"	269
181 ...	"	463
182 ...	"	595

Criminal.

1 ...	XXVII	637
2 ...	"	219
3 ...	"	221

Punjab Weekly Reporter,
Vol. X, 1915, Criminal—concl'd.

Sind Law Reporter,
Vol. VIII—cont'd.

Sind Law Reporter,
Vol. IX—concl'd.

Criminal Law Journal,
Vol. XVI—cont'd.

conclu.			Ind. Cas.			Ind. Cas.			Ind. Cas.
No.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.	Page.	Vol.	Page.
4	XXVII	838	218	XXVII	999	126	XXXIII	675	72	XXVI	664
5	"	840	222	XXVIII	5	132	XXXII	575	73	"	665
6	"	754	229	"	103	134	"	554	74	"	666
7	"	762	233	"	95	137	XXXIII	668	74	"	666
8	"	764	235	"	82	141	XXXII	679	75	"	667
9	"	766	238	"	111	143	"	548	76	"	668
10	"	846	241	XXVII	924	148	XXXIII	634	78	"	670
11	XXVIII	738	247	XXVIII	40	150	XXXII	582	79	"	671
10a	VI	269	257	"	49	158	"	669	80	"	672
11b	Not reportable.	264	260	"	60	160	"	720	81	"	993
11a	"	267	264	"	67	164	"	629	83	"	995
12	XXVIII	722	267	"	101	167	"	616	84	"	996
13	XXIX	94	269	"	85	170	"	688	86	"	998
14	XXVII	216	270	"	92	171	"	671	88	"	1000
15	XXX	436	272	XXVII	933	174	"	689	89	"	1001
16	XXVII	551	275	"	942	176	"	669	91	"	1003
17	XXX	737	279	XXIX	42	177	"	551	91	"	1003
18	"	641	294	"	597	181	"	565	92	"	1004
19	"	646	302	"	602				93	"	1005
20	XXVIII	107	306	"	25				95	"	1007
21	"	322	309	"	79				97	XXVII	145
22	XXIX	101	322	"	111				97	"	145
23	"	105	325	"	30				98	"	146
24	"	86	227	"	592				99	"	147
25	"	75	329	"	22				100	"	148
26	XXX	458	331	"	51	1	XXVI	305	103	"	151
27	"	461	335	"	58	2	"	306	104	"	152
28	XXXI	337	337	"	104	3	"	307	104	"	152
29	XXIX	826	340	"	101	3	"	307	106	"	154
30	XXX	749	341	"	108	5	"	309	106	"	154
31	"	455	343	"	664	5	"	309	107	"	155
32	"	452				7	"	311	108	"	156
33	XXIX	827				9	"	313	108	"	159
34	XXX	747				14	"	318	111	"	159
35	"	139				15	"	319	111	"	159
36	"	157				19	"	323	112	"	160
37	XXVI	323				20	"	324	113	"	177
38	XXXI	643				24	"	328	114	"	178
39	"	382				25	"	329	114	"	178
40	XXX	731				28	"	332	115	"	179
41	XXXII	660				31	"	335	117	"	181
42	XXXI	375				32	"	336	120	"	184
						32	"	336	120	"	184
						33	"	625	122	"	186
						39	"	631	122	"	186
						39	"	631	128	"	192
						39	"	631	131	"	195
						40	"	632	132	"	196
						42	"	634	132	"	198
						43	"	635	134	"	198
						44	"	636	135	"	199
						46	"	638	136	"	200
						49	"	641	136	"	200
						52	"	644	137	"	201
						53	"	645	138	"	202
						54	"	646	139	"	203
						54	"	646	139	"	203
						55	"	647	141	"	205
						56	"	648	144	"	208
						58	"	650	146	"	210
						59	"	651	147	"	211
						60	"	652	148	"	212
						61	"	653	149	"	213
						61	"	653	151	"	215
						62	"	654	152	"	216
						65	"	657	154	"	218
									155	"	219

Revenue.
1	XXX	839
2	"	845
3	XXIX	802
4	XXX	848

Sind Law Reporter, Vol. VIII.
199	XXVII	902
203	"	905
207	"	907
213	"	910
215	XXVIII	105

From August to December, 1914.
101	XXXIII	615
108	XXXII	630
116	"	540

Revenue.

1	XXX	839
2	"	845
3	XXIX	802
4	XXX	848

Sind Law Reporter,
Vol. VIII.

From August to December,
1914.

199	XXVII	902
203	"	905
207	"	907
213	"	910
215	XXVIII	105

Vol. IX.
From January to October,
1915.

1	XXX	13
10	"	19
11	"	24
15	XXIX	928
17	XXX	156
20	XXIX	933
23	"	939
27	XXX	51
32	"	35
34	"	57
37	"	125
43	"	456
48	"	25
51	XXXI	436
61	"	7
65	"	50
69	XXX	968
75	"	1003
77	XXXI	450
82	XXX	1000
84	"	936
86	XXXI	37
89	XXX	1001
90	XXXI	479
95	XXXII	131
97	XXX	994
99	"	998
101	XXXIII	615
108	XXXII	530
116	"	540

Criminal Law Journal, Vol. XVI—contd.			Criminal Law Journal, Vol. XVI—contd.			Criminal Law Journal, Vol. XVI—contd.			Criminal Law Journal, Vol. XVI—contd.
Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol.	Page.	Page.	Ind. Cas. Vol.	Page.
156 ...	XXVII	220	251 ...	XXVIII	107	417 ...	XXVIII	993	542 ...	XXIX	670
157 ...	"	221	252 ...	"	108	420 ...	"	996	543 ...	"	671
159 ...	"	223	252 ...	"	108	421 ...	"	997	543 ...	"	671
160 ...	"	224	254 ...	"	110	422 ...	"	998	544 ...	"	672
161 ...	"	545	255 ...	"	111	423 ...	"	999	545 ...	"	817
162 ...	"	545	257 ...	"	145	424 ...	"	1000	549 ...	"	821
166 ...	"	550	264 ...	"	152	429 ...	"	1005	550 ...	"	822
167 ...	"	551	266 ...	"	154	431 ...	"	1007	551 ...	"	823
167 ...	"	551	267 ...	"	155	433 ...	XXIX	65	553 ...	"	825
168 ...	"	552	268 ...	"	156	433 ...	"	65	554 ...	"	826
169 ...	"	553	270 ...	"	158	434 ...	"	66	555 ...	"	827
169 ...	"	553	271 ...	"	159	435 ...	"	67	555 ...	"	827
170 ...	"	554	272 ...	"	160	437 ...	"	69	558 ...	"	830
174 ...	"	558	272 ...	"	160	439 ...	"	71	558 ...	"	830
175 ...	"	559	273 ...	"	321	440 ...	"	72	560 ...	"	832
176 ...	"	560	274 ...	"	322	443 ...	"	75	561 ...	XXX	113
177 ...	"	557	281 ...	"	329	445 ...	"	77	572 ...	"	124
184 ...	"	664	281 ...	"	329	446 ...	"	78	573 ...	"	125
190 ...	"	670	284 ...	"	332	447 ...	"	79	576 ...	"	128
192 ...	"	672	286 ...	"	334	453 ...	"	85	581 ...	"	133
193 ...	"	753	287 ...	"	335	454 ...	"	86	581 ...	"	133
194 ...	"	754	288 ...	"	336	456 ...	"	88	582 ...	"	134
195 ...	"	755	289 ...	"	513	457 ...	"	89	583 ...	"	135
202 ...	"	762	293 ...	"	517	458 ...	"	90	584 ...	"	136
203 ...	"	763	294 ...	"	518	459 ...	"	91	585 ...	"	137
204 ...	"	764	298 ...	"	522	460 ...	"	92	586 ...	"	138
206 ...	"	766	300 ...	"	524	462 ...	"	94	587 ...	"	139
207 ...	"	767	303 ...	"	527	464 ...	"	96	589 ...	"	141
207 ...	"	767	305 ...	"	641	465 ...	"	97	590 ...	"	142
209 ...	"	833	307 ...	"	643	466 ...	"	98	591 ...	"	143
211 ...	"	835	309 ...	"	645	469 ...	"	101	592 ...	"	144
212 ...	"	836	309 ...	"	645	469 ...	"	101	592 ...	"	144
213 ...	"	837	310 ...	"	646	472 ...	"	104	593 ...	"	145
213 ...	"	837	312 ...	"	648	473 ...	"	105	593 ...	"	145
214 ...	"	838	313 ...	"	649	476 ...	"	108	599 ...	"	150
215 ...	"	839	315 ...	"	651	477 ...	"	109	600 ...	"	152
216 ...	"	840	315 ...	"	651	479 ...	"	111	602 ...	"	154
217 ...	"	841	316 ...	"	652	481 ...	"	321	603 ...	"	155
218 ...	"	842	317 ...	"	653	481 ...	"	321	604 ...	"	156
219 ...	"	843	319 ...	"	655	482 ...	"	322	605 ...	"	157
220 ...	"	844	320 ...	"	656	483 ...	"	323	606 ...	"	158
221 ...	"	845	321 ...	"	657	485 ...	"	325	606 ...	"	158
222 ...	"	846	322 ...	"	658	489 ...	"	329	607 ...	"	159
222 ...	"	846	322 ...	"	658	489 ...	"	329	607 ...	"	159
224 ...	"	848	323 ...	"	659	491 ...	"	331	609 ...	"	433
225 ...	"	897	326 ...	"	662	494 ...	"	334	610 ...	"	434
228 ...	"	900	327 ...	"	663	495 ...	"	335	611 ...	"	435
229 ...	"	901	327 ...	"	663	496 ...	"	336	611 ...	"	435
230 ...	"	902	332 ...	"	668	497 ...	"	513	612 ...	"	436
232 ...	"	904	334 ...	"	670	524 ...	"	540	614 ...	"	438
233 ...	"	905	336 ...	"	672	525 ...	"	541	614 ...	"	438
234 ...	"	900	337 ...	"	721	527 ...	"	543	615 ...	"	439
235 ...	"	907	338 ...	"	722	528 ...	"	544	616 ...	"	440
237 ...	"	909	348 ...	"	732	529 ...	"	657	617 ...	"	441
238 ...	"	910	349 ...	"	733	531 ...	"	659	618 ...	"	442
239 ...	"	911	350 ...	"	734	532 ...	"	660	618 ...	"	442
241 ...	XXVIII	97	350 ...	"	734	535 ...	"	663	620 ...	"	444
244 ...	"	100	352 ...	"	736	536 ...	"	664	620 ...	"	444
245 ...	"	101	353 ...	"	737	538 ...	"	666	622 ...	"	446
246 ...	"	102	354 ...	"	738	538 ...	"	666	622 ...	"	446
247 ...	"	103	411 ...	"	795	540 ...	"	668	623 ...	"	447
248 ...	"	104	412 ...	"	796	541 ...	"	669	624 ...	"	448
249 ...	"	105	415 ...	"	799	541 ...	"	669	625 ...	"	449
250 ...	"	106	415 ...	"	799	542 ...	"	670	626 ...	"	450

Criminal Law Journal,
Vol. XVI—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
626	XXX	460
627	"	451
628	"	462
629	"	453
629	"	453
631	"	465
631	"	455
632	"	456
634	"	458
637	"	461
637	"	461
640	"	464
640	"	464
641	"	465
656	"	480
656	"	480
657	"	641
657	"	641
659	"	643
662	"	646
663	"	647
665	"	749
667	"	651
668	"	652
669	"	653
670	"	654
672	"	656
673	"	721
674	"	721
676	"	722
683	"	731
689	"	737

Criminal Law Journal,
Vol. XVI—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
695	XXX	743
696	"	744
697	"	745
698	"	746
699	"	747
700	"	748
701	"	748
701	"	749
702	"	749
702	"	750
704	"	751
705	"	752
706	"	993
707	"	994
710	"	995
711	"	998
712	"	999
713	"	1000
713	"	1001
714	"	1001
715	"	1002
716	"	1003
717	"	1004
717	"	1005
719	"	1005
721	XXXI	161
724	"	164
735	"	176
736	"	176
736	"	176
737	"	337

Criminal Law Journal,
Vol. XVI—contd.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
737	XXXI	337
738	"	338
740	"	340
740	"	340
743	"	343
745	"	345
747	"	347
747	"	347
750	"	350
752	"	352
753	"	353
754	"	354
759	"	359
761	"	361
764	"	364
765	"	365
767	"	367
771	"	371
772	"	372
772	"	372
773	"	373
775	"	375
777	"	377
780	"	380
781	"	381
782	"	382
783	"	383
784	"	384
785	"	641
786	"	642
787	"	643
787	"	643

Criminal Law Journal,
Vol. XVI—concl.

Page.	Ind. Cas.	Page.
788	XXXI	644
789	"	645
790	"	646
791	"	647
794	"	650
795	"	651
797	"	653
800	"	656
801	"	817
801	"	817
803	"	819
805	"	821
807	"	823
809	"	825
810	"	826
811	"	827
812	"	828
813	"	829
813	"	829
814	"	830
815	"	831
817	"	993
818	"	994
819	"	995
824	"	1000
825	"	1001
826	"	1002
827	"	1003
829	"	1005
832	"	1008

Admiral High Court
Kashmir
Srinagar
1956

I TABLE

OF

Cases reported in Volume XXXI of Indian Cases, 1915.

An asterisk () denotes cases not reported yet elsewhere.*

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Abdul Gani v. Makbul Ali ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 223; 42 C. 745; 20 C. W. N. 185 ...	19
Abdul Rahaman v. Sarafat Ali ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 412 ...	896
Abdul Rahman v. Ahmadar Rahman ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1217; 22 C. L. J. 356 ...	554
Adapaka Bapanna v. Inuganti Rajagopala ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1212 ...	813
Advocate-General v. Jimbabai ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 799 ...	106
Adya Saran Singh v. Thakur ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	853
Ahamut v. Kalu ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court ...	888
Ahmad Din Anis-ul-Rahman v. Atlas Trading Co. ...	s. c. 66 P. R. 1915; 146 P. W. R. 1915 ...	80
Ahmed Musaji Saleji v. Mamooji Musaji ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 293 ...	315
Akbar Hussain Sahib v. Shoukhah Begam Saheba ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1191; 18 M. L. T. 525 ...	657
Alamelammall v. Surayaprakasaroja ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 680; 38 M. 988 ...	491
Alejan Bibi v. Raham Ali ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 232 ...	26
Ali Bux v. Parkash Nand ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	464
Ali Mohamad v. Great Indian Peninsula Ry. Co. ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 174 ...	474
Allah Din v. Salam Din ...	s. c. 96 P. R. 1915; 169 P. W. R. 1915 ...	497
Alliance Bank of Simla, Ltd. v. Amritsar Bank ...	s. c. 79 P. R. 1915; 171 P. W. R. 1915 ...	215
Amir-un-nissa v. Ram Charan Das ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	859
Annamalai Chetty v. Poosari Suppia ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1016; (1916) M. W. N. 5 ...	279
Antoni Juas Prabhu v. Ramakrishnayya ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1034 ...	263
Appu Atla, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 787 ...	643
Aramanai Rajagopala v. Aramanai Rangasami ...	*Madras High Court ...	458
Arunachalam Chetty v. Ramanathan Chetty ...	*Madras High Court ...	664
Arunachellam Chettiar v. Lakshmana Aiyar ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1002; 18 M. L. T. 385; 29 M. L. J. 569; (1915) M. W. N. 850 ...	234

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Arunachelum Chetty v. Syiad Abamed Ambalam ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1117; 19 M. L. T. 138; (1916) M. W. N. 237 ...	539
Askar Mian v. Sahedali Bara ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 328 ...	424
Atrabannessa Bibi v. Safatullah Mia ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 259 ...	189
Ayya Raghunatha v. Thirumalai Echambadi...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 366; 2 L. W. 992; (1915) M. W. N. 916 ...	46
Ayyakutti Mankondan v. Periasami Koundan	s. c. 2 L. W. 1184 ...	615
Baban Daud v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 918; 16 Cr. L. J. 752 ...	352
Badri Prasad v. Ram Charan ...	*Court of the Board of Bevenue, United Provinces ...	866
Balwant Singh v. Faizullah ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	456
Bangaru Muthu Venkatappa Nayanivaru v. Golla Chinnabba Naidu ...	*Madras High Court ...	565
Bapu Naidu, In re ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 958; 16 Cr. L. J. 735 ...	175
Bapuji Sorabji Patel v. Bhikubhai Virchand...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 924 ...	863
Barati Lal v. Salik Ram ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1141 ...	919
Barkat Ram v. Anant Ram ...	*Punjab Chief Court ...	632
Barmal Singh v. Sheo Nath ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	851
Basapa Ningapa v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 892; 16 Cr. L. J. 765 ...	365
Basavana Gowd v. Krishna Rao Naidu ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1126; 16 Cr. L. J. 794 ...	650
Bechar Anop v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 888; 16 Cr. L. J. 772 ...	372
Bhagwan Baksh Singh v. Ambar Singh ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	472
Bhagwati Saran Singh v. Rabi Singh ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	893
Bhamba Ram v. Allah Bakhsh ...	s. c. 69 P. R. 1915; 156 P. W. R. 1915 ...	191
Bhaai Ram v. Narain Singh ...	s. c. 12 P. W. R. 1916 ...	697
Bhanya v. Naka ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 160 ...	5
Bharadwaja Mudaliar v. Kolandavelu Muda- liar ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 717; 19 M. L. T. 141 ...	786
Bharat Indu v. Muhammad Mahbub Ali Khan	*Allahabad High Court ...	586
Bhiwani Orphanage Association, Hissar v. Parma Nand ...	7 P. W. R. 1916 ...	737
Bhola Ram v. Emperor ...	s. c. 25 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 790 ...	646
Bhole Singh v. Emperor ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1050; 16 Cr. L. J. 807; 38 A. 32 ...	823

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.
Bishen Das v. Liquidator, Doaba Bank, Ltd....	s. c. 5 P. W. R. 1916	725
Bisheshar Dass v. Saghirunnissa	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	902
Bisheshar Pathak v. Ram Prasad Pathak	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 5 Rev.	624
Biswa Nath Sinha v. Bidhumuki Dasi	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1290	677
Bommaraju Venkata Perumal v. Subramanya Nayani Varu	*Madras High Court	87
Brojendra Kishore Roy v. Bharat Chandra Roy	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 283; 20 C. W. N. 481	242
Budha Khan v. Mohammad	s. c. 133 P. W. R. 1915	287
Byomkesh Chakrabarti v. Haladhar Mandal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1271	700
Challaphroo v. Banga Behary Sen	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 311; 20 C. W. N. 408	394
Chandan Mal v. Musammam Wasindi Bai	s. c. 92 P. R. 1915; 168 P. W. R. 1915	541
Chandiram Karamsing v. Secretary of State...	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 51	436
Chemikkala Chinna Reddi v. Emperor	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 554; 16 Cr. L. J. 736	176
Chidambaram Pillai v. Doraiswamy Chetty	*Madras High Court	473
Chidipatu Somayya, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1067	307
Chilukuri Sitaramayya v. Venkata Rangayya Appa Rao	*Madras High Court	871
Chinnappa Thevan v. Pazhaniappa Pillai	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 492; 2 L. W. 1132	630
Chinniah Chetty v. Tikkani Ramaswami Chetty	*Madras High Court	317
Chuah Hooi Gnoh Neoh v. Khaw Sim Bee	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 787 P. C.	637
Co-operative Hindustan Bank, Ltd. v. Bhola Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 165	597
Damoda Coal Co., Ltd. v. Hurmook Marwari...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1019	697
Damodara Naidu, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1120; 16 Cr. L. J. 800	656
Daolat Rai v. Sheikh Chand	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 180	869
Deb Nath Das v. Ram Sundar Barman	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1205	579
Desraj v. Sagar Mal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1064; 38 A. 37	716
Devarasetti Narasimham v. Devarasetti Venkiah	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 532	796
Devendra Shivapa Limbenavar v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1085; 16 Cr. L. J. 832	1008
Dewa Singh v. Lehna Singh	s. c. 8 P. W. R. 1916	740
Dey, N. M. v. Emperor	s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 244; 16 Cr. L. J. 764	364
Dhani Ram v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 829; 38 A. 49	1005
Dharmaraja Iyer v. Sreenivasa Mudaliar	s. c. 2 L. W. 1074; 29 M. L. J. 708; 18 M. L. T. 486	240
Dina v. Bishambhar Singh	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 161	164
Dina Nath Nag v. Sashi Mohan Dey	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 219	16
District Board of Tanjore v. Vythilinga Chetty	*Madras High Court	919
Ditta Ram v. Rup Chand	s. c. 152 P. W. R. 1915	802

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Draviam Pillai v. Cruz Fernandez	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 704; 18 M. L. T. 518	322
Duja Bhandary v. Venku Bhandari	*Madras High Court	854
Dwarka v. Nazir Husain Khan	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	863
Dwarkadas Damodar v. Dwarkadas Shamji	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 938	441
Dwarkadas Tejbandas, In re	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 925	948
Easwara Aiyar v. Govindarajulu Naidu	*Madras High Court	192
Elahi Bux v. Nand Kishore	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	906
Emperor v. Bai Mahalaxmi	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 910; 16 Cr. L. J. 747	347
— v. Bhimappa Ulvappa	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 895; 16 Cr. L. J. 738	338
— v. Brikkbhan Singh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 979; 16 Cr. L. J. 819; 38 A. 14	995
— v. Daji Yesaba	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 818	994
— v. Dwijendra Chandra	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 724	164
— v. Gul Mohammad	s. c. 26 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 788	644
— v. Hari Bijal	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 906; 16 Cr. L. J. 745	345
— v. Lehna Singh	s. c. 18 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 785	641
— v. Mian Din	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1070; 16 Cr. L. J. 826; 38 A. 47	1002
— v. Raghbir Singh	s. c. 22 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 775; 42 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.	375
— v. Ram Dayal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1058; 16 Cr. L. J. 812; 38 A. 40	828
— v. Rama Dhan Powar	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 898; 16 Cr. L. J. 740	340
— v. Ramjan Dadubhai	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 921; 16 Cr. L. J. 781	381
— v. Ramjilal	s. c. 21 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 38 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 787	643
— v. Sheodan	s. c. 24 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 784	384
— v. Tek Chand	s. c. 27 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 780	380
Fakir Chandra Gain v. Giribala Dassya	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 304	321
Fazal v. Hashmati	*Punjab Chief Court	914
Fazl Ahmad v. Jiwan Mal	s. c. 158 P. W. R. 1915	800
Fazl-ud-din v. Kharak Singh	s. c. 83 P. R. 1915; 141 P. W. R. 1915	230

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXI.
Firm of Mithomal Dwarka Das, In re Gaman v. Imam Bakhsh	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 65 s. c. 77 P. R. 1915; 164 P. W. R. 1915	50 205
Ganapathi Asari v. Sundaram Chetti Ganga Charan v. Manghi Prasad	*Madras High Court *Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	397 861
Gangadhar Karmakar v. Shekhar Basini Dasya	s. c. 23 C. L. J. 235	812
Gauri Rai v. Bhaggina	*Allahabad High Court	873
Ghansham Singh v. Mohan Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	486
Ghulam Abbas Khan v. Bibi Ummatul Fatima	s. c. 18 O. C. 188; 2 O. L. J. 636	748
Glancy v. Glancy	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 106	264
Gnanambal Ammal v. Veerasami Chetty	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 698	920
Gopikisan v. Kulpat	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 170	470
Goverdhan v. Maruti	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 183	872
Govindaraja Padayachi, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 811	827
Govindasami Pillai v. Ramasami Aiyar	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 483; 2 L. W. 1186	604
Govindasamy Raja v. Kuppammal	*Madras High Court	77
Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Albert Nelson Robinson	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 905; 84 L. J. P. C. 194 P. C.	684
Gudala Suriah v. Jamal Bee Bee	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 740	340
Gul Muhammad v. Tota Ram	s. c. 82 P. R. 1915; 172 P. W. R. 1915	221
Gulab Khan v. Chiragh Bibi	*Punjab Chief Court	909
Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah	s. c. 87 P. R. 1915; 181 P. W. R. 1915	463
Gurditta Mal v. Dhari Mal	*Punjab Chief Court	904
Gurprasad Singh v. Ram Samajh Singh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1101	876
Guzzu Payidayya v. Venkataru Venkata Reddi	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 864	913
Hakim Rai v. Peshawar Bank, Ltd.	s. c. 162 P. W. R. 1915	865
Hakim Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1055; 16 Cr. L. J. 810	826
Halai v. Chaturbhuj Gopalji	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 985	500
Har Narain v. Bishambhar Nath	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1129	907
Har Pal Singh v. Kandhiya Bux Misir	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	449
Har Prasad v. Mukand Lal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1107	882
Har Prosad Dass v. Bakshi Bindeswari Prosad Singh	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 860	30
Har Shyam v. Shyam Lal Sahu	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 227; 43 C. 69	22
Harbhagat v. Kala	*Punjab Chief Court	635
Hardeo Ram v. Parbati	*Punjab Chief Court	600
Hari v. Sri Thakurji Maharaj	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	889

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Hari v. Wani ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 122 ...	294
Hari Har Prasad v. Mata Prasad ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	864
Hazari Lal Sarkar v. Maharaj . Kumar Kshaunish Chandra Roy ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 290 ...	249
Hiralal v. Gopika ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 130 ...	58
Hori v. Thakurji Maharaj ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 10 Rev. ...	617
Husain Ali Mirza v. Muhammad Azim Khan ...	s. c. 18 O. C. 168 ...	728
Hussain Saib v. Hassan Saib ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1140; (1915) M. W. N. 880 ...	927
Icchamoni Dasi v. Prosunno Kumar Mondal ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	858
Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Co., Ltd. v. Wazir Singh ...	s. c. 182 P. W. R. 1915 ...	595
India General S. N. & R. Co. v. Lal Mohan Saha ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 241 ...	35
Indoor Subbarami Reddi v. Nelatur Sundara- raja Aiyangar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 450; (1915) M. W. N. 1021 ...	312
Ishar Dutt v. Musai Dube ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	886
Jagdamba Prasad v. Beharilal ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	979
Jamal v. Moolla Dawood Sons & Co. ...	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 105; 30 M. L. J. 73; 14 A. L. J. 89; 19 M. L. T. 80; 3 L. W. 181; 23 C. L. J. 137; (1916) M. W. N. 70 P. C. ...	949
Janki Prasad v. Lokender Shah ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	898
Jeremiah, G. G., In re ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1078; 29 M. L. J. 758; 16 Cr. L. J. 773; (1915) M. W. N. 1023 ...	373
Jhabban Lal v. Safdri Begam ...	s. c. 187 P. L. R. 1915; 125 P. W. R. 1915; 80 P. R. 1915 ...	722
Jiban Kuar v. Govind Das ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1109 F. B. ...	494
Jivram Dankarji v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 881; 16 Cr. L. J. 761 ...	361
Jawahir Mal v. Udai Ram ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	891
Jawala Singh v. Ladha ...	s. c. 173 P. L. R. 1915; 114 P. W. R. 1915 ...	272
Jowala Singh v. Talsa Ram ...	s. c. 78 P. R. 1915; 173 P. W. R. 1915 ...	212
Juggobundhu Saha v. Chand Mohan Saha ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 237 ...	33
Kali Mohan Tripura v. Birendra Kisore ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 309 ...	391
Kalianji Singji Bhai v. Bank of Madras ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 788; 3 L. W. 13; (1916) M. W. N. 12 ...	583
Kalianna Mudali v. Secretary of State ...	*Madras High Court ...	982
Kalka Prasad v. Emperor ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1059; 16 Cr. L. J. 813, 38 A. 42 ...	829

Names of cases reported.

Where reported.

Page of Ind. Cases
Vol. XXXVI.

Kallaru Ramalingam, In re ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 488; 2 L. W. 1135; 16 Cr. L. J. 797 ...	653
Kalyan Singh v. Hoti Lal ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	459
Kamta Pershad v. Industrial Bank of India Ltd. ...	s. c. 59 P. R. 1915; 139 P. W. R. 1915 ...	54
Kanahia v. Durga Prasad ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	479
Kanayaram v. Tirithsing ...	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 86 ...	37
Kanhia Lal v. Narain Singh ...	s. c. 11 P. W. R. 1916; 28 P. R. 1916 ...	700
Kannayya v. Ramanna ...	*Madras High Court ...	21
Karam Chand v. Ghulam Hassan ...	s. c. 74 P. R. 1915; 159 P. W. R. 1915 ...	199
Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali ...	s. c. 88 P. R. 1915; 180 P. W. R. 1915 ...	465
Karri Narasayya v. Thavvala Nageswara Rao ...	*Madras High Court ...	209
Karuppan Samban, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 759 ...	359
Karuturi Gopalan v. Karuturi Venkata Raghavulu ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 710 ...	574
Kashirao v. Ukarda ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 116 ...	290
Kasturchand Lakhmaji v. Jakhia Padia Patil ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 928 ...	388
Kasturi Aiyangar v. Ghulam Ghouse Sahib ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, Madras ...	791
Kathari Narasimha Raju v. Bhupati Raju ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 371; 2 L. W. 964; 29 M. L. J. 72; (1915) M. W. N. 819 ...	52
Kedar Nath v. Denobandhu Shaha ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 724; 42 C. 1043 ...	626
Keepilacheri Parkum v. Vannathankandiyil ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 999; 18 M. L. T. 383; 29 M. L. J. 784; (1915) M. W. N. 817 ...	74
Khagendra Nath v. Sonatan Guha ...	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 149 ...	987
Khetra Pal v. Mumtaz Begam ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1104 ...	879
Khub Lal Singh v. Ajodhya Misser ...	s. s. 22 C. L. J. 345 ...	433
Khushi v. Emperor ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 815 ...	831
Kidha Singh v. Emperor ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1111; 16 Cr. L. J. 817 ...	993
Kiloth Chozhan Oydal Kurup v. Kirathwa Illath Narayanan Nambudri ...	s. c. (1916) M. W. N. 11 ...	220
Kishen Singh v. Bhagwan Das ...	s. c. 89 P. R. 1915 ...	476
Kiswar Ali Khan v. Salim-un-nissa ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	496
Kolangorath Raman Nayar v. Kannothe ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 941; (1915) M. W. N. 793 ...	184
Kota China Mellayya v. Kannekanti Veriah ...	*Madras High Court ...	671
Koyatti Haji v. Koyaman Kutti Haji ...	*Madras High Court ...	446

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Krishen Doyal Gir v. Irshad Ali Khan ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 525 ...	965
Krishna Kumar Ray v. Chandra Kanta Mitra ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	807
Krishna Nath v. Muhammad Wafiz ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	789
Krishnacharya v. Anthakki ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 314; 18 M. L. T. 218; (1915) M. W. N. 726 ...	12
Krishnaswami Naidu v. Seethalakshmi Ammal ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 542 ...	803
Krishnaswami Pillai v. Mookayi Ammal ...	*Madras High Court ...	35
Kumar Krishna v. Amulya Charan ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 345 ...	616
Kunja Lal Banerjee v. Narsamba Debi ...	s. c. 42 C. 826; 20 C. W. N. 110 ...	6
Kunji Mal v. Sheo Balak Ram ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	453
Kunthalammal v. Suryaprakasaroja Mudaliar ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 682; 38 M. 1096 ...	494
Kuppusami Reddi v. Venkatalakshmi Ammal ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 434; (1915) M. W. N. 960 ...	855
Kura v. Madho ...	s. c. 68 P. R. 1915; 151 P. W. R. 1915 ...	159
Kusadhaj Bhakta v. Broja Mohan Bhakta ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1228 ...	13
Kyroon Bee v. Administrator-General of Madras ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 948 ...	38
La Aung v. Maung So ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court ...	885
Ladkabai v. Navivahu ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 783 ...	708
Lahanu Bai v. Harakehand ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 113 ...	285
Lahore Bank, Ltd. v. Kidar Nath ...	s. c. 4 P. W. R. 1916 ...	746
Lakshman Totaram v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 590; 16 Cr. L. J. 754 ...	354
Lelu v. Ram Chand ...	s. c. 174 P. W. R. 1915; 23 P. R. 1916 ...	294
Loke Nath Singh v. Gaju Singh ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 333; 20 C. W. N. 178 ...	426
Ma Min Kyin v. Maung Wa ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court ...	875
Ma Thin v. H. M. Yassim ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court ...	890
Machbia v. Emperor ...	s. c. 28 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 737 ...	337
Madan Mohan v. Sashi Bhusan ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1211 ...	549
Maddala Bagavannarayana v. Vadapalli Perumallacharyulu ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 231 ...	236
Madhava Bhumj Santo v. Ramachandra Mardaraj ...	*Madras High Court ...	468
Mahadev Raghunath v. Rama Tukaram ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 962 ...	305
Mahant Devi v. Madho ...	s. c. 84 P. R. 1915; 176 P. W. R. 1915 ...	237
Maharam Ali v. Ayesa Khatun ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1226 ...	562
Mahendra Nath Maity v. Girish Chandra Maity ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1287 ...	561
Mahesh v. Banwari Lal ...	s. c. 18 O. C. 162 ...	717
Mahomed Haji v. Abdul Rahman ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 989 ...	507
Mahomed Kanni v. Pattani Inayathulla Sahib ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1200; 18 M. L. T. 602; 16 Cr. L. J. 803 ...	819

Names of cases reported.

Where reported.

Page of Ind. Cas.
Vol. XXXI.

Mammu v. Muhammad Kutti	... *Madras High Court	385
Manavikraman v. Nilambur Thacharakavil	... *Madras High Court	579
Manikam Mudaliar v. Kummalanguttay Munu- swami	... s. c. 29 M. L. J. 694; 18 M. L. T. 500; (1915) M. W. N. 911	246
Manilal Mangalji v. Emperor	... s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1080; 16 Cr. L. J. 827	1003
Maniruddin v. Jnanendra Nath	... s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1115	707
Marji Jeta v. Honnavar Puthu Hari Pal	... s. c. 18 M. L. T. 457	334
Mata Din Singh v. Dwarka Kurmi	... *Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces	447
Mathura Prasad v. Karim Baksh	... s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1094	805
Mati Lal Poddar v. Judhistir Das	... s. c. 22 C. L. J. 254; 20 C. W. N. 310	181
Maung Po Saing v. Maung San Min	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	948
Maung Shwe Paw v. Ma Pan Zi	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	332
Maung Ye Nan O v. Aung Myat San	... s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 167	512
Maya Devi v. Ram Chand	... s. c. 177 P. W. R. 1915; 20 P. R. 1916	186
Mayandi Chettiar v. Tirumalai Aiyangar	... *Madras High Court	986
Meghraj v. Johnson	... s. c. 11 N. L. R. 189	880
Messrs. Augustus Brothers v. M. A. Fernandez	... s. c. 2 L. W. 890; 29 M. L. J. 474, 18 M. L. T. 377; (1915) M. W. N. 765	59
Meyer, M. v. Mrs. C. Lea	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	888
Mg Tha Hla v. Mokhlas	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	324
Mi Amin Nissa v. Mi Sura Bi	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	892
Mi Chan Mya v. Ngwe Yon	... s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 74	94
Mi Nyin Me Tha v. Mi Nyo Wun Me	... *Lower Burma Chief Court	896
Mi Sa U v. Nga Meik	... s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 81	103
Miharban Singh v. Emperor	... s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1046; 16 Cr. L. J. 805	821
Minnie Wallace v. Arthur Wallace	... s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 948	331
Miran Bakhsh v. Mehr Bibi	... s. c. 6 P. W. R. 1916	693
Mohes Chandra Guha v. Rajani Kanta Dutt	... s. c. 22 C. L. J. 235	29
Mohiuddin v. Pirthichand Lal	... s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1159	664
Moideen Saiba v. Gopala Kudwa	... *Madras High Court	454
Mokashadayini Dassi v. Karnadhar Mandal	... s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1108	702
Motilal v. Ganga Bai	... s. c. 11 N. L. R. 177	867
Muchirazu Ramachandra Row v. Secretary of State	... *Madras High Court	310
Muhammad Bakhsh v. Muhammad	... s. c. 90 P. R. 1915; 170 P. W. R. 1915	533
Muhammad Hayat v. Muhammad Ali	... s. c. 94 P. R. 1915	489
Muhammad Idris v. Motasaddi Mian	... *Calcutta High Court	743

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Muhammad Ishaq Khan v. Muhammad Islam Ullah Khan ...	s. c. 2 P. R. 1916; 10 P. W. R. 1916 ...	698
Muhiuddin Rowther v. Rangachariar ...	*Madras High Court ...	913
Muin-ud-din v. Muhammad Ahmad ...	s. c. 9 P. W. R. 1916 ...	782
Mukha v. Qabza ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	553
Mukka Muthiriyar, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 737 ...	337
Mukka Muthiriar, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 743 ...	343
Municipal Committee of Saugor v. Nilkanth ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 132 ...	62
Munni Koer v. Madan Gopal ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1084 ...	792
Munshi Lal v. Mangat Rai ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	706
Murid v. Kashia ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	855
Murugesu Chetti v. Arumuga Chetti ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1205; 18 M. L. T. 601 ...	923
Murugesu Mudali v. Sama Goundan ...	*Madras High Court ...	102
Murugesu Mudaly v. Ramasawmi Chetty ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 495; (1916) M. W. N. 126 ...	200
Muthan v. Puniakoti Mudaliar ...	*Madras High Court ...	18
Muthu Goundan v. Anantha Goundan ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 685; 18 M. L. T. 476; 2 L. W. 1107; (1916) M. W. N. 113 ...	528
Muthumada Nadan, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 747 ...	347
Nabendra Kishore Roy v. Rahima Banu ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1015 ...	695
Nageshar Prasad v. Mohan ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	482
Naina Pillai Maracayar v. Arumuga Mudaly ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1129 ...	387
Nallagonda Pedda v. Asupallee Budda Reddy ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 912; 18 M. L. T. 343; (1915) M. W. N. 815 ...	55
Narain v. Behari ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 126 ...	307
Narain Das v. Harakh Narain ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	797
Narain Das v. Ralli Brothers ...	s. c. 61 P. R. 1915; 136 P. W. R. 1915 ...	45
Narasamma Hegadthi v. Billa Kesu Pujari ...	s. c. 25 M. L. J. 637 ...	543
Narasammal v. Secretary of State ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 524; 2 L. W. 1124; (1916) M. W. N. 122 ...	404
Narayan Singh v. Aiyasami Reddi ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 728 ...	188
Narayanaswami Naidu Garu v. Panualla Ammayya Sastrulu ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 398; 2 L. W. 1031; 29 M. L. J. 572 ...	104
Narayanaswamy Aiyar v. Venkataramana Aiyar ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 607; 18 M. L. T. 426; 2 L. W. 1037; (1915) M. W. N. 921 F. B. ...	326
Narendra Nath v. Stephenson ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 129 ...	618
Narpat Rai v. Devi Das ...	s. c. 85 P. R. 1915 ...	634
Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh ...	s. c. 95 P. R. 1915; 175 P. W. R. 1915 ...	493

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Nathar Hussain Meera v. Deputy Collector, Usilampati ...	*Madras High Court ...	259
Nathu Rewa v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1074; 16 Cr. L. J. 824 ...	1000
Naunihal Singh v. Chabbi ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	458
Navanna Vena Rama Chetty v. Arunachalam Chettiar ...	18 M. L. T. 349; 29 M. L. J. 724; (1915) M. W. N. 801 ...	98
Nawab Singh v. Hukum Singh ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	498
Nga Lu Daw v. Mi Mo Yi ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 66 ...	87
Nga Twe v. Mi Nga Ba ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 80 ...	101
Nibal Singh v. Mal Singh ...	s. c. 160 P. W. R. 1915 ...	862
Nikunja Rani v. Secretary of State ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 375; 20 C. W. N. 504 ...	460
Nirbhai Sinha v. Tulsi Ram ...	*Allahabad High Court ...	804
Nirman Singh v. Bahadur Singh ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	445
Nur Ali v. Bahawal ...	*Punjab Chief Court ...	286
Nur Khatun v. Sumar Sawayo ...	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 61 ...	7
O. A. M. K. Chetty Firm v. K. P. Chetty Firm ...	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 112 ...	271
Pampalli Subbareddi v. Chaduboyigari Kamal Saib ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 814 ...	830
Panchumoni Dassi v. Chandra Kumar Ghose ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 298 ...	319
Pandharinath Pundlik Revankar, In re ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 922; 16 Cr. L. J. 723 ...	383
Para Koothan v. Para Kulla Vandu ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 760 ...	720
Parameswara Nambudri, In re ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 322; 16 Cr. L. J. 161 ...	161
Paras Ram v. Sheobaran Singh ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	912
Partab Bahadur Singh v. Abdus Salam ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	857
Partapi v. Hazara Singh ...	*Punjab Chief Court ...	794
Parvatibai Shankar v. Bhagwant Pandharinath Pathak ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 646; 39 B. 593 ...	280
Patiram Banerjee v. Kankinarra Co. Ltd. ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 623; 42 C. 1050 ...	607
Peetikayilakath Mahmmad Haji v. Alam Ibran Haji ...	*Madras High Court ...	393
Periakaruppan Chettiar v. Manikka Vachaga Desika ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1055 ...	293
Pirbhu v. Wazirbi ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 186 ...	877
Prag Das Bhargava v. Daulat Ram ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1067; 16 Cr. L. J. 825 ...	1001

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Prasanna Kumar Dutt Purkayastha v. Jananendra Kumar Dutta ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	801
Prithmi Chand v. Safa Chand ...	s. c. 75 P. R. 1915; 157 P. W. R. 1915 ...	202
Promatha Chakravarti Nath v. Mohini Mohan Sen ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1200 ...	573
Puchalapalli Adiseshadri v. Mungamur Sivaramayya ...	*Madras High Court ...	320
Radha Gobinda v. Nabadwip Chandra Pal ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1027 ...	10
Rafi-ud-Din v. Secretary of State for India ...	s. c. 65 P. R. 1915; 144 P. W. R. 1915 ...	76
Raghavachariar v. Anantha Reddi ...	*Madras High Court ...	911
Raghunath Jha v. Birjnandon Singh ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	444
Rahman Bi v. Fatima Bibi ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 430 ...	545
Raja of Arakal v. Churia Kunhi Kannan ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 632 ...	482
Raja of Kalahasti v. Swarnam Kamakshamma ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 535 ...	214
Raja of Pithapuram v. Jonnalagodda Venkatasubba Row ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 348; (1915) M. W. N. 813 ...	93
Rajam Aiyar v. Anantharatnam Aiyar ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 669; 18 M. L. T. 475; (1916) M. W. N. 127 ...	318
Rajaram Nandlal v. Abdul Rahim ...	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 77 ...	450
Ram Adin v. Munshi Ram ...	s. c. 76 P. R. 1915; 154 P. W. R. 1915 ...	209
Ram Bharos v. Nazir Husain ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	815
Ram Chunder Banka v. Rawatmull ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1172 ...	672
Ram Nath Tewari v. Musammal Genda ...	*Allahabad High Court. ...	564
Ram Sarup v. Jaswant Rai ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1114 ...	906
Ram Ugrah Pande v. Achraj Nath Pande ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1115 ...	899
Ramachandra Mardaraja Deo v. Dukko Podhano ...	*Madras High Court ...	852
Ramakrishna Pillai v. Muthuperumal Pillai ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 663 ...	924
Ramalingam Pillai v. Raja of Ramnad ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 736 ...	176
Ramamani v. Kanakasabai ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 813 ...	829
Raman Chetty v. A. V. P. Firm ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court ...	884
Raman Chetty v. Nagappa Chetty ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1024 ...	285
Ramasamy Chetty v. Karuppan Chetty ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 551 ...	216
Ramasamy Naidu, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 809 ...	825
Ramchandra Dinkar v. Krishnaji Sakharam ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 967 ...	311
Ramkrishna Trimbak v. Narayan Shivrao Aras ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 955 ...	301
Ramnath Gagoi v. Pitambar Deb ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 339 ...	430
Rangappa Ningappa Immadi v. Venkatbhat Lingambhat Joshi ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 950 ...	448
Rangasami Padayachi, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 786 ...	642
Ratnam v. Kolandai Ramasamy Chetty ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1115 ...	536

Names of cases reported.

Where reported.

Page of Ind. Cas.
Vol. XXXI.

Rebala Babu Reddi v. Dodla Rami Reddi ...	*Madras High Court ...	978
Robert Skinner v. Mrs. James Skinner ...	s. c. 91 P. R. 1915 ...	537
Ross v. Secretary of State ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 280 ...	224
Rukmani Ammal v. Advocate-General of Madras ...	s. c. (1916) M. W. N. 10 ...	908
Rup Lal v. Emperor ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 801 ...	817
Rustom v. Emperor ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 801; 38 A. 29 ...	817
Sadagopachariar v. Rama Tirumala Chariar ...	*Madras High Court ...	25
Safer Ali Mandal v. Golam Mandal ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1236; 22 C. L. J. 249 ...	177
Sahasram v. Sheonath ...	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 124 ...	303
Sahib Zadi v. Allah Bakhsh & Co. ...	s. c. 161 P. W. R. 1915 ...	863
Sailabala Debi v. Nritya Gopal Sen Poddar ...	*Calcutta High Court ...	859
Sakhawat Ali Shah v. Muhammad Abdul Karim Khan ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1098 ...	809
Sambasiva Aiyar v. Muhamad Hussain ...	*Madras High Court ...	917
Sami Sah v. Parthasarathy Chetty ...	*Madras High Court ...	739
Samu Pathan v. Chidambara Odayan ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 454; 2 L. W. 918; (1916) M. W. N. 7 ...	179
Sankar Rangayya v. Sankar Ramayya ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 521; 18 M. L. T. 381; 16 Cr. L. J. 750 ...	350
Sankaralinga Moopnar v. Subramania Pillai ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 514 ...	273
Sankaravelu Pillai v. Muthusami Pillai ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 497; 29 M. L. J. 779; (1915) M. W. N. 956 ...	260
Satis Chandra Ghose v. Rameswari Dasi ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 409 ...	894
Sawan Mal v. Sahib Dyal ...	s. c. 81 P. R. 1915; 178 P. W. R. 1915 ...	254
Secretary of State v. Bapuji Mahadev ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 641; 39 B. 572 ...	277
Secretary of State v. Cherukara Narayanan-unni Pisharodi ...	*Madras High Court ...	799
Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 504; 2 L. W. 1175; (1915) M. W. N. 962 ...	590
Seshaiyangar v. Venkatachalam Chettiar ...	*Madras High Court ...	15
Sham Sundar v. Abdul Ahad ...	s. c. 153 P. W. R. 1915 ...	808
Shankar Ramdas v. Emperor ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 890; 16 Cr. L. J. 771 ...	371
Shanmugham Asari v. Siyid Nathadu Sahib ...	*Madras High Court ...	457
Sheo Mangal Singh v. Chedu ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1137 ...	914
Sheonandan v. Emperor ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 791 ...	647
Sher Singh v. Salig ...	s. c. 149 P. W. R. 1915; 72 P. R. 1915 ...	241
Shiva Tahal Ahir v. Jawahir Lal ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	794
Shunmugam Chetty v. Subba Reddi ...	*Madras High Court ...	1
Sikandar v. Emperor ...	s. c. 39 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 20 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 782 ...	382

Names of cases reported.	Where reported.	Page of Ind. Cas. Vol. XXXI.
Silu Peda Yelligadu v. Surya Rao Bahadur Zamindar Garu ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1122; 18 M. L. T. 494; 29 M. L. J. 693; (1916) M. W. N. 119 ...	542
Singaravelu Pillai v. Santhana Krishna Mudaliar ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 643 ...	9
Sital Prasad v. Lal Bahadur ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1122 ...	902
Siyarama Aiyar v. Alagappa Chetty ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 946; (1915) M. W. N. 845 ...	211
Skinner v. Badri Krishen ...	s. c. 98 P. R. 1915; 179 P. W. R. 1915 ...	196
Sobhanadri Appa Row v. Govindaraju Seetaramiah ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1066 ...	305
Sohan Lal v. Emperor ...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1131; 16 Cr. L. J. 795 ...	651
Sohna v. Khawaja ...	s. c. 4 P. R. 1915 Rev. ...	238
Somasukdaram Chetty v. Rangasami Iyengar ...	*Madras High Court ...	816
Sri Ram v. Chhabbu Lal ...	s. c. 3 P. R. 1916 ...	689
Subba Aiyar, T. S. v. Subba Aiyar Su. ...	*Madras High Court ...	250
Subba Reddi v. Alagammal ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 545 ...	674
Subbanna v. Secretary of State ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 915 ...	267
Subbaraya Pillai, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 772 ...	372
Subbier v. Abboy Naidu ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 671; 18 M. L. T. 469; 2 L. W. 1099 ...	502
Subramania Aiyar v. Sellammal ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1057; 18 M. L. T. 450; (1915) M. W. N. 941; 20 M. L. J. 317 ...	296
Subramania Aiyar v. Vaithinatha Aiyar ...	s. c. 38 M. 682 ...	198
Subramania Iyer v. Venkataramier ...	*Madras High Court ...	4
Sutramania Othuvai v. Munusamiya Pillai ...	*Madras High Court ...	869
Subramanian Chetty v. Ramaswami Chetty ...	*Madras High Court ...	499
Subraya Acharya v. Kesava Upadhaya ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 846 ...	206
Sudalaimuthu Chettiar v. Enan Samban ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 767 ...	367
Sudamdih Coal Co. Ltd. v. Empire Coal Co. Ltd. ...	s. c. 42 C. 942 ...	581
Sudhakar Raut v. Sadasiv Jhatap Singh ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1113 ...	705
Sukhlal Chundermull v. Eastern Bank, Ltd. ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 41; 42 C. 735 ...	238
Sukramania Pillai v. Kuppammal ...	*Madras High Court ...	106
Snkumari Ghosh v. Gopi Mohan Goswami ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 880 ...	662
Sulfalla Sahib v. Vajihuddin Sahib ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1018; (1915) M. W. N. 876 ...	281
Sundar Singh v. Mastumant Gurdevi ...	s. c. 163 P. W. R. 1915 ...	27
Sundaram Iyer v. Kulathu Aiyer ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 867; 18 M. L. T. 316; 29 M. L. J. 505; (1915) M. W. N. 731 ...	81

Names of cases reported.

Where reported.

Page of Ind. Cas.
Vol. XXXI.

Sures Chandra Palit v. Lalit Mohan Dutta ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 316; 20 C. W. N. 463 ...	405
Suressur Misser v. Mohesh Rani Mesrain ...	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 142 ...	983
Tansey v. Rivett ...	s. c. 64 P. R. 1915; 142 P. W. R. 1915 ...	73
Tara Devi v. Dhanpat Rai ...	s. c. 150 P. W. R. 1915 ...	797
Tekait Ganesh Narain v. Protap Udai Nath ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 998; 23 C. L. J. 118; 43 C. 136 ...	691
Thiruvannamalai Servai v. Varadarajulu Naidu ...	*Madras High Court ...	304
Thotakura Govindu v. Pepakayala Mallayya ...	*Madras High Court ...	678
Tirumalanadham Surayya v. Tirumalanadham Bapirazu ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 459; (1916) M. W. N. 121 ...	335
Tufel Muhammad v. Shahab Din ...	s. c. 67 P. R. 1915; 148 P. W. R. 1915 ...	85
Udai Bhawan Singh v. Manager, Kayastha Pathshala ...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces ...	884
Upadhayayulu Yegnanarayana v. Kottalanka Makayya ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 914 ...	478
Vasudevapatta Joshi v. Narayanapani Grahi ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 517; (1916) M. W. N. 112 ...	853
Veeraraghava v. Krishnaswami ...	*Madras High Court ...	269
Velammal v. Lakshmu Ammal ...	*Madras High Court ...	814
Velayudham Pillai v. Perumal Naicker ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1210 ...	811
Velayutham Pillai v. Subbaroya Pillai ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 989; 18 M. L. T. 424; (1915) M. W. N. 873 ...	398
Vellayam Chetty v. Kulandaveluappa Chetty ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 749 ...	783
Velyuda Kone v. Narayana Kone ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1208; 16 Cr. L. J. 789 ...	645
Venkata Simhadri Jagapatiraju v. Sri Lakshmi Narusimha Roopa ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 639; 2 L. W. 1046; 18 M. L. T. 464 ...	255
Venkata Subbiah Chetty v. Subba Naidu ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 977; 18 M. L. T. 533; (1915) M. W. N. 822 ...	152
Venkatarama Aiyar v. Rajagopala Iyer ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 786 ...	704
Venkatasubbier v. Muthusami Aiyar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 521; (1916) M. W. N. 123 ...	487
Venugopal Mudaly, In re ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 753 ...	353
Vikrama Deo Garu v. Maharaja of Jeypore ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 387; (1916) M. W. N. 122 ...	272
Village Co-operative Bank v. Kali Din ...	s. c. 18 O. C. 157 ...	724
Vir Singh v. Kala Singh ...	s. c. 3 P. R. 1915 Rev. ...	109
Virchand Varan Shet v. JaekKondu Kasam Atar ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 685; 39 B. 723 ...	180
Vishindas Wadhuram v. Hotomal Ditomal ...	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 90 ...	479

Names of cases reported.

Where reported.

Page of Ind. Cas.
Vol. XXXI.

Viswanathaswami Naiker v. Kamulu Ammal...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 968; 2 L. W. 1214	833
Viyapuri v. Sonamma Boi Ammani ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 645; 2 L. W. 1080; 18 M. L. T. 436; (1915) M. W. N. 927 F. B.	412
Vythinatha Aiyar v. Vaithilinga Modaliar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 374; 2 L. W. 960; (1915) M. W. N. 847	206
Wasappa Timappa Sonagar v. Secretary of State ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 979	498
Whitton, N. C. v. Mammad Maistry ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1069; 18 M. L. T. 511; (1916) M. W. N. 2; 16 Cr. L. J. 777	377
William Graham v. Phanindra Nath Mitter ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1038	41
Yoo Joo Sein v. Maung Ba Tin ...	*Lower Burma Chief Court	893

11

Comparative Table

Cases Reported in Volume XXXI of Indian Cases, 1915.

Cases marked with an asterisk (*) have not yet been reported elsewhere.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
1	Shunmugam Chetty v. Subba Reddi	*Madras High Court.
4	Subramania Iyer v. Venkataramier	*Madras High Court.
5	Bhanya v. Naka	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 160.
6	Kunja Lal Banerji v. Narsamba Debi	s. c. 42 C. 826; 20 C. W. N. 110.
7	Nur Khatun v. Sumar Sawayo	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 61.
9	Singaravelu Pillai v. Santhana Krishna Mudaliar	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 643.
10	Radha Gobinda v. Nabadwipchandra Pal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1027.
12	Krishnacharya v. Anthakki	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 314; 18 M. L. T. 218; (1915) M. W. N. 726.
13	Kusadhaj Bhakta v. Broja Mohan Bhakta	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1228.
15	Seshaiyangar v. Venkatachalam Chettiar	*Madras High Court.
16	Dina Nath Nag v. Sashi Mohan Dey	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 219.
18	Muthan v. Puniakoti Mudaliar	*Madras High Court.
19	Abdul Gani v. Makbul Ali	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 223; 42 C. 745; 20 C. W. N. 185.
21	Kannayya v. Ramanna	*Madras High Court.
22	Har Shyam v. Shyam Lal Sabu	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 227; 43 C. 69.
25	Sadagopachariar v. Rama Tirumala Chariar	*Madras High Court.
26	Alejan Bibi v. Raham Ali	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 232.
27	Sundar Singh v. Musammam Gurdevi	s. c. 163 P. W. R. 1915.
29	Mohes Chandra Guha v. Rajani Kanta Dutt	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 235.
30	Har Prosad Das v. Bakshi Bindeswari Prosad Singh	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 860.
33	Juggobundhu Saha v. Chand Mohan Saha	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 237.
35	Krishnaswami Pillai v. Mookayi Ammal	*Madras High Court.
35	India General S. N. & R. Co. v. Lal Mohan Saha	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 241.
37	Kanayaram v. Tirithsing	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 86.
38	Kyroon Bee v. Administrator-General of Madras	s. c. 2 L. W. 948.
41	William Graham v. Phanindra Nath Mitter	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1038.
45	Narain Das v. Ralli Brothers	s. c. 61 P. R. 1915; 136 P. W. R. 1915.
46	Ayya Raghunatha v. Thirumalai Echambadi	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 366; 2 L. W. 992; (1915) M. W. N. 916.
50	Firm of Mithomal Dwarka Das, In re	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 65.
52	Kathari Narasimha Raju v. Bhupati Raju	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 371; 2 L. W. 964; 29 M. L. J. 721; (1915) M. W. N. 819.
54	Kamta Pershad v. Industrial Bank of India, Ltd.	s. c. 59 P. R. 1915; 139 P. W. R. 1915.
55	Nallagonda Pedda v. Asupalice Budda Reddy	s. c. 2 L. W. 912; 18 M. L. T. 343; (1915) M. W. N. 815.
58	Hiralal v. Gopika	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 130.
59	Messrs. Augustus Brothers v. Fernandez	s. c. 2 L. W. 890; 29 M. L. J. 474; 18 M. L. T. 377; (1915) M. W. N. 765.
62	Municipal Committee of Saugor v. Nilkanth	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 132.
73	Tansey v. Rivett	s. c. 64 P. R. 1915; 142 P. W. R. 1915.
74	Keepilacheri Parkum v. Vennathankandiyil	s. c. 2 L. W. 999; 18 M. L. T. 383; 29 M. L. J. 784; (1915) M. W. N. 817.
76	Rafi-ud-Din v. Secretary of State for India	s. c. 65 P. R. 1915; 144 P. W. R. 1915.
77	Govindasamy Raja v. Kuppammal	*Madras High Court.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
80	Ahmad Din Anis-ul-Rahman v. Atlas Trading Co. ...	s. c. 66 P. R. 1915; 146 P. W. R. 1915.
81	Sundaram Iyer v. Kulathu Aiyer ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 867; 18 M. L. T. 316; 29 M. L. J. 505; (1915) M. W. N. 731.
86	Tufel Muhammad v. Shahab Din ...	s. c. 67 P. R. 1915; 148 P. W. R. 1915.
87	Bommaraju Venkata Perumal v. Subramanya Nayani Varu ...	*Madras High Court.
87	Nga Lu Daw v. Mi Mo Yi ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 66.
93	Raja of Pithapuram v. Jonnalagodda Venkatasubba Row ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 348; (1915) M. W. N. 813.
94	Mi Chan Mya v. Ngwe Yen ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 74.
98	Navanna Vena Rama Chetty v. Arunachalam Chettiar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 349; 29 M. L. J. 724; (1915) M. W. N. 801.
101	Nga Twe v. Nga Ba ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 80.
102	Murugesu Mudali v. Sama Goundan ...	*Madras High Court.
103	Mi Sa U v. Nga Meik ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 81.
104	Narayanawami Naidu Garu v. Pannala Ammayya Sastrulu ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 398; 2 L. W. 1031; 29 M. L. J. 572.
106	Sukramania Pillai v. Kuppammal ...	*Madras High Court.
106	Advocate-General v. Jimabai ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 799.
152	Venkata Subbiah Chetty v. Subba Naidu ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 977; 18 M. L. T. 533; (1915) M. W. N. 822.
159	Kura v. Madho ...	s. c. 68 P. R. 1915; 151 P. W. R. 1915.
161	Parameswara Nambudri, In re ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 327; 16 Cr. L. J. 131.
164	Emperor v. Dwijendra Chandra ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 724.
175	Bapu Naidu, In re ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 958; 16 Cr. L. J. 735.
176	Ramalingam Pillai v. Raja of Rannuad ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 736.
176	Chemikkala Chinna Reddi v. Emperor ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 554; 16 Cr. L. J. 736.
177	Safer Ali Mandal v. Golam Mandal ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1236; 22 C. L. J. 249.
179	Samu Pathan v. Chidambara Odayan ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 454; 2 L. W. 918; (1916) M. W. N. 7.
180	Virchand Vajekaran Shet v. Kondu Kasam Atar ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 685; 39 B. 729.
181	Mati Lal Poddar v. Judhistir Das ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 254; 20 C. W. N. 310.
184	Kolangorath Raman Nair v. Kannoob ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 941; (1915) M. W. N. 793.
186	Maya Devi v. Ram Chand ...	s. c. 177 P. W. R. 1915; 20 P. R. 1916.
188	Narayan Singh v. Aiyasami Reddi ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 723.
189	Atrabannessa Bibi v. Safatullah Mia ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 259.
191	Bhamba Ram v. Allah Bakhsh ...	s. c. 69 P. R. 1915; 156 P. W. R. 1915.
192	Easwara Aiyar v. Govindarajulu Naidu ...	*Madras High Court.
196	Skianer v. Badri Krishen ...	s. c. 98 P. R. 1915; 179 P. W. R. 1915.
198	Subramania Aiyar v. Vaithinatha Aiyar ...	s. c. 38 M. 682.
199	Karm Chand v. Ghulam Hassan ...	s. c. 74 P. R. 1915; 159 P. W. R. 1915.
200	Murugesu Mudali v. Ramasawmi Chetty ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 495; (1916) M. W. N. 126.
202	Prithmi Chand v. Safa Chand ...	s. c. 75 P. R. 1915; 157 P. W. R. 1915.
205	Gaman v. Imam Bakhsh ...	s. c. 77 P. R. 1915; 164 P. W. R. 1915.
206	Subraya Acharya v. Kesava Upadhaya ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 846.
206	Vythinatha Aiyar v. Vaithilinga Mudaliar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 374; 2 L. W. 960; (1915) M. W. N. 847.
209	Karri Narasayya v. Thavala Nageswara Rao ...	*Madras High Court.
209	Ram Adin v. Munshi Ram ...	s. c. 76 P. R. 1915; 154 P. W. R. 1915.
211	Sivarama Aiyar v. Alagappa Chetty ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 946; (1915) M. W. N. 845.
212	Jowala Singh v. Tulsa Ram ...	s. c. 78 P. R. 1915; 173 P. W. R. 1915.
214	Rajah of Kalahasti v. Swarnam Kamakshamma ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 535.
216	Alliance Bank of Simla, Ltd. v. Amritsar Bank ...	s. c. 79 P. R. 1915; 171 P. W. R. 1915.
216	Ramasamy Chetty v. Karuppan Chetty ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 551.
220	Kiloth Chozhan Oyda Kurup v. Illath Narayanan Nambudri ...	s. c. (1916) M. W. N. 11.
221	Gul Muhammad v. Tota Ram ...	s. c. 82 P. R. 1915; 172 P. W. R. 1915.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
224	Ross v. Secretary of State	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 280.
230	Fazl-ud-din v. Kharak Singh	s. c. 83 P. R. 1915; 141 P. W. R. 1915.
234	Arunachellam Chettiar v. Lakshmana Aiyar	s. c. 2 L. W. 1002; 18 M. L. T. 385; 29 M. L. J. 569; (1915) M. W. N. 850.
236	Maddala Bagavannarayana v. Vadapalli Peramallacharyulu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 231.
237	Mahant Devi v. Madho	s. c. 84 P. R. 1915; 176 P. W. R. 1915.
238	Sukhlal Chundermull v. Eastern Bank, Ltd.	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 41; 42 C. 735.
238	Sohna v. Khawaja	s. c. 4 P. R. 1915 Rev.
240	Dharmaraja Iyer v. Sreenivasa Mudaliar	s. c. 2 L. W. 1074; 29 M. L. J. 708; 18 M. L. T. 486.
241	Sher Singh v. Salig	s. c. 72 P. R. 1915; 149 P. W. R. 1915.
242	Brojendra Kishore Roy v. Bharat Chandra Roy	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 283; 20 C. W. N. 481.
249	Manikam Mudaliar v. Kummalanguttay Munuswami	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 694; 18 M. L. T. 500; (1915) M. W. N. 911.
249	Hazari Lal Sarkar v. Maharaj Kumar Kshauniah Chandra Roy	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 290.
250	Subba Aiyar T. S. v. Subba Aiyar Sa.	*Madras High Court.
254	Sawan Mal v. Sahib Diyal	s. c. 81 P. R. 1915; 178 P. W. R. 1915.
255	Venkata Simhadri Jagupatiraju v. Sri Lakshmi Narusimha Roopa	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 639; 2 L. W. 1046; 18 M. L. T. 464.
259	Nathar Hussian Meera v. Deputy Collector, Usilampati	*Madras High Court.
260	Sankaravelu Pillai v. Muthusami Pillai	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 497; (1915) M. W. N. 956; 29 M. L. J. 779.
263	Antoni Juas Prabhu v. Ramakrishnaayya	s. c. 2 L. W. 1034.
264	Glaney v. Glaney	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 106.
267	Subbanna v. Secretary of State	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 915.
269	Veeraraghava v. Krishnaswami	*Madras High Court.
271	O. A. M. K. Chetty Firm v. K. P. Chetty Firm	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 112.
272	Vikrama Deo Garu v. Maharaja of Jeypore	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 387; (1916) M. W. N. 112.
272	Jawala Singh v. Ladha	s. c. 173 P. L. R. 1915; 114 P. W. R. 1915.
273	Sankaralinga Moopana v. Subramania Pillai	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 514.
277	Secretary of State v. Bapuji Mahadev	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 641; 39 B. 572.
279	Annamalai Chetty v. Poosari Suppia	s. c. 2 L. W. 1016; (1916) M. W. N. 5.
280	Parvatibai Shankar v. Bhagwant Pandharinath Pathak	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 646; 39 B. 593.
281	Sulfalla Sahib v. Vajihuddin Sahib	s. c. 2 L. W. 1018; (1915) M. W. N. 876.
285	Raman Chetty v. Nagappa Chetty	s. c. 2 L. W. 1024.
285	Lahanu Bai v. Harakehand	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 113.
287	Budha Khan v. Mohammad	s. c. 133 P. W. R. 1915.
290	Kashirao v. Ukarda	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 116.
293	Periakaruppan Chettiar v. Manikka Vachaga Desika	s. c. 2 L. W. 1055.
294	Hari v. Wanu	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 122.
294	Lelu v. Ram Chand	s. c. 174 P. W. R. 1915; 23 P. R. 1916.
296	Subramania Aiyar v. Sellammal	s. c. 2 L. W. 1057; 18 M. L. T. 450; (1915) M. W. N. 941; 30 M. L. J. 317.
301	Ramkrishna Trimbak v. Narayan Shivraro Aras	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 955.
303	Sahasram v. Sheonath	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 124.
304	Thiruvannamalai Servai v. Varadarajulu Naidu	*Madras High Court.
305	Sobhanadri Appa Row v. Govindaraju Seetaramiah	s. c. 2 L. W. 1066.
305	Mahadev Raghunath v. Rama Tukaram	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 962.
307	Chidipatu Somayya, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1067.
307	Narain v. Behari	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 126.
310	Muchirazu Ramachandra Row v. Secretary of State	*Madras High Court.
311	Ramchandra Dinkar v. Krishnaji Sakhamam	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 967.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
312	Indoor Subbarami Reddi v. Nelatur Sundararaja Aiyangar	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 460; (1915) M. W. N. 1021.
315	Ahmed Musaji Saleji v. Mamooji Musaji	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 293.
317	Chinniah Chetty v. Tikkan Ramaswami Chetty	*Madras High Court.
318	Rajam Aiyar v. Anantharatnam Aiyar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 699; 18 M. L. T. 475; (1916) M. W. N. 127.
319	Panchumoni Dassi v. Chandra Kumar Ghose	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 298.
320	Puchalapalli Adishesadri v. Mungamur Sivaramayya	*Madras High Court.
321	Fakir Chandra Gain v. Giribala Dassya	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 304.
322	Draviam Pillai v. Cruz Fernandez	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 704; 18 M. L. T. 518.
324	Mg Tha Hla v. Mokhlis	*Lower Burma Chief Court.
326	Narayanaswamy Aiyar v. Venkataramana Aiyar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 607; 18 M. L. T. 426; 2 L. W. 1037; (1915) M. W. N. 921 F. B.
331	Minnie Wallace v. Arthur Wallace	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 948.
332	Maung Shwe Paw v. Ma Pan Zi	*Lower Burma Chief Court.
334	Marji Jeta v. Honnavar Puthu Hari Pal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 457.
335	Tirumalanadham Surayya v. Tirumalanadham Bapirazu	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 459; (1915) M. W. N. 121.
337	Machhia v. Emperor	s. c. 28 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 737.
337	Mukka Muthiriyar, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 737.
338	Emperor v. Bhinnappa Ulvappa	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 895; 16 Cr. L. J. 738.
340	Gudala Suriah v. Jamal Bee Bee	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 740.
340	Emperor v. Rasoia Dhan Powar	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 898; 16 Cr. L. J. 740.
343	Mukka Muthiriar, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 743.
345	Emperor v. Hari Bijal	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 906; 16 Cr. L. J. 745.
347	Muthumada Nadan, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 747.
347	Emperor v. Bai Mahalaxmi	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 910; 16 Cr. L. J. 747.
350	Sankar Rangayya v. Sankar Ramayya	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 521; 18 M. L. T. 381; 16 Cr. L. J. 750.
352	Baban Daud v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 918; 16 Cr. L. J. 752.
353	Venugopal Mudaly, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 753.
354	Lakshman Totaram v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 590; 16 Cr. L. J. 754.
359	Karuppan Samban, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 759.
361	Jivram Dankarji v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 881; 16 Cr. L. J. 761.
364	N. M. Dey v. Emperor	s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 244; 16 Cr. L. J. 764.
365	Basapa Ningapa v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 892; 16 Cr. L. J. 765.
367	Sudalamuthu Chettiar v. Enan Samban	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 767.
371	Shankar Ramdas v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 890; 16 Cr. L. J. 771.
372	Subbaraya Pillai, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 772.
372	Bechar Anop v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 888; 16 Cr. L. J. 772.
373	G. G. Jeremiah, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1078; 29 M. L. J. 758; 16 Cr. L. J. 773; (1915) M. W. N. 1023.
375	Emperor v. Raghibir Singh	s. c. 22 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 42 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 775.
377	N. C. Whittton v. Mammad Maistry	s. c. 2 L. W. 1069; 18 M. L. T. 511; (1916) M. W. N. 2; 16 Cr. L. J. 777.
380	Emperor v. Tek Chand	s. c. 27 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 780.
381	Emperor v. Ramjan Dadubhai	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 921; 16 Cr. L. J. 781.
382	Sikandar v. Emperor	s. c. 39 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 20 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 782.
383	Pandharinath Pundlik Revankar, In re	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 922; 16 Cr. L. J. 783.
384	Emperor v. Sheodan	s. c. 24 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 784.
385	Mammu v. Muhammad Kutti	*Madras High Court.
386	Nur Ali v. Bahawal	*Punjab Chief Court.
387	Naina Pillai Maracayar v. Arumuga Mudaly	s. c. 2 L. W. 1129.
388	Kasturchand Lakhmaji v. Jakhia Padia Patil	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 928.
391	Kali Mohan Tripura v. Birendra Kisore	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 309.
393	Peetikayilakath Mahmud Haji v. Alam Ibran Haji	*Madras High Court.
394	Challaphroo v. Banga Behary Sen	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 311; 20 C. W. N. 408.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
397	Ganapathi Asari v. Sundaram Chetti	*Madras High Court.
398	Velayutham Pillai v. Subbaroya Pillai	s. c. 2 L. W. 989; 18 M. L. T. 424; (1915) M. W. N. 873.
400	Vir Singh v. Kala Singh	s. c. 3 P. R. 1915 Rev.
404	Narasammal v. Secretary of State	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 524; 2 L. W. 1124; (1916) M. W. N. 122.
404	Jiban Kuar v. Govind Das	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1109 F. B.
405	Sures Chandra Palit v. Lalit Mohan Dutta	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 316; 20 C. W. N. 463.
412	Viyapuri v. Sonomma Boi Ammaui	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 645; 2 L. W. 1080; 18 M. L. T. 436; (1915) M. W. N. 927 F. B.
424	Askar Mian v. Sahedali Bara	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 328.
426	Loke Nath Singh v. Gaju Singh	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 333; 20 C. W. N. 178.
430	Ramnath Gagoi v. Pitambar Deb	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 339.
433	Khub Lal Singh v. Ajodhya Misser	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 345.
436	Chandiram Karamsing v. Secretary of State	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 51.
441	Dwarkadas Damodar v. Dwarkadas Shamji	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 938.
444	Raghunath Jha v. Birjandon Singh	*Calcutta High Court.
445	Nirman Singh v. Babadur Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
446	Koyatti Haji v. Koyaman Kutti Haji	*Madras High Court.
447	Mata Din Singh v. Dwarka Kurmi	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
448	Rangappa Ningappa Immadi v. Venkatbhat Lingambhat Joshi	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 950.
449	Har Pal Singh v. Kandhiya Bux Misir	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
450	Rajaram Nandlal v. Abdul Rahim	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 77.
453	Kunji Mal v. Sheo Balak Ram	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
454	Moideen Saiba v. Gopala Kudwa	*Madras High Court.
456	Balwant Singh v. Faizullah	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
457	Shanmugham Asari v. Siyid Nathadu Sahib	*Madras High Court.
458	Naunihal Singh v. Chabbi	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
458	Aramanai Rajagopala v. Aramanai Rangasami	*Madras High Court.
459	Kalyan Singh v. Hoti Lal	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
460	Nikunja Rani v. Secretary of State	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 375; 20 C. W. N. 504.
463	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah	s. c. 87 P. R. 1915; 181 P. W. R. 1915.
464	All Bux v. Parkash Nand	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
464	Dina v. Bishambhar Singh	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 164.
468	Madhava Bhumj Santo v. Ramachandra Mardara	*Madras High Court.
469	Karim Bakhsh v. Altaf Ali	s. c. 88 P. R. 1915; 180 P. W. R. 1915.
470	Gopikisan v. Kulpat	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 170.
472	Bhagwan Baksh Singh v. Ambar Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
473	Chidambaram Pillai v. Doraiswamy Chetty	*Madras High Court.
474	Ali Mohamad v. Great Indian Peninsula Ry. Co.	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 174.
476	Kishen Singh v. Bhagwan Das	s. c. 83 P. R. 1915.
478	Upadhyayudu Yegnauarayana v. Kottalanka Makayya	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 914.
479	Kanahia v. Durga Prasad	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
479	Vishindas Wadhuram v. Hotomal Ditomal	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 90.
482	Nageshar Prasad v. Mohan	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
482	Raja of Arakal v. Churia Kunhi Kannan	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 632.

Names of Parties.

Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.

486	Ghansham Singh v. Mohan Singh	...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
487	Venkatasubbier v. Muthosami Aiyar	...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 521; (1916) M. W. N. 123.
489	Muhammad Hayat v. Muhammad Ali	...	s. c. 94 P. R. 1915.
491	Alamelammal v. Suryaprakasaroja	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 680; 38 M. 988.
493	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh	...	s. c. 95 P. R. 1915; 175 P. W. R. 1915.
494	Kunthalammal v. Suryaprakasaroja Mudaliar	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 682; 38 M. 1096.
496	Kiawar Ali Khan v. Salim-un-nissa	...	*Allahabad High Court.
497	Allah Din v. Salam Din	...	s. c. 96 P. R. 1915; 169 P. W. R. 1915.
498	Nawab Singh v. Hukum Singh	...	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
498	Wasappa Timappa v. Secretary of State	...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 979.
499	Sulemanian Chetty v. Ramaswami Chetty	...	*Madras High Court.
500	Halai v. Chaturbhuj Gopalji	...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 985.
502	Subbier v. Abbey Naidu	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 671; 18 M. L. T. 469; 2 L. W. 1099.
507	Muhammad Haji v. Abdul Rahman	...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 989.
512	Maung Ye Nan O v. Auog Myat San	...	s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 167.
528	Muthu Goundan v. Anantha Goundan	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 685; 18 M. L. T. 476; 2 L. W. 1107; (1916) M. W. N. 113.
533	Muhammad Bakhs v. Muhammad	...	s. c. 90 P. R. 1915; 170 P. W. R. 1915.
536	Ratnam v. Kolandai Ramasamy Chetty	...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1115.
537	Robert Skinner v. Mrs. James Skinner	...	s. c. 91 P. R. 1915.
539	Arunachelum Chetty v. Syiad Ahmed Ambalam	...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1117; 19 M. L. T. 138; (1916) M. W. N. 237.
541	Chandan Mal v. Musammat Wasindi Bai	...	s. c. 92 P. R. 1915; 168 P. W. R. 1915.
542	Silu Peda Yelligada v. Surya Rao Bahadur Zamin-dar Garu	...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1122; 18 M. L. T. 494; 29 M. L. J. 603; (1916) M. W. N. 119.
543	Narasamma Hegadthi v. Billa Kesu Pujari	...	s. c. 25 M. L. J. 637.
545	Rahman Bi v. Fatima Bibi	...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 430.
549	Madan Mohan v. Sashi Bhusan	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1211.
553	Mukha v. Qabza	...	*Allahabad High Court.
554	Abdul Rahman v. Ahmadar Rahman	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1217; 22 C. L. J. 356.
561	Mahendra Nath Maity v. Girish Chandra Maity	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1287.
562	Maharam Ali v. Ayasa Khatun	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1226.
564	Ram Nath Tewari v. Musammat Genda	...	*Allahabad High Court.
565	Bangaru Muthu Venkatappa Nayanivaru v. Golla Chinnabba Naidu	...	*Madras High Court.
573	Promotha Nath Chakravarti v. Mohini Mohan Sen	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1200.
574	Karuturi Gopalan v. Karuturi Venkata Raghavulu	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 710.
579	Deb Nath Das v. Ram Sundar Barman	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1205.
579	Manavikraman v. Nilambur Thacharakavil	...	*Madras High Court.
581	Sudamdih Coal Co., Ltd. v. Empire Coal Co., Ltd.	...	s. c. 42 C. 942.
583	Kalianji Singji Bhai v. Bank of Madras	...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 788; 3 L. W. 13; (1916) M. W. N. 12.
586	Bharat Indu v. Muhammad Mahbub Ali Khan	...	*Allahabad High Court.
590	Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha	...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 504; 2 L. W. 1175; (1915) M. W. N. 962.
595	Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Co., Ltd. v. Wazir Singh	...	s. c. 182 P. W. R. 1915.
597	Co-operative Hindustan Bank, Ltd. v. Bhola Nath	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 165.
600	Hardeo Ram v. Parbati	...	*Punjab Chief Court.
604	Govindasami Pillai v. Ramasami Aiyar	...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 483; 2 L. W. 1186.
607	Patiram Bauerjee v. Kankinarra Co., Ltd.	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 623; 42 C. 1050.
615	Ayyakutti Mankondan v. Periasami Koundan	...	s. c. 2 L. W. 1184.
616	Kumar Krishna v. Amulya Charan	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 345.
617	Hori v. Thakurji Maharaj	...	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 10 Rev.
618	Narendra Nath v. Stephenson	...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 129.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
624	Bisheshar Pathak v. Ram Prasad Pathak	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 5 Rev.
626	Kedar Nath v. Denobandhu Shaha	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 724; 42 C. 1013.
630	Chinnappa Thevan v. Pazhaniappa Pillai	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 492; 2 L. W. 1132.
632	Barkat Ram v. Anant Ram	*Punjab Chief Court.
634	Narpat Rai v. Devi Das	s. c. 85 P. R. 1915.
635	Harbhagat v. Kala	*Punjab Chief Court.
637	Chuah Hooi Gnoh Neoh v. Khaw Sim Bee	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 787.
641	Emperor v. Lehna Singh	s. c. 18 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 785.
642	Rangasami Padayachi, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 786.
643	Emperor v. Ramjilal	s. c. 21 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 38 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 787.
643	Appu Atla, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 787.
644	Emperor v. Gul Muhammad	s. c. 26 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 788.
645	Velyuda Kone v. Narayana Kone	s. c. 2 L. W. 1208; 16 Cr. L. J. 789.
646	Bhola Ram v. Emperor	s. c. 25 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 790.
647	Sheonandan v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 791.
650	Basavana Gowd v. Krishna Rao Naidu	s. c. 2 L. W. 1126; 16 Cr. L. J. 794.
651	Sohan Lal v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1131; 16 Cr. L. J. 795.
653	Kallaru Ramalingam, In re	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 488; 2 L. W. 1135; 16 Cr. L. J. 797.
656	Damodara Naidu, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1120; 16 Cr. L. J. 800.
657	Akbar Hussain Sahib v. Shoukhal Begam Saheba	s. c. 2 L. W. 1191; 18 M. L. T. 525.
662	Sukumari Ghosh v. Gopi Mohan Goswami	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 880.
664	Arunachalam Chetty v. Ramanathan Chetty	*Madras High Court.
664	Mohiuddin v. Pirthichand Lal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1159.
671	Kota China Mellayya v. Kannekanti Veeriah	*Madras High Court.
672	Ram Chunder Banka v. Rawatmull	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1172.
674	Subba Reddi v. Alagammal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 545.
677	Biawa Nath Sinha v. Bidhumukhi Dasi	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1290.
678	Thotakura Govindu v. Pepakayala Mallayya	*Madras High Court.
684	Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Albert Nelson Robinson	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 905; 84 L. J. P. C. 194.
689	Sri Ram v. Chhabbu Lal	s. c. 3 P. W. R. 1916.
691	Tekait Ganesh Narain v. Protap Udai Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 908; 23 C. L. J. 118; 43 C. 136.
693	Miran Bakhsh v. Mehr Bibi	s. c. 6 P. W. R. 1916.
695	Nabendra Kishore Roy v. Rahima Banu	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1015.
697	Bhani Ram v. Narain Singh	s. c. 12 P. W. R. 1916.
697	Damoda Coal Co. Ltd. v. Hurmook Marwari	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1019.
698	Muhammad Ishaq Khan v. Muhammad Islam Ullah Khan	s. c. 2 P. R. 1916; 10 P. W. R. 1916.
700	Byomkesh Chakrabarti v. Haladhar Mandal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1271.
700	Kanhia Lal v. Narain Singh	s. c. 11 P. W. R. 1916; 28 P. R. 1916.
702	Mokashadayini Dassi v. Karnadhar Mandal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1108.
704	Venkatarama Aiyar v. Rajagopala Iyer	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 786.
705	Sudhakar Raut v. Sadasiv Jhatap Singh	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1113.
706	Munshi Lal v. Mangat Rai	*Allahabad High Court.
707	Maniruddin v. Jnanendra Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1115.
708	Ladkabai v. Navivahu	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 783.
716	Desraj v. Sagar Mal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1064; 38 A. 37.
717	Mahesh v. Banwari Lal	s. c. 18 O. C. 162.
720	Para Koothan v. Para Kulla Vandu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 760.
722	Jhabban Lal v. Safdri Begam	s. c. 187 P. L. R. 1915; 125 P. W. R. 1915; 80 P. R. 1915.
724	Village Co-operative Bank v. Kali Din	s. c. 18 O. C. 157.
725	Bishen Das v. Liquidator, Doaba Bank, Ltd.	s. c. 5 P. W. R. 1916.
728	Husain Ali Mirza v. Muhammad Azim Khan	s. c. 18 O. C. 168.
737	Bhiwani Orphanage Association, Hissar v. Parma Nand	s. c. 7 P. W. R. 1916.
739	Sami Sah v. Parthasarathy Chetty	*Madras High Court.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
740	Dewa Singh v. Lehna Singh	s. c. 8 P. W. R. 1916.
743	Muhammad Idris v. Motasaddi Mian	*Calcutta High Court.
746	Lahore Bank, Ltd. v. Kidar Nath	s. c. 4 P. W. R. 1916.
748	Ghulam Abbas Khan v. Bibi Ummatul Fatima	s. c. 18 O. C. 188; 2 O. L. J. 636.
782	Main-ud-din v. Muhammad Ahmad	s. c. 9 P. W. R. 1916.
783	Vellayam Chetty v. Kulandaveluappa Chetty	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 749.
786	Bharadwaja Mudaliar v. Kolandavelu Mudaliar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 717; 19 M. L. T. 141.
789	Krishna Nath v. Muhammad Wafiz	*Calcutta High Court.
791	Kasturi Aiyangar v. Ghulam Ghouse Sahib	*Court of the Board of Revenue, Madras.
792	Munni Koer v. Madan Gopal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1084.
794	Shiva Tahal Ahir v. Jawahir Lal	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
794	Musammal Partapi v. Hazara Singh	*Punjab Chief Court.
796	Devarasetti Narasimham v. Devarasetti Venkiah	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 532.
797	Musammal Tara Devi v. Dhanpat Rai	s. c. 150 P. W. R. 1915.
797	Narain Das v. Harakh Narain	*Allahabad High Court.
799	Secretary of State v. Cherukara Narayananunni Pisharodi	*Madras High Court.
800	Fazl Ahmad v. Jiwan Mal	s. c. 158 P. W. R. 1915.
801	Prasanna Kumar Dutt Purkayastha v. Jananendra Kumar Dutta	*Calcutta High Court.
802	Ditta Ram v. Rup Chand	s. c. 152 P. W. R. 1915.
803	Krishnaswami Naidu v. Seethalakshmi Ammal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 542.
804	Nirbhai Sinha v. Tulsi Ram	*Allahabad High Court.
805	Mathura Prasad v. Karim Bakhsh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1094.
807	Krishna Kumar Ray v. Chandra Kanta Mitra	*Calcutta High Court.
808	Sham Sundar v. Abdul Ahad	s. c. 153 P. W. R. 1915.
809	Sakhawat Ali Shah v. Muhammad Abdul Karim Khan	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1098.
811	Velayudham Pillai v. Perumal Naicker	s. c. 2 L. W. 1210.
812	Gangadhar Karmakar v. Shekhar Basini Dasya	s. c. 23 C. L. J. 235.
813	Adapaka Bapanna v. Inuganti Rajagopala	s. c. 2 L. W. 1212.
814	Velammal v. Lakshmi Ammal	*Madras High Court.
815	Ram Bharos v. Nazir Husain	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
816	Somasukdaram Chetty v. Rangasami Iyengar	*Madras High Court.
817	Rup Lal v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 801.
817	Rustom v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 801; 38 A. 29.
819	Mahomed Kanni Rowther v. Pattani Inayatullah Sahib	s. c. 2 L. W. 1200; 18 M. L. T. 602; 16 Cr. L. J. 803.
821	Miharban Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1046; 16 Cr. L. J. 805.
823	Bhole Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1050; 16 Cr. L. J. 807; 38 A. 32.
825	Ramasamy Naidu, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 809.
826	Hakim Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1055; 16 Cr. L. J. 810.
827	Govindaraja Padayachi, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 811.
828	Emperor v. Ram Dayal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1058; 16 Cr. L. J. 812; 38 A. 40.
829	Ramamani v. Kanakasabai	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 813.
829	Kalka Prasad v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1059; 16 Cr. L. J. 813; 38 A. 42.
830	Pampalli Subbareddi v. Chaduboyigari Kamal Saib	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 814.
831	Khusbi v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 815.
833	Viswanathaswami Naiker v. Kamulu Ammal	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 968; 2 L. W. 1214.
851	Barmal Singh v. Sheo Nath	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
852	Ramachandra Mardaraja Deo v. Dukko Podhano	*Madras High Court.
853	Adya Saran Singh v. Thakur	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
853	Vasudevapatta Joshi v. Varayanapani Grahi	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 517; (1916) M. W. N. 112.
854	Duja Bhandary v. Venku Bhandari	*Madras High Court.

ii Comparative Table

OF

Cases Reported in Volume XXXI of Indian Cases, 1915.

Cases marked with an asterisk (*) have not yet been reported elsewhere.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
1	Shunmugam Chetty v. Subba Reddi	*Madras High Court.
4	Subramania Iyer v. Venkataramier	*Madras High Court.
5	Bhanya v. Naka	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 160.
6	Kunja Lal Banerji v. Narsamba Debi	s. c. 42 C. 826; 20 C. W. N. 110.
7	Nur Khatun v. Sumar Sawayo	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 61.
9	Singaravelu Pillai v. Santhana Krishna Mudaliar	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 643.
10	Radha Gobinda v. Nabadwipchandra Pal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1027.
12	Krishnacharya v. Anthakki	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 314; 18 M. L. T. 218; (1915) M. W. N. 726.
13	Kusadhaj Bhakta v. Broja Mohan Bhakta	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1228.
15	Sesbhaiyangar v. Venkatachalam Chettiar	*Madras High Court.
16	Dina Nath Nag v. Sashi Mohan Dey	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 219.
18	Muthan v. Puniakoti Mudaliar	*Madras High Court.
19	Abdul Gani v. Makbul Ali	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 223; 42 C. 745; 20 C. W. N. 185.
21	Kannayya v. Ramanna	*Madras High Court.
22	Har Shyam v. Shyam Lal Sahu	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 227; 43 C. 69.
25	Sadagopachariar v. Rama Tirumala Chariar	*Madras High Court.
26	Alejan Bibi v. Raham Ali	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 232.
27	Sundar Singh v. Musammal Gurdevi	s. c. 163 P. W. R. 1915.
29	Mohes Chandra Guha v. Rajani Kanta Dutt	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 235.
30	Har Prosad Das v. Bakshi Bindeswari Prosad Singh	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 860.
33	Juggobundhu Saha v. Chand Mohan Saha	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 237.
35	Krishnaswami Pillai v. Mookayi Ammal	*Madras High Court.
35	India General S. N. & R. Co. v. Lal Mohan Saba	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 241.
37	Kanayaram v. Tirithsing	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 86.
38	Kyroon Bee v. Administrator-General of Madras	s. c. 2 L. W. 948.
41	William Graham v. Phanindra Nath Mitter	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1038.
45	Narain Das v. Ralli Brothers	s. c. 61 P. R. 1915; 136 P. W. R. 1915.
46	Ayya Raghunatha v. Thirumalai Echambadi	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 366; 2 L. W. 992; (1915) M. W. N. 916.
50	Firm of Mithomal Dwarka Das, in re	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 65.
52	Kathari Narasimha Raju v. Bhupati Raju	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 371; 2 L. W. 964; 29 M. L. J. 721; (1915) M. W. N. 819.
54	Kamta Pershad v. Industrial Bank of India, Ltd.	s. c. 59 P. R. 1915; 139 P. W. R. 1915.
55	Nallagonda Pedda v. Asupallee Budda Reddy	s. c. 2 L. W. 912; 18 M. L. T. 343; (1915) M. W. N. 815.
58	Hiralal v. Gopika	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 130.
59	Messrs. Augustus Brothers v. Fernandez	s. c. 2 L. W. 890; 29 M. L. J. 474; 18 M. L. T. 377; (1915) M. W. N. 765.
62	Municipal Committee of Saugor v. Nilkanth	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 132.
73	Tansey v. Rivett	s. c. 64 P. R. 1915; 142 P. W. R. 1915.
74	Keepilacheri Parkum v. Vennathankandiyil	s. c. 2 L. W. 999; 18 M. L. T. 383; 29 M. L. J. 784; (1915) M. W. N. 817.
76	Rafi-ud-Din v. Secretary of State for India	s. c. 65 P. R. 1915; 144 P. W. R. 1915.
77	Govindasamy Raja v. Kuppammal	*Madras High Court.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
80	Ahmad Din Anis-ul-Rahman v. Atlas Trading Co. ...	s. c. 66 P. R. 1915; 146 P. W. R. 1915.
81	Sundaram Iyer v. Kulathu Aiyer ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 867; 18 M. L. T. 316; 29 M. L. J. 505; (1915) M. W. N. 731.
86	Tufel Muhammad v. Shahab Din ...	s. c. 67 P. R. 1915; 148 P. W. R. 1915.
87	Bommaraju Venkata Perumal v. Subramanya Nayani Varu ...	*Madras High Court.
87	Nga Lu Daw v. Mi Mo Yi ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 66.
93	Raja of Pithapuram v. Jonnalagodda Venkatasubba Row ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 348; (1915) M. W. N. 813.
94	Mi Chan Mya v. Ngwe Yon ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 74.
98	Navanna Vena Rama Chetty v. Arunachalam Chettiar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 349; 29 M. L. J. 724; (1915) M. W. N. 801.
101	Nga Twe v. Nga Ba ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 80.
102	Murugesu Mudali v. Sama Goundan ...	*Madras High Court.
103	Mi Sa U v. Nga Meik ...	s. c. U. B. R. (1915), II, 81.
104	Narayanaswami Naidu Garu v. Panuala Anumayya Sastrulu ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 398; 2 L. W. 1031; 29 M. L. J. 572.
106	Sukramania Pillai v. Kuppammal ...	*Madras High Court.
106	Advocate-General v. Jimbabai ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 799.
152	Venkata Subbiah Chetty v. Subba Naidu ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 977; 18 M. L. T. 533; (1915) M. W. N. 822.
159	Kura v. Madho ...	s. c. 68 P. R. 1915; 151 P. W. R. 1915.
161	Parameswara Nambudri, In re ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 322; 16 Cr. L. J. 161.
164	Emperor v. Dwijendra Chandra ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 724.
175	Bapu Naidu, In re ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 958; 16 Cr. L. J. 735.
176	Ramalingam Pillai v. Raja of Ramnad ...	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 736.
176	Chemikkala Chinna Reddi v. Emperor ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 554; 16 Cr. L. J. 736.
177	Safer Ali Mandal v. Golam Mandal ...	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1236; 22 C. L. J. 249.
179	Samu Pathan v. Chidambara Odayan ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 454; 2 L. W. 918; (1916) M. W. N. 7.
180	Virechand Vajekaran Shet v. Kondu Kasam Atar ...	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 685; 39 B. 729.
181	Mati Lal Poddar v. Judhistir Das ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 254; 20 C. W. N. 310.
184	Kolagorath Raman Nair v. Kaunoth ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 941; (1915) M. W. N. 793.
186	Maya Devi v. Ram Chand ...	s. c. 177 P. W. R. 1915; 20 P. R. 1916.
188	Narayan Singh v. Aiyasami Reddi ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 728.
189	Atrabannessa Bibi v. Safatullah Mia ...	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 259.
191	Bhanba Ram v. Allah Bakhsh ...	s. c. 69 P. R. 1915; 156 P. W. R. 1915.
192	Easwara Aiyar v. Govindarajulu Naidu ...	*Madras High Court.
196	Skinner v. Badri Krishen ...	s. c. 98 P. R. 1915; 179 P. W. R. 1915.
198	Subramania Aiyar v. Vaithinatha Aiyar ...	s. c. 38 M. 682.
199	Karm Chand v. Ghulam Hassan ...	s. c. 74 P. R. 1915; 159 P. W. R. 1915.
200	Murugesu Mudali v. Ramasawmi Chetty ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 495; (1916) M. W. N. 126.
202	Prithmi Chand v. Safa Chand ...	s. c. 75 P. R. 1915; 157 P. W. R. 1915.
205	Gaman v. Imam Bakhsh ...	s. c. 77 P. R. 1915; 164 P. W. R. 1915.
206	Subraya Acharya v. Kesava Upadhaya ...	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 846.
208	Vythinatha Aiyar v. Vaithilinga Mudaliar ...	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 374; 2 L. W. 960; (1915) M. W. N. 847.
209	Karri Narasayya v. Thavala Nageswara Rao ...	*Madras High Court.
209	Ram Adin v. Munshi Ram ...	s. c. 76 P. R. 1915; 154 P. W. R. 1915.
211	Sivarama Aiyar v. Alagappa Chetty ...	s. c. 2 L. W. 946; (1915) M. W. N. 845.
212	Jowala Singh v. Tulsa Ram ...	s. c. 78 P. R. 1915; 173 P. W. R. 1915.
214	Rajah of Kalahasti v. Swarnam Kamakshamma ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 535.
215	Alliance Bank of Simla, Ltd. v. Amritsar Bank ...	s. c. 79 P. R. 1915; 171 P. W. R. 1915.
216	Ramasamy Chetty v. Karuppan Chetty ...	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 551.
220	Kiloth Chozhan Oyda Kurup v. Illath Narayanan Nambudri ...	s. c. (1916) M. W. N. 11.
221	Gul Muhammad v. Tota Ram ...	s. c. 82 P. R. 1915; 172 P. W. R. 1915.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
224	Ross v. Secretary of State	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 280.
230	Fazl-ud-din v. Kharak Singh	s. c. 83 P. R. 1915; 141 P. W. R. 1915.
234	Arunachellam Chettiar v. Lakshmana Aiyar	s. c. 2 L. W. 1002; 18 M. L. T. 385; 29 M. L. J. 569; (1915) M. W. N. 850.
236	Maddala Bagavannarayana v. Vadapalli Perum- allacharyulu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 231.
237	Mahant Devi v. Madho	s. c. 84 P. R. 1915; 176 P. W. R. 1915.
238	Sukhlal Chundermull v. Eastern Bank, Ltd.	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 41; 42 C. 735.
238	Sohna v. Khawaja	s. c. 4 P. R. 1915 Rev.
240	Dharmaraja Iyer v. Sreenivasa Mudaliar	s. c. 2 L. W. 1074; 29 M. L. J. 708; 18 M. L. T. 486.
241	Sher Singh v. Salig	s. c. 72 P. R. 1915; 149 P. W. R. 1915.
242	Brojendra Kishore Roy v. Bharat Chandra Roy	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 283; 20 C. W. N. 481.
243	Manikam Mudaliar v. Kummalanguttay Munu- swami	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 694; 18 M. L. T. 500; (1915) M. W. N. 911.
249	Hazari Lal Sarkar v. Maharaj Kumar Kshaunish Chandra Roy	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 290.
250	Subba Aiyar T. S. v. Subba Aiyar Sa.	*Madras High Court.
254	Sawan Mal v. Sahib Dyal	s. c. 81 P. R. 1915; 178 P. W. R. 1915.
255	Venkata Simhadri Jagapatiraja v. Sri Lakshmi Narusimha Roopa	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 639; 2 L. W. 1046; 18 M. L. T. 464.
259	Nathar Hussian Meera v. Deputy Collector, Usilam- pati	*Madras High Court.
260	Sankaravelu Pillai v. Muthusami Pillai	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 497; (1915) M. W. N. 956; 29 M. L. J. 779.
263	Antoni Juas Prabhu v. Ramakrishnayya	s. c. 2 L. W. 1034.
264	Glancy v. Glancy	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 106.
267	Subbanna v. Secretary of State	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 915.
269	Veeraraghava v. Krishnaswami	*Madras High Court.
271	O. A. M. K. Chetty Firm v. K. P. Chetty Firm	s. c. 8 L. B. R. 112.
272	Vikrama Deo Garu v. Maharaja of Jeypore	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 387; (1916) M. W. N. 112.
272	Jawala Singh v. Ladha	s. c. 173 P. L. R. 1915; 114 P. W. R. 1915.
273	Sankaralinga Moopnar v. Subramania Pillai	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 514.
277	Secretary of State v. Bapuji Mahadev	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 641; 39 B. 572.
279	Annammalai Chetty v. Poosari Suppia	s. c. 2 L. W. 1016; (1916) M. W. N. 5.
280	Parvatibai Shankar v. Bhagwant Pandharinath Pathak	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 646; 39 B. 593.
281	Sulfalla Sahib v. Vajihuddin Sahib	s. c. 2 L. W. 1018; (1915) M. W. N. 876.
285	Raman Chetty v. Nagappa Chetty	s. c. 2 L. W. 1024.
285	Lahanu Bai v. Harakchand	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 113.
287	Budha Khan v. Mohammad	s. c. 133 P. W. R. 1915.
290	Kashirao v. Ukarda	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 116.
293	Periakaruppan Chettiar v. Manikka Vachaga Desika	s. c. 2 L. W. 1055.
294	Hari v. Wanu	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 122.
294	Lelu v. Ram Chand	s. c. 174 P. W. R. 1915; 23 P. R. 1916.
296	Subramania Aiyar v. Sellammal	s. c. 2 L. W. 1057; 18 M. L. T. 450; (1915) M. W. N. 941; 30 M. L. J. 317.
301	Ramkrishna Trimbak v. Narayan Shivraro Aras	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 955.
303	Sahasram v. Sheonath	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 124.
304	Thiruvannamalai Servai v. Varadarajulu Naidu	*Madras High Court.
305	Sobhanadri Appa Row v. Govindaraju Seetaramiah	s. c. 2 L. W. 1066.
305	Mahadev Baghunath v. Rama Tukaram	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 962.
307	Chidipatu Somayya, & re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1067.
307	Narain v. Behari	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 126.
310	Muchirazu Ramachandra Row v. Secretary of State	*Madras High Court.
311	Ramchandra Dinkar v. Krishnaji Sakhamam	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 967.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cuz.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
312	Indoor Subbarami Reddi v. Nelatur Sundararaja Aiyangar	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 460; (1915) M. W. N. 1021.
315	Ahmed Musaji Saleji v. Manooji Musaji	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 293.
317	Chinniah Chetty v. Tikkani Ramaswami Chetty	*Madras High Court.
318	Rajam Aiyar v. Anantharatnam Aiyar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 699; 18 M. L. T. 475; (1916) M. W. N. 127.
319	Panchumoni Dassi v. Chandra Kumar Ghose	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 298.
320	Puchalapalli Adiseshadri v. Mungamur Sivaramayya	*Madras High Court.
321	Fakir Chandra Gain v. Giribala Dassya	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 304.
322	Draviam Pillai v. Cruz Fernandez	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 704; 18 M. L. T. 518.
324	Mg Tha Hla v. Mokhlis	*Lower Burma Chief Court.
326	Narayanaswamy Aiyar v. Venkataramana Aiyar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 607; 18 M. L. T. 426; 2 L. W. 1037; (1915) M. W. N. 921 F. B.
331	Minnie Wallace v. Arthur Wallace	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 948.
332	Maung Shwe Paw v. Ma Pan Zi	*Lower Burma Chief Court.
334	Marji Jeta v. Honnavar Puthu Hari Pal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 457.
335	Tirumalanadham Surayya v. Tirumalanadham Bapirazu	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 459; (1915) M. W. N. 121.
337	Machhia v. Emperor	s. c. 28 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 737.
337	Mukka Muthiriyar, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 737.
338	Emperor v. Bhimappa Ulvappa	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 895; 16 Cr. L. J. 738.
340	Gudala Suriah v. Jamal Bee Bee	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 740.
340	Emperor v. Rama Dhan Powar	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 898; 16 Cr. L. J. 740.
343	Mukka Muthiriar, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 743.
345	Emperor v. Hari Bijal	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 906; 16 Cr. L. J. 745.
347	Muthumada Nadan, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 747.
347	Emperor v. Bai Mahalaxmi	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 910; 16 Cr. L. J. 747.
350	Sankar Rangayya v. Sankar Ramayya	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 521; 18 M. L. T. 381; 16 Cr. L. J. 750.
352	Baban Daud v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 918; 16 Cr. L. J. 752.
353	Venugopal Mudaly, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 753.
354	Lakshman Totaram v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 590; 16 Cr. L. J. 754.
359	Karuppan Samban, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 759.
361	Jivram Dankarji v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 881; 16 Cr. L. J. 761.
364	N. M. Dey v. Emperor	s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 244; 16 Cr. L. J. 764.
365	Basapa Ningapa v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 892; 16 Cr. L. J. 765.
367	Sudalamuthu Chettiar v. Enan Samban	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 767.
371	Shankar Ramdas v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 800; 16 Cr. L. J. 771.
372	Subbaraya Pillai, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 772.
372	Bechar Anop v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 888; 16 Cr. L. J. 772.
373	G. G. Jeremiah, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1078; 29 M. L. J. 758; 16 Cr. L. J. 773; (1915) M. W. N. 1023.
375	Emperor v. Raghbir Singh	s. c. 22 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 42 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 775.
377	N. C. Whitten v. Mammad Maistry	s. c. 2 L. W. 1069; 18 M. L. T. 511; (1916) M. W. N. 2; 16 Cr. L. J. 777.
380	Emperor v. Tek Chand	s. c. 27 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 780.
381	Emperor v. Ramjan Dadubhai	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 921; 16 Cr. L. J. 781.
382	Sikandar v. Emperor	s. c. 39 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 20 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 782.
383	Pandharinath Pundlik Revankar, In re	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 922; 16 Cr. L. J. 783.
384	Emperor v. Sheodan	s. c. 24 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 784.
385	Mamtu v. Muhammad Kutti	*Madras High Court.
386	Nur Ali v. Bahawal	*Punjab Chief Court.
387	Naina Pillai Maracayar v. Arumuga Mudaly	s. c. 2 L. W. 1129.
388	Kasturchand Lakhmaji v. Jakhia Padia Patil	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 929.
391	Kali Mohan Tripura v. Birendra Kisore	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 309.
393	Petikayalakath Mahmud Haji v. Alam Ibran Haji	*Madras High Court.
394	Challaphroo v. Banga Behary Sen	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 311; 20 C. W. N. 408.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
397	Ganapathi Asari v. Sundaram Chetti	*Madras High Court.
398	Velayutham Pillai v. Subbaroya Pillai	s. c. 2 L. W. 989; 18 M. L. T. 424; (1915) M. W. N. 873.
400	Vir Singh v. Kala Singh	s. c. 3 P. R. 1915 Rev.
404	Narasammal v. Secretary of State	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 524; 2 L. W. 1124; (1916) M. W. N. 122.
404	Jiban Kuar v. Govind Das	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1109 F. B.
405	Sures Chandra Palit v. Lalit Mohan Dutta	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 316; 20 C. W. N. 463.
412	Viyapuri v. Sonomma Boi Ammani	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 645; 2 L. W. 1080; 18 M. L. T. 436; (1915) M. W. N. 927 F. B.
424	Askar Mian v. Sahedali Bara	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 328.
426	Loke Nath Singh v. Gaju Singh	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 333; 20 C. W. N. 178.
430	Ramnath Gagoi v. Pitambar Deb	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 339.
433	Khub Lal Singh v. Ajodhya Misser	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 345.
436	Chandiram Karamsing v. Secretary of State	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 51.
441	Dwarkadas Damodar v. Dwarkadas Shamji	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 938.
444	Raghnath Jha v. Birjuandon Singh	*Calcutta High Court.
445	Nirman Singh v. Bahadur Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
446	Koyatti Haji v. Koyaman Kutti Haji	*Madras High Court.
447	Mata Din Singh v. Dwarka Kurmi	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
448	Rangappa Ningappa Immadi v. Venkatbhat Lingabhat Joshi	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 950.
449	Har Pal Singh v. Kandhiya Bux Misir	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
450	Rajaram Nandlal v. Abdul Rahim	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 77.
453	Kunji Mal v. Sheo Balak Ram	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
454	Moideen Saiba v. Gopala Kudwa	*Madras High Court.
456	Balwant Singh v. Faizullah	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
457	Shanmugham Asari v. Siyid Nathadu Sahib	*Madras High Court.
458	Naunihal Singh v. Chabbi	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
458	Aramanai Rajagopala v. Aramanai Rangasami	*Madras High Court.
459	Kalyan Singh v. Hoti Lal	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
460	Nikunja Rani v. Secretary of State	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 375; 20 C. W. N. 504.
463	Gulab Shah v. Haveli Shah	s. c. 87 P. R. 1915; 181 P. W. R. 1915.
464	Ali Bux v. Parkash Nand	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
464	Dina v. Bishambhar Singh	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 164.
468	Madhava Bhumj Santo v. Ramachandra Mardaraj	*Madras High Court.
469	Karim Baksh v. Altaf Ali	s. c. 88 P. R. 1915; 180 P. W. R. 1915.
470	Gopikisan v. Kulpat	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 170.
472	Bhagwan Baksh Singh v. Ambar Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
473	Chidambaram Pillai v. Doraiswamy Chetty	*Madras High Court.
474	Ali Mohamad v. Great Indian Peninsula Ry. Co.,	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 174.
476	Kishen Singh v. Bhagwan Das	s. c. 83 P. R. 1915.
478	Upadhyayulu Yegnanarayana v. Kottalanka Makayya	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 914.
479	Kanahia v. Durga Prasad	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
479	Vishindas Wadhuram v. Hotomal Ditomal	s. c. 9 S. L. R. 90.
482	Nageshar Prasad v. Mohan	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
482	Raja of Arakal v. Churia Kunhi Kannan	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 632.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
486	Ghaushiani Singh v. Mohan Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
487	Venkatasubbier v. Muthusami Aiyar	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 521; (1916) M. W. N. 123.
489	Muhammad Hayat v. Muhammad Ali	s. c. 94 P. R. 1915.
491	Alamelammal v. Suryaprakasaraoya	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 680; 38 M. 988.
493	Natha Singh v. Ganda Singh	s. c. 95 P. R. 1915; 175 P. W. R. 1915.
494	Kanthammal v. Suryaprakasaraoya Mudaliar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 682; 38 M. 1096.
496	Kiswar Ali Khan v. Salim-un-nissa	*Allahabad High Court.
497	Allah Din v. Salam Din	s. c. 96 P. R. 1915; 169 P. W. R. 1915.
498	Nawab Singh v. Hukum Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
498	Wasappa Timappa v. Secretary of State	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 979.
499	Subramaniyan Chetty v. Ramaswami Chetty	*Madras High Court.
500	Halai v. Chaturbhuj Gopalji	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 985.
502	Subbier v. Abboy Naidu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 671; 18 M. L. T. 469; 2 L. W. 1099.
507	Muhammad Haji v. Abdul Rahman	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 989.
512	Maung Ye Nan O v. Aung Myat San	s. c. 8 Bur. L. T. 167.
528	Muthu Goundan v. Anantha Goundan	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 685; 18 M. L. T. 476; 2 L. W. 1107; (1916) M. W. N. 113.
533	Muhammad Bakish v. Muhammad	s. c. 90 P. R. 1915; 170 P. W. R. 1915.
536	Ratnam v. Kolandai Ramasamy Chetty	s. c. 2 L. W. 1115.
537	Robert Skinner v. Mrs. James Skinner	s. c. 91 P. R. 1915.
539	Arunachelum Chetty v. Syiad Ahamed Ambalam	s. c. 2 L. W. 1117; 19 M. L. T. 138; (1916) M. W. N. 237.
541	Chandan Mal v. Musimamat Wasinoli Bai	s. c. 92 P. R. 1915; 168 P. W. R. 1915.
542	Silu Peda Yelligada v. Soreya Rao Bahadur Zamindar Garu	s. c. 2 L. W. 1122; 18 M. L. T. 494; 29 M. L. J. 693; (1916) M. W. N. 119.
543	Narasamma Hegadthi v. Billa Kesu Pujari	s. c. 25 M. L. J. 637.
545	Rahman Bi v. Fatima Bibi	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 430.
549	Madan Mohan v. Sashi Bhushan	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1211.
553	Mukha v. Qabza	*Allahabad High Court.
554	Abdul Rahman v. Ahmadar Rahman	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1217; 22 C. L. J. 356.
561	Mahendra Nath Maity v. Girish Chandra Maity	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1287.
562	Maharam Ali v. Ayesa Khatun	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1226.
564	Ram Nath Tewari v. Musammat Genda	*Allahabad High Court.
565	Bangaru Muthu Venkatappa Nayanivara v. Golla Chinnabba Naidu	*Madras High Court.
573	Promotha Nath Chakravarti v. Mohini Mohan Sen	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1200.
574	Karuturi Gopalan v. Karuturi Venkata Raghavulu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 710.
579	Deb Nath Das v. Ram Sundar Borman	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1205.
579	Manavikraman v. Nilambur Thacharakavil	*Madras High Court.
581	Sudamdih Coal Co., Ltd. v. Empire Coal Co., Ltd.	s. c. 42 C. 1942.
583	Kalianji Singji Bhai v. Bank of Madras	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 788; 3 L. W. 13; (1916) M. W. N. 12.
586	Bharat Indu v. Muhammad Mahbub Ali Khan	*Allahabad High Court.
590	Secretary of State v. Subraya Karantha	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 504; 2 L. W. 1175; (1915) M. W. N. 962.
595	Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Co., Ltd. v. Wazir Singh	s. c. 182 P. W. R. 1915.
597	Co-operative Hindustan Bank, Ltd. v. Bhola Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 165.
600	Hardeo Ram v. Parbati	*Punjab Chief Court.
604	Govindasami Pillai v. Ramasami Aiyar	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 483; 2 L. W. 1186.
607	Patiram Banerjee v. Kankinarra Co., Ltd.	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 623; 42 C. 1050.
615	Ayyakutti Mankondan v. Periasami Koundan	s. c. 2 L. W. 1184.
616	Kumar Krishna v. Amulya Charan	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 345.
617	Hori v. Thakurji Maharaj	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 10 Rev.
618	Narendra Nath v. Stephenson	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 129.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
624	Bisheshar Pathak v. Ram Prasad Pathak	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 5 Rev.
626	Kedar Nath v. Denobandhu Shaha	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 724; 42 C. 1043.
630	Chinnappa Thevan v. Pazhaniappa Pillai	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 492; 2 L. W. 1132.
632	Barkat Ram v. Anant Ram	*Punjab Chief Court.
634	Narpat Rai v. Devi Das	s. c. 85 P. R. 1915.
635	Harbhagat v. Kala	*Punjab Chief Court.
637	Chuah Hooi Gnoh Neoh v. Khaw Sim Bee	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 787.
641	Emperor v. Lehna Singh	s. c. 18 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 785.
642	Rangasami Padayachi, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 786.
643	Emperor v. Ramjilal	s. c. 21 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 35 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 787.
643	Appu Atla, In re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 787.
644	Emperor v. Gul Muhammad	s. c. 26 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 788.
645	Velyuda Kone v. Narayana Kone	s. c. 2 L. W. 1208; 16 Cr. L. J. 789.
646	Bhola Ram v. Emperor	s. c. 25 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 790.
647	Sheonandan v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 791.
650	Basavana Gowd v. Krishna Rao Naidu	s. c. 2 L. W. 1126; 16 Cr. L. J. 794.
651	Sohan Lal v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1131; 16 Cr. L. J. 795.
653	Kallaru Ramalingam, In re	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 488; 2 L. W. 1135; 16 Cr. L. J. 797.
656	Damodara Naidu, In re	s. c. 2 L. W. 1120; 16 Cr. L. J. 800.
657	Akbar Hussain Sahib v. Shoukhah Begam Saheba	s. c. 2 L. W. 1191; 18 M. L. T. 525.
662	Sukumari Ghosh v. Gopi Mohan Goswami	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 880.
664	Arunachalam Chetty v. Ramanathan Chetty	*Madras High Court.
664	Mohiuddin v. Pirthichand Lal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1159.
671	Kota China Mellayya v. Kannekanti Veeriah	*Madras High Court.
672	Ram Chunder Banka v. Rawatmull	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1172.
674	Subba Reddi v. Alagammal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 545.
677	Biawa Nath Sinha v. Bidhumakhi Dasi	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1290.
678	Thotakura Govindu v. Pepakayala Mallayya	*Madras High Court.
684	Grand Trunk Ry. Co. of Canada v. Albert Nelson Robinson	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 905; 84 L. J. P. C. 194.
689	Sri Ram v. Chhabbu Lal	s. c. 3 P. W. R. 1916.
691	Tekait Ganesh Narain v. Protap Udai Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 998; 23 C. L. J. 118; 43 C. 136.
693	Miran Bakhsh v. Mehr Bibi	s. c. 6 P. W. R. 1916.
695	Nabendra Kishore Roy v. Rahima Banu	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1015.
697	Bhani Ram v. Narain Singh	s. c. 12 P. W. R. 1916.
697	Damoda Coal Co. Ltd. v. Hurmook Marwari	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1019.
698	Muhammad Ishaq Khan v. Muhammad Islam Ullah Khan	s. c. 2 P. R. 1916; 10 P. W. R. 1916.
700	Byomkesh Chakrabarti v. Haladhar Mandal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1271.
700	Kanhia Lal v. Narain Singh	s. c. 11 P. W. R. 1916; 28 P. R. 1916.
702	Mokashadayini Dassi v. Karnadhar Mandal	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1108.
704	Venkatarama Aiyar v. Rajagopala Iyer	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 786.
705	Sudhakar Raut v. Sadasiv Jhatap Singh	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1113.
706	Munshi Lal v. Mangut Rai	*Allahabad High Court.
707	Maviruddin v. Jnanendra Nath	s. c. 19 C. W. N. 1115.
708	Ladkabai v. Navivahu	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 783.
716	Desraj v. Sagar Mal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1064; 38 A. 37.
717	Mahesh v. Banwari Lal	s. c. 18 O. C. 162.
720	Para Koothan v. Para Kulla Vandu	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 760.
722	Jhabban Lal v. Safdri Begam	s. c. 187 P. L. R. 1915; 125 P. W. R. 1915; 80 P. R. 1915.
724	Village Co-operative Bank v. Kali Din	s. c. 18 O. C. 157.
725	Bishen Das v. Liquidator, Doaba Bank, Ltd.	s. c. 5 P. W. R. 1916.
728	Husain Ali Mirza v. Muhammad Azim Khan	s. c. 18 O. C. 168.
737	Bhiwani Orphanage Association, Hissar v. Parma Nand	s. c. 7 P. W. R. 1916.
739	Sami Sah v. Parthasarathy Chetty	*Madras High Court.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
740	Dewa Singh v. Lehna Singh	s. c. S P. W. R. 1916.
743	Muhammad Idris v. Motasaddi Mian	*Calcutta High Court.
746	Lahore Bank, Ltd. v. Kidar Nath	s. c. 4 P. W. R. 1916.
748	Ghulam Abbas Khan v. Bibi Ummatul Fatima	s. c. 18 O. C. 188; 2 O. L. J. 636.
782	Muin-ud-din v. Muhammad Ahmad	s. c. 9 P. W. R. 1916.
783	Vellayam Chetty v. Kulandavelaappa Chetty	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 749.
786	Bharadwaja Mudaliar v. Kolandavelu Mudaliar	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 717; 19 M. L. T. 141.
789	Krishna Nath v. Muhammad Wafiz	*Calcutta High Court.
791	Kasturi Aiyangar v. Ghulam Ghouse Sahib	*Court of the Board of Revenue, Madras.
792	Munni Koer v. Madan Gopal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1084.
794	Shiva Tahal Ahir v. Jawahir Lal	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Pro- vinces.
794	Musammat Partapi v. Hazara Singh	*Punjab Chief Court.
796	Devarasetti Narasimham v. Devarasetti Venkiah	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 532.
797	Musammat Tara Devi v. Dhanpat Rai	s. c. 150 P. W. R. 1915.
797	Narnin Das v. Harakh Narnin	*Allahabad High Court.
799	Secretary of State v. Cherukara Narayananunni Pisharodi	*Madras High Court.
800	Fazl Ahmad v. Jiwan Mal	s. c. 158 P. W. R. 1915.
801	Prasanna Kumar Dutt Purkayastha v. Jananendra Kumar Dutta	*Calcutta High Court.
802	Ditta Ram v. Rup Chand	s. c. 152 P. W. R. 1915.
803	Krishnaswami Naidu v. Seethalakshmi Ammal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 542.
804	Nirbhui Sinha v. Tulsi Ram	*Allahabad High Court.
805	Mathura Prasad v. Karim Bakhsh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1094.
807	Krishna Kumar Ray v. Chandra Kanta Mitra	*Calcutta High Court.
808	Sham Sundar v. Abdul Ahad	s. c. 153 P. W. R. 1915.
809	Sakhawat Ali Shah v. Muhammad Abdul Karim Khan	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1098.
811	Velayudham Pillai v. Perumal Naicker	s. c. 2 L. W. 1210.
812	Gangadhar Karmakar v. Shekhar Basini Dasya	s. c. 23 C. L. J. 235.
813	Adapaka Bapanna v. Inuganti Rajagopala	s. c. 2 L. W. 1212.
814	Velammal v. Lakshmi Ammal	*Madras High Court.
815	Ram Bharos v. Nazir Husain	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Pro- vinces.
816	Somasukdaram Chetty v. Rangasami Iyengar	*Madras High Court.
817	Rup Lal v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 801.
817	Rustom v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 801; 38 A. 29.
819	Mahomed Kanni Rowther v. Pattani Inayatullah Sahib	s. c. 2 L. W. 1200; 18 M. L. T. 602; 16 Cr. L. J. 803.
821	Miharban Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1046; 16 Cr. L. J. 805.
823	Bhole Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1050; 16 Cr. L. J. 807; 38 A. 32.
825	Ramasamy Naidu, in re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 809.
826	Ilakim Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1035; 16 Cr. L. J. 810.
827	Govindaraja Padayachi, in re	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 811.
828	Emperor v. Ram Dayal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1038; 16 Cr. L. J. 812; 38 A. 40.
829	Ramamani v. Kannakasabai	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 813.
829	Kaika Prasad v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1059; 16 Cr. L. J. 813; 38 A. 42.
830	Pampalli Subbareddi v. Chaduboyigari Kamal Saib	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 814.
831	Khashi v. Emperor	s. c. 16 Cr. L. J. 815.
833	Viswanathaswami Naiker v. Kamulu Ammal	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 968; 2 L. W. 1214.
851	Barmal Singh v. Sheo Nath	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Pro- vinces.
852	Ramachandra Mardaraja Deo v. Dukko Podhano	*Madras High Court.
853	Adya Saran Singh v. Thakur	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Pro- vinces.
853	Vasudevapatta Joshi v. Varayanapani Grahi	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 517; (1916) M. W. N. 112.
854	Duja Bhandary v. Venku Bhandari	*Madras High Court.

Pages of Vol. XXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
855	Murid v. Kashia	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
855	Kuppusami Reddi v. Venkatalakshmi Ammal	s. c. 18 M. L. T. 434 (1915) M. W. N. 960.
857	Partab Bahadur Singh v. Abdus Salam	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
858	Icehamoni Dasi v. Prosumo Kumar Mondal	* Calcutta High Court.
859	Amir-un-nissa v. Ram Charan Das	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
859	Sailabala Debi v. Nriya Gopal Sen Poddar	* Calcutta High Court.
861	Ganga Charan v. Manghi Prasad	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
862	Nihal Singh v. Mal Singh	s. c. 160 P. W. R. 1915.
863	Dwarka v. Nazir Husain Khan	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
863	Sahib Zadi v. Allah Bakhsh & Co.	s. c. 161 P. W. R. 1915.
864	Hari Har Prasad v. Mata Prasad	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
865	Hakim Rai v. Peshawar Bank, Ltd.	s. 162 P. W. R. 1915.
866	Badri Prasad v. Ram Charan	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
867	Motilal v. Ganga Bai	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 177.
868	Bapuji Sorabji Patel v. Bhikubhai Virchand	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 924.
869	Subramania Othuvay v. Munusamiya Pillai	* Madras High Court.
869	Daolat Rai v. Sheikh Chaud	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 180.
871	Chilukuri Sitaramayya v. Venkata Rangayya Appa Rao	* Madras High Court.
872	Goverdhan v. Maruti	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 183.
873	Gauri Rai v. Bhagginga	* Allahabad High Court.
875	Ma Min Kyin v. Maung Wa	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
876	Gurprasad Singh v. Ram Samraj Singh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1101.
877	Pirbha v. Wazirbi	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 186.
879	Khetra Pal v. Mumtaz Begam	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1104.
880	Meghraj v. Johnson	s. c. 11 N. L. R. 189.
882	Har Prasad v. Mukund Lal	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1107.
884	Raman Chetty v. A. V. P. Firm	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
884	Udai Bhawan Singh v. Manager, Kayastha Pathshala	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
885	La Aung v. Maung So	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
886	Ishar Dutt v. Musai Dube	* Allahabad High Court.
888	M. Meyer v. Mrs. C. Lea	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
888	Ahamut v. Kala	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
889	Hari v. Sri Thakurji Maharaj	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
890	Ma Thin v. H. M. Yassin	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
891	Jawahir Mal v. Udai Ram	* Allahabad High Court.
892	Mi Amin Nissa v. Mi Sura Bi	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
893	Bhagwati Saran Singh v. Rabi Singh	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
893	Yoo Joo Sein v. Maung Ba Tin	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
894	Satis Chandra Ghose v. Rameswari Dasi	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 409.
896	Mi Nyin Tha Me v. Mi Nyo Wun Me	* Lower Burma Chief Court.
896	Abdul Rahaman v. Sarafat Ali	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 412.
898	Janki Prasad v. Lokender Shah	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
899	Ram Ugrah Pande v. Achraj Nath Pande	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1115.
902	Bisheshar Dass v. Saghirunnissa	* Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
902	Sital Prasad v. Lal Bahadur	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1122.
904	Gurditta Mal v. Dhari Mal	* Punjab Chief Court.

Pages of Vol. XXXI of Ind. Cas.	Names of Parties.	Corresponding pages of other Reports and Journals.
906	Ram Surup v. Jaswant Rai	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1114
906	Elahi Bux v. Nand Kishore	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
907	Har Narain v. Bishambhar Nath	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1129.
908	Rukmani Ammal v. Advocate-General of Madras	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 10.
909	Gulab Khan v. Chiragh Bibi	* Punjab Chief Court.
911	Raghavachariar v. Anantha Reddi	*Madras High Court.
912	Paras Ram v. Sheobaran Singh	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
913	Muhammad Rowther v. Rangachariar	*Madras High Court.
913	Guzzu Payidayya v. Venkataru Venkata Reddi	s. c. (1915) M. W. N. 864.
914	Fazal v. Hashmati	*Punjab Chief Court.
914	Sheo Mangal Singh v. Chedu	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1137.
917	Sambasiva Aiyar v. Muhammad Hussain	*Madras High Court.
919	District Board of Tanjore v. Vythilinga Chetty	*Madras High Court.
919	Barati Lal v. Sulik Ram	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1141.
920	Gnanambal Ammal v. Veerasami Chetty	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 698.
923	Murugesu Chetti v. Arumuga Chetti	s. c. 2 L. W. 1205; 18 M. L. T. 601.
924	Ramakrishna Pillai v. Muthuperumal Pillai	s. c. 29 M. L. J. 663.
927	Hussain Saib v. Hassan Saib	s. c. 2 L. W. 1140; (1915) M. W. N. 880.
948	Maung Po Saing v. Maung San Min	*Lower Burma Chief Court.
948	Dwarkanadas Tejbhandas, In re	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 925.
949	Jamal v. Moolla Dawood, Sons, & Co.	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 105; 30 M. L. J. 73; 14 A. L. J. 89; 19 M. L. T. 80; 3 L. W. 181; 23 C. L. J. 137; (1916) M. W. N. 70 P. C.
965	Krishen Doyal Gir v. Ibrahim Ali Khan	s. c. 22 C. L. J. 525.
978	Rebala Babu Reddi v. Dodla Ram Reddi	*Madras High Court.
979	Jagdamba Prasad v. Behari Lal	*Court of the Board of Revenue, United Provinces.
982	Kalianna Mudali v. Secretary of State	*Madras High Court.
983	Suresur Misser v. Mohesh Rani Mesrain	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 142.
986	Mayandi Chettiar v. Tirumalai Aiyangar	*Madras High Court.
987	Khagendra Nath v. Sonatan Guha	s. c. 20 C. W. N. 149.
993	Kidha Singh v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1111; 16 Cr. L. J. 817.
994	Emperor v. Daji Yesaba	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 818.
995	Emperor v. Brikbhan Singh	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 979; 16 Cr. L. J. 819; 38 A. 14.
1000	Nathu Rewa v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1074; 16 Cr. L. J. 824.
1001	Prag Das Bhargava v. Daulat Ram	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1067; 16 Cr. L. J. 825.
1002	Emperor v. Mian Din	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1070; 16 Cr. L. J. 826; 38 A. 47.
1003	Manilal Mangalji v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1080; 16 Cr. L. J. 827.
1005	Dhani Ram v. Emperor	s. c. 13 A. L. J. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 829; 38 A. 49.
1008	Devendra Shivapa Limbenavar v. Emperor	s. c. 17 Bom. L. R. 1085; 16 Cr. L. J. 832.

TABLE

OF

Cases Cited in Volume XXXI of Indian Cases, 1915.

A

A—contd.

	Page.		Page
Abbakka Shetthi v. Seshamma, 25 Ind. Cas. 944; 16 M. L. T. 442; (1914) M. W. N. 915	185	Ajo Koer v. Gorak Nath, 27 Ind. Cas. 321; 20 C. L. J. 481; 19 C. W. N. 517	322
Abbi v. Queen-Empress, 14 P. R. 1895 Cr.	1002	Ajodhya Pershad v. Mahadeo Pershad, 3 Ind. Cas. 9; 14 C. W. N. 221	676
Abbott v. Middleton, (1858) 7 H. L. C. 68 at p. 84; 28 L. J. Ch. 110; 5 Jur. (N. S.) 717; 11 E. R. 28; 115 R. R. 38	408	Ajwas Koer v. Musammat Lateefa, 18 W. R. 21	300
Abdul Khadar v. Meera Saheb, 15 M. 224; 2 M. L. J. 148; 2 Weir 174	654	Ajudhia v. Kunjal, 30 A. 123; A. W. N. (1908) 36; 5 A. L. J. 72	481, 809
Abdul Majid v. Ksheroode Chandra Pal, 29 Ind. Cas. 843; 42 C. 690; 19 C. W. N. 809	396	Ajudhia Pershad v. Chaudan, 9 P. R. 1903, 36 P. L. R. 1903	255
Abdul Rahiman v. Moidin Saiba, 22 B. 500	428	Ajudhia Prasad v. Man Singh, 25 A. 46; A. W. N. (1902) 176	572
Abdul Rahman Sarkar v. Promode Behary Dutta, 28 Ind. Cas. 187; 22 C. L. J. 108; 20 C. W. N. 40	860	Akhil Chandra De v. Queen-Empress, 22 C. 1004 Akilandamoni v. Periasami Pillai, 1 M. 309	654 244
Abdullah Shah v. Hossain Jahana Shah, 20 Ind. Cas. 564; 14 P. R. 1914; 250 P. L. R. 1913; 179 P. W. R. 1913	200	Akora Suth v. Boreani, 2 B. L. R. (A. C. J.) 199; 11 W. R. 82	290
Abdun Nasir v. Rasulan, 20 C. 385	463	Akshay Kumar Shaha v. Hira Ram Dosad, 35 C. 677; 7 C. L. J. 407	178
Abhiram Goswami v. Shyama Charan Nandi, 4 Ind. Cas. 449; 10 C. L. J. 284; 6 A. L. J. 857; 11 Bom. L. R. 1234; 19 M. L. J. 530; 14 C. W. N. 1; 35 C. 1003	551	Akuljoo v. Hurbhuj, 68 P. R. 1867,	74
Abinash Chandra Bose v. Bama Bewa, 4 Ind. Cas. 17; 13 C. W. N. 100	674	Albel Singh v. Vir Singh, 86 P. R. 1855	494
Abrath v. North Eastern Railway Company, 11 Q. B. D. 440; 52 L. J. Q. B. 620; 49 L. T. 618; 32 W. R. 50; 47 J. P. 692	325	Ali Bakhsh v. Allahdad Khan, 6 Ind. Cas. 376; 32 A. 551; 7 A. L. J. 567	723
Abrath v. North Eastern Railway Company, 11 A. C. 247; 55 L. J. Q. B. 457; 55 L. T. 63; 50 J. P. 659	325	Ali Mardan v. Bakar Khan, 17 Ind. Cas. 680; 13 P. R. 1913; 7 P. W. R. 1913; 27 P. L. R. 1913	403
Abraham v. Abraham, 9 M. I. A. 195; 1 W. R. (P. C.) 1; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 591; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 10; 19 E. R. 716	112	Ali Muhammad v. Lalta Bakshi, 1 A. 655	683
Abu Hasan v. Ramzan Ali, 4 A. 381	810	Ali Muhammad v. Suraj-ud-din, 10 Ind. Cas. 236; 13 P. R. 1912; 162 P. L. R. 1911; 199 P. W. R. 1911	795
Achul Mehta v. Rajun Mehta, 6 C. 812	532	Alikjan Bibi v. Rambaran Shah, 7 Ind. Cas. 166; 12 C. L. J. 357	190
Achutan Nambudri v. Koman Nair, 13 M. L. J. 217	919	Allah Ditta v. Beg, 2 Ind. Cas. 79; 48 P. R. 1909; 72 P. W. R. 1809; 122 P. L. R. 1909	535
Adams v. Hall, (1867) 37 L. T. 70	612	Allen v. Flood, (1898) A. C. 1; 62 J. P. 595; 67 L. J. Q. B. 119; 77 L. T. 717; 14 T. L. R. 125; 46 W. R. 258	228, 247
Adinarayana Iyer v. Krishnan, 15 Ind. Cas. 97; (1912) M. W. N. 707	57	Alliance Bank v. Broom, (1864) 2 Drew. & Sm. 289; 13 W. R. 127; 5 N. R. 66; 34 L. J. Ch. 256; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1121; 11 L. T. 332; 62 E. R. 631; 143 B. R. 120	29
Administrator-General of Bengal v. Land Acquisition Collector, 12 C. W. N. 241	76	Amar Chandra Kundu v. Shoshi Bhushan Roy, 31 C. 305; 31 I. A. 24; 8 C. W. N. 225	300
Ahmad Raza Khan v. Ram Lal, 26 Ind. Cas. 922; 13 A. L. J. 204; 37 A. 203	466	Amarendra Nath Bose v. Shuradhany Dasi, 5 Ind. Cas. 73; 14 C. W. N. 458	407
Ahmedbhoi Habibbhoi v. Cassumbhoi Ahmed- bhoi, 13 B. 534	113	Ambalavana Chetty v. Singaravelu Odayar 15 Ind. Cas. 146; (1912) M. W. N. 669 at p. 680	4.0
Ahmedbhoi Habibbhoi v. Sir Dinshaw M. Petit, 3 Ind. Cas. 124; 11 Bom. L. R. 545; 6 M. L. T. 200	120	Ambalavana Pandaram v. Vaguran, 19 M. 52; 5 M. L. J. 228	395
Aimadar Mandal v. Makhan Lal Dey, 10 C. W. N. 904; 33 C. 1015	416	Amdoo Miyan v. Muhammad Davud Khan Baha- dur, 24 M. 685 at p. 687; 11 M. L. J. 326	503
Aiyakannu Pillai v. Emperor, 1 Ind. Cas. 597; 32 M. 49 at p. 57; 4 M. L. T. 404; 19 M. L. J. 42; 9 Cr. L. J. 41	654	Ameer Hossein v. Sheo Suhae, 19 W. R. 338	790
Aiyangar v. Athmarama Iyer, 2 Ind. Cas. 612; 32 M. 281; 19 M. L. J. 280; 5 M. L. T. 84	684	Ameeroonnissa Khatoon v. Abedoonnisa Khatoon, 2 I. A. 87 at p. 104; 15 B. L. R. 67; 23 W. R. 203	548

A—contd.

Page.

Amir Ali v. Aykup Ali Khan Sandagor, 25 Ind. Cas. 509; 41 C. 347; 19 C. L. J. 428	279
Amir Begam v. Budruddin Husain, 23 Ind. Cas. 625; 18 C. W. N. 755; 19 C. L. J. 494; 36 A. 376; 1 O. L. J. 249; 12 A. L. J. 537; 17 O. C. 120; 16 Bom. L. R. 413; (1914) M. W. N. 172; 16 M. L. T. 35; 27 M. L. J. 181; 1 L. W. 1015	34
Amir Hassan Khan v. Sheo Bakhsh Singh, 11 C. 6; 11 L. A. 237; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 559; Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No. 83	536
Amir Singh v. Chhattar Singh, 29 Ind. Cas. 274; 13 A. L. J. 666	319
Amirthammal v. Periasami Pillai, 4 Ind. Cas. 507; 5 M. L. T. 255; 32 M. 325	78
Ammani v. Jagannath Reddi, 30 Ind. Cas. 7; (1915) M. W. N. 442; 18 M. L. T. 103	53
Anna Bibi v. Najm-un-nissa Bibi, 2 Ind. Cas. 100; 31 A. 382; 6 A. L. J. 519; 5 M. L. T. 358	732
Anolak Chand v. Baij Nath, 20 Ind. Cas. 933; 35 A. 455; 11 A. L. J. 664	482
Amrit Dhar v. Bindesri Prasad, 24 B. 448; A. W. N. (1901) 133	291
Amrita Lal Bagehi v. Jotindra Nath Chowdhry, 32 C. 165	291
Amrita Ravji Row v. Shridhar Narayan, 1 Ind. Cas. 322; 33 B. 317; 11 Bom. L. R. 51	466
Amirthammal v. Ponnusawmi Pillai, 17 M. L. J. 386	78
Ananda Kishore v. Daiji Thakurain, 1 Ind. Cas. 549; 36 C. 726; 10 C. L. J. 189	670
Ananda Razu v. Viyanna, 15 M. 402; 2 M. L. J. 258	245
Anandibai v. Hari Suba Patil, 10 Ind. Cas. 911; 35 B. 293; 13 Bom. L. R. 287	676
Anderson v. Wallace, (1835) 3 Cl. & F. 26; 6 E. R. 1347	34
Angus v. Dalton, 3 Q. B. D. 85	530
Angus v. Dalton, 4 Q. B. D. 162	530
Anker v. Franklin, (1880) 43 L. T. 317; 44 J. P. 830	606
Ananda Prasad Dutt v. Jogesh Chandra Sen Gupta, 23 Ind. Cas. 832	203
Annamalai v. Subramanyam, 15 M. 298	6
Anoda Prasad Ghose v. Rajendra Kumar Ghose, 6 C. W. N. 375; 29 C. 223	559
Anundo Moyee Dossee v. Dhonendra Chunder Mookerjee, 14 M. L. A. 101 at p. 111; 16 W. R. 19 (P. C.); 8 B. L. R. 122; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 457; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 698; 20 E. R. 724	422
Aosub Ali Pramanik v. Biseshuri, 8 C. L. J. 554	555
Apaji Bapuji v. Nilkantha Annaji, 3 Bom. L. R. 667	395
Apana Charan Chowdhry v. Shwe Nu, 4 L. B. R. 124	515
Apap v. Strickland, (1881) 7 A. C. 156	781
Appaji Bhivrao v. Shivalal Khubchand, 3 B. 201	973
Arip Mandal v. Ram Ratan Mandal, 31 C. 757; 8 C. W. N. 79	27
Ariyaputhria Padayachi v. Muthukumarsawmy, 15 Ind. Cas. 343; 23 M. L. J. 339; (1912) M. W. N. 854; 12 M. L. T. 425; 37 M. 423	680
Arumugam Chetty v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara Ettappa 8 Ind. Cas. 330; 35 M. 134; 9 M. L. T. 76	539

A—contd.

Page.

Arni Jagirdar v. Secretary of State for India, 5 M. 226	532
Arthanari Goundan v. Ramaswami Goundan, 20 Ind. Cas. 304; 25 M. L. J. 8; 13 M. L. T. 445; (1913) M. W. N. 448	488
Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 23 Ind. Cas. 632; 18 C. W. N. 747; (1914) M. W. N. 397; 15 M. L. T. 380; 12 A. L. J. 653; 27 M. L. J. 4; 1 L. W. 1059; 41 C. 926 (P. C.)	81
Arumugam Chetty v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara, Ettappa, 15 M. L. J. 292; 28 M. 444	539
Arumugam Pillai v. Emperor, 12 Ind. Cas. 524; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 192; 12 Cr. L. J. 548	612
Arura v. Imam Bakhsh, 24 Ind. Cas. 352; 4 P. W. R. 1914; 28 P. L. R. 1914	497
Arzun v. Bakht Chander Roy Chowdhry, 10 C. 214	531
Asansab Ravathan v. Vamana Rao, 2 M. 223	399
Asgar Ali v. Gouri Mohan Roy, 21 Ind. Cas. 58; 18 C. W. N. 691; 18 C. L. J. 57	557
Ashalai v. Haji Tyeb Haji Rahimtulla, 9 B. 115 at p. 120	144
Ashanulla v. Collector of Dacca, 15 C. 242	705
Ashfaq Hussain v. Gauri Sahai, 9 Ind. Cas. 975; 33 A. 294; 8 A. L. J. 332; 15 C. W. N. 370; 9 M. L. T. 380; 13 C. L. J. 351; 13 Bom. L. R. 367; 4 Bur. L. T. 121; 21 M. L. J. 1140 (P. C.); 28 I. A. 37	423, 918
Asher v. Whitlock, (1865) 1 Q. B. 1; 35 L. J. Q. B. 17; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 925; 13 L. T. 254; 14 W. R. 26; 145 R. R. 598	57
Ashidai v. Abdulla Haji Mahomed, 8 Bom. L. R. 652; 31 B. 271	8
Ashrafud Dowlat Ahmed Hossein Khan Bahadur v. Hyder Hossein Khan, 11 M. L. A. 94 at p. 113; 7 W. R. 1 (P. C.); 1 Suth. P. C. J. 659; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 223; 2 E. R. 37	659
Ashutosh Roy v. Harinarain Singh, 3 C. L. J. 143	973
Ashutosh Sikdar v. Behari Lal, 11 C. W. N. 1011; 35 C. 61; 6 C. L. J. 320	667
Assanatham Nassa Bibee v. Roy Lutchmeeput Singh, 4 C. 142 (P. B.); 2 C. L. R. 223; 1 Shome L. R. 219	180
Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed Ali, 10 C. 932 at p. 935	896
Atal Rishi v. Lakshmi Narain Ghose, 2 Ind. Cas. 417; 10 C. L. J. 55	790
Atar Singh v. Thakar Singh, 6 Ind. Cas. 721; 42 P. R. 1910; 12 C. W. N. 1049; 8 C. L. J. 359; 15 M. L. J. 379; 35 C. 1039; 35 I. A. 206; 128 P. W. R. 1908; 4 M. L. T. 207; 10 Bom. L. R. 790	295
Attorney-General v. Ailesbury, (1887) 12 A. C. 672 at p. 694; 57 L. J. Q. B. 83; 58 L. T. 192; 36 W. R. 737	411
Attorney-General v. Cambridge Consumers' Gas Company, (1865) 4 Ch. 71; 35 L. J. Ch. 94; 19 L. T. 508; 17 W. R. 145	73
Attorney-General v. Cockermouth Local Board, (1874) 18 Eq. 172 at p. 176; 44 L. J. Ch. 118; 39 L. T. 590; 22 W. R. 619	65
Attorney-General v. Conduit Colliery Company, (1895) 1 Q. B. 301; 64 L. J. Q. B. 207; 15 R. 267; 71 L. T. 777; 43 W. R. 366; 59 J. P. 70	67

A—conold.

B—contd.

	Page.
Attorney-General v. Forbes, (1836) 2 My. & Cr. 123; 45 R. R. 15; 40 E. R. 587	65
Attorney-General v. Freer, (1822) 11 Price 183; 147 E. R. 441	461
Attorney-General v. Hall, (1731) Fitz. 314; W. Kel. 13; 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 93, pl. 21; 94 E. R. 772	410
Attorney-General v. Kingston-on-Thames Corporation, (1865) 34 L. J. Ch. 481; 146 R. R. 703; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 596; 12 L. T. 665; 13 W. R. 888	68
Attorney-General v. Logan, (1891) 2 Q. B. 100; 65 L. T. 162; 55 J. P. 615	65
Attorney-General v. Lonsdale (Earl), (1868) 7 Eq. 377; 38 L. J. Ch. 335; 20 L. T. 64; 17 W. R. 219	65
Attorney-General v. Manchester Corporation (1893) 2 Ch. 87; 62 L. J. Ch. 459; 3 R. 427; 68 L. T. 608; 41 W. R. 469; 57 J. P. 343	68
Attorney-General v. Nottingham Corporation, (1904) 8 Ch. 673; 73 L. J. Ch. 512; 90 L. T. 308; 52 W. R. 291; 68 J. P. 25; L. G. R. 698; 20 T. L. R. 257	68
Attorney-General v. Rathmines & Pembroke Hospital Board, (1904) 1 I. R. 161; 7 Irish Law Rep. 679	68
Attorney-General v. Sheffield Gas Consumer's Company, (1853) 3 De. G. M. & G. 304; 98 R. R. 151; 22 L. J. Ch. 811; 17 Jur. 677; 11 W. R. 245; 43 E. R. 119	73
Aubhoyessury Debee v. Gouri Sunkar Panday, 22 C. 859	478
Avanasi Gounden v. Nachammal, 29 M. 195; 1 M. L. T. 25; 16 M. L. J. 41	214
Avula Charamudi v. Marriboyina Raghavulu, 25 Ind. Cas. 871; 28 M. L. J. 471; 18 M. L. T. 76; (1915) M. W. N. 596	573
Ayatunnessa Beebee v. Karam Ali, 1 Ind. Cas. 513; 12 C. W. N. 907; 36 C. 23	563
Ayyavu Muppanar v. Niladatchi Ammal, 1 M. H. C. R. 45	575
Azizullah Khan v. Ahmad Ali Khan, 7 A. 353; A. W. N. (1885) 54	723

B

	Page.
Bachu Perrajugar v. Bhogireddy Subbarayudu, 12 Ind. Cas. 171; 36 M. 126; 10 M. L. T. 282; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 251	81
Badarannissa Bibi v. Mafiatallah, 7 B. L. R. 412; 15 W. R. 555	563
Badi-un-nissa v. Shams-ud-din, 17 A. 103; A. W. N. (1895) 20	427
Bahadur v. Eradatullah, 6 Ind. Cas. 801; 37 C. 642; 12 C. L. J. 45; 14 C. W. N. 799; 11 Cr. L. J. 407	178
Bahadur Lal v. Jadhao, 2 N. L. R. 174	878
Bahadur Singh v. Des Raj, 53 P. R. 1901 (P. B.); 62 P. L. R. 1901	477
Bahram Khan v. Saidal Khan, 2 P. R. 1904; 48 P. L. R. 1904	234
Bai Baiji v. Bai Santok, 20 B. 53	118
Bai Dwiali v. Moti Karson, 21 B. 509	187
Bai Machhbai v. Bai Hirbai, 10 Ind. Cas. 16; 35 B. 264; 13 Bom. L. R. 251	385
Bai Parvati, In re 8 Ind. Cas. 631; 35 B. 163; 12 Bom. L. R. 923; 11 Cr. L. J. 692	348
Baij Nath Sahai v. Ramgat Singh, 5 C. L. J. 687	669
Baij Nath Sahai v. Ramgat Singh, 23 I. A. 45; 23 C. 775	669
Baillie v. Edinburgh Oil Gas Light Co., (1835) 3 Cl. & F. 639; 6 E. R. 1577	34
Bajraungi Singh v. Manokarnika Bakhsh Singh, 30 A. 1; 17 M. L. J. 605; 9 Bom. L. R. 1348; 12 C. W. N. 74; 6 C. L. J. 766; 35 I. A. 1 (P. C.); 3 M. L. T. 1; 5 A. L. J. 1	488, 955
Bakhu v. Amir, 47 P. R. 1896	535
Balaji v. Dajiba, 2 C. P. L. R. 137 at p. 139	69
Balasubramania v. Sivaguru Asuri, 11 Ind. Cas. 629; 21 M. L. J. 62	420
Balgobind Das v. Barkat Ali, A. W. N. (1888) 15	805
Balkishen Das v. Simpson, 25 I. A. 151; 25 C. 833; 2 C. W. N. 513	744, 977
Balmakund v. Dalu, 25 A. 498; A. W. N. (1903) 112	666
Bammidi Bayya Naidu v. Bammidi Paradesi Naidu, 10 Ind. Cas. 75; 35 M. 216; 21 M. L. J. 344; 10 M. L. T. 533	973
Bandacharya v. Shrinivasacharya, 5 Bom. L. R. 742	466
Bank of New South Wales v. Owston, 4 App. Cas. 270 at p. 274; 48 I. J. P. C. 25; 40 L. T. 500; 14 Cox. C. C. 267	298
Banke Lal v. Jagat Narain, A. W. N. (1900) 31; 22 A. 168	810
Banoo Begum v. Mir Aun Ali, 9 Bom. L. R. 184	723
Bapuji v. Kavarji, 15 B. 400	6
Bapuji Apaji v. Senavaraji Marvadi, 2 B. 231	390
Baroda Sundari Ghose v. Dino Bandhu Khan, 25 C. 874; 3 C. W. N. 12	190
Barstow v. Black, (1868) 1 Sc. & Div. 392	409
Barton v. Barton, (1857) 3 K. & J. 512; 3 Jur. (N. S.) 808; 69 E. R. 1212; 112 R. R. 266	409
Basant Lal v. Nojmunnessa Bibi, 6 A. 14; A. W. N. (1883) 179	427
Basanta Kumar v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 6 Ind. Cas. 792; 14 C. W. N. 872	296
Basappa v. Rayava, 29 B. 91; 6 Bom. L. R. 779	290

B—contd.

Page.

Basdeo v. Smidt, 22 A. 55; A. W. N. (1899) 172	667
Basi Poddar v. Ram Krishna Poddar, 1 C. W. N. 135	189
Basiruddin v. Mahomed Jalish, 12 C. W. N. 409	190
Batcha Sahib v. Abdul Gunny, 21 Ind. Cas. 308; 38 M. 256; 14 M. L. T. 314; 25 M. L. J. 507; (1914) M. W. N. 142	702
Bateman v. Bluck, (1852) 18 Q. B. 870; 88 R. R. 813; 21 L. J. Q. B. 406; 17 Jur. 386; 118 E. R. 329	64
Baten's case (1610) 9 Co. Rep. 53 b; 77 E. R. 810	67
Bathurst v. Eirington, (1877) 2 A. C. 698 at p. 709; 46 L. J. Ch. 748; 37 L. T. 338; 25 W. R. 908	412
Battoo v. Narain Prasad, 28 Ind. Cas. 869; 11 N. L. R. 49	294
Batak Nath v. Munni Dei, 23 Ind. Cas. 644; 36 A. 284 (P. C.); 19 C. L. J. 574; 12 A. L. J. 596; 16 Bom. L. R. 360; 27 M. L. J. 1; 16 M. L. T. 1; 1 L. W. 729; 18 C. W. N. 740	429
Beatty v. Gillbanks, 9 Q. B. D. 308; 51 L. J. M. C. 117; 47 L. T. 194; 31 W. R. 275; 15 Cox. C. C. 138; 46 J. P. 789	344
Behari Mahon v. Queen-Empress, 11 C. 106	825
Bell v. Quebec Corporation, (1879) 5 App. Cas. 84; 49 L. J. P. C. 1; 41 L. T. 451	65
Bendelow v. Wortley Union, (1887) 57 L. T. 849; 57 L. J. Ch. 762; 36 W. R. 168	65
Beni Prasad v. Shahzada Ojha, 32 C. 856	244
Beni Ram v. Kundan Lal, 21 A. 496 at p. 604; 26 I. A. 58; 3 C. W. N. 502; 1 Bom. L. R. 400; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 523	488
Beni Ram v. Ram Chandra, 26 Ind. Cas. 302; 36 A. 560; 12 A. L. J. 959	60
Berdan v. Greenwood, (1878) 3 Ex. D. 251; 47 L. J. Ex. 628; 39 L. T. 223; 26 W. R. 902	183
Bernal v. Bernal, 40 E. R. 104; 3 Myl. & Cr. 559; C. P. Coop 55; 7 L. J. Ch. 115; 2 Jur. 273; 45 R. R. 330	767
Berriman v. Peacock, (1832) 2 M. & Scott. 524; 9 Bing. 384; 2 L. J. C. P. 23; 134 Eng. Rep. 660; 35 R. R. 568	13
Bew v. Bew, (18 9) 2 Ch. 467; 68 L. J. Ch. 657; 81 L. T. 284; 48 W. R. 124	313
Bhadhawa v. Gandhella, 68 P. R. 1878	796
Bhagabati Bewa v. Nanda Kumar Chuckerbutty, 12 C. W. N. 835	813
Bhagavatulu Suryanarayana v. Yelleswarapu Venkata Subarayadu, 9 Ind. Cas. 148; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 198; 9 M. L. T. 481	393
Bhagwat Sahai v. Pushupati Nath Bose, 3 C. L. J. 237; 10 C. W. N. 564	301
Bhaiyalal v. Jamnadas, 11 C. P. L. R. 91	881
Bhajahari Shah Banikya v. Behary Lal Basak, 33 C. 881; 4 C. L. J. 162	816
Bhajan Lal v. Cheda Lal, 24 Ind. Cas. 215; 12 A. L. J. 825	319
Bhasker Tatya Shet v. Vijalal Nathu, 17 B. 512	32
Bhawan Singh v. Narottam Singh, 2 Ind. Cas. 365; 31 A. 444; 6 A. L. J. 499	65
Bhawani Koer v. Mathura Prasad, 7 C. L. J. 1 at pp. 20, 21	556
Bhola Pershad v. Ram Lal, 24 C. 34	191
Bhola Singh v. Gurdit Singh, 66 P. R. 1884	463

B—contd.

Page.

Bholanath Khettry v. Kartick Kissen Das Khettry, 34 C. 372; 11 C. W. N. 462	719
Bholi v. Kahna, 1 Ind. Cas. 695; 35 P. R. 1909; 45 P. L. R. 1909; 32 P. W. R. 1909	535
Bhonda Singh v. Dowlat Roy, 14 Ind. Cas. 93; 15 C. L. J. 675	14
Bhooban Mohini Debia v. Hurrish Chunder Chowdhry, 5 I. A. 138; 4 C. 23; 3 C. L. R. 339; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 815; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 537; 2 Ind. Jur. 430; 1 Shome L. R. 241	410
Bhoobunessur Roy v. Juggessaree, 22 W. R. 413	189
Bhowani Prosad Shaha v. Jaggernath Shaha, 3 Ind. Cas. 24; 13 C. W. N. 303; 9 C. L. J. 133	676
Bhutnath Naskar v. Monmotho Nath Mitra, 2 Ind. Cas. 675; 1 C. L. J. 98; 13 C. W. N. 1025	20
Bhuyan Abdus Sobhan Khan, In re , 2 Ind. Cas. 846; 36 C. 643; 13 C. W. N. 653; 13 Cr. L. J. 190	650
Bibi Khaver Sultan v. Bibi Rukhia Sultan, 29 B. 468; 7 Bom. L. R. 443	283
Bijoy Gopal Mukerji v. Girindra Nath Mukerji, 23 Ind. Cas. 16; 41 C. 793; 19 C. L. J. 620 (P. C.); 18 C. W. N. 67; 12 A. L. J. 711; 16 Bom. L. R. 425; 16 M. L. T. 68; 27 M. L. J. 123; 1 L. W. 533; (1914) M. W. N. 430	434
Bijoy Gopal Mukerji v. Krishna Mahishi Debi, 34 C. 320; 9 Bom. L. R. 602; 4 A. L. J. 329; 5 C. L. J. 334; 11 C. W. N. 424; 17 M. L. J. 154; 34 I. A. 87 (P. C.); 2 M. L. T. 133	594
Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit Singh, 30 Ind. Cas. 299; 13 A. L. J. 991; 19 C. W. N. 1207; 29 M. L. J. 335; 2 L. W. 830; 18 M. L. T. 248; 17 Bom. L. R. 1006; 37 A. 557	587
Bimaraz v. Papaya, 3 M. 46	54
Binad Lal Pakrashi v. Kala Paramanik, 20 C. 708	769
Bindesri Naik v. Ganga Saran Sahu, 20 A. 171; (P. C.); 25 I. A. 9; 2 C. W. N. 129; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 273	260, 539
Birajun Koer v. Luchmi Narain Mahata, 10 C. 392	985
Birendra Kishore Mankya Bahadur v. Akram Ali, 3 Ind. Cas. 513; 15 C. L. J. 194 at p. 198; 16 C. W. N. 304 at p. 308; 39 C. 439	392
Bisherhar Das v. Ram Prasad, 28 A. 627; 3 A. L. J. 379; A. W. N. (1909) 142	205
Bireswar Samanta v. Periya Sakhi Debi, 28 Ind. Cas. 917	416
Bireswar Dutt v. Baroda Prosad Ray, 11 Ind. Cas. 504; 15 C. W. N. 825	873
Bireswar Mukerji v. Ardha Chunder Roy, 19 C. 452; 19 I. A. 101	856
Birj Kumar Lal v. Sheo Kumar Misra, 29 Ind. Cas. 215; 37 A. 444; 13 A. L. J. 619	915
Bishambhar Nath v. Fateh Lal, 29 A. 176; A. W. N. (1907) 1; 4 A. L. J. 95	941
Bishop Mellus v. Vicar Apostolic of Malabar, 2 M. 295; 3 Ind. Jur. 406	7
Bissesswar Prosad v. Lala Sarnam Singh, 6 C. L. J. 134	23
Bithul Bhut v. Lalla Raj Kishore, 2 Agra H. O. R. 254	733

B—contd.

	Page.
Blades v. Higgs, (1865) 11 H. L. Cas. 621 at pp. 632, 633; 11 Eng. Rep. 1474 at p. 1479; 20 O. B. (N. S.) 214; 34 L. J. C. P. 286; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 701; 12 L. T. 615; 13 W. R. 927; 14 R. R. 334	580
Blain, Ex parte , Sawers, In re , (1879) 12 Ch. D. 522; 41 L. T. 46; 28 W. R. 334	586
Board of Education v. Rice, (1911) A. C. 179; 80 L. J. K. B. 796; 104 L. T. 689; 75 J. P. 393; 9 L. G. R. 652; 55 S. J. 440; 27 T. L. R. 378	622
Bogar v. Karam Singh, 13 P. W. R. 1907; 141 P. R. 1906; 96 P. L. R. 1907	190
Boiddonath Shah v. Lalunissa Bibee, 7 W. R. 164	476
Bombay Burmah Trading Corporation v. Dorabji Cursetji Shroff, 27 B. 415; 5 Bom. L. R. 348	47
Bommidi Bayyan Naidu v. Bommidi Suryanarayana, 17 Ind. Cas. 445; 23 M. L. J. 543 (F. B.); 12 M. L. T. 500 (1912) M. W. N. 1; 37 M. 70	270
Bonsey v. Wordsworth, (1856) 18 C. B. 325 at p. 334; 25 L. J. C. P. 205; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 494; 4 W. R. 565; 139 E. R. 1395; 107 R. R. 318	630
Boswell, In re , Merritt v. Boswell, (1906) 2 Ch. 359 at p. 366; 75 L. J. Ch. 234; 94 L. T. 243; 22 T. L. R. 247	629
Bourn v. Gibbs, (1831) 1 Rus. & My. 614; Tam. 414; 8 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 151; 39 E. R. 236; 31 R. R. 300	409
Bowes v. Goslet, (1857) 27 L. J. Ch. 249; 4 Jur. (N. S.) 17; 6 W. R. 8	409
Boyce v. Paddington Borough Council, (1901) 1 Ch. 159; 72 L. J. Ch. 28; 87 L. T. 564; 51 W. R. 109; 67 J. P. 23; L. G. R. 98	65
Bradburn v. Great Western Railway, (1874) 10 Ex. 1; 44 L. J. Ex. 9; 31 L. T. 464; 23 W. R. 68	964
Bradlaugh v. Clarke, (1883) 8 A. C. 354; 52 L. J. Q. B. 505; 48 L. T. 681; 31 W. R. 677; 47 J. P. 405	461
Brij Coomaree v. Salamander Fire Insurance Co., 32 C. 816	335
Brij Indar Bahadar Singh v. Ramee Janki Koer, 5 I. A. 1; 1 C. L. R. 318	753
Brij Lal v. Musammatt Inda Kunwar, 23 Ind. Cas. 715; 16 A. 187 (P. C.); 19 C. L. J. 469; 26 M. L. J. 443; 18 C. W. N. 649; 12 A. L. J. 495; 1914) M. W. N. 405; 15 M. L. T. 395; 16 Bom. L. R. 352; 1 L. W. 794	435
Brijmohun Dobay, In the matter of , 2 C. W. N. 306	586
Brinda v. Kaunsilia, 13 A. 126; A. W. N. (1891) 15	245
Brindaban Chunder Shaha v. Sureshwar Shaha, 3 Ind. Cas. 178; 10 C. L. J. 263	703
Bristol Waterworks Company v. Uren, (1883) 15 Q. B. D. 637 at p. 645; 54 L. J. M. C. 97; 52 L. T. 655; 49 J. P. 564	611
British India Steam Navigation Company v. Hajee Mahomed Esack & Co., 3 M. 107	475
British Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company Limited v. Underground Electric Railways Company of London, Limited, (1912) A. C. 673; 81 L. J. K. B. 1132; 107 L. T. 325; 56 S. J. 734	952

B—concl.

	Page.
Brojonath Koondoo Chowdry v. Khelut Chunder Ghose, 14 M. I. A. 144; 16 W. R. 38 (P. C.); 8 B. L. R. 104; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 480; 2 Sat. P. C. J. 711; 20 E. R. 740	417
Brown v. Alabaster, (1887) 37 Ch. D. 490; 57 L. J. Ch. 215; 58 L. T. 265; 36 W. R. 155	552
Bryant v. Flight, (1839) 5 M. & W. 114; 2 H. & N. 84; 8 L. J. Ex. 189; 3 Jur. 681; 151 E. R. 49	785
Buechele v. Metropolitan Board of Works, (1870) 5 Ex. 221; 41 L. J. Ex. 137; 27 L. T. 5 H. L. 418	34
Buckton, In re Buckton v. Buckton, (1907) 2 Ch. 406 at p. 414; 76 L. J. Ch. 54; 97 L. T. 332; 23 T. L. R. 692	443
Budh Singh v. Hardial Singh, 52 P. R. 1897	255
Budhu v. Hira, 27 P. R. 1892	255
Budree v. Oodho, (1853) N. W. P. S. D. 161	233
Bull v. Kingston, (1816) 1 Mer. 314; 35 E. R. 690	409
Bura v. Man Singh, 82 P. R. 1892	494
Buta v. Municipal Committee, 29 I. A. 168; 29 C. 854; 7 C. W. N. 82; 4 Bom. L. R. 673	34
Butcher v. Stead, (1875) 44 L. J. Bk. 129; 7 H. L. 839; 33 L. T. 541; 24 W. R. 463	52

C

Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Lockhart, (1860) 3 Macqueen H. L. 808; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 1311; 3 L. T. 65; 8 W. R. 373; 119 R. R. 1101	33
Campbell v. Jackson, 12 C. 41	36
Cawthorne v. Campbell, (1790) 1 Aust. 205 at p. 214; 145 E. R. 846	461
Chairman of the Parnua Municipality v. Siva Sankar Ram, 33 C. 591	208
Chajju Mal v. Telu Mal, 13 Ind. Cas. 665; 53 P. R. 1912; 61 P. W. R. 1912; 108 P. L. R. 1912	203
Chakouri Mahton v. Gauga Proshad, 12 Ind. Cas. 649; 39 C. 862; 15 C. L. J. 228; 16 C. W. N. 519	303
Chalamayya v. Varadayya, 22 M. 166; 9 M. L. J. 3	941
Chalasamy Ramiah v. Chalasamy Ramaswami, 13 Ind. Cas. 903; 11 M. L. T. 155; (1912) M. W. N. 199	105
Chamar Haru v. Kashi, 26 B. 358; 4 Bom. L. R. 73	290
Chandra Kanwar v. Narpal Singh, 34 I. A. 27; 11 C. W. N. 321; 29 A. 184; 11 C. W. N. 321; 4 A. L. J. 102; 5 C. L. J. 115; 17 M. L. J. 103; 2 M. L. T. 109; 9 Bom. L. R. 267 (P. C.)	666
Charu Surnokar v. Dokouri Chunder Thakoor, 8 C. 956; 10 C. L. R. 577	532
Chatarpal Singh v. Natha, 3 A. L. J. 38; A. W. N. (1906) 26	719
Chatterton v. Secretary of State for India in Council, (1895) 2 Q. B. 189; 64 L. J. Q. B. 676; 14 R. 504; 72 L. T. 858; 59 J. P. 596	226
Chaudhri Hazara Singh v. Mohammad Khan, 134 P. L. R. 1901	213
Chaudhri Mehdi Hasan v. Muhammad Hasan, 10 C. W. N. 706; 28 A. 439; 3 A. L. J. 405; 8 Bom. L. R. 387; 4 C. L. J. 295; 33 I. A. 68 (P. C.); 9 O. C. 106; 1 M. L. T. 106	282

C—contd.

	Page
Chen Bash Shaha, v. Kadum Mundat, 5 C. 57; 4 Ind. Jur. 517	673
Chetti Goundou, v. Sundaram Pillai, 2 M. H. C. R. 51	417
Chhota Ram v. Billo Ali, 26 C. 53; 3 C. W. N. 313	52
Chinnammal v. Varadarajulu, 15 M. 307	819
Chinnammal v. Venkateshulu, 15 M. 421; 2 M. L. J. 86	28
Chinnaya v. Gurusatham Chetti, 5 M. 169	31
Chint Singh v. Emperor, 67 P. L. R. 1901	376
Chiragh Bili v. Hassan, 19 P. R. 1906; 70 P. L. R. 1906	694, 795
Christiana Benschaw v. Benarasi Prashad, 22 Ind. Cas. 685; 19 C. W. N. 287	457
Chowdhuri An Nand v. Manu, 61 P. R. 1888	224
Chowdhury Thakur Prashad Shaki v. Moosamul Bhaglati Koer, 1 C. L. J. 142 at p. 143	907
Christie v. Davey, (1893) 1 Ch. 316; 62 L. J. Ch. 439; 3 R. 210	73
Chujmali v. Khyrtee, 3 Agra H. C. R. 65	244
Chukkun Lal Roy v. Lohit Mohan Roy, 20 C. 906 at p. 925	245
Chundra Sakal v. Kali Prasanna Chuckerbatty, 23 C. 254	516
Chundal Maneklal v. Kripashankar, 31 R. 37; 8 Bom. L. R. 838	323
Chunilal Parvatishankar v. Bai Samrat, 23 Ind. Cas. 645; 6 Bom. L. R. 366; 26 M. L. J. 647; 18 C. W. N. 844; 19 C. L. J. 563; 12 A. L. J. 742; 16 M. L. T. 59; 38 B. 390; 1 L. W. 762	151
Chunnee Lal v. Jussau, (1813) 1 Bor. 55 at p. 60	435
Churaman Sahu v. Gopi Sahu, 1 Ind. Cas. 945; 37 C. L. 13 C. W. N. 994; 10 C. L. J. 545	435
Chuttan Lal v. Kallu, 8 Ind. Cas. 719; 33 A. 283; 8 A. L. J. 15	719
Clydelank Engineering and Shipbuilding Co. v. Yzquierdo Castaneda, (1905) A. C. 6; 74 L. J. P. C. 1; 91 L. T. 666; 21 T. L. R. 58	396
Colchester v. Brooke, (1815) 7 Q. B. 339; 68 R. R. 458; 15 L. J. Q. B. 59; 9 Jur. 1090; 115 E. R. 518	64
Collector of Basti v. Sarnam Gharak, 11 Ind. Cas. 817; 8 A. L. J. 802	631
Collector of Madura v. Moottu Ramalinga Sathupathy, 12 M. L. A. 397 at p. 436; 10 W. R. 17 (P. C.); 1 B. L. R. P. C. 1; 2 Sath. P. C. J. 135; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 361; 20 E. R. 383	577
Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Venkata Narainpala, 8 M. L. A. 529 at p. 550; 2 W. R. 61 (P. C.); 1 Sath. P. C. J. 476; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 820; 19 E. R. 631	434
Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Venkata Narainpala, 8 M. L. A. 500; 2 W. R. P. C. 59; 1 Sath. P. C. J. 417; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 752; 19 E. R. 60	591
Collector of Mirzapur v. Dewan Singh, 30 A. C. A. W. N. (1908) 160; 5 A. L. J. 486	805
Collector of Salem, In the matter of the petition of 7 M. H. C. R. 2-3; 2 Weir 664	383
Collinson v. Jeffery, (1896) 1 Ch. 644; 65 L. J. Ch. 375; 74 L. T. 78; 44 W. R. 311	201
Collyer v. Dudley, (1823) 2 L. J. (o. s.) Ch. 1; Turb. & R. 421; 37 E. R. 143	663

C—concl.

	Page
Colonial Sugar Refining Company v. Irving, (1903) A. C. 360; 74 L. J. P. C. 77; 92 L. T. 733; 21 T. L. R. 513	214
Coltsmann v. Coltsmann, (1868) 3 IL. L. 121 at p. 130; 10 W. R. 443	411
Comiskey v. Bowring-Hanbury, (1905) A. C. 84; 74 L. J. Ch. 263; 92 L. T. 241; 53 W. R. 402; 21 T. L. R. 252	408
Commissioners for Special Purposes of Income Tax v. Pemsel, (1891) A. C. 531; 61 L. J. Q. B. 265; 65 L. T. 621; 56 J. P. 805	1004
Cooke v. Charles A. Vogeler Company, (1901) A. C. 102; 70 L. J. Q. B. 181; 84 L. T. 10; 17 T. L. R. 153; 8 Manson. 113	586
Coren v. Appahamy, (1912) A. C. 230; 81 L. J. P. C. 151; 105 L. T. 836	466
Cossinart Byasack v. Hurroosondry Dossee (18.0) 2 Morley's Digest 198; 3 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 957, affirmed in Privy Council, Clark's Rules and Orders 1834 p. 91; Montrieux's Cases on Hindu Law, 477; 1 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 292; Morton 85; 1 Ind. Dec. o. s. 1945; Vyavastha Darpan, 1st Ed. 97, 2nd Ed. 89	434
Coverdale v. Eastwood, (1872) 15 Eq. 121; 42 L. J. Ch. 118; 27 L. T. 646; 21 W. R. 216	712
Cuthbert v. Purrier, (1822) Jac. 415; 23 R. R. 104	479
Cutler v. Turner, 9 Q. B. 502; 43 L. J. M. C. 124; 50 L. T. 708; 22 W. R. 810	377
Currie v. Misa, (1875) 10 Ex. 153 at p. 164; 1 App. Cas. 554	628
Currie v. Pye, (1811) 17 Ves. (Jun.) 452 at p. 468; 34 E. R. 179	152

D

Dadoba Arjunji v. Damodar Raghunath, 16 B. 486	38
Dagdu v. Balvant Ramchandra Nahu, 22 B. 820	190
Dalgleish v. Damodar Narain Chowdhury, 33 C. 1286; 8 C. L. J. 533	196
Dalton v. Angus, 6 App. Cas. 740; 50 L. J. Q. B. 689; 44 L. T. 844; 30 W. R. 191; 46 J. P. 132	529
Damodardas Maneklal v. Uttamram Maneklal, 17 B. 271	907
Damodar Misser v. Senalutty Misra, 8 C. 537 at pp. 542, 543; 0 C. L. R. 401; 6 Ind. Jur. 584	907
Danmull v. British India Steam Navigation Company, 12 C. 477	475
Darbyshire v. Leigh, (1893) 1 Q. B. 554; 65 L. J. Q. B. 360; 74 L. T. 24; 44 W. R. 452	182
Daryasing v. Mukundsingh, 2 C. P. L. R. 103	467
Daud Ali Shah v. Ram Prasad, 16 Ind. Cas. 787; 13 A. L. J. 750; 37 A. 542	911
Daud Khan v. Govinda, 2 Ind. Cas. 15; 5 N. L. R. 41	465
Daulat Ram v. Woollen Mills Company, Ltd., Delhi, 95 P. R. 1908	726
Davalava v. Bhimaji Dhondo, 20 B. 335	181
Davies v. Davies, (1887) 36 Ch. D. 359; 56 L. J. Ch. 481; 56 L. T. 401; 35 W. R. 697	633
Davis v. James, (1884) 23 Ch. D. 778; 53 L. J. Ch. 523; 50 L. T. 115; 32 W. R. 406	182

D—contd.

	Page.
Dawson v. Power, (1847) 5 Hare 415; 71 R. R. 155; 4 Railw. Cas. 81; 16 L. J. Ch. 274; 11 Jur. 766; 67 E. R. 974	68
Dayal v. Narnin Das, 64 P. R. 1884	187
De-Beauvoir v. De-Beauvoir, (1852) 3 H. L. C. 524 at p. 545; 16 Jur. 1147; 10 E. R. 206; 88 R. R. 191	412
De Bussche v. Alf, 8 Ch. D. 256; 47 L. J. Ch. 381; 38 L. T. 370	219
De Silva v. Le Silva, 6 Bom. L. R. 403	301
Deb Narain Dutt v. Ram Sadhan Mundal, 20 Ind. Cas. 630; 41 C. 137; 18 C. L. J. 603; 17 C. W. N. 1143	25
Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samad Seroji, 1 Ind. Cas. 264; 10 C. L. J. 150 at p. 163	570
Debi Bakhsh Singh v. Chandrabhan Singh, 7 Ind. Cas. 724; 13 O. C. 316; 14 C. W. N. 1010; 12 C. L. J. 303; 8 M. L. T. 273; 7 A. L. J. 1122; 12 Bom. L. R. 1015; 20 M. L. J. 917; 32 A. 599; 37 L. A. 168	752
Debi Prasad v. Rup Ram, 10 A. 577; A. W. N. (1888) 215	402
Debi Prasad Chowdhry v. Golap Bhagat, 19 Ind. Cas. 273; 40 C. 721; 17 O. W. N. 701; 17 C. L. J. 499	985
Delbi and London Bank Limited v. Orchard, 3 C. 47 (P. C.); 41 A. 127; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 721; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 423; 7 P. R. 1878; 1 Ind. Jur. 457	423
Deno Nath Dey Sarkar v. Kali Kumar Roy, 29 Ind. Cas. 916	860
Deo Narain Chowdhury v. Webb, 25 C. 86; 5 C. W. N. 160	244
Des Raj v. Khan Bahadur, P. L. R. 1900; p. 332	213
Dev Gopal Savant v. Vasudev Vithal Savant, 12 B. 317 at p. 376	312
Devachand v. Hirachand, 13 B. 449	973
Devanai v. Raghunatha Row, 18 Ind. Cas. 298; 13 M. L. T. 351; (1913) M. W. N. 586	215
Devi Bhuknoji Kasidoss Subbaraya v. Allamadugu Narayana Reddi, 28 Ind. Cas. 49; (1915) M. W. N. 109	539
Devji, In re, 18 B. 581	654
Devonport Corporation v. Plymouth, Devonport Tramways Co., (1884) 52 L. T. 161; 49 J. P. 405	65
Dhackerjee Dadaji v. East India Company, 2 Morley's Digest 307; Perry, O. C. 44; 4 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 587	226
Dhan Devi v. Zamurrad Begam, 27 A. 440; 2 A. L. J. 115; A. W. N. (1905) 37 (F. B.)	880
Dhanpat Mal v. Khazana, 67 P. R. 1897	45
Dhanpat Rai v. Musammatt Kahn Devi, 23 Ind. Cas. 422; 30 P. R. 1914; 11 P. W. R. 1914; 31 P. L. R. 1914	81
Dharam Chand Boid v. Mouji Shahu, 16 Ind. Cas. 440; 16 C. L. J. 436	990
Dharam Das v. Ganga Devi, 29 A. 773; A. W. N. (1907) 263; 4 A. L. J. 628	783
Dharmadas Kavar v. Emperor, 7 C. L. J. 373; 12 C. W. N. 575; 7 Cr. L. J. 340	654
Dhondba v. Vishwanath, 15 C. P. L. R. 143	471
Dhurum Das Panday v. Shama Soondri Dibiah, 3 M. I. A. 229, 6 W. R. (P. C.) 43; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 147; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 271; 18 E. R. 484	587

D—contd.

	Page.
Digambar Keshav v. Narayan Vithal, 9 Ind. Cas. 354; 13 Bom. L. R. 38	703
Dilbar Sardar v. Hosein Ali Bepari, 26 C. 553	450
Dimes v. Grand Junction Canal, 3 H. L. C. 759; 88 R. R. 330; 17 Jur. 73; 10 E. R. 301	599
Dimes v. Petley, (1850) 15 Q. B. 276; 81 R. R. 573; 19 L. J. Q. B. 449; 14 Jur. 1132; 117 E. R. 462	64
Dinobondhu Shaw Chowdhry v. Jegunaya Dasi, 29 I. A. 9; 29 C. 154; 6 C. W. N. 209; 12 M. L. J. 73; 4 Bom. L. R. 238	21
Dinomoni Chowdhurani v. Brojo Mohini Chowdhurani, 29 C. 187; 29 I. A. 24 (P. C.); 6 C. W. N. 386	790, 977
Dirga Singh v. Debi Singh, 1 A. 490	232
Diwan Chand v. Ghulam Hussain, 30 P. R. 1807	200
Dixon In re Dixon v. Charlesworth, (1903) 2 Ch. 458; 72 L. J. Ch. 642; 88 L. T. 862; 51 W. R. 652	409
Doe v. Harlow, (1840) 54 R. R. 523; 12 Ad. & Ell. 40; 113 E. R. 724	873
Doe d. Gray v. Stanion, (1836) 1 M. & W. 695; 5 L. J. Ex. 253; 1 Tyr. & G. 1065; 2 Gale, 154; 150 E. R. 614; 46 R. R. 464	221
Doe d. Roylance v. Lightfoot, 8 M. & W. 553; 151 E. R. 1158; 11 L. J. Ex. 151; 5 Jur. 966; 58 R. R. 813	416
Doe d. Stevenson v. Glover, (1845) 1 C. B. 448; 14 L. J. C. P. 169; 135 E. R. 615	409
Dogar Mal v. Secretary of State, 4 P. R. 1904 Rev. 82 P. L. R. 1904	239
Donzelle v. Kedarnath Chuckerbutty, 7 B. L. R. 750; 16 W. R. 186	190
Doorga Doss Chowdry v. Ramananth Chowdry, 8 M. I. A. 262 at p. 264; 19 E. R. 530; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 772	298
Dosibai v. Ishwardas Jagjivandas, 15 B. 212; 18 I. A. 22	732
Dosibai v. Ishwardas Jagjivandas, 9 B. 561	733
Dost Muhammad Khan v. Bank of Upper India, 3 A. L. J. 129; A. W. N. (1906) 44	733
Dubois v. Keats, 11 A. & E. 329; 3 P. & D. 306; 9 L. J. Q. B. 66; 4 Jur. 148; 52 R. R. 361; 113 E. R. 440	247
Dukaloo v. Dhularsing, 4 C. P. L. R. 187	872
Dulchand Chaudhri v. Lallah Kurmi, 1 N. L. R. 4	472
Dulla v. Hari Kishen Das, 28 Ind. Cas. 213; 190 P. L. R. 1915; 6 P. R. 1915	636
Dangannon v. Smith, (1846) 12 Cl. & F. 546 at 594; 10 Jur. 721; 8 E. R. 1523; 69 R. R. 137	412
Dunkirk Colliery Company v. Lever, 9 Ch. D. 20; 39 L. T. 2-6; 26 W. R. 841	953
Dunn v. Birmingham Canal Company (1872) 8 Q. B. 42 at p. 49; 42 L. J. Q. B. 34; 27 L. T. 683; 21 W. R. 266	67
Dunne v. English, (1874) 18 Eq. 524; 31 L. T. 75	432
Durbar Khachar v. Khachar Harsur, 10 Bom. L. R. 297; 32 B. 348	302
Durga v. Jhinguri, 7 A. 511; A. W. N. (1885) 135	403
Durgagati v. Saurabini, 33 C. 1001; 10 C. W. N. 955	703

D—concl'd.

	Page.
Durgi Nikarini v. Goberdhan Bhoose, 24 Ind. Cas. 183; 20 C. L. J. 448; 19 C. W. N. 525	790
Dutt, K. B. v. Gostha Behary Bhuiya, 17 Ind. Cas. 207; 16 C. L. J. 379; 19 C. W. N. 1006	700
Dwarka Das v. Kameshar Prasad, 17 A. 69; A. W. N. (1895) 3	880

E

Eads v. Williams, (1854) 4 De G. M. & G. 674; 24 L. J. Ch. 531; 1 Jur. (N. S.) 193; 43 E. R. 671; 3 W. R. 98; 102 R. R. 326	33
Eagle v. Charing Cross Railway Co., (1867) 2 C. P. 638; 36 L. J. C. P. 297; 16 L. T. 593; 15 W. R. 1016	259
Earl of Bandon v. Moreland, (1910) 1 Ir. R. 220; 11 Irish Law Report 471	787
East India Company v. Robertson, 7 M. L. A. 361; 12 Moore, P. C. 460; 4 W. R. (P. C.) 10; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 332; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 652; 19 E. R. 345; 14 E. R. 963; 124 R. R. 111	278
East India Distilleries and Sugar Factories v. Tinnevely Sarangapani Sugar Mills Co., Ltd., 4 Ind. Cas. 872; 19 M. L. J. 511	726
Eaton v. The Swansea Waterworks Co., 117 E. R. 1282; 20 L. J. Q. B. 482; 15 Jur. 675; 17 Q. B. 267; 85 R. R. 455	529
Ebrahim v. Arasi, P. J. 26	515
Eknath S. Gowude v. Jagannath S. Gowude, 9 B. 417	403
Elahijan Bibi v. Hosain Khan, 9 C. 520; 12 C. L. R. 209	735
Elwell v. Crowther, (1862) 31 Beav. 163; 135 R. R. 383; 31 L. J. Ch. 763; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 1004; 10 W. R. 615; 54 E. R. 1100	68
Embrey v. Owen, (1851) 6 Ex. 353; 46 R. R. 331; 20 L. J. Ex. 212; 15 Jur. 633; 17 L. T. 79	67
Emery v. Wase, (1801) 5 Ves. 846 at p. 848, 31 E. R. 889; 5 R. R. 181; on appeal 8 Ves. 505; 7 R. R. 109 32 E. R. 451	33
Emperor v. Chionna Kaliappa Gounden, 3 Cr. L. J. 274; 29 M. 126 (F. B.); 1 M. L. T. 31; 16 M. L. J. 79	831
— v. Fattoo Mahomed Sher Mahomed, 20 Ind. Cas. 60; 37 B. 651; 15 Bom. L. R. 689; 14 Cr. L. J. 449	1002
— v. Harischandra Talcherkar, 10 Bom. L. R. 201; 7 Cr. L. J. 194	366
— v. Lakhamai, 6 Bom. L. R. 1091; 29 B. 264; 1 Cr. L. J. 1074	1003
— v. Miran Bakhsh, 60 P. R. 1905 Cr.; 21 P. L. R. 1906; 3 Cr. L. J. 296	381
— v. Mulshankar Harinand Bhat, 7 Ind. Cas. 963; 35 B. 63; 12 Bom. L. R. 750; 11 Cr. L. J. 548	195
— v. Savalya Atma Pasty, 9 Bom. L. R. 356; 5 Cr. L. J. 332	366
— v. Tribhovandas, 4 Bom. L. R. 271; 26 B. 533	1003
— v. Rawji Hari, 9 Bom. L. R. 225; 5 Cr. L. J. 213	350
Empress v. Burah, 4 C. 172; 5 I. A. 178; 3 C. L. R. 197; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 854; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 556; 2 Ind. Jur. 618; 2 Shome L. R. 63	622

E—concl'd.

	Page.
Empress v. Joggesur Mochi, 3 C. 379	383
Eshan Chandra Samanta v. Nil Moni Singh, 35 C. 851	532
Ethel Georgina Kerr v. Clara B. Ruxton, 4 C. L. J. 510	396
Exchange Telegraph Company v. Gregory & Co., (1896) 1 Q. B. 147 at p. 157; 65 L. J. Q. B. 262; 74 L. T. 83; 60 J. P. 52	228

F

Fairlie v. Fenton, (1870) 5 Ex. 169; 39 L. J. Ex. 107; 22 L. T. 373; 18 W. R. 700	612
Fateh Chand v. Kirpa Singh, 13 Ind. Cas. 561; 48 P. R. 912; 76 P. W. R. 1912; 145 P. L. R. 1912	200
Fateh Chaud v. Mansab Rai, 20 A. 442; A. W. N. (1898) 10	668
Fatinunissa v. Deoki Pershad, 24 C. 350 (F. B.); 1 C. W. N. 21	75
Fattah Singh v. Suchela, 142 P. R. 1803	494
Faulkner v. Bolton, 7 Sim. 319; 4 L. J. Ch. 81; 58 E. R. 860; 40 R. R. 155	201
Fazlar Rahim v. Nabendra Kishore Roy, 15 Ind. Cas. 341; 17 C. W. N. 151	696
Featherston v. Featherston, (1835) 3 Cl. & F. 67 at pp. 73, 75; 6 E. R. 1363; 39 R. R. 1	408
Felix Hadley Company v. Hadley, (1898) 2 Ch. 680; 67 L. J. Ch. 694; 79 L. T. 299; 47 W. R. 238	629
Feroze-ud-Din v. Rahim Bakhsh, 8 Ind. Cas. 256; 96 P. R. 1910; 192 P. L. R. 1910	191
Fickus Farina, In re v. Fickus, (1900) 1 Ch. 331; 69 L. J. Ch. 16; 48 W. R. 250; 81 L. T. 749	713
Fishar v. Annachella Chettri, 2 Ind. Cas. 522; 19 M. L. J. 236; 5 M. L. T. 70	188
Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 1 P. & D. 694; 35 L. J. Mat. 14; 9 L. T. 575; 17 W. R. 264	267
Fitzjohns v. Mackinder, 9 C. B. (N. S.) 505; 30 L. J. C. P. 217; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 1283; 4 L. T. 149; 9 W. R. 477; 142 E. R. 199; 127 R. R. 746	247
Fitzpatrick v. Wallace, 11 W. R. 231; 2 B. L. R. 317	18
Fleet v. Metropolitan Asylums District (Managers), (1884) 1 T. L. R. 80; affirmed 2 T. L. R. 361	68
Fleet v. Murton, (1871) 7 Q. B. 126; 41 L. J. Q. B. 49; 26 L. T. 181; 20 W. R. 97	611
Fletcher v. Bealey, (1885) 28 Ch. D. 688; 54 L. J. Ch. 424; 52 L. T. 541; 33 W. R. 745	68
Ford v. Bornes, (1885) 55 L. J. Q. B. 24 Colt. 396; 16 Q. B. D. 254; 53 L. T. 675; 34 W. R. 78; 50 J. P. 37	12
Fowle v. Fowle, 4 C. 260; 3 C. L. R. 484; 2 Shome L. R. 143	266
Freeman, Hope v. Freeman In re , (1910) 1 Ch. 681 at p. 691; 79 L. J. Ch. 678; 102 L. T. 516; 54 S. J. 443	408
Fullerton v. Provincial Bank of Ireland, (1903) A. C. 309; 72 L. J. C. P. 79; 89 L. T. 79; 52 W. R. 238	29
Fulvahu v. Goculdas Valabdas, 9 B. 275	40

F—concl.

	Page.
Fusilier, Bligh v. Simpson, (1864) 34 L. J. Adm. 25; 3 Moore P. C. (N. S.) 51; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 289; 12 L. T. (N. S.) 186; 13 W. R. 592; 16 E. R. 19; 146 R. R. 2	1004
Futteh Ali v. Gunganath Roy, 8 C. 113; 10 C. L. R. 20	258
Fuzeelun Beebee v. Omdah Beebee, 11 B. L. R. 60n; 10 W. R. 469	190
G
Gadd v. Houghton, (1876) 1 Ex. D. 357; 46 L. J. Ex. 71, 35 L. T. 222; 24 W. R. 975	611
Gagan Singh v. Bulaka Singh, 23 P. R. 186	493
Gaizuddi Howladar v. Ainuddi Howladar, 23 Ind. Cas. 431; 18 C. W. N. 94; 15 Cr. L. J. 79	645
Gajadhar v. Musammal Kaansilla, 1 Ind. Cas. 761; 31 A. 161; 6 A. L. J. 107	290
Gajapathi Kristna Chandra Deo Garu v. Srinivasa Charlu, 20 Ind. Cas. 445; 25 M. L. J. 433; 14 M. L. T. 20; (1914) M. W. N. 99; 38 M. 235	256
Gajapati Rajah v. Suryanarayana, 22 M. 11	871
Game Shah v. Emperor, 8 P. R. 1903 Cr.; 102 P. L. R. 1903	646
Ganapathi Mudali v. Venkatalakshminarasayya, 25 Ind. Cas. 109; (1914) M. W. N. 728	56
Ganesh v. Sidhakaran, 13 C. P. L. R. 74 at p. 77	882
Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B. 398	263
Ganeshi Lal v. Nand Kishore, 15 Ind. Cas. 319; 34 A. 487; 13 Cr. L. J. 479; 10 A. L. J. 45	376
Ganga Pershad v. Irahad Ali, 13 Ind. Cas. 959; 15 C. L. J. 54	977
Gangadhar v. Parashram, 29 B. 100; 7 Bom. L. R. 252	466
Gangamma v. Bommakka, 5 Ind. Cas. 437; 33 M. 253; 7 M. L. T. 231	12
Gangbai v. Thavar Mulla, 1 B. H. C. R. 71	146
Ganpat Rao v. Ananda Rao, 28 A. 104; A. W. N. (1905) 206	732
Garden v. Bruce, (1868) 37 L. J. C. 112; 3 C. P. 300; 17 L. T. 544; 16 W. R. 366	629
Gardiner v. Micalloch, (1876) 2 V. L. R. 128	301
Gautret v. Egerton, (1867) 2 C. P. 371; 36 L. J. C. P. 191; 16 L. T. 17; 15 W. R. 638	182
Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh, 30 A. 525; 12 C. W. N. 1017; 10 Bom. L. R. 1080; 8 C. L. J. 337; 5 A. L. J. 665; 35 I. A. 189	247
General Manager of the Raj Durbhunga v. Maharajah Coomar Ramaput Singh, 14 M. I. A. 605 at p. 612; 17 W. R. (P. C.) 459; 10 B. L. R. (P. C.) 294; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 575; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 117; 20 E. R. 912	922
Gent, Ja re , Gent-Davis v. Harris, (1888) 40 Ch. D. 190 at p. 195; 58 L. J. Ch. 162; 60 L. T. 355; 37 W. R. 151	509
Ghazi v. Sukru, 19 A. 515; A. W. N. (1897) 139	187
Ghazidin v. Fakir Bakhsb, 7 A. 73 at p. 77; A. W. N. (1884) 226	723
Ghazi-ud-din v. Bishan Dial, 27 A. 443; A. W. N. (1905) 39; 2 A. L. J. 111	59
Ghristie v. Gosling, (1866) 1 H. L. 279 at p. 290; 35 L. J. Ch. 667; 15 L. T. 40	412
Ghulam Ali v. Queen-Empress, 7 P. R. 1900 Cr.	376

G—contd.

	Page.
Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 C. 167 at pp. 184, 185; 29 L. A. 51; 6 C. W. N. 226; 12 M. L. J. 77; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 25 P. R. 1902	208, 459, 701
Gian Chand v. Behari Lal, 18 Ind. Cas. 761; 78 P. L. R. 1913	702
Gibbs v. Guild, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 59; 51 L. J. Q. B. 313; 10 W. R. 591; 46 L. T. 248	879
Giles v. Grover, (1832) 6 Bligh. (N. S.) 277 at p. 452; 9 Bing. 128; 2 M. & S. 197; 1 C. & F. 72; 5 E. R. 598; 36 R. R. 27	432
Girdhari Lal v. Bhago, 92 P. R. 1907	255
Giriapa v. Ningapa, 17 B. 100	375
Girdhari Marwari v. Emperor, 12 C. W. N. 822; 8 C. L. J. 73; 8 Cr. L. J. 5	163
Girindra Mohun Roy Chowdhury v. Bocha Das, 1 Ind. Cas. 49; 9 C. L. J. 226; 3 C. W. N. 1004; 36 C. 394	673
Girish Chandra Lahiri v. Sasi Sekhaheswar Roy, 33 C. 329	288
Girish Chunder Dey v. Jaramoni De, 5 C. W. N. 83	234
Girwer Prasad v. Emperor, 1 Ind. Cas. 306; 6 A. L. J. 392; 9 Cr. L. J. 219	654
Glegg v. Bromley, (1912) 3 K. B. 474; 81 L. J. K. B. 1081; 106 L. T. 825	29
Glover v. Langford, (1892) 8 T. L. R. 628	612
Gobind Dayal v. Inayat Ullah, 7 A. 775 at p. 815; A. W. N. (1885) 228	515
Gobind Lal Roy v. Ramjnam Misser, 20 I. A. 165; 21 C. 70	972
Gobind Ram v. Raci Suraj Kaur, 24 Ind. Cas. 470; 131 P. L. R. 19 4; 114 P. W. R. 1914	796
Gobinda Chandra Pal v. Dwarka Nath Pal, 35 C. 837; 7 C. L. J. 492; 12 C. W. N. 849	539
Golanda Lal Das v. Shiba Das Chatterjee, 16 C. W. N. 986; 3 C. L. J. 545; 23 C. 1323	706
Goda Coopuramier v. Sundarammal, 3 Ind. Cas. 739; 33 M. 167; 6 M. L. T. 271	198
Gokal Chand v. Phul Chand, 5 Ind. Cas. 830; 7 P. R. 1910, Cr.; 7 P. W. R. 1910, Cr.; 172 P. L. R. 1910; 11 Cr. L. J. 253	376
Gokaldas Gopaldas v. Purnamal Premeekhdas, 11 I. A. 126; 10 C. 1035; 8 Ind. Jur. 396; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 543	24
Gokal Chand v. Bhika, 23 Ind. Cas. 753; 12 A. L. J. 387	319
Golam Mowla v. Abdool Sower Mondul, 9 Ind. Cas. 922; 13 C. L. J. 255	17
Golam Panja v. Harish Chunder, 17 W. R. 552	790
Goldsmid v. Tonbridge Wells Improvement Commissioners, (1466) 1 Ch. 349; 35 L. J. Ch. 382; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 308; 14 L. T. 154; 14 W. R. 562	69
Gooroo Dess Roy v. Gholam Mowlah, Marshall's Reports, 24 1 Hay. 103	291
Gooroopershad Khoond v. Juggnatchunder, 8 M. I. A. 166 at p. 168; 3 W. R. 14 (P. C.); 13 Moo. P. C. 472; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 399; Sar. P. C. J. 742; 19 E. R. 493; 15 E. R. 117; 132 R. R. 150	298
Gopal v. Govind, 13 C. P. L. R. 113	467
Gopal Chunder v. Gosain Das Kalay, 25 C. 594; 2 C. W. N. 556	427
Gopala Ayyar v. Arunachallam Chetty, 26 M. 85	503

G—conold.

II

	Page.
Gopalar Nair v. Kunham Menon, 30 M. 300; 17 M. L. J. 189; 2 M. L. T. 161	185, 919
Gopalasani Chetti v. Arunachellam Chetti, 27 M. 32	19, 839
Gopalla v. Narayana, (1850) Mad. S. D. A. 74	435
Gopeshwar Pal v. Jibau Chandra, 24 Ind. Cas. 37; 18 C. W. N. 504; 19 C. L. J. 544; 41 C. 1125	253
Gopi Nath Chobey v. Bhugwat Pershad, 10 C. 697	191
Gordon v. Gordon, (1871) 5 H. L. 254 at p. 271	411
Goseti Subba Row v. Varigonda Narasimham, 27 M. 368	681
Gossami Sri Gridharji v. Romanlalji Gossami, 17 C. 3 at p. 10 (P. C.); 16 I. A. 137; 13 Ind. Jur. 211; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 350	967
Goswami Ranchor Lalji v. Sri Gridharji, 20 A. 120; A. W. N. (1897) 214	244
Gouridas Nomasudra v. Emperor, 2 Ind. Cas. 841; 33 C. 659; 13 C. W. N. 68; 10 Cr. L. J. 186	360
Gouse Moideen Sahib v. Muthialu Chettiar, 21 Ind. Cas. 762; 14 M. L. T. 523; 26 M. L. J. 36; (1914) M. W. N. 55	328
Govinda Chetti v. Perumal Chetti, 30 Ind. Cas. 453; 38 M. 489; 16 Cr. L. J. 629	369
Govinda Kuar v. Lala Kishun Prosad, 28 C. 370	59
Grant v. Secretary of State for India in Council, (1877) 2 C. P. D. 445 at p. 453; 46 L. J. C. P. 681; 37 L. T. 188; 25 W. R. 848	226
Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company v. Ganpat Rai, 10 Ind. Cas. 122; 33 A. 544; 8 A. L. J. 543	476
Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company v. Raisett Chandmull, 19 B. 165	476
Green v. Harvey, (1842) 1 Hare 428 11 L. J. Ch. 290; 6 Jur. 704; 66 E. R. 110; 58 R. R. 127	409
Gridhari Lal v. Bengal Government, 12 M. L. A. 448; 1 B. L. R. P. C. 44; 10 W. R. P. C. 3; 2 Such. P. C. J. 159; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 382; 20 E. R. 408	591
Griffin v. Weatherby, 3 Q. B. 753; 9 B. & S. 726; 37 L. J. Q. B. 280; 18 L. T. 881; 17 W. R. 8	153
Grish Chunder Lahiri v. Shoshi Shikhraswar Roy, 27 C. 951 (P. C.); 27 I. A. 110; 4 C. W. N. 631	358
Gubboy v. Ayetoom, 17 C. 449 at p. 453	611
Gudimetha Vancatarazu v. Bollozu Kottaya, 16 Ind. Cas. 139; 23 M. L. J. 223; 12 M. L. T. 230; (1912) M. W. N. 861	435
Gujraj Sahai v. Secretary of State, 17 C. 414	660
Gul Muhammad Khan v. Khan Ahmad Shah, 29 P. R. 1893	223
Gulab Devi v. Shanker Lal, A. W. N. (1892) 47	877
Gulabdas Jugjivandas v. Collector of Surat, 3 B. 186 (P. C.); 6 I. A. 54	733, 776
Gulliver v. Vaux, (1746) 8 DeG. M. & G. 167n; 44 E. R. 353; 114 R. R. 83	409
Gungamoyee v. Shib Sunker, 3 C. L. R. 430	427
Guideo Singh v. Chandrika Singh, 1 Ind. Cas. 913; 36 C. 193; 5 C. L. J. 611	25
Guruvayya v. Dattatraya, 28 B. 11; 5 Bom. L. R. 618	181
Gwynne v. Heaton, (1778) 1 Bro. C. C. 1; 28 E. R. 949	396

	Page.
Haddlersfield Banking Company Limited v. Henry Lister and Son Limited, (1895) 2 Ch. D. 273; 64 L. J. Ch. 523; 12 R. 331; 72 L. T. 703; 43 W. R. 567	14
Hadleigh Castle Gold Mines Ltd. In re , (1500) 2 Ch. 419; 69 L. J. Ch. 631; 83 L. T. 400; 16 T. L. R. 168	623
Hadjee Muxhar Ali v. Gundowres Sahoo, 25 W. R. 72 Cr.	68
Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341; 2 Com. L. R. 517; 23 L. J. Ex. 179; 18 Jur. 358; 2 W. R. 302; 23 L. T. (o.s.) 69; 196 R. R. 742	74
Hajinath v. Raghunath, 26 Ind. Cas. 608; 10 N. L. R. 93	467
Haines v. Taylor, (1846) 10 Beav. 75; 50 E. R. 511; 76 R. R. 98; On appeal 2 Ph. 209; 11 Jur. 73; 41 E. R. 922; 78 R. R. 71	63
Haji Ajam Goolam Houssein v. Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Company, 26 B. 562; 4 Bom. L. R. 447	476
Haji Umarani Kachi v. Ganeshbhat Purshothambhat, 9 Bom. L. R. 1101	529
Halbroun v. International Horse Agency and Exchange Limited, (1903) 1 K. B. 270; 72 L. J. K. B. 90; 88 L. T. 232; 51 W. R. 622; 19 T. L. R. 138	611
Hall v. Howard, (1886) 32 Ch. D. 430; 55 L. J. Ch. 604; 54 L. T. 810; 34 W. R. 471	234
Hallett's Estate, In re Knatchbull v. Hallett, (1879) 13 Ch. D. 696; 49 L. J. Ch. 415; 42 L. T. 421; 28 W. R. 732	216
Hamid Hossein v. Mukhdum Raza, 32 C. 229; 9 C. W. N. 300	977
Hamilton v. Ritchie, (1894) A. C. 310 at p. 313	411
Hamlyn v. Betteley, (1880) 6 Q. B. D. 63 at p. 65; 50 L. J. Q. B. 1; 43 L. T. 790; 29 W. R. 275	598
Hammanappa v. Jirubai, 2 Bom. L. R. 478; 24 B. 547	281
Hammersley v. Baron De Biel, (1845) 12 C. & F. 45; 8 E. R. 1312; 69 R. R. 18	712
Hannamal Motchand v. Rambabai, 3 B. 193	783
Hans Raj v. Ganga Ram, 88 P. R. 1902 (F. B.); 119 P. L. R. 1902	701
Hansraj Pal v. Mukhraji Knowar, 30 A. 28; A. W. N. (1907) 280; 4 A. L. J. 759	542
Hanuman Prasad Singh v. Bhaganti Prasad, 19 A. 357; A. W. N. (1897) 80	291
Har Charan v. Binda, 5 Ind. Cas. 559; 32 A. 389; 7 A. L. J. 298	466
Har Narain Singh v. Bhagwant Kuar, 18 I. A. 55; 13 A. 300; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 14; 15 Ind. Jur. 283	598
Har Saran Das v. Nandi, 11 A. 330; A. W. N. (1889) 77	290
Hara Gobinda Saha v. Purna Chandra Saha, 1 Ind. Cas. 522; 11 C. L. J. 47	190
Hara Kumari Dasi v. Mohim Chandra Sarkar, 7 C. L. J. 540; 12 C. W. N. 412	407
Hargovandas Lakhmidas v. Bajibhai Jijibhai, 14 B. 22	532
Hari Gobind Adhikari v. Akhoy Kumar Mozumdar, 16 C. 364	190

H—contd.

	Page.
Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Parshad Singh, 27 Ind. Cas. 674; (1915) M. W. N. 511 at p. 514; 17 M. L. T. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370; 13 A. L. J. 222; 2 L. W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 25 M. L. J. 565; 17 Bom. L. R. 426; 42 C. 876	459
Hari Lal Mullick, In the matter of , 33 C. 1269; 10 C. W. N. 884	6
Hari Mohan Misser v. Surendra Narayan Singh, 34 C. 71; 17 M. L. J. 361; 11 C. W. N. 794; 4 A. L. J. 497; 9 Bom. L. R. 750; 6 C. L. J. 19; 34 L. A. 133 (P. C.); 2 M. L. T. 399	100, 274
Hari Narain Das v. Eleman Bibi, 23 Ind. Cas. 618; 19 C. L. J. 117	721
Hari Pandurang v. Secretary of State for India, 27 B. 424 at p. 445; 5 Bom. L. R. 431	621
Harihar Chattopadhyaya v. Dinu Bern, 10 Ind. Cas. 139; 14 C. L. J. 170; 16 C. W. N. 536	17
Harihar Ojha v. Dasarathi Misra, 33 C. 257; 1 C. L. J. 408; 9 C. W. N. 636	594
Harischandra Deo v. Narayana, 24 M. 508 at p. 511	872
Harkhoo Singh v. Bunsiddhur Singh, 25 C. 876; 2 C. W. N. 360	977
Harmanage Narain Singh v. Ram Gopal Achari, 19 Ind. Cas. 417; 17 C. W. N. 782	435
Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company, (1891) 2 Ch. 409 at p. 414; 60 L. J. Ch. 630; 64 L. T. 864	73
Hasonbhoy Visram v. H. Clapham, 7 B. 51 at p. 65	611
Haswa v. Mahbub, 10 Ind. Cas. 559; 8 A. L. J. 645	209
Hawkesley v. Bradshaw, (1880) 5 Q. B. D. 302; 49 L. J. Q. B. 333; 41 L. T. 285; 28 W. R. 557	183
Hawkins v. Maltby, 3 Ch. App. 188; 37 L. J. Ch. 68; 17 L. T. 397; 16 W. R. 209	2
Hazari Mal v. Janaki Prasad, 6 C. L. J. 92	897
Hazarimal Babu v. Abani Nath, 18 Ind. Cas. 625; 17 C. L. J. 28; 17 C. W. N. 250	719, 804
Hedayet Ali v. Kalanand Singh, 20 Ind. Cas. 332; 17 C. L. J. 411	18
Hedlot Khasia v. Karan Khasiani, 13 Ind. Cas. 377; 15 C. L. J. 241	424
Heim v. Vogel, (1879) 69 Missouri 529	24
Hem Chandra Chowdhury v. Atul Chandra Chakravarti, 21 Ind. Cas. 179 at p. 181; 19 C. L. J. 118; 19 C. W. N. 396	268
Hemangini Dasi v. Kedar Nath Kandu Chowdhry, 16 C. 758; 16 L. A. 115; 13 Ind. Jur. 210; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 374	907
Henderson v. Broomhead, (1859) 4 H. & N. 569; 28 L. J. Ex. 360; 5 Jur. (N. S.) 1175; 7 W. R. 492; 118 R. R. 618	247
Henderson v. Cross, (1861) 29 Beav. 216; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 177; 9 W. R. 263; 54 E. R. 610; 131 R. R. 532	409
Henderson v. Squire, (1869) 4 Q. B. 170; 10 B. & S. 183; 38 L. J. Q. B. 73; 19 L. T. 601; 17 W. R. 519	873
Het Singh v. Tika Ram, 14 Ind. Cas. 240; 9 A. L. J. 381; 34 A. 388	240
Hickes v. Cooke, (1816) 4 Dow. 17 at p. 28; 16 R. R. 6; 3 E. R. 1074	671
Hickson v. Lombard, (1836) 1 E. & Ir. App. 324	984
Hide v. Petit, (1670) 1 Ch. Cas. 185, 2 Freeman 133; 22 E. R. 754	34

H—concl.

	Page.
Hill v. Thorn, (1680) 2 Modern 309; 86 E. R. 1090	34
Hills v. Parker, 7 Jur. (N. S.) 838; 4 L. T. 746	708
Hira Lal v. Himalaya Glass Works Company, 10 Ind. Cas. 433; 176 P. L. R. 1911; 100 P. W. R. 1911	726
Hirabae v. Sonalae, (1847) Perry's O. C. 110; 4 Ind. Dec. (O. S.) 100; 2 Mor. Dig. 431	108
Hirachand v. Kishenolal, 9 C. P. L. R. 55	59
Hirbai v. Gorbai, 12 B. H. C. R. 294 at p. 300	145
His Highness the Maharaja of Benares v. Babu Vijai Narain Singh, Selected Judgment No. 14 of 1914	453
Hoare v. Byng, (1844) 10 Cl. & F. 505; 8 Jur. 563; 8 E. R. 835; 59 R. R. 122	408
Hodgson v. Ambrose, (1780) 1 Douglas 337 at p. 342; 3 Bro. P. C. 416; 99 E. R. 216	412
Hogg, C. S. v. Hurry Dass Dutt, 1 Boul. 654; 3 Ind. Dec. (O. S.) 394	40
Holmes v. Godson, (1856) 8 DeG. M. & G. 152; 25 L. J. Ch. 317; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 383; 4 W. R. 415; 44 E. R. 347; 114 R. R. 73	409
Hopcraft v. Hickman, (1894) 2 S. & S. 130; 3 L. J. Ch. 43; 57 E. R. 265	34
Hormasji Motabhai v. Pestonji Dhanjibhai, 12 B. 422	402
Howard v. Carusi, (1883) 103 U. S. 725; 27 Lal. Ed. 725	410
Humera Bibi v. Najm-un-Nissa Bibi, 28 A. 147; 2 A. L. J. 778; A. W. N. (1905) 222	283
Hunoomanpersaud Panday v. Musammat Babooee Munraj Koonweree, 6 M. L. A. 393 at pp. 411, 412; 18 W. R. 814; Sevestre 253a; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 29; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 552; 19 E. R. 147	390, 811
Hur Proshad v. Enayet Hossain, 2 C. L. R. 471	427
Hurri Pershad Chowdhry v. Nasib Singh, 21 C. 542	673
Hurriath Rai v. Krishna Kumar Bakshi, 14 C. 147 at p. 159 (P. C.); 13 L. A. 123; 10 Ind. Jur. 475; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 751	663
Huronath Roy v. Maheroollah Moollah, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 618; 7 W. R. 21 (F. B.)	673
Huruck Singh, In the matter of the petition of , 11 W. R. 107	973
Huruck Singh v. Toolsee Ram Sahoo, 12 W. R. 458; 5 B. L. R. 47	973
Husaini Begam v. Collector of Muzaffarnagar, 11 A. 176; A. W. N. (1889) 27; 13 Ind. Jur. 316	913
Husananna v. Linganna, 19 M. 423	208
Hussain Khan v. Jahan Khan, 18 Ind. Cas. 5; 55 P. R. 1913; 48 P. L. R. 1913; 36 P. W. R. 193	401
Hutcheson v. Eaton, (1884) 13 Q. B. D. 861; 51 L. T. 816	611
Hyman v. Van Den Bergh, (1908) 1 Ch. 167; 77 L. J. Ch. 154; 98 L. T. 478	529
Hyndman v. Hyndman, (1895) 11 Ir. R. 179; 1 Irish Law Reports 697	403

I

Ibrahim Ali v. Mohsin Ali, 18 A. 422; A. W. N. (1896) 137	208
Ibrahim Saib v. Muni Mir Udin Saib, 6 M. H. O. R. 26	515

I—concl.

J—contd.

	Page.
Ide v. Ide, (1809) 5 Mass 500	410
Ijatulla Bhuyan v. Chandra Mohan Banerjee, 12 C. W. N. 285; 7 C. L. J. 197	388
Imbichunni Nair v. Narayana Nambudri, 21 Ind. Cas. 767; (19 3) M. W. N. 1024	978
Imdad Ali v. Jagun Lal, 17 A. 478; A. W. N. (1895) 109	198
Imperial Mercantile Credit Association v. Coleman, (1873) 6 H. L. 189; 42 L. J. Ch. 644; 29 L. T. 1; 21 W. R. 696	432
Imtiaz Ali v. Bishambhar Das, 10 Ind. Cas. 245; 8 A. L. J. 619	911
Inchbald v. Western Neilgherry Coffee Plantation Company, 17 C. B. (N. S.) 733; 34 L. J. C. P. 15; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1128; 11 L. T. (N. S.) 315; 13 W. R. 95; 144 E. R. 293; 142 R. R. 603	483
Inderbuttee v. Mukhob Ali, 24 W. R. 44	190
Indian General Navigation and Railway Company v. Nanda Lal Banik, 3 Ind. Cas. 469; 13 C. W. N. 851	476
Indramani Dasya v. Priyanath Chakravarti, 21 Ind. Cas. 953; 18 C. L. J. 505; 18 C. W. N. 490	977
Irving v. Veitch, (1837) 3 M. & W. 90; 7 L. J. Ex. 25; 150 E. R. 1069; M. & H. 313; 41 R. R. 511	628
Ishar Das v. Emperor, 18 P. W. R. 1305 Cr.; 8 Cr. L. J. 75	376
Ishar Singh v. Lehna Singh, 86 P. R. 1903, 145 P. L. R. 903	494
Issur Chandra Dutt v. Gopal Chandra Das, 25 C. 98; 3 C. W. N. 20	190
Ittappan v. Manavikrama, 21 M. 153; 8 M. L. J. 92	683

J

Jackson v. Bull, (1813) 10 Johnson 19	410
Jackson v. Robins, (1819) 16 Johnson 537	410
Jadab Chandr Bakshi v. Bhairab Chandra Chuckerbutty, 31 C. 297	673
Jadu Nath Poddar v. Rup Lal Poddar, 4 C. L. J. 22; 10 C. W. N. 630; 33 C. 967	989
Jadunandan Prasad Singha v. Koer Kallyan Singh, 13 Ind. Cas. 654; 16 C. W. N. 612; 15 C. L. J. 61	978
Jadunandan Singh v. Emperor, 4 Ind. Cas. 710; 37 C. 250; 10 C. L. J. 564; 14 C. W. N. 330; 11 Cr. L. J. 37	654, 993
Jagan Nath v. Tulsi Das, 72 P. R. 1898	635
Jagat Tarini Dasi v. Rakhal Chandra Tewary, 3 Ind. Cas. 324; 10 C. L. J. 398; 14 C. W. N. 752	542
Jagjiban v. Deo Shaunkar, (1812) 1 Bor. 394 at p. 436	435
Jahamman Kunwar v. Tiloki, 25 A. 435; A. W. N. (1903) 93	291
Jahandar Baksh v. Ram Lal, 5 Ind. Cas. 565; 11 C. L. J. 364 at p. 365; 14 C. W. N. 470; 37 C. 449	25
Jai Gopal Narain Singh v. Uma Dat, 10 Ind. Cas. 573; 8 A. L. J. 695	915
Jainabai v. R. D. Sethna, 6 Ind. Cas. 513; 12 Bom. L. R. 341; 34 B. 604	151
Jainarayan Bose v. Kadumbini Dasi, 7 B. L. R. 723	100

	Page.
Jairam v. Nathu, 31 B. 54; 8 Bom. L. R. 632	575
James v. Hayward, (1630) Cro. Car. 184; 79 E. R. 761	64
Jamini Sundari Dasi v. Rajendra Nath Chukrabutty, 11 C. W. N. 519	27
Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar, 22 Ind. Cas. 195; 15 Bom. L. R. 1044; 38 B. 419	108
Janardau Missir v. Maharani Janki Koer, 22 Ind. Cas. 657	539
Janardhan v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 317; 4 Bom. L. R. 23	198
Janki Kanwar v. Ajit Singh, 15 C. 58; 14 I. A. 148; 12 Ind. Jur. 5; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 94; Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No. 99	106
Jasoda Deye v. Kirtibash, Das 18 C. 639	542
Jawan v. Emperor, 25 Ind. Cas. 634; 30 P. R. 1914 Cr.; 264 P. L. R. 1914; 15 Cr. L. J. 626; 50 P. W. R. 1914 Cr.	832
Jeannissa Laddi Begam v. Manikji Khursetji, 7 B. H. C. R. 36 at p. 38	882
Jebsen v. East and West India Dock Co., (1875) 10 C. P. 309; 44 L. J. C. P. 181; 32 L. T. 321; 23 W. R. 624; 2 Asp. M. C. 505	964
Jeevanbai v. Manordas Lachmandas, 8 Ind. Cas. 649; 35 B. 193 at p. 203; 12 Bom. L. R. 992	6
Jeffries v. Great Western Railway Co. (1856) 5 El. & Bl. 802 at p. 807; 25 L. J. Q. B. 107; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 230; 4 W. R. 201; 119 E. R. 680; 103 R. R. 753	432
Jehangir v. Secretary of State for India, 6 Bom. L. R. 131	226, 973
Jenkins's Trusts, In re (1859) 23 L. R. Ir. 162	409
Jesab Motilal v. Emperor, 20 Ind. Cas. 124; 17 Bom. L. R. 600; 16 Cr. L. J. 572	1004
Jethanand Topandas v. Lalamal Sitalmal, 1 S. L. R. 252 at p. 255	481
Jhingari Tewari v. Durga, 7 A. 878; A. W. N. (1885) 260	403
Jiwana v. Abdullah, 2 Ind. Cas. 962; 64 P. R. 1909; 56 P. L. R. 1909; 62 P. W. R. 1909	910
Jogendra Mohan Sen v. Uma Nath Gaha, 35 C. 636; 8 C. L. J. 41; 12 C. W. N. 646	977
Jogendra Nath Chatterjee v. Manmatha Nath Ghosh, 15 Ind. Cas. 668; 17 C. W. N. 80 at p. 81; 16 C. L. J. 565	860
Jogendra Nath Rai v. Baldeo Das Marwari, 35 C. 961 at p. 968; 6 C. L. J. 735; 12 C. W. N. 127	466
Jogendro Bhupati v. Nityanand Man Singh, 11 C. 702	839
Jogendro Bhupati Harrochandra Mahapatra v. Nityanand Man Singh, 18 C. 151 (P. C.); 17 I. A. 128	838
Jogeshwar Mazumdar v. Abed Mahomed, 3 C. W. N. 13	557
Jogeswar Atha v. Ganga Bishnu Ghattak, 8 C. W. N. 473	14
Jogeswar Narain v. Ram Chandra Dutt 23 I. A. 37; 23 C. 670	407
Johnson, Ex parte ; Chapman, In re , (1884) 26 Ch. D. 338; 53 L. J. Ch. 762; 50 L. T. 214; 32 W. R. 893; 48 J. P. 648	50
Jokhee Lall v. Huns Kooer, 10 W. R. 167	59
Jolliffe v. Wallasey Local Board, (1873) 9 C. P. 62; 43 L. J. C. P. 41; 29 L. T. 582	66

J—conold.

	Page.
Jonab Ali v. Rakibuddin, 1 C. L. J. 303; 9 C. W. N. 571	790
Jones, In re , Richards v. Jones, (1898) 1 Ch. 438 at p. 44; 67 L. J. Ch. 211; 78 L. T. 74; 46 W. R. 313	409
Jones & Powell, In re , (1828) Palm. 536 at p. 539; 81 E. R. 1208	63
Joogulkishore v. Jotendro Mohun Tagore, 8 C. 210; 6 Ind. Jur. 356	301
Jorden v. Money, (1854) 5 H. L. C. 185; 23 L. J. Ch. 865; 10 E. R. 865; 101 R. R. 116	712
Jowahir v. Musammam Chandi, 90 P. R. 1892	635
Joykisto Cowar v. Nittyanand Nundy, 3 C. 735; 2 C. L. R. 440; 3 Ind. Jur. 117	46, 271
Jugalkishore v. Lakshmandas, Ragunathdas, 23 B. 659	245
Jumeswar Dass v. Mahabeer Singh 1 C. 163; 25 W. R. 64; 3 I. A. 1; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 58; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 222	417
Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. Oriental Gas Company, 8 B. L. R. 433; 17 W. R. 364	238
Juthan Singh v. Ram Narain Singh, 22 Ind. Cas. 986; 18 C. W. N. 700; 19 C. L. J. 356; 15 Cr. L. J. 202	645

K

Kabil Sardar v. Chunder Nath Nag Chowdhry, 20 C. 690	364
Kabiruddin v. Emperor, 35 C. 368 at p. 376; 12 C. W. N. 384; 7 C. L. J. 359; 7 Cr. L. J. 256; 3 M. L. T. 385	373
Kadalkaravandi v. Emperor, 4 Cr. L. Rev. 373	347
Kahn Singh v. Emperor, 25 P. R. 1890, Cr.	354
Kajira Beeviammall v. Fathma Biviammall, 24 Ind. Cas. 779; 1 L. W. 230	536
Kakaji v. Bapuji, 8 Bom. H. C. R. 205	463
Kalee Prosunno v. Dinonath, 11 B. L. R. 56 at p. 64; 19 W. R. 434	190
Kali Charan Nath v. Sukhada Sundari Debi, 30 Ind. Cas. 824; 22 C. L. J. 272; 20 C. W. N. 58	922
Kali Dutt Jha v. Abdul Ali, 16 C. 627; 16 I. A. 96; 13 Ind. Jur. 130; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 326	735
Kali Prosanno v. Rajani Kant, 25 C. 141 at pp. 143, 144	500
Kaliappan Servai Karan v. Varadarajulu, 3 Ind. Cas. 737; 33 M. 75; 6 M. L. T. 199; 19 M. L. J. 651	922
Kalika v. Ram Charan, Selected Decision No. 7 of 1909	618
Kallan v. Dildar, Selected Decision No. 4 of 1897	618
Kally Das Ahiri v. Monmohini Dassee, 1 C. W. N. 321; 24 C. 440	551
Kalu Ram Maigraj v. Madras Railway Company, 3 M. 240	475
Kamakshi Nayakan v. Ramasami Nayakan, 7 M. L. J. 131	811
Kamal Kutty v. Udaya Varma Rajavalia Raja of Chirakal, 17 Ind. Cas. 65; 36 M. 275; 12 M. L. T. 439; 23 M. L. J. 499; (1912) M. W. N. 1154; 13 Cr. L. J. 753	368
Kamta Pershad v. Industrial Bank of India, Limited, 31 Ind. Cas. 54; 59 P. R. 1915; 139 P. W. R. 1915	746

K—contd.

	Page.
Kanakku Nagalinga Naick v. Nagalinga Naick, 4 Ind. Cas. 871; 32 M. 510; 6 M. L. T. 176; 10 M. L. J. 480	208
Kandlasami v. Dornisami Ayyar, 2 M. 317 at p. 324; 5 Ind. Jur. 352	676
Kandath Veetil Bava v. Musaliann Veetil Pakrukutti, 30 M. 305; 2 M. L. T. 180	283
Kankuchand Shiv Chand v. Rustomji Hormasji, 20 B. 109 at p. 113	674
Kanuparti Subbayya v. Kurnani Madduletiah, 17 M. L. J. 469	615
Kappu Naidu v. Subbaraya Reddi, 10 Ind. Cas. 105; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 355; 9 M. L. T. 454	197
Kara Singh v. Bakar Ali Khan, 9 I. A. 99; 5 A. 1; 4 Saraswati's P. C. J. 382	244
Karamapalli Unni Kurup v. Thekku Vitil Muthorakotti, 26 M. 195	681
Karan Singh v. Bakar Ali Khan, 5 A. 1; 9 I. A. 99; 4 Saraswati's P. C. J. 382	416
Kariyappa v. Rachapa, 24 B. 493 at p. 499; 2 Bom. L. R. 378	628
Karmam Sama Row v. Roddam Vencoba Row, 6 Ind. Cas. 745; (1910) M. W. N. 211	536
Karmi Khan v. Brojo Nath Das, 22 C. 244	801
Kartick Chandra Ghose v. Ashutosh Dhara, 12 Ind. Cas. 163; 39 C. 298; 14 C. L. J. 425; 16 C. W. N. 26	321, 393
Kartick Chunder Chuckerbutty v. Gour Mohun Roy, 1 W. R. 48	434
Karunakara Menon v. Krishna Menon, 27 Ind. Cas. 852; 2 L. W. 196; 28 M. L. J. 262	913
Karujan Zemindar v. Merangi Zemindar, 5 M. 253; 6 Ind. Jur. 465	532
Karuppa Goundan v. Kumarasami Goundan, 25 M. 429	839
Karappana Kownden v. Kandasawmi Kownden, 23 Ind. Cas. 730; 15 M. L. T. 230; (1914) M. W. N. 394; 15 Cr. L. J. 362; 26 M. L. J. 233	368
Kashi Nath Singh v. Shamju, Selected Decision No. 16 of 1892	447
Kashi Prasad v. Kedar Nath Sahu, 29 A. 219; A. W. N. (1898) 47	403
Kashiram v. Pandu, 27 B. 1 at p. 12; 4 Bom. L. R. 688	481
Kasumunnissa v. Nilratan Bose, 8 C. 79; 9 C. L. R. 173	551
Katchekaleyan v. Kachiviyaya, 12 M. L. A. 495; 11 W. R. P. C. 33; 2 B. L. R. 72; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 206; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 461; 20 E. R. 425	666
Kathiresan Chettiar v. Ramasawmy Chettiar, 26 Ind. Cas. 93; 27 M. L. J. 302; (1914) M. W. N. 571	860
Kattika Bapanamma v. Kattika Kristnamma, 30 M. 231; 17 M. L. J. 30	681
Kaveri Ammal v. Sastri Ramier, 26 M. 104 at p. 109; 13 M. L. J. 58	301
Kazi Newaz Khoda v. Ram Jadu Dey, 34 C. 109; 5 C. L. J. 33; 11 C. W. N. 201	790
Kedar Nath v. Ardha Chunder Roy, 5 C. W. N. 763; 29 C. 54	700
Kedar Nath v. Sohan Lall, 25 Ind. Cas. 405; 12 A. L. J. 693	529
Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v. Donzelle, 20 W. R. 352	190
Keech v. Hall, 1 Dougl. 21; 1 Sm. L. C. 511; 99 E. R. 17	416

K—contd.

	Page.
Keighley Maxsted & Company v. Durant, (1901) A. C. 240 at p. 244; 70 L. J. K. B. 662; 81 L. T. 777; 17 T. L. R. 527	612
Kelu Mulacheri Nayar v. Chindu, 19 M. 157	263
Keshabati Koeri v. Mohon Chandra Mondal, 14 Ind. Cas. 227; 39 C. 1010; 16 C. W. N. 802	286
Keshav Narayan, In re , 17 Ind. Cas. 720; 14 Bom. L. R. 968; 13 Cr. L. J. 248	654
Keshav Pandurang v. Vitayak Hari, 18 B. 355	373
Khagaram Das v. Ram Sunkar Das, 27 Ind. Cas. 815; 21 C. L. J. 79; 42 C. 652; 19 C. W. N. 775	396
Khagendra Narain Chowdhry v. Matangini Debi, 17 C. 814 at p. 819; 17 I. A. 62; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 528	243
Khair Din v. Ghulam Mohi-ud-Din, 22 Ind. Cas. 401; 52 P. L. R. 1914; 43 P. R. 1914; 142 P. W. R. 1914	273
Khairud-din v. Abu Mad, 188 P. R. 1883	809
Khair-ul-nisa v. Bahadur Ali, 27 P. R. 1906; 11 P. L. R. 1903	538
Khairulla v. Mir Hamza, 111 P. R. 1885	223
Khajab Hidayat Oollah v. Rai Jan Khanum, 3 M. L. A. 295; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 287; 18 E. R. 510	658
Khande Subbaya v. Nara Subba Reddy, 27 Ind. Cas. 792; 2 L. W. 4	912
Khatija v. Ismail, 12 M. 380	928
Khetra Mohan v. Mohin Chandra Das, 18 Ind. Cas. 595; 17 C. W. N. 518	700
Khuddo v. Durga Prasad, 29 A. 122; A. W. N. (1906) 299; 3 A. L. J. 729	290
Khudiram Mookerjee v. Bonwari Lal Roy, 16 C. 584	381
Khunni Lal v. Kunwar Gobind Krishna Narain, 10 Ind. Cas. 477; 33 A. 356; 15 C. W. N. 545 (P. C.); 8 A. L. J. 552; 13 Bom. L. R. 427; 13 C. L. J. 575; 10 M. L. T. 25; 21 M. L. J. 645; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 432; 38 I. A. 87	986
Khushal Panachand v. Bhimabai, 12 B. 589	255
Khwaja Muhammad Yusuf, In the matter of the petition of 13 A. 196; A. W. N. (1896) 39	301
Kichilappa Naicker v. Ramamujam Pillai, 25 M. 166	40
Kidambi Jagannathacharyulu v. Pidipite Kutumarayadu, 25 Ind. Cas. 891; 27 M. L. J. 233	209
Kilgour v. Gaddes, (1904) 1 K. B. 467; 73 L. J. K. B. 233; 52 W. R. 438; 90 L. T. 694; 20 T. L. R. 240	551
Kimatrai Kashiram v. Wadero Sher Mahomed Khan, 25 Ind. Cas. 938; 8 S. L. R. 63	481
King-Emperor v. Mathura Thakar, 6 C. W. N. 72	360
Kingdon v. Nottle, (1815) 16 R. R. 379; 4 M. & S. 53; 105 E. R. 755	879
Kinniard v. Trollope, (1888) 39 Ch. D. 636; 57 L. J. Ch. 905; 39 L. T. 433; 37 W. R. 234	570
Kirtibash Das v. Gopal Jee, 20 Ind. Cas. 499; 19 C. L. J. 193	190
Kishen Bullubh Mehta v. Belasoo Commur, 3 W. R. 230	232
Kishen Parshad v. Har Narain Singh, 9 Ind. Cas. 739; 33 A. 272; 15 C. W. N. 321; 8 A. L. J. 256; 9 M. L. T. 343; 13 C. L. J. 345; 21 M. L. J. 378; 13 Bom. L. R. 359; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 395; 38 I. A. 47	913

K—contd.

	Page.
Ko Khine v. Snadden, 1 L. R. 2 P. C. 50; 37 L. J. P. C. 119; 5 Moore P. C. (N. S.) 76	301
Kocharla Sektamma v. Pillala Venkatarama-nayya, 21 Ind. Cas. 387; 14 M. L. T. 319; 25 M. L. J. 410; (1913) M. W. N. 918, 38 M. 308	474
Kolandai Nayakan v. Karabudda Savudri, 6 M. L. J. 193	338
Kollany Kooer v. Luchmee Pershad, 24 W. R. 395	407
Kollipara Pullamma v. Maddala Tatayya, 19 M. 340 at p. 341; 6 M. L. J. 177	783
Komolothun Datt v. Nilruttun Mundle 4 C. 363; 4 C. L. R. 175	703
Kone Goundan v. Bola Naicken, 12 M. L. J. 387	681
Kota Muthanna Chetti v. Alibeg Sahib, 6 M. 174; 7 Ind. Jur. 11	54
Kotappa v. Vallur Zamindar, 25 M. 50; 11 M. L. J. 125	395
Kottal Uppu v. Edavalath Thathan Nambudiri, 6 M. H. C. R. 238	185
Koylash Chunder Ghose v. Sonatun Chunga, Harroie, 7 C. 132; 8 C. L. R. 281	532
Kripa Nath Chakraborty v. Sheikh Anu, 4 C. L. J. 332; 10 C. W. N. 944	17
Krishna Ayyar v. Krishnasami Ayyar, 23 M. 597	38
Krishna Bar v. Scimati Ramamoyi Debi, 29 Ind. Cas. 120; 19 C. W. N. 470	9
Krishna Chandra Mandal v. Jogendra Narain Roy, 27 Ind. Cas. 139; 20 C. L. J. 469; 19 C. W. N. 537	808
Krishna Das Roy v. Land Acquisition Collector of Pabna, 13 Ind. Cas. 470; 16 C. L. J. 165; 16 C. W. N. 327	76
Krishna Prasad v. Maizuddin, 17 C. 707	6
Krishna Tata Chariar v. Singara Chariar, 4 M. 219	270
Krishnamma v. Suranna, 16 M. 148; 3 M. L. J. 54	51
Krishnan Nambiar v. Kannan, 21 M. 8	878
Krishnarav v. Rangar, 4 B. H. C. R. A. C. J. 1	732
Krishnasami Naidu v. Somasundaram Chettiar 30 M. 335; 17 M. L. J. 95; 2 M. L. T. 116 (F. B.)	188
Krishnayyan v. Muttusami, 7 M. 407	844
Krishnambhat v. Anunt Gangadharbhat, 4 Morris 111	448
Kristnama v. Mangammal, 26 M. 91	428
Kristo Churn Dass v. Radha Churn Kur, 19 C. 750	427
Kristoromoni Dasi v. Narendro Krishna Bahadur, 16 I. A. 29; 16 C. 383; 13 Ind. Jur. 9C; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 285	410
Kuar Sen v. Mammas, 17 A. 57; A. W. N. (1895) 10	806
Koldip Dube v. Mahant Dube, 11 Ind. Cas. 7C5; 34 A. 43; 8 A. L. J. 1138	816
Kumar Kalanand Singh v. Syed Sarafat Hossein, 12 C. W. N. 528	802
Kumara Tirumalai Naik v. Bengaru Tirumalai, Sauri Naik, 21 M. 310	732
Kunhacha Umma v. Kuti Mammi Hajee, 16 M. 201; 2 M. L. J. 226	385, 544, 854

K—concl.

	Page.
Kunhambi v. Kalanathar, 24 Ind. Cas. 520; 16 M. L. T. 17; 27 M. L. J. 156	570
Kunja Bhuniya v. Emperor, 15 Ind. Cas. 431; 39 C. 896; 16 C. W. N. 1053; 13 Cr. L. J. 48	344
Kupoor v. Sebak Ram, (1-16) 1 Bor. 405 at p. 448	426
Kuriyali v. Mayan, 7 M. 255	303
Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi, 29 M. 336; 16 M. L. J. 395; 1 M. L. T. 163	683, 9 9
Kuthaperumal Rajali v. Secretary of State, 30 M. 245; 17 M. L. J. 174	190

L

Labh Singh v. Gopi, 15 P. R. 1903; 55 P. L. R. 1503	163
Lacey v. Hill, Crowley's Claim, (1874) 18 Eq. 182; 3 L. L. Ch. 11; 30 L. T. 4 4; 22 W. R. 58	452, 611
Lachhan Kunwar v. Manorath Ram, 22 C. 445; 22 L. A. 25	291
Lachman Rao v. Waman Rao, 16 C. P. L. R. 1	5
Lachmi Narain v. Makund Singh, 26 A. 6 7; A. W. N. 190 144; A. L. J. 338	733
Lagunas Nitrate Company v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 39; 8 L. J. Ch. 69; 18 W. R. 74; 81 L. T. 3 4; 5 P. L. R. 4 6	451
Lahori v. Radho, 72 P. R. 1906; 105 P. L. R. 1907	795
Lakshmidas Khimji Spinning and Weaving Company, Ltd. v. Govardhandas Khattoo v. Sanders Slater, 11 Ind. Cas. 562; 11 Bom. L. R. 5 8	726
Lakhi Narain Ganguli v. Felamani Dasi, 27 Ind. Cas. 11; 20 C. L. J. 131	319
Lakshminamma v. Ratnamma, 21 Ind. Cas. 698; 38 M. 474; 25 M. L. J. 556	492
Lakshman Dada Naik v. Ramchandra Dada, Naik, 7 I. A. 181 at p. 193; 5 B. 48; 7 C. L. R. 320	281
Lakshmana v. Siva Sasamallayani, 24 M. 425; 15 M. L. J. 245	290
Lakshmanan Chetti v. Kuttayan Chetti, 24 M. 689	293
Lakshmandas Narayandas v. Anna R. Lane, 32 B. 356; 6 Bom. L. R. 731	6, 611
Lakshminarayana v. Dasu, 11 M. 258	425
Lakshminarayana Aiyar v. Ulagammal, 26 Ind. Cas. 528; 25 M. L. J. 256	419
Lakshminipathi v. Kandasami, 16 M. 54	850
Lal Mohan Pal v. Surya Kumar Das, 11 C. W. N. 1152	208
Lala Soni Ram v. Kanhaiya Lal, 19 Ind. Cas. 291; 35 A. 227; 13 M. L. T. 437; 17 C. W. N. 605; 11 A. L. J. 589; (1913) M. W. N. 470; 7 C. L. J. 488; 15 Bom. L. R. 489; 25 M. L. J. 131; 40 I. A. 74	253
Lalit Mohan v. Navadip Chandra, 28 C. 587	703
Lalit Mohun Singh Roy v. Chukkun Lal Roy, 24 I. A. 76; 24 C. 834; 1 C. W. N. 387	245, 407
Lalta Prosad v. Emperor, 17 Ind. Cas. 799; 13 Cr. L. J. 863; 10 A. L. J. 294; 34 A. 654	163
Latifar Rahman v. A. H. Forbes, 5 Ind. Cas. 783; 14 C. W. N. 372	18

L—concl.

	Page.
Lavor v. Fiebler, (1861) 2 Beav. 1; 32 L. J. Ch. 265; 9 Jur. N. s. 190; 7 L. T. 802; 11 W. R. 245; 1 N. R. 188; 55 E. R. 1; 134 R. R. 78	712
Lawrence, in re , 9 L. d. Cas. 255; 14 M. 316; 12 Cr. L. J. 44; 9 M. L. T. 322; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 109	374
Lawson v. Fraser, 189 1 S. Ireland 55	11
Laxman v. Gundaji, 7 Ind. Cas. 543; 6 N. L. R. 10	291
Leader v. Duffey, (18 8) 3 A. C. 294 at p. 301; 18 L. J. P. C. 3; 59 L. T. 9	411
Leigh v. Paterson, (1818) 8 Taunt. 540; 20 R. R. 552; 2 Moore 588; 29 E. R. 423	451
Leslie Williams v. Haines Thomas Giddy, 11 Ind. Cas. 509; 5 C. W. N. 669; 21 M. L. J. 64; 10 M. L. T. 288	622
Lighthorne v. Gill, (1764) 3 Brown, P. C. 250	409
Lindsay v. Lindsay, (1872) 42 L. J. P. 32; 27 L. T. 92; 4 W. R. 272	704
Lingard v. Eade, (1741) 2 Atk. 501 at p. 504; 26 E. R. 02	33
Liquidation Estates Purchase Co., Ltd., v. Willoughby, (1898) A. C. 32; 67 L. J. Ch. 251; 74 L. T. 396; 14 T. L. R. 95; 43 W. R. 589	24
Little v. Newton, 1841 9 D. P. C. 437; 2 Scott. (N. R.) 79; 2 Man. & G. 1 10 L. J. C. 1 88; 5 Jur. 46; 133 E. R. 627; 58 R. R. 426	33
Liversidge v. Broadbent, (1859) 8 L. J. Ex. 232; 4 H. & N. 603; 7 W. R. 613; 8 R. R. 613	153
Lodna Colliery Co., Ltd., v. Bipin Bihari Bose, 17 Ind. Cas. 700; 39 C. 739	582
Loffus v. Maw, (1862) 3 Giff. 592; 8 Jur. N. s. 6 7; 6 L. T. 3 6; 10 W. R. 513; 16 E. R. 544; 173 R. R. 113	712
Lokhee Narain Roy Chowdhry v. K. Iyaddo Bandopadhyaya, 23 W. R. 358; 2 I. A. 164	59
London, Brighton and South Coast Railway Company v. Truman, (1885) 1 App. Cas. 45; 55 L. J. Ch. 364; 54 L. T. 250; 34 W. R. 657; 50 J. P. 3 8	66
Lowe v. Thomas, (1854) 5 DeG. M. & G. 315 at p. 317; 2 Eq. R. 742; 23 L. J. Ch. 616; 18 Jur. 513; 2 W. R. 4 4; 49 E. R. 89; 104 R. R. 141	411
Lumley v. Gye, (1853) 2 El. & Bl. 216; 22 L. J. Q. B. 463; 17 Jur. 827; 1 W. R. 432; 93 R. R. 50; 118 E. R. 749	227
Lutawan v. Achya, 21 Ind. Cas. 989; 36 A. 69; 12 A. L. J. 57	208
Luxmore v. Robson, 1 B. & Ald. 584; 19 R. R. 396; 1 6 E. R. 2 5	245
Lywood v. Kimber, 54 E. R. 539; 29 Beav. 38; 30 L. J. Ch. 507; 7 Jur. (N. s.) 507; 9 W. R. 88; 131 R. R. 457	768

M

Ma Gun Bon v. Po Kywe, U. B. R. (1897-01), 11, 66	333
Ma Gyan v. Maung Kywin, U. B. R. (1892-96), 11, 176	96
Ma Hnin Dok v. Ma U. B. R. (1897-01), 11, 26	332
Ma Le v. Ma Hmyin, 4 Ind. Cas. 298; 5 L. B. R. 112	87
Ma Leik v. Maung Nwa, 4 L. B. R. 110	79

M—contd.

	Page.
Ma Min E v. Ma Kyaw Tahi, L. R. (1892—1900), 361	50
Ma Ngwe v. Lu Bu, (1877) S. J. 76	512
Ma Nhin Bwin v. U Shwe Gone, 23 Ind. Cas. 433; 7 Bur. L. T. 105 (P. C.); 16 Bom. L. R. 377; 27 M. L. J. 41; 18 C. W. N. 1121; 16 M. L. T. 142; 20 C. L. J. 264; 41 C. 587; 1 L. W. 914; 8 L. B. R. 1	516
Ma Pwa v. Ma The The, 1 L. B. R. 273	94
Ma Sein Nyo v. Ma Kywe, U. B. R. (1892—96), II, 159	90
Ma Sein Ton v. Na. Son, 30 Ind. Cas. 588	948
Ma Wun Di v. Ma Kin, 35 C. 232 (P. C.); 3 M. L. T. 93; 10 Bom. L. R. 41; 18 M. L. J. 3; 12 C. W. N. 220; 7 C. L. J. 112; 5 A. L. J. 63; 14 Bur. L. R. 3; 4 L. B. R. 175; 35 I. A. 41	835
Ma Ya v. Maung Kyaing, R. S. J. 482	885
Maber v. Maber, (1817) 2 Ex. 153; 36 L. J. Ex. 70; 16 L. T. 26	629
Macfarlane v. Leclair, 15 Moo. P. C. 181; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 237; 10 W. R. 324; 15 E. R. 462; 137 R. R. 24	300
Macfarlane v. Lister, 37 Ch. D. 88; 57 L. J. Ch. 92; 58 L. T. 201	153
Macchikandi Parkum Maramittath Tharovil Mootha Chettiam Veettil Chakkara Kannan v. Varnalankandi Kunhi Pokker, 30 Ind. Cas. 755; 18 M. L. T. 255; 29 M. L. J. 481	385, 854
Macintosh v. Haydon, (1826) 27 R. R. 757; Ryan & Meedy 362	882
Mackinnon, Mackenzie & Company v. Lang, Moir & Company, 5 B. 584 at p. 588	611
Mackenzie v. Tiruvengadathan, 9 M. 271	628
Mackertich v. Nolo Coomar Ray, 30 C. 477; 7 C. W. N. 431	451
Machon Mohan v. Baikanta Nath, 10 C. W. N. 839	205
Madan Mohan Singh v. Raj Kishori Kumari, 17 Ind. Cas. 1; 17 C. L. J. 384	790
Maddison v. Alderson, (1883) 8 App. Cas. 476; 52 L. J. Q. B. 737; 49 L. T. 303; 31 W. R. 820; 47 J. P. 821	713, 991
Madhavaia Chetty v. Damodaram Chetty, 17 Ind. Cas. 347; 12 M. L. T. 240; (1912) M. W. N. 972	19
Madhub Nath Surma v. Mayarani Medhi, 17 C. 819	424
Madhwa Sidhanta Onahini Nidhi v. Venkataramanjula Naidu, 26 M. 662	6
Madon Mohan Chattopadhyaya v. Akshoy Kumar Barari, 5 Ind. Cas. 23; 14 C. W. N. 15	549
Madurai Pillai v. Muthu Chetty, 22 Ind. Cas. 775; 1 L. W. 172; 15 M. L. T. 156; (1914) M. W. N. 216; 26 M. L. J. 227 (F. B.)	925
Maghi v. Narain, 20 Ind. Cas. 31; 6 P. R. 1914; 256 P. L. R. 1913; 165 P. W. R. 1913	636
Mahabir Prasad v. Shah Wahid Alam, A. W. N. (1891) 162	859
Mahadeva Aiyar v. Gopal Aiyar, 8 Ind. Cas. 390; 34 M. 51; 8 M. L. T. 289; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 36	672
Mahamad Amin v. Hasan, 31 B. 143; 9 Bom. L. R. 65	593
Maharaj Kishen v. Har Gobind, 27 Ind. Cas. 69; 101 P. R. 1914; 218 P. L. R. 1915	45

M—contd.

	Page.
Maharaj Kumar Jagat Mohan Nath v. Brinda Saha, 1 C. L. J. 557 at p. 561	732
Maharaja of Benares v. Nand Ram, 29 A. 43; A. W. N. (1907) 139; 4 A. L. J. 336	481, 869
Maharajah Pertab Narain Singh v. Maharane Subhao Koor 4 I. A. 228 at p. 245; 1 C. L. R. 113; 3 C. 626 (P. C.); 3 Sar. P. C. J. 740; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 458; Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No. 46, 1 Ind. Jur. 679	694
Maharana Fettehsangji Jaswantsangji v. Desai Kullianraji Hakoomutraji, 21 W. R. 178 (P. C.); 13 B. L. R. 254; 1 I. A. 34; 10 B. H. C. R. 281	423
Maheshwar Panda v. Baidya Nath Jana, 7 Ind. Cas. 7	783
Mahoda v. Kuleani, (1803) 1 Mac. Sel. Rep. 82; 6 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 62	434
Mahomed Abdul Hai v. Gujraj Sahai, 20 I. A. 70; 20 C. 826	669
Mahomed Abdul Kadir v. Amtal Karim Banu, 16 C. 161; 15 I. A. 220; 12 Ind. Jur. 416; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 224	735
Mahomed Abdul Mennon v. Pandaranga Row, 28 M. 255; 2 Weir 247; 2 Cr. L. J. 752	831
Mahmud Bakhsh v. Hassan Bakhsh, 11 Ind. Cas. 708; 7 P. R. 1912; 239 P. L. R. 1911; 155 P. W. R. 1911	636
Mahomed Basiroollah v. Ahmed Ali, 22 W. R. 448	666
Mahomed Barker Hoossain Khan Bahadoor v. Shurfoon Nissa Begum, 8 M. L. A. 136; 3 W. R. (P. C.) 37; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 400; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 728; 19 E. R. 481	659
Mahomed Buksh v. Hosseini Bibi, 15 C. 684; 15 I. A. 81; 12 Ind. Jur. 291; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 175	183
Mahomed Gulab v. Mahomed Sulliman, 21 C. 612	14
Mahomed Ibrahim Hossein Khan v. Ambika Pershad Singh, 14 Ind. Cas. 496; 39 I. A. 68; 39 C. 527; 11 M. L. T. 265; (1912) M. W. N. 367; 9 A. L. J. 332; 14 Bom. L. R. 280; 16 C. W. N. 505; 15 C. L. J. 411; 22 M. L. J. 468	24
Mahomed Jan v. Gangra Bishun Singh, 10 Ind. Cas. 272; 13 C. L. J. 525; 38 C. 537; 15 C. W. N. 443; 9 M. L. T. 446; 8 A. L. J. 480; 13 Bom. L. R. 413; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 277; 21 M. L. J. 1148 (P. C.)	977
Mahomed Musa v. Aghore Kumar Ganguli, 28 Ind. Cas. 930; 2 L. W. 258; 19 C. W. N. 250; 13 A. L. J. 229; 17 M. L. T. 143; 17 Bom. L. R. 420; 42 C. 80; 21 C. L. J. 231; 28 M. L. J. 548; 42 I. A. 1; (1915) M. W. N. 621 (P. C.) 928; 990	870
Mahomed Mus v. Jijibhai Bhagwan, 9 B. 524	870
Mahomed Shamsol Huda v. Shewukram, 2 I. A. 7; 14 B. L. R. 226; 22 W. R. 409	409
Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed, 10 B. 1	109
Maillard v. Duke of Argyll, (1843) 6 Man. & Gr. 40; 134 E. R. 801 at p. 803	628
Makath Unni Moyi v. Malabar Kandapani Nair, 4 M. 268 at p. 271; 4 Ind. Jur. 565	580
Malim v. Keighley, (1795) 2 Ves. 529 at p. 532; 2 R. R. 229; 30 E. R. 760	409
Manchershaw v. Ardesbir, 10 Bom. L. R. 1209	711
Mandal & Co. v. Fazul Ellahie, 26 Ind. Cas. 209; 41 C. 825	60

M—contd.

	Page.
Mandaloswara Katari, v. Prayag Dossji, 2 Ind. Cas. 18; 32 M. 429; 19 M. L. J. 401	666
Manders v. Williams, (1849) 4 Exch. 339 at p. 344; 80 R. R. 588; 18 L. J. Ex. 437	433
Mandhardhar Aitch v. Secretary of State, 6 C. W. N. 218	628
Manekji v. Secretary of State for India, (1896) Bom. P. J. 751	461
Mangalathammal v. Narayanaswami Aiyar, 30 M. 461; 17 M. L. J. 250	256, 270
Mangaldas v. Abdul Razak, 23 Ind. Cas. 565; 16 Bom. L. R. 224	109
Mangles v. Dixon, (1852) 3 H. L. C. 702; 1 Mac. & G. 437; 1 Hall. & Tw. 542; 19 L. J. Ch. 240; 10 E. R. 278; 88 R. R. 296	154
Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Jamahir Kumari, 9 C. W. N. 670; 32 C. 643	256
Mani Chander Chakerbutty v. Baikanta Nath Biswas, 9 C. W. N. 856; 29 C. 363	551
Mannu Lal v. Fazal Imam, 10 Ind. Cas. 353; 33 A. 580; 8 A. L. J. 692	733
Maradugula Venkataratnam v. Kotala Ramanna, 9 Ind. Cas. 255; 21 M. L. J. 413; 9 M. L. T. 276	159
Marlborough Club Company, Limited, In re , 37 L. J. Ch. 296; 5 Eq. 365; 18 L. T. 46; 16 W. R. 668	55
Marnham v. Weaver, 80 L. T. 412	180
Marreco v. Richardson, (1908) 2 K. B. 584; 77 L. J. K. B. 859; 99 L. T. 486; 24 T. L. R. 624	629
Marris v. Ingram, (1879) 13 Ch. D. 338; 49 L. J. Ch. 123; 41 L. T. 613; 28 W. R. 434	509
Martin v. Holgate, (1866) L. R. 1 H. L. 175 at p. 159; 35 L. J. Ch. 789; 15 W. R. 135	412
Maruti v. Balaji, 2 Bom. L. R. 1059	389
Mashiat-un-nissa v. Rani, 13 A. 1; A. W. N. (1889) 207	427
Mata Din v. Sheikh Ahmad Ali, 13 Ind. Cas. 976; 15 O. C. 49; 16 C. W. N. 338; 11 M. L. T. 145; (1912) M. W. N. 183; 9 A. L. J. 215; 15 C. L. J. 270; 14 Bom. L. R. 192; 34 A. 213; 23 M. L. J. 6; 39 I. A. 49	735
Matangini Chaudhurani v. Sreenath Dass, 7 C. W. N. 552	556
Mathura Prasad v. Deoka, A. W. N. (1890) 124	907
Maung Aing v. Ma Kin, U. B. R. (1892-98), II, p. 22	96
Maung Gale v. Maung Bya, 4 L. B. R. 189	89
Maung Hlaing v. Maung Et Gyi, U. B. R. (1892-96), II, 466	101
Maung La Dok v. Ma Po, U. B. R. (1897-1901), II, p. 162	518
Maung Naw v. Ma Shwe Hmat, 30 Ind. Cas. 772; 8 Bur. L. T. 191 (F. B.)	889
Maung Rado v. Ma Kyin, U. B. R. (1897-01), II, 164	332
Maung Shwe Thwe v. Ma Saing, U. B. R. (1897-01), II, p. 135	96, 513
Maung Tun Gyaw v. Ma Balo, U. B. R. (1897-01), II, 185	90
Mayandi Chetti v. Oliver, 22 M. 261; 8 M. L. J. 196	684
Mayavanjari Chumaren v. Nimini Mayuran, 2 M. H. C. R. 109	186
McCartney v. Londonderry and Lough Swilley railway Co., (1904) A. C. 301; 73 L. J. P. C. 91 L. T. 105; 53 W. R. 385	67

M—contd.

	Page.
Meenakshi Anni v. Appakuttri, 1 Ind. Cas. 299; 33 M. 226; 7 M. L. T. 26; 20 M. L. J. 359	849
Meghraj Gangabax, In re , 7 Ind. Cas. 448; 35 B. 47; 12 Bom. L. R. 517	511
Mehroonissa Bibi v. Hur Churn Bose, 10 W. R. 220	190
Mehra Kashi Ram v. Dadabhoi, 124 P. R. 1880	197
Mercantile Trading Company, In re , Stringer's case, 4 Ch. App. 475; 38 L. J. Ch. 698; 20 L. T. 553; 17 W. R. 694	746
Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, (1881) 6 App. Cas. 193; 50 L. J. Q. B. 353; 44 L. T. 653; 29 W. R. 617; 45 J. P. 664	68
Metropolitan Railway Company v. Defries, (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 387; 36 L. T. 494; 25 W. R. 841	606
Mi Myin v. Nga Twe, U. B. R. (1906) Buddhist Law, Divorce 19	89
Mi So v. Ma Hmat Tha, S. J. 177	876
Midnapore Zemindari Company Ltd. v. Hrishikesh Ghosh, 25 Ind. Cas. 561; 41 C. 1108; 18 C. W. N. 828; 19 C. L. J. 505	27
Midnapore Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Nitya Kali Das, 24 Ind. Cas. 243	218
Mihin Lal v. Badri Prasad, 27 A. 436; 2 A. L. J. 107; A. W. N. (1905) 36	466
Mills v. Former, (1815) 19 Ves. (Jun.) 483; 1 Mer. 55; 13 R. R. 247; 34 E. R. 595	152
Minakshi Naidu v. Subramanya Sastri, 11 M. 26 at pp. 34, 35; 14 I. A. 160; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 54; 11 Ind. Jur. 393	503
Minor, Ex parte , Pollitt, In re , (1893) 1 Q. B. 455; 62 L. J. Q. B. 236; 4 R. 253; 68 L. T. 360; 41 W. R. 276; 10 Morrell 35	586
Mir Tapura v. Gopi Narayan, 7 C. L. J. 251	670
Mirkhan v. Kadarsa, 13 M. 145	61
Mo Thi v. Tha Kwe, 4 L. B. R. 128; 14 Bur. L. R. 205	517
Modhu Sudan Singh v. Rooke, 25 C. 1 (P. C.); 24 I. A. 164; 1 C. W. N. 433	593
Moggridge v. Thackwell, (1803) 7 Ves. (Jun.) 30; 32 E. R. 15; 6 R. R. 76	152
Mohabbat Shah v. Abdul Hamid Khan, 1 C. L. J. 73	245
Mohammad Abdullah Khan v. Bank Instalment Company, Limited, in Liquidation, 2 Ind. Cas. 379; 31 A. 495; 6 A. L. J. 611	101
Mohammad Hashmat Ali v. Kaniz Fatima, 27 Ind. Cas. 701; 12 A. L. J. 110	920
Mohammad Mumtaz Ali Khan v. Sakhawati Ali Khan, 28 I. A. 190; 23 A. 394; 5 C. W. N. 881	34
Mohammad Nasir Khan v. Farid, 22 Ind. Cas. 398; 8 P. R. 1913 Rev	403
Mohammad Yakub v. Emperor, 6 Ind. Cas. 454; 32 A. 571; 7 A. L. J. 649; 11 Cr. L. J. 355	68
Mohansing Chawan v. Conder, 7 B. 478	475
Mohendra Nath v. Kali Proshad, 30 C. 265; 7 C. W. N. 229	190
Mohesh Lal v. Mohant Bawan Das, 10 I. A. 62; 9 C. 961; 13 C. L. R. 221; 7 Ind. Jur. 382; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 424	24
Mohideen Hadjar v. Pitchay, (1893) A. C. 193; 62 L. J. P. C. 96	296
Mohidin v. Shirlingappa, 23 B. 666	806

M—contd.

	Page.
Mohini Mohun Das v. Bungsi Buddhan Saha, 7 C. 0; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 4 8	667
Mohomed Golab v. Mahomed Sulliman, 21 C. 62	197
Mohori Bibi v. Dharmodas Ghose, 30 C. 539 (P. C.); 30 L. A. 14; 7 C. W. N. 441; 5 Bom. L. R. 421	793
Mohun Lal Sookool v. Goluck Chunder Dutt, 10 M. I. A. 1; 1 W. R. 19 (P. C.); 1 Suth. P. C. J. 523; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 49; 19 P. R. 873	232
Moidin v. Oothumanganni, 11 M. 416	399
Moidin Kutti v. Krishnan, 10 M. 322	485
Mollwo, March & Co. v. Court of Wards, (1872) 10 B. L. R. 312; 18 W. R. 354; 1 A. Sup. Vol. 86; on App. 4 P. C. 419	431
Mon Mohun Roy v. Durga Churn Goose, 15 C. 502	673
Moniram Kolita v. Keri Kolitani, 5 C. 776 at p. 789 (P. C.); 6 C. L. R. 324; 7 L. A. 115; 4 Sar. P. C. 103; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 165; 4 Ind. Jur. 363; 3 Shome L. R. 198	443
Montefiori v. Montefiori, (1762) 1 Black W. 363; 96 E. R. 268	73
Moolchand v. Chutree, 1 N. W. P. H. C. R. 204	294
Morgan in re , Owen v. Morgan, (1887) 35 Ch. D. 492; 56 L. J. Ch. 603; 56 L. T. 503; 35 W. R. 705	183
Mortimer v. Orchard, 2 Ves. (Jan.) 213; 30 E. R. 615	2
Motclock's Trust, in re (1856) 3 K. & J. 456; 26 L. J. Ch. 67; 5 W. R. 748; 69 E. R. 1169; 112 L. R. 230	499
Moshabel v. Konomutty, 15 W. R. 172	34
Motichand v. Ganga Prasad Singh, 24 A. 174; 29 I. A. 40; 6 C. W. N. 36; 4 Bom. L. R. 136	47, 97
Moti Gulabchand v. Mahomed Mehdi Tharia Thopan, 20 B. 367	79
Moti Lal v. Karrabuddin, 24 L. A. 170; 25 C. 17; 1 C. W. N. 634	636
Moti Ram v. East Indian Railway Company, 10 P. R. 1506; 2 P. L. R. 1907; 30 P. W. R. 1907	476
Moule v. Garrett, 7 Ex. 101; 41 L. J. Ex. 64; 26 L. T. 367; 20 W. R. 416	106
Mriyanjoy v. Bhola Nath, 20 Ind. Cas. 83; 18 C. L. J. 81	703
Muddun Mohun Sircar v. Kali Churn Dey, 20 C. 37	703
Mudun Mohun Singh v. Ram Das Chuckerbutty, 6 C. L. R. 357	873
Muhammad Abdussamad v. Qurban Husain, 26 A. 110; 6 Bom. L. R. 138; 8 C. W. N. 201; 31 I. A. 30 (P. C.)	770
Muhammad Maroof v. Sultan Ahmad, 24 Ind. Cas. 126; 12 A. L. J. 415	529
Muhammad Musa v. Abul Hassan Khan, 22 Ind. Cas. 951; 18 C. W. N. 62; 41 C. 866	397
Muhammad Subhanullah v. Secretary of State for India, A. W. N. (1904) 64; 26 A. 382	401
Muhammad Umar Khan v. Muhammad Niaz ud-Din Khan, 13 Ind. Cas. 344; 39 C. 418; 6 P. W. R. 19 2; (1912) M. W. N. 77; 11 M. L. T. 76; 9 A. L. J. 137; 5 C. L. J. 172; 12 P. L. R. 1912; 22 M. L. J. 240; 11 Bom. L. R. 182; 16 C. W. N. 458; 126 P. R. 1912; 39 I. A. 19	947

M—contd.

	Page.
Mukka Muthirayan, in re , 31 Ind. Cas. 337	344
Mula v. Partab, 6 Ind. Cas. 116; 32 A. 483; 7 A. L. J. 417	290
Mulchand Kuber v. Bhudhia, 22 B. 812	87
Mulla Veetil Seethi Kutti v. Corambath Parathooli Achuthan Nair, 9 Ind. Cas. 513; 21 M. L. J. 214; 9 M. L. L. 431; (1911) M. W. N. 165	201
Mullapudi Balakrishnayya v. Venkatanarasimha Appa Rao, 9 M. 324	871
Mullick Ahmed Zamma v. Mahomed Syed, 6 C. 64; 6 C. L. R. 573	427
Mulraj v. Sobna Ram, 31 P. R. 1844	232
Mundy v. Jolliffe, (1849) 5 Myl. & Cr 167; 9 L. J. Ch. 95; 3 Sar. 1015; 4 E. R. 33; 48 R. 512	2
Manghica Marwari v. Garshai Nand, 17 C. 347 (P. C.); 1 I. A. 19; 13 Ind. Jur. 49; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 463	492
Mangal Pershad Dicit v. Gria Kant Lahiri, 5 C. 5; 11 C. L. R. 113; 8 L. A. 123; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 249	193
Muniappa Naik v. Sabramania Ayyan, 18 M. 34; 5 M. L. J. 69	572
Munisani Mudaly v. Abou Rally, 7 Ind. Cas. 424; 27 M. L. J. 742; 9 M. W. N. 40; 34 M. 705	978
Muniswami Chetty v. Maruthamall, 7 Ind. Cas. 16; 31 A. L. J. 211; 5 M. L. L. 124; 29 M. L. J. 687; (1910) M. W. N. 211	13
Murari v. Payana, 20 B. 86	811
Muridhar v. Jagannath, 21 Ind. Cas. 24; 10 S. L. R. 5	467
Murray v. Queen Empress, 21 C. 103	120
Musa Yakub v. Mani Lal, 29 B. 368; 7 Bom. L. R. 20	247
Musammal Bobee Bachan v. Sheikh Hamid Hossein, 14 M. L. A. 77; 7 W. R. P. C. 113; 6 B. L. P. C. 45; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 53; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 39; 10 E. R. 828	723
Musammal Bohans Kowar v. Lalla Buhoree Lal, 18 W. R. 157 (P. C.); 10 A. L. R. 13; 14 M. L. A. 46; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 64; 2 E. R. 871	69
Musammal Fatima v. Ghulam Muhammad Shah, 17 P. R. 889	796
Musammal Kokan v. Lakhoo, 7 Ind. Cas. 470; 60 P. R. 1914; 2 P. W. R. 1910; 169 P. L. R. 1910	795
Musammal Mitna v. Fazal Rub, 13 M. L. A. 573; 15 W. R. P. C. 15; 6 B. L. R. 148; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 387; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 623; 23 E. R. 65	666
Musammal Oodey Kowar v. Musammal Ladoo, 13 M. L. A. 585; 15 W. R. P. C. 16; 6 B. L. R. (P. C.) 283; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 358; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 628; 6 E. R. 669	960
Musammal Rupa v. Mohanlal, 9 C. P. L. R. 47	291
Musammal Sahban v. Ghazi, 50 P. R. 1885	535
Musammal Uma v. Musammal Kallu, 3 C. P. L. R. 185	881
Musammal Umutul Fatima v. Asgar Ali Khan, 8 O. C. 45	751
Mussoorie Bank v. Raynor, 7 A. C. 321; 51 L. J. P. C. 75; 46 L. T. 643; 31 W. R. 17	410
Mussoorie Bank Limited v. Raynor, 4 A. 100; 9 A. 70; 4 Saraswati's P. C. J. 346	410
Mustapha Sahib v. Santha Pillai, 23 M. 173	57

M—concl.

	Page.
Mutha Venkatachelaipati v. Pyanda Venkatachelaipati, 7 M. 388	891
Muthu v. Chellappa, 12 M. 479	47
Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban, 25 Ind. Cas. 772; (1914) M. W. N. 768; 27 M. L. J. 497; 16 M. L. T. 344; 1 L. W. 7-4	53
Muthuvaiyan v. Sinna Samavaiyan, 28 M. 526; 15 M. L. J. 419	59
Muttayan v. Sangili, 12 C. L. R. 169; 6 M. L. J. 9; 1 A. 128; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 354; 6 Ind. Jur. 486; 5 Shome L. R. 57	666
Muttumira v. Queen-Empress, 7 M. 590; 1 Weir 246	68
Mutusalawmy Jagavera Yettapa Naiker v. Venkatasawara Yettia, 10 M. L. A. 313; Ind. Jur. (N. S.) 203; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 131; 19 E. R. 991	350
Mylan v. Annavi Madan, 29 M. 234; 16 M. L. J. 99	629

N

Nabin Chandra Tripathi v. Pran Krishna Dey, 20 Ind. Cas. 39; 41 C. 108; 18 C. L. J. 613	263
Nachiappa Gounden v. Rangasami Gounden, 26 Ind. Cas. 757; 28 M. L. J. 1; (1915) M. W. N. 53; 2 L. W. 69; 17 M. L. T. 87	488
Nagalingam Pillai v. Ramachandra Tevar, 24 M. 49; 1 M. L. J. 210	804
Nagappa v. Devu, 14 M. 55	53
Nallamuthu Pillai v. Betha Naicken, 23 M. 37	419
Nalliappa Goundan v. Kailappa Goundan, 24 M. 59	325
Nand Kishore Lal v. Ahmad Ata, 18 A. 69; A. W. N. (1895) 160	150
Nanda Lal Roy v. Dharendra Nath Chakravarti, 2 Ind. Cas. 974; 40 C. 70	6
Nandan Singh v. Debi Din, 25 Ind. Cas. 975; 12 A. L. J. 933	105
Nandan Singh v. Jumman, 17 Ind. Cas. 632; 34 A. 640; 10 A. L. J. 278	416
Nandkumar Dobe v. Ajodhya Sabu, 11 Ind. Cas. 465; 14 C. L. J. 292 at p. 298; 16 C. W. N. 351	416
Nanhi v. Gauri Shankar, 28 A. 167; 2 A. L. J. 654; A. W. N. (1905) 242	28
Nanjappa v. Nanja Rao, 16 Ind. Cas. 478; 23 M. L. J. 290; 12 M. L. T. 133; (1912) M. W. N. 1091	34
Nanny v. Edwards, 4 Russ. 124; 6 L. J. (o. s.) Ch. 20; 28 R. R. 24	201
Narain Babu v. Gouri Pershad Bias, 5 C. 21	481
Naraina Pai v. Appu, 28 Ind. Cas. 456	256
Narasimma v. Mangammal, 13 M. 10	28
Narasamma Hegadthi v. Billa Kesu Pajari, 31 Ind. Cas. 543; 25 M. L. J. 637	854
Narayan v. Balaji, 21 B. 248	6
Narayana, In re , 7 M. 48; 2 Weir 115	370
Narayana Chetty v. Muthiah Servai, 8 Ind. Cas. 520; 35 M. 63; 9 M. L. T. 142; 21 M. L. J. 44	279
Narayana Row v. Dharmachar, 26 M. 514; 13 M. L. J. 146	57
Narayanasami Gramani v. Periatambi Gramani, 16 M. 460	787

N—contd.

	Page.
Narendra Nath Berari v. Abhoy Charan Chatterpadhyay, 34 C. 54; 4 C. L. J. 437; 11 C. W. N. 20 (F. B.); 1 M. L. T. 364	183
Narpat Rai, v. Devi Das, 9 Ind. Cas. 385; 2 P. W. R. 91; 1 P. L. R. 1911	702
Narsingh Narain Singh v. Ajodhya Prosad Singh, 13 Ind. Cas. 118; 15 C. L. J. 110; 16 C. W. N. 256	34
Nasir Ali Sheikh v. Adeluddi Shana, 16 Ind. Cas. 620; 16 C. W. N. 1073	244
Nasir Khan v. Karamat Khan, 3 A. 168	6
Natabar Ghose v. Provash Chandra Chatterjee, 27 C. 461; 4 C. W. N. 467	371
Natesa Gramani v. Venkatarama Reddi, 17 M. L. J. 518; 30 M. 516; 2 M. L. T. 455	593
Natesan Chetty v. Vengal Nachiar, 3 Ind. Cas. 701; 33 M. 10; 6 M. L. T. 313; 10 M. L. J. 20	260
Natha Singh v. Sher Singh, 47 P. R. 895	494
National Phonograph Co., Ltd. v. Edison Bell Consolidated Phonograph Co., Ltd., (1908) 1 Ch. 335 at p. 349; 77 L. J. Ch. 218; 98 L. T. 291; 24 T. L. R. 201	228
Navakoti Narayana Chetty v. Loyalinga Chetty, 4 Ind. Cas. 383; 33 M. 312; 19 M. L. J. 752; 7 M. L. T. 33	793
Nawab Azimut Ali Khan v. Jowahir Singh, 13 M. L. A. 44; 14 W. R. 17 P. C.; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 346; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 573; 20 E. R. 602	234
Nawab Khawaja Muhammad Khan v. Nawab Husaini Begum, 7 Ind. Cas. 237; 37 I. A. 52; 2 C. L. J. 205; 32 A. 410; 14 C. W. N. 865 (P. C.); 7 A. L. J. 87; 8 M. L. T. 145; 12 Bom. L. R. 638; 12 C. L. J. 25; 20 M. L. J. 614; (1910) M. W. N. 313	25
Neelakandhan v. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, 10 M. 61; 6 M. L. J. 462; M. L. T. 416	185
Nettakarupa Goundan v. Kumarasami Goundan, 22 M. 28; 8 M. L. J. 67	809
New Beerboom Coal Company v. Bularam Mahata, 5 C. 932; 7 I. A. 107; 7 C. L. R. 247; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 145; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 737; 4 Ind. Jur. 313	633
Nga Lu Pe v. Nga Shwe Yun, U. B. R. (1906), C. P. C. 50	103
Nga Myaing v. Mi Baw, (1874) S. J. 39 at p. 41	513
Nga Tin v. Shwe On, 2 U. B. R. (1907), Buddhist Law, Inheritance, Pre-emption p. 1	513
Nidamarthi Krishnamurthi v. Gargiparthi Ganapathilingam, 25 Ind. Cas. 583; (1914) M. W. N. 865	208, 702
Ningappa v. Gowdappa, 7 Bom. L. R. 261	869
Nireha Tamaki v. Baker, (1901) A. C. 561 at p. 575; 70 L. J. P. C. 66; 84 L. T. 633; 17 T. L. R. 496	227
Nisa Chand Gaita v. Kanchiram Bagani, 26 C. 579; 3 C. W. N. 568	57
Nisbet Potts' Contract, In re , (1906) 1 Ch. 386; 75 L. J. Ch. 238; 54 W. R. 286; 94 L. T. 297; 22 T. L. R. 234	416
Nityamoni Dasi v. Gokul Chandra Sen, 9 Ind. Cas. 210; 13 C. L. J. 16	428
Nobocoomar Mookhopadhyaya v. Siru Mullick, 6 C. L. R. 579; 6 C. 94	398
Nobokishore Sarma Roy v. Hari Nath Sarma Roy, 10 C. 1102 at p. 1103	985

N—concl'd.

	Page.
Nobendra Kishore Roy v. Durga Chowdhury, 10 Ind. Cas. 287; 15 C. W. N. 515	295
Noor Mahomed v. Kaikkosru, 4 Bom. L. R. 268	163
Norender Narain Singh v. Dawarka Lal Mandur, 5 L. A. 18 at p. 27 (P. C.); 1 C. L. R. 369; 3 C. 397; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 480; 13 Sar. P. C. J. 771; 2 Ind. Jur. 117	233
Norendra Nath Sirkar v. Kamalbasini Dasi, 23 I. A. 18; 23 C. 563	410
Northcote v. Duke, (1765) 2 Eden 319; Amb. 513; 27 E. R. 330	456
Norton v. Ellam, (1837) 6 L. J. Ex. 121; 2 M. & W. 461; 1 M. & H. 69; 1 Jur. 433; 45 R. R. 646; 150 E. R. 839	882
Novosielski v. Wakelield, 17 Ves. 417; 34 E. R. 161	201
Nubeen Chander Paul v. Cecil Stephenson, 15 W. R. 534	36
Nuffer Chandra Pal Chowdhury v. Rajendra Lal Goswami, 25 C. 167	801
Nundo Kumar Nasker v. Hanomali Gayan, 29 C. 871	789
Nundun Lal v. Rai Joykishen, 16 C. 598	427
Nurul Hasan v. Muhammad Hasan, 8 A. 573; A. W. N. (1886) 237	427
Nur-ul-Nissa v. Gauhar ul-Nissa, 61 P. R. 1996	795

O

Oddie v. Woodford, 10 E. R. 1052; 3 Myl. & Cr. 584; 7 L. J. Ch. 117; 45 R. R. 331	767
Official Assignee of Madras v. Rajam Aiyar, 8 Ind. Case. 138; 33 M. 299	216
Ogdens, Ltd. v. Nelson; Ogdens Ltd. v. Telford, (1905) A. C. 109; 74 L. J. K. R. 433; 53 W. R. 497; 92 L. T. 478; 21 T. L. R. 359	74
Onda Bibi, In the goods of, 26 C. 407; 3 C. W. N. 392	462
Oomuttoonissa Beebee v. Areefoonnissa Beebee, 4 W. R. 66	930
Orr v. Mrithyunjaya Gurukkal, 24 M. 65	274
Oxford v. Provand, 5 Moore P. C. (N. S.) 150; 2 P. C. 135; 16 E. R. 472	2

P

P. R. & Co. v. Bhagwan Das Chaturbhuj, 2 Ind. Cas. 475; 34 B. 192; 11 Bom. L. R. 335	441
Padam Lal v. Tek Singh, 29 A. 217; A. W. N. (1907) 19; 4 A. L. J. 68	407
Paine v. Partrich, (1690) Carth. 191; 93 E. R. 715	65
Pala Mal v. Tulha Ram, 119 P. R. 1908; 206 P. W. R. 1908	211
Palmer v. Hendrie, 27 Beav. 349; 54 E. R. 136; 122 R. R. 426	257
Pannu Sanyasi v. Zamindar of Jeypur, 25 M. 540	245
Pamurlapati Ankivedu v. Samurlapati Subbiah, 12 Ind. Cas. 382; 21 M. L. J. 1010; 10 M. L. T. 256; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 231; 35 M. 744	871
Panchanan Das Majumdar v. Kuoja Behari Malo, 1 Ind. Cas. 438; 12 C. W. N. 628; 35 C. 683; 9 C. L. J. 1	395

P—cont'd.

	Page.
Panchanda Velan v. Vaithinatha Sastrial, 29 M. 333; 16 M. L. J. 63 (F. B.)	218
Panchandayyan v. Nilkandayyan, 7 M. 191	733
Panchu Das v. Emperor, 34 C. 698; 11 C. W. N. 606; 5 Cr. L. J. 427	360
Pandah Gazi v. Jennuddi, 4 C. 665; 2 C. L. R. 526	796
Pandit Badri Prasad v. Bhim Sen, Selected Decision No. 2 of 1892	979
Panna Lal v. Soman, 89 P. R. 1902 (F. B.); 120 P. L. R. 1902	701
Papamma Rao v. Virapratava H. V. Ramachandra, 19 M. 249 at p. 252 (P. C.) 23 I. A. 32; 6 M. L. J. 53	419
Parameswaram Mumbannoo v. Krishnan Tengal, 26 M. 535	737
Parbati Nath Dutt v. Rajmohan Dutt, 29 C. 367; 6 C. W. N. 92	692
Parbola, Ltd., in re , Blackburn v. Parbola Ltd., (1909) 2 Ch. 437; 78 L. J. Ch. 782; 101 L. T. 382; 53 S. J. 697	201
Parash Nath Mullik v. Hari Charan Dey, 10 Ind. Cas. 361; 38 C. 622; 15 C. W. N. 875; 14 C. L. J. 300	305
Parker v. Winlow, (1857) 7 El. & Bl. 942; 27 L. J. Q. B. 49; 4 Jur. (N. S.) 584; 110 R. R. 904; 119 E. R. 1497	611
Parul Anni v. Lakshmi Anni, 22 M. 508; 26 I. A. 101; 3 C. W. N. 485; 9 M. L. J. 147	260
Parrell v. Boyd, (1896) 2 Ir. R. 571; 2 Irish Law Reports 923	409
Parshram Bhawoo v. Dorabji Pestonji, 2 Bom. L. R. 254	313
Parthasarathi Naikan v. Lakshmana Naicken, 9 Ind. Cas. 791; 35 M. 231; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 201; 9 M. L. T. 399; 21 M. L. J. 466	415
Parvathi v. Thirumalai, 10 M. 334	837
Pascoc v. Pascoe, (1837) 3 Bing. (N. C.) 898; 5 Scott. 117; 3 Hodg's 118; 6 L. J. C. P. 322; 132 E. R. 656; 43 R. R. 847	34
Patan Maria v. Bhabiram Dutt Barna, 24 C. 239; 1 C. W. N. 94	424
Patel Ranchod Morar v. Bhikhabhai Devidas, 21 B. 704	390
Pattu Lal v. Parbatti Kunwar, 29 Ind. Cas. 617; 19 C. W. N. 841; 13 A. L. J. 721; 42 I. A. 155; 17 Bom. L. R. 549; 18 M. L. T. 61; 29 M. L. J. 63; 22 C. L. J. 190; 37 A. 359; 2 L. W. 881	575
Paul Heier v. Chotalal Javerdas, 30 B. 1; 6 Bom. L. R. 948	611
Pearce v. Mooris, (1869) 5 Ch. App. 227; 39 L. J. Ch. 342; 22 L. T. 190; 19 W. R. 196	234, 570
Pearks v. Mosley, (1880) 5 A. C. 714 at pp 719, 733; 50 L. J. Ch. 57; 43 L. T. 449; 29 W. R. 1	412
Pearson v. Spencer, (1861) 1 B. & S. 571; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 1195; 4 L. T. 769; 124 R. R. 656	552
Peary Mohun Mondal v. Radhica Mohun Hazra, 5 C. L. J. 9; 8 C. W. N. 315	790
Pem Raj v. Ram Kishen, Selected Decision No. 9 of 1913	794
Pennington v. Prinsop Hall Coal Company, (1877) 5 Ch. D. 769; 46 L. J. Ch. 773; 37 L. T. 149; 25 W. R. 574	67
Penruddock's case, (1598) 5 Co. Rep. 100 b; 77 E. R. 210	68

P—contd.

	Page.
Percy, In re , (1883) 24 Ch. D. 616; 53 L. J. Ch. 143; 49 L. T. 554	409
Peria Aiyar Ambalam v. Shunmugasundaram, 22 Ind. Cas. 615; 26 M. L. J. 140; 15 M. L. T. 112; 1 L. W. 119	415
Perianna Gounden v. Mathuvira Gounden, 21 M. 139; 7 M. L. J. 315	336
Perlath v. Broughton, 24 W. R. 275	866
Perry v. Merritt, (1874) 18 Eq. 152; 43 L. J. Ch. 608; 22 W. R. 600	409
Perumal Ayyan v. Alagirisami Bhagavathar, 20 M. 245 at p. 248; 7 M. L. J. 222	336, 882
Phani Singh v. Nawab Singh, 28 A. 161; A. W. N. (1905) 233	490
Phillips v. Phillips, (1878) 4 Q. B. D. 127; 45 L. J. Q. B. 135; 39 L. T. 576; 27 W. R. 436	182
Phillips v. Eastwood, (1835) L. & G. Temp. Sugden 270 at p. 297; 46 R. R. 228	409
Phillips v. Thomas, (1890) 62 L. T. 793	69
Phiraya Mal v. Emperor, 9 P. R. 1904; 69 P. L. R. 1904; 1 Cr. L. J. 513	69
Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra, 35 C. 202; 12 C. W. N. 169; 35 I. A. 22 (P. C.); 7 C. L. J. 36; 5 A. L. J. 10; 17 M. L. J. 618; 2 M. L. T. 500; 10 Bom. L. R. 1	188, 850
Piercy v. Young, (1879) 14 Ch. D. 200 at pp. 208; 211; 42 L. T. 710; 28 W. R. 845	610
Pilling v. Pilling, (1865) 3 DeG. J. & Sm. 162; 46 E. R. 599; 142 R. R. 46	708
Pindar v. Wadsworth, (1802) 2 East. 154; 6 R. R. 412; 102 E. R. 328	67
Plitt, Ex parte , Brown, In re , (1889) 60 L. T. 397; 37 W. R. 463; 6 Morrell 81	216
Po Shwe Aung v. Po To Bya, B. S. J. 494	885
Polden v. Bastard, (1865) 1 Q. B. 156; 7 B. & S. 130; 35 L. J. Q. B. 92; 13 L. T. 441; 14 W. R. 198; 147 R. R. 374	552
Polsue & Alfieri Ltd. v. Rushmer, (1907) A. C. 121; 76 L. J. Ch. 365; 96 L. T. 510; 23 T. L. R. 362	67
Ponga Maistry v. Emperor, 18 Ind. Cas. 415; 36 M. 497; 24 M. L. J. 186; 14 Cr. L. J. 79	377
Ponnampilath Parapravan Kuthath Haji v. Ponnampilath Parapravan Bavotti Haji, 3 M. 79	554
Ponusawmy Iyer, v. Permaye, 26 Ind. Cas. 346; 16 M. L. T. 530	399
Pooley v. Driver, (1876) 5 Ch. D. 458; 46 L. J. 460; 36 L. T. 791	431
Poreah Nath Sircar v. Emperor, 33 C. 295; 2 C. L. J. 516; 3 Cr. L. J. 153	825
Pott v. Flather, 5 Rail. Cas. 85; 16 L. J. Q. B. 366; 73 R. R. 804	957
Powell v. Fall, (1850) 5 Q. B. D. 597; 49 L. J. Q. B. 428; 43 L. T. 562	66
Powell v. Kempton Park Racecourse Company, (1899) A. C. 143; 68 L. J. Q. B. 392; 80 L. T. 538; 47 W. R. 585; 63 J. P. 260; 19 Cox. C. C. 265; 15 T. L. R. 266	1002
Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi Anni, 22 M. 508 (P. C.); 26 L. A. 101; 3 C. W. N. 455; 9 M. L. J. 147	538
Prannath Roy Chowdry v. Rookea Begum, 7 M. I. A. 323; 4 W. R. P. C. 37; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 367; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 692; 19 E. R. 331	416
Prayag Narain v. Chedi Rai, 7 Ind. Cas. 979; 14 C. W. N. 1093a	23
Prem Singh v. Mula Mal, 10 P. R. 1883	809

P—concl.

	Page.
Preonath Mukerji v. Bishunath Prasad, 29 A. 256; A. W. N. 1907) 41; 4 A. L. J. 85	60
Preston v. Strutton, (1792) 1 Austrather 50; 145 E. R. 797	432
Price v. Popkin, (1830) 10 A. & E. 139; 2 P. & D. 304; 8 L. J. Q. B. 198; 3 Jur. 433; 113 E. R. 53; 50 R. R. 362	34
Prickett v. Badger, 1 C. B. (N. S.) 296; 26 L. J. C. P. 33; 3 Jur. (N. S.) 66; 5 W. R. 117; 140 E. R. 123; 28 L. T. (N. S.) 65; 107 R. R. 608	483
Prosunno Kumar v. Kali Das, 19 C. 683; 19 I. A. 166	393
Prosunno Kumar Midday v. Bama Churn Mondal, 3 Ind. Cas. 461; 13 C. W. N. 652	860
Protap Chandra Das v. Biswar Pramanick, 9 C. W. N. 416	1
Puchla Lal v. Kanj Behary Lal, 20 Ind. Cas. 803; 15 C. W. N. 445; 19 C. L. J. 213	990
Pugh v. Heath, 7 A. C. 235; 51 L. J. Q. B. 367; 46 L. T. 321; 30 W. R. 553	416
Pulak Veetil Muthalakulan Gara Kunlu Moideu v. Thiruthipalli Madhava Menon, 1 Ind. Cas. 1; 2 M. 410; 19 M. L. J. 584	735
Punchanun Bundopadhyaya v. Rabia Bibi, 17 C. 711	321
Punchoo Money v. Troylucko Mohiney, 10 C. 342	407
Punja Kuvarji v. Bai Kuvar, 6 B. 20	532
Paran Chandra v. Dinabandhu, 11 C. W. N. 756; 34 C. 811; 5 C. L. J. 696; 2 M. L. T. 371	671
Paran Dai v. Jai Narain, 4 A. 482; A. W. N. (1882) 115	435
Parua v. Torab, (1865) Wyman 14	190
Puthenparayil Amman Paraykyi v. Mangalaseri Pullikandi Pakram Haji, 15 Ind. Cas. 262; 24 M. L. J. 548; 36 M. 493	256
Puttangowda v. Nilkanth, 20 Ind. Cas. 974; 37 B. 675; 15 Bom. L. R. 773	6

Q

Queen-Empress v. Byramji Edalji, 12 B. 437	68
— v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B. 331	650
— v. Dolegobind Das, 28 C. 211; 5 C. W. N. 169	831
— v. Jagannayakulu, 18 M. 46; 1 Weir 919	1002
— v. Jethmal Jayraj, 9 B. 27	643
— v. Kanji Bhimji, 17 B. 184	1004
— v. Maru, 10 A. 207; A. W. N. (1888) 86	1006
— v. Munda Shetti, 24 M. 121; 2 Weir 170	641
— v. Narottamdas Motiram, 13 B. 681	1004
— v. Tribhovan Manekchand, 9 B. 131	499
— v. Zaki-ud-din, 10 A. 44; A. W. N. (1887) 232	68
Quinn v. Leatham, (1901) A. C. 455 at p. 510; 70 L. J. P. C. 76; 85 L. T. 289; 50 W. R. 139; 65 J. P. 708; 17 T. L. R. 749	227

R

	Page.
Radha Bai v. Kamod Singh, 4 A. L. J. 696; 30 A. 38 A. W. N. 1907; 276	403
Radha Churn Das v. Kripa Sindhu Das, 5 C. 474; 4 C. L. R. 428	676
Radha Prasad Mullick v. Ranmani Dassee, 35 I. A. 1 S; 35 C. 896; 8 C. L. J. 48; 12 I. W. N. 7. 9; 10 Bom. L. R. 604; 5 A. L. J. 460; 18 M. L. J. 287; 4 M. L. T. 23	408
Radha Prasad Singh v. Lal Sahib Rai, 13 A. 52; 17 I. A. 150; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 600	198
Radhay Koer v. Ajodhya Das, 7 C. L. J. 262	670
Rae Jagatpal Singh v. Thakurain Balraj Kuar, 3 O. C. 120	750
Raghojirao Sahab v. Lakshmanrao Sahab, 16 Ind. Cas. 239; 26 B. 639 at p. 656; 6 C. W. N. 1058; 23 M. L. J. 383; 1 M. L. T. 472; (912) M. W. N. 1140; 14 Bom. L. R. 1226; 17 C. L. J. 7	764
Raghunand Doss v. Sadhu Churn Das, 4 C. 425; 3 C. L. R. 534	575
Raghubir Sahi v. Protap Uday Nath Sahi Deo, 13 Ind. Cas. 193; 16 C. W. N. 294; 3 C. L. J. 145; 9 C. 241	193
Raghunath Mani Singh v. Mahabir Singh, 28 A. 78; A. W. N. (1905) 195; 2 A. L. J. 564	539
Raghunath Bakhsh v. Haji Sheikh Muhammad Bakhsh, 30 Ind. Cas. 200; 18 O. C. 115; 2 O. L. J. 209	793
Raghunath Das v. Sundar Das, 24 Ind. Cas. 30; 1 L. W. 567; 27 M. L. J. 150; 16 M. L. T. 353; (1914) M. W. N. 147; 6 Bom. L. R. 814; 18 C. W. N. 1058; 20 C. L. J. 555; 13 A. L. J. 154; 42 C. 72	666
Raghunath Pershad v. Abbul Hye, 14 C. 26	427
Raghunath Prasad v. Kaniz, 24 A. 467; A. W. N. 1902) 116	269
Raghunathji Tarachand v. Bank of Bombay, 2 Ind. Cas. 73; 34 B. 72; 11 Bom. L. R. 255	940
Rahi v. Govinda, 1 B. 97	849
Rahimuddin Munshi v. Nalini Kanta Lahiri, 1 Ind. Cas. 81; 13 C. W. N. 407	802
Rahman Chaudhuri v. Salama Chaudhuri, A. W. N. (1901) 49	490
Rai Charan Mandal v. Biswanath Mandal, 26 Ind. Cas. 40; 20 C. L. J. 07	897
Raj Lukhee Debae v. Gokool Chunder, 13 M. I. A. 209; 3 B. L. R. (P. C.) 57; 12 W. R. (P. C.) 47; 2 Suth. P. C. 275; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 518; 20 E. R. 529	434
Raj Nath v. Narain Das, 24 Ind. Cas. 997; 36 A. 567; 12 A. L. J. 982	416
Raja v. Subbaraya, 7 M. 253	575
Raja Thakur Barmha v. Jiban Ram Marwari, 21 Ind. Cas. 936; (1914) M. W. N. 118; 18 C. W. N. 313; 15 M. L. T. 137; 12 A. L. J. 156; 19 C. L. J. 161; 26 M. L. J. 89; 16 Bom. L. R. 156; 41 C. 590	572
Raja Rajad Shivapa v. Krishnabhat, 3 B. 232	448
Rajah of Pittapur v. Gani Venkat Subba Row, 30 Ind. Cas. 94; 29 M. L. J. 1; 18 M. L. T. 67; 2 L. W. 661; (1915) M. W. N. 547	253
Rajah of Pittapuram v. Secretary of State, 25 Ind. Cas. 783; 16 M. L. T. 375	257
Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Isakapalli Subbiah, 26 M. 410 at p. 417	243, 422
Rajah of Vizianagram v. Setrucherla Soma-sekhararaz, 26 M. 686 at p. 713	256

R—contd.

	Page.
Rajani Binode Chakravarti v. All India Banking and Insurance Company Limited, Lahore, 22 Ind. Cas. 192; 17 C. W. N. 1207; 15 Cr. L. J. 48; 41 C. 305	376
Rajendra Kumar Bose v. Gangaram Koyal, 6 Ind. Cas. 42; 37 C. 856; 2 C. L. J. 70	984
Rajendra Nath Roy v. Nanda Lal Guha, 26 Ind. Cas. 977; 19 C. L. J. 595; 18 C. W. N. 1206	789
Rajit Ram v. Katesar Nath, 18 A. 396; A. W. N. (1896) 102	667
Rajnarain Bhaduri v. Katyayani Dabee, 27 C. 649; 4 C. W. N. 337	407
Rajnarain Bhadury v. Ashutosh Chuckerbutty, 27 C. 44	407
Rajrup Koer v. Abdul Hossein, 6 C. 394 (P. C.); 7 C. L. R. 529; 7 I. A. 249; 1 Shome. L. R. 7; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 199; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 816; 4 Ind. Jur. 500	530
Rakhal Chandra Ghosh v. Ashutosh Ghosh, 19 Ind. Cas. 931; 17 C. W. N. 87 at p. 09	877
Ralla v. Bodha, 50 P. R. 1893 (F. B.)	494
Ram Awatar v. Talsi Prasad Singh, 11 Ind. Cas. 713; 14 C. L. J. 507; 16 C. W. N. 137	631
Ram Bakhsh Singh v. Ram Lal Doss, 21 W. R. 428	233
Ram Bharios v. Nazir Husain, 31 Ind. Cas. 815	863
Ram Bhurosee Singh v. Bissesser Narain Mahta, 8 W. R. 454	190
Ram Chandra v. Chandi Prasad, 19 A. 307; A. W. N. (1897) 49	629
Ram Chandra v. Emperor, 28 Ind. Cas. 103; 37 A. 127; 13 A. L. J. 104; 16 Cr. L. J. 247	351
Ram Chandra Halder v. Emperor, 35 C. 674; 8 C. L. J. 68; 8 Cr. L. J. 128	384
Ram Charan Rai v. Kauleshar Rai, 27 A. 153; A. W. N. (1905) 199	490
Ram Chunder Sao v. Bunseedhur Naik, 9 C. 741; 7 Ind. Jur. 653	42
Ram Coomar Sein v. Prosunno Coomar Sein, W. R. 1864, 375	417
Ram Dass Sein v. Cecil Stephenson, 10 W. R. 366	36
Ram Dayal v. Madan Mohan, 21 A. 425; A. W. N. (1899) 153	104
Ram Dhani Sahu v. Lalit Singh, 2 Ind. Cas. 220; 31 A. 328; 6 A. L. J. 251	240
Ram Gopal v. Bhoban Mohuni, (1864) Coryton's Rep. 126	668
Ram Gopal Bhuttacharjee v. Narain Chandra Bandopadhyaya, 10 C. W. N. 510; 3 C. L. J. 15; 33 C. 315	562
Ram Gopal Law v. Richard Blaquiere, 1 B. L. R. (o. c.) 35	699
Ram Kali v. Kedar Nath, 14 A. 156; A. W. N. (1892) 22	291
Ram Kani Dass v. Fakir Chand Dass, 8 C. W. N. 438	813
Ram Kawal Singh v. Ram Kishore Das, 22 C. 506	434
Ram Kirpal Shukul v. Rup Kuar, 3 A. 623; A. W. N. (1881) 32	301
Ram Narain Shaba v. Kamala Kanta Shah, 26 C. 311 at p. 313	552
Ram Nath v. Bulaqi Ram, 17 Ind. Cas. 735; 50 P. R. 1913; 69 P. L. R. 1913; 15 P. W. R. 1913	475
Ram Piyari v. Emperor, 5 Ind. Cas. 696; 32 A. 153; 7 A. L. J. 103; 11 Cr. L. J. 203	351

R—contd.

R—contd.

	Page.
Ram Prosad Mallia v. Raghobar Mallia, 4 Ind. Cas. 6; 37 C. 13 at p. 20; 13 C. W. N. 1038; 10 Cr. L. J. 454	993
Ram Sahai v. Gaya, 7 A. 107; A. W. N. (1884) 224	542
Ram Singh v. Nodh Singh, 93 P. R. 1879	206
Ram Sundar Koiri v. Jogi Khatik, Selected Decision No. 1 of 1908	979
Rama v. Ranga, 8 M. 552	435
Rama Row v. Raja of Pittapur, 29 Ind. Cas. 356; 28 M. L. J. 624; (1915) M. W. N. 369	944
Ramachandra v. Secretary of State for India, 12 M. 105	499
Ramakrishna Pattar v. Narayana Patter, 26 Ind. Cas. 883; 27 M. L. J. 634; (1914) M. W. N. 912	310
Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad, 27 M. 26	184
Raman Nayar v. Kandapuni Nayar, 1 M. H. C. R. 445	186
Ramanadban v. Zemindar of Ramnad, 16 M. 407; 3 M. L. J. 185	374
Ramanadan Chetti v. Pulikutti Servai, 21 M. 288 at p. 290; 8 M. L. J. 121	8
Ramanappa v. Official Liquidators Bellory, 22 M. 291	726
Ramanathan Chettiar v. Levvai Marakayar, 23 M. 195; 10 M. L. J. 64	393
Ramanuj Sewak Singh v. Hingu Lal, 3 A. 517	853
Ramasami v. Bhaskarasami, 2 M. 67 at p. 73 (P. C.); 5 C. L. R. 34; 6 I. A. 170; 3 Ind. Jur. 420; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 50; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 646; 3 Shome L. R. 36	83
Ramasami v. Rajagopala, 11 M. 200	633
Ramasami Chetti v. Sokhanada Chetti, 1 M. L. J. 737	395
Ramasami Kamaya Naik v. Sundaralingasami Kamaya Naik, 17 M. 422	836
Ramasami Naik v. Ramasami Chetti, 30 M. 255; 17 M. L. J. 201; 2 M. L. T. 167	572
Ramasami Pattar v. Chinnan Asari, 24 M. 449; 1 M. L. J. 132	179
Ramaswami Aiyar v. Vythinatha Aiyar, 26 M. 760 at p. 763; 13 M. L. J. 449	301
Ramaswami Chetti v. Ponna Padayachi, 9 Ind. Cas. 28; 36 M. 87; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 289; 21 M. L. J. 397; 9 M. L. T. 264	415
Ramaswami Chettiar v. Oppilammani Chetti, 4 Ind. Cas. 1059; 33 M. 6; 6 M. L. T. 269; 19 M. L. J. 671	923
Ramaswami Kone v. Sundara Kone, 31 M. 28; 17 M. L. J. 495; 3 M. L. T. 26	457
Ramaswamy Aiyar v. Muthusamy Aiyar, 30 M. 12; 16 M. L. J. 541; 1 M. L. T. 397	244
Ramaswamy Chetty v. Alagappa Chetty, 28 Ind. Cas. 135; 28 M. L. J. 199	219
Ramchandra v. Ramrao, (1896) Bom. P. J. 491	703
Ramchandra Gopal v. Antaji Vasudev, 5 Bom. L. R. 735	428
Ramchandra Mantri v. Venkatarao Mantri, 6 B. 598 at p. 604	731
Ramchunder v. Gungagovind, (1826) 4 Mac. Sel. Rep. 147; 7 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 110	434
Rameshar Singh v. Durga Das, 23 A. 437; A. W. N. (1901) 128	798

	Page.
Rambhari Sahu v. Madan Mohan Mitter, 23 C. 339	76
Ramji Das v. Jauki Das, 17 Ind. Cas. 973; 39 C. 802	611
Ram Lal Mookerjee v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 7 C. 304; 10 C. L. R. 349; 8 I. A. 46; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 225; 5 Ind. Jur. 327	732
Ram Lal Thakursidas v. Lakhmichand Muniram, 1 B. H. C. R. App. 51	939
Ramnad case, 24 M. 613 at p. 636	850
Ramprasad v. Dayaram, S. A. No. 363 of 1911	292
Ramratna v. Hira, 5 C. P. L. R. 47	467
Ramrick Dass v. Mohamed Yacubji Dudah, 2 L. B. R. 122	894
Ramu Aiyar v. Swaminatha Iyer, 1 Ind. Cas. 3; 35 M. 720; 2 M. L. J. 412; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 189	6
Ramya Sahu v. Bindeswari Kumar Upadhyay, 6 C. L. J. 102	897
Ramzan Ali Khan v. Asghari Begam, 6 Ind. Cas. 405; 32 A. 563; 7 A. L. J. 614	723
Randfield v. Randfield, (1869) 8 H. L. C. 225 at pp. 235, 238; 30 L. J. Ch. 177; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 911; 9 W. R. 1; 25 R. R. 124; 11 E. R. 414	408
Ranee Khojooroonissa v. Musamat Raushun Jehan, 3 L. A. 241; 2 C. 184; 23 W. R. 36	659
Rangam Lal v. handu, 11 Ind. Cas. 640; 8 A. L. J. 111; 34 A. 42	987
Rangasami Chetti v. Periasami Mudali, 17 M. 58; 3 M. L. J. 21	911
Rangaswami Aiyar v. Swami Aiyar, 17 M. L. J. 394	203
Ranjit v. Radha Rani, 20 A. 476; A. W. N. (1898) 121	290
Rannu Rai v. Rafi-ud-din, 27 A. 82; A. W. N. (1904) 170	915
Ranoji v. Kandoji, 8 M. 557	844
Rao Saheb T. Numbermal Chettiar v. Krishnaje, 22 Ind. Cas. 919; 26 M. L. J. 356; 15 M. L. T. 263; (1914) M. W. N. 310	313
Rapier v. London Tramways Company, (1893) 2 Ch. 588; 63 L. J. Ch. 36; 2 R. 448; 69 L. T. 361	66
Rash Behari v. Mahendra Nath Ghose, 21 Ind. Cas. 979; 19 C. L. J. 34	270
Rash Behary Bysack v. Budden Chunder Singh, 12 C. L. R. 650	445
Rasul Jehan Begum v. Ram Surun Singh, 22 C. 589	291
Rathna Mudali v. Perumal Reddy, 17 Ind. Cas. 837; 23 M. L. J. 576; 12 M. L. T. 484; (1912) M. W. N. 1168; 35 M. 310	234
Rathnam v. Sivasubramania, 16 M. 353; 3 M. L. J. 139	280
Rattan Singh v. Fajju Shah, 12 P. R. 1878	239
Rattan Singh v. Mala Singh, 4 P. R. 1884	494
Rattigan v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 106 P. R. 1888	63
Ravji Appaji Kulkarni v. Mahadev Bapuji Kulkarni, 22 B. 672	190
Ravji Narayan Mandlik v. Dadkji Bapuji, 1 B. 523	732
Ravula Parti Chelamanna v. Ravula Parti Rama Row, 12 Ind. Cas. 317; 36 M. 49; 10 M. L. T. 232; 21 M. L. J. 870; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 265	260

R—contd.

	Page.
Ravulapati Papi Reddi v. Nanduru Peda Venkatacharyulu, 26 Ind. Cas. 67; 27 M. L. J. 567; 16 M. L. T. 247; (1914) M. W. N. 791	209
Rawson v. Samuel, (1841) Cr. & Ph. 161; 54 R. R. 259; 10 L. J. Ch. 214; 3 Jur. 947; 41 E. R. 451	432
Reborts, In re ; Repington v. Roberts, (1881) 19 Ch. D. 529; 50 L. J. Ch. 265; 45 L. T. 450	788
Reference under Stamp Act District Munsif of Tiruvallur, In re , 20 Ind. Cas. 775; 37 M. L. J. 637 (F. B.)	926
Reference under Stamp Act, section 46, 12 M. 195, 18 M. 233	405
Reg. v. Commissioners of Income Tax, (1888) 22 Q. B. D. 296; 58 L. J. Q. B. 196; 60 L. T. 446; 37 W. R. 294; 53 J. P. 198	1001
Reg. v. Garbad Bechar, 9 B. H. C. R. 344	341
Reg. v. Knock, (1877) 14 Cox. C. C. 1	373
Reid v. Richardson, 14 C. 361	368
Revis v. Smith, (1856) 18 C. B. 126; 25 L. J. C. P. 195; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 614; 5 W. R. 506; 27 L. T. (O. S.) 106; 107 R. R. 236; 130 E. R. 1314	247
Rex v. Lloyd, (1802) 4 Esp. 200	65
Rex v. Pease, (1832) 4 Barn. & Adol. 20; 1 N. & M. 690; 2 L. J. M. C. 26; 110 E. R. 366; 35 R. R. 207	66
Rex v. Watts, (1826) 2 Car. & P. 456; 31 R. R. 686	63
Rex v. Wilcox, (1690) 2 Salk. 459; 91 E. R. 336	61
Reynolds v. Clerk, (1725) 8 Mod. 272; 1 Stra. 634; 88 E. R. 193; Fortes, 212; 2 Ld. Ray. 1393	64
Rhodesia Goldfields, In re , Patridge v. Rhodesia Goldfields, (1910) 1 Ch. 239 at p. 247; 79 L. J. Ch. 133; 102 L. T. 126; 17 Maunson, 23; 54 S. J. 135	501
Riley v. Read, 4 Ex. D. 100; 27 W. R. 414; 48 L. J. Ex. 437	12
Ripon (Earl) v. Hobart, (1834) 3 My. & K. 169; 41 R. R. 40; Coop. t. Brough. 333; 3 L. J. Ch. (N. S.) 145; 40 E. R. 61	68
River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson, 2 A. C. 743 at p. 763; 47 L. J. Q. B. 193; 37 L. T. 543; 26 W. R. 217	155
Robert Fischer v. Secretary of State for India in Council, 22 M. 270; 26 L. A. 16; 3 C. W. N. 161	310
Robert Leslie v. Collector of Mergui, 1 L. B. R. 132	76
Robert Marys's case, (1612) 9 Co. Rep. 111 b., 113a; 77 E. R. 895	65
Roberts v. Smith, (1859) 4 H. & N. 315; 28 L. J. Ex. 164; 118 R. R. 462	785
Robinson v. Ashton, (1875) 20 Eq. 25; 44 L. J. Ch. 542; 35 L. T. 88; 23 W. R. 674	708
Robinson v. Kilvert, (1889) 41 Ch. D. 88; 58 L. J. Ch. 392; 61 L. T. 60; 37 W. R. 545	67
Robinson v. Robinson and Lane, 1 Sw. & Tr. 362; 27 L. J. Mat. 91; 5 Jur. (N. S.) 392	263
Rodoenachi v. Milburn, 18 Q. B. D. 67; 56 L. J. Q. B. 202; 56 L. T. 594; 35 W. R. 241; 6 Asp. M. C. 100	952
Romesh Chunder Sanoyal v. Hiu Mondal, 17 C. 852	68
Ross v. Ross (1819) 1 J. & W. 154; 20 R. R. 263; 37 E. R. 334	479

R—conold.

	Page.
Runchordas v. Parvatibai, 23 B. 725 (P. C.) 26 L. A. 71	202
Runjeet Ram Koolal v. Mahomed Waris, 21 W. R. 49	434
Rushmer v. Polsue & Alfieri Ltd. (1906) 1 Ch. 234; 75 L. J. Ch. 79; 93 L. T. 823; 54 W. R. 161; 22 T. L. R. 19	67
Ruttonji Edulji Shet v. Collector of Tanna, 11 M. I. A. 295; 10 W. R. 13 (P. C.); 2 Sar. P. C. J. 292; 20 E. R. 113	13
S
Sabapathi Chetti v. Subraya Chetti, 3 M. 250	721
Sabhapat Singh v. Abdul Gaffur, 14 C. 107 at p. 114	323
Sabir v. Queen-Empress, 22 C. 276	825
Sachitananda Mohapatra v. Baloram Gorain, 24 C. 644	169
Sadagopa Chariar v. Krishnamoorthy Row, 30 M. 185 (P. C.) 9 Bom. L. R. 683; 5 C. L. J. 566; 17 M. L. J. 249; 4 A. L. J. 333; 11 C. W. N. 585; 30 I. A. 93; 2 M. L. T. 204	47, 371
Sadagopa Chariar v. Rama Rao, 26 M. 376	370
Saddiq Husain v. Mir Fida Husain, Selected Decision No. 10 of 1903	625
Sadho Misser v. Gulab Singh, 3 C. W. N. 375	14
Sadhu v. Musammal Patango, 16 C. P. L. R. 99	291
Sadu v. Sambhu, 6 B. 592	796
Sahodora Mudali v. Sarbesobha Dasi, 27 Ind. Cas. 258; 20 C. L. J. 494; 42 C. 638; 19 C. W. N. 1030	179
Sa Helen's Smelting Company v. Tipping, (1865) 11 H. L. Cas. 642; 35 L. J. Q. B. 66; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 755; 12 L. T. 776; 13 W. R. 1083; 145 R. R. 348	67
Sakari Datta v. Alnuddy, 6 Ind. Cas. 336; 12 C. L. J. 620; 14 C. W. N. 001	474
Sakharam Mahadev Dange v. Hari Krishna Dange, 6 B. 113	7
Samalbhui Nathubhai v. Someshvar, 5 B. 38	271, 940
Samiruddin, In the matter of the petition of , 8 C. 211; 10 C. L. R. 11	360
Sammar v. Musammal Bhago, 5 C. P. L. R. 85	290
Samsudin, In re , 24 B. 711	363
Samuel v. Newbold, (1906) A. C. 461; 75 L. J. Ch. 705; 95 L. T. 20; 22 T. L. R. 703	396
Sangili v. Mookan, 16 M. 350; 3 M. L. J. 137	7
Sangram Singh v. Bujha at Singh, 4 A. 36; A. W. N. (188.) 128	427
Santa Singh v. Waryam Singh, 24 Ind. Cas. 351; 19 P. R. 1915; 207 P. L. R. 19.4; 147 P. W. R. 1914	386, 497
Sarabai v. Rabiabai, 30 B. 537; 8 Bom. L. R. 35	563
Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha, 20 C. 29; 19 L. A. 203	737
Sarat Chandra Bisu v. Tariini Prasad Pal, 34 C. 491; 11 C. W. N. 487	445
Sarat Chandra Roy Chowdhury v. Asiman Bibi, 8 C. W. N. 601; 31 C. 725	20
Saravana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469; 18 M. L. J. 34; 3 M. L. T. 71	696

S—contd.

S—contd.

	Page.
Sardar Ali Shah v. Jiwan Singh, 22 P. R. 1931; 86 P. L. R. 1901	199
Sardhari Lal v. Ambika Pershad, 15 C. 521 (P. C.); 15 I. A. 123; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 172; 12 Ind. Jur. 210	445
Sarju Prasad Singh v. Khawabish Ali, 4 A. 512; A. W. N. (1882) 114	783
Saroda Sundari v. Kristo Jiban Pal, 5 C. W. N. 300	407
Sartaj Kuari v. Deoraj Kuari, 10 A. 272; 15 I. A. 51; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 139; 12 Ind. Jur. 213	839
Sat Narain Tewari v. Sheobaran Singh, 11 Ind. Cas. 640; 14 C. L. J. 500	23
Sateowrie Singh v. Kristo Bangal, 11 W. R. 529	629
Satis Chandra Ghose v. Rameswari Dasi, 31 Ind. Cas. 894; 22 C. L. J. 409	898
Satya Kumar Banerjee v. Satya Kirpal Banerjee, 3 Ind. Cas. 247; 10 C. L. J. 503	676
Sauvageon v. Gauthier, 5 P. C. 494 at p. 498; 30 L. T. 510; 22 W. R. 667	309
Savill Brothers Limited v. Bethell, (1902) 2 Ch. 523; 7 L. J. Ch. 652; 87 L. T. 191; 50 W. R. 580	787
Sayad Muhammad v. Fattah Muhammad, 22 C. 324; 22 I. A. 4	666
Scarborough v. Savile, (1836) 3 A. & E. 897 at p. 962; 111 E. R. 653; 42 R. R. 306 at p. 33	411
Schaffenius v. Soldberg, (1915) T. L. R. 31	858
Scott v. Bentley, (1855) 1 K. & J. 291; 24 L. J. Ch. 244; 1 Jur. (N. S.) 394; 3 Eq. R. 428; 3 W. R. 290; 69 E. R. 464; 103 R. R. 82	278
Seale-Hayne v. Jodrell, (189-) A. C. 304 at p. 306; 61 L. J. Ch. 70; 65 L. T. 57	411
Secretary of State v. Dipchand, 24 C. 306	666
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Guru Proshad Dhar, 20 C. 51	278, 255
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Khemchand Jeychand, 4 B. 432	733
Secretary of State v. Krishnamoni Gupta, 29 I. A. 104; 29 C. 5 S. 6; 6 C. W. N. 617; 4 Bom. L. R. 537	244
Secretary of State for India v. Moment, 18 Ind. Cas. 22; 40 C. 391 (P. C.); 24 M. L. J. 409; 13 M. L. T. 53; 17 C. W. N. 169; (1913) M. W. N. 45; 15 Bom. L. R. 27; 11 A. L. J. 49; 17 C. L. J. 194; 6 Bur. L. T. 1; 7 L. B. R. 10; 40 I. A. 48	226
Secretary of State v. Swaminatha Koundan, 12 Ind. Cas. 67; 37 M. 25; 0 M. L. T. 291 (1911) 2 M. W. N. 303; 2 M. L. J. 647	682
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Vakhtsangji Meghrajji, 19 B. 668	499
Sellappa Koundan v. Gurumoori, 25 Ind. Cas. 790; 27 M. L. J. 396	539
Seahamma Shettati v. Chikaya Hegade, 25 M. 607; 12 M. L. J. 119	631
Set Umedmal v. Srinath Ray, 27 C. 810; 4 C. W. N. 692	305, 897
Seth Mulchand Badharsha v. Bai Mancha, 7 B. 491	407
Setwyn v. Garfit, (18-8) 38 Ch. D. 273; 57 L. J. Ch. 609; 59 L. T. 23; 36 W. R. 513	674
Shafaqatullah v. Wali Ahmad Khan, 30 A. 116; A. W. N. (1908) 25; 3 M. L. T. 124; 7 Cr. L. J. 48	650

	Page.
Shahbaz Khan v. Umrao Pari, 30 A. 181 at p. 184; A. W. N. (1908) 61; 5 A. L. J. 147; 7 Cr. L. J. 381	68
Shaik Ibrahim v. Shaik Saleman, 9 B. 146	281
Shani Narain Chowdhry v. Court of Wards, 23 W. R. 432	294
Sham Sundar Lal v. Aceban Kunwar, 25 I. A. 183; 21 A. 71; 2 C. W. N. 729; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 417	434
Shama Dhoni Dutt v. Lakhimoni Debi, 6 Ind. Cas. 323; 13 C. L. J. 459	240
Shambu Mal v. Jamna Das, 38 P. R. 1875	200
Shamu Parter v. Abdul Kadir Rowthan, 16 Ind. Cas. 250; 16 C. W. N. 1000; 23 M. L. J. 321; 12 M. L. T. 338; (1912) M. W. N. 935; 10 A. L. J. 259; 35 M. 607; 14 Bom. L. R. 1634; 16 C. L. J. 596; 39 I. A. 220	735
Shankar Lal v. Nathu Mal, 1 P. R. 1908 (F. B.); 58 P. W. R. 1907	702
Shankar Prasad v. Jalpa Prasad, 16 A. 371; A. W. N. (1894) 115	481
Sharop Dass Mondal v. Joggesur Roy, 26 C. 561; 3 C. W. N. 464	790
Sharp v. Jackson, (1890) A. C. 419; 68 L. J. Q. B. 866; 10 L. T. 841; 6 Manson 264; 15 T. L. R. 418	508
Sharp v. Powell, (1872) 7 C. P. 253; 41 L. J. C. P. 95; 26 L. T. 436; 20 W. R. 584	230
Shaw v. Ford, (1877) 7 Ch. D. 669 at p. 674; 47 L. J. Ch. 531; 37 L. T. 749; 26 W. R. 235	409
Sheik Ismail Rowther v. Rajab Rowther, 30 M. 295; 17 M. L. J. 165; 2 M. L. T. 186	891, 898
Sheikh Azim v. Chandra Nath, 8 C. W. N. 748	703
Sheo Dyal Tewaree v. Judoonath Tewaree, 9 W. R. 61 at p. 63	663
Sheo Karan Singh v. Maharaja Parbhu Narain Singh, 2 Ind. Cas. 211; 31 A. 276; 6 A. L. J. 167; 5 M. L. T. 347	270
Sheo Lal v. Musammat Sheorajia, 23 Ind. Cas. 719; 10 N. L. R. 35	292
Sheoba v. Simaria, 2 C. P. L. R. 171	467
Sheodayal Singh v. Bhagirath Singh, 13 C. P. L. R. 99	465
Sheonarain v. Chundi Lal, 23 A. 88; A. W. N. (1900) 209	240
Sheoraj Singh v. Kameshar Nath, 24 A. 282; A. W. N. (1902) 63	293
Sheoamber Sahoo v. Bhowanudeen Kulwar, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 223	417
Sher Muhammad Khan v. Muhammad Khan, 5 P. R. 1895	795
Sher Singh v. Hari Singh, 16 Ind. Cas. 528; 34 P. W. R. 1912 Cr.; 19 P. L. R. 1912; 13 Cr. L. J. 720	384
Shesgiri v. Girewa, 14 B. 282	849
Shib Chander Dass v. Ram Chunder Poddar, 16 W. R. 29	854
Shib Dass Banerjee v. Bamun Dass Mookerjee, 15 W. R. 360; 8 B. L. R. 247	559
Shib Krishna v. Satish Chander Dutt, 12 Ind. Cas. 13; 38 C. 522	598
Shib Lakshan Bhakat v. Srimati Tarangini, 8 C. L. J. 20	407
Shib Narain v. Bhaikuntha Nath Santra, 20 Ind. Cas. 864; 19 C. L. J. 200	25

S—contd.

	Page
Shilabati Debi v. Roderigues, 35 C. 547; 12 C. C. W. N. 448	813
Shivabhajan v. Secretary of State for India, 28 B. 314; 6 Bom. L. R. 65	226
Shivji Hasam v. Datu Mavji Khoja, 12 B. H. C. R. 281 at p. 293	145
Shivram v. Sakharani, 1 Ind. Cas. 459; 33 B. 39; 10 Bom. L. R. 939	428
Shoshinath Ghosh v. Krishnasunderi Dasi, 6 C. 381; 7 C. L. R. 313; 7 I. A. 250; 3 Shome L. R. 231; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 19; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 512, 4 Ind. Jur. 589	856
Shurnomoyee Dasi v. Srinath Das, 12 C. 614 at p. 62	423
Shwe Eik Ko v. Tha Hla Aung, 1 L. B. R. 144	512
Simpson v. Thomson, 1877 3 A. C. 279; 38 L. T. 1; 3 sp. M. C. 567	210
Singai Parmanand Rao v. Baji Rao, 14 C. P. L. R. 114	287
Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa, 28 M. 349; 15 M. L. J. 228	106
Sita Nath Pal v. Kartick Gharmi, 8 C. W. N. 434	813
Sita Nath Saha v. Nobin Chunder Roy, 5 C. L. R. 102	19
Sitaram v. Arjun, 8 C. P. L. R. 1	467
Siva Bhagiam v. Palani Padiachi, 4 M. 404	923
Sivayadevela Pillay v. Pannammal, 15 Ind. Cas. 36; 22 M. L. J. 404; 1 M. L. T. 198; (1912) M. W. N. 383	812
Smith v. Bell, (1832) 6 Peter 68; 8 Law. Ed. U. S. 32	40
Smith v. Loyd, 9 Exch. 562; 96 R. R. 837; 2 Com. L. R. 1008; 23 L. J. Ex. 94; 2 W. R. 271; 22 L. T. (o. s.) 289	244
Sobhanadri Appa Rau v. Gopalakrishnamma, 16 M. 34	814
Soltau v. De Held, (1851) 2 Sim. (n. s.) 133 at p. 142; 21 L. J. Ch. 153; 16 Jur. 326; 61 E. R. 291; 89 R. R. 245	64
Somasundara Mudaliar v. Vythilinga Mudaliar, 19 M. 285; 6 M. L. J. 92	503
Sonbai v. Ahmedbhai Habibbhai, 9 B. H. C. R. 308	238
Sonet Koer v. Himmat Bahadoor, 1 C. 391; 25 W. R. 239; 3 I. A. 9; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 608; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 257	551
Soni v. Mushi, 3 Bom. L. R. 94	205
Sonu Vishram v. Dhoundu Vishram, 28 B. 330; 6 Bom. L. R. 122	575
Soobul Chunder v. Russick Lal, 15 C. 202	666
Soompromonian Setty v. Heilgers, 5 C. 71; 4 Ind. Jur. 517; 4 C. L. R. 377	611
Soorjomonee v. Suddanund, 20 W. R. 377; 12 B. L. R. 304; Sup. Vol. I A. 212	666
Sornavalli Ammal v. Muthayya Sastrigal, 23 M. 593; 10 M. L. J. 208	816
Sourendra Mohan Tagore v. Surnomoyi, 3 C. W. N. 38; 26 C. 103	555
South Wales Miners' Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co., (1905) A. C. 236; 74 L. J. K. B. 525; 92 L. T. 710; 53 W. R. 593; 21 T. L. R. 44	227
Southwell v. Bowditch, (1878) 1 C. P. D. 374; 45 L. J. C. P. 630; 35 L. T. 196; 24 W. R. 828	611
Spoor v. Green, (1874) 9 Ex. 92 at p. 99; 43 L. J. Ch. 57; 30 L. T. 393; 22 W. R. 547	879

S—contd.

	Page.
Sree Mutty Rance Surnomoyee v. Maharajah Sutteeschunder Roy, 8 M. L. A. 165; 3 W. R. 14 P. C.; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 399; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 742; 19 E. R. 492	299
Sree Nath Roy v. Secretary of State, 8 C. W. N. 294	272
Sree Sankarachari Swamiar v. Varada Pillai, 27 M. 332; 13 M. L. J. 429	633
Sreeman Kumara Tirumalraja Bahadur, Rajah of Karvetnagar v. Sowcar Lodd Govind Doss Krishna Doss, 19 M. 561; 16 M. L. J. 419; 1 M. L. T. 405; 5 Cr. L. J. 91	645
Sreemuth Devasigamani Pandarasannadhi v. Palaniappa Chettiar, 9 Ind. Cas. 281; 24 M. 535; 20 M. L. J. 169; 9 M. L. T. 3; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 154	300
Sreemutty Soorjomoney Dossee v. Denobundoo Mullick, 6 M. L. A. 526; 1 Ind. Jur. (n. s.) 37; 4 W. R. P. C. 114; 1 Boulr. Rep. 228; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 19; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 583; 1 E. R. 198	411
Sreemutty Soorjomoney Dossee v. Denobundo Mullick, 9 M. L. A. 123; 1 Sar. C. J. 837; 19 E. R. 644	411
Sreenath v. Brojo Nath, 13 W. R. 309; 4 B. L. R. Ap. 9	427
Sreenath Chuckerbutty v. Sreemunto Lushkur, 10 W. R. 46; 8 B. L. R. 240 note	659
Sreenath Nag v. Chundernath Ghose, 17 W. R. 192	189
Sri Balusu Guralingawami v. Sri Balusu Pama-lakshamma, 21 A. 460; 2 I. A. 113; 29 M. 318; Bom. L. R. 226; 3 C. W. N. 427; 9 M. L. J. 67; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 330	575
Sri Gridharaji Maharaj Tickait v. Parushotum, 10 C. 814	973
Sri Kishan Lal v. Kashmiro, 21 Ind. Cas. 617; 35 A. 445; N. A. L. J. 654	301
Srimati Mallika Dassi v. Makham Lal Chowdhry, 9 C. W. N. 928; 2 C. L. J. 389	221
Srinivasa Iyengar v. Thiruvengadathaiyengar, 23 Ind. Cas. 264; 15 M. L. T. 307; (1913) M. W. N. 1034; (1914) M. W. N. 282; 25 M. L. J. 644; 38 M. 575	575
Staniforth v. Lyall, 7 Bing. 169; 4 M. & P. 829; 9 L. J. (o. s.) C. P. 23; 131 E. R. 6; 33 R. R. 420	954
Stevenson, In the goods of, 6 C. W. N. 898	462
Stiles v. Galinski, (1904) 1 K. B. 615 at p. 621; 73 L. J. K. B. 485; 69 J. P. 183; 52 W. R. 462; 90 L. T. 437; 20 T. L. R. 219; 2 L. G. R. 341	622
Stoke Parish Council v. Price, (1899) 2 Ch. 277; 68 L. J. Ch. 447; 80 L. T. 643; 47 W. R. 663; 63 J. P. 502	65
Stretton v. Fitz Gerald, (1889) 23 L. R. Ir. 310 466	409
Strickland v. Apap, (1883) 8 A. C. 106; 52 L. J. P. C. 1	781
Sturges v. Bridgman, (1879) 11 Ch. D. 852 at p. 865; 48 L. J. Ch. 785; 41 L. T. 219; 28 W. R. 200	67
Subba Chariar v. Muthuveeram Pillai, 14 Ind. Cas. 264; 36 M. 553; 24 M. L. J. 545	9, 87
Subbarayar v. Subbammal, 21 M. 497	856

S—contd.

S—conold.

	Page.
Subrahmaniam Ayyar v. Emperor, 25 M. 61; 28 I. A. 257; 1 M. L. J. 233; 3 Bom. L. R. 140; 5 C. W. N. 866; 2 Weir 271 (P. C.)	366, 1000
Subrahmaniam Aiyar v. Savitri Ammal, 3 Ind. Cas. 321; 19 M. L. J. 228; 4 M. L. T. 354	615
Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingam ami Sivan, 3 Ind. Cas. 6.4; 33 M. 41; 19 M. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 198	256
Subramaniam v. Perumal Reddi, 18 M. 454; 5 M. L. J. 12	179
Subramaniam Chetty v. Veerabadran Chetty, 31 M. 442; 4 M. L. T. 104; 18 M. L. J. 452	978
Subramanya Chettiar v. Alagappa Chetty, 30 M. 268; 2 M. L. T. 139	854
Subrao Mangeshaya v. Manjapa Shetti, 16 B. 705	870
Subra a Mudali v. Velayuda Chetty, 30 M. 153; 2 M. L. T. 83	733
Sudarshanam Maistri v. Narasimulu Maistri, 25 M. 149 at 1-8; 1 M. L. J. 353	19, 928
Suddurtonnessa v. Majada Khatoon, 3 C. 691; 2 C. L. R. 208	944
Sujiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Pershad, 2 C. L. J. 28	23
Sukau oni Chowdhurani v. Ishan Chander Roy, 25 I. A. 95 at p. 101; 2 C. W. N. 402; 25 C. 844	628
Sukrabhai Nathubhai v. Maganlal Mulchand, 26 B. 106; 3 Bom. L. R. 738	271
Sultan Ahmad v. Waliullah, 17 Ind. Cas. 2; 0 A. L. J. 27	5 9
Sultan Singh v. Badhawa Singh, 22 Ind. Cas. 795; 68 P. R. 1914; 10 P. L. R. 1914	726
Sumer Singh v. Liladhar, 9 Ind. Cas. 624; 33 A. 47; 8 A. L. J. 306	303
Sundar v. Parbati, 2 A. 51 (P. C.); 16 I. A. 186; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 448	56
Sundarabai v. Jayavant Bhikaji Nadgowda, 24 B. 114; 1 Bom. L. R. 51	6
Sundaram v. Sithammal, 16 M. 311; 3 M. L. J. 144	106
Sundaramma v. Kamakotiah, 26 Ind. Cas. 514	616
Sundarammal alias Sowbhagiammal v. Subrahmaniam Chettiar, 30 Ind. Cas. 571; 2 M. L. J. 286	739
Sundram v. Queen and Ponnusami v. Queen, 6 M. 268; 2 Weir 77	370
Sura Singh v. Sant Singh, 43 P. R. 1906; 122 P. L. R. 906	490
Suraj Narain v. Iqbal Narain, 18 Ind. Cas. 30; 35 A. 80; 13 M. L. T. 194; 17 C. W. 333; 11 A. L. J. 72; (19 3) M. W. N. 83; 17 C. L. J. 288; 24 M. L. J. 345; 15 Bom. L. R. 456; 16 O. C. 129; 40 I. A. 40	677
Suraj Pershad v. Phul Singh, A. W. N. (1906) 180	891
Suraja Prasad v. Golab Chand, 27 C. 724; 4 C. W. N. 70	973
Surajwani v. Rabi Nath, 30 A. 84; 7 C. L. J. 171; 35 I. A. 17; 18 M. L. J. 7; 5 A. L. J. 87; 12 C. W. N. 231 (P. C.); 10 Bom. L. R. 59; 3 M. L. T. 144	407
Sumnjan Singh v. Ram Bahal Lal, 17 Ind. Cas. 912; 10 A. L. J. 520	240

	Page.
Surja Nanda Lal v. Narain Mondal Sinha, 33 C. 1212	572
Surwan Hossein v. Shahazal Golum Mahomed, 9 W. R. 70	417
Swaminathan Chettiar v. Annamalai Chettiar, 1 Ind. Cas. 796; Cr. L. J. 92; 4 M. L. T. 481	376
Syngé v. Syngé, (1894) 1 Q. B. 466; 63 L. J. Q. B. 202; 70 L. T. 22; 42 W. R. 309; 9 R. 65; 55 J. P. 396	712
T
Tal'apragada Suryanaraina Row v. Tallapragada Sarabaya, 9 Ind. Cas. 173; 1 M. L. J. 234; 9 M. L. T. 251; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 51	208
Tamoonmissa v. Woonjalmonee Dossee, 20 W. R. 72	190
Tanizuddin Khan v. Khoda Nawaz Khan, 5 Ind. Cas. 16; 1 C. L. J. 16; 1 C. W. N. 24	556
Tandy, In re, (1841) 9 D. P. C. 611; 5 Jur. 726	33
Tapley v. Eagleton, (1873) 12 Ch. D. 63; 2 W. R. 239	787
Tara Chand v. Official Liquidators of People's Bank of India, Ltd., 9 Ind. Cas. 67; 90 P. L. R. 915; 41 P. R. 15; 71 P. W. R. 1915	726
Ta a Sundari Debi v. Khedga Lal Sahu, 7 Ind. Cas. 10; 4 C. W. N. 108	23
Tarney v. Dalwell, (15) 3 Ell. & Bl. 136; 2 Com. L. R. 636; 23 L. J. Q. B. 47; 18 Jur. 87; 18 E. R. 1091; 22 L. T. (o. s.) 38; 97 R. R. 409	628
Tarabai v. Venkatrao, 27 B. 43; 4 Bom. L. R. 721	399, 6-3
Tasadduq Hussain v. Hayat-un-Nissa, 25 A. 280; A W. N. (1903) 39	914
Taylor, In re, Taylor v. Wade, (1894) 1 Ch. 671; 63 L. J. Ch. 424; 8 R. 184; 10 L. T. 506; 42 W. R. 373	501
Taylor v. Brewar, (1813) 1 M. & S. 290; 21 R. 8. 83	765
Taylor v. Oldham, (1822) Jacob 5 7; 37 E. R. 919	908
Teni Shab v. Bolahi Shab, 5 Ind. Cas. 879; 14 C. W. N. 479; 11 Cr. L. J. 280	163
Topu Muhammad v. Tefayit Muhammad, 29 Ind. Cas. 216; 19 C. W. N. 772	790
Thakar Das v. Ram Das, 3 Ind. Cas. 950; 114 P. L. R. 914; 3 P. W. R. 1914	402
Thak moni Dasi v. Mohendra Nath, 3 Ind. Cas. 300; 10 C. L. J. 461	700
Thakore Fatesinghji v. Bomanji Ardeshir Delal, 27 B. 5 5; 5 Bom. L. R. 274	737
Thakur Kopilnauth Sahi Deo v. Government, 22 W. R. 17; 10 B. L. R. 164	732
Thakur Sheo Singh v. Rani Raghubans Kanwar, 8 O. C. 31; 7 A. 634; 15 M. L. J. 35; 9 C. W. N. 1009; 2 C. L. J. 149	749
Thakurain Bolraj Kunwar v. Rai Jagatpal Singh, 7 O. C. 248 (P. C.); 8 C. W. N. 699; 1 A. L. J. 38; 26 A. 9; 31 I. A. 132	74
Thamman Singh v. Manjo, 11 C. P. L. R. 22	304
Than Singh v. Kasim Ali, 92 P. R. 1893	255

T—contd.

	Page.
Thandan Valappil Easuf v. Kotuseri Valappil Koya, 15 Ind. Cas. 576; 37 M. L. J. 12 M. L. T. 147; (1912) M. W. N. 889; 23 M. L. J. 244	736
Thein Pe v. U. Pet, 3 L. B. R. 175	522
Thellusson v. Rendlesham, 11 Eng. Rep. 172; 7 R. L. Cas. 429; 28 L. J. Ch. 948; 5 Jur. (N. S.) 1031; 7 W. R. 563; 115 R. R. 229	781
Thiruvengadachariar v. Ranganatha Aiyangar, 13 M. L. J. 560	572
Thomas v. Owen, (1887) 20 Q. B. D. 225; 57 L. J. Q. B. 198; 58 L. T. 167; 36 W. R. 440; 52 J. P. 51	552
Thomas v. Thomas, (1855) 2 K. & J. 79 at p. 83; 110 R. R. 107 at p. 110; 25 L. J. Ch. 159; 1 Jur. (N. S.) 1160; 4 W. R. 135; 69 E. R. 701	466
Thomas Eales Rogers v. Rajendra Dutt, 8 M. L. A. 103 at p. 131; 2 W. R. 51; (P. C.); 13 Moo. P. C. 239; 3 L. T. 160; 9 W. R. 149 (Eng.); 1 Suth. P. C. J. 413; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 755; 19 E. R. 469; 15 E. R. 78; 132 R. R. 82	227
Thompson v. Thompson, 27 L. J. Mat. 65; 1 Sw. & Tr. 231; 4 Jur. (N. S.) 717; 6 W. R. 867	266
Thopara Mussad v. Collector of Malabar, 10 M. 189	683
Thorne v. Cann, (1895) A. C. 11; 64 L. J. Ch. 1; 11 R. 67; 71 L. T. 852	24
Thornhill v. Hall, (1834) 2 Cl. & F. 22 at p. 36; 8 Bligh (N. S.) 88; 6 E. R. 1065; 37 R. R. 1	408
Thombasawmy Moodelly v. Hoosain Rowther, 1 M. L. 1; 2 L. A. 241; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 198; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531	185
Tika Ram v. Shama Charan, 20 A. 42; A. W. N. (1897) 195	291
Tikaya Ram v. Dharam Chand, 45 P. R. 1885	224
Timmi Reddy v. Achamma, 2 M. H. C. R. 325	676
Tirumalai Eachambadi v. Royadurgam Krishnasami, 28 Ind. Cas. 604; (1905) M. W. N. 281	47
Tobin v. Reg., (1864) 16 C. R. (N. S.) 310; 33 L. J. C. P. 199 at p. 210; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1029; 10 L. T. 762; 12 W. R. 838; 139 R. R. 504; 143 E. R. 1148	226
Tofaluddi Penda v. Mahar Ali Shaha, 26 C. 78	735
Tohir-un-nissa v. Nawab Hasan, 24 Ind. Cas. 978; 36 A. 558; 12 A. L. J. 906	723
Toolsa Goolal v. John Antone, 11 B. 448	286
Toolsi Dass Kurmoker v. Madan Gopal Dey, 28 C. 499	407
Topham, Ex parte ; Walker, Id. re , (1873) 8 Ch. 614; 42 L. J. Bk. 57; 28 L. T. 716; 21 W. R. 655	52
Tottenham Urban District Council v. Williamson, (1896) 2 Q. B. 353; 65 L. J. Q. B. 591; 75 L. T. 238; 44 W. R. 676; 60 J. P. 725	65
Tripurari Pal v. Jagat Tarai Dasi, 17 Ind. Cas. 696; 40 L. A. 37; 40 C. 274; 17 C. L. J. 159; 17 C. W. N. 145; 13 M. L. T. 1; (1913) M. W. N. 34; 15 Bom. L. R. 72	408
Trustees and Agency Company v. Short, 13 App. Cas. 793; 58 L. J. P. C. 4; 59 L. T. 677; 37 W. R. 413; 53 J. P. 132	244
Turabalishah v. Bibi Najm, 25 Ind. Cas. 863; 8 S. L. R. 28 at pp. 31, 32	9
Tukaram v. Ramchand, 3 Bom. L. R. 778; 26 B. 252	319

T—concl.

	Page.
Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. (1910) M. W. N. 696; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1	40
Tulsi Ram v. Shib Das, 19 Ind. Cas. 11; 228 P. L. R. 1913; 5 P. R. 1913	635
Tulshi Ram v. Baba Lal, 10 Ind. Cas. 909; 33 A. 654; 8 A. L. J. 733	719
Turner v. Moon, (1901) 2 Ch. 825; 70 L. J. Ch. 822; 85 L. T. 50; 50 W. R. 237	879
Twycroft v. Grant, (1875) W. N. 201	924
Twycroft v. Grant, (1875) W. N. 229	924
Tyerman v. Smith, (1856) 25 L. J. Q. B. 359; 6 E. & Bl. 719; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 860; 119 E. R. 1033; 106 R. R. 782	599

U

Ude Ram v. Badhar Mal, 90 P. R. 1887	199
Uday Kumari Chatwalin v. Hari Ram Shaha, 28 C. 483	286
Ulfat Rai v. Gauri Shankar, 11 Ind. Cas. 20; 33 A. 657; 8 A. L. J. 670	793
Uma Charn Mandal v. Bijari Bewah, 15 C. 174	177
Umek Chunder Sircar v. Zahur Fatima, 18 C. 164; 17 L. A. 201	572
Umrao Singh v. Piare Lal, A. W. N. (1886) 53	464
Unichaman v. Ahmed Kutti Kayi, 21 M. 242; 8 M. L. J. 81	285
Unwin v. Clarke, 19 Q. B. 417; 35 L. J. M. C. 193; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 429; 14 L. T. 356; 14 W. R. 688	377
Upendra Narain Bhattacharjee v. Pratap Chunder Pardhan, 8 C. W. N. 320; 31 C. 703	250, 790
Upendra Nath Kalamuri v. Kusum Kumari Dasi, 27 Ind. Cas. 328; 20 C. L. J. 485; 19 C. W. N. 520; 42 C. 440	322
Upendra Nath Nag Chowdhury v. Surya Kanta Roy Chowdhury, 20 Ind. Cas. 205	235
Upwell v. Halsey, (1720) 1 P. Wms. 651; 10 Mod. 44; 24 E. R. 554; 2 Eq. Cas. Ab. 325, pl. 28	409
Uttam Chand v. Emperor, 2 P. R. 1902 Cr.; 9 P. L. R. 1902	376
Uusman Khan v. Nagalla Dasanna, 16 Ind. Cas. 694; 37 M. 545; 12 M. L. T. 330; 23 M. L. J. 360; (1912) M. W. N. 995	631

V

Vadhamanati Bala Sripura Sundaramma v. Dada Sahib, 19 Ind. Cas. 474; (1913) M. W. N. 334	314
Vahazullah Sahib v. Boyapati Nagayya, 17 M. L. J. 562; 30 M. 519	282
Vaidyanatha Aiyar v. Aiyasamy Aiyar, 32 M. 191; 19 M. L. J. 94; 5 M. L. T. 49	675
Vappuluri v. Garinalla, 6 Ind. Cas. 240; 34 M. 288; 8 M. L. T. 74; (1910) M. W. N. 222; 20 M. L. J. 798	435

V—contd.

V—concl.

	Page.
Varajlal v. Someswar, 29 B. 219; 7 Bom. L. R. 90	235
Varanakot Narayanan Namburi v. Varanakot Narayanan Namburi, 2 M. 328; 5 Ind. Jur. 243	485
Vardiparthi Ramayya v. Korukonda Jagannadham, 27 Ind. Cas. 568	912
Vasudeva Aiyar v. Devasthanam Committee of Nagapatam, 21 Ind. Cas. 451; 25 M. L. J. 536; 14 M. L. T. 354; (1913) M. W. N. 842; 38 M. 594	503
Vasudeva Mudaliar v. Srinivasa Pillai, 30 M. 426; 17 M. L. J. 444; 4 A. L. J. 625; 9 Bom. L. R. 1104; 6 C. L. J. 379; 11 C. W. N. 1005; 34 I. A. 187 (P. C.); 2 M. L. T. 333	418
Vasudevan Nambudripad v. Valia Chathan Achian, 24 M. 47 (F. B.); 10 M. L. J. 32	13
Vaughan v. Taff Vale Railway, (860) 5 H. & N. 679; 29 L. J. Ex. 247; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 1899; 2 L. T. 394; 8 W. R. 549; 120 R. R. 779	66
Veda Muppan v. Kathan Padayachi, 5 Ind. Cas. 57; 7 M. L. T. 372	53
Vegoti Chengiah v. Putta Ramudu, 23 Ind. Cas. 553; (1914) M. W. N. 367	209
Vellai Mira Ravuttan v. Mira Moidin Ravuttan, 2 M. H. C. R. 414	944
Venkata v. Subhadra, 7 M. 548	856
Venkata Krishna Aiyar v. Thingaraya Chetti, 23 M. 621; 10 M. L. J. 145	240
Venkata Krishna Moorthi v. Bheemakka, 26 Ind. Cas. 295	419
Venkata Peramal Raju v. Ramudu, 27 Ind. Cas. 688; 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129	539
Venkata Subbia v. Seshachalam, 12 Ind. Cas. 173; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 257; 10 M. L. T. 549; 22 M. L. J. 136	536
Venkatachala Asari v. Subramania Chetty, 8 Ind. Cas. 264; 8 M. L. T. 577; (1910) M. W. N. 633	190
Venkatacharayulu v. Rangacharyulu, 14 M. 316; 1 M. L. J. 85	187
Venkatamma v. Manikam Nayani Varu, 26 Ind. Cas. 244; 16 M. L. T. 399	87
Venkataramanachari v. Thirunarayanachari, 27 Ind. Cas. 930; 2 L. W. 212 at p. 217	419
Venkataramayya v. Venkatalakshamma, 20 M. 493; 7 M. L. J. 204	191
Venkataramanujam v. Patibanda Basavayya, 21 Ind. Cas. 213; 14 M. L. T. 225; 25 M. L. J. 447; (1913) M. W. N. 869	797
Venkataramudu v. Subbamma, 13 M. L. J. 303	681
Venkatashubayya v. Venkayya, 15 M. 230; 1 M. L. J. 677	185
Venkateswara, In re , 10 M. 98	504
Venkayamma Garu v. Venkataramanayamma Bahadur Garu, 25 M. 678; 29 I. A. 156 (P. C.); 7 C. W. N. 1; 12 M. L. J. 299	694
Venugopal Naidu v. Ramanadhan Chetty, 14 Ind. Cas. 705; 37 M. 458; 11 M. L. T. 427; 23 M. L. J. 61	303
Vijaya Rogava v. Secretary of State for India, 7 M. 466	226
Vijayaraghava Chariar v. Emperor, 26 M. 554; 13 M. L. J. 171; 1 Weir 260	49, 371

	Page.
Viraraghava Ayyangar v. Ponnammal, 23 M. 60; 9 M. L. J. 284	428
Vithai v. Hari, 25 B. 78; 2 Bom. L. R. 638	106
Vithu v. Govinda, 22 B. 321	291
Vitla Batten v. Yamenamma, S. M. H. C. R. 6	280
Vulley Mahomed v. Dattubhoy, 25 B. 10 at pp. 18, 19; 2 Bom. L. R. 907	79
Vuppuluri Atchayya v. Kanchumarti Venkatu Seetarama Chandra Rao, 18 Ind. Cas. 555; 13 M. L. T. 60; 24 M. L. J. 112	209

W

Waidanis, In re , Rivers v. Waidanis, (1907) 97 L. T. 707; 1 Ch. 124; 77 L. J. Ch. 12	443
Wajibun v. Kadir Baksh, 13 C. 292	32
Walian v. Banke Behari Pershad Singh, 30 C. 1021; 30 I. A. 82; 7 C. W. N. 774; 5 Bom. L. R. 882	45
Walker, In re , Lloyd v. Tweedy, (1898) 1 Ir. R. 5; 3 Irish Law Reports 580	409
Walker v. Butler, (1856) 6 El. & Bl. 506; 25 L. J. Q. B. 377; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 687; 19 E. R. 953; 106 R. R. 691	629
Walker v. Rostron, 9 M. & W. 411; 11 L. J. Ex. 173; 60 R. R. 770; 152 E. R. 174	153
Wallasey Local Board v. Gracey, (1887) 36 Ch. D. 592; 56 L. J. Ch. 739; 57 L. T. 54; 35 W. R. 694; 51 J. P. 740	65
Walsh v. Lonsdale, (1882) 21 Ch. D. 9; 52 L. J. Ch. 2; 46 L. T. 858; 31 W. R. 10	990
Walsh v. Secretary of State for India, (1863) 10 H. L. Cas. 367; 32 L. J. Ch. 585; 9 Jur. (N. S.) 757; 11 W. R. 823; 2 N. R. 339	278
Walter v. Selfe, (1851) 4 De G. & Sm. 315 at p. 322; 87 R. R. 393 at p. 398; 20 L. J. Ch. 433; 15 Jur. 4 6; 64 E. R. 849; 17 L. T. 103	67
Waman Jagannath Joshi v. Balaji Kusaji Patil, 14 B. 167	418
Watkins v. Williams, (1851) 3 Mac. & G. 622 at p. 629; 87 R. R. 222; 21 L. J. Ch. 601; 16 Jur. 181; 42 E. R. 400	409
Watson v. Hythe Borough Council, (1906) 70 J. P. 153; 4 L. G. R. 344; 22 T. L. R. 245	65
Watson & Co. v. Collector of Zillah Rajshahye, 12 W. R. (P. C.) 43; 3 M. L. A. 60; 3 B. L. R. (P. C.) 4; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 269; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 500; 20 E. R. 511	555
Watson and Co. v. Ram Chund Dutt, 18 C. 10 (P. C.); 17 I. A. 10	490
Wazir Ali v. Asa Ram, 95 P. R. 1894	539
Wazir Ali Khan v. Musamat Asmat Bibi, 61 P. R. 1502; 72 P. L. R. 1902	796
Weale v. Ollive, (1863) 32 Beav. 421; 55 E. R. 165; 138 R. R. 796	409
Webster v. Bhosanquet, (1912) A. C. 394; 106 L. T. 357; 28 T. L. R. 271; 81 L. J. P. C. 205	396
West Derby Union v. Metropolitan Life Assurance Society, (1897) A. C. 847; 66 L. J. Ch. 726; 77 L. T. 284; 61 J. P. 820	329

W—could.

	Page.
West of England and South Wales District Bank, In re Dale & Co., Ex parte (1879) 11 Ch. D. 772; 48 L. J. Ch. 600; 40 L. T. 7-2; 27 W. R. 815	216
Whelan v. Hewson, (1871) 6 Ir. R. C. L. 283	65
Whiteley v. Delaney, (1914) A. C. 132; 83 L. J. Ch. 349; 10 L. T. 434; 58 S. J. 218	25
Whitmore v. Smith, (18-1) 7 H. & N. 709; 31 L. J. Ex. 107; 4 Jur. (N. S.) 514; 5 L. T. 618; 10 W. R. 253; 126 R. R. 551	33
Wickham, In re , Marony v. Taylor, (1887) 35 Ch. D. 272; 56 L. J. Ch. 748; 57 L. T. 462; 35 W. R. 525	924
Wilcock's Settlement, In re , (1876) 1 Ch. D. 229; 45 L. J. Ch. 163	409
Williams v. Wilcox, (1838) 8 A. & E. 314 at p. 331; 3 N. & P. 600; 1 W. W. & H. 477; 7 L. J. Q. B. 29; 112 E. R. 857; 47 R. R. 595	182
Williams v. Williams and Padfield, 1 P. & D. 19; 35 L. J. Mat. 8; 13 L. T. 60	264
Williams Brothers v. Ed T. Agius Limited, (1914) A. C. 510; 83 L. J. K. B. 71; 10 L. T. 865; 5 Com. Cas. 200, 58 S. J. 377; 30 T. L. R. 351	952
William's case, (1592) 5 Co. Rep. 72b; 77 E. R. 63	65
Winter v. Round, 1 M. H. C. R. 202	69
Wise v. Raj Narain Chuckerbutty, 10 B. L. R. 254; 19 W. R. 30 (F. B.)	427
Wolmershausen v. Gullick, (1889) 2 Ch. 514; 62 L. J. Ch. 73; 3 R. G. O. 18 L. T. 753	640
Wood v. Wood, 3 C. 485; 1 C. L. R. 552	167
Worthington v. Gimson, (1860) 29 L. J. Q. B. 116; 2 El. & Bl. 618; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 1053; 119 R. R. 873	552

Y

	Page.
Yad Ram v. Umrao Singh, 21 A. 580; A. W. N. (1899) 130	190
Yalden, In re , (1851) DeG. M. & G. 53; 42 E. R. 471; 91 R. R. 4	409
Yamuna Bai Rani Sahiba v. Solayya Kavundan, 24 M. 339	26
Yates v. Whyte, (1838) 4 Bing (N. C.) 272; 5 Scott 640; 7 L. J. C. P. 116; 44 R. R. 706; 132 E. R. 793	964
Yogambal Boyee Ammani Ammal v. Naina Pillai Markayar, 3 Ind. Cas. 110; 33 M. L. J. 6 M. L. T. 162; 9 M. L. J. 489	257

Z

Zain-ul-Abdin Khan v. Muhammad Asghar Ali Khan, 10 A. 166 (P. C.); 15 I. A. 1; 5 Sur. P. C. 129	96, 898
Zamindar of Vallur and Gudur v. Adinarayudu, 19 M. 44	560
Zemindar of Ettayaparam v. Sankarappa Reddiar, 27 M. 483	381
Zemindar of Vizianagram v. Behara Suryanarayana Patulu, 25 M. 587; 12 M. L. J. 249	315, 678
Zeneb v. Shah Nawaz Khan, 13 Ind. Cas. 527; 47 L. R. 191; 102 P. L. R. 19; 2; 145 P. W. R. 191	795
Zoolun Bibee v. Radhica Prosouno Chander, 3 C. 369; 1 C. L. R. 328	790

GENERAL INDEX

VOLUME XXXI—1915.

— 7-0-1 —

Abadi land—Central Provinces—Wajib-ul-arz—
Tenant or village resident, position of—Licensee—
Transfer of house—Landlord, right of—Transferee, position of—Site ceasing to be used as dwelling house—Ejectment 307

Abatement of suit. See CIVIL PROCEDURE
CODE, 1908, O. 22, r. 9.

Account—Settled account, action for balance of, maintainability of 430

Acknowledgment. See MUHAMMADAN LAW, of debt without promise to pay, whether can be made basis of suit 209

Acquiescence—Waiver 159

Act, retrospective effect of 214

ACTS—GENERAL.

Act 1834—II. See ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL'S ACT.

— 1850—XXI. See CASTE DISABILITIES REMOVAL ACT.

— 1856—XV. See HINDU WIDOWS' RE-MARRIAGE
ACT.

— 1860—XLV. See PENAL CODE.

— 1861—V. See POLICE ACT.

— 1863—XX. See RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT.

— 1865—X. See SUCCESSION ACT.

— 1867—III. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT.

— 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.

— 1870—VII. See COURT FEES ACT.

— 1871—I. See CATTLE TRESPASS ACT.

— 1871—XXIII. See PENSIONS ACT.

— 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.

— 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.

— 1873—X. See OATHS ACT.

— 1874—II. See ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL'S ACT.

— 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.

— 1877—XV. See LIMITATION ACT.

— 1878—VII. See FORESTS ACT.

— 1881—V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION
ACT.

— 1881—XXVI. See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS
ACT.

— 1882—II. See TRUSTS ACT.

— 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.

— 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.

— 1882—VI. See COMPANIES ACT.

— 1882—XIV. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.

— 1882—XV. See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.

— 1888—I. See INCOME TAX ACT.

— 1887—VII. See SUITS VALUATION ACT.

— 1887—IX. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE
COURTS ACT.

ACTS—GENERAL—concl.

Act 1889—VII. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT.

— 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.

— 1894—I. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT.

— 1897—X. See GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.

— 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.

— 1899—II. See STAMP ACT.

— 1904—I. See POISONS ACT.

— 1907—III. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.

— 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.

— 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.

— 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.

— 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY
ACT.

— 1912—II. See CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT.

— 1913—VII. See COMPANIES ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—ASSAM.

Act 1901—VI. See ASSAM LABOUR AND EMIGRATION
ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BENGAL.

Act 1830—XI. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES
ACT.

— 1875—V. See BENGAL SURVEY ACT.

— 1884—III. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT.

— 1885—I. See BENGAL PUBLIC DEMANDS RE-COVERY ACT.

— 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

— 1914—VI. See BENGAL MEDICAL ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BOMBAY.

Act 1879—XVII. See DERKHAN AGRICULTURISTS' RELIEF ACT.

— 1887—IV. See BOMBAY PREVENTION OF GAMBL-ING ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—CENTRAL PROVINCES.

Act 1859—X. See CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY
ACT.

— 1898—XI. See CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY
ACT.

— 1903—XVI. See CENTRAL PROVINCES MUNI-CIPAL ACT.

— 1908—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR TENANCY ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—MADRAS.

- Act 1873—III. See MADRAS CIVIL COURTS ACT.
 — 1884—IV. See MADRAS DISTRICT MUNICIPALITIES ACT.
 — 1886—I. See MADRAS ABKARI ACT.
 — 1889—I. See MADRAS VILLAGE COURTS ACT.
 — 1902—I. See MADRAS COURT OF WARDS ACT.
 — 1903—I. See MADRAS PLANTERS LABOUR ACT.
 — 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—PUNJAB.

- Act 1872—IV. See PUNJAB LAWS ACT.
 — 1884—XVIII. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.
 — 1887—XVI. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
 — 1893—III. See PUNJAB GOVERNMENT TENANTS ACT.
 — 1900—I. See PUNJAB LIMITATION (ANCESTRAL LAND ALIENATION) ACT.
 — 1900—XIII. See PUNJAB ALIENATION OF LAND ACT.
 — 1905—II. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
 — 1912—I. See PUNJAB COURTS AMENDMENT ACT.
 — 1913—I. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
 — 1914—III. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—U. P.

- Act 1869—I. See OUDH ESTATES ACT.
 — 1881—XII. See NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT ACT.
 — 1886—XXII. See OUDH RENT ACT.
 — 1901—II. See AGRA TENANCY ACT.
 — 1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
 — 1910—III. See OUDH ESTATES AMENDMENT ACT.

REGULATIONS.

- Reg. 1802—XXV. See MADRAS REGULATION.
 — 1806—XVII. See REGULATION.
 — 1886—I. See ASSAM LAND AND REVENUE REGULATION.
 — 1901—III. See N.W. FRONTIER CRIMES REGULATION.

STATUTES.

- 24 & 25 Vic., C. 104. See CHARTER ACT.

ACTS—FOREIGN.

- Act 1906, C. 37. See RAILWAY ACT OF CANADA.

Administrator-General's Act (II of 1874), ss. 17, 18 38

Adoption. See HINDU LAW.

Adulteration. See MADRAS ABKARI ACT (I OF 1886), s. 56 (b).

Adverse possession — Adverse possession for statutory period before sale, if encumbrance—Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (I of 1886), s. 70 801

— Co-owners—Exclusive possession of one co-owner, if adverse to another—Lambardar, possession by—Agent—Presumption.
 The exclusive possession of one co-owner, who has entered under a common title, is not ordinarily adverse to another co-owner.

Adverse possession—concl.

In the absence of proof that a co-sharer lambardar is holding the property of himself and his co-sharers adversely to the latter, his possession must be presumed to be permissive and as that of an agent for them. N. DINA v. BISHAMBHAR SINGH, 11 N. L. R. 164 464

— Co-parceners—Possession of one, possession of others—Possession hostile at commencement—Accrual of peaceful title before completion of adverse possession, effect of—Possession—Title 398

— Nature of possession by mortgagee—Restriction 678

Affidavit, previous, admissibility of 637

Agent. See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 4 (2) 979

— S. 10—Sir, transfer of, by gift to one not a co-sharer, effect of.

Sir does not cease to be sir when it is transferred by a gift, whether the transfer be in favour of a person who is a co-sharer or in favour of one who is not a co-sharer. U. P. B. R. ELAHI BUX v. NAND KISHORE 906

— S. 11—Occupancy rights, acquisition of—Twelve years' continuous occupation—Land lying fallow.

A tank land carried crops of singhara or paddy in years of heavy rainfall. No rent was paid in the years when there was no cultivation and rent varied largely from year to year. The tenant claimed continuous possession on the ground that he grazed cattle when cultivation was impossible:

Held, that this was not the case in which cultivated land was left fallow for a year or two without the period necessary for the acquisition of a right of occupancy being interrupted and that under the circumstances occupancy rights did not accrue as there was no continuous occupation for twelve years. U. P. B. R. NAUNHAL SINGH v. CHABBI 458 — SS. 11, 34—Tenant holding without consent of landlord—Presumption—Occupancy rights, acquisition of.

A person occupying land shall not be deemed to hold land within the meaning of section 11 of the Tenancy Act until he begins to pay rent therefor and in the absence of very strong evidence the presumption is that a tenant is holding without the consent of the landlord until he begins to pay rent. U. P. B. R. GHANSHAM SINGH v. MOHAN SINGH 486 — SS. 13, 58—Ejectment of father—Land re-let to minor son—Joint family—Continuous possession—Occupancy right.

When a father was ejected under section 58 of the Tenancy Act and immediately after the land was leased to his son aged sixteen who was joint with his father:

Held, that the re-letting was in fact a re-admission of the father to the holding within the meaning of section 13 of the Tenancy Act. U. P. B. R. UDAI BHAWAN SINGH v. MANAGER, KATASTHA PATESHALA 884

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.ss. 13 (a), (b) and (c), 14*(1) (a), 168—Wrongful dispossession—Re-gaining of possession—Limitation.

In order to apply the provisions of section 13 (a) of the Tenancy Act to a tenant wrongfully dispossessed, it is not necessary that the possession should have been re-gained within six months. U. P. B. R. DWARKA P. NAZIR HUSAIN KHAN 863 ss. 13 (a) and (b), 14 (1)(a), 168—Wrongful dispossession—Re-gaining of possession—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 28.

A mere attestation in a settlement parcha by a tenant that he is a non-occupancy tenant, does not mean that he gives up his claim to occupancy rights.

Quere.—Whether for the application of section 13 (a) of the Tenancy Act, it is not necessary that the tenant should have re-gained possession within a year from the wrongful dispossession? U. P. B. R. RAM BHAROS V. NAZIR HUSAIN 815

s. 14—Letting value, meaning of.

For the purposes of section 14 of the Tenancy Act, the letting value to be considered is the letting value at the time of the exchange, and not at the time of the suit for ejectment. U. P. B. R. NAGESH PRASAD V. MOHAN 482

s. 14 (1) (a) 815, 863s. 22—Succession—Ex-proprietary rights acquired by two persons in full right—Death of one without heirs—Right of heirs of other to get entire holding—Survivorship.

Where two persons acquire jointly ex-proprietary rights and one of them dies without leaving heirs entitled to inherit under the Tenancy Act, the other gets the entire holding. U. P. B. R. HARI HAR PRASAD V. MATA PRASAD 864

s. 31, applicability of—Mortgage of occupancy holding before Act—Suit for arrears of rent—Mortgager, if necessary party—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 9.

Section 31 of the Tenancy Act will not apply to a mortgage of a holding entered into before the Tenancy Act came into force.

A mortgagor of an occupancy holding is not a necessary party to a suit for arrears of rent, as the occupancy tenant is the only person responsible for the rent of the holding. U. P. B. R. BALWANT SINGH V. FAIZULLAH 456

s. 34 486s. 36—Sir—Ex-proprietary rights—Adverse possession—Sir, character of, if changes.

Ex-proprietary rights can be claimed by any person who may be in possession of the sir, even if that person be a trespasser, specially when the adverse possession has ripened into ownership. Sir retains its character as such in the hands of an adverse owner. U. P. B. R. BHAGWATI SARAN SINGH V. RABI SINGH 893

s. 43—Enhancement of rent, suit for—Exemplar area—Prevailing rates—Procedure.

Where in a suit for enhancement there was nothing on the record to give information as to how the rates applied were obtained or what was the exemplar area accepted or how the rates were worked out:

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

Held, that there was no proper trial by the Court below, inasmuch as the tenants were entitled to demand that the enquiry should conclusively show that the rates applied were actually the rates prevalent. U. P. B. R. HARI V. SRI THAKURJI MAHARAJ 889

ss. 43, 49—Rent fixed by agreement in perpetuity—Suit for enhancement, if untenable—Remedy.

Where rent has been fixed in perpetuity by an agreement, the remedy of the landlord is not a suit for enhancement of rent under section 43 but a suit under section 49. U. P. B. R. KATAYAN SINGH V. HOTA LAL 459

s. 49 459s. 58 884*s. 58—Ejectment—Grove—Holding.

A suit for ejectment under section 58 of the Tenancy Act cannot lie in respect of a grove, as a grove does not come under the definition of the holding, not being land let or held for agricultural purposes. U. P. B. R. NAWAB SINGH V. HUKUM SINGH 498

ss. 58, 79—Ejectment—Grove—Possession by landlord—Grove-holder, possession of, nature of—Remedy of grove-holder.

A landlord took forcible possession of a grove in his zemindari. No contract to pay rent was entered into nor was there anything to show that the landlord was admitted as a sub-tenant. The grove-holder sued to eject the landlord as his sub-tenant. The Courts below gave a decree for ejectment. The landlord applied in revision:

Held, that if the grove-holder was to be treated as a tenant, his remedy was to sue for possession under section 79 of the Tenancy Act within six months; but if he was not a tenant, a suit under section 58 did not lie. U. P. B. R. KUNJI MAL V. SUEO BALAK RAM 453

s. 79 453s. 79—Relinquishment—Surrender of possession—Contract of relinquishment, if enforceable—Dispossession—Remedy.

A relinquishment of the holding, whether oral or written, unless coupled with the surrender of possession is no valid relinquishment under the law.

A contract of relinquishment cannot be specifically enforced.

Where, therefore, a tenant agreed in writing to relinquish but did not surrender possession and the zemindar let the land to other tenants who took up cultivation:

Held, that the action of the zemindar amounted to an illegal dispossession of the original tenant for which an action under section 79 would lie. U. P. B. R. SHIVA TAJAL AHIR V. JAWAHIR LAL 794

s. 158—"Muafi khairati", meaning of—Resumption—Revenue, assessment of.

An entry with respect to a grant in the Agra Province to the effect that the land is "Muafi khairati," Agra Tenancy Act—concl'd.

means that the grant is an absolute one for charitable purposes and is not resumable, and entries to the contrary in subsequent village administration papers, cannot affect the circumstances under which the grant was made.

Where such land has been held for 50 years and upwards by two successors to the original grantee, it should be assessed to revenue only. U. P. B. R.

JANKI PRASAD V. LOKENDER SHAH

S. 168

898
863

S. 176—Application for review, rejection of, by Assistant Collector, 2nd Class—Appeal, if maintainable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLVII, r. 7.

Although under Order XLVII, rule 7, of the Civil Procedure Code, an order rejecting an application for review is not appealable, such an order, if passed by an Assistant Collector of the Second Class, is appealable to the Collector under section 176 of the Tenancy Act. U. P. B. R. PARAS RAM V. SHYAMARAN SINGH

912

S. 177—Question of proprietary title—Acquiescence—Appeal.

In a suit for ejectment, the defendant pleaded that he was the proprietor of the fields in dispute or in the alternative that he had at least acquired occupancy rights. The Court of first instance held against the proprietary right but held that the defendant had got occupancy rights. The plaintiff appealed. The defendant raised an objection that no appeal lay to the Commissioner, who held that no question of proprietary title was in issue in appeal as the defendant appeared to have acquiesced in the Assistant Collector's finding, that the proprietary title could not be urged and that the appeal had been filed solely on the point of occupancy tenure.

Held, that as the defendant could not appeal he could not be said to have acquiesced in the finding of the Assistant Collector, and, therefore, a question of proprietary title was in issue and the appeal lay to the District Judge. U. P. B. R. PARTAB BHADUR SINGH V. ABDUS SALAM

857

SS. 177 (e), 198—Ejectment, suit for—Defendant pleading proprietorship in third person, if question of proprietary title—Appeal—Jurisdiction.

In ejectment suits a question of proprietary title arises not only in cases in which the defendant pleads proprietorship in himself, but also in cases in which he alleges that a third person, and not the plaintiff, is the proprietor of the land in dispute and, therefore, an appeal from a decision of a Collector in such a case lies to the District Judge. U. P. B. R. ADYA SARAN SINGH V. THAKUR

853

S. 193 (e)

859

S. 198

853

Allen enemy—License to trade—Suits, right to bring.

An alien enemy who has been licensed to trade in British India, has access to the Courts and may bring suits. L. B. M. MEYER V. MRS. C. LEA

886

Alienation. See CUSTOM; HINDU LAW; MORTGAGE.Amendment of decree—Appellate Court, exercise of power of amendment by

478

—Divergence between judgment and decree

13

Amendment of plaint. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 6, r. 17.

Discretion of Court to permit—New cause of action arising during pendency of suit—Amendment, if permitted

7

Service of notice after amendment

35

Appeal (Civil). See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 177; U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 111.

Appellant's failure to make necessary deposit for printing—Appeal, whether liable to be dismissed—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, rr. 11, 16

74

Appellate Court, interference by—Discretion of lower Court

579

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r. 33—Appellate Court, whether can reverse decree against non-appealing defendant

86

Application to set aside abatement of appeal—Sufficient cause—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sec. I, Art. 171

697

Arbitration—Award—Decree in accordance with award

700

Arbitration—Award, decree based on—Appeal not maintainable—Revision, when allowed

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115

458

Decree ex parte, order refusing to set aside, whether appealable—Order setting aside decree ex parte, appeal against, maintainability of—Error made in setting aside such decree, effect of

914

Decree against one set of defendants on contest, against another by consent—Appeal against whole decree by contesting defendant—Execution, limitation for—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sec. I, Art. 182, cl. (2)

426

Difference of opinion on some points—Practice

965

Discretion—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere with lower Court's discretion.

The Court of Appeal should be slow to interfere with the exercise of a discretion by a lower Court. C. AHMED MUSAJI SALEJI V. MAMOOJI MUSAJI, 22 O. L. J. 203

315

Discretion of Court as to costs, extent of—Power of Appellate Court to interfere—Order as to costs incorporated in decree, whether appealable—Pleader's fees—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, rr. 278, 279, 284

312

Duty of Appellate Court to implead all necessary parties—Necessary party omitted—Decree for sale, whether operative.

814

Execution of decree against legal representative—Property attached—Property, if assets of deceased, decision as to after failure of application for review—Time spent in review, if bona fide prosecution of civil litigation—Exclusion of time—Discretion, exercise of—Laches.

321

705

Letters Patent—order to furnish security

238

New defence inconsistent with the original, if allowed

875

New party, addition of—Remand to lower Court—Procedure

263

Order by District Judge allowing Hindu widow to take out compensation money deposited by Collector, if maintainable

677

Appeal (Civil)—concl.

- Order extending time for payment of money due under mortgage-decree, if appealable—Extension of time—Time limit under decree—Preliminary decree by Appellate Court—Determination of other questions—Suit, remitting of—"Court" in O. XXXIV, r. 8 proviso, meaning of 240
- Order passed on one date, if treated as one against decree of another date 4
- against orders made in winding up proceedings—Limitation—Extension of time 725
- Party exonerated by first Court, if can be made party in appeal—Memorandum of objections 979
- Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (111 of 1909), s. 8—Protection order 507
- Printed copy of judgment not filed with memorandum of appeal—Appeal, whether time-barred 924
- Privy Council appeal—Value of subject-matter in Court of first instance less than Rs. 10,000—Value of subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council more than Rs. 10,000—Certificate, if can be granted—Involve, 'directly or indirectly, some claim or question to or respecting property of like amount or value', meaning of.
- Privy Council appeal—Leave to appeal—Case below appealable value—Test for certifying case fit for appeal—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 109 cl. (c), 110, O. XLV, r. 2, 3, 8.
- Where a case is admittedly below the appealable value a certificate declaring it a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council ought not to be granted unless there is some substantial question of law of general interest involved. M. AYYA RAGHUNATHA v. THIRUMALAI ECHAMBAD, 18 M. L. T. 366; 2 L. W. 992; (1915) M. W. N. 916 46
- Probate—Division Bench, difference of opinion in—Letters Patent, cl. 15, appeal under, if maintainable 319
- right of—Substantive law—Act, retrospective, effect of—Res judicata 214
- Separate, by two sets of defendants—Appeal by one set, dismissal of—Appeal, hearing of, by other set—Discretion of Court to dismiss suit as against all defendants 886
- Suit originally valued at above Rs. 5,000—Decree for less than Rs. 5,000—Jurisdiction 496
- Two suits with regard to same subject-matter tried together—Judgment in one following that in the other—Appeal against one, whether barred because no appeal against the other 216
- (Criminal) Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 380, 408, 562—Proceedings submitted to First Class Magistrate—Sentence by that Magistrate—Appeal, where lies 338
- Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 423, 424, 367, 537 (a)—Appeal, dismissal of, after notice—Judgment, omission to write, effect of 1008
- Appeal, second—Custom, validity of, question of, propriety of—Certificate, necessity of—Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), s. 40 (3)—Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (I of 1912), s. 2 386
- Finding of fact 800
- No appeal from first Court's decision maintainable—Second appeal, if maintainable 812

Appeal, second—concl.

- Suit of a Small Cause Court nature—Right of fishery 797
- Arbitration. See CONTRACT.
- Award—Decree in accordance with award—Appeal—Revision, when maintainable—Award, nullity, effect of—Arbitrators, Court if can advise—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115, Sch. II, para. 16.
- An application for revision of a decree based on an award can be entertained on the ground of material irregularity committed by the Court when no appeal under the Civil Procedure Code is maintainable against that decree, but such jurisdiction will be used very sparingly.
- Obiter dictum.*—Where there is no legal appointment of arbitrators, the award is a nullity and an appeal against the decree is maintainable.
- There is nothing objectionable in the Court's helping the arbitrators with advice and orders when they come to it in a difficulty. P. KANHA LAL v. NARAIN SINGH 700
- Award, decree based on—Appeal not maintainable—Revision, when allowed—Civil Procedure Code Act (V of 1908), s. 115.
- There is no appeal against a decree based upon an award but if it can be shown that the lower Court acted without jurisdiction or failed to exercise a jurisdiction or acted with material irregularity in dealing with the award, it would be open to the High Court on a proper case being made out to revise such an order. M. ARAMANAI RAJAGOPALA v. ARAMANAI RANGASAMI 458
- Delegation of functions—Judicial misconduct—Material irregularity—Award—Dealing with matters not covered by submission—Illegal parts of award severable—Legal part, effect on.
- An arbitrator has no authority to delegate his functions, except possibly the performance of what are called 'ministerial acts', and if he does so, he is guilty of judicial misconduct and his award is invalid.
- It is permissible to an arbitrator to take assistance in technical matters, in so far as such assistance is necessary for the discharge of his duties. The decision, however, must ultimately be his own judgment in the matter, although in the process of formation of that conclusion he may take the assistance of experts.
- A Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction, if it overrules the objection of judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, without inquiry and without reception of evidence material for the determination of the issue.
- A submission furnishes the source and prescribes the limits of the arbitrator's authority and the award both in substance and in form must conform to the submission, and if the award extends to matters not within the scope of the submission, it is void as regards the portion in excess of the submission.
- Where the different parts of an award are severable and not dependent on each other, the illegal portion may be cancelled and effect given to the remainder. C. JUGGUBUNDHU v. CHAND MOHAN SHAH, 22 C. L. J. 237 33
- Order of reference authorising arbitrator to extend time made by consent of parties—Arbitrator extending time after the Arbitration—concl.

period originally fixed by Court had expired—Arbitrator after such time, if functus officio—Award submitted within such extended time, if must be set aside—Arbitrator's interest in subject-matter in suit, when insignificant and unknown to him, if would invalidate award

597

Question of title referred to arbitration—Award—Trial de novo—Proceedings before Civil Court—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 5, 14, Sch. I, Art. 175

899

Assam Labour and Emigration Act (VI of 1901)—Principal and agent—Liability of Government for tortious acts of its servants—Government servant acting under statutory powers, whether agent—Illegal order—Government, whether liable—Public policy—Government servant, when personally liable—Defamation—Defamatory words published in course of official duties—Reasonable and probable cause—Prohibition of illegal business—Action, right of.

The Government cannot be made liable for illegal orders passed by a Government servant purporting to act under a statutory power conferred upon him. The plaintiff sued the Secretary of State for India in Council to recover damages for loss of business on the grounds: (a) that the Collector and District Magistrate of Ganjam on the 2nd February 1910 closed a labour-recruiting depot at Berhampore, that recruiting depot having been intended for the accommodation of coolies recruited on behalf of certain Tea Planting Associations in Assam, of which Associations the plaintiff had been appointed an agent, (b) that the Governor-in-Council by a G. O. dated 12th October 1910, ratified and confirmed the Collector's order closing the depot till that date, (c) that the Government in the said order made certain defamatory remarks concerning the plaintiff, and (d) that on account of the Collector's order the plaintiff was prevented from recruiting coolies and earning commission.

Held, (per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.)—(1) that the Government could not be made liable for illegal orders made by the Collector and District Magistrate inasmuch as he could not be treated as the agent of the Government of Madras, nor could the Government ratify that act so as to make itself liable;

(2) that on the highest grounds of public policy the Government should not be made liable for the tortious acts of its agents or servants, except probably for acts done in the course of those kinds of transactions, which even an ordinary private mercantile firm can enter into;

(3) that the District Magistrate himself even in his personal capacity could not be made liable to the plaintiff for the order made by him, as there was no proof that he acted maliciously or that his object was to injure the plaintiff's legal right;

(4) that the Governor-in-Council was not liable for publishing words concerning the plaintiff in the course of the official duties of the Governor-in-Council since it was not alleged that the publication was made maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause.

Held also (per Bakerwell, J.) that the prohibition of an illegal business does not give a right of action.

M. ROSS v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 29 M. L. J. 280

224

Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (I of 1886), ss. 35, 36

424

ss. 39, 156 (1), 35, 36—Application for registration of name by purchaser of land dismissed—Suit for declaration and possession in Civil Court, if maintainable Jurisdiction—Renewal of Settlement by vendor after sale, effect of.

Where the plaintiffs purchased lands from the defendants and applied for the registration of their names under the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886, but their application was refused by reason of the opposition of the defendants, who repudiated the sale:

Held, that the Civil Court was competent not only to declare the title of the plaintiffs, but also to place them in possession of the disputed property by ejectment of the defendants.

Held, further, that the mere fact that the defendants obtained a renewal of the settlement from the Revenue Authorities after the sale, did not create in them a right which they did not possess.

Section 154, sub-section (1), of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation must be read along with, and is controlled by, the concluding clause of section 39 of the same Act. C. ASKAR MIAN v. SAHEDALI BARA, 22 C. L. J. 328

424

—s. 70

801

—s. 154 (1)

424

Attachment. See EXECUTION.

—before judgment, cash deposited as security for withdrawing—Defendant declared insolvent—Plaintiff, if acquires any right in security deposit—Receiver in insolvency, right of, to get the money.

573

—Subsistence of attachment, how determined—Order not withdrawn—Presumption—Right to subsistence of attachment acquired under old Code—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 57, whether has retrospective effect

The question whether by reason of the disposal of a petition for execution, an attachment cease to subsist, should be determined with reference to the facts of each case.

Unless an order of attachment is withdrawn or dealt with on the merits, the presumption is that it is in force.

A right to subsistence of attachment acquired under the old Code of Civil Procedure cannot be taken away by giving retrospective operation to Order XXI, rule 57 of the new Code. M. RAGHAVA-CHARIAR v. ANANTHA REDDI

911

Award. See ARBITRATION.

—Fraud—Decree based on award obtained by fraud—Suit to set aside such decree, whether competent—Decree, whether can be set aside on ground that it was obtained by perjured evidence—Review

196 —Objections filed in time—Refusal by Court to hear as being filed out of time—Revision, competency of—Jurisdiction

536 —Order filing private award in part—Second appeal, whether competent—Error of law, whether ground for revision

80 —suit barred on—Limitation

816

Ballor and bailee—Suit against wrong-doer, who can maintain 430

Bandhu. See HINDU LAW.

Benami purchase—Ownership—Source of money.

Where a property is alleged to have been purchased by one man in the name of another, the question of ownership must depend upon the answer to the question, with whose money was the property purchased.

A. BHARAT INDU V. MUHAMMAD MAHBUB ALI KHAN 586

Benamidar—Suit for partition of immoveable property by benamidar, if maintainable—Suits for land and suits for money claims, distinction between—Nature of partition.

A benamidar cannot maintain a suit for partition of joint immoveable property.

Semble:—A distinction has been recognised in the Calcutta High Court between suits for land and suits for money claims in the determination of the question of the competence of a benamidar to maintain a suit: in the former class of cases the right has been denied; in the latter class of cases the right has been sustained.

The essence of partition is that the property is transformed into estates in severalty and one of such estates is assigned to each of the former occupants for his sole use and as his sole property.

No analogy can be established between partition and the enforcement of a money claim, even when such claim is associated with land, as in the case of a benami mortgage or of a benami lease, though as regards leases and mortgages, there is apparently some divergence of judicial opinion. C. ATRAHANAESS BIBI V. SAFATULLAH MIA, 22 C. L. J. 259

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859), s. 14—Sale for arrears of revenue—Suit for annulment—Sale for arrears of kist not due, ultra vires—Duty of Collector.

Where in a suit for the annulment of a sale for arrears of revenue, it appeared that the estate consisted of two mauzas with revenue assessed proportionately on each payable by kists, and several accounts having been opened in respect of this estate, the June kist of one of the accounts fell in arrears and the Collector ordered the sale for the arrears of the March kist (none being found to be due for which):

Held, (1) that there being no arrears for the March kist, a sale held expressly for such arrears, was ultra vires, although the sale might legitimately have been held for the June kist and consequently the sale of the entire mahal under section 14 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act was void;

(2) that it was the duty of the Collector to close all the separate accounts before ordering sale of the entire estate. C. MUHAMMAD IDRIS V. MOTASADDI MIAN 743

s. 37 Proviso—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885)—Raiyats at fixed rates—Ordinary occupancy raiyats—Enhancement of rent—Protection, nature of.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates are primarily the persons referred to in the proviso to section 37 of Act XI of 1859, and the protection provided by the section is extended under the Bengal Tenancy Act to all classes of occupancy raiyats.

A person who takes the tenancy originally as a raiyat at fixed rates may not thereby acquire an occupancy right but a man who has already obtained occupancy rights cannot, by obtaining a grant of fixed rent, lose that occupancy right.

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act—concl'd.

Quære:—Whether, in view of the protection offered by section 37 of Act XI of 1859, a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue can enhance the rent of an occupancy raiyat? C. ABDUL GANI V. MAHBUB ALI, 22 C. L. J. 223; 42 C. 745; 20 C. W. N. 185 19

s. 33—Revenue sale of estate not in arrear, effect of—Suit for recovery—Limitation—Letters Patent, s. 15—Judgment, meaning of—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 145, order under, admissibility of—Evidence—Admission, value of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 142—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 98—Appeal—Difference of opinion on some points—Practice.

Where a share of an estate, being in arrear of revenue was sold by the Collector under Act XI of 1859 and was purchased by the defendant, who thereupon dispossessed the proprietor:

Held, (Per Curiam), that Article 142 of the Limitation Act, 1908, governed the proprietor's suit for recovery of its possession.

Per Jenkins, C. J.—The value in fact of that which is in form an admission must depend upon the surrounding circumstances.

Where there is no arrear of revenue in respect of an estate, there is no condition justifying its sale and a suit for setting aside the sale is not necessary.

Per Mookerjee, J.—The term 'judgment' as used in clause 15 of the Letters Patent signifies what is now understood by the term "decree" or "order."

Where in an appeal the Judges of the Appellate Court are agreed that the decree of the Court below is erroneous to a certain extent, but as to the rest they are equally divided in opinion, the decree appealed from is bound to be reversed to that extent only but as to the rest it is confirmed under section 98, Civil Procedure Code.

Section 33 of Act XI of 1859 applies not only where the sale has been irregularly conducted, but also where the sale has been illegal as held in contravention of an express provision for exemption, but the principle has no application where the property sold is not in arrear; the existence of an arrear is a condition precedent to the exercise of statutory authority by the Collector. A sale which is beyond the statutory authority vested in a Collector cannot prejudice the rights of the proprietor.

A finding in the order of a Criminal Court under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, is not admissible in evidence, though the order itself is admissible for a limited purpose, namely, to show the parties in dispute, the land in dispute, and the person declared entitled to retain possession. C. KRISHN DOYAL GIE V. IRSHAD ALI KHAN, 22 C. L. J. 525 965

Bengal Medical Act (VI B. C. of 1914), s. 27—Rules framed under the Act by Local Government, ultra vires—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 45—Mandamus—Omission of qualified candidate's name from Election Roll—Mistake of Returning Officer—Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere.

The petitioner was a Licentiate in Medicine and Bengal Medical Act—concl.

Surgery of the University of Calcutta and as such was admittedly entitled to be registered under section 4 of the Bengal Medical Act. The petitioner's name was omitted from the preliminary list of persons qualified to vote at the first elections under the Act published by the Returning Officer appointed by the Local Government. His name was also omitted from the final Election Roll. The petitioner's application to the Returning Officer to have his name entered was not considered by that officer. The petitioner applied to the High Court under section 45 of the Specific Relief Act for an order compelling the Returning Officer to include and publish his name in the final Election Roll.

Held, that the High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere.

Under rule 16 of the rules framed by the Local Government under the Bengal Medical Act, the decision of the Local Government on any question that may arise as to the intention, construction or application of the rules shall be final, and under section 27 of the Act no suit or other legal proceedings shall lie in respect of any act done in the exercise of any power conferred by the Act on the Local Government or the Council or the Registrar.

The act which is referred to in section 27 of the Bengal Medical Act is not one done by the Local Government, but done in exercise of any power conferred by the Act on the Local Government.

Per Woodroffe and Carr, JJ.—Even assuming that rules framed by the Local Government under section 33 of the Bengal Act are ultra vires, an application under section 45 of the Specific Relief Act for an order compelling the Returning Officer to include and publish the applicant's name in the final Election Roll based on the assumption that the rules are not ultra vires but that they are valid rules which have not been given effect to in one particular by the Returning Officer, cannot be entertained. C. NARENDRA NATH v. STEPHENSON, 19 C. W. N. 129 618
Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884), ss. 321, 322 (4)—Dwelling house defined.

A dwelling house is a house with the superadded requirement that it is dwelt in.

Where a holding was ordinarily used as a place of business and was also occupied by the plaintiff while he was in a state of unsound mind and where there was also a cook-shed or cowshed on the property:

Held, that on these facts the holding could not be deemed a dwelling house within the meaning of the first proviso to section 321 of the Bengal Municipal Act.

The effect of amendments of section 322 Bengal Municipal Act considered. C. RADHA GORINDA v. NABADWIP CHANDRA PAL, 19 C. W. N. 1027 10
s. 322 (4) 10

Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895), s. 9—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 64, O. VI, rr. 14, 15—Attachment of property, effect of—Omission to frame issue, effect of—Remedy—Certificate sale—Certificate proceedings, irregular—Sale, validity of—Statute, non-compliance with, effect of—Appellate Court, power of, to dismiss suit—Plaint not duly verified and signed—Procedure—Practice—Certificate, when invalid—Presumption—Official Act, regularity of—Service of notice, proof of.Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act—contd.

An attachment creates no charge or lien upon the attached property, it merely prevents private alienation, but does not confer any title on the attaching creditor.

Where the parties have gone to trial knowing what the real question between them was, the evidence has been adduced and discussed and the Court has decided the point as if there was an issue framed on it, the decision will not be set aside in appeal simply on the ground that no issue was framed on the point, in other words, the mere omission to frame an issue is not fatal to the trial of the suit.

Where, however, the failure to frame the issue has led to an unfair trial or miscarriage of justice, the case will be remanded for re-trial.

In a suit for a declaration that a certificate sale held under the provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act was invalid and of no effect and that the defendants-purchasers had acquired no title to the property, the title of the defendants was expressly attached in the plaint but the issue as framed did not directly and specifically raise the question of the legality of the certificate proceedings. It appeared that the defendants were not taken by surprise in the Courts below but had adduced a considerable body of evidence in support of their title. In appeal, the defendants-appellants urged that the legality of the proceedings under the Public Demands Recovery Act was not raised in the issues framed in the suit and should not be investigated.

Held, that the defendants were not prejudiced in any way and that the objection, as it was neither taken in the Court below nor in the memorandum of appeal, was wholly unsubstantial.

A non-compliance with every requirement of a Statute does not universally make the proceedings a nullity. No hard and fast line can be drawn between a nullity and an irregularity, and when the provision of a Statute has been contravened, if a question arises as to how far the proceedings are affected thereby, it must be determined with regard to the nature, scope and object of the particular provision violated.

An Appellate Court should not dismiss a suit on the ground only that the plaint was not duly signed and verified, such a defect does not affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court.

Therefore, where a requisition under section 9 (1) of the Public Demands Recovery Act is not duly signed and verified under section 9 (c) of the Act, the certificate issued on the basis of such requisition is not void in law.

The obvious intention of section 9 (3) of the Public Demands Recovery Act is that a certificate officer shall use his discretion as to the issue of a certificate, to determine whether the case is a proper one for it, whether the money be due or not.

A certificate in which the amount was not specified and the space intended for the insertion of the figures was left blank and which the certificate officer appeared to have mechanically signed without perusal and consideration, is not duly made under the provisions of the Act and a sale held under such a certificate is not valid.

Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act—concl'd.

The mere entry in the order sheet of the certificate case that notice has been served is no proof that service was effected.

When the circumstances of the case show that the certificate proceedings have been carried on in a careless or slovenly manner, the Court will be slow to apply the maxim Omnia presumuntur rite et solemniter esse acta donec probetur in contrarium. C. MOHIUDDIN v. PIRTHICHAND LAL, 19 C. W. N. 1159

664

Bengal Survey Act (V of 1875), ss. 41, 63Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) 19

ss. 49 (b), 85—Under-raiyat—Holding for a term—Devolution of interest
—Heirs, whether can be ejected without notice.

There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act which expressly takes away the right of the heirs of an under-raiyat to succeed to the remainder of the term granted by the raiyat within the powers conferred on the latter by section 85, and apart from custom or express enactment there is no doubt that a lease for a term devolves upon the heirs of the original lessee. On the expiry of the term the heirs may be ejected without notice under section 49 (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. ALEJAN BIBI v. RAHAM ALI, 22 C. L. J. 232

26

s. 85 26

s. 151—Landlord and tenant—Suit for rent below Rs. 50—Conflicting claim set up—Suit dismissed as no relation of landlord and tenant found—Appeal, if maintainable—No appeal from first Court's decision maintainable—
Second appeal, if maintainable—Revision—Jurisdiction—
Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115.

Where in a suit for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act for an amount less than Rs. 50, the defendant set up the title in himself, but the suit was dismissed on the ground that no relation of landlord and tenant existed between the parties as no rent had ever been collected by the plaintiff:

Held, that the decision was not appealable.

No second appeal lies to the High Court from the decision in appeal of the lower Appellate Court when no appeal lay to the latter Court from the decision of the First Court.

Where an appeal to the High Court is found to be incompetent, the High Court has jurisdiction in a proper case to deal with the matter under section 115, Civil Procedure Code of 1908, even without an application for that purpose. C. GANGADHAR KARMAKAR v. SHEKHAR BASINI DASIA

812

s. 161—Putni tenure, unregistered purchaser of, right of—Incumbrance.

Per Jenkins, C. J., and N. R. Chatterjee, J., (Mullick J., dissenting).—An interest of an unregistered purchaser of a portion of a putni tenure is not an incumbrance within the meaning of section 161 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. ABDUL RAHMAN v. AHMADAR RAHMAN, 19 C. W. N. 1217; 22 C. L. J. 356

554

Bengal Tenancy Act—concl'd.

s. 182—Homestead, meaning of—Land used for agricultural purposes—Land used for the purpose of gathering and storing thereon the crops raised on adjacent lands.

In order to make section 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applicable, it is not essential that the homestead should be in the same village or be held under the same landlord as the holding of the raiyat.

The expression 'homestead' as used in the section denotes land on which a raiyat has his homestead, that is, land used by him for residential purposes. The section is not applicable where it is established that the land is not used by the raiyat as his homestead; it is not sufficient to show that the character of the land is such as would justify its use as a homestead.

The provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act are applicable to all lands used for agricultural purposes and are not restricted to such lands alone as are, actually under cultivation.

Where the defendants were raiyats in respect of lands in the vicinity of the land in dispute which they had taken with a view to gather and store thereon the crops raised on the adjacent lands actually cultivated by them:

Held, that the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act applied, and the defendants were raiyats also in respect of the disputed land. C. DINA NATH NAG v. SASHI MOHAN DEY, 22 C. L. J. 219

16

Sch. III, Art. 6—Decree for share of rent by one co-sharer without making other co-sharers parties—Execution—Limitation.

An application for execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent without making the other co-sharers parties, is governed by Article 6 of Schedule III of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. BYONKESH CHAKRABARTI v. HALADHAR MANDAL, 19 C. W. N. 1271

700

Bombay High Court Criminal Circulars, Circular No. 37 352Bombay High Court Rules, r. 519—Taxation of costs—Interpretation of rule.

Under the present wording of rule 515 of the rules of the Bombay High Court the words "as the Taxing Master shall in his discretion think proper to be settled by Counsel" only refer to special affidavits, and not to pleadings. B. BAPUJI SOBABJI PATEL v. BHUKUBHAI VIRCHAND, 17 Bom. L. R. 924

868

Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (Act IV of 1887), s. 3—Instrument of gaming—"Means of gaming," meaning of—Book recording bets, whether a means of gaming.

The word 'means' as used in section 3 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act, 1887, having regard to the inclusive character of the definition in which it has been used, includes a thing or article which has been specially contrived and used to promote and facilitate the wagering.

A green book used for making entries of the bets made by those engaged in the wagering which could not be conveniently conducted otherwise than with or by means of this green book, is a 'means' or 'instrument' of gaming within the definition in section 3 of the Act. B. MANILAL MANGALJI v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 1080; 16 Cr. L. J. 827

1003

Broker. See CONTRACT.

Buddhist Law—Inheritance—"Payin" and "lettetpwa" property, meaning of—Right of child claiming through both parents—"Auratha" son, definition of—Out-of-time grand-children, right of, to inherit—Verbal mortgage—Subsequent document—Oral evidence admissible to prove transaction.

"Payin" property means property already owned by a person when he or she marries, whether he or she actually obtained possession or not. Property inherited by a person during marriage is not "payin" but "lettetpwa."

A child who has a claim through both parents gets a double portion both of inherited and of other lettetpwa property of what a child, who claims through one only, gets.

Out-of-time grand-children, if they be the children of the "auratha" son, receive the same share as their youngest uncle or aunt.

The Auratha son is the son who in case his father dies or becomes incapacitated is competent to take his place in the family.

A married three wives in succession. His son by the 1st wife having predeceased him. His grandsons sued his daughters by the other wives for their share of the property left by A. The defendants contended (1) that all the lands were inherited by A during his 3rd wife's coverture; (2) that certain plots had been mortgaged by A and redeemed by the 1st defendant; (3) that the plaintiffs were not entitled to inherit as they had been guilty of unfilial conduct; (4) that, at any rate, they were liable for their share of A's funeral expenses and (5) that A had given certain plots of land to the 1st and 2nd defendants:

Held, (1) that the gift to the 1st and 2nd defendants, even if proved, was invalid as they were living with the father at the time;

(2) that the presumption was that the plaintiffs were entitled to inherit and the burden of proving unfilial conduct was on the defendants and that the mere fact that the plaintiffs took no part in maintaining A, though he was blind and lame for many years before his death, was not sufficient;

(3) that if the plaintiff's father had been alive he could have been entitled to inherit one-half of the property acquired during his mother's marriage, a quarter of the property inherited by A during either of the other two marriages and one-third of A's "payin" brought to the 1st marriage, and the plaintiffs were entitled to get their father's share between them;

(4) that the 1st defendant having re-deemed certain lands the plaintiffs must pay their share of the mortgage-money before getting their share of the inheritance;

(5) that, as two different plots of land were mortgaged and redeemed as one parcel, the plaintiffs being entitled to one third of one and one-fourth of the other and the areas and values of the two were also different, it was fair under the circumstances of the case to apportion the charge according to the value of the lands than according to the area.

Where a mortgage is effected verbally and possession is given, the transaction is complete and the fact that a document is subsequently executed does not bar oral evidence of the original transaction. U. B. NGA LU DAW v. MI MO YI, 4 U. B. R. 1915, 11 66

Buddhist Law—contd.

Share of children of first marriage—Keitima child adopted before second marriage, right of—Undutiful conduct—Burden of proof.

Under the Buddhist Law adoption, like marriage, is not a mere contract, nor is it a grant or other disposition of property, nor is an adoption required to be in writing and, therefore, the fact that a deed of adoption was drawn up, does not preclude other evidence of the adoption.

The object of the keitima adoption is generally to provide the adoptive parents with an heir. In the case of such an adoption there must be a distinct occasion on which it takes place, it must be public and there is very often, though not always, a ceremony.

According to the Buddhist Law of inheritance, the children of a first marriage are, on the death of their father, who has married again after the death of their mother, entitled to three-fourths of the property taken to the second marriage, and one-eighth of the lettetpwa of that marriage. The same rule applies to a keitima child adopted by a man and his first wife.

In the case of keitima child living apart from his adoptive parents, the real question for determination is whether the surrounding circumstances proved to exist establish an intentional severance of the family tie or not. The requirement of joint residence can be safely relaxed in the case of an adoptive child who is also a blood relation.

Where the keitima child was the niece of the adoptive father and a year after her marriage lived in a granary in his compound, except for one year when she lived in her father-in-law's house, and for certain months in every year during which she lived in a field but for the purpose of cultivating her adoptive father's field:

Held, that so far as a joint living was concerned, the requirements of the Dhammathats were sufficiently complied with and consequently the burden of proving that she was by undutiful conduct debarred from inheriting was on the adverse party. U. B. MI CHAN MYA v. MI NGWE YON, U. B. R. 1915, 11, 74

Partition during step-father's lifetime—Practice—Appeal—New defence in consistent with original, if allowed—Limitation.

A Court should not allow a new plea to be raised in appeal which is inconsistent with the original one in the lower Court.

It is for the Judge to decide questions of law arising in the course of trial and he should not accept a view suggested by Counsel unless satisfied as to its soundness, it being quite different from an admission of fact by Counsel or from his waiving or withdrawing any part of his client's claim under instructions.

Under Burmese Buddhist Law, partition can be claimed by a step-child during the step-father's lifetime.

When the parties are working lands in turns by mutual arrangement, there is no adverse possession. L. B. MA MIN KYIN v. MAUNG WA 875

Buddhist Law, Burmese—Joint property—Partition—Pre-emption—Right of pre-emption, whether exists after partition—Trees attached to land, effect on.

Per Curiam (Hartnoll, J. dissenting)—Under the Burmese Buddhist Law the co-heirs who take part in the partition of immoveable ancestral property have not a right of pre-emption as regards such property after the partition has been effected.

Per Sir Charles Fox, C. J., Ormond J. and Towney J.—The right of pre-emption amongst co-heirs must be recognised only to the extent laid down in section 97 of part 2 of Spark's Code which professes to be a Code of Burmese Law and of the Lex Loci, viz., if a person wishes to sell his share in an undivided ancestral estate he should first offer it to all the co-heirs. They may buy the share jointly or each his separate portion of the share, or one may buy it in trust for the whole according as the heirs may decide among themselves; the seller shall have no voice in the decision and shall not be at liberty to sell his share otherwise than they or a majority of them shall decide.

Per Hartnoll, J.—In the case of inherited land inclusive of trees permanently attached to the land, a joint inheritor of such property has a right of pre-emption in respect of such inherited property in the event of one of the joint inheritors desiring to sell his share of such property or such part of the inherited property as he has obtained possession of, in whole or in part, and whether it is joint, undivided or partitioned estate, but in the event of a sale having taken place such right must be asserted promptly and within a reasonable time or it is lost for ever. In asserting such right against a buyer the sum offered must be the sum which the land has cost him. L. B. MAUNG YE NAN O V. AUNG MYAT SAN, 8 BUR. L. T. 167

512

"Out of time grandchildren," rule as to, applicability of—Children and step-children—Procedure to be followed by Court when plaintiff has no cause of action—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r 10.

When there are no children surviving but only the grandchildren the latter succeed on the same footing as children and the rule as to "out of time" grandchildren comes in only when a distinction has to be made between different classes of heirs, e. g., children and grandchildren and has no application when all the nearest heirs stand in the same degree of relationship to the deceased.

Neither Order I, rule 10, nor any other provision of the Code of Civil Procedure authorises a Court, on finding that the plaintiff must fail, to import into the case as co-plaintiff a person who has a different cause of action inconsistent with that of the original plaintiff and who moreover has not paid Court-fees on the new claim.

In a non-administration suit by one member of the family against another in his own right, the Court should adjudicate his claim on its own merits. L. B. MAUNG SHWE PAW V. MA PAN ZI

332

Widow's power of disposal

Buddhist Law, Burmese—concl.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, a widow has an absolute power of disposing of the whole property subject to the right of others. L. B. MAUNG PO SAING V. MAUNG SAN MIN

948

Burden of Proof—Alienation by widow—
Daughter, power of, to contest

794

Common object of gang

345 denial of—Mortgage—Consideration, receipt of,

212

Escheat—Crown, suit by 590

ation—Promissory note—Consider-

739

One trial—Two separate charges—

651

Burmese Buddhist Law.—See BURMIST LAW.

Carrier—Railway Company—Negligence—Action for personal injuries—Condition relieving from liability—Special contract—Railway Act of Canada (Rev. Stat. 1906, c. 37), s. 340.

A carrier is liable for injury arising from negligence in the execution of his contract to carry unless he has effectively stipulated that he shall be free from such liability.

Under section 340 of the Canada Railway Act, no contract restricting liability for carriage is to be valid unless it is of a kind approved by the Railway Board.

If a passenger has entered a train on a mere invitation or permission from a Railway Company without more, and he receives injury in an accident caused by the negligence of its servants, the Company is liable for damages for breach of a general duty to exercise care. Such a breach can be regarded as one either of an implied contract, or of a duty imposed by the general law and in the latter case as in form a tort.

But in either view, this general duty may, subject to such statutory restrictions as may be, be superseded by a specific contract, which may either enlarge diminish, or exclude it. If the law authorises it, such a contract cannot be pronounced to be unreasonable by a Court of Justice. The specific contract, with its incidents, either expressed or attached by law, becomes in such a case the only measure of the duties between the parties, and a party cannot by any device of form get more than the contract allows him.

If the contract is one which deprives the passenger of the benefit, of a duty of care which he is prima facie entitled to expect that the Railway Company has accepted, the latter must discharge the burden of proving that the passenger assented to the special terms imposed. This he may be shown to have done either in person or through the agency of another. Such agency will be held to have been established when he is shown to have authorized antecedently or by way of ratification the making of the contract under circumstances in which he must be taken to have left everything to his agent. In such a case, it is sufficient to prove that he has been content to accept the risk of allowing terms to be made without taking the trouble to learn what was being agreed to.

Carrier—concl.

In such cases the Railway Company may infer his intention from his conduct. If he stands by under such circumstances that it will naturally conclude that he has left the negotiation to the person who is acting for him, and intends that the latter should arrange the terms on which he is to be conveyed, he will be precluded by so doing from afterwards alleging want of authority to make any such terms as the law allows.

Moreover, if the person acting on his behalf, has himself not taken the trouble to read the terms of the contract proposed by the Company in the ticket or pass offered, and yet knew that there was something written or printed on it which might contain conditions, it is not the Company that will suffer by the agent's want of care. The agent will, in the absence of something misleading done by the Company, be bound and his principal will be bound through him.

Under these principles, the only right to be carried will be one which arises under the terms of the contract itself, and these terms must be accepted in their entirety. The Company owes the passenger no duty which the contract is expressed on the face of it to exclude, and if he has approved that contract by travelling under it, he cannot afterwards reprobate it by claiming a right inconsistent with it.

Where, therefore, a passenger who is to be carried upon special conditions at a reduced fare, has allowed terms to be made for him by an agent, the presumption is that the passenger was content to accept the risk without enquiring what the terms agreed upon by his agent were. P. C. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. OF CANADA v. A. N. ROBINSON, 19 C. W. N. 905; 84 L. J. (P. C.) 194 684

Caste Disabilities Removal Act (XXI of 1850), object of—Mortgage by Hindu father—Suit by minor son for declaration that it shall not affect his rights—Son meanwhile becoming Muhammadan—Suit, if maintainable—Alienation for immoral purposes—Burden of proof

Caste Disabilities Removal Act of 1850 secures to individuals the same right in property after apostasy as they enjoyed before apostasy. Therefore, the right of a minor son to sue for a declaration that a certain mortgage deed executed by his father should not affect his rights as member of the joint Hindu family after the death of his father is not taken away by the fact of the son having embraced Islam.

Where it is shown that an alienor at the time of a mortgage executed by him was living a licentious life beyond his means, was indulging in drinking, prostitution and debauchery and was without any business or occupation on which the money might legitimately have been spent, it is unnecessary to prove that each item of the consideration money was spent on immoral purposes. P. KISHEN SINGH v. BHAGWAN DAS, 89 P. R. 1915 476

Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871), s. 10—Trespass—Watchman seizing cattle, legality of.

Under section 10 of the Cattle Trespass Act, a watchman watching crops on the land on behalf of the cultivator or occupier is entitled to seize cattle trespassing on the land under his charge, when he is given general instructions to seize them while so trespassing. M. In re SUBBARAYA PILLAI, 16 Cr. L. J. 772 372

Cause of action—Continuous account 626

—Declaratory Suit 297

—Mortgage suit—Mortgage not proved—Simple money decree, if allowed 705

Central Provinces Municipal Act (XVI of 1903), s. 71 62

Central Provinces Tenancy Act (X of 1859), s. 2 (5)—Village tank let for fishing and growing water-nuts, land let for agricultural purposes.

A village tank over which the landlord gives a right to fish and grow water-nuts is not "land let or occupied for agricultural purposes or for purposes subservient to agriculture" for purposes of Act X of 1859. N. HARI P. WANU, 11 N. L. R. 122 294

Central Provinces Tenancy Act (XI of 1898), ss. 69 (1) (c), 45 (5)—Transfer of proprietary rights—Sir land, acquisition of expropriary rights in—Tenant of sir land, liabilities of.

Where ex-proprietary occupancy rights accrue to a malguzar under sub-section 1 of section 69 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, the provisions of exception (c) of the section do not cease to have effect and an ordinary tenant is still liable to be evicted by the ex-proprietary occupancy tenant under the provisions of the Act. N. GOPIKISAN v. KULPAT, 11 N. L. R. 170 470

—s. 45 (5) 470

Charter Act, 24 & 25 Vic, C. 104, s. 15 502

Cheating. See PENAL CODE, s. 415.

Chittas—Evidence—Observations of High Court as to probative value of chittas in another case, how far to be followed by lower Courts—Chittas, when private and public documents.

A Subordinate Court ought not to rely upon the observations of a High Court as to the probative value of chittas made in another case, the evidence in which was different from that adduced in the case before it.

Where the chittas are prepared for a public purpose such as the distribution of revenue on the shares, or assessment and settlement of revenue on the share belonging to the Government, they are public documents, but where they are prepared with the object of ascertaining the lands belonging to the Government without prejudice to the rights of the owners of the bahali shares they cannot be called public documents even though they might have been availed of subsequently for assessment of Government revenue. C. NABENDRA KISHORE ROY v. RAHIMA BANU, 19 C. W. N. 1015 695

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908), ss. 87, 258, 264 (VIII)—Judicial Commissioner specially appointed to deal with revenue cases, if Revenue Officer—Decision of Judicial Commissioner—Res judicata—Civil Court, jurisdiction of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11.

The Judicial Commissioner specially appointed under section 264 (viii) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act to deal with the Revenue question decided by the inferior Revenue Officers in appeal is a Revenue Officer within the meaning of section 258.

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act—contd.

Therefore, a decision of the Judicial Commissioner in appeal from a decision of a Revenue Officer in a suit or proceeding under section 87 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act bars a subsequent suit for the same purpose in a Civil Court.

A party cannot by suit seek to vary or set aside an order of a Revenue Court made under section 87 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act but if he is in possession, he can defend his title in a suit for resumption against him. C. TEKAIT GANESH NARAIN v. PROTAP UDAI NATH, 19 C. W. N. 998 691

—ss. 258, 261 (VIII) 691

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1892), s. 13, Expl. II—Res judicata—

First suit as purchasers—Second suit as reversioners—Purchase of ancestral property by reversioners, effect of—Waiver—Acquiescence.

After a land was sold to the defendants, it was sold again to the plaintiffs-reversioners, and when the latter sued their vendor for possession of the land as purchasers, the former, having been added as parties, set up their prior purchase as a defence and the plaintiffs' claim was dismissed. Upon this, the plaintiffs sued as reversioners for a declaration on the ground that the land was ancestral and the sale, being in favour of defendants, was without consideration and necessity.

Held, that the plaintiffs' suit was not barred by the rule of res judicata.

A reversioner by purchasing an ancestral property does not admit the alienor's unrestricted powers, nor does he thereby renounce his position and rights as reversioner. P. KURA v. MADHO, 68 P. R. 1915; 151 P. W. R. 1915 159

—s. 335—Order passed without inquiry, if order within section—Suit for possession—Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 11.

Where a resistance is offered in an execution proceeding, an order passed without any inquiry at all is not an order under section 335 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, and a suit for the possession of the property brought one year after the order, is not barred by Article 11 of Schedule II to the Limitation Act, 1877. C. RAGUNATH JHA v. BIRJANDON SINGH 444

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2)—Order of abatement, if decree 4

—ss. 2 (2), 47, 148, O. XXXIV, r. 8 p. ov.—Order extending time for payment of money due under mortgage-decree, if appealable—Extension of time—Time limit under decree—Preliminary decree by Appellate Court—Determination of other questions—Suit, remitting of—"Court" in O. XXXIV, r. 8 proviso, meaning of.

An order extending time for payment of money due under a mortgage decree is neither "a decree" within the meaning of section 2 (2) nor a determination of any question coming within section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure and, therefore, no appeal lies against such an order.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Section 148 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not apply to the extension of time for doing acts allowed by decrees.

It is the Court of first instance, to which a suit is remitted after the preliminary decree has been passed by an Appellate Court, which has the exclusive jurisdiction to deal with an application for extension of time presented under Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso.

The word "Court" in Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso does not in all cases mean "the Court which passed the decree." M. DHARMARAJA IYER v. SRINIVASA MURALIAR, 2 L. W. 1074 29 M. L. J. 733, 18 M. L. T. 486 240

—s. 2 (11) 920

—s. 2 (13) 796

—ss. 4, 6, O. II, r. 2

—Provisions of Code, whether applicable to Village Munsifs—Suit for recovery of portion of price of article sold instituted in Village Munsif's Court—Subsequent suit for balance of amount due on account of various purchases, whether barred.

Order II, rule 2 of the Civil Procedure Code prohibits only the splitting of claims arising out of the same cause of action.

Where a customer makes distinct purchases on distinct dates, the merchant has got a distinct cause of action in respect of each purchase or set of purchases unless there is an agreement or settlement of accounts between the parties consolidating all these separate causes of action into one.

Where, therefore, in a suit for the balance of the amount due from the defendant on account of small purchases made by him on different occasions from the plaintiff's shop, it appeared that the plaintiff had previously sued for one portion of the claim in the Village Munsif's Court:

Held, that Order II, rule 2, did not apply and the subsequent suit was not barred.

The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, 1903 are inapplicable to Village Munsif's Courts. M. AGUSTUS BROTHERS v. FERNANDEZ, 2 L. W. 890; 29 M. L. J. 474 18 M. L. T. 377 (1915) M. W. N. 765 59

—s. 6 59

—s. 10, scope of—Later suit disposed of earlier—Parties in two suits claiming under different titles—Pleadings in later suit, if can be urged as bar to previous suit.

After the plaintiff had brought a suit against the defendant, both of them were made defendants in another suit which was decided while the plaintiff's suit against the defendant was still pending. In his defence in the first suit the defendant relied upon the plaintiff's pleadings as defendant in the second suit. The plaintiff contended that as the trial of the second suit was without jurisdiction by reason of section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code, his pleadings in that suit could not be relied upon by the defendant:

Held, that, as the later suit was not between the parties under whom the parties to the earlier suit claimed litigating under the same title, the plaintiff's contention was untenable. M. SADAGOPACHARIAR v. RAMA TIRUNALA CHARIAR 25

—s. 11 691

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

S. 11—Res judicata—

Partition—Partition decree not executed—Second suit for partition, whether maintainable—Decree for possession conditional on payment of money—Decree not executed—Second suit, whether maintainable.

The rights of a joint owner of land who obtains a decree for possession by partition of the joint tenancy, are not extinguished by his neglect to execute the decree within limitation. The relationship of the parties inter se continues to be that of joint owners and a second suit by him to effect partition of the joint property of which he is undoubtedly a joint owner, is not affected by the previous non-executed decree.

Where a decree for possession of property is conditional on payment of a sum of money, the decree-holder is not by reason of non-execution of such decree debarred from instituting a fresh suit for possession. P. GAMAN v. IMAM BAKSH, 77 P. R. 1915; 164 P. W. R. 1915

205

S. 11—Two suits with regard to same subject-matter tried together—Judgment in one following that in the other—Appeal against one, whether barred because no appeal against the other—Principal and agent—Silence or acquiescence of principal, whether amounts to ratification—Agent obtaining pecuniary advantage for himself, duty of—Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 85—Decree in favour of principal—Execution sale—Purchase by agent of immoveable property outside British India—Principal entitled to decree for mesne profits—Mandatory injunction directing reconveyance of property, whether allowed.

Where two suits with regard to the same subject-matter are tried together on the same evidence and disposed of by the same Judge and the judgment in one follows the judgment in the other though separate decrees are drawn up, the fact that no appeal has been filed against one of these decrees does not make it operate as res judicata and does not bar an appeal against the other decree.

In the case of an agent exceeding his authority, ratification may be implied from the mere silence or acquiescence of the principal.

An agent who purchases property under circumstances in which his own interests are adverse to those of his principal and thereby obtains a pecuniary advantage for himself, must hold the advantage so gained for the benefit of his principal under section 88 of the Indian Trusts Act.

Where an agent purchased some immoveable property outside British India at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree passed in favour of his principal and the principal sued him for an account of the profits of the property and for a reconveyance of the property to him:

Held, that the principal was entitled to a decree for an account of the profits of the property, but that a mandatory injunction directing the agent to execute the conveyance of the property itself could not be granted. M. RAMASAMY CHETTY v. KARUPPAN CHETTY, 29 M. L. J. 551

216

S. 11, Expl. II—Appeal,

*right of—Substantive law—Act, retrospective effect of—Res judicata—Grant of agra-haram—Payment of meras and russums, when can be enforced.*

A right to appeal to a superior Tribunal is a substantive right which belongs to a suitor and an Act which takes away a substantive right is not retrospective in effect except by express enactment or by necessary intendment.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Where, therefore, in a suit instituted before the passing of the new Civil Procedure Code, a decision on a previous suit of 1902 in which no second appeal lay, was pleaded as a bar:

Held, that Explanation II to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, did not have a retrospective effect and the earlier decision could not operate as a bar to the suit.

As between a zamindar and his tenants a fee payable for a particular purpose cannot be enforced when that purpose fails.

Where, therefore, it appears that a grant of an agra-haram was made conditional on the payment of certain meras and russums which, however, were to continue only so long as the purpose for which they were made continued:

Held, that the payment could not be enforced when that purpose failed. M. RAJAH OF KAHASTI v. SWARNAM KAMAKSHAMMA, 29 M. L. J. 535 for possession and mesne profits—Claim as to future mesne profits not adjudicated upon—Subsequent suit for such profits, whether barred.

214

S. 11, Expl. V—Suit

In a previous suit for possession the plaintiff claimed mesne profits which had already accrued as well as future mesne profits. He was awarded mesne profits already accrued, and the decree was silent as to future profits. On his bringing a fresh suit for future mesne profits the plea of res judicata was raised:

Held, that the mere omission of the Court to adjudicate upon the claim for future profits did not operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for such profits. U. B. M. SAW U v. NGU MEIK, U. B. R. (1915) 11, 81

103

S. 20 (c)—Suit on promissory-note executed outside jurisdiction of Court—

Payment to be made within jurisdiction of that Court—Forum.

When a pro-note in lieu of certain profits was executed outside the jurisdiction of a Court and the executant also resided out of the jurisdiction of that Court, but the pro-note was delivered to the payee within the jurisdiction of the Court and it was intended that the money should be paid within that jurisdiction:

Held, that the Court had jurisdiction to entertain a suit on the pro-note under section 20, clause (c), of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908. P. MUHAMMAD ISHAQ KHAN v. MUHAMMAD ISLAM ULLAH KHAN, 2 P. R. 1916

698

S. 35. See Costs.S. 35—Costs, general rule

as to—Small Cause Court, not following facts on record—High Court, whether can interfere—Jurisdiction—Revision—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25—Promissory note—'On demand,' meaning of—Creditor, liability of, for bringing action without demand—Debtor, liability of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 49.

A High Court has power to interfere under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, where a Small Cause Court departs from the general rule as to costs that they shall follow the event for reasons which find no adequate support in the facts on record.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

The words 'on demand' used in a promissory note payable on demand do not constitute a condition precedent, but merely import that the debt is due and payable immediately.

A creditor, however, who commences an action without having first demanded payment, may properly be saddled with the costs of the trial, if the debtor was all along willing to pay.

Under section 49 of the Contract Act, it is generally for the debtor to seek out the creditor for the discharge of his debts. N. MEGHAJ V. JOHNSON, 11 N. L. R. 189

880

s. 35, O. XXIII, r.

1 (3)—Discretion of Court as to costs, extent of—Power of Appellate Court to interfere—Order as to costs incorporated in decree, whether appealable—Pleader's fees—Madras Civil Rules of Practice, rr. 278, 279, 284.

In a mortgage suit plaintiff withdrew his claim against some of the defendants, while it was decreed against the others. The trial Judge ordered those defendants against whom the claim had been withdrawn to bear their own costs. On appeal the District Judge ordered the plaintiff to pay the costs. In second appeal it was contended that no appeal lay against the order of the trial Judge as it was not a decree.

Held, that as a decree was passed in the case, the defendants were entitled to appeal.

Discretion as to award of costs vested in a Court under section 35 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not absolute, and can be interfered with by an Appellate Court if exercised wrongly and arbitrarily.

Clauses (a) and (b) of rule 279 of the Civil Rules of Practice, Madras, apply equally to the word "withdrawn" as to the word "compromised" and the rule, therefore, has no application to the question of Vakil's fees in cases where the plaintiff withdraws his suit.

Order XXIII, rule 1, of the Code of Civil Procedure fixes no time within which a plaintiff should withdraw his suit; he may do so at any time before judgment is pronounced. But where he withdraws the suit against some of the defendants after both parties have adduced evidence on a preliminary issue, he does so only "after contest" within the meaning of rule 278 (a) of the Civil Rules of Practice. Even if the case is not covered by rule 278 (a), the Court has under Order XXIII, rule 1 (3), of the Code of Civil Procedure power to award against the plaintiff such costs as it thinks fit.

Where there are several defendants raising various defences a Court has power to award different sets of costs. M. INDOOR SUBBARAMI REDDI V. NELATUR SUNDARAJA AYYANGAR, 18 M. L. T. 460; (1915) M. W. N. 1021

312

s. 47

240

s. 47, O. XXI, r. 58

—Execution of decree against legal representative of deceased judgment-debtor—Property attached—Property, if assets of deceased, decision as to—Appeal, maintainability of.

An appeal lies from a decision in execution of a decree against the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor as to whether the property attached in execution forms part of the assets of the deceased, as the proceedings come under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and not under Order XXI, rule 58 of the Code. C. FAKIR CHANDRA GAIN V. GIRIBALA DASSYA, 22 C. L. J. 304

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

321

s. 47, O. XXI, r. 58

—Judgment-debtor, death of—Legal representative—Title of third person set up—Order—Appeal

Where on the death of a judgment-debtor, his legal representative is brought on the record, and such legal representative sets up in execution proceedings title on behalf of a person not a party to the suit, the order on such a petition is not one coming within section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure but is within the purview of Order XXI, rule 58, and is not appealable. M. PEETIKAVILAKATH MAHAMMAD HAJI V. ALAM IBRAHIM HAJI

393

s. 47, O. XXI, r.

101—Petition by judgment-debtor objecting to sale in execution—Objections by third party as well—Order, whether appealable.

An order passed on an application by a judgment-debtor objecting to the sale of certain immovable property in execution of a decree is, as between the parties to the suit, an order passed under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and is appealable even though it also disposes of objections made by third parties to the delivery of possession. M. MURUGESA MUDALI V. SAMA GOVINDAN

102

s. 65, O. XXI, rr.

92, 94—Auction sale—Passing of title to purchaser—Confirmation of sale—Sale certificate—Presumption.

An auction sale becomes absolute (i. e., title passes) only on its confirmation by the Court. But in the absence of such a certificate the Court's confirmation may sometimes be inferred from the nature of the action taken by it on receipt of report of sale. P. SAWAN MAL V. SAHIB DIAL, 81 P. R. 1915; 178 P. W. R. 1915

254

s. 66—Sale in execution of decree—Suit by heirs of certified purchaser—Defendant, if can set up title.

Section 66 of the Civil Procedure Code is confined to suits brought against certified purchasers.

Where the plaintiffs sued to eject the defendant from certain plots of land on the ground that the lands were bought by the plaintiffs' brother at an auction sale held in execution of a decree against the original owner:

Held, that it was open to the defendant to set up her own title and to show that the certified purchaser was a mere benamidar for her. N. HIRALAL V. GOPIKA, 11 N. L. R. 180

58

s. 73 (1), (c)—Surplus sale-proceeds, distribution of amongst attaching creditors—Money standing to credit of one suit, application for transfer to another suit, if to be made in former—Practice—Rateable distribution, application for, on Original Side—Certificates of Accountant-General and Registrar, necessity of.

Where money in Court stands to the credit of one suit and the plaintiff in another suit has, by reason of being an attaching creditor or mortgagee or otherwise, an interest in such money and desires the fund to be transferred to the credit of his suit in order to be dealt with therein, he could in all cases make the application in the suit to whose credit the money stands for the transfer.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

In an application on the Original Side of the High Court for the transfer and rateable distribution of funds to which the provisions of section 73 (1), clause (c), of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908) may possibly apply, the applicant should be required to produce, in addition to the certificate of the Accountant-General, a certificate of the Registrar. C. KUMAR KRISHN v. AMULYA CHARAN, 19 C. W. N. 345 616

s. 92—Court of original jurisdiction—Subordinate Judge empowered to try suits under s. 92—Transfer of case from District Court—Subsequent notification limiting jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge to specified area, effect of.

Where a suit instituted under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure in a District Court was transferred by the latter to the Court of a Subordinate Judge empowered by the Local Government to try suits under that section but where by a subsequent notification the Local Government confined the original jurisdiction of that Subordinate Judge to a specified local area:

Held, that the Subordinate Judge, having derived his power to try such a suit by an order of transfer, made by the District Judge and under the prior Notification of the Local Government, did not cease to be "a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction" within the meaning of section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure by the latter notification, and his power to try the suit was not taken away by it. M. GANAPATHI ASARI v. SUNDARAM CHETTI 397

s. 92—Sanction given to more than two persons—Suit by only two, whether competent.

Where more than two persons interested in a trust have obtained the necessary sanction under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, any two of them cannot sue without the others. M. MADHALA BHAGAVANNARAYANA v. VADAPALLI PERUMALLACHARYULU, 29 M. L. J. 231 236

s. 98 236
s. 104 (1) (f), (2)— 965

Order filing private award in part—Second appeal, whether competent—Error of law, whether ground for revision.

On an application for filing an award made without the intervention of the Court, it was decided that part of the award, being on a matter which could not be the subject-matter of arbitration, was void; but that the valid portion of the award being separable from the invalid one, the award could be filed so far as it was free from the objection of invalidity. On appeal the application for filing the award was rejected on the ground that a private award must be either affirmed in its entirety or rejected in toto.

Held, (1) that no second appeal lay in the case; (2) that the order was not open to revision as an error of law is not a material irregularity and did not constitute a ground for revision. P. AHMAD DIN ANIS-UL-RAHMAN v. ATLAS TRADING CO., 66 P. R. 1915; 146 P. W. R. 1915 80

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

s. 105 (1), O. XLIII, r. 1 (d)—Decree ex parte, order refusing to set aside, whether appealable—Order setting aside decree ex parte, appeal against, maintainability of—Error made in setting aside such decree, effect of.

While an appeal lies under Order XLIII, rule 1 (d), of the Civil Procedure Code against an order refusing to set aside a decree passed ex parte, no appeal lies against an order setting aside such a decree. Under section 105(1) of the Code, any error, etc., made by a Court in setting aside an ex parte decree is not an error, etc., "affecting the decision of the case" and, therefore, cannot be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal. P. FAZAL v. HASHMATI 914

s. 107, cl. (2), O. I, r. 10—Duty of Appellate Court to implead all necessary parties—Necessary party omitted—Decree for sale, whether operative.

Before deciding an appeal, it is the duty of the Appellate Court to bring on the record all the necessary parties to the appeal.

Where, therefore, a decree for sale was passed in a suit in which a necessary party under Order XXXIV, rule 1, of the Civil Procedure Code was knowingly omitted from the array of parties in appeal:

Held, that the decree could not be allowed to stand. M. VELAMMAL v. LAKSHMI AMMAL 814

ss. 109, 110—Value of subject-matter in Court of first instance less than Rs. 10,000—Value of subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council more than Rs. 10,000—Certificate, if can be granted—Involve directly or indirectly, some claim or question to, or respecting property of like amount or value, meaning of.

To entitle a person to a certificate for appealing to His Majesty in Council, it is not enough that the decree or final order in the case involves, directly or indirectly some claim or question to or respecting property worth Rs. 10,000 or upwards; the value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance must also be Rs. 10,000 or upwards.

Where, therefore, the value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance was less than Rs. 10,000 but the value of the subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council exceeded that amount owing to the claim for mesne profits for the period between the institution of the suit and the petition for the certificate:

Held, that the case did not satisfy the provisions of sections 109 and 110, Civil Procedure Code, and that the petitioner was not entitled to a certificate. M. SUBRAMANIAM AIYAR v. SELLAMMAL, 2 L. W. 1057; 18 M. L. T. 450; (1915) M. W. N. 941 296

s. 109 (c) 46
s. 110 46, 272
s. 115 458, 579, 700, 812

s. 115—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 158—Award—Objections filed in time—Refusal by Court to hear as being filed out of time—Revision, competency of—Jurisdiction.

Where a District Munsif declined to hear certain objections to an award filed by the petitioner on the ground that they had been filed out of time, while as a matter of fact they had been filed in time

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, that the decision amounted to a declaration of a jurisdiction by the lower Court and that the same could be revised under section 115, Civil Procedure Code. M. RATNAM v. KOLANDAI RAMASAMY CHETTY, 2 L. W. 1115

536

s. 115—Mistake of law

as to jurisdiction—Jurisdiction dependent upon finding of fact—Interference in revision, when allowed—Misconstruction of documentary evidence, whether good ground for interference.

If an Appellate Court by an error of law finds jurisdiction in the Civil Courts, or denies jurisdiction to the Civil Courts, a High Court has power to interfere in revision under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.

But where the jurisdiction depends on a finding of fact, unless that finding of fact rests on no evidence whatever, revision under section 115 is not legally permissible.

A High Court cannot interfere in revision where the lower Appellate Court has misconstrued a portion of the documentary evidence or ignored important evidence in the case. M. KARRI NARASAYYA v. THAVALA NAGESWARA RAO

209

s. 115—Withdrawal of

suit with permission to re-file it—Omission to consider question of costs—Failure to exercise jurisdiction vested in Court—Revision.

A suit was withdrawn with permission to re-file it. The question of the terms on which the suit should be allowed to be withdrawn, especially as to costs, was not considered by the Court granting the permission.

Held, that the omission to consider the question of costs, which resulted in substantial injustice being caused to the defendant amounted to a failure to exercise the jurisdiction vested in the Court. U. P. B. R. HORI v. THAKURJI MAHARAJ, 13 A. L. J. 10; Rev.

617

s. 141

502

s. 148

240

s. 150—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), ss. 56, 76, 98—Probate granted—Inventory, furnishing of—Property transferred by bifurcation of District to another District—Jurisdiction—Court granting Probate, if can demand inventory.

Apart from section 150 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it is the Court which has jurisdiction to grant the Probate under section 56 of the Probate and Administration Act that has also jurisdiction to demand an inventory to be furnished to it under section 98 of the Probate and Administration Act. That jurisdiction cannot be said to have been taken away because by bifurcation of the district, the properties dealt with by the Probate, lie within the jurisdiction of another district. M. SUBRAMANIAN CHETTY v. RAMASWAMI CHETTY

499

s. 151, O. XLI,

r. 23—Appeal—New party, addition of—Remand to lower Court—Procedure.

Where an Appellate Court adds a new party, it has inherent power to reverse the decrees of the Court of first instance and remand the case for re-trial. This power has not been taken away by Order XLI, rule 23, Civil Procedure Code. M. ANTONI JUAN PRAHU v. RAMAKRISHNAYYA, 2 L. W. 1034

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

263

s. 153, O. VI, r. 17

—Amendment of plaint—Discretion of Court to permit—New cause of action arising during pendency of suit—Amendment, if permitted.

The plaintiffs sued to recover a share of the estate of A alleging that they were his heirs, but it was found that they were excluded from the inheritance by a nearer cousin who was alive at the time of A's death.

During the pendency of the suit, B one of the defendants, a daughter of A, died and the plaintiffs applied for amendment of the plaint so as to include a claim to a share as heirs of B. The amendment was opposed on the ground of its being based on a new cause of action based on events which occurred subsequently to the suit.

Held, that although the amendment under which the plaintiffs claimed as heirs of B referred to an event which had occurred after the suit had been filed there was nothing in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, forbidding such an amendment.

There is no absolute rule of law on the subject of amendments. The matter is merely one for the judicial discretion of the Court, which will allow or disallow amendments as the circumstances of the case dictate, only remembering that it should not cause prejudice to the other side and it should, if possible, avoid multiplicity of suits. S. NUN KHATUN v. SUMAR SAWAYO, 9 S. L. R. 61

7

s. 157, O. XLI, r. 1

—"Rules made," meaning of—Interpretation of Statute—Rule abridging substantive right, if ultra vires—Civil Rules of Practice, rule 49, effect of—Printed copy of judgment not filed with memorandum of appeal—Appeal, whether time-barred.

Where a rule abridges a substantive right granted by a Statute, such a rule is ultra vires, unless the Statute itself empowers the rule-making authority to alter the provisions in the Statute.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—The expression "rules made" in section 157 of the Civil Procedure Code must mean rules properly and validly made, in other words, made with jurisdiction by the proper authority.

Rules which though purporting to be made under the old Code were beyond the powers given by the Code, do not become valid by reason of the fact that if they had been made under the new Code they would be valid.

Rule 49 of the Civil Rules of Practice seems to enact by implication that the production of a printed copy along with the memorandum of appeal is compulsory where the length of the judgment or order exceeds 700 words, and is ultra vires.

Per Napier, J.—(1) Rule 49 of the Civil Rules of Practice does not have the effect of making the presentation of a printed copy of a judgment compulsory when it is over 700 words.

(2) Filing a certified copy of a judgment with the memorandum of appeal, is a sufficient compliance with Order XLI, rule 1 of the Civil Procedure Code and is not forbidden by the Civil Rules of Practice.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Where, therefore, an appeal is presented within the period of limitation and a certified copy of the judgment appealed against is filed along with the memorandum of appeal but a printed copy of the judgment is filed out of time, the appeal is not time-barred.

M. RAMAKRISHNA PILLAI v. MUTHUPERUMAL PILLAI.
29 M. L. J. 663

O. 1, r. 9 456

O. 1, r. 10 332, 814

O. 1, r. 10—Third party, whether can be impleaded at final stage.

A person who has not been impleaded either as a plaintiff or a defendant in the Courts below cannot claim to be made a party at the final stage of the case. P. SUNDAR SINGH v. Musammat GURDEVI.
163 P. W. R. 1915

O. 2, r. 2 59

O. 2, r. 2—Suit dismissed for defect in form—Subsequent suit, whether barred—Joint ownership—Right to demand partition incidental.

Where the dismissal of a suit takes place for defect in the form of the suit, Order II, rule 2 of the Civil Procedure Code does not preclude a plaintiff, whose suit has been thus dismissed, from bringing a second suit.

Order II, rule 2, requires a plaintiff to include in a suit the whole of the claim which he is entitled to make in respect of the particular cause of action which forms the basis of the suit and does not compel him to include claims arising out of different causes of action.

The right to demand partition is one of the incidents of joint ownership and as long as the joint ownership subsists, any of the joint owners may demand partition.

Where, therefore, a plaintiff's suit for his share of two mortgage-debts realised by the defendants from the mortgagors was dismissed on the ground that the suit for partial partition did not lie, and he then brought a suit for partition of all joint properties.

Held, that, the causes of action in the two suits being different, the second suit was not barred by reason of Order II, rule 2. P. GULAB SHAH v. HAYKEI SHAH, 87 P. R. 1915; 180 P. W. R. 1915

O. 3, r. 1 859

O. 5, r. 19—Ejectment

—Insufficient notice—Ex parte decree—Examination of process-server, necessity of—Material irregularity—Revision

Before an ex parte decree can be passed, the process-server should be examined on oath as laid down under Order V, rule 19 of the Civil Procedure Code.

If an order of ejectment has been made in spite of insufficient service of notice under section 59 of the Agra Tenancy Act, it is such a material irregularity as to justify interference in revision by the Board. U. P. B. R. KANHAIYA v. DURGA PRASAD 479

O. 6—Pleading—Plaintiff bound to state nature of deeds supporting his title—Parties to be restricted to their pleadings—Inconsistent pleadings.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

It is absolutely essential that a plaintiff, not to be embarrassing to the defendants, should state those facts which will put the defendant on his guard and tell him what he will have to meet when the case comes on for trial. It is not necessary to set out the evidence whereby the plaintiff proposes to prove the facts which give him the title.

A plaintiff is bound to state the nature of the deeds on which he relies in deducing his title from the person under whom he claims and show the devolution of the estate to himself.

Parties should be held strictly to their pleadings and should not be allowed to prove at the trial any fact which is not stated in their pleadings.

A plaintiff may in certain circumstances rely upon several different rights alternatively though they may be inconsistent. But he cannot be permitted to allege two absolutely inconsistent statements of facts each of which is destructive of the other. C. MATI LAL PODDAR v. JEDHISTER DAS, 22 C. L. J. 254

O. 6, r. 14, O. 3,

r. 1—Plaint—Signature of authorised agent—Plaint, if valid—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 193 (c).

A plaint signed by the authorised agent of the plaintiff is valid in law unless it is shown that the suit has not been instituted with the approval of the plaintiff. U. P. B. R. AMIR-UN-NISSA v. RAM CHARAN DAS 859

O. 6, r. 17 1, 7

O. 7, r. 11 (c) 807

O. 17, r. 2—Failure of one party to appear at an adjourned hearing—Judicial discretion—Dismissal for default.

Order XVII, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, throws upon the Court the responsibility of exercising a judicial discretion before disposing of a case under Order IX, when at an adjourned hearing the parties or any of them fail to appear.

Where, therefore, a plaintiff has closed his case and there is evidence which if un rebutted would prove his case, it is not a judicial exercise of discretion to dismiss the suit for default, and the Court should record the defence evidence even though the plaintiff is absent and dispose of the case on its merits. M. SUBRAMANIA OTHUVAR v. MUNSAMIYA PILLAI 869

O. 17, r. 3—Decision passed 'forthwith,' whether one on merit.

A decision passed 'forthwith' under Order XVII, rule 3, Civil Procedure Code, is a decision passed on the merits on the materials then before the Court. M. In re CHIDIPATU SOMAYYA, 2 L. W. 1067

O. 21, r. 2—Part payment of decree debt by judgment-debtor—Payment not certified to Court within three years—Application for execution, whether barred—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 20.

There is no period of limitation within which a decree-holder is bound to certify part payments to Court. Once the certificate is made, the Court is bound to recognize the payments previously made and section 20 of the Limitation Act comes in to save limitation.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Where, therefore, in a petition for execution the decree-holder relied upon a part payment made by the judgment-debtor within three years of the last application for execution but certified to Court after three years:

Held, that the payment was effectual within the meaning of section 20 of the Limitation Act and the application was not barred. M. RAJAM AIYAR v. ANANTHABATNAM AIYAR, 29 M. L. J. 669; 18 M. L. J. 475

O. 21, rr. 10, 64—

Execution—Order for attachment—Application for execution not disposed of—Subsequent application for sale of property, whether barred.

Where an order for attachment was made on an execution application but the application was not disposed of in any way and another application was made for the sale of the property:

Held, (1) that there could be no bar of limitation in the case as the decree-holder was only asking that effect be given to the application which was already pending before the Court;

(2) that the decree-holder had not disabled himself by laches from seeking to enforce his remedies under the pending application. M. BOMMARAJU VENKATA PERUMAL v. SUBRAMANYA NAYANI VARU

O. 21, r. 16—Execution—

Injunction, decree for, in respect of easement—Transfer of dominant tenement—No application by transferee—Decree-holder, right of, to execute decree—Executing Court, competency of, to consider incapacity of decree-holder to enjoy easement owing to transfer of dominant tenement.

An injunction granted by a decree in respect of an easement does not cease to be executable by the decree-holder merely because, subsequent to the decree, he has transferred the dominant tenement to a third party. A decree-holder is prima facie entitled to execute the decree and it is no answer to his application for execution that he has transferred the decree to a third party, so long as the transferee has neither appeared nor applied for permission to execute the decree.

It is not competent to the executing Court to take into consideration the fact that by a transfer of the dominant tenement the decree-holder is not entitled to enjoy the easement right granted by a decree. M. SILU PEDA YELLIGADU v. SURYA RAO BAHADUR ZAMINDAR GARU, 29 M. L. J. 633; 2 L. W. 11 22; 18 M. L. J. 494

O. 21, rr. 23, 57

Execution—Notice, issue of—Attachment—Default on part of decree-holder—Dismissal of application—Order for execution, whether res judicata.

The dismissal of an execution application under Order XXI, rule 57, Civil Procedure Code, has the effect of vacating a prior order passed under Order XXI, rule 23, ordering execution to proceed. M. PERIAKARUPPAN CHETTIAR v. MANICKA VACHAGA DESIKA, 2 L. W. 1055

O. 21, r. 57O. 21, r. 58*O. 21, r. 63—Decree

below Rs. 5,000—Suit valued above Rs. 25,000—Jurisdiction.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

The plaintiff brought a suit for a declaration that the property in suit, which she claimed under a sale-deed, was not liable to attachment and sale in satisfaction of the decree held by defendant No. 1 against defendant No. 2. The decree was for Rs. 2,000. The suit was valued at Rs. 25,000. The suit was decreed. The defendant preferred an appeal to the High Court:

Held, that the proper valuation of the suit was Rs. 2,000 and, therefore, the appeal lay to the District Judge, and not to the High Court. A. KHETRA PAL v. MUMTAZ BEGAM, 13 A. L. J. 1104 to set aside attachment of immovable property, valuation of—Jurisdiction—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 4.

O. 21, r. 63—Suit

In a suit instituted under Order XXI, rule 63 of the Code of Civil Procedure (both against the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder) to cancel the attachment and also to declare that the judgment-debtor has no interest in the property attached, the market value of the land and not the amount due under the decree in execution of which the land was attached, determines the Court which should entertain the suit. M. NARAYAN SINGH v. AIYASAMI REDDI, 29 M. L. J. 725

O. 21, r. 64O. 21, r. 89*O. 21, r. 89—

Deposit by purchaser—Sale not confirmed—Person applying to set aside sale, if can take advantage of deposits.

Amounts paid by purchasers in Court auction whose purchases have not been confirmed and which amounts, therefore, cannot be withdrawn by the decree-holder at his pleasure, cannot be taken advantage of by any person who applies under Order XXI, rule 89, of the Code of Civil Procedure. M. MUHIUDDIN ROWTHER v. RANGACHARIAR

O. 21, r. 90—Sale

under rent-decree—Non-transferable occupancy holding, mortgagee of, right of, to set aside sale—"Whose interests are affected by the sale," meaning of.

A mortgagee of an entire non-transferable occupancy holding, who has purchased the holding in execution of his mortgage-decree, is a person "whose interests are affected by the sale" of the holding in execution of a rent-decree, within the meaning of Order XXI, rule 90 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and as such has a locus standi to apply under that rule to set aside the sale.

The words of rule 90 "whose interests are affected by the sale" are very wide. C. SAILABALA DEBI v. NRITYA GOPAL SEN PODDAR

O. 21, r. 94O. 21, rr. 98, 99—

Court, when can direct possession.

Order XXI, rule 98, of the Civil Procedure Code gives jurisdiction to the Court to direct possession only if it is satisfied that the obstruction was by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at his instigation. M. SECRETARY OF STATE v. CHERUKARA NARAYANANUNNI PISHARODI

O. 21, r. 99O. 21, r. 101*O. 22, rr. 3, 9

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.O. 22, r. 9, cl. (2).

applicability of—Abatement of suit owing to cause of action not surviving—Plaintiff's legal representative, whether can apply to set aside abatement—Order of abatement a decree—Malicious prosecution of manager of undivided Hindu family—Cause of action, whether survives to remaining co-parceners.

Order XXII, rule 9, clause (2) applies only to cases where an abatement takes place in consequence of an application not having been made "within the time limited by law" to bring in the legal representatives.

Where, therefore, a Court treats a suit as having abated owing to the cause of action not surviving, there is no right in the plaintiff's legal representative to apply under rule 9, clause (2), to set aside that abatement.

An order of a Court declaring that a suit has abated owing to the cause of action not surviving is a decree as it determines that the right of the plaintiff ceased to exist on his death.

An appeal against an order passed on one date cannot be treated as one against a decree passed on a different and prior date.

The cause of action for a suit for damages caused by the malicious prosecution of the manager of a joint undivided Hindu family does not, on his death survive to the remaining co-parceners even as regards that portion of the claim which related to the loss incurred by the estate, because the surviving members of an undivided family are not representatives of the deceased member. M. SUBRAMANIA IYER v. VENKATARAMIAH, 4

O. 22, r. 9 (2) —

Application to set aside abatement of appeal—Sufficient cause—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 171

Where one of the necessary parties to an appeal was murdered on the 26th January 1914 and applications to substitute names were not made until the 15th April 1915, the excuse offered in the application being ignorance of the fact of the murder and it being further alleged on the hearing that both the plaintiffs-appellants were absent on pilgrimage at the time:

Held, (1) that the appeal having abated six months after the date of the murder, the application ought to have been made within 60 days after abatement;

(2) that the appellants had failed to show sufficient cause for delay in applying, seeing that they lived within 15 kos of the deceased's village, and that the excuse about absence on pilgrimage was not mentioned either in the applications or the affidavits. P. BHANI RAM v. NABAIN SINGH 697

O. 23, rr. 1, 2 234O. 23, r. 3—Decree passed in accordance with agreement of parties not appealed against—Decree, if binding in subsequent suit.

In a suit brought to establish the plaintiff's title to the land which he had got by virtue of a decree passed in a prior suit for specific performance of a contract to sell, the defendants alleged that they were not bound by that decree on the ground that it was a decree upon a compromise to which they were not parties. It appeared that what had happened was that the 1st defendant had made a statement on oath that he and other defendants had agreed to execute a sale-deed in favour of the plaintiff who also had made a statement on oath confirming this, and the Court had, thereupon, directed a decree to be made in accordance with the agreement of the parties:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, that the order was apparently passed under Order XXIII, rule 3 of the Civil Procedure Code and no appeal having been preferred against it the decree passed therein became final and binding on the defendants. M. KANNAY V. RAMANNA 21

O. 23, r. 3—Petition filed in mutation case as to adjustment of dispute—Registration, if necessary—Evidence—Petition, admissibility of—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17.

A petition filed in a mutation case in which the parties merely request the Revenue Court to effect mutation of names in accordance with an agreement come to between the parties out of Court, is not compulsorily registrable and is admissible in evidence in a subsequent civil suit to prove the adjustment of a dispute between the parties out of a Court. A. SITAL PRASAD v. Lal Bahadur, 13 A. L. J. 1122 902

O. 24, r. 8 200O. 29, rr. 1, 2—Com- panies, suit against—Proper framing of suit—Amendment of plaint—Service of notice after amendment.

In a suit against the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company for the recovery of damages on account of short delivery of goods committed to their care for transmission by them as public carriers, the plaintiff described the defendants in the plaint as the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company by their joint agent Mr. A. E. Rogers. When the case came on for trial, it was represented to the Court on behalf of Mr. Rogers that he had retired from the service of the Companies mentioned and had in fact left the country. The plaintiff thereupon applied to the Court for leave to omit the name of Mr. Rogers from the plaint. This application was granted and the suit was decreed ex parte as if it had been instituted properly against the two Companies:

Held, (1) that the plaint as originally framed was in contravention of rule 1 of Order XXIX, as the suit should have been framed against the two Companies, described by their proper names;

(2) that, as no question of limitation arose, the amendment of the plaint might stand, but the plaintiffs were bound to serve notices of the suit in the manner provided in rule 2 of Order XXIX after the amendment had been made and the suit properly constituted. C. INDIAN GENERAL S. N. & R. Co. v. LAL MOHAN SAHA, 22 C. L. J. 241 35

O. 29, r. 2 35O. 32, r. 3—Appoint- ment of guardian ad litem—Omission to make formal order, effect of—Manager of joint family, death of—Liability of sons for debts of the firm—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 247.

Where the plaintiffs duly made an application for the appointment of a guardian ad litem of the minor defendants and the Court issued notices as required by Order XXXII, rule 3, sub-rule 4, and the guardian took all proper steps to defend the case:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, that the mere omission to pass a formal order to appoint him as guardian ad litem was a mere irregularity which could be condoned and did not amount to a defect vitiating all proceedings.

Where the father of the minor defendants was a partner in a firm and as Manager of a joint Hindu family consisting of himself and his sons represented the whole family in the partnership:

Held, (1) that his death did not bring about a dissolution of the partnership and the family, which may be regarded as a persona, remained partners both before and after his death;

(2) that the liability of the minors for the debts of the firm was limited only to their share in the firm. P. NARAIN DAS v. RALLI BROTHERS, 61 P. R 1915; 136 P. W. R. 1915

45

————— O. 34, r. 2 320

————— O. 34, rr. 3, 8—Extension of time fixed for payment of mortgage-money, grant of—Mortgagor, if entitled to redeem as of right after time fixed—Order made without jurisdiction—Revision

In cases where the mortgagee sues for foreclosure, extension of time for payment is not given as a matter of course and the mortgagor is not entitled to redeem as of right after the time fixed for payment although no order for foreclosure absolute has been passed.

In suits by the mortgagor to redeem, the time for payment is not extended except in cases of accident or mistake.

Where a Court extends the time when it has no power to do so, a High Court has power to interfere with the order in revision as one passed without jurisdiction, but will not do so if it appears that the order was made in the interests of justice. M. MURUGESA MUDALI v. RAMASAWMI CHETTY, 18 M. L. T. 495

200

————— O. 34, r. 8 240

————— O. 37—Order to furnish security—Letters Patent, cl. 15—Appeal.

No appeal lies against the order of a single Judge on the original side of the High Court directing the defendant in a suit under Order XXXVII of the Civil Procedure Code to furnish security before granting him leave to defend the suit. C. SUKHLAL CHUNDERMULL v. EASTERN BANK, LTD., 22 C. L. J. 41; 42 C. 735

238

————— O. 40, r. 1—Receiver appointment of, to receive rents and profits—Simple money decree, execution of—Property not attachable—Execution, how effected.

Under Order XL, rule 1, of the Civil Procedure Code, a Receiver can be appointed to receive the rents and profits of an estate which cannot itself be attached and consequently a simple decree for money may be executed by appointing a Receiver.

Where the interests of both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor can be safeguarded and where there is no other way than the appointment of a Receiver in which the decree-holder can hope to recover any appreciable part of his claim, the appointment of a Receiver is neither unjust nor inconvenient. N. LAHANU BAI v. HARAKCHAND, 11 N. L. R. 113

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

285

————— O. 40, r. 5—Receiver—Appointment of next friend of minor as Receiver of his estate, whether legal—Power to appoint Receiver, if includes also power to remove him—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 16—Burden of proof.

It is not illegal to appoint the next friend of a minor also as a Receiver to manage his estate on his behalf.

A power to appoint a Receiver does not of itself include a power to remove the person so appointed and section 16 of the General Clauses Act has no application to appointment of Receivers made by a Court.

Where it is sought to remove a Receiver already appointed the burden is upon the person applying for the removal to prove the circumstances which would justify it. M. RUKMANI AMMAL v. ADVOCATE-GENERAL OF MADRAS

908

————— O. 41, r. 4—Appeals separate, by two sets of defendants—Appeal by one set, dismissal of—Appeal, hearing of, by other set—Discretion of Court to dismiss suit as against all defendants.

The plaintiff filed a suit for possession against two sets of defendants and obtained a decree in the first Court. Both the sets of defendants filed separate appeals on different dates. The appeal filed by one set of defendants was heard and dismissed. Subsequently the appeal filed by the other set of defendants was taken up. The Additional District Judge who heard the latter appeal being of opinion that the plaintiff had no title to the property, dismissed the suit as against all the defendants.

Held, that the Judge had the discretion under Order XLI, rule 4, of the Civil Procedure Code to dismiss the suit as against both sets of defendants. A. ISHAR DUTT v. MUSAI DUBEE

886

————— O. 41, rr. 11, 16 74

————— O. 41, r. 23 263

————— O. 41, r. 27—Admission of evidence in appeal—Discretion of Court.

In admitting evidence in appeal the Court should strictly follow the procedure laid down by Order XLI, rule 27, Civil Procedure Code, and specially by the second clause of the rule. A. GAURI RAI v. BHAGGINA

873

————— O. 41, r. 31—Judgment, contents of—Appellate Court, duty of.

An Appellate Court should not dispose of appeals coming before it in a judgment which does not show the points raised and the reason for its decision. L. B. MI NYIN THA ME v. MI NYO WUN ME

856

————— O. 41, r. 33—Appellate Court, whether can reverse decree against non-appealing defendant.

In a suit on a mortgage-deed, separate decrees were passed against the 1st defendant and defendants Nos. 2 and 3. The plaintiff appealed against the decree in so far as it exonerated defendants Nos. 2 and 3 from liability for a portion of the claim, and defendants Nos. 2 and 3 filed cross-objections, but the 1st defendant did not appeal. The Appellate Court, however, dismissed the suit as against all defendants. On second appeal by the plaintiff:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, that as the memorandum of cross-objections by defendants Nos. 2 and 3 did not proceed on any ground common to them and the 1st defendant and as the 1st defendant did not appeal, the District Judge was not justified in interfering with the decree against him. M. MAYANDI CHETTIAR v. TIRUMALAI AIYANGAR 986 operated by first Court, if can be made party in appeal—Memorandum of objections.

O. 41, r. 33—Parties—

An Appellate Court has power to add as party a person who was exonerated by the Court of first instance, but where there is already a memorandum of objections seeking to make him liable and the appeal is pending, the order making him a party is in its nature interlocutory, and a High Court will not interfere with the order in revision under section 115, Civil Procedure Code.

Quere—Whether under Order XLII, rule 22, sub-rules (3) and (4), an Appellate Court can make a defendant exonerated by the Court of first instance, a party to the memorandum of objections when not made a party to the appeal itself? M. RENALA BAKU REDDI v. DODLA RAMI REDDI 978

O. 43, r. (1) (b) 914O. 45, rr. 2, 3, 8 46*O. 47, r. 7 912*Sch. II, paras. 1, 15, 16 (2)—"Party interested," meaning of—Reference to arbitration by contesting parties—Decree passed in accordance with award—Ex parte defendant, whether can appeal.

A suit was brought for recovery of certain properties purchased by the plaintiff and trespassed upon by defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3. The 1st defendant contended that the properties had been sold to the 4th defendant, who was thereupon impleaded and adopted the defence. The 1st defendant died and defendants Nos. 2 and 3, his legal representatives, remained ex parte throughout. The plaintiff and the 4th defendant then agreed to refer the suit to arbitration and a decree was passed in accordance with the award. On this the second defendant appealed, on the ground that the decree was not binding on him as he was not a party to the arbitration:

Held, (1) that the appellant was not a "party interested" within the meaning of paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure and had no right to appeal;

(2) that he did not even have any equitable claim to set aside the decree, for by remaining ex parte he left the conduct of the suit in the hands of the Court and it was immaterial to him how the suit was decreed.

Per Phillips, J.—An appeal will not lie against a decree passed in accordance with an award, even where the award is not valid in law, except as provided in paragraph 16 (2) of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—cont.

Per Tyabji, J.—(dissenting)—An appeal does lie from a decree passed in accordance with an award, purporting to bind a person who never submitted to arbitration or where there has been no agreement to refer at all. M. VYTHINATHA AIYAR v. VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR, 18 M. L. T. 374; 2 L. W. 900 206

Sch. II, paras. 3,

8 and 15.—Arbitration Order of reference authorising arbitrator to extend time made by consent of parties—Arbitrator extending time after the period originally fixed by Court had expired—Arbitrator after such time, if functus officio—Award submitted within such extended time, if must be set aside—Arbitrator's interest in subject-matter in suit, when insignificant and unknown to him, if would invalidate award.

Where an order of reference to an arbitrator under Schedule II of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908) fixed three months' time for the submission of the award to Court and also empowered the arbitrator to extend the time for such submission from time to time by endorsement in the office copy of the order:

Held, that when the Court had made the order by consent of the parties, there could be no objection to the functions of the Court with regard to the enlargement of time being delegated to the arbitrator if the parties so desired.

But the arbitrator could only extend the time in such cases, before the time originally fixed for making the award had expired. If he did not do so, he was by reason of effluxion of time functus officio and had no further jurisdiction in the matter. As in this case, the arbitrator had extended the time after the three months originally fixed by Court had expired, the award must be set aside, although it was submitted within the time so extended by the arbitrator.

If an arbitrator, unknown to one of the parties, has a personal interest in the subject-matter of the award, it would be improper that he should act as arbitrator. If, however, his interest is insignificant and unknown to himself so that it is impossible that it could have influenced his award in any way, the Court would not be disposed to set aside the award. C. CO-OPERATIVE HINDUSTAN BANK, Ltd. v. BHOLA NATH, 19 C. W. N. 165 597

Sch. II, paras. 8,

15 597

Sch. II, para. 15 206Sch. II, para. 15—

Fraud—Decree based on award obtained by fraud—Suit to set aside such decree, whether competent—Decree, whether can be set aside on ground that it was obtained by perjured evidence—Review.

A decree cannot be set aside in a subsequent action on the mere proof that such a decree was obtained by perjured evidence, on the principle that a matter cannot be re-agitated on the same materials or on materials which might have been laid before a Court in the first instance.

If evidence not originally available comes to the knowledge of a litigant at a later date, his remedy lies in seeking a review of the judgment if applied for without unreasonable delay.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—concl'd.

A decree based on an award was passed in 1905. In 1911, the plaintiff sued to set aside that decree on the ground that during the course of the arbitration, the defendant had filed a fraudulent account and supported its items by false evidence. The document upon which the plaintiff based his allegation of fraud was in his possession in 1902:

Held, that in this case the only remedy open to the plaintiff lay through a review, and not by a separate suit.

Quere:—Whether a decree based on an award could not be set aside by a separate suit under any circumstances whatsoever?

Obiter dictum.—Where one of the parties to arbitration proceedings has been personated or has received no notice of the proceedings, a suit to set aside the award on the ground of fraud might be maintainable. P. SKINNER v. BADRI KRISHNAN, 98 P. R. 1915; 179 P. W. R. 1915

196

Sch. II, para. 16

700

Sch. II, para. 16

206

(2)

Sch. II, paras. 17,

20—Arbitration—Question of title referred to arbitration—Award—Trial de novo—Proceedings before Civil Court—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 5, 14, Sch. I, Art. 178.

After the death of a certain Hindu, disputes arose among the various branches of his family as to their title. One branch alleged separation and the other branch alleged that the family was still joint. It appeared that the family was possessed of shares in a number of villages in two Tahsils, some of the villages standing in the names of some of the members and others in the names of other members. An application for mutation of names was made in regard to each village. In the case of one Tahsil application for mutation was made to the Tahsildar while in the case of the other to the Assistant Collector. The parties subsequent to the institution of proceedings executed agreements to refer their disputes as to the title to the land, to arbitration. These agreements were placed before the respective officers and all files were sent to the arbitrator. The arbitrator filed an award. At a subsequent stage of the case, he was directed to file another award which he did in exactly the same terms and bearing a later date. The respondents were not satisfied with the award and the matter went up to the Board of Revenue, which sent the cases back to be tried de novo without regard to arbitration. Upon this, the appellants filed applications under clauses 17 and 20 of Schedule II, Code of Civil Procedure.

Held, (1) that clause 17 of Schedule II, Civil Procedure Code, could not operate in the circumstances of the present case as the facts had gone beyond the stage contemplated by that clause;

(2) that the application under clause 20, of Schedule II, Civil Procedure Code, was barred under Article 178, Schedule I, Limitation Act, as it was made more than a year after the date of the award and as it was impossible either under section 5 or section 14 of the Limitation Act to extend the time so as to enable the present application to be treated as made within time. A. RAM UGRAH PANDE v. ACHRAJ NATH PANDE, 13 A. L. J. 1115

899

Common Carrier—See RAILWAY.Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 150—

Contributory, liability of, to pay debt due by him Company—Procedure.

Under section 150 of the Companies Act, 1882, a contributory can be required, not only to meet calls which may be made on him, but also to pay any debt which he owes to the Company.

But the Court is not bound to proceed under section 150 for the recovery of debt due from a contributory and may, if so advised, direct the Liquidator to file a regular suit for the purpose. P. KAMTA PERSHAD v. INDUSTRIAL BANK OF INDIA, LTD., 59 P. R. 1915; 139 P. W. R. 1915

54

S. 150—'Money due from him to the Company,' interpretation of—Winding-up—Contributory—Debt due on pro-note to Company—Summary jurisdiction of Court—Marginal notes to sections, reference to—Interpretation of Statute.

A debt due on a pro-note by a contributory is "money due from him to the Company" within the purview of section 150 of the Companies Act (VI of 1882).

Under section 150 of the Companies Act, the Court has, upon a summary application presented to it, the power to direct the contributory to pay not only all moneys due from him as a member, but also any debt due from him to the Company. The jurisdiction is permissive, but when a case is made out for the exercise thereof, it should not be declined unless very cogent reasons to the contrary are shown.

Seemle.—The marginal note to a section cannot be relied upon in clearing up the ambiguity in the text of the written law, but it may with advantage be referred to when it confirms the conclusion warranted by the language of the section. P. LAHORE BANK, LTD. v. KIDAR NATH

746

S. 169—Appeal against orders made in winding-up proceedings—Limitation—Extension of time—Principles—Special circumstances.

The general principles for extending time in winding-up appeal cases are as follows:

(i) The object of the Act (VI of 1882) being that matters should be settled speedily and that winding-up proceedings should not be protracted unduly, an extension of time will not be granted except under 'special' circumstances;

(ii) in the absence of 'special' circumstances, a litigant who has obtained a judgment which, by expiration of the time limited for appeal, has become absolute, ought not to be deprived of it;

(iii) a person who applies for an extension of time must show, not an equity properly so-called, but something which entitles him to ask for the indulgence of the Court to relieve him from the legal bar that is imposed by the Act of the Legislature.

Under section 169 of Act VI of 1882, the "special circumstances" which entitle a person to ask for extension of time require that he will not be granted the indulgence unless he can satisfy the Court that he himself has acted with reasonable diligence and that the delay in prosecuting his appeal, was due either to the respondents' conduct or to some action or inaction on the part of the Court below. P. BISHEN DAS v. LIQUIDATOR, DOABA BANK, LTD.

725

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 2—

Companies Act VI of 1882), s. 3—Transfer of shares after insolvency of Company—Informal transfer by Director of his shares, effect of—Liability as contributory.

Where a Company has become insolvent although no winding-up has commenced, the Directors may and ought to refuse registration of any transfer of shares.

Non-observance of the requisite formalities for transfer of shares is a fatal defect: such a transfer does not absolve the transferor from his liability as a contributory, particularly when he is himself one of the Directors of the Company.

Where a Bank stopped payment on 22nd September 1912 and on 2nd October of the same year one of the Directors transferred his shares to a man of straw without observing the rules on the subject: Held, that the transfer was both invalid and ultra vires. P. HAKIM RAI V. PESHAWAR BANK LTD., 162 P. W. R. 1915 865

Company—Director acting as such for many years—Third person, if can question his power—Shareholder—Estoppel.

When a Company is shown to have accepted a certain person for many years as its Director and has never on any occasion repudiated any of his acts as such, it is not open to one who has no concern with the Company to challenge the appointment of such Director or to contest his authority to act on behalf of the Company.

When a share-holder of a Company takes part in nearly all the general meetings of the Company and joins in the annual appointment of its Director without taking exception to his appointment, he is under the circumstances debarred by his conduct from objecting to the validity of the Director's appointment or to his authority to act for and on behalf of the Company. P. IMPERIAL OIL, SOAP AND GENERAL MILLS CO LTD. v. WAZIR SINGH, 182 P. W. R. 1915 595

—, suit against—Proper framing of suit—Amendment of plaint—Service of notice after amendment 35

Compromise. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 345; REGISTRATION ACT, s. 17.

—incorporated in decree, whether requires registration 260

—decree, binding force of 902

—, suit to set aside—Mistake, if valid ground—Remedy—Amendment of decree—Fresh suit, not maintainable—Fraud, suit to set aside decree on ground of, maintainability of.

A contract of the parties is nonetheless a contract because, there is superadded to it the command of a Judge. It still is a contract of the parties, and as the contract is capable of being rectified for an appropriate mistake so, as the necessary consequence, is the decree which is merely a more formal expression given to that contract.

A suit to set aside a decree obtained after contest and giving accurate expression to the Court's intention, is not maintainable.

Per Holmwood, J.—Where there is any divergence between the decree and the judgment, the matter is for amendment of the decree and not for a fresh suit to set aside the decree.

Compromise decree—concl.

Obiter dictum:—(Per Jenkins, C. J.)—A decree can be set aside on the ground of fraud, if of the required character. C. KUSADHAR BHAKTA v. BROJA MOHAN BHAKTA, 19 C. W. N. 1228. 13

Confession. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 164.

Consideration. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 2 d).

Construction of deed—Property described as belonging to minor and registered in mother's name as guardian 811

—Usufructuary mortgage created but no transfer of possession made 454

—of document 473

—Ancient document 543

—Consent by reversioners to widow's applying estate to charity—Failure of one form of charity—Gift to other form, validity of.

Where the reversioners to a Hindu woman's estate, gave the widow authority to devote the property to any charity but the particular form of charity which she had selected having failed, she applied the property to another form of charity:

Held, that the reversioners were not entitled to impeach it, as a general intention to give to charity was agreed to by them. P. BHUWANI ORPHANAGE ASSOCIATION v. PARMA NAND 737

—Mortgage 869

—Sale-deed—Price treated as continuing debt—Property made security for the payment of debt—Agreement to reconvey—Mortgage or sale 308

—Surrounding circumstances—Intention—All clauses to be given effect to—Assignment of debt—Debtor's assent communicated to assignee—Debtor, whether can subsequently plead any claim or charge—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 132—Actionable claim—Transfer prima facie subject to equities—Transferee, liability of, to ascertain extent of equities—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 23—"Without prejudice," meaning of, when used in a private document.

A Court is empowered to look to surrounding circumstances in deciding what the intention of the parties to a particular transaction was.

Parties are bound by the words they have used, however clear their intention may be.

In construing a document, a Court will not adopt such a construction as will reduce one important clause of it to a nullity. (Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.)

Where there is an assignment of moneys in the hands of a debtor and the debtor communicates to the assignee his assent to deliver the moneys in accordance with the terms of the assignment, he cannot afterwards assert, as against the assignee, any claim or charge in his own right, of which no notice had been given to the assignee.

Quere.—Whether this obligation is based on contract, estoppel, or waiver?

Under section 132 of the Transfer of Property Act, the assignee of an actionable claim prima facie takes it subject to all existing equities and it is his duty to ascertain their extent.

Construction of document—concl.

The onus of proving affirmatively that the assignment of an actionable claim is free from an existing right, is upon the assignee.

The words 'without prejudice' when used in private documents, have not the well-known meaning which they have when used in connection with an actual or impending litigation. M. VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU, 2 L. W. 977; 18 M. L. T. 533

152

— of Statute—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, Sch. II, para. (8)

177 — — — — —, retrospective effect

202

— — — — — Of Will. See WILL.

Contract—Bond, suit on—Contract in writing registered, not signed by both parties—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 116, applicability of—Interest—High rate—Court, power of, to grant relief—Contract, unenforceable—Party, if can set up other reasonable terms.

A contract in writing in India does not necessarily imply that the document must be signed by both the parties thereto.

Therefore, a bond executed by a party and delivered to the other party and accepted by him completes the agreement between the parties and in law this amounts to a contract in writing.

Article 116 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, 1908, applies to cases of bonds not signed by both the parties.

A Court is competent to grant relief whenever the rate of interest appears to the Court to be penal. The fact that the rate of interest is excessive is sufficient by itself to justify the inference that the rate is penal and unenforceable.

Once a contract between the parties is deemed unenforceable, the plaintiff is entirely in the hands of the Court, he is not entitled to substitute for the original contract another contract which may appear to him to be reasonable.

Where the plaintiff was by contract entitled to interest on his loan at the rate of 5858 per cent. a year and sued to recover interest at the rate of 40 per cent. a year:

Held, that no Court of Justice will enforce such a contract and in the opinion of the Court the plaintiff was entitled to 12 per cent. per annum simple interest by way of damages for the detention of the money. C. CHALLAPPROO v. BANGA BEHARY SEN, 22 O. L. J. 311 — — — — — Broker—Undisclosed principal—Bought and sold notes—Contract—Construction by similarity—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 222, 230—Arbitration.

394

The plaintiff was a broker who bought on behalf of the agents of the defendant mills a certain quantity of jute and he sent to the mill agents a bought note stating—"We have bought to your order and for your account from our principals, etc.", and at the same time he sent to the firm from whom the jute was bought, a sold note saying—"We have sold by your order and for your account to our principal, etc." The plaintiff disclosed to the mill agents the name of the firm of whom jute was bought about the time delivery was due, but more than three months after the contract was effected, whereupon the mill agents refused to recognise this firm and sought to make the broker liable as seller.

Contract—concl.

Held, by Jenkins, C. J.—that the plaintiff here was no more than an intermediary, and was not an agent for sale to whom the provisions of section 230 of the Indian Contract Act would apply so as to make him liable as an agent who has not disclosed his principal's name.

Contracts should be interpreted by themselves and it is improper to interpret one contract by reference to another because they may seem to differ very little, as it may result in identifying contracts which are wholly different.

Woodroffe, J.—A broker is an agent to find a contracting party and as long as he adheres strictly to his position as broker, his contract is one of employment between him and the person who employs him, and not a contract of sale or purchase with the party whom he in the course of such employment finds. C. PATILAM BAKERJEE v. KANKINARHA Co., Ltd. 19 C. W. N. 623; 42 C. 1050

607

— — — — — executed under misrepresentation of fact—Liability of party misrepresenting—Misrepresentation of future intention

708

— — — — —, part performance of, equities arising from—Title, whether passes by mere admission or disclaimer of owner—Purchaser's right, whether relinquishable without registered conveyance.

Where a share in a certain taluk belonging to G was purchased by C in execution of a mortgage-deed, who after his purchase without taking possession or disturbing G's possession, gave up for a consideration his rights as purchaser in favour of G, without executing a registered conveyance:

Held, that the relinquishment thus made divested C of the rights he had acquired by his purchase, as any suit brought afterwards by C against G for recovery of the share, would have been successfully resisted by G.

A mere admission or disclaimer of the owner cannot operate to pass title to property where a conveyance is required under the law to transfer title, but a different result might follow from equitable principles of part performance of a contract.

Equities, arising from part performance and from acts done in execution of a contract discussed. C. KHAGENDRA NATH v. SONATAN GUHA, 20 C. W. N. 149 — — — — — Promise to perform on demand after certain date—Breach of contract—Suit for damages—Commencement of period of limitation—"On demand", meaning of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 49, 115, 120.

987

Where the contract between the parties was that to discharge the loan of 30,000 burnt tiles made to the defendants by the plaintiff in May 1905, the same number of properly burnt tiles should be returned to the plaintiff on demand after 20th January 1906, and if the tiles offered in satisfaction were not approved by the plaintiff and his four panchayatdars the identical tiles lent, though they had been used in covering a temple roof, should be brought down from that roof and returned to the plaintiff, and where the plaintiff demanded the return of the tiles about six years after the loan and on their refusal, brought a suit for damages for breach of contract in 1913:

Contract—concl.

Held, that the contract was broken when the defendants failed to offer to deliver 30,000 properly burnt tiles on the 21st January 1906, on which date the right of the plaintiff to make a demand on the defendants arose, and not on the date on which performance was actually demanded by the plaintiff and refused by the defendants; that Article 115 and not Article 49 of the Limitation Act, 1908, applied to the case.

An actual demand is not necessary to establish a starting point of limitation under Article 115 of the Limitation Act, even if the document makes the compensation payable on demand.

"On demand" is a technical expression meaning immediately or forthwith. M. SURAYYA v. BAPIRAJU, 15 M. L. T. 459 335

— to sell land—Specific performance—Contract set up different from that proved—Time not of the essence of the contract—Part performance of contract set up—Specific performance of contract proved—Contract with managing member of Hindu family—Sons, whether liable as legal representatives after his death 1

—, stranger to, when can claim performance of 22

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 2 (d)—Consideration—Release of debtor and acceptance of another in his place.

Where the creditor releases his debtor and accepts a new debtor in his place, the release of the original debtor furnishes good consideration for the new contract. C. MOHES CHANDRA GUHA v. RAJANI KANTA DUTT, 22 C. L. J. 235 29

— s. 11 792

— s. 23—Government Servants' Conduct Rules, rule 14—Debt contracted by father for trading purposes, whether lawful—Hindu Law—Liability of sons for father's debt.

The plaintiff sued to enforce a mortgage effected in his favour by defendant No. 1. The mortgage security consisted of a piece of land, the property of the 1st defendant, and of land which was the property of the family of the 5th defendant and his sons, which was ostensibly burdened with a mortgage-debt created by the 5th defendant in respect of certain payments made or liability incurred by the 1st defendant at the 5th defendant's request in respect of dealings in a trade in fish instituted by the 5th defendant and carried on largely under the management of the 1st defendant. The 5th defendant's sons contended inter alia that they were not liable to pay the debts of their father contracted for illegal and immoral purposes in contravention of Government Servants' Conduct Rule No. 14:

Held, (1) that the rule was not based upon any statutory prohibition, but was merely a rule of conduct;

(2) that the debts contracted by the father could not be said to be attributable either to his failings, follies or caprices and a disregard of the Government injunctions did not taint his trade dealings with immorality or impropriety as between himself and those with whom he traded;

Contract Act—concl.

(3) that the sons were, therefore, liable to pay their father's debts. B. RAMKRISHNA TRIMBAK v. NARAYAN SHIVRAO ARAS, 17 Bom. L. R. 933 331

— s. 29—Partnership, written contract of—Terms uncertain—Construction of document—Contract, written, ambiguous—Parole evidence, whether admissible—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 93—Court, powers of—Partnership—Agency—Pleadings—Plea, raised for first time, whether allowable.

A covenant of partnership giving one party the right of specifying the share of the profits to be assigned to the other and affording not the slightest indication as to the proportion of losses which one party is to bear in the partnership is void for uncertainty.

A Court cannot supply defects or ambiguities in a document according to its own notions of what is reasonable nor can it admit parole evidence to determine the intention of the executant of the document.

Where a partnership is contemplated, but the terms thereof cannot be ascertained, the covenant cannot be taken as creating the relationship of principal and agent between the parties.

A plea which was mentioned neither in the Court below nor in the memorandum of appeal cannot be raised for the first time in the Chief Court. P. BARKAT RAM v. ANANT RAM 632

— ss. 39, 205—Agent, responsibility of, for an error of judgment—Indemnity—Refusal to indemnify, whether sufficient cause for rescission of contract—Sufficient cause—Agent's due on termination of contract.

An agent is not responsible to his principal for any loss caused on account of an error of judgment, provided he exercises reasonable skill and diligence.

The promise of indemnity is an implied term of the contract of agency: hence the refusal of the principal to indemnify the agent for any act done by him in the course of agency justifies him to rescind the contract.

Where an agent, who has entered into a contract in his own name for the purchase of goods deliverable at a future date, rescinds the contract of agency for sufficient cause before the period of termination, the principal is entitled to credit for the price of the goods on the date the business is terminated. S. RAJARAM NANDLAL v. ABDUR RAHIM, 9 S. L. R. 77 450

— s. 43 209

— s. 45 904

— s. 49 880

— s. 69—"Person interested in the payment of money," meaning of—Duty of registered holder to pay Government revenue—Co-sharers, whether personally liable—Revenue—Charge on estate—Suit to enforce charge—Jurisdiction.

It is only the registered holder who is personally bound to pay the revenue to Government. Co-owners or co-sharers who are not also registered holders are not under any such obligation though the Government revenue may be a charge on the lands in their holding.

Contract Act—contd.

The "person interested in the payment of money" in section 69 of the Contract Act must be a person who is not himself bound to pay the whole or any portion of the amount.

Where, therefore, a person who is himself under an obligation to pay a portion of the Government revenue pays the whole amount due, he is not entitled to a personal decree for the amount against all his co-sharers, but can only recover a share payable on account of the property in the hands of him who is also under a personal obligation to pay.

A suit to enforce such a charge should be brought only in that Court within whose jurisdiction the portion of the estate liable to pay the share is situate. M. VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATIRAJU v. SRI LAKSHMI NRUSIMHA ROOPA, 29 M. L. J. 639; 2 L. W. 1046; 18 M. L. T. 464 255

ss. 73, 107, applicability of—
Contract for sale of negotiable securities—Breach of contract—Damages, measure of—Difference between contract price and market price at date of breach—Purchaser, right of.

In a contract for sale of negotiable securities, the measure of damages for breach is the difference between the contract price and the market price at the date of the breach. If the seller holds on to the securities after the breach, the speculation as to the way the market will subsequently go is the speculation of the seller, not of the buyer, the seller cannot recover from the buyer the loss below the market price at the date of the breach if the market falls, nor is he liable to the purchaser for the profit if the market rises.

A plaintiff who sues for damages for breach of a contract for sale of negotiable securities owes the duty of taking all reasonable steps to mitigate the loss consequent upon the breach and cannot claim as damages any sum which is due to his own neglect, but the loss to be ascertained is the loss at the date of the breach. If at that date the plaintiff could do something or did something which mitigated the damage, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of it. But the fact that by reason of the loss of the contract which the defendant fails to perform the plaintiff obtains the benefit of another contract which is of value to him, does not entitle the defendant to the benefit of the latter contract.

Sections 73 and 107 of the Contract Act do not apply to such a case. P. C. JAMAL v. MOOLA DAWOOD SONS & Co. 949

s. 73—Breach of contract to make plaintiff a partner—Damages, measure of.

Where the defendant promised to admit the plaintiff to a partnership but broke the promise and, thereby, caused him loss:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was entitled to damages to the extent of the loss caused by the breach;

(2) that the measure of damages in such cases is the difference between the value of the plaintiff's estate immediately after the defendant's breach of promise and the value it would have had if the defendant had performed his promise. P. TANSEY v. RIVETT, 64 P. R. 1915; 142 P. W. R. 1915 73

Contract Act—contd.

ss. 83, 91—Shipment of goods
—No letter of requisition to Captain—Liability in case of loss—Difference between Indian and English Law.

Where the plaintiff in pursuance of the instructions given by the 2nd defendant as agent of the 1st defendant, who carried on business at Honnavar, shipped 101 bags of Rangoon rice on board the "Machva" to Honnavar without indicating the consignee to the Captain but desiring that the rice should be delivered only on payment of the price, and owing to a storm in Mangalore harbour, the ship was stranded and the rice damaged; on the question as to who was to bear the loss representing the difference between the contract rate and the rate at which the damaged rice was sold, there being no evidence as to the intention of the parties:

Held, that the property passed to the purchaser as soon as the goods were shipped, and the purchaser was liable for the loss. M. MARJI JETA v. HONNAVAR PUTHU HARI PAI, 18 M. L. T. 457 334

ss. 88, 91 334
s. 107 949

s. 123—Sale by auction—Puffers, employment of—Commission for sale, outrageously high—Sale, whether voidable.

If, at an auction sale, puffers are employed by the auctioneer, who charges an outrageously high commission for the sale, the transaction is voidable at the instance of the buyer under section 123, Contract Act. P. SRI RAM v. CHHABRU LAL 689

s. 180 430

s. 201—Bills sent with direction to collect and remit—Trust—Fiduciary relationship—Agency—Debtor and creditor.

When a person employs another to collect money and remit it to him, the latter stands in a fiduciary relation towards the former and may in respect of the money so collected be regarded as a trustee.

The money is held by him for a specific purpose and does not at his bankruptcy pass to the trustee in bankruptcy as the bankrupt's property.

Where the debtor is to collect and remit, there is confidence and trust. Where the debtor is to use and repay on demand there is no trust. The fact that the money so received has been mixed with other money of the agent is immaterial so long as there is a fund on which the cestui que trust can lay his hands.

The Alliance Bank of Simla, Delhi Branch, sent two bills for collection to the Gwalior Branch of the Amritsar Bank and distinctly asked the latter to send drafts on Delhi after realization. The Amritsar Bank realized the money and after deducting the usual charges remitted the balance by two drafts on the Delhi Branch of the People's Bank, Limited. But before the drafts could be cashed, both the People's Bank and the Amritsar Bank went into liquidation. On these facts, the Alliance Bank claimed payment in full of the amount due on the drafts contending that the Amritsar Bank was the trustee and not a debtor qua that money:

Held, that all the requirements which were essential to the creation of a fiduciary relationship were satisfied, but that as soon as the drafts on Delhi were despatched and in accordance with the instructions of the Alliance Bank of Simla, the special business, for which the agency had been created, was completed, the agency then terminated ipso facto (vide section 201, Indian Contract Act), the fiduciary relationship came to an end, and thenceforward, the Alliance Bank of Simla was simply a creditor of the Amritsar Bank and if the drafts were dishonoured, the Alliance Bank of Simla was only entitled to be registered as a creditor and receive payment pari passu along with other creditors. P. ALLIANCE BANK OF SIMLA, LTD., v. AMRITSAR BANK, 79 P. R. 1915; 171 P. W. R. 1915

Contract Act—concl'd.

_____	S. 205	215
_____	ss. 222, 230	450
_____	S. 241	607
_____	S. 247	927
_____	S. 263	45
		904

Contribution—Joint executors—Stamp duty and penalty 285

Contributory. See COMPANIES ACT, s. 150.

Co-operative Societies Act (II of 1912)—Debt due to a Village Co-operative Bank by one of its members—Successor-in-interest, liability of—Village Co-operative Bank, construction of bye-laws of.

Three suits were brought for the recovery of moneys due to the plaintiff Bank on promissory notes executed by one M deceased, who at the time of his death was a member of the plaintiff Bank. The defendant No. 1, who was the son of M, became member of the society on the death of his father. One of the bye-laws of the plaintiff society laid down: "If the heir or successor-in-interest is elected, all rights and liabilities of the deceased member shall devolve on him."

Held, that the defendant No. 1, having accepted the bye-law in question by joining the society as a member, was bound to pay the liabilities of his father to the Bank irrespective of the assets which he had received from his father. O. VILLAGE CO-OPERATIVE BANK v. KALI DIN, 18 O. C. 157 724

Costs. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 35.

_____, discretion as to—Account, suit for, against manager—Costs against manager for default or dishonest conduct in accounting—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 22.

A person who takes up the management of another's estate and collects and disburses moneys, has to be ready with his account. His failure to perform the obvious duty, necessitates a suit and he must pay the plaintiffs' costs.

This is all the more so when he makes a dishonest defence, submits a false account and keeps back books of account or documents.

Where the manager of an estate sued the principal for arrears of salary in the Presidency Court of Small Causes and the principal sued the manager in the High Court for accounts and the two suits were heard together in the High Court and an amount less than Rs. 1,000 was found due from the manager to the principal, costs were awarded against the manager on High Court scale No. II having regard to the circumstances above stated. C. SUKUMARI GHOSH v. GORI MOHAN GHOSWAMI, 19 C. W. N. 880 662

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s. 7, cl.

(iv) (c)—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Court-fee payable, when relief sought not valued in plaint—Valuation for purposes of jurisdiction given—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VII, r. 11, cl. (c).

Where in a suit under section 7, clause (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act, 1870, the plaint contains no valuation of the relief sought but gives a valuation of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction, the Court-fee is to be computed according to the valuation of the suit for the purposes of jurisdiction, though the actual value of the relief sought is less, unless the plaintiff with the Court's leave amends the plaint. C. KRISHNA KUMAR RAY v. CHANDRA KANTA MITRA 807

_____ (as amended by Act VI of 1905), s. 7, cls. V (d), XI (cc)—Suit to recover possession of immovable property from tenant—Valuation for purposes of jurisdiction—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 14, applicability of.

The Legislature by enacting Act VI of 1905 has not only amended the Court Fees Act, but has incidentally withdrawn a class of suits from the provisions of section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act and added it to those falling under section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act.

The valuation, therefore, for purposes of jurisdiction of a suit to recover possession of land from a tenant is not its market value under section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act or section 7, clause V (d) of the Court Fees Act, but one year's rental payable by the tenant, for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint under section 7, clause XI (cc), of the Court Fees Act. M. NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU GARU v. VENNAVALI SESHAGIRI RAO, 18 M. L. T. 398; 2 L. W. 1031; 29 M. L. J. 572 104

_____ S. 19E, object of—Penalty, imposition of—Order ultra vires—Suit to recover penalty imposed, maintainability of—Civil Court, jurisdiction of—Revenue Authority, power of—Penalty, nature of.

Unless there is a statutory bar, a suit is maintainable by the Secretary of State for India in Council for recovery of a penalty lawfully imposed.

Where a penalty has been imposed by a Revenue Authority, a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to review the decision on the ground that the valuation had been incorrectly made or that the discretion in the imposition of the penalty had been erroneously exercised, but if the action of the Revenue Authority is ultra vires there is no enforceable claim which a Civil Court is bound to recognize.

Section 19E of the Court Fees Act contemplates an application on the part of the person who had taken out Probate and produces the same to be duly stamped and applies where the estimated value of the estate is less than what the value has afterwards proved to be: and in the absence of any such application, it does not authorize a Revenue Authority to impose any penalty.

In a Probate case notice was issued to a Collector under sub-section 1 of section 19H of the Court Fees Act. As no reply was received from the Collector, Probate was issued to the petitioner on payment of the duty payable upon her valuation of the estate. The Collector, thereafter, held that the value of the estate was much more and directed a notice to the petitioner to amend the valuation, and to explain the cause of under-valuation. The petitioner did not accept the Collector's valuation but in order to avoid litigation deposited the additional fee. The Board, however, ordered that double the fee payable be levied as penalty and a suit was instituted to recover the amount:

Court Fees Act—concl.

Held, that the imposition of the penalty was ultra vires and, therefore, the suit was not maintainable.

Semle.—In a case where section 19E is properly applicable, the petitioner is entirely in the hands of the chief controlling Revenue Authority, who is at liberty to refuse to stamp the Probate till the penalty has been paid.

Quere.—Whether the penalty imposed in such a case is personal and not recoverable from the estate? C. NIKUNJA RANI v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 22 C. L. J. 375

460

Criminal Law—Procedure—Notice to Police Inspector in charge of case, before disposing of it, necessity of.

A Magistrate is bound to give notice to the Police Inspector in charge of a case before disposing of it. M. CHEMICKALA CHINNA REDDI v. EMPEROR, (1915) M. W. N. 554; 16 Cr. L. J. 736

176

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 107

789

S. 107—Security to keep the peace—Order, whether can be passed without evidence—Person proceeded against having no objection to give security, effect of.

An order for taking security under section 107 Criminal Procedure Code, without evidence to prove that the petitioner was likely to commit a breach of the peace or to do any other wrongful act that might occasion a breach of the peace, is illegal and should not be passed simply on the petitioner's own statement before the Magistrate that he had no objection to giving security. P. EMPEROR v. SHEODAN, 24 P. R. 1915 CR.; 16 Cr. L. J. 784

384

S. 110—Witnesses of good character, evidence of, consideration of—Rule to be observed.

Where proceedings under section 110 are taken against a person and he is able to produce witnesses on his behalf to speak of his good character, the Court ought to pay particular attention to such evidence. It should not necessarily be believed but the Court should find substantial reason for not believing the evidence before it makes an order. A. HAKIM SINGH v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1055; 16 Cr. L. J. 810

826

S. 110—Zemindar not actively opposing gang of dacoits, if to be bound over—Witnesses, evidence of, weight of—High Court, power of—Duty of lower Courts.

A zemindar of a village cannot be bound over under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code merely because he did not actively oppose a gang of dacoits.

Where a zemindar, who is also a money-lender, is prosecuted under section 110 and in defence he produces a number of respectable witnesses besides his castemen and tenants, it is not proper for the Magistrate to disbelieve all the witnesses so produced merely on the ground that the accused could by the influence of his position in life produce any number of them.

Criminal Procedure Code—concl.

A High Court is not a Court of appeal in cases under section 110 and the responsibility of administering that section does not rest with it. It is nevertheless, a section which Magistrates ought to administer with the most scrupulous care, both as the Court of first instance and the Appellate Court. A High Court ought not to take upon itself to weigh the evidence given on behalf of one side or the other. It ought only to see whether the Court below has approached the consideration of the appeal in a fair way having regard to the interest not only of the prosecution but also of the accused. A. MIHARRAN SINGH v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1046; 16 Cr. L. J. 805

821

ss. 144, 147, 439—

Revision—High Court, power of, to direct Subordinate Magistrate to take additional evidence—Jurisdiction—Order prohibiting use of public street, interference with—Sentimental caste objections, if to be considered.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar and Phillips, JJ.—A High Court acting as a Court of Revision either under section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or under section 15 of the Charter Act has power to direct a Subordinate Magistrate to take additional evidence, but it must on that evidence come to an independent finding itself and not accept the one arrived at by the Magistrate.

It is undesirable that orders passed under section 147 of the Code of Criminal Procedure should be interfered with in revision under section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure or section 15 of the Charter Act, unless they are made without jurisdiction or are obviously unreasonable and unjust.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction under section 147 of the Code of Criminal Procedure to pass orders even against the right of passage through a public street. But he ought not to pass such a prohibitory order, unless it is clearly proved that there is a right by custom or by grant or by Statute in one section of the public to prevent another section of the public from using the public street on particular occasions or for particular purposes, when such use is ordinarily and prima facie lawful.

Sentimental caste objections to the use of a public street should not be countenanced by Magistrates acting under section 147, Criminal Procedure Code, though they can in emergent cases pass temporary orders under section 144 when the preservation of the peace is required. Even in such cases, the temporary nature of the order cannot be attempted to be changed by continued renewals. M. SUDALAINUTHU CHETTIAR v. ENAN SAMBAN, 16 Cr. L. J. 767

367

s. 145

965

S. 145—Possession, how to be determined—Delivery of symbolical possession by a Civil Court, bearing of, on Magistrate's enquiry. In proceedings under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, the Magistrate will enquire into the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute regardless of delivery of its symbolical possession to a party by a Civil Court under the provisions of rule 96, Order XXI, Civil Procedure Code. M. RAMALINGAM PILLAI v. RAJA OF RAMNAD, 16 Cr. L. J. 736. 176

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

— s. 145, cl. (4), order under—Police report—Breach of peace, likelihood of—Notice—Subsequent finding of no breach without inquiry, legality of.

When once on the perusal of a Police report, a Magistrate passes an order under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace, he cannot afterwards say that there is no likelihood of such breach without an enquiry and without taking the evidence which the parties are willing to offer. M. VELUYIA KONE v. NARAYANA KONE, 2 L. W. 1208; 16 Cr. L. J. 789.

— s. 146 645
— s. 147 242
— s. 164 367
— ss. 164 (3), 533 359

Magistrate recording confession certifying it to be not voluntary—Confession, whether admissible—Duty of Magistrate—Prosecution, whether can supply deficiencies by calling Magistrate—Evidence Act (1 of 1872), s. 24—Confession made to Police Patil, validity of.

Where an accused charged with murder made a confession before a Second Class Magistrate who in place of the certificate required by section 164 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code remarked that the confession was not voluntary, and where the prosecution sought to remove this defect by calling the Magistrate and examining him as to the precise points which, in his opinion, were involuntarily made:

Held, (1) that the confessional statement was inadmissible in evidence being made under circumstances diametrically opposed to those which the law requires as a condition precedent to the admissibility of a confession;

(2) that the only course which the Magistrate could properly follow when he came to the conclusion that the accused was not speaking voluntarily before him was to refuse to continue to record the examining any further;

(3) that it was not competent for the prosecution to supply by calling the Magistrate the deficiencies which existed in the confession from the time it was recorded.

A confession must be read as a whole.

A confession made to a Police Patil is invalid. B. EMPEROR v. RAMA DHAN POWAR, 17 Bom. L. R. 898; 16 Cr. L. J. 740. 340

— s. 165—Search without warrant—Specification of property to be searched—Illegal search—Resistance—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 332.

Where a Police Officer authorizes another to make a search without a warrant from a Magistrate, he should give the authority in writing specifying the thing or things which are to be searched for. Section 165 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not authorize a general search on the chance that something may be found.

An accused offering resistance to the Police making

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

an illegal search is not guilty of an offence under section 332 of the Penal Code. A. EMPEROR v. BRIKHBHAN SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 979; 16 Cr. L. J. 819; 38 A. 14. 995

— ss. 177, 179—Offence committed at one place, discovery of, at another—Trial—Jurisdiction—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 420, 265.

The complainant was induced to part with his money at Meerut on the false representation that a certain barrel contained a certain amount of spirit. At Agra it was discovered that the barrel did not contain the amount of spirit that it had been represented to contain:

Held, that the Magistrate at Agra had no jurisdiction to try the accused under sections 420 and 265 of the Penal Code inasmuch as the discovery of the alleged fraud at Agra after the goods were delivered, could not be said to be a 'consequence which has ensued' within the meaning of section 179 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A. PRAG DAS BHARGAVA v. DALPAT RAM, 13 A. L. J. 1067; 16 Cr. L. J. 825.

— s. 181, cl. (2)—Criminal breach of trust—Place of trial—Jurisdiction 1001

Where the complainant charged the accused under section 408, Indian Penal Code, alleging that the complainant had engaged the accused to manage a branch agency at Rurki, that accounts were sent by accused to Rawalpindi for some time but subsequently discontinued and that on inspection of the accounts it was found that the accused had made false entries in respect of certain items:

Held, that inasmuch as the allegations in the complaint referred distinctly to three or four specific items in respect of which the accused was charged with having committed the offence of criminal breach of trust at Rurki, the Rawalpindi Court had no jurisdiction to try the case. P. EMPEROR v. RAGHUBIR SINGH, 22 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 775; 42 P. W. R. 1915 Cr. 375

— s. 195 653
— s. 195—Perjury committed in course of judicial enquiry—Sanction by High Court—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 193.

Where on a petition being presented to the High Court for setting aside an ex parte decree on the ground that the petitioner was not served with notice of the appeal, an enquiry was ordered and the District Munsif's report showed that the petitioner had committed perjury while giving evidence before the Munsif:

Held, that the High Court had jurisdiction to sanction the prosecution of the petitioner on a charge under section 193, Indian Penal Code. M. GUDALA SURIAN v. JAMAL BEG BEE, 16 Cr. L. J. 740. 340

— ss. 195, 476, scope of—Sanction to prosecute—Prima facie case.

All that a Court granting sanction to prosecute under sections 195 and 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code for offences made punishable thereby, has to see is that a prima facie case has been made out upon the evidence before it for inquiring further into the question whether or no any of the offences punishable as set out in section 195, has or has not been made out. A. KIDHA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1111; 16 Cr. L. J. 817. 993

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 195 (1) (b)—False endorsement on promissory note with intent to use it as evidence—Suit on promissory note—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 193, complaint under—Sanction for prosecution, if necessary.

essential to the institution of criminal proceedings under sections 465, 468 and 471, Indian Penal Code. P. EMPEROR v. LEHNA SINGH, 18 P. R. 1915 CR. 16 CR. L. J. 785 641

Section 195 (1) (b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure aims at providing that where, prior to the institution of a criminal prosecution, a properly constituted judicial tribunal has placed itself in a position to determine whether the facts constituting the offence really exist, the Criminal Court should decline cognizance unless that tribunal has, in effect, certified that in its opinion, the complaint is one worthy of investigation. That safeguard should not be limited to cases where the offence is committed pendente lite but should extend also to fabrication of false evidence in advance.

When an offence is of such a nature that at the time of committing it, the accused must have legal proceedings in mind and prior to his being charged with the commission of the offence, legal proceedings of the same nature have already commenced in any Court, it is most in consonance with the intention of the Legislature to require that the sanction of the Court should be obtained.

Where, therefore, the complaint set out that the accused wrote an endorsement on a promissory note executed in favour of the complainant, purporting to record a payment of Rs. 1,500 while no such payment was ever made and that the accused intended to use the endorsement as evidence in case the complainant brought a civil suit to recover the amount due:

Held, that the uncertainty at the time of writing the endorsement as to whether any suit could ever be brought, did not affect the completeness of the offence and that the Court could not take cognizance of the offence without the sanction of the Civil Court. M. In re PARAMESWARA NAMUDRI, 18 M. L. T. 322 16 CR. L. J. 161 161

s. 195 (1) (b)—"Such Court", interpretation of—Court abolished but re-established with curtailed territorial limits—Jurisdiction—Sanction for prosecution for offence committed before abolition.

A Court once abolished but re-established two years later with its territorial limits somewhat curtailed, is not "such Court" within the meaning of section 195 (1) (b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and the latter Court has no jurisdiction to grant sanction for prosecution in respect of an offence committed before the former. M. In re APPU ATLA, 16 CR. L. J. 767 643

s. 195, (1) (c) and (2)—Offence committed in course of proceedings before Revenue Officer—Sanction, whether necessary—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 465, 468, 471.

Where the offence of forgery was committed in the course of mutation proceedings held by a Naib-Tahsildar in his administrative capacity of a "Revenue Officer."

Held, that the proceedings were not those of a "Revenue Court" within the meaning of section 195 (2) of the Criminal Procedure Code and that the previous sanction of the Naib Tahsildar was not

s. 203—Order dismissing complaint not set aside—Subsequent complaint on same facts, whether can be entertained by another Magistrate.

The fact that an order dismissing a complaint under section 203 of the Criminal Procedure Code has not been set aside, is no bar to another Magistrate entertaining a subsequent complaint on the same facts. M. PAMPALLI SUBBAREDDI v. CHADU. BOYIGARI KAMAL SAIB, 16 CR. L. J. 814 830

s. 209—Inquiry preparatory to commitment—Prosecution evidence, unreliability of—Duty of Magistrate to discharge—Preliminary inquiry, necessity of, for commitment—Prosecution witnesses, cross-examination of, by Magistrate, if allowed.

If in an inquiry preparatory to commitment, the evidence tendered for the prosecution is totally unworthy of credit, it is not only within the power of the Magistrate but it is his duty to discharge the accused under section 209 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Where, therefore, on a complaint being lodged against two persons under section 477, Indian Penal Code, the Magistrate did not issue any process against one but examined him as a witness in the course of the inquiry against the other and also cross-examined the complainant's witnesses and after recording the whole evidence discharged the accused on the ground that in his opinion the evidence was very interested and unreliable, but the Sessions Judge set aside the order of discharge and remanded the case to the Magistrate with instructions to commit both the accused:

Held, (1) that the Magistrate was well within his powers in cross-examining the prosecution witnesses and in considering whether the witnesses examined on behalf of the prosecution were credible;

(2) that in so far as no enquiry whatever was made against the second accused under Chapter XVIII of the Criminal Procedure Code, he was not liable to any order of committal by the Sessions Court. B. EMPEROR v. BAI MAHALAXMI, 17 BOM. L. R. 910; 16 CR. L. J. 747 347

ss. 222 (2), 233—Misjoinder of different charges at one trial, legality of—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 409, 477A.

The charge against the accused was that he, being the tahsildar, embezzled a certain sum of money and further that he omitted to enter 120 arzisals with intent to defraud, and wrote on three of such arzisals false numbers with like intent. He was tried at one trial, for all these counts and convicted under sections 409 and 477 A, Indian Penal Code:

Held, that there was misjoinder of the various charges amounting to an illegality which vitiated the trial. A. KALKA PRASAD v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1059; 16 CR. L. J. 813 829

s. 227—Charge, addition of, in appeal—Added charge under section 143 Penal Code—Addition, whether valid—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 143, 426, 451.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

The addition by an Appellate Court to charges under sections 451 and 426 of a charge under section 143 of the Penal Code in appeal is not permissible inasmuch as the addition would have the effect of imposing a constructive responsibility for individual acts of all persons who were members at the time of the assembly.

The mere carrying of savali kalis will not be presumed to be unlawful, and in determining the object of an unlawful assembly, the Court must find that the accused had an intention to use criminal force or commit some other offence at all costs and were not acting in self-defence. M. In re MUKKA MUTHIRIVAM, 16 Cr. L. J. 737

337ss. 235, 236, 239—

Two separate charges—One trial—Misjoinder—Burden of proof—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 403—To "appropriate", meaning of—"Mi-appropriate", meaning of.

Where an accused person is charged of having deceived a canal officer in obtaining certain papers from him and also of having misappropriated a certain sum of money, the prosecution is entitled to ask the Court to go into both the charges at a single trial, provided it takes upon itself the burden of proving that the facts alleged against the accused, are in fact so connected together as to form parts of the same transaction, or to be otherwise triable at a single trial under the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

In connection with section 403, Indian Penal Code, the verb "to appropriate" means setting apart for or assigning to a particular person or use and to "misappropriate" means to set apart for or assign to the wrong person or a wrong use, and this act must be done dishonestly. A. SOHAN LAL v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1131; 16 Cr. L. J. 795

651ss. 235 (1), 236,

237, 403—Previous acquittal on a charge of abetment of forgery—Subsequent trial under s. 471, Penal Code, whether barred.

Where in a trial for an offence under section 471, Indian Penal Code, for using a promissory note as genuine knowing or having reason to believe that it was a forged document, it appeared that the accused had previously been tried for abetting the forgery of the same document under sections 467 and 109, Indian Penal Code, but had been acquitted:

Held, (1) that inasmuch as no doubt could have arisen in the first trial as to the offence constituted by the facts proved, the case did not fall within the scope of section 236 of the Criminal Procedure Code and, therefore, was not governed by sub-section (1) of section 403;

(2) that the series of acts beginning with the forgery and ending with the user of the forged document in a Civil Court to support a civil claim must be regarded as so connected together as to form the same transaction or carrying through of a single pre-determined plan, so that under section 235 (1) of the Code it would have been competent to try the accused for both offences at the same trial, and the case, therefore, fell under sub-section (2) of section 403;

(3) that the plea of autrefois acquit was bad also for the reason that the case fell under sub-section

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

(4) of section 403 of the Code, since the Court which acquitted the accused on the charge of abetment of forgery was not competent to try the offence under section 471, Indian Penal Code, inasmuch as at the time of the earlier trial no sanction for prosecution under section 471 had been given under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. B. JIVRAM DANKARJI v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 881; 16 Cr. L. J. 761

361

— — — — — s. 236 361, 651

— — — — — s. 237 361

— — — — — s. 239 651

— — — — — ss. 256, 257—Cross- examination of prosecution witnesses—Accused, right of—Charges framed, reasonable opportunity after, to be given to get legal assistance.

Where the charges framed are complicated and the accused are ignorant persons, a reasonable time should be given to the accused to get proper legal advice and assistance before they are called upon to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses.

It is not giving an accused person reasonable opportunity to ask him immediately, after the charge is framed, to cross-examine witnesses. M. RANGASAMI PADAVACHI, In re, 16 Cr. L. J. 786

642

— — — — — s. 257 642

— — — — — ss. 260, 530—District

Magistrate not empowered to try European British subjects—Summary trial by such Magistrate, whether valid.

Where a European British subject was convicted by the District Magistrate of Bangalore, who was also a Justice of the Peace, of an offence under section 8 of the Municipal By-law 3 after a summary trial under section 260 of the Criminal Procedure Code:

Held, that inasmuch as the District Magistrate was not empowered to try a European British subject summarily, his proceedings were void under section 530 of the Criminal Procedure Code. M. G. G. JERRIAH, In re, 2 L. W. 1078; 29 M. L. J. 758; (1915) M. W. N. 1023; 16 Cr. L. J. 773

373

— — — — — ss. 309, 537, cl. (a)

Irregularity—Trial before Sessions Judge—Conclusion of case—Second trial, legality of.

Section 537 clause (a), Criminal Procedure Code, cannot avail to cure the disobedience to an express provision as to a mode of trial.

Where a Sessions Judge held the trial of an accused up to the point of recording the Assessor's opinion but at the time of writing the judgment, finding that a charge had been improperly joined, ordered and held a new trial and convicted the accused:

Held, that the second trial was invalid as the Judge had no authority to cancel or set aside the trial which had originally been held and that the Judge had no option but to give the judgment in accordance with the Criminal Procedure Code. B. NATHU REWA v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 1074; 16 Cr. L. J. 824

1000

— — — — — s. 339 (2) 831

— — — — — s. 342—Written statement by accused, practice of filing, illegality of 164

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 342 (1) — Duty of Court to question accused—Omission to do so, effect of—Procedure

The provisions of section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code are imperative and must be strictly complied with. A failure to give the accused an opportunity of explaining the points against him is an illegality vitiating the whole trial.

Semle—In all criminal matters, the utmost strictness must be observed and forms must be clearly complied with where the liberty of the subject is at stake, when from the statute prescribing those forms it appears that they were presented by the Legislature in the interests of the accused. B. BASAPA NINGAPA v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 892; 16 Cr. L. J. 765 ss. 345, 423 (1) (d), 439—Composition, when can be effected—Order allowing composition, nature of—High Court, whether can allow composition in revision.

365

Section 345 of the Criminal Procedure Code is exhaustive of the circumstances and conditions under which composition can be effected.

An order allowing composition of an offence is not an incidental order within the meaning of clause (d) of section 423, Criminal Procedure Code.

An offence cannot be allowed to be compounded when the case comes before the High Court in revision. M. SANKAR RANGAYYA v. SANKAR RAMAYYA, 29 M. L. J. 521; 18 M. L. T. 381; 16 Cr. L. J. 780

350

s. 345 — Composition outside Court—Dispute between parties at time of hearing—Power of Court to take evidence—Monetary consideration, whether necessary.

A composition of a criminal case arrived at by the parties outside the Court comes within the terms of section 345 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and has the effect of an acquittal.

Where an offence has been compounded outside the Court, but subsequently at the time of hearing one of the parties resiles from the agreement, it is competent to the Court to take evidence as to the factum of the agreement and give effect to it if it be found to have been entered into.

No monetary consideration is necessary to make the composition valid; it is enough if there is a quid pro quo between the parties to support it. M. MAHOMED KANNI v. PATTANI INAYATHULLA SARIB, 2 L. W. 1200; 18 M. L. T. 608; 16 Cr. L. J. 803

819

s. 367 1008
s. 370 (1) — Duty of Presidency Magistrate to give reasons for convicting accused—Reasons not given—Judgment, effect of.

Section 370, clause (i), of the Criminal Procedure Code requires that there should be a statement of the reasons which induce a Presidency Magistrate to believe the evidence for the prosecution.

Where, therefore, a Chief Presidency Magistrate convicted an accused, inflicting imprisonment and merely recording the following judgment:

"I convict accused. I believe the evidence of complainant and the witnesses for the prosecution."

Held, that the judgment did not satisfy the requirements of clause (i) of section 370 of the Code. B. SHANKAR RAMDAS v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 890; 16 Cr. L. J. 771

371

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

ss. 374, 376—Murder case—Trial by Jury—Reference—Appeal—High Court—Practice—Confirmation of sentence.

Batchelor, J.—In the Bombay High Court where a prisoner has been sentenced to death, even though the conviction was had on the unanimous verdict of a Jury, the whole case is re-opened before the High Court both on matters of fact as well as on matters of law.

Hayward, J.—In the High Court in murder cases it is always necessary to consider the evidence in support of the facts found by the Jury in order to ascertain that there had been no misdirection in the charge to the Jury and to determine whether it would or would not be proper in all the circumstances to confirm the sentence of death passed by the Sessions Judge. B. EMPEROR v. DADI YESARA, 17 Bom. L. R. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 818

994

s. 376

994

ss. 380, 408, 562

—Proceedings submitted to First Class Magistrate—Sentence by that Magistrate—Appeal, where lies.

Where proceedings are submitted to a First Class Magistrate under section 562 of the Criminal Procedure Code and he passes sentence in the case under section 380, the conviction must, for the purposes of appeal, be considered to be within the meaning of section 408 of the Code and the order is appealable to the Sessions Court. B. EMPEROR v. BHIMAPPA ULVAPPA, 17 Bom. L. R. 895; 16 Cr. L. J. 738

338

s. 403

361

s. 422

1008

ss. 423, 422, 367,

537 (a)—Appeal, dismissal of, after notice—Judgment, omission to write, effect of.

In an appeal dismissed not summarily but under section 423 of the Criminal Procedure Code after notice given under section 422, it is incumbent under section 424 on the Magistrate to deliver a judgment which should fulfil the conditions laid down in section 367; in other words, the judgment must contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision.

Section 537 (a) cannot be invoked in a case in which the Court is concerned not with any omission or irregularity in a judgment but with the absence of a judgment. B. DEVENDRA SHIVAPPA LINBENAVAR v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 1085; 16 Cr. L. J. 832

1008

s. 423 (1) (d) 350

s. 424—Rioting—Omission to consider case of each accused separately, effect of.

In a case of rioting where the Magistrate has failed to consider the question whether the evidence regarding each individual accused is sufficient to show that he participated in the rioting, the conviction is bad and liable to be set aside. M. In re BAFU NAIDU, 2 L. W. 958; 16 Cr. L. J. 735

175

ss. 435, 439—Complaint dismissed by District Magistrate under s. 203, Criminal Procedure Code—No revision to Sessions Court—Revision to High Court direct, if competent.

It is not an inflexible rule that no revision lies to the High Court unless the party has first applied to the Sessions Court.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

The jurisdiction conferred by the Criminal Procedure Code on the High Court is wide and it ought not to be fettered by any hard and fast rule.

M. BASAVANA GOWD v. KRISHNA RAO NAIDU, 2 L. W. 1126; 16 Cr. L. J. 794 650

s. 439 337, 350, 367, 650

s. 476 993

ss. 476, 195—Forgery,

not by party to any judicial proceeding—Proceedings, if maintainable.

Section 476, Criminal Procedure Code, applies only where the offences mentioned in section 195, Criminal Procedure Code, are committed by the person or in the circumstances mentioned therein.

Therefore a Munsif has no jurisdiction to take action under section 476 against the executant and attestors of a document found to be forged who were not parties to any proceeding before the Court. M. In re KALLAMARU RAMALINGAM, 18 M. L. J. 498; 2 L. W. 1135; 16 Cr. L. J. 797 653

s. 476—Judicial proceeding—Statement made to District Magistrate in his executive capacity, if complaint—Oath, administration of.

P, a village headman made a petition to the District Magistrate in which he stated that he wished to resign his post as the headman. On enquiry by the District Magistrate as to the reason of his resignation, he stated that during the course of a Police investigation in a dacoity case, the Police were forcing a large number of people to pay money to them. The Magistrate reduced his statement to writing and sent for the persons named by him. The Magistrate recorded the statements of all of them on oath and sent the case to the Police Superintendent to take action under paragraph 288 of the Police Regulations. The Superintendent reported that the allegations were entirely false. The District Magistrate then ordered the prosecution of P and other persons whom he had examined on oath for giving false evidence.

Held, that the statement made by P to the District Magistrate was not a complaint, nor the action taken by the Magistrate was in the course of a judicial proceeding, in the course of which he was legally empowered to administer an oath, and that, therefore, the Magistrate had no power to take action under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code. A. BHOLE SINGH v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1050; 16 Cr. L. J. 807 823

s. 512 359

s. 512—Accused absconding—No finding by Magistrate that there was no immediate prospect of his arrest—Arrest—Statements of witnesses examined in absence of accused, admissibility of—Conviction, legality of.

A murder was committed in 1897. The accused ran away at that time and was not heard of till he was arrested in 1915. The witnesses were examined in 1897 on behalf of the prosecution to prove the commission of the offence by the accused. The Magistrate, however, did not record any finding that in his opinion the accused had absconded and that there was no immediate prospect of his arrest. The accused was convicted on the evidence recorded in 1897:

Criminal Procedure Code—concl'd.

Held, that the evidence given in 1897 was inadmissible to prove the guilt of the accused and that the conviction was bad. A. RUSTOM v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 801 817

s. 517—Orders under section, nature of—Discretion—Power of High Court to interfere.

Orders under section 517 of the Criminal Procedure Code are discretionary, but the discretion is open to correction where it has been exercised in violation of accepted judicial principles.

Where, therefore, in a trial for a criminal breach of trust, it appeared that the accused had transferred one of the misappropriated currency notes to the petitioner, and on the conviction of the accused the trying Magistrate ordered the note to be returned to the Crown:

Held, that this was a case for the application of the general rule that property in a currency note passes by mere delivery and that there being no allegation of fraud or bad faith on the part of the petitioner, he was entitled to retain it. B. In re PANDHARINATH PUNDLIK REVANKAR, 17 Bom. L. R. 922; 16 Cr. L. J. 783 383

s. 517 (1)—Order as to disposal of property, when to be made—Order, whether justifiable when no offence committed.

A Court can pass an order under section 517 (1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure as regards the disposal of property only if it appears that an offence has been committed with respect to it, or that it has been used for the commission of an offence.

Where, therefore, an accused was found to be a habitual thief and was bound down for good behaviour, but it did not appear that any offence had been committed with respect to the property in dispute which the accused claimed as his own:

Held, that no order could be passed under section 517 (1) of the Criminal Procedure Code as to the property. M. In re GOVINDARAJA PADAYACHI, 16 Cr. L. J. 811 627

s. 520—Powers of High

Court as to disposal of property.

Section 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code gives a High Court ample powers to pass any order as to disposal of property which may be just on the facts of the case. M. RAMAMANI v. KANAKASABAI, 16 Cr. L. J. 813 629

ss. 523, 524 498

s. 530 373

s. 533 340

s. 537 (a) 1000,

1008

s. 562—Offences of cheating and using as genuine a forged document, whether covered by the section.

Section 562 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not in terms applicable to convictions of cheating and thereby dishonestly inducing delivery of property under section 420 or of using as genuine a forged document under section 471 of the Indian Penal Code. B. EMPEROR v. RAMJAN DADUDHAI, 17 Bom. L. R. 921; 16 Cr. L. J. 781 381

Custom. See CUTCHI MEMONS; HINDU LAW.

—, allegation as to, nature of—Issue as to custom, contents of—Pleadings in India—Practice—Issue, ambiguity as to, when can be raised—Hindu Law—Joint family—Impartible zemindari—Members living separately in different houses in same compound, how far evidence of division—Separate possession and enjoyment of property and discontinuance of allowances by zemindar, if evidence of partition—Inheritance—Succession to impartible zemindari—Illegitimate son, widow and step-brother of deceased, contest between—Preference—Separate property of zemindar—Illegitimate son and widow, if share equally—Release by mother of Hindu minor—Consideration inadequate—No independent advice—Absence of dispute—Validity of release—Family settlement—Custom—Gandharva form of marriage, if valid among Kambala caste—Illegitimate son, right of, to share in his father's property in Kambala caste—Illegitimate son, share of, measure of.

Though, as a general rule, a party who relies upon a custom, must allege it with distinctness and certainty, it is not possible or desirable in India in all cases to pin down the parties to the precise form of their pleadings.

The mere fact that a defendant did not object to witnesses for the plaintiff giving evidence in support of a custom set up in a case, does not estop him from objecting to similar evidence being given by another witness on a subsequent date on the ground that it was "beyond the scope of the case in the face of the wording" of the issue on the point.

As a matter of scientific pleading, an issue in a case regarding a custom set up therein and the allegations in the plaint on which the issue is based, ought to contain particulars of the custom upon which the plaintiff seeks to rely at the trial.

Though in cases where an issue is ambiguous and capable of a wider as well as a narrower interpretation and the parties have, in their conduct of the case in its earlier stages, interpreted it in the narrower sense, they will not afterwards be permitted to contend at the latest stage of the case that the wider interpretation ought to be followed; yet where the contention is raised at an earlier stage, it is desirable to give the parties an opportunity of contesting the case upon the wider interpretation of the issue.

Separate living of different branches of a joint Hindu family in different houses in the same compound is no evidence of division among the branches. It does not inevitably follow from separate possession and enjoyment of property that the family is divided, nor does discontinuance of allowances which have been paid to members of his family by a zemindar justify that conclusion.

Where the last holder of an impartible zemindari belonging to a joint Hindu Sudra family died leaving behind him a widow, an illegitimate son and his step-brother:

Held, that so far as the zemindari was concerned the illegitimate son was excluded by the brother of the deceased zemindar but that as regards the separate property of the zemindar not forming part of the zemindari, the illegitimate son was entitled to share equally with the widow.

Custom—contd.

The mother of a Hindu minor, purporting to act as his guardian, relinquished his claim to a zemindari which was of considerable value, on receipt of comparatively insignificant properties. It did not appear that she had obtained any legal advice as to the right of the minor to the zemindari. At the time this arrangement was made, there was no active dispute or question raised as to the minor's title to the zemindari.

Held, that the release was not binding on the minor as it was beyond the powers of the guardian and that it was not valid even as a family settlement.

There is no custom obtaining among the Kambala caste excluding an illegitimate son from inheriting property which would devolve upon him under the ordinary law.

A plaintiff suing for exclusive possession of a zemindari can be given a decree for the share he may be found entitled to in the separate property of the zemindar.

(Per Miller, J.) Quere.—Whether the gandharva form of marriage is regarded as legal by the custom obtaining among the people belonging to the Kambala caste?

Per Abdur Rahim, J.—The gandharva form of marriage is not valid among the Kambala caste people.

Where a certain caste among the Hindus has long given up a particular irregular form of marriage and has been consistently adopting other more regular forms, the Courts are not obliged to recognise the validity of the obsolete form in that caste. M. VISWANATHASWAMI NAICKER v. KAMPU AMMAL, 2 L. W. 1214; (1915) M. W. N. 968.

833

—, connotation of 927

—Grant of dashbandham rights, validity of 565

—Reversioners, suit by—Exclusion of daughters—Land not proved to be ancestral—Burden of proof—Riwaj-i-am, entry in, effect of.

In a suit by reversioners against widows and daughters of a deceased collateral for declaration of their claim to the estate of the deceased in exclusion of daughters if the land is not proved to be ancestral qua reversioners, the onus lies very heavily upon them to show that they would exclude the daughters.

The riwaj-i-am, in the absence of any clear statement to the contrary, is considered to apply to ancestral and not self-acquired property. Hence an entry in the riwaj-i-am to the effect that daughters are excluded by collaterals is useless in a case where the property in dispute has not been proved to be ancestral. P. LELU c. RAM CHAND, 174 P. W. R. 1915.

294

—Alienation—Gujars of Gujar Khan Tahsil, Rawalpindi District—Alienation by Will of whole property by sonless proprietor to mother and her brother in presence of collaterals, validity of—Suit for declaration, maintainability of—Custom, proof of—Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (I of 1900), Art. 1.

Among Gujars of Gujar Khan Tahsil in the Rawalpindi District, a bequest of the whole of his property by a sonless Gujar to his mother and his maternal uncle in the presence of the collaterals, is invalid.

Custom—contd.

In a suit for a declaration by the collaterals of a person to the effect that the Will made by him of the whole of his property in favour of his mother and maternal uncle was invalid and would not affect the plaintiffs' rights after the death or remarriage of the mother, it was contended that the plaintiffs' suit was barred by time inasmuch as the Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act of 1900 did not deal with a suit such as the present which was launched only after the death of the alienor.

Held, overruling the objection, that the suit might adequately be described as a suit for a declaration that the alienation effected by the donor was void except for his life-time and that the alienation by Will would not affect the reversionary rights of the plaintiffs.

Custom is a fact which must be proved by authoritative pronouncement or by instances in which it has been followed; it cannot be established by dialectics. P. GULAB KHAN v. CHIRAGH BIBI 909

Alienation—Sindh Jats of Mauza

Khalra, Tahsil Kasur, District Lahore—Gift in favour of step-son, whether valid in presence of collaterals of 4th degree—Ancestral property.

Among Sindh Jats of Mauza Khalra, Tahsil Kasur, of the Lahore District a proprietor cannot make a valid gift of ancestral property in favour of a step-son of a different got in the presence of collaterals of the 4th degree. P. NATHA SINGH v. GANDA SINGH, 95 P. R. 1915; 175 P. W. R. 1915 493

by widow—Daughter, power of, to contest—Burden of proof—Jat Sikhs of Jullundur District—Remand, technically permissible but useless, whether allowed—Practice.

The power to contest an alienation by a widow is usually vested in agnates, which a daughter is not.

Where, therefore, a daughter claims the power by custom to contest an alienation by her widowed mother, of property formerly belonging to her father, the onus lies on the daughter to prove such custom.

A remand which is technically permissible but is not expected to serve any useful purpose is not to be allowed. P. PARTAP v. HAZARA SINGH 794

Succession—Appointment of heir—

Succession to natural father, general rule of—Riwaj-i-am, entry in, whether instances necessary to give effect to—Collaterals, exclusion of—Pleadings—New defence, whether can be raised in appeal.

A recital in the riwaj-i-am of a particular custom opposed to general custom and unsupported by instances, is insufficient to prove the existence of that custom.

A clause in the riwaj-i-am provided that when a man was adopted and subsequently his brothers died without issue, the adoptee could succeed to his natural father's estate only in the absence of brothers and nephews of his natural father.

Held, that the recital of the custom in the riwaj-i-am was opposed to general custom and unsupported by instances and, therefore, insufficient to prove its existence.

According to the Customary Law of the Punjab, in the absence of all other lineal male descendants of the natural father, an adoptee succeeds his natural father to the exclusion of the collaterals of that father.

Custom—contd.

In cases where an entry in riwaj-i-am has been attested by people for whom it has been prepared, the Courts have to see what the real custom is and not what the people think to be the custom.

A party is entitled to advance any argument even in appeal for the first time which might enable him to prevent the other party from getting a decree. P. DEWA SINGH v. LEHNA SINGH, 8 P. W. R. 1916 740

Succession—Daughter of Rau of Jamal Patti of Mauza Lala Darya in Multan District marrying her first cousin—Other first cousins, if excluded.

There is no custom whereby the daughter of a Rau of Jamal Patti of Mauza Lala Darya, by reason of her marriage with her first cousin, excludes her other first cousins from succession to her father's estate. P. SAHIB ZADI v. ALLAH BAKHSI & Co., 161 P. W. R. 1915 863

Intestate succession among Amins of Lahore—Brothers and their sons, rights of, as against widow and daughter's sons 633

Pagwand—Chundawand—Mouza Kakrola, Delhi Tahsil.

Among the Jats of Mouza Kakrola in the Delhi Tahsil chundawand and not pagwand is the rule of succession. P. SHEER SINGH v. SALIG, 72 P. R. 1915; 149 P. W. R. 1915 241

Self-acquired property—Paternal aunt's son, whether has preferential right to a near agnate—Onus probandi.

The paternal aunt's son has not, in any tribe in the Punjab, prima facie a better right of succession than a near agnate, even where the property is self-acquired and the onus is on him to prove such right. P. ALLAH DIN v. SALAM DIN, 96 P. R. 1915; 169 P. W. R. 1915 497

Self-acquired property—Kakezai Sheikhs of Hoshiarpur—Sister—Collaterals—Onus probandi—Muhammadan Law, whether can be pleaded in second appeal.

Among Kakezai Sheikhs of Hoshiarpur a collateral cannot oust a sister or her descendants from property which was acquired by her brother and has, after his death, come into her possession.

Where the plaintiffs based their claim to succeed upon a special custom but having failed to establish it sought to rely upon their personal law:

Held, that the plaintiffs could not in second appeal ask the Court to decide the case upon the basis of Muhammadan Law. P. TUFEL MUHAMMAD v. SHAHAB DIN, 67 P. R. 1915; 142 P. W. R. 1915 85

Sials of Jhang District—Ancestral property—Daughter's preference to collaterals in 10th degree—Power of daughter to alienate by Will—Sister, status of.

Among Sials of the Jhang District, a daughter is entitled to succeed in preference to collaterals in the 10th degree and can alienate ancestral property by Will, the collaterals having no right to contest such alienation.

A sister, though intended to inherit, does not take a full estate and cannot alienate. P. MUHAMMAD BAKHSI v. MUHAMMAD, 90 P. R. 1915; 170 P. W. R. 1915 533

Cutchi Memons—Custom—Personal law—Hindu Law—Muhammadan Law—Presumption—Will—Gift—Bequest—Interpretation—Disposition of whole property, power of—Conversion to Muhammadanism, effect of—Law, uniformity and certainty of—Courts, policy of—Joint Hindu family—Power of disposition by Will—Succession and inheritance, distinction between—Custom, revocation of—Trusts and life-estates in Muhammadan Law—Evidence of members of Bar, value of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 48.

The Cutchi Memons have acquired by custom the power of disposing of the whole of their property by Will.

The Cutchi Memons have never adopted as part of their Customary Law the Hindu Law of the joint family, as a whole, or the distinction existing in that law between ancestral family, and joint family and self-acquired, property.

The Cutchi Memons are subject by custom to the Hindu law of succession and inheritance as it would apply to the case of an intestate separated Hindu possessed of self-acquired property, and no more.

A Will by a Cutchi Memon recited—

(1) The executors "shall out of my 'punji' set apart three lacs," etc., "shall spend according to law the said sum or certain portions thereof in connection with some good works of charity in such manner as they may think just and proper such as sanitarium, sarad-khana (lying-in-hospital), misafarkhana (resting house for travellers), madressas (schools), scholarships, dharamshalas, medical dispensaries, etc., (i. e.), in connection with any such khairat (that is, charity work), that is in connection with such different works of charity."

(2) "Should no son be born to me agreeably to what is written above or should (one) be born (and) should (he) die without leaving a son or heir, . . . then as regards my whatever 'punji' there may be left, they shall utilize the whole of the said 'punji' or portions thereof in such manner as they in their discretion think proper in connection with the above-mentioned or any other good works of 'khairat' (charity)."

Held, that the Will was a good and valid Will in all respects, and that the bequests to charity were neither void for uncertainty nor bad under the Muhammadan Law as offending against the radical principle that a gift must be made in presenti and not conditioned in futuro.

On conversion to Muhammadanism, converts, no matter what their previous religion may have been, must be taken at that moment to have renounced all their former religions and personal law in so far as the latter flowed from and was inextricably bound up with their religion, and to have substituted for it the religion of Muhammad with so much of the personal law as necessarily flows from that religion.

The Wills of Cutchi Memons must be interpreted, where interpretation is necessary, in the light of the Muhammadan rather than of the Hindu Law. Where therefore, it is a question whether a devise by a Cutchi Memon is good or bad, the answer must depend upon whether it conforms in essentials with the requirements of the Muhammadan Law of gift.

A Court should rather look to uniformity of legal decisions than to nice logical or philosophical accuracy. Policy requires that there should be continuity in legal decisions for nothing can be worse than keeping the law in perpetual uncertainty and so perhaps unsettling title, which have for many years been supposed to be thoroughly sound and marketable.

Cutchi Memons—concl'd.

Muhammadans must, in the first instance, be presumed to be governed by the Muhammadan Law.

Bequests by Will are after all only gifts to take effect upon the death of the donor, and as such originally belong to the law of gift.

The power of disposing by Will of a man's property can have no logical connection whatever with the Hindu Law of the joint family.

Obiter.—As the adoption of a custom is by the volition of the party adopting, so it is equally in their volition to abandon any such custom and once again place themselves strictly under their proper unmodified law.

The distinction of the English Law between succession and inheritance does not exist in India.

Trusts are utterly unknown to the Muhammadan Law and so, too, is the power of creating a succession of life-estates.

Query.—Whether the making of Wills is part of the law of succession and inheritance?

Query.—Whether on the question of sects of Muhammadans having adopted special customs of the Hindu Law, the opinion of the Bar is relevant under section 48 of the Indian Evidence Act? B. ADVOCATE GENERAL v. JIMBARAI, 17 Bom. L. R. 799 106

Damages—Breach of contract to make plaintiff a partner 73

—Covenant of title, breach of—Limitation 877

—Duty of Chairman to register voters—Acting "in good faith," meaning of—Liability in damages—Test 322

—Land acquisition—Right of owner to compensation for injury done 259

—Malicious prosecution, damages for, suit for Proof essential—Damages, when awarded—Principle 324

—Malicious prosecution, suit for 246

—Mortgage-debt, transfer of—Covenant, implied, for title—Breach of covenant for title—Suit for damages, maintainability of—Cause of action, when arises—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55 179

Damdapat, rule of, applicable to mortgages under Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882.)

In the Calcutta High Court, the uniform rule has been to disallow as between Hindus interest larger than the amount of principal in making up a mortgage account.

The rule of damdapat is applicable to mortgages under the Transfer of Property Act. C. KUNJA LAL BANERJI v. NARSAMBA DEBI, 42 C. 826; 20 C. W. N. 110 6

Debt. See HINDU LAW.

—Assignment of debt Debtor's assent communicated to assignee—Debtor, whether can subsequently plead any claim or charge 152

Debtor and Creditor—Agency 215

Decree. See AMENDMENT OF DECREE; CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 2 2).

directing execution of conveyance—Time fixed by decree subsequently extended—No payment of money in time—Decree-holder, if entitled to obtain conveyance.

A decree directed the judgment-debtor to execute a conveyance on payment by the decree-holder of a sum of money within one month. The decree-holder obtained an extension of time, but within that period as well he could not make the payment. Thereafter he applied to the Court to direct the judgment-debtor to execute the conveyance.

Held, that as the application was made beyond the period fixed in the decree, it was ineffective and the judgment-debtor was within his rights in refusing the execution of the conveyance. M. SHANMUGHAM ASARI v. SYED NATHAN SAHIB 457 prepared at variance with judgment—Remedy—Procedure—Amendment—Appellate Court, exercise of power of amendment by.

Where a mortgage decree is wrongly drafted as a money-decree, the proper course for an aggrieved party is to apply to the Court which passed the decree for its amendment in order to bring it in conformity with the judgment. An Appellate Court would not exercise that power when it would be inconvenient to do so. M. UPADHAYAYEE v. YEGNANARAYANA v. KOTTALANKA MAHAYIA, (1915) M. W. N. 914 478 against several defendants at different times—Consolidated decree—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 14, 18.

A decree for money may be passed against different defendants at different times, and the decrees so passed are not treated as one consolidated decree.

An application by a judgment-debtor to record satisfaction of a decree made by him more than three years from the date of the decree as against him is barred, even though it may be within three months from the date of a revised decree as against defendants other than himself. The two decrees cannot be consolidated for purposes of limitation as one. M. SAMBASIVA AYYAR v. MUHAMMAD HUSSAIN 911

, suit to set aside, on ground of fraud 13

Defamation—Defamatory words published in course of official duties—Reasonable and probable cause—Prohibition of illegal business—Action, right of 224

Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), s. 22, scope of—

Immunity of agriculturists' house from sale, extent of. The true construction of section 22 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act is, first, a general provision that immovable property belonging to an agriculturist shall be immune from sale, and secondly, a proviso directing that this immunity is subject to exception where the two following conditions are both satisfied, that is to say, (a) where the decree or order in question relates to the re-payment of a debt, and (b) where the agriculturist's property has been specifically mortgaged for the re-payment of that debt. The limiting words in the section referring to a debt occur only in the proviso and cannot be imported into the main rule so as to restrict its express generality. B. MAHADEV RAGHUNATH v. RAMA TUKARAM, 17 Bom. L. R. 962 305

Deposit in Government Treasury—Suit for recovery—Limitation 277

Divorce. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), s. 10—Dissolution of marriage—Desertion—Adultery, admission of, when not sufficient—Delay in filing petition, effect of.

The petitioner and the respondent were married on the 12th August 1890. They lived together till May 1892 when the petitioner left the respondent owing to his intemperate habits. Since then, they never met. The respondent who was in the Indian army, left the army and went to England. In 1911 the petitioner obtained his address from the War Office and wrote to him in reply to this, he wrote: "you ask me if I have ever misconducted myself with any woman since you and I parted. I have misconducted myself with several women since I parted with you, but I will not give you their names for obvious reasons." The petitioner thereupon sued for divorce on the ground of adultery coupled with desertion:

Held, (Fox, C. J., dissenting.) that the admission in the letter was not sufficient proof of adultery.

Held, also, that under the circumstances, there was no abandonment against her wish.

Per Fox, C. J.—Disinclination from religious motives cannot be regarded as sufficient excuse for not taking action for obtaining the remedy which the law provides for an injured wife and for delaying presenting a petition.

Per Parlett, J.—A wife who seeks to prove desertion, must give evidence of conduct on her part showing unmistakably that such desertion was against her wish actively expressed. The husband must have wilfully absented himself from her in spite of her wish.

Subsequent conduct cannot transform what was a voluntary separation into desertion by the husband. L. B. GLANCY v. GLANCY, 8 L. B. R. 264 ss. 17, 37, 44—Decree for dissolution of marriage passed by Divisional Judge and confirmed by High Court—Application for alimony—Jurisdiction.

Where a decree for dissolution of marriage passed by a Divisional Judge was confirmed by the High Court under section 17 of the Divorce Act and the successful petitioner applied to the High Court for an order for payment of alimony:

Held, (1) that the Court which was empowered to make the order either for alimony or for the maintenance and education of the children was the Court of the Divisional Judge and not the High Court;

(2) that in view of the nature of the High Court's jurisdiction the Court of the Divisional Judge was not a subordinate Court within the meaning of section 24(1) (a) of the Civil Procedure Code and the High Court could not transfer the proceedings to the Divisional Court for disposal. B. MINNIE WALLACE v. ARTHUR WALLACE, 17 Bom. L. R. 948 331

ss. 37, 44 331
Easement—Customary right in nature of easement—Right of burial.

Where a particular grove land was used by the family of the Muhammadan residents of a village as burial ground;

Easement—concl.

Held, that the right claimed by them was not an easement but a "customary right in the nature of an easement." A. MATHURA PRASAD v. KARIM BAKSH, 13 A. L. J. 1024

805

Right of way—Several servient owners—Obstruction by one—Other servient owners, if necessary parties—Enjoyment by tenant, if enjoyment by owner—Permanent tenure-holder, if can acquire right against another under same landlord—"Adhin" in road cess, meaning of—Severance of tenement—Grant—Presumption.

Where a way passes over different parcels of land owned by different persons and the owner of one parcel obstructs the way on his own land and the owners of the remaining parcels do not raise any obstruction nor even deny the dominant owner's right, the latter are neither necessary parties nor can be joined in a suit for a declaration of his right of way by the dominant owner against the servient owner who obstructs the way.

An enjoyment of easement by a tenant in possession of the dominant tenement under a claim of right in respect of the dominant heritage, may give the owner a prescriptive right.

The word "adhin" used in the road cess return means "appertaining to" and not "subordinate" to the houla.

Quære:—Whether a permanent tenure-holder can acquire a prescriptive right of way against another permanent tenure-holder under the same landlord?

The plaintiffs purchased the dominant tenement some 60 years before the suit after a partition between their vendors and their co-sharers. A way was in existence from beyond that time. The path was intended to be permanently attached to and for the use of the would-be dominant tenement.

Held, that there was the presumption of an implied grant on severance of the two tenements.

Held, further, that assuming that the way came into existence only after the partition, the fact that the tenant in possession of one tenement had been using the path over the other for about 60 years, would lead to the inference that the user had its origin in a grant not as a matter of legal presumption, but a grant which may be found as an inference of fact.

On a severance of a property a grant of a right of way of necessity by the owner of one of the severed portions to the owner of the other can be presumed. C. MADAN MOHAN v. SASHI BHUSAN, 19 C. W. N. 1211 scope of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 26—Prescriptive easement, acquisition of—Peaceable and open enjoyment, meaning of—Verbal dispute by servient owner, whether prevents enjoyment by dominant owner from being peaceable.

549

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 15,

Mere verbal disputes by a servient owner, which do not cause interruption or obstruction to the enjoyment of an easement by the dominant owner, do not prevent its enjoyment from being peaceable so as to bar the acquisition of a prescriptive title thereto.

Knowledge and acquiescence on the part of a servient owner are not necessary for the acquisition of a prescriptive easement under the Limitation Act.

Easements Act—concl.

Per Sadashira Aiyar, J.—The expression "peaceable enjoyment" means that the dominant owner has neither been obliged to resort to physical force himself at any time to exercise his right within the 20 years expiring within two years of the suit, nor had he been prevented by the use of physical force by the servient owner in his enjoyment.

Sections 26 and 27 of the Limitation Act do not apply to cases arising in territories to which the Indian Easements Act, 1882, applies.

Section 15 of the Indian Easements Act, is only remedial in nature and is neither prohibitory nor exhaustive. It does not exclude or interfere with other titles and modes of acquiring easements. Where open enjoyment has taken place for a long series of years, title by prescription is acquired independently of the Statute and a suit to establish the right can be brought within 12 years after the obstruction.

An easement by statutory prescription cannot be acquired under section 15, paragraph 5, of the Indian Easements Act unless and until the claim thereto has been contested in a suit.

Per Bakerell, J.—The words "peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person" occurring in the third paragraph of section 15 of the Indian Easements Act, mean that the person who claims a right over the property of another must not have deprived him of that right by the use of force or secretly, or in other words, the use must be "nec vi nec clam." The words "peaceably" and "openly" indicate the manner in which the dominant owner must conduct himself in his use or enjoyment of the servient tenement. The conduct of the servient owner is immaterial, except so far as it goes to show the nature of the user by the dominant owner. M. MUTHE GOUNDAN v. ANANTHA GOUNDAN, 29 M. L. J. 685; 18 M. L. T. 476; 2 L. W. 1107

528

s. 47—Right of Government to claim water cess for water flowing through pattah land—Classification of bed as poramboke, if essential—Right to easement as against Government, when and how acquired—Burden of proof.

Water flowing in a continuous manner through a rill, kuttai and another water-course may form a natural stream in which easement rights may be acquired as against Government.

Once the existence of an easement is proved as against Government, it is for Government to show under section 47 of the Easements Act that it interrupted that easement more than 20 years ago or that the plaintiff rendered its use impossible. Mere failure on the plaintiff's part to repair the breach would not amount to obstruction by the servient owner or rendering the use impossible by the dominant owner.

If the Government wish to claim right to water which flows through pattah land, they can do it only when they classify the bed separately as poramboke, otherwise the bed also remains the property of the ryot. M. KALIYANNA MUDALI v. SECRETARY OF STATE

982

Ejectment. See LESSOR AND LESSEE.

— Abadi land

307 — Insufficient notice—Ex parte decree—Examination of process-server, necessity of—Material irregularity—Revision

479

— Lease

590

Ejectment—concl.

— Suit by mortgagor before obtaining decree in redemption suit, maintainability of.

A suit for ejectment brought by the mortgagor of a zemindari share during the pendency of the redemption suit and before his obtaining a redemption decree is premature and not maintainable. U. P. B. R. ALI BUX v. PARKASH NAD 454 — Suit for—Pro forma defendant, relief not claimed against—Decree against him, validity of.

An order of ejectment against a pro forma defendant against whom no relief was asked as he was alleged to have no connection with the land in dispute, is not bad when that person's rights have been threshed out and he has been found to be a non-occupancy tenant. U. P. B. R. GANGA CHARAN v. MANCHI PRASAD 861

— Tenancies created by mortgagee in possession, whether binding on mortgagor—Mortgagor, right of 630

Enhancement, suit for, dismissal of—Fresh suit, if maintainable—Exemplar area, extent of.

A dismissal of a suit for enhancement of rent is no bar to the filing of a fresh suit in a subsequent year.

An exemplar area should not be confined to a single-holding area but should extend to an extent sufficient to make certain that the rates arrived at are really prevailing rates. U. P. B. R. BADEMI PRASAD v. RAM CHARAN 866

Escheat—Crown, suit by—Burden of proof as to failure of heirs—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 13—Ejectment—Lease—Relationship—Gotra.

Per Wallis, C. J.—In a suit by the Government for ejectment of the defendant on the ground of escheat, it lies upon the Crown to prove at least prima facie that the deceased died without heirs, and it cannot rely upon the want of title of the party in possession.

The fact that in another contested suit a party has failed to prove the relationship of his line with the deceased is evidence against the existence of the right of that line as heirs of the deceased and is relevant under section 13 of the Evidence Act.

Where a lessee is in possession, the plaintiff to succeed in a suit in ejectment need not sue to set aside the lease.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—It is the common gotra that determines relationship between the parties, and not the use of a common family name.

When once the Crown establishes prima facie that the deceased died without heirs, the burden is shifted on to the party in possession to show that he is in the line of heirs. M. SECRETARY OF STATE v. SUBBAYA KARANTHA, 18 M. L. T. 504; 2 L. W. 1175; (1915) M. W. N. 962 590

Estoppel—Reversioner's consent—Question of legal inference 487

— Share-holder—Company—Director acting as such for many years 595

— Suit compromised—Sale—Application to set aside—Party compromising suit, if can urge setting aside of sale entirely.

A party who enters into a compromise is not estopped from contending that a sale in the suit, if set aside at the instance of another party, should be set aside in its entirety. C. ICCHAMONI DAS v. OSUNNO KUMAR MONDAL 858

Evidence—Birth-day books, admissibility of—Conditions—Husband—Evidence as to wife's age—Affidavit, previous, admissibility of.

The birth-day books are admissible in evidence under the Straits Settlement Ordinance No. 3 of 1893 as under the Indian Evidence Act, if the parol evidence concerning them is accepted.

Where a husband's statement as to his wife's age is admissible for what it was worth, an affidavit in which he had sworn to the same date previously before the controversy is admissible in evidence. P. C. CHUAN HOON GNON NEON v. KHAW SIM BEE, 19 C. W. N. 787 637

— Chittas—Observations of High Court as to probative values of chittas in another case, how far to be followed by lower Courts—Chittas, when private and public documents 695

— Criminal Court, findings of, whether admissible as evidence in Civil suit 789

— Inadmissibility in evidence of documents when not material—Finding of fact—Second appeal—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41.

The inadmissibility of a document supporting a debt is not material where the defendant has admitted having received the money borrowed by him.

A finding that defendant has not made any repayments, cannot be disturbed in second appeal. P. FAZL AHMAD v. JIWAN MAL, 178 P. W. R. 1915 800

— Petition embodying terms of compromise incorporated with judicial record Registration, whether compulsory 531

— Unregistered lease-deed, if admissible to prove rent fixed 604

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 8, 21—Statement of executant considerable time after execution, weight of—Construction of documents—Subsequent conduct, effect of—Ancient document—Gift to wife absolutely—Unambiguous deed—Draft deed prepared long before execution, admissibility of.

A statement made by a person as to the circumstances under which he executed a document a considerable time after the execution, cannot be admitted to prove the facts stated by him.

Except in the case of ancient documents the construction of a document whose terms are clear cannot be controlled by the subsequent conduct of the parties.

Where a person delivered his property absolutely to his wife and said that she was to enjoy the property from generation to generation:

Held, that the document created an absolute interest in favour of the wife.

A draft deed prepared long before a similar unambiguous deed is executed, is inadmissible to construe the latter deed. M. NABASAMMA HEGADTHI v. BILLA KESU PUJARI, 25 M. L. J. 637 543

— S. 13 590

— ss. 13, 35, 83—Chittas, if admissible in evidence—Entry in public registers, relevancy of—Bengal Survey Act (V of 1875), ss. 41, 63.

Where chittas were prepared by Government as only part of and in explanation of proceedings which were regularly taken for the assessment of rent upon lands said to be improperly held rent-free and where the whole of the proceedings together with the petition, under which the proceedings were initiated, and the reports of the Collector and the orders of the Board of Revenue were put in evidence:

Evidence Act—contd.

Held, that all the papers taken together furnished a valuable evidence.

Held, also, that the chittas were admissible in evidence inasmuch as they were coupled with proceedings which were of the nature of resumption proceedings and the lands therein were identifiable.

An entry in a register prescribed by law and being a public register kept for the public benefit under the sanction of official duty is relevant under section 35 of the Evidence Act no matter whether the clerk who wrote the entry had any personal knowledge or whether the register was a copy of a previous register which had become untidy.

A decision under the Survey Act based upon a survey map made behind the plaintiffs is not binding on the Civil Courts upon the question of title. C. WILLIAM GRAHAM v. PHANINDRA NATH MITTER, 19 O. W. N. 1083

— s. 21 543

— s. 23—"Without prejudice," meaning of, when used in a private document 152

— s. 24 340

— s. 24—Statement made under promise, of pardon retracted—Want of corroborative evidence—Conviction, whether legal—Criminal Procedure Code Act V of 1898, s. 339 (2).

In the absence of corroboration in material particulars, it is not safe to convict on a retracted confession, unless, from the peculiar circumstances in which it was made and judging from the reasons, alleged or apparent, of the retraction, there remains a high degree of certainty that the confession, notwithstanding its having been resiled from, is genuine.

Where, therefore, an accused retracted a statement made by him under promise of pardon, which so far from being corroborated by any other evidence whatsoever, was contradicted in important particulars by other prosecution evidence, and where the accused was convicted on such a statement:

Held, that the conviction was bad. P. KHUSHI v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 815

— ss. 32, 80—Dying declaration, admissibility of—Certificate of correctness by recording Magistrate—Presumption—Dying declaration reduced to writing—Substantive evidence—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 164, 512.

An oral statement of a deceased person as to the cause of his death, if made in the absence of the accused, may be proved by any one who heard it made as well as by the person who recorded it.

It is not necessary in order to make a dying declaration admissible in evidence that the Magistrate who recorded it be examined as a witness in the case.

When the dying declaration has appended to it a certificate that it has been read over to the deponent and declared to be correct, and this is signed by the Magistrate who recorded the statement, section 80 of the Evidence Act creates a presumption that the circumstances under which it is stated to have been taken, are true.

Dying declarations which have been reduced to Evidence Act—contd.

writing are under section 32 (1) of the Evidence Act admitted as relevant facts and become substantive evidence of the circumstances leading to the deceased person's death when the cause of the death is in question. M. In re KARUPPAN SAMBAN, 16 Cr. L. J. 759

359

— s. 32 (2)—Statements of deceased persons not made in course of business, admissibility of 184

— ss. 33, 145—Criminal trial—Statement made by witness before Committing Magistrate, admissibility of, in Sessions trial—Witness procurable—Practice—Procedure.

The application of section 33 of the Evidence Act in criminal cases ought to be confined within the narrowest limits. Where a witness is material, justice requires that he should, if possible, be examined at the trial in the presence of the accused. Where the evidence of a witness is not material, there is no need to introduce it under section 33.

Where in a Sessions trial, the evidence of an absent witness was very material and was relied upon by the Sessions Judge in his charge to the Jury, but he was not produced although he resided within the Court's jurisdiction and could have been procured without any very great delay or expense:

Held, that the deposition ought not to have been admitted and was not evidence.

Where the entire evidence of the complainant given before the Magistrate was admitted as a whole during the cross-examination of that witness in the Sessions Court and where it was intended to be used to contradict him:

Held, that it was contrary to principle to admit the evidence in this manner without first drawing the attention of the witness to every point upon which it was to be used to contradict him.

Scumble.—In every criminal trial, Judges cannot be too careful to conform strictly with the principles of evidence. B. LAKSHMAN TOTARAM v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 590; 16 Cr. L. J. 754

354

— s. 35 41

— s. 48 106

— ss. 65 30

— ss. 65, 66—Redemption, suit for—Mortgage-deed in mortgagee's possession—Oral evidence, admissibility of.

In a suit for redemption when the mortgagee is in possession of the mortgage-deed and fails to produce it, oral evidence is admissible under section 65 (a) read with proviso (2) to section 66 of the Evidence Act. L. B. MI AMIN NISSA v. MI SURA BI

892

— s. 66 892

— s. 80 359

— s. 83 41

— ss. 90, 114—Copy of document thirty years old—Handwriting of copyist—Presumption—Discretion—Appellate Court, interference by—Secondary evidence—Document lost—Proof, necessary—Pit dug by stranger in another's land—Elephant trapped—Ownership, question of.

In the case of a copy of a document 30 years old,

Evidence Act—could.

section 90 of the Evidence Act empowers the Court to presume that the copy is in the handwriting of the person in whose handwriting it purports to be. Though a presumption as to stamping is not raised by section 90 of the Evidence Act, a lower Court can draw that presumption under section 114, and if it so does, an Appellate Court should not lightly interfere with it.

Where an original document is lost the party tendering secondary evidence of it need not show the exact mode and time of the loss but only that it was not lost by his own default or neglect.

Quere.—Whether a stranger who digs a pit in another's land, can claim an elephant which has fallen into it? M. MANAVIKRAMAN v. NILAMBUR THACHARAKAVIL. 579

s. 92—Oral sale in discharge of mortgage-debt, whether admissible in suit for redemption—Nature of possession by mortgagee—Prescription.

The plaintiff sued for redemption of a mortgage and for accounts from the defendants as mortgagees in possession. The defendants set up an oral sale by the mortgagor in discharge of the mortgage-debt, and adverse possession for more than the statutory period. The plaintiff's suit having been dismissed, he appealed on the grounds that the plea of oral sale was res judicata by reason of the decision in a previous suit and that oral evidence of the alleged sale was inadmissible:

Held, (1) that the existence of the oral sale not being directly and substantially in issue and not having been finally decided in the previous suit, the question was not res judicata;

(2) (Spencer, J., dissenting) that the oral agreement was sought to be proved not as modifying the mortgage, but in order to prove the nature of possession taken by the mortgagee and oral evidence, therefore, was admissible;

(3) that the defendants' possession had been all along adverse as against the mortgagor and that they had acquired a title by prescription.

Per Phillips, J.—Oral evidence of a sale by the mortgagor to the mortgagee in discharge of the mortgage-debt is admissible under section 92 of the Evidence Act to prove discharge, although the sale itself is invalid and does not effect any legal transfer of the property, even though it is accompanied by delivery of possession.

Although an oral sale cannot in itself operate as an extinguishment of the mortgage, yet the proof of the payment of a mortgage-debt thereby is sufficient to prove the nature of possession by the mortgagee.

Per Spencer, J.—A simple mortgagee who gets into possession of immoveable property of Rs. 100 in value cannot prove an oral sale as a starting point of adverse possession against his mortgagor so as to acquire a prescriptive title by remaining in possession for over the statutory period.

A mortgagee's possession does not become adverse to the mortgagor merely by his styling himself as proprietor of the mortgaged property or by his denial of the mortgagor's right to redeem; there must be some act done by which the mortgagor may have reason to suppose that his rights have been invaded.

Evidence Act—could.

Sales and mortgages of immoveable property are both transfers of intangible rights, but one is a transfer of ownership and the other is a transfer of an interest in the property concerned. The possession of a purchaser is of a full proprietary character, while the possession of a mortgagee in possession is of a limited nature. Both transactions are required to be registered, if the property is Rs. 100 in value or over. An extinguishment of a mortgage by the mortgagee's rights being merged in those of an owner, involves an alteration of the relationship of mortgagor and mortgagee into one of seller and purchaser. When each of these transactions requires a registered document to make it valid, the law does not permit the substitution of one for the others to be effected in a less formal manner. M. THOTAKURA GOVINDU v. PEPAKAYALA MALLAYYA. 678

s. 92, proviso 1—Mutual mistake as to description of land in registered mortgage deed, whether can be proved by oral evidence—Construction of deed—Rights of bona fide purchasers for value.

Oral evidence is admissible under proviso 1 to section 92 of the Evidence Act to prove a mutual mistake made in the description of a piece of land in a registered mortgage-deed.

A Court can, on reception of such evidence, treat the instrument as rectified, and proceed on that assumption, though no suit for rectification of the instrument is brought under section 31 of the Specific Relief Act, provided that the rights of third persons acquired in good faith and for value, are not prejudiced thereby. M. KOTA CHINA MALLAYYA v. KANSEKANTI VEERIAH. 671

s. 93 632
s. 114 579
s. 145 554

Execution—Decree passed before the new Civil Procedure Code—Application for order absolute for sale, whether valid—Application dismissed for statistical purposes can be revived.

An application for an order absolute for sale in execution of a mortgage decree, passed before the new Code of Civil Procedure came into force, is an application in execution proceedings and is valid.

An application for execution dismissed merely for statistical purposes, can be revived by a fresh application presented within three years from its dismissal. M. SINGARAVELU PILLAI v. SANTHANA KRISHNA MUDALIAR, (1915) M. W. N. 643. 9

Decree passed against heirs of debtor—Attachment—Objection by judgment-debtor—Possession in lieu of dower—Lien.

A decree-holder in execution of a consent decree passed against his judgment-debtors as heirs of a debtor attached a house. One of the judgment-debtors, a young pardanashin lady, objected to the attachment. It appeared that by an arrangement arrived at between her and other judgment-debtors she had been placed in possession of the house in lieu of the dower due to her. Among other pleas, she contended that as she was a minor at the date of the decree, she was not bound by it. The executing Court dismissed the objection but on appeal her objection was allowed. On second appeal

Execution—contd.

Held, that the possession of the objector was that of a mortgagee; that assuming that the objector was bound by the decree, the house was liable to attachment subject to the objector's lien over it to the extent of her dower. P. JHABHAN LAL v. SAFDRI BEGAM, 178 P. L. R. 1915; 125 P. W. R. 1915; 80 P. R. 1915 722

Decree against one set of defendants on contest, against another by consent—Appeal against whole decree by contesting defendant—Execution, limitation for—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182, cl. (2).

A person who is a party to a compromise cannot challenge the validity of the consent decree by way of appeal, but the party to the suit who has not joined in the compromise is competent to appeal against the decree if he has been prejudiced thereby.

In a suit where a decree has been obtained against one set of defendants by consent and against the other on contest and the contesting defendant appeals against the decree and thereby the validity of the entire decree is in controversy in the appeal, the decree-holder is entitled to the benefit of clause 2 of Article 182 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, 1908, in execution of the decree against both sets of the defendants. C. LOKE NATH SINGH v. GAJU SINGH, 22 C. L. J. 333; 20 C. W. N. 178 426

Decree for partition specifying several shares—One party getting more than his due share—Re-adjustment of partition in order to make it accord with terms of decree, whether allowed.

A partition-decree was passed in 1888 specifying the shares to be allotted to all the sharers and the terms on which such allotment was to take place. In 1894 defendant No. 8 applied for his share and got it, so did most of the other sharers. In 1900 defendants Nos. 10-12 applied for separate possession of their share. It was then found that the lands remaining for their share were far less than they should have got and that the plots below and adjoining their houses had been allotted to the share of other sharers. They then applied to the Collector to re-open the partition, who declined to do this but proposed that the surveyor should at the applicants' expense see if they could be compensated out of other lands. The applicants wanted time to pay the expenses and the Collector reported to the Court that the applicants refused to take possession of their share.

Held, that inasmuch as the Collector's partition had not been made in accordance with the directions of the decree, the shares of defendant No. 8 and the applicants must be re-adjusted so as to remedy the injustice done to the applicants, who were entitled to have their right share, so far as they could get it, at the expense of defendant No. 8. B. RANCHANDRA DINKAR v. KRISHNAJI SAKHARAM, 17 Bom. L. R. 967 311

Decree—Sale—Passing of title—Presumption 254

Suit conditionally decreed on payment of certain amount within certain time—Payment not made—Defendant's execution for costs—Procedure.

A decree was passed in the following terms:—
"It will be established and declared that the sale-deed executed by defendants Nos. 2 and 3 in favour of defendant No. 1, is not binding upon the plaintiff; possession will be delivered to the plaintiff by dispossession of defendant No. 1 on condition of paying into Court Rs. 66 within one month; in case of default, the plaintiff's suit will stand dismissed". A schedule of costs was given on the assumption that the money would be paid in time. The money was not paid within time.

Execution—contd.

Held, that under the decree as it stood, the defendant was not entitled to execution for costs. A. RAM NATH TEWARI v. Musammal GENDA 564

Decree against wrong legal representative—Sale in execution—Proper legal representative, whether can set aside sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (11).

Decree-holders and purchasers in Court auction should not be deprived of their legitimate rights on bare technicalities when the merits are clearly in their favour.

A decree-holder may select, from among several rival claimants to the estate of his judgment-debtor, any one whom he believes honestly to have the best prima facie title as legal representative and that representation, in the absence of fraud or collusion, will be sufficient to validate sales held in execution and to convey the title of the deceased judgment-debtor through such sales.

The term "legal representative" in section 2, clause (11), of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, includes any person who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased and the fact that this definition is not found in the old Code does not make it any the less applicable, based as it is on sound legal principles.

Where, therefore, the widow of a deceased testator was wrongly impleaded in a suit for the recovery of money due from him, and a decree having been obtained against her, the property, which under the terms of the Will belonged to some one else, was sold in execution and purchased by a third party and a suit was subsequently brought by the legatee to recover the property bequeathed to him:

Held, that the sale could not be set aside merely on the ground that the legatee was not a party to the decree obtained by the creditor. M. GNANAMBAL AMMAL v. VEERASAMI CHETTY, 29 M. L. J. 698 920

Ex parte decree—Sale—Auction-purchaser, stranger or decree-holder, rights of—Ex parte decree, set aside—Assignee from decree-holder purchaser, rights of, if affected—Bona fide purchaser for value without notice, plea of, applicability of.

A Court as a matter of policy has a tender regard for honest purchasers at sales held in execution of its decrees though the sales may be subsequently set aside, where those purchasers are not parties to the suit and the decree has not been passed without jurisdiction. But the same measure of protection is not extended to purchasers who are themselves the decree-holders, nor to the purchasers from those decree-holders-purchasers.

The defeasibility of the decree-holder's title to the property purchased in execution of an ex parte decree is of such common occurrence that the plea of a purchaser for value without notice hardly applies to his assignee. C. SATIS CHANDRA GHOSE v. RA MESWARI DAS, 22 C. L. J. 409 894

Execution—concl.

Injunction, decree for, in respect of easement—Transfer of dominant tenement—No application by transferee—Decree-holder, right of, to execute decree—Executing Court, competency of, to consider incapacity of decree-holder to enjoy easement owing to transfer of dominant tenement
542

Notice, issue of—Attachment—Default on part of decree-holder—Dismissal of application—Order for execution, whether res judicata
293

Order for attachment—Application for execution not disposed of—Subsequent application for sale of property, whether barred 87

Simple money-decree, execution of—Property attachable—Execution how effected
285

Suit originally valued at above Rs. 5,000—Decree for less than Rs. 5,000—Execution proceedings, order in—Appeal—Jurisdiction.

Where an original suit out of which an execution proceeding had arisen was valued at over Rs. 5,000 but was decreed for less than that amount, an appeal from an order in the execution proceedings would nevertheless lie to the High Court. A. KISWAH ALI KHAN v. SALIM-UN-NISSA
496

Sale—Purchase by decree-holder—
Decree ex parte, subsequently set aside—Sale, how effected.

The purchase by a decree-holder of immovable property belonging to the judgment-debtor in execution of an ex parte decree becomes ipso facto void, when the ex parte decree is afterwards set aside. M. SONHANADRI APPA ROW v. GOVINDARAJU SEKTARAMIAN, 2 L. W. 1066
305

—, setting aside of—Court, power of, to take notice of events happening after institution of suit—Suit, events happening after institution of—Grounds—Ex parte decree, setting aside of, effect of, upon sale held thereunder—Decree-holder auction-purchaser under ex parte decree subsequently set aside, assignee of, rights of—Auction-purchaser stranger to suit, special protection afforded to—Retrial of suit—Fresh decree—Sale, effect on.

A Court is competent to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree on a ground which was not mentioned in the application to set aside the sale and which did not in fact exist when that application was made.

A Court may, in order to shorten litigation or to do complete justice between the parties, take notice of events which have happened since the institution of the proceedings and may afford relief to the parties on the basis of the altered conditions.

As soon as an ex parte decree is set aside, the sale held thereunder to the decree-holder, is cancelled and it is immaterial that the property has meanwhile been assigned away by the decree-holder auction-purchaser. A fresh decree subsequently made, does not validate the sale.

An assignee of a decree-holder auction-purchaser stands in no better position than his assignor.

The special protection afforded to a stranger who Execution sale—concl.

purchases at an execution sale, is not extended to an assignee of the decree-holder auction-purchaser. C. ABDUL RAHAMAN v. SARAFAT ALI, 22 C. L. J. 412
896

Sale of zemindari—Interest in building in zemindari, if also passes—Sale notification, value of.

Where an inventory of the property to be sold filed by a decree-holder with his application for execution, showed that only a zemindari was to be sold and not a building situated therein:

Held, that the sale did not pass the interest of the judgment-debtor in the building.

Per Knox, J.—The sale-notification is a most important document when Court wishes to find out what was sold in an auction sale held in execution of a decree. A. SAKHAWAT ALI SHAH v. MUHAMMAD ABDUL KARIM KHAN, 13 A. L. J. 1098
809

Firm. See PARTNERSHIP.

Forest Act (VII of 1878), ss. 81, 82—

Forest produce, right of Government to recover money payable for, without giving credit for amount realized from sale of attached property—Pleadings—New plea, raising of, first in appeal, propriety of.

A by a contract with Government obtained the right of felling and removing timber and of manufacturing charcoal in certain forest coupes. Under this contract A had to pay Rs. 6,431 in four equal instalments. A paid only the first instalment. On his failure to pay the second instalment, the Divisional Forest Officer attached all materials of timber, firewood and charcoal which A had in the coupes or depots and prevented A from further exploitation of the coupes until the instalments due were paid or security for payment given. The materials attached were subsequently sold and the amount retained by Government. The Divisional Forest Officer sought to recover in addition, the full amount of all the three unpaid instalments, as arrears of land revenue under section 81 of the Forest Act:

Held, that the action of the Divisional Forest Officer could not be justified under section 82 of the Forest Act, as that section expressly provides that the proceeds of the sale should be applied first in discharging the amount due and as it does not authorise an absolute confiscation of the forest produce and independent recovery of the entire amount due.

Held, further, that the plea of justification under section 82 not having been raised in the pleadings in the lower Court, could not be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal. S. CHANDIRAM KARASING v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 9 S. L. R. 51
436

— s. 82 436

Forfeiture of estate. See HINDU WIDOWS' REMARRIAGE ACT.

Forfeiture of tenancy. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 3(25)
796

— s. 16 908

— s. 24 646

Gift. See CONSTRUCTION OF DOCUMENT, MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Grant—concl.

—Possession under a gift from a limited owner—
Gift invalid against reversioners—Trespass by stranger—
Suit by donees for possession based on title, maintainability of.

Two days before her death, one S made a gift of certain immoveable properties, which she inherited from her father, in favour of her step-sons. Prior to this gift the properties had been in the possession of her husband on her behalf and subsequent to the gift the husband continued to hold possession on behalf of the donees, his minor sons. Four days after the death of S, the defendant trespassed upon the properties and took forcible possession of the same. Four months afterwards, the plaintiffs, as donees under the gift aforesaid, instituted the present suit in ejectment against the defendant:

Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover possession from the defendant, a trespasser, even though the gift in their favour was invalid as against the reversioners.

Quere.—Whether the plaintiffs would be entitled to possession, if they themselves had obtained forcible possession from the true owner. M. NALLAGONDA PEDDA v. ASUPALLEK BODDA REDDY, 2 L. W. 912; 18 M. L. T. 343; (1915) M. W. N. 815

—Will—Bequest—Interpretation

Good faith, test of 50
Government Servants' Conduct Rules, r. 14 301

Government Servant, when personally liable 224

Grant of agharam—Payment of mevas and ruzzums, when can be enforced 214

—Dasabandham rights, grant of, by zemindar to ladies of house—Mortgagee of such rights, rights of—Transferee of zemindari, liability of—"Son to grandson", interpretation of—Custom of such grant, validity of.

A zemindar made a grant for the benefit of the ladies of his family of the dasabandham dues recoverable by him from certain villages and himself undertook to collect the same and pay them on to the ladies. The grantees mortgaged these rights to another person:

Held, that the mortgagee could enforce his rights under the mortgage against the subsequent purchaser of the zemindar's right with notice of the obligation.

Per Tyabji, J.—The words "son to grandson" used in a grant of this description are merely words of limitation and not of purchase.

A custom providing for grant by a zemindar for the maintenance of the ladies of his family of the dasabandham dues recoverable by him from certain villages and prescribing a particular course of devolution and management of such property, is neither uncertain nor opposed to public policy, and is valid. M. BANGARU MUTHU VENKATAPPA NAYANVARU v. GOLLA CHINNABBA NAIDU 565

—Jagir granted by King of Oudh—Sanad granted by British Government—Grant in perpetuity, so long as there are lineal heirs, rights conferred by—Grant, construction of—Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871)—Grant of villages revenue free, if pension—Document not enforceable as mortgage, whether admissible for collateral purpose—De facto guardian, effect of dealings of, on minor—Alienation of Muhammadan minor's property by unauthorized guardian, effect of—Muhammadan Law—Continuing obligation, ratification of.

A jagir granted by Wajid Ali Shah, the then King of Oudh, to his eldest son for the maintenance and support of the Prince and his children was maintained by the British Government after the annexation of Oudh. The sanad granted by the British Government provided that it having been established after due enquiry that the villages had been held in rent-free tenure under the former Government, the Chief Commissioner was pleased to maintain the tenure in perpetuity so long as there were lineal heirs subject to the conditions of loyalty, etc., specified in the sanad:

Held, that the grant in question conferred a heritable and transferable estate, that the duration of the grant was to last as long as the grantee had lineal descendants existing and that the grant was to lapse or to be resumed on the happening of any of the contingencies specified therein and on no other.

A grant of villages, revenue free, in consideration of the rights held by the grantee prior to the confiscation of Oudh, does amount to a pension within the meaning of Act XXIII of 1871.

A document which is not enforceable as a mortgage may be used in evidence for a collateral purpose unconnected with the mortgage.

Although as a rule the dealings of a de facto guardian of a Muhammadan minor with the minor's property do not bind the minor, there might be cases of urgent and imperative necessity where a transaction entered into for the benefit of the minor may be binding on him.

According to the general principles of Muhammadan Law an alienation of the minor's property by an unauthorized guardian, even if it is not made for a valid cause, is neither void nor voidable, but its validity or invalidity is only determined by the minor adopting or not adopting it after he has attained majority though the effect of his decision will relate back to the date of the inception of the transaction.

In the case of a continuing obligation, such as the engagement of a servant or the continuance of a tenancy, an absence of repudiation or the acceptance of service or rent with full knowledge of the facts, implies an undertaking to adhere to the obligation and operates as a ratification or renewal of the old contract by the party accepting the service or rent. O. HUSAIN ALI MIRZA v. MUHAMMAD AZIM KHAN, 18 O. C. 168 728

—of whole village as inam—Proof 791

Grove—Ejectment—Possession by landlord—Grove-holder, possession of, nature of—Remedy of grove-holder 453

—Ejectment 498

—Sale—Custom—Ejectment of vendee—"Land", meaning of—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 4 (2).

A custom by which a grove-holder can sell the grove, is not unusual, the sale carrying with it the right of occupation of the land. The vendee of such a grove is not liable to ejectment in the absence of proof that the sale of trees by the original tenant is a breach of the special terms on which the land is held for the purposes of a grove.

Grove—concl'd.

Per Reynolds, J. M.—A land let for the purpose of planting a grove on it and on which a grove is still in existence is not "land" within the meaning of the Agra Tenancy Act. U. P. B. R. JAGDAMBA PRASAD v. BEHARI LAL. 979

Guardian and Ward—De facto guardian, effect of dealings of, on minor—Alienation of Muhammadan minor's property by unauthorized guardian, effect of—Muhammadan Law—Continuing obligation, ratification of 728

Minor, liability of, for money not accounted for by guardian—Guardians, transactions entered into by, when binding 574

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss. 7, 8—Minor girl living with mother—No property—Application to be appointed guardian—Applicant not suitable—Court's duty.

When the sole question before the Court is whether the applicant is a suitable person to be appointed guardian of the minor or not, it is not necessary for the Court to do anything more than accept or reject his application.

Where a minor girl is living with her mother, the Court should leave things as they are, especially when she has no property, and should not appoint a statutory guardian, the mother remaining the natural guardian. P. MAHANT DEVI v. MADHO, 84 P. R. 1915; 176 P. W. R. 1915 237

s. 24

186

Highway—Ownership of soil—Ad medium filii doctrine, when applicable.

The doctrine that where a public path is admitted to be the boundary between two estates, the presumption is that the soil up to half the breadth of the road belongs to each estate, must be confined to cases where it is clearly proved or both sides are agreed, that the limits of each village do not extend beyond the offside of the path. M. ARUNACHALAM CHETTY v. RAMANATHAN CHETTY 664

Hindu Law. See Cutchi MEMOIRS.

Adoption by Sudras in Dattaka form—Physical delivery and acceptance of child, necessity of.

Among Sudras the corporeal delivery and acceptance of the child is the essential part of adoption in the dattaka form. An actual adoption solely in pursuance of a previously manifested intention or a previous promise made, is not enough. M. KUPPUSAMI REDDI v. VENKATALAKSHMI AMMAL, 18 M. L. T. 434; (1915) M. W. N. 960 855

Sudras—Subsequently born aurasa son—Adopted son, share of—Minor, liability of, for money not accounted for by guardian—Partition—Marriage expenses of unmarried members, provision for—Principle—Guardians, transactions entered into by, when binding.

Under the Hindu Law, even among Sudras, an adopted son is entitled to one-fourth of the share of a subsequently born aurasa son, i. e., one-fifth of the estate.

Hindu Law—concl'd.

A minor is not liable for moneys not accounted for by his guardian.

In partition decrees, a provision should be made for the marriage expenses of unmarried members of the family who are of the same degree of relationship as those who have been married at the expense of the family.

A transaction by which a guardian gives up the rights of the minors in the family property is binding only when it is a bona fide settlement of disputes. KARUTURI GOPALAN v. KARUTURI VENKATA RAGHAVULU, 29 M. L. J. 710 574

Alienation by father—After-born son, right of, to question alienation.

As a son acquires a vested interest only in such family property as exists on the date of his birth, he cannot question an alienation made by his father before his birth. O. MAHESH v. BANWARI LAL, 18 O. C. 162 717

Alienation by widow, validity of—Test—Disposition for religious or charitable purposes or for spiritual benefit of husband and for worldly purposes, distinction between—Legal necessity—Hindu widow, daughter or mother, power of—Acts of religious merit—Excavation and consecration of tank—Extent of alienation.

Where a deed by a limited owner with qualified power of alienation is impeached, the test is, is the transaction fair and proper, lawful and valid and justified by Hindu Law; necessity is only one of the phases of the test of propriety.

A widow has a larger power of disposition for religious or charitable purposes or for purposes which are supposed to conduce to the spiritual welfare of her husband than what she possesses for purely worldly purposes.

There is a distinction between legal necessity for worldly purposes on the one hand, and the promotion of the spiritual welfare of the deceased on the other hand, and within proper limits the widow may alienate her husband's property for the performance of religious acts which are supposed to conduce, to his spiritual benefit.

A Hindu widow, daughter or mother, is entitled to alienate a small portion of the estate in her hands for religious purposes.

Under the Hindu Law the excavation and consecration of a tank are acts of high religious merit and a disposition made by a widow for such a purpose is lawful, valid and proper.

An alienation of an area slightly over two bighas out of ten bighas by a widow for the performance of a work of recognized religious merit, is not unreasonable in extent. C. KHUB LAL SINGH v. AJODHYA MISSE, 22 C. L. J. 345 433

Reversioner's consent—Estoppel—Question of legal inference.

Where a presumptive reversioner knowing his position as such consents to an alienation of property by a Hindu female, he is estopped from disputing the validity of the alienation.

Hindu Law—contd.

Whether on the facts proved, an estoppel can be raised against a reversioner, is purely a question of legal inference and not one of pure fact. M. VENKATASUBBIE v. MUTHUSAMI AYYAR, 18 M. L. T. 521

487

— Debt contracted by father for trading purposes, whether lawful—Liability of sons for father's debt

301

— Karta of joint Hindu family, acknowledgment by, if valid—Members, if bound 30

— Joint family—Charity owned by joint family—Agreement among members re management—Intention.

Where the members of a joint Hindu family, while dividing the family properties agreed that the charities should be managed by the head of the family in each branch for the time being, and where on the death of such a member his widow claimed to succeed him in the management as against a male descendant of the founder by one of his granddaughters:

Held, that the language of the agreement clearly pointed to the intention that the management should be in the hands of the male heads and not in the hands of females; and that the widow could not claim to manage the charity even though it appeared that some females had previously asserted the right. M. KRISHNASWAMI PILLAI v. MOOKAYI AMMAL

35

— Impartible zemindari—Members living separately in different houses in same compound, how far evidence of division—Separate possession and enjoyment of property and discontinuance of allowances by zemindar, if evidence of partition—Inheritance—Succession to impartible zemindari—Illegitimate son, widow and step-brother of deceased, contest between—Preference—Separate property of zemindar—Illegitimate son and widow, if share equally—Release by mother of Hindu minor—Consideration inadequate—No independent advice—Absence of dispute—Validity of release—Family settlement—Custom—Gandharva form of marriage, if valid among Kambala caste—Illegitimate son, right of, to share in his father's property in Kambala caste—Illegitimate son, share of, measure of

833

— Mitakshara—Son, vested right of—Partition—Burden of proof.

According to the Law of the Mitakshara where a son is born to a man governed by Hindu Law, he and that son at once form a joint undivided Hindu family, and any body later on asserting that they were not at any given time such a family, must prove disruption before that time. P. NARPAT RAI v. DEVI DAS, 85 P. R. 1915

634 — Power of disposition by 106

Will—Promissory note by member of undivided family—Loan for purposes of family—Liability of all members.

Where two members of a joint family borrowed some money for the purposes of the family and executed a promissory note for the amount in favour of the plaintiff:

Held, that all the members of the undivided family were liable, the liability being imposed upon them

Hindu Law—contd.

by the Hindu Law, apart from the contract entered into by two of them. M. CHINNIAH CHETTY v. TIKKANI RAMASWAMI CHETTY

317

— Joint family property—Joint family business—Assets—Minor partners, liability of, extent of.

In the case of a Hindu joint family, the joint family property is not necessarily part of the assets of the joint family firm and the minor partners of a joint family business are only liable for the debts of the business to the extent of their share in the property of the firm. L. B. O. A. M. K. CHETTY FIRM v. K. P. CHETTY FIRM, 8 L. B. R. 112 — Self-acquisition by one member—Presumption.

271

Where one member of a joint Hindu family acquires property without the aid of ancestral or joint family funds, the property acquired will, in the absence of any indication of intention to the contrary, be owned by all as joint family property. But it may be shown that the person acquiring it treated it as his separate property. M. MUTHAN v. PUNIAKOTI MUDALIAR — Widow of predeceased son holding a share of ancestral property as maintenance, whether can alienate.

18

Where in a suit for a declaration that an alienation by a widow shall not affect plaintiff's reversionary rights after the widow's death, it appeared that on the death of the last male owner, the mutation in respect of his estate took place in favour of (1) the plaintiff, (2) the father of the defendants Nos. 2 to 4, and (3) defendant No. 1, the widow of the predeceased son of the last male owner, who alienated her share in favour of the defendants Nos. 2 to 4:

Held, that the plaintiff could not have been separate in estate from his father and as the parties were Aroras and admittedly governed by Hindu Law, the widow received a third share obviously for the purpose of maintenance and had no right to alienate that share to the prejudice of the plaintiff. P. CHANDAN MAL v. Musammal WASINDI BAI, 92 P. R. 1915; 168 P. W. R. 1915 — Marriage, form of, how determined—Lingayat form of marriage—Joshi, whether can demand fees.

541

In order to determine whether a marriage is in the Hindu form or in the Pancha Kalas Lingayat form, the Court must consider the marriage as a whole rather than the particular ceremonies performed.

If the ceremony performed is not a Hindu marriage ceremony as a whole, the Joshi or gramopadhyas has no right to demand the marriage fees. B. RANGAPPA NINGAPPA IMMADI v. VENKATBHAT LINGANBHAT JOSHI, 17 Bom. L. R. 950

448

— Guardian appointed by Court—Infant girl given in marriage without guardian's consent or in disobedience of Court's order, effect of—Marriage performed in inauspicious times—Right to give girls in marriage—Duty of giving girls in marriage, rules as to, nature of—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 24.

Hindu Law—contd.

A Hindu marriage performed at a time regarded inauspicious by the astrologers cannot be treated as ineffectual in law.

Under Hindu Law, in the event of the father and paternal male relations losing their right by death or waiver to give a girl in marriage, the right of selecting the husband for a female infant devolves on the mother.

The rules as to the duty of giving Hindu girls in marriage are directory and not mandatory. Therefore, in the absence of force or fraud, a Hindu marriage otherwise legally contracted and performed with the necessary ceremonies is not invalidated by the absence of consent of the guardian entitled to give such consent.

The circumstance that the marriage of a Hindu girl was celebrated by her guardian in disobedience of the order of the Civil Court would not invalidate the marriage, if it was performed by the guardian in good faith and for the welfare of the minor and if in the absence of that guardian's appointment under the Guardians and Wards Act by the Court, the guardian would have been entitled to give the girl in marriage. P. MAYA DEVI v. RAM CHAND, 177 P. W. R. 1915; 20 P. R. 1916 186

Partition—Marriage expenses of unmarried members, provision for 574

Partial partition, when allowable—Deed of partition not mentioning certain properties, whether effects complete severance in status and interest—Intention.

Where a deed of partition, after reciting that the parties had hitherto lived as members of a joint family and that owing to differences among females it had become necessary to effect a partition, divided the joint family properties between the father and son, but left out certain outstanding debts and decrees:

Held, that the language of the document showed that the parties to it were no longer to remain joint but became divided in status and that the decrees and outstanding debts were not divided then simply because they had not been collected and it was not possible to make a division then, as it could not be foretold how much they would realise.

According to Hindu Law, partial partition of a joint family property can be effected only with the consent of co-parceners. M. BURBA REDDI v. ALAGAMMAL, 18 M. L. T. 545 674

Mitakshara.

According to the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law a step-mother is entitled to a share equal to that of a son upon partition. A. HAR NARAIN v. BISHAMBHAR NATH, 13 A. L. J. 1129 907

Stridhan—Succession—Dayabhaga—Ajantuka stridhan—Heir, preferential—Brother or husband.

At the marriage of a Hindu woman governed by the Dayabhaga school of Hindu Law there was a promise by her brother to give some quantity of land as dowry. The property was, however, given to the woman seven years after the marriage. On the death of the woman her brother sued her husband for the property as the rightful heir of the same:

Hindu Law—contd.

Held, that the property was the woman's ajantuka stridhan and that her brother was the preferential heir to her husband. C. MAHENDRA NATH MAITY v. GIRISH CHANDRA MAITY, 12 C. W. N. 1287 561

Succession—Grandfather's daughter's daughters' son—Bandhu—Mitakshara.

A grandfather's daughter's daughter's son is a bandhu ex parte paterna. A. MUKHA v. QABZA 553

Intestate succession—Suit for possession of property on basis of alleged relationship—Onus—Secondary evidence of registered Will admitted without demur—Objection to admissibility, whether can be taken in appeal—Pleadings.

The plaintiffs claimed to succeed to the property in dispute as the last male owner's heirs ab intestato under the Hindu Law, on the allegation that they were the sisters' sons of the father of the last male owner, and the defendant, a minor daughter of the last owner's brother, denied inter alia, the relationship alleged by the plaintiffs:

Held, that the onus lay on the plaintiffs to prove their allegation with respect to the relationship and as they failed to discharge the onus, the suit failed.

Where a Will which had been originally registered could not be found and for that reason the trial Court allowed a party to produce secondary evidence thereof apparently without demur by the appellants:

Held, that the appellants could not object to its admissibility on appeal, more especially as the memorandum of appeal did not contain any objection to that effect. P. HARDEO RAM v. PARBATI 600

Mitakshara—Father's sister's sons, whether can inherit as bandhus.

Where the father's sister of the last male owner and her sons sued for a declaration that the alienation made by the mother of the last male owner in favour of the defendant shall not affect their reversionary rights:

Held, that under the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law the plaintiffs were entitled to inherit as bandhus and could contest the alienation. P. SUNDAR SINGH v. MUSAMMAT GURDEVI, 163 P. W. R. 1915 27

Property given for maintenance to illegitimate son of deceased co-parcener—Son of illegitimate son, whether can claim vested right of inheritance.

Property given for maintenance to an illegitimate son of an undivided deceased co-parcener cannot be treated as the ancestral property of the illegitimate son in which a son of that illegitimate son gets a right by birth. M. KRISHNASWAMI NAIDU v. SEETHALAKSHMI AMMAL, 18 M. L. T. 542 803

Widow's relinquishment of her estate—Reversioner's interest, acceleration of—Alienation by widow of whole estate with consent of next heirs, legality of—Widow's relinquishment for benefit, effect of—Fraud alleged in plaint not established, effect of.

A Hindu widow may relinquish her estate with the effect of accelerating the estate of the next reversioner and is not precluded from obtaining a benefit for such relinquishment.

Hindu Law—contd.

A Hindu widow's alienation of the whole estate is valid where there is consent of the next heirs, inasmuch as the alienation is capable of being supported by reference to the theory of relinquishment and consequent acceleration of the interest of the consenting heirs.

Under the Mithila Law a widow takes an absolute interest in the moveables of her deceased husband.

Under the Hindu Law, as under the English Law, a mortgage is treated as personal or moveable property, the land being considered as merely a pledge or security for the money lent.

Quere.—Whether where the plaintiff's claim to relief rests solely on the allegations of fraud made in the plaint and fraud is not established, the suit should fail? C. SURESH MISSEER v. MOHESH RANI MESRAIN. 20 C. W. N. 142 983

Will, construction of.—"Malik"—"Nir-buyadha malik"—Will by husband in favour of his wife—Absolute interest given—Gift over, provision for, validity of—Construction of Will—Plain meaning—Language clear and unequivocal—Rules of law, harsh consequences of.

The use of the term "malik" may not by itself necessarily create an absolute interest, but the term when qualified by the word "nirbuyadha" indicates absolute ownership.

A Hindu testator appointed his wife as his executrix. A clause in the Will vested in her whatever might remain, after the payment of debts and expenses, absolutely and with complete power of alienation. Other clauses provided for the adoption of sons and in case of there being no adopted son or no son or wife of the adopted son at the time of the death of the widow, the heir, according to the Hindu Shastras who should be alive at the time, should get the properties which should remain after disposal by the widow by way of gift or sale.

Held, that the testator gave an absolute interest in his estate to his widow with full powers of alienation; that the gift over of what might remain undisposed of by her was void and inoperative in law.

Seemle.—If an estate is given in terms which confer an absolute estate to a named donee, and, then, further interests are given merely after or on the termination of that donee's interest, and not in defeasance of it, his absolute interest is not cut down and the further interests fail.

A gift over, if a devisee or legatee to whom an absolute interest is given does not dispose of his interest or dies intestate or dies before selling his interest, is void both as regards realty and personality.

When an absolute interest has been given to the first taker, followed by a gift over of what may not be required by him, the gift over, though couched in the most direct and precise words, is void for uncertainty.

An instrument must receive a construction according to the plain meaning of the words and sentences therein contained; that is, the words are to be first read in their grammatical and ordinary sense, unless the context shows otherwise.

Where the language is clear and unequivocal, the construction cannot be altered or wrested to something different from the plain meaning for the purpose of escaping from what may seem to be the harsh consequences of rules of law. C. SURESH CHANDRA PALIT v. LALIT MOHAN DUTTA. 22 C. L. J. 316 405

Hindu Law—concl.

Will—Legacy to be paid out of property not disposable, validity of.

A Hindu testator has no power to direct legacies to be paid out of property which he has no power to dispose of by Will. B. PARVATIBAI SHANKAR v. BHAGWANT PANDHARINATH PATHAK. 17 Bom. L. R. 640 39 B. 593 280

Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act (XV of 1856), s. 2, applicability of—Forfeiture of estate—Existing estate—Future rights, if forfeited—Limitation Act (XVI of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 141—Reversioner's suit—Starting of limitation.

Under the Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act, 1856, a widow re-marrying forfeits not only the estate inherited from her deceased husband but all existing rights at the date of the marriage, though, after and notwithstanding re-marriage, she may inherit future interest in the family of her former husband; e. g., she may succeed as heir to the estate of her son by a first marriage who has died after her second marriage.

The Hindu Widows' Re-marriage Act, 1856, applies also to widows whose caste customs permit second marriages.

In a case governed by Article 141 of Schedule II to the Limitation Act, 1877, under no circumstances can time run against a Hindu reversionary heir until the reversion vests by the death of the female holding the intervening estate. N. KASHIRAO v. UKARDA. 11 N. L. R. 116 290

Illegitimate son. See HINDU LAW.

Inam.—See MADRAS REGULATION, s. 4.

Failure of inamdar to fulfil condition—Order of resumption—Suit for declaration of inamdar's right to hold land free of assessment, when maintainable—Suit for cancellation of order of resumption—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 14, 131.

Where the Collector resumed a dasabandam inam on account of the inamdar's failure to fulfil the conditions of the inam and the inamdar sued after 12 years for a declaration that he was entitled to hold the land free of assessment:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain such a declaration without getting the Collector's order, resuming the inam, set aside;

(2) that the suit for cancellation of the order ought to have been brought within one year of the date of its passing under Article 14 of the Limitation Act. M. SUBBANNA v. SECRETARY OF STATE. (1915) M. W. N. 1915 267

Income Tax Act (I of 1886), s. 3 (5).—Annuity grant in Mysore—Receipt in British India through agent, if income.

A lady was enjoying an annuity in Mysore Province, instalments of which were remitted to her in British India by her agent in Mysore:

Held, that it was income received in British India within the meaning of section 3, clause (5), of the Income Tax Act and was taxable. M. NARASAMMAL v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 2 L. W. 1124; 18 M. L. T. 524 404

Inheritance. See BUDDHIST LAW; HINDU LAW.

Injunction—Mandatory injunction Directing reconveyance of property, whether allowed 216

Instalment bond. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 75 479

Interest. See MESNE PROFITS.

— High rate—Court, power of, to grant relief 394

— Tender—Bond payable by instalments—Tender of payment of overdue instalments without interest, whether proper 304

— on total amount awarded, if legal 320

Interpretation—Son to grandson, interpretation of 565

— of Statute 326

— Marginal notes to sections, reference to 746

— Rule abridging substantive right, if ultra vires—Civil Rules of Practice, rule 49, effect of 924

— of Will 106

Issue as to custom, contents of—Ambiguity as to issue when can be raised 833

— Omission to frame issue, effect of 664

Jaglr. See GRANT.

Joint family. See HINDU LAW.

Joint possession—Property belonging to shrine—Mujawars in possession as trustees—Rule of hotchpot, whether applicable.

The principle that one co-sharer who has joint property in his possession cannot seek a decree for joint possession of other property in the possession of a co-sharer-defendant unless and until he brings the property in his own possession into a hotchpot does not apply to a case where property belonging to a shrine is in the possession of mujawars as trustees.

Where, therefore, in a suit by certain mujawars of the shrine of Data Ganj Baksh in Lahore against another mujawar for joint possession of certain properties belonging to the shrine, the defendant contended that the plaintiffs must bring into a hotchpot the properties in their possession:

Held, that the rule of hotchpot did not apply and the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree for joint possession with the defendant. P. MUHAMMAD HAYAT v. MUHAMMAD ALI, 94 P. R. 1915 489

Joint property. See BUDDHIST LAW.

Judgment. See LETTERS PATENT (MADRAS), cl. 15.

Judicial proceeding. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 476.

Jurisdiction See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, ss. 20, 115; CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, ss. 147, 181; PROPATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, s. 56; SMALL CAUSES COURT.

— Application for registration of name by purchaser of land dismissed—Suit for declar-

Jurisdiction—concl.

tion and possession in Civil Court, if maintainable—Renewal of Settlement by vendor after sale, effect of 424

— Decree for dissolution of marriage passed by Divisional Judge and confirmed by High Court—Application for alimony 331

— Nature of relief determining factor—Suit to recover damages for wrongful removal of fruits—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 31.

It is merely the nature of the relief sought that has to be looked to in determining the jurisdiction of a Court.

The mere fact of a question of title arising does not prevent a suit being cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.

Where the plaintiff alleged that he bought the defendant's share of certain fruit produced in a jungle and sued to recover damages for wrongful removal of the same fruit:

Held, that the suit was not one for mesne profits and was triable by a Small Cause Court. N. BHAXYA v. NAKA, 11 N. L. R. 160 5

— Revenue—Charge on estate—Suit to enforce 255

— "Such Court", interpretation of—Court abolished but re-established with curtailed territorial limits—Sanction for prosecution for offence committed before abolition 643

— Suit for damages for illegal distraint by tenant holding under ryotwari tenure—Interpretation of Statute 326

— Letters Patent, 1865, cl. 12—"Suits for land", meaning of—Compensation for wrong to land.

The expression "suits for land" extends to a suit for compensation for wrong to land, where the substantial question is the right to the land, and, therefore, clause 12 of the Letters Patent, which empowers the Calcutta High Court to try "suits for land and other immoveable property" applies to such a suit. C. SUBRAMIN COAL CO., LTD., v. EMPIRE COAL CO., LTD., 42 C. 942 581

— Suit for rent—Maintainability of—Land let out by person having no title 883

— Suit to recover rent for land lent for building houses 852

— Suit to set aside attachment of immoveable property, valuation of 168

— Suit originally valued at above Rs. 5,000—Decree for less than Rs. 5,000—Execution proceedings, order in—Appeal 496

— Suit valued above Rs. 25,000—Decree below Rs. 5,000—Appeal 879

Kidnapping. See PENAL CODE, s. 363.

Lambardar, possession by—Agent—Presumption 464

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), ss. 3, 12—Collector, whether a Court—Order rejecting application for reference—Chief Court, whether can interfere.

Land Acquisition Act—contd.

A Collector who takes action under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act is not in any sense a Civil Court, and the Chief Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with his order rejecting an application praying that the matter of the award be referred for the determination of the Court. P. RAFI-UD-DIN v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, 65 P. R. 1915; 144 P. W. R. 1915 76

s. 1876*s. 23—Right of owner to compensation for injury done—Principle—Measure of damages.

Where land is acquired for public purposes, the owner thereof is entitled to be compensated for any injury done to his other lands even though the loss is more than counterbalanced by the advantages he gains by the execution of the project.

In such a case the owner is also entitled to damages for diminished facilities of communication and access to his other lands. M. NATHAR HUSSAIN MEERA v. DEPUTY COLLECTOR, USILAMPATI 259

s. 31677*ss. 54, 31—Order by

District Judge allowing Hindu widow to take out compensation money deposited by Collector—Appeal, if maintainable.

No appeal lies under section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act from an order made by the District Judge allowing a Hindu widow to take out compensation money deposited in the District Judge's Court by the Collector under section 31 of the Act. C. BISWA NATH SINHA v. BIDHUMUKHI DAS, 9 C. W. N. 1290 677

Landlord and tenant—Abadi land—Central Provinces—Wajib-ul-arz—Tenant or village resident, position of—Licensee—Transfer of house—Landlord, right of—Transferee, position of—Site ceasing to be used as dwelling house—Ejectment.

In the Central Provinces the whole of the abadi site belongs to the landlord, and, prima facie, every tenant or village resident dwelling thereon and growing crops in the bari attached to his house is a licensee, protected in his occupation by the terms of the wajib-ul-arz.

Where the house in the occupation of one tenant passes by sale to another person, the landlord may claim that, the licensee to occupy the site being non-transferable, the vendee shall vacate, taking away the house materials, but where the vendee is also a tenant or a regular resident of the village, the landlord may allow the transfer of occupation expressly or impliedly by raising no objection.

A transferee of a house standing on an abadi site whose occupancy of the site is not objected to by the landlord, must be presumed to have been permitted to occupy it on the same terms as his transferor, namely, as the licensee of the landlord, subject to the village wajib-ul-arz.

Where such an occupant ceases to use such site for the purposes of a dwelling house, he loses the protection of the wajib-ul-arz and becomes a bare licensee liable to ejectment at the will of the landlord, unless he expressly sets up and earns by lapse of time, a prescriptive title to occupy the land. N. NABAIN v. BEHARI, 11 N. L. R. 126 307

Landlord and tenant—contd.

—Disclaimers of landlord's title, what is—Forfeiture of tenancy.

As between landlord and tenant to constitute a disclaimer by tenant of landlord's title there must be a direct repudiation of the relationship of landlord and tenant or a distinct claim to hold possession of the estate upon a ground wholly inconsistent with that relation, which by necessary implication is a repudiation of it. M. KILOTH CHOZHAN OYDAL KURUP v. KIRATHWA ILLATH NARAYANAN SAMBUDRI 220

—Durputni lease—Chakran tenants—Khut rent, agreement to pay—Government revenue—Resumption of chakran land—Durputnidar, right of Zemindar, if can settle land with tenants—Mesne profits.

A was originally holding the lands in dispute as chakran lands under B, the zemindar. B resumed the lands and settled them at a money rent with A. The plaintiff, who was the durputnidar, sued for khas possession of the lands and in the alternative prayed that fair and equitable rents might be fixed for them. It was a condition of the durputni settlement that the tenants who held chakran lands for service should pay to the durputnidar khut rent which was assessed on the proportion of land revenue payable to Government on that portion of the estate.

Held, that the payment of the khut rent could not create the relationship of landlord and tenant between the durputnidar and the tenant A.

Held, further, that so long as the chakran tenancy continued B, and not the plaintiff, had the right to settle tenants on the land, but that B had no right after he had resumed the chakran tenancy.

Held, also, that under the circumstances, the plaintiff was entitled to khas possession as well as mesne profits. C. HAZARI LAL SARKAR v. MAHARAJ KUMAR KSHAUSISH CHANDRA ROY, 22 C. L. J. 290 249

—Extra charge for vanpayir claimed—Long-continued course of payment—Contract to pay—Presumption 539

—Grant, rent-free, to excavate tank—Long possession—Rent neither claimed nor paid—Presumption—Suit, if can be dismissed on ground of right to have rent assessed not accrued—Late stage of suit—Plaintiff, if can put forward inconsistent case—Pleadings.

A plaintiff cannot be permitted to turn round at the final stage of the litigation and put forward a case inconsistent with the allegation in the plaint, which have been found to be untrue.

Where a land was given rent-free by an ancestor of the plaintiff to the grand-father of the defendant in 1837 in order that a tank might be excavated thereon and the tank was excavated at the expense of the grantee, and although the grantee and his descendants were in occupation for over 60 years no rent was ever claimed or paid.

Held, that the legitimate inference was that the defendants held the land under a rent-free grant.

Held, further, that assuming that the defendant did not hold the land under a rent-free grant, the claim for rent was barred by limitation.

Held, also, that the suit could not be dismissed on the ground that the right to have rent assessed on Landlord and tenant—contd.

the disputed land had not accrued at the date of suit, inasmuch as no grant was produced and there was nothing to show that liability to pay rent had been suspended and would be revived in a particular contingency. C. KALI MOHAN TRIPURA v. BIRENDRA KISORE, 22 C. L. J. 309 391

—Lessor and lessee—

Raiyat, essentials of—Lessee not getting juridical possession, whether raiyat—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 107—Criminal Court, findings of, whether admissible as evidence in Civil suit.

In order to make the principle, that 'an agricultural tenant who enters upon land and holds under a de facto proprietor bona fide, is entitled to be treated as raiya, although the de facto proprietor is subsequently proved to be not the real owner,' available in the case of a lease, it is essential that the lessor should be in possession of the leased property as de facto landlord and that in good faith he should have inducted into the land a cultivator who has accepted the settlement in good faith.

Where, a lessee took his lease from a person who had no title to confer on him and he never obtained juridical possession of the leased property but was, on the other hand, in attempting to take possession, resisted by a person to whom the leased property had already been sold in execution of a decree against the lessor and where as the result of criminal proceedings taken by the purchaser-possessor under section 107, Criminal Procedure Code, the lessee not having been found in possession, was bound down to keep the peace so that he might not interfere with the possession of the purchaser though he had failed to establish his alleged title:

Held, that under the circumstances the lessee was not entitled to be treated as raiya.

The finding of a Criminal Court on the question of possession is admissible in evidence in a civil proceeding taken for the recovery of possession of the same land, to show what order had been made, who the parties to the dispute were, what the land in dispute was and who was held entitled to possession. C. KRISHNA NATH v. MUHAMMAD WAFIZ 789

Occupation rent—Evidence—Unregistered lease deed, if admissible to prove rent fixed—Claim for occupation rent, whether transferable—Vendee of land, right of, to recover occupation rent for period prior to date of conveyance—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 3, 6 (e)—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), ss. 7 (d), 49.

An unregistered document purporting to be a lease of immoveable property is not admissible in evidence even to prove the rent agreed to be paid.

The right to claim occupation rent is not a mere right to sue incapable of being transferred, but an actionable claim which can be transferred. Consequently, a vendee of a land is entitled to recover the occupation rent due on it even prior to the date of the conveyance. M. GOVINDASAMI PILLAI v. RAMASAMI AIYAR, 18 M. L. T. 483; 2 L. W. 1186 604

Suit for rent below Rs. 50—Conflicting claim set up—Suit dismissed as no relation of landlord and tenant found—Appeal, if maintainable—No appeal from first Court's decision

Landlord and tenant—concl.

maintainable—Second appeal, if maintainable—Revision Jurisdiction—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115 812

—Trespasser, whether can set up rights of real tenant against landlord.

A person who is neither an agent of, nor a transferee from a tenant, but is a pure trespasser, cannot set up against the landlord the plea of non-abandonment of the holding by the tenant. N. SAHASRAM v. SHEONATH, 11 N. L. R. 124 303

Law, uniformity and certainty of—Courts, policy of 106

Lease. See LANDLORD AND TENANT; Mortgage LEASE

—Lease by insolvent of his occupancy holding, validity of 716

—Lease providing for forfeiture of land on alienation—Usufructuary mortgage created but no transfer of possession made—Construction of deed—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 11 (g).

A lease provided: "Further I have no right to alienate the said land in any manner" and contained also a provision for re-entry. The lessee usufructually mortgaged it, though he did not divest himself of possession of the land:

Held, (1) that the mortgage by itself was not such a disposition of the property in the land as could necessarily amount to an alienation within the terms of the forfeiture clause in the lease-deed;

(2) that the law leans against forfeiture, and the party relying on it must prove it to be exact and certain. M. MOHSEN SAHA v. GOPALA KUDWA 454

Registration Act (XVI of 1903), ss. 17, 49—Unregistered lease, terms of, whether admissible for proving fair rent for use and occupation 279

Legal necessity. See HINDU LAW.

Lessor and lessee—Land let out by person having no title—Suit for rent, maintainability of—Jurisdiction.

A person who lets out land to another, can recover rent from him, though he has no title in law to the land, and Civil Courts have jurisdiction to entertain suits for such rent even though the land be Government waste land. L. B. ANAMUT v. KALLU 888

Lease—Suit for possession—Promise to renew, effect of—Ejectment.

A covenant by a lessor to renew, even if legally enforceable against him, cannot be pleaded in bar to a suit for possession brought by him on the expiry of the term mentioned in the lease-deed.

A promise to renew contained in a lease-deed, cannot be treated as a promise not to eject on the expiry of the term. M. DISTRICT BOARD OF TANJORE v. VYTHILINGA CHETTY 919

—Lessee not getting juridical possession, whether raiyat 789

Letters of Administration. See WILL.

Letters Patent (Calcutta), cl. 12 581

cl. 15 319

Letters Patent (Madras), cl. 15—Judgment—Appeal—Order setting aside abatement—Sufficient cause—Administrator-General's Act (II of 1834), ss. 17, 18—Civil Procedure Code Act V of 1908), O. XII, rr. 2, 9—Abatement, order of, if necessary.

An order passed by a single Judge of the High Court sitting on the original side, setting aside the abatement of a suit is a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable.

The sole plaintiff in a suit, a Muhammadan, died on 13th November 1911, leaving a widow, sons and daughters. On the 29th November 1911, the Administrator-General, Madras, was directed by the High Court to take possession of the estate, effects and assets of the deceased. On the 12th August 1913, an order was passed that the suit abated as no legal representative of the deceased had been brought on record. On the 2nd December 1913 the Administrator-General was directed to obtain Letters of Administration to the estate and this he did on 23rd March 1914. On the 17th April 1914, he took out a Judge's summons praying that the abatement might be set aside and the suit restored to file and that he might be brought on record as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff. The order of abatement was set aside on the ground that sufficient cause had been shown by the Administrator-General for the delay:

Held, on appeal, that though the Administrator-General, so far as he was personally concerned, had sufficient cause for not making the application before April 1914, he had not explained why the other persons, who were the legal representatives of the deceased till he became such, had not applied to set aside the abatement, that the mere allegation, that the legal representatives had been quarrelling among themselves being no sufficient reason for excusing the delay and that the order setting aside the abatement ought to be set aside.

Quere.—Whether under the new Code of Civil Procedure an order that the suit shall abate is necessary before an abatement of suit takes place? M. KYLOON BEE v. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS, 2 L. W. 948

s. 15

238

s. 37—Appellate Side Rules of the Madras High Court, r. 105, if ultra vires—Appellant's failure to make necessary deposit for printing—Appeal, whether liable to be dismissed—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XII, rr. 11, 16.

Rule 105 of the Appellate Side Rules of the High Court directing dismissal of an appeal for default of prosecution if any of the papers mentioned therein have not been printed owing to the appellant's failure to make the necessary deposit therefor, is covered by section 37 of the Letters Patent and is not ultra vires.

The rule does not contravene the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure by limiting the right of appeal conferred by section 100 nor is it at variance with the provisions of Order XII as to the manner of disposal of an appeal.

Where an appeal is liable to be dismissed on a

Letters Patent (Mad.)—concl.

preliminary ground, the appellant cannot demand a hearing on its merits. M. KEEPIACHERI PARKUM v. VANNATHANKANDIYIL, 2 L. W. 949; 18 M. L. T. 383; (1915) M. W. N. 81; 29 M. L. J. 784

74

License for sale of acvack 32 degrees under proof, sale in breach thereof—Adukeration—Allowance of 2 per cent for wastage under rule 229, Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue how far defence—Standing Orders of Board of Revenue, r. 229, scope of—Abkari prosecution—Technicality of offence, whether can be considered by Court

656

Lien. See EXECUTION.

Limitation—Appeal against orders made in winding-up proceedings—Limitation Extension of time—Principles—Special circumstances

725

Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, art. 11

444

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5

899

s. 5—Appeal after failure of application for review—Time spent in review, if bona fide prosecution of civil litigation—Exclusion of time—Discretion, exercise of—Laches.

Where an appeal is filed after an application for review has failed and where the grounds for review are the only grounds of appeal, the time taken in prosecuting the application for review will not be excluded for making the appeal within time on the ground of bona fide prosecution of civil proceedings.

A mere routine order registering an application for review does not constitute a bona fide prosecution of a civil litigation.

The discretion to admit out of time appeals ought not to be crystallised into definite rules to fetter other Judges in the exercise of the discretion which the Legislature has permitted to them. What is sufficient cause and what is reasonable time for filing an appeal, must depend upon all the circumstances of each particular case.

The appellants were minors residing in an out of the way village and their father died during the hearing of appeal before the lower Appellate Court. They applied for a review of the judgment of the lower Appellate Court, which was against them, but the application was rejected. They applied 23 days after for the copy of the order and on receipt of the copy filed an appeal. The appeal was filed beyond time:

Held, that in the circumstances of the case the appeal should be registered. C. SUDHAKAR RAU v. SADASIVA JHATAP SINGH, 19 C. W. N. 1113

705

s. 5—'Sufficient cause', meaning of—Appeal filed with wrong decree—Procedure, slack, effect of.

The words "sufficient cause" in section 5 of the Limitation Act should receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice where no negligence, inaction or want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant.

Where a memorandum of appeal was accompanied not by a copy of the decree appealed against but by a copy of a decree in a connected case and where the whole procedure in the case, so far as the appellant was concerned, was slack to the utmost extent:

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Held, that there was not sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within the period of limitation and that, therefore, section 5 of the Limitation Act did not apply. A. GURPRASAD SINGH v. RAM SAMAJH SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 1101 876

s. 10. Sch. I, arts.14, 120—Deposit in Government Treasury—Limitation.

From the year 1836 to 1859, the accounts of the Satara Treasury showed the sum now claimed by the plaintiffs as payable to C, the plaintiffs' ancestor. In 1848 the Satara Principality became a part of the Bombay Presidency. In 1857 the Collector of Satara issued a notice to C's eldest son, S, calling upon him to withdraw the amount. In 1859, S applied for the money. Before, however, the money could be paid, S's younger brother objected to payment to S and asked for the distribution of the amount among C's all heirs. In 1861 the Assistant Collector ordered that the sons and heirs of C should produce a certificate of heirship and then arrangement would be made to pay them the money:

Held, that the order of 1860 as also the notice to S in 1857 was a sufficient declaration of trust and that the money was certainly vested in the Government when it took over the Satara Treasury in 1848 and the purpose of the credit in the name of C was certainly specific and that, therefore, section 10 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case:

Held, also, that the plaintiffs' claim did not fall within Article 14 of the Limitation Act and would be within time if it fell within Article 120, but that the case was one to which the bar of limitation could not be pleaded. B. SECRETARY OF STATE v. BAPUJI MAHADEV, 17 BOM. L. R. 64; 39 B. 472 277

s. 14 899, 917s. 14—Withdrawal of suit by plaintiff—Subsequent suit—Exclusion of time, whether allowed—Civil Procedure Code Act (V of 1908), O. XXIII, rr. 1, 2.

Section 14 of the Limitation Act has no application to a case where the plaintiff's suit has not been dismissed by the Court, but has been voluntarily withdrawn by him on discovery of a technical defect which would involve failure. M. ARUNACHELLAM CHETTIAR v. LAKSHMANA AIYAR, 2 L. W. 1002; 18 M. L. T. 385; 29 M. L. J. 569 234

s. 18 917s. 19—Karta of joint Hindu family, acknowledgment by, if valid—Other members, if bound—Promissory note filed with plaint missing from Court records—Copy filed—Suit, if fails—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 65.

S, the karta of a joint Hindu family, executed certain promissory notes. S died leaving a brother H and a minor son. H succeeded to the karta ship and renewed one of the hand notes executed by S. In a suit on the notes the plaintiff alleged to have filed the notes with the plaint but they were missing from the Court's records. Copies of the notes were filed and admitted by the lower Courts. The debt was not proved to have been contracted for any immoral purpose:

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Held, that the plaintiff's claim could not fail by reason of the theft or his inability to produce the original documents before the Courts:

Held, further, that the debt not being for immoral purposes H as the karta of the family was an agent duly authorized in this behalf so as to give an acknowledgment under section 9 of the Limitation Act and that the son of S was bound by the acknowledgment. C. HAR PRASAD DAS v. BAKSHI BINDESWARI PRASAD SINGH, 19 C. W. N. 800 30

s. 20 318s. 20—Payment towards interest—Intention.

In order to save limitation under section 20 of the Limitation Act, 1908, the payment towards interest must be the payment of interest as such, that is to say, the debtor should pay the amount with the intention that it should be paid towards interest and there must be something to indicate such an intention. U. B. NGA TWE v. NGA BA, U. B. R. 1915; 11, 80 101

s. 20—Saving of limitation—Payment of interest—Proof necessary—Debiting interest in account book, if sufficient—Payment in reduction of debt, if saves limitation.

To avoid the bar of limitation in a suit for the recovery of money due on a mortgage-deed, a plaintiff must establish, not only that there was payment within 2 years prior to the date of the institution of the suit, but also that there was either an express intimation by the debtor, or proof of the existence of circumstances going to show, that the payment was on account of the interest on the particular debt sued on.

In the absence of express agreement, debiting to interest in the books of account, cannot be regarded as payment of interest.

Payments made by the debtor in reduction of the general balance of account against him, but without intimating that any of such payments was to be appropriated in satisfaction of the interest due on his debt, do not amount to a payment of interest as such to save the bar of limitation. P. MUNI-CH-DIX v. MUHAMMAD AHMAD 782

s. 20, proviso—Payment by cheque, if would save limitation—Continuous account—Cause of action.

If a cheque be delivered to a payee by way of payment and is received as such by him, it operates as a payment and is an extinguishment to that extent of the debt, subject to the condition that if upon due presentation the cheque is not paid the original debt revives.

Such cheque signed by a debtor and given in part-payment of the principal and received by the creditor as such would save limitation as contemplated by the proviso to section 20 of the Indian Limitation Act.

Where there are dealings between two parties which give rise to a continuous account so that one item, if not paid, shall be united with another and form one continuous demand, the whole together forms but one cause of action and cannot be divided. C. KEDAR NATH v. DENOBANDHU SHAHA, 19 C. W. N. 724; 42 C. 1043 626

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

— s. 22—Mortgage, suit on, filed within time—Ad litem defendants, limitation against—Estate of mortgagor, liability of.

A mortgage, effected on the 3rd of June 1892, became due on demand on the 1st January 1900. The suit to enforce payment of money was brought after the death of the mortgagor, a Muhammadan, against his only son, a minor, on the 23rd of June 1911. The defendant's guardian urged that the mortgagor left other heirs, a widow and two daughters. The plaintiff applied, on the 29th of January 1912, to have them added as parties and they were so added on the 12th of February 1912. The added defendants contended that the suit was barred as against them under section 22 of the Limitation Act.

Held, that the addition of parties after the expiry of the time for the institution of a suit does not necessarily involve its dismissal under section 22 of the Limitation Act.

Held, further, that this suit was not barred against the added defendants inasmuch as the money was specifically charged on the whole property and the property was liable to be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage in priority to the satisfaction of any interest derived from the mortgagor subsequent to the date of the mortgage. B. VIRCHAND VAJEKARAN SUT V. KONDU KASAM ATAR, 17 BOM. L. R. 685; 30 B. 729. 180

— s. 23, Sch. I, arts.

120, 142—Property attached under s. 146, Criminal Procedure Code, suit to recover possession of, and for declaration—Limitation—Continuing wrong—"Dispossession," meaning of—"Discontinuance of possession," meaning of—Attachment, ownership during—Continuing injury—Suit against Magistrate, if maintainable—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 146.

The plaintiffs claimed title to the disputed property by purchase at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree. They took possession, but were resisted by the defendants. Proceedings were instituted under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the Magistrate being unable to satisfy himself as to which of the parties was in possession of the subject of dispute, attached it under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code on the 25th April 1902. In 1904 two suits were instituted by two sets of plaintiffs for declaration of their title and for recovery of possession. The plaintiffs were found to have been in possession when, on the 25th April 1902, the property was attached by order of the Magistrate.

Held, that the suits, though framed as suits for possession, could not be treated as such and were not governed by Article 42 of the Limitation Act.

Held, further, that the suits were for declaration of title under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act and there was continuing wrong independent of contract within the meaning of section 23 of the Limitation Act and that consequently a fresh period of limitation under Article 120 of the Limitation Act began to run at every moment of the time the wrong continued, and the suits were, therefore, not barred by time.

Semle.—Dispossession implies the coming in of a person and the driving out of another from possession.

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Discontinuance of possession implies the going out of the person in possession and his being followed into possession by another.

If the seisin or legal possession is, during the attachment of a property under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code, in the true owner, the attachment cannot be deemed to amount to either dispossession of the owner or the discontinuance of his possession within the meaning of Article 142 of the Limitation Act.

If the act complained of creates a continuing source of injury and is of such a nature as to render the doer of it responsible for the continuance, then, in cases in which damage is not of the essence of the action, as in trespass, a fresh cause of action arises de die in diem.

No action can be brought against a Magistrate for recovery of possession of a property attached by him under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code. C. BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY V. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY, 22 C. L. J. 283. 242

— s. 26 528

— s. 28 815

— Sch. I, art. 11—Order passed under s. 243 of old Civil Procedure Code, suit to set aside—Limitation.

Article 11 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act of 1908 has reference only to orders passed under the new Code of Civil Procedure. Therefore, an order passed in 1905 under section 283 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1842 need not be set aside by a suit instituted within one year from its date. M. T. S. SUBBA AIYAR V. SU. SUBBA AIYAR. 250

— art. 14 267, 277

— art. 20 277

— art. 29—Suit to recover value of standing crops cut and carried away—Standing crops, whether moveable property—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (13)—Immoveable property, definition of—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 3 (25).

The definition of "moveable property" given in section 2 (13) of the Civil Procedure Code does not govern the provisions of the Limitation Act.

"Immoveable property" as defined in section 3 (25) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, includes standing crops. A suit, therefore, to recover the value of such crops wrongfully cut and carried away is not a suit for the recovery of compensation within the meaning of Article 29 of the Limitation Act. M. DEVARASETTI NARASIMHAM V. DEVARASETTI VENKIAH, 18 M. L. T. 532. 796

— arts. 30, 31, 115—

Railway Company, goods consigned to—Non-delivery—Suit for compensation—Limitation—Cause of action—Common carrier, liability of—Special contract, effect of.

The plaintiff sued the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company on the 27th April 1914 for compensation in respect of a consignment of grease booked on the 3rd January 1913 from Belanganj (Agra) to Nagpur at owner's risk. The plaintiff alleged that the cause of action arose on or before the 26th January 1913 and that the Company was liable for non-delivery of the consignment, inasmuch as its employees had been guilty of wilful neglect not covered by the risk-note taken from the consignor under sub-section (2) (b) of section 72 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890. The Company pleaded that the suit was barred under Article 11 of the Limitation Act and that the risk-note protected it from liability.

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Held, that Article 31 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, 1908, and not Article 30 or Article 115, applied to such a suit.

Held, further, that the time for delivery must be a reasonable time after the goods were made over to the Company.

Semle—A common carrier by entering into a special contract limiting his liability does not cease to fill that character. N. ALI MOHAMMAD v. GREAT INDIA PENINSULA RY. CO. 11 N. L. R. 174 474

— — — — — art. 31 474

— — — — — art. 44 811

— — — — — art. 49 335

— — — — — art. 75 672

— — — — — art. 75—Instalment

Bond—Test of limitation—Liberty to creditor to sue on failure to pay at stipulated time—Time from when runs.

In a suit on an instalment bond on default of payment of an instalment the test whether or not the period of limitation begins to run is—has the payee or obligee a right to file a suit forthwith for the principal remaining due if he so chooses?

Where an agreement provided for payment of the principal within 12 months with interest payable every month or in case of failure, two months' interest together; and permitted the creditor, in default of payment of the principal on the stipulated date or of monthly interest or two months' interest together, to file a suit immediately for the recovery of the whole amount:

Held, that the limitation began to run from the date of the default in the payment of two months' interest together. S. VISHINDAS WADHURAM v. HOTOMAL DITOMAL, 9 S. L. R. 10 479

— — — — — art. 91—Sale-deed giv- ing no present interest in property—Suit to set aside deed on ground of fraud—Starting point of limitation.

A suit to set aside a sale-deed on the ground of fraud, where the deed does not give any present interest in the property is within time if brought within three years from the date of the defendants' attempt to take unlawful possession of the property. M. - SUKRAMANIA PILLAI v. KUPPAMA: 106

— — — — — art. 109 804

— — — — — art. 115 35, 474

— — — — — art. 116 394

— — — — — art. 116—Covenant of title, damages for breach of—Damages, suit for—Limitation, when begins to run.

A breach of a covenant for title caused by the absence of right contracted for is entire and complete at the time of the execution of the conveyance, and, therefore, the Statute of Limitations in such a case in the absence of fraud begins to run in the conveyancer's favour as from the date of the execution of the sale-deed. PIRABHU v. WIZIABI, 11 N. L. R. 186 577

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

— — — — — art. 116, 103—Usufructuary—Possession not delivered—Suit for profits and possession of mortgaged property—Limitation.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee sued for possession of the mortgaged property within six years of the date from which he was to have received possession and also claimed mesne profits for the same period on the allegation that the mortgagor had never given him possession in accordance with the terms of the deed, the mortgage deed being a registered one:

Held, that the claim for profits was in substance one for compensation for breach of a contract in writing registered and was governed by Article 116, and not by Article 109, of the Limitation Act. A. NIDHAI SINHA v. TULSI RAM 504

— — — — — art. 120 335

— — — — — art. 120—Suit based on award.

A suit based on an award cannot be considered to be a suit on a contract and is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act. M. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTY v. RANGASAMI IYANGAR 516

— — — — — art. 121—Encumbrance, meaning of—Adverse possession for statutory period before sale, if encumbrance—Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), s. 70.

An interest acquired in an estate by adverse possession for the statutory period before its sale under section 70 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886, is an encumbrance within the meaning of Article 121 of the First Schedule to the Limitation Act, 1908. C. PRASANNA KUMAR DUTT PURKAYASTHA v. JANENDRA KUMAR DUTTA 501 — — — — — art. 132—Mortgage-

deed—Option of mortgagee to sue on failure to pay interest or at his pleasure—Starting point of limitation.

A mortgage-deed dated 8th December 1895 provided that the mortgage could be foreclosed at the end of three years, that the mortgage-debt was to carry Rs. 31-8-0 interest half-yearly to be paid half-yearly and that if two periods of six months elapsed without interest being paid, the mortgagee was to have the option of maintaining the period of the mortgage and suing only for the interest or of cutting short the mortgage (migad-i-rahni fikh karkar) and suing for the whole debt, principal and interest. No interest was ever paid. The suit was instituted on 17th April 1909. The defendant pleaded limitation:

Held, that under Article 132 of the Limitation Act, the period began to run from the time when the money sued for became due, viz., 8th December 1895, and that, therefore, the suit was barred by time. P. SHAM SUNDAR v. ABDUL AHAD, 153 P. W. R. 19.5 808

— — — — — art. 134 267

Limitation Act—(1908)—consolid.Sch. I, arts. 134, 144—

Adverse possession—Co-parceners, possession of one, possession of others—Possession hostile at commencement—Accrual of peaceful title before completion of adverse possession, effect of—Possession—Title.

On the suit of one of two reversioners, a sale was declared to be a mortgage in 1885 and the plaintiff was given a decree to redeem the property after the death of the widow in case she died without redeeming it. In 1893, the purchaser, whom the decree had declared to be a mere mortgagee, sold the property to the other reversioner and put him in possession. On the widow's death in 1900, the said two reversioners were the only heirs of her husband. When in 1912 the former sued for redemption of the property, the latter pleaded adverse possession from the date of his purchase:

Held, (1) that although the possession of the defendant reversioner when it commenced in 1893 was hostile, yet it ceased to be so in 1900 when on the widow's death succession opened to both the reversioners;

(2) that on the death of the widow, the defendant must be deemed to have held the property on behalf of the plaintiff as well;

The possession of one co-parcener or co-owner cannot be adverse to the other until the latter is notoriously excluded by the former.

The possession should be prima facie attributed to a lawful title. M. VELAYUTHAM PILLAI v. SUBBAROYA PILLAI, 2 L. W. 989; 18 M. L. T. 424; (1916) M. W. N. 873

_____	art. 141	398
_____	art. 142	290
_____	art. 144	242, 965
_____	art. 158	398
_____	art. 158	536
_____	art. 171	697
_____	art. 178	899
_____	art. 179, s. 12—

Application for leave to appeal to His Majesty—Limitation, from what date to be computed—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree, if excluded.

In computing the period of six months under Article 179 of the Limitation Act provided for an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council, an applicant is entitled under section 12, clause (2), of the Limitation Act, to exclude the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree.

Section 12 (2) of the Limitation Act is general and applies to all applications for leave to appeal. A. RAM SARUP v. JASWANT RAI, 13 A. L. J. 1114

art. 182—Application for execution by some of decree-holder's legal representatives not purporting to be on behalf of others, whether saves limitation.

An application for execution of a decree by some of the legal representatives of a decree-holder is covered by Explanation I of Article 182 of the Limitation Act and saves limitation in favour of all the legal representatives even though it does not purport to be on behalf of all. M. VASUDEVA PATTI JOSHI v. NARAYANAPANI GRAHI, 18 M. L. T. 517

art. 182 (2) 426

Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886), s. 56

(b)—License for sale of arrack 32 degrees under proof, sale in breach thereof—Adulteration—Allowance of 2 per cent. for wastage under r. 229, Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue how far defence—Standing Orders of Board of Revenue, r. 229, scope of—Abkari prosecution—Technicality of offence, whether can be considered by Court

Rule 229 of the Standing Orders of the Board of Revenue, which directs Abkari officers to allow wastage in bottling up to 2 per cent. is only a departmental rule for the guidance of its subordinates, the margin of 2 per cent. being fixed as an allowance for evaporation in cases where there is reason to believe that the diminution in strength is due to natural causes. It cannot be construed to mean that licensees can adulterate arrack so long as they do not exceed 2 per cent. over the strength mentioned in the permit.

The rule not having been made under section 69 of the Madras Abkari Act, 1886, has not the force of law and cannot be read as part of the Act.

Under section 55 (b) of the Abkari Act, an offence is committed the moment a person sells arrack below the strength specified in the permit, no matter what the cause of the variation may be. The fact that the offence is only technical, is not a matter for the Court, but one for the officers instituting the prosecution. M. IN RE DAMODARA NAIDU, 2 L. W. 1120; 16 Cr. L. J. 800

656

Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 14

104

Madras Civil Rules of Practice (Mofassil), r. 94

502 _____ r. 278, 279, 284

_____ 312

Madras Court of Wards Act (I of 1902), r. 58—Remission of interest on arrears of rent—Manager, power of.

In cases of remissions made by the Manager appointed by the Court of Wards but not included in those specified in rule 58 of the rules framed by the Court of Wards under the Court of Wards Act, it is for the party relying upon the remissions to prove that the Court of Wards had specially authorized the Manager to grant them. M. MADHAVA BHUNJ SANTO v. RAMACHANDRA MARDARAJ

468

Madras District Municipalities Act (IV of 1884), s. 250 (1) (a), rules under, r. 4, note I—Duty of Chairman to register voters—Acting "in good faith," meaning of—Liability in damages—Test.

The plaintiff firm applied to the Chairman of the Municipal Committee that the name of its representative be registered as a voter. The application was rejected and the firm's representative was not allowed to vote at the election. The plaintiff sued for damages:

Held, (1) that the real test to determine whether the Chairman was liable or not on the ground that the name of the firm was not clearly described in the register of voters, was whether he when he passed the order was acting "in good faith" which implied "due care and diligence,"

(2) that inasmuch as the Chairman was himself responsible for the ambiguous entry in the register,

Madras District Municipalities Act —concl.

it was his duty to hold an enquiry if he entertained any doubt as to the identity of the firm's representative;

(3) that since he had rejected the plaintiffs' application without good cause he was liable in damages. M. DRAVIYAM PILLAI v. CRUZ FERNANDEZ, 29 M. L. J. 704; 18 M. L. T. 518 322

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 3—“Estate”—Grant of whole village as inam—Proof.

Where a village granted as an inam contains minor inams and ryotwari holdings and the question is whether the village as a whole was granted as an inam or only a portion of it, the fact that it was treated as a whole inam village at the Inam Settlement and the Revenue Authorities themselves subsequently recognized it as such, is a clear proof that the whole village was granted as an inam and is an “estate” within the meaning of Act I of 1908. M. KASTURI AYYANGAR v. GULAM GHOUSE SAHIB 791

— s. 3—“Rent,” meaning of—— Suit to recover rent for land let for building houses—— Jurisdiction—“Jerayati” land, meaning of.

Money due for occupation of land let for the purpose of building houses is not “rent” within the meaning of section 3 of the Madras Estates Land Act, and a suit to recover it is cognizable by the Civil and not by the Revenue Court.

The term “jerayati” is applied indiscriminately both to “cultivable land” and “inam land,” and does not necessarily mean land let for agricultural purposes. M. RAMACHANDRA MARDARAJA DEO v. DUKKO PODRANO 852

— ss. 3 (5), 5, 53, 111, 112—Person entitled to arrears of rent, if landholder—First charge on holding, right of—Landholder out of possession, whether can attach holding—Remedy open to him.

A person to whom arrears of rent are due is a “landholder” notwithstanding the fact that his estate has terminated, but he has not a first charge on the holding. He can distrain the moveable property or the trees on the holding of the defaulter but is not entitled to attach the holding itself. M. SUNDARAM IYER v. KULATHU AYYER, 2 L. W. 867; 18 M. L. T. 316; 29 M. L. J. 505; (1915) M. W. N. 731 81

— s. 5 81

— s. 13 (3)—Landlord and tenant—Extra charge for vanpayir claimed—Long-continued course of payment—Contract to pay—Presumption.

It cannot be laid down as a general rule that in all cases where there has been a long-continued course of payment of an extra charge for vanpayir, a contract to pay it must be presumed. M. ARUNACHELUM CHETTI v. SYAD AHANED AMBALAN, 2 L. W. 1117; 19 M. L. T. 128 539

— Ch. IV, s. 52—Agreement to pay enhanced rate entered into before Act came into force—Pattas and muchilikas exchanged under Rent Recovery Act, whether binding on tenant after Estates Land Act came into force.

An agreement to pay an increased rate of rent entered into before the Madras Estates Land Act came into force by a person who was a yearly tenant does not bind him after the Act came into force, as his status is changed by the Act.

Madras Estates Land Act—contd.

Section 52 applies only to pattas and muchilikas exchanged since the Act came into force and no retrospective effect can be given to that section so as to bring within its operation pattas and muchilikas executed under the Rent Recovery Act, VIII of 1865, and tenable for a year only. M. RAJA OF PITHAPURAM v. JONNALAGODDA VENKATASUBBA ROW, 18 M. L. T. 348; (1915) M. W. N. 813 93

— ss. 53, 111, 112

— s. 151, scope of—Relief under s. 151, when granted—Circumstances to be considered.

Section 151, Madras Estates Land Act, is intended to give the landholder a right to sue for the reliefs mentioned therein only when the holding as a whole is rendered substantially unfit for agricultural purposes by the acts of the ryot committed on the whole or on any part of the holding.

In arriving at a decision as to whether the holding as a whole is so rendered unfit by the acts of the ryot on any part of the holding, reference must be had to the circumstances of individual cases, to the size of the holding, to the area withdrawn from actual cultivation and to the effect of such withdrawal upon the fitness of the holding taken as a whole for profitable cultivation. M. NAVANNA VENA RAMA CHETTI v. ARUNACHALAM CHETTI & Co., 18 M. L. T. 349; 29 M. L. J. 724; (1915) M. W. N. 801 98

— ss. 151, 152—Tenant committing act of waste on holding rendering it unfit for agricultural purposes—Liability to pay compensation—Relationship of landlord and tenant, whether subsists—Suit for ejectment.

Under the Estates Land Act, it is open to the Courts to award compensation in lieu of ejectment in all cases of waste; but the payment of compensation does not put an end to the relationship of landlord and tenant existing between the parties.

Where in a suit for ejectment by the trustees of a temple, on the ground that the defendants had erected a building on a portion of the holding and had thereby committed an act of waste, it was found that the holding as a whole had been materially impaired for agricultural purposes and rendered substantially unfit for such purposes:

Held, that the defendants could not be evicted but that they must pay compensation to the plaintiffs for the injury to the holding and continue to hold the land and the building thereon subject to the payment of the rent originally agreed upon.

Per Sheshagiri Aiyar, J.—The damage to which a tenant renders himself liable is not for the value of the right which the landlord has in the holding, but for the wrongful act which the tenant has committed on the property. M. SANKARALINGA MOOPANAR v. SUBRAMANIA PILLAI, 29 M. L. J. 514 273

— s. 152

— ss. 149, 213—Suit for damages for illegal distraint by tenant holding under ryotwari tenure—Jurisdiction—Interpretation of Statute.

Madras Estates Land Act—concl'd.

A suit by a tenant of a ryotwari land-owner or of any sub-tenant of such for damages for illegal distraint of moveable property, growing crops or the produce of land or trees, in a defaulter's holding is exclusively triable by a Revenue Court.

Section 89 of the Estates Land Act read with section 213 (1) has the effect of taking such suits out of the jurisdiction of Civil Courts, which can be exercised only where the suit is for other reliefs such as injunction, declaration, possession, etc.

Obiter dictum (Wallis, C. J.)—The creation of a new jurisdiction does not affect previously existing jurisdiction in the absence of express provision. M. NARAYANASWAMY AIYAR v. VENKATARAMANA AIYAR, 29 M. L. J. 607; 18 M. L. T. 426; 2 L. W. 1037; (1915) M. W. N. 921

s. 213

Madras High Court Fee Rules, 1902,

r. 17, nature of—Provisions to be strictly pursued—Order under rule, when to be made.

Rule 17 of the Madras High Court Fee Rules, 1902, which provides that when the costs of an interlocutory order are not paid all proceedings in the suit or matter may be stayed or set aside, is a highly penal one and should be strictly pursued. An order under that rule can only be made on a summons in Chambers or on the hearing of an application by the party in default and not at the final hearing. M. MURUGESA CHETTI v. ARUMUGA CHETTI, 2 L. W. 1205; 18 M. L. T. 601

923

Madras Planters Labour Act (I of 1903), ss. 24, 35—Power of Magistrate to issue repeated directions—Conviction for disobedience, whether bar to subsequent action—"Failure to account for money advanced," meaning of.

There is no limit to the number of repeated directions which may be issued under section 35 of the Madras Planters Labour Act or to the number of prosecutions and convictions which may follow in default.

Action taken under section 35 of the Madras Planters Labour Act does not put an end to the contract and is, therefore, no bar to a second trial and conviction for disobedience to a direction to fulfil it.

Per Ayling, J.—The words "fails to account for the money advanced to him" mean simply this: failure to either supply labour equivalent to the advance received or to refund any balance of the advance for which he is unable to supply labour or to prove that it has been legitimately expended. M. N. C. WHITTON v. MAMMAD MAISTRY, 2 L. W. 1039; 18 M. L. T. 511; 16 Cr. L. J. 777

377

s. 35

377

Madras Regulation XXV of 1802,

S. 4—Inam—Jodi payable by inamdar to zemindar whether excluded in fixing peishcush—Resumption and levy of full assessment by Government, if takes away liability to pay jodi

Under section 4 of Madras Regulation XXV of 1802, what was excluded from consideration in fixing the permanent assessment payable by a zemindar, was not the jodi payable by an inamdar to a zemindar but the difference between the jodi and the proper assessment claimable from the lands if they had not been granted in inam. The Government reserved its powers to deal with Madras Regulation—concl'd.

this difference only and not with the jodi itself. The resumption of a service inam and the levy of full assessment by the Government thereon, does not take away the liability of the inamdar to pay jodi to the zemindar. M. ADAPAKA BAPANNA v. INGANI RAJAGOPALA, 2 L. W. 1212

813

Madras Village Courts Act (I of 1889), s. 24—Person holding vakalatnamah, appearance by—Privilege denied—Suit to declare right, maintainability of.

Under section 24 of the Madras Village Courts Act, any person holding a vakalatnamah from a party may appear and plead in a Village Court; and there is no provision in the Act for debarring any one from this privilege.

Where this privilege is denied by an illegal order passed by an officer, a right of action to have that right declared exists in common law, if not under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act. M. MCHIRAZH RAMACHANDRA ROW v. SECRETARY OF STATE

310

Maintenance. See HINDU LAW.

Agreement, construction of—Hindu widow agreeing with her husband's reversioner to lead chaste life—Maintenance, forfeiture of—Second appeal—Finding of fact—Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), s. 44.

Where a Hindu widow who executed an agreement in favour of her husband's reversioner to the effect that she would lead a chaste life throughout the period of her residence in her deceased husband's house and receive maintenance allowance so long as she remained chaste, has taken to a life of immorality, she forfeits the right to maintenance.

A finding that the woman has taken to a life of immorality, cannot be interfered with in second appeal. P. TARA DEVI v. DHANPAT RAI, 150 P. W. R. 1915

797

Malabar Law—Gift of land to wife alone—No words of conveyance to children—Absolute interest—Makkalapannaya.

Where a husband made a permanent lease of his properties to his wife, the deed containing no words conveying the estate to the children, and the wife executed a deed of gift in respect of the major portion of these properties in favour of her two daughters, one of whom sold some of the properties which fell to her share to a third party; and a suit was brought by the daughters' children for a declaration that the alienation was not binding on them:

Held, (1) that the donor intended to give an absolute estate to his wife;

(2) that the gift by the wife to her daughters conferred an absolute right on them and the plaintiffs had no right to contest the alienation. M. DUJA BHANDARI v. VENKU BHANDARI

854

Kanom mortgage with covenant for perpetual renewal—Intention—Clog on equity of redemption—Denial of jenmi's title—Forfeiture—Statements of deceased persons not made in course of business, admissibility of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (2).

A kanom mortgage, with a covenant for perpetual renewal, is rather a perpetual kanom than an ordinary mortgage with a clog on the equity of redemption and is, therefore, not invalid. The kanomdar in such circumstances does not forfeit his kanom mortgage by denying the jeemi's title.

Malabar Law—concl'd.

Mere assertions of title as owner by a person having rights in lands of a very substantial kind should not necessarily be treated as denial of the title of a landlord whose rights are of an attenuated character.

Statements of deceased persons not made in the usual course of business are not admissible in evidence under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act. M. KOLANGORATH RAYAN NAYAR v. KAYNGOT, 2 L. W. 941; (1915) M. W. N. 793

184

Mukhammadan following Marumakkattayam Law—Custom of affilating strangers to tarwad, whether valid.

The custom of affiliation prevalent among Hindus, who follow the Marumakkattayam Law, if proved to exist among the Muhammadans, following the same law, must be upheld. M. MAMU v. MUHAMMAD KUTTI

385

Tarwad property—Karnavan—Junior members, right of, to pledge tarwad property—Necessity—Motive—Lender, right of, to proceed against tarwad property.

The 1st and 2nd defendants, who were members of a tarwad, agreed with the plaintiff to pay a certain remuneration for assisting them in a litigation concerning the tarwad property. The 1st defendant who thereafter succeeded to the management of the estate, compromised the suit. The plaintiff was not consulted with regard to the compromise, nor was the 2nd defendant a consenting party. The plaintiff, however, was informed not to do anything in connection with the suit. The suit was consequently dismissed. The plaintiff sued for the remuneration stipulated.

Held, that, in the absence of proof that the defendants acted in the best interests of the family and that there was necessity for promising a large remuneration, the defendants had no authority to bind the family by the agreement.

Per Wallis, C. J.—Though the karnavan has the exclusive right of management he does not hold only for himself, but for himself and all the other members of the tarwad and, therefore, to some extent in a fiduciary capacity and it is competent to the members next in seniority not only to sue for his removal but also to sue for a declaration that an alienation made by him is not binding on the tarwad.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—In a Malabar tarwad, unlike in a joint Hindu family, there is no right to proceed against the share of the alienating member and a member of the tarwad is not competent to pledge the credit of the others.

Where the tarwad is in its normal state, the karnavan alone is competent to pledge the tarwad credit but where the acts of the karnavan are such as to seriously endanger tarwad property the junior members have power to act on behalf of the tarwad.

If it is proved in a case where the junior members have pledged the tarwad property that the money was advanced and utilized for protecting the property from malversation or mismanagement, the lender has a claim on the tarwad for the loan. M. RAJA OF ARAKAL v. CHUBIA KUNNI KANNAN, 29 M. L. J. 632

482

Malicious prosecution—Causing or procuring another to be prosecuted—Suit for damages, maintainability of.

A person who causes or procures another to be prosecuted is liable notwithstanding the intervention of some other person as the direct or technical prosecutor; it can make no difference whether the other person is or is not an officer of the law.

Where, therefore, in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, it appeared that the defendant did not set the law in motion against the plaintiff:

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to any relief. M. MANIKAM MUDALIAR v. KUMMALANGUTTAY MANI-SWAMI, 29 M. L. J. 694; 18 M. L. T. 500; (1915) M. W. N. 911

246

Proof essential—Damages, when awarded—Principle.

In an action for malicious prosecution, the plaintiff has to prove first that he was innocent and that his innocence was pronounced by the Tribunal before which the accusation was made.

A man is not to be mulcted in damages merely because he fails to prove another's guilt, nor is a man to receive compensation merely because there is a reasonable doubt about his guilt; if there is any doubt about his innocence, he fails to prove the absence of reasonable and probable cause.

A man is acquitted in a criminal case if there is a reasonable doubt as to his guilt, but a Civil Court will not award him compensation in a subsequent suit for damages for malicious prosecution unless it has not only itself no reasonable doubt as to his innocence but considers the prosecutor either had, or should as a reasonable man have had, none either. L. B. MATHA HLA v. MOHILAN

324

of manager of undivided Hindu family—Cause of action, whether survives to remaining co-parceners

4

Mandamus. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.

Omission of qualified candidate's name from Election Roll—Mistake of Returning Officer—Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere

618

Marriage. See HINDU LAW.Merger. See MORTGAGE.

Mesne profits—Decree for possession with mesne profits—Possession delivered late in season—Judgment-debtor, liability of—Interest on mesne profits after three years—Discretion.

In a decree for possession with mesne profits, if the judgment-debtor surrenders possession, he can claim non-liability for mesne profits only if such possession was given up sufficiently early in the season to enable the decree-holder to cultivate the land and raise crops thereon.

It is discretionary with a Court to award interest on mesne profits beyond three years from the date of the decree. M. NAINA PILLAI MARACATYAR v. ABUMUGA MUDALI, 2 L. W. 1129

387 liability for—Person in illegal occupation

211

Minor—Mother executing mortgage of minor's property—Document not purporting to be executed by mother as guardian—Property described as belonging to minor and registered in mother's name as guardian—Construction of deed—Suit by minor to set aside mortgage-deed—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 44.

Minor—concl'd.

The mother and natural guardian of a Hindu minor executed a mortgage of immoveable properties belonging to him. The document did not purport to be executed by her as the guardian of her minor son, but the mortgaged property was described in the document as having been registered in her name as the guardian of her minor son:

Held, that the document was one executed by the mother not in her individual capacity but as the guardian of her minor son and that a suit brought by the minor more than three years after he attained his majority, to set aside the mortgage, was barred by limitation. M. VELAYUTHAM PILLAI v. PERUMAL NAICKER, 2 L. W. 1210 811

Mortgage by conditional sale—Foreclosure proceedings—Notice, service of, on de facto guardian of minor mortgagor, whether sufficient—Consideration, receipt of, denial of—Burden of proof 212

—Construction of document—Perpetual lease—Equity of redemption, clog on.

A document styled a patta contained inter alia the following:—

"Thirty years ago I had taken from you Rs. 150 and in lieu thereof executed two bonds mortgaging with possession my agricultural land (jiayat). . . . From that year the jiayat has remained in your possession and was cultivated by you. Now I execute a new bond for those rupees and agree that in lieu of those rupees, you may take the produce of the jiayat. . . . The field has been given in your possession from to-day, there will be no interest and I will claim no produce. When I or my heirs pay the whole amount mentioned, you may receive it and continue to cultivate the field for ever from this day. After payment to you of the whole amount of this bond, you shall pay Rs. 8 per annum on account of rent of the field in perpetuity from generation to generation."

Held, the document was an usufructuary mortgage-deed and that the stipulation in the deed that after the mortgage-money was paid off, the mortgagee would remain in possession as perpetual lessee on payment of a yearly rent, was a clog on the equity of redemption. N. DAOLAT RAI v. SUEIKH CHAND, 11 N. L. R. 180 869

—Document not enforceable as mortgage, whether admissible for collateral purpose 728

—by Hindu father—Suit by minor son for declaration that it shall not affect his rights—Son meanwhile becoming Muhammadan—Suit, if maintainable—Alienation for immoral purposes—Burden of proof 476

—Mortgage-debt, transfer of—Covenant, implied, for title—Breach of covenant for title—Suit for damages, maintainability of—Cause of action, when arises—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55.

There is no implied covenant for title on a transfer of a mortgage-debt, as it can hardly be regarded as a transfer of ownership of immoveable property.

Therefore, in such a case a suit to recover damages for an alleged breach of covenant for title is not maintainable. The cause of action for a suit for damages for breach of covenant for title arises on the execution of the conveyance. M. SAMU PATHAN v. CHIDAMBARAM ODATAN, 29 M. L. J. 454, 2 L. W. 918 179

Mortgage—concl'd.

—Occupancy tenant—Mortgage of holding before Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901)—Relinquishment by mortgagee, effect of.

An occupancy tenant who prior to the coming into force of the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901, mortgaged his holding for consideration and in a genuine way, and put the mortgagee in possession, cannot enter into a bargain with his zemindar so as to secure some collateral advantage for himself as consideration for the relinquishment of his holding, to the prejudice of the mortgagee whom he has himself put in possession. A. SHEO-MANGAL SINGH v. CHEDU, 13 A. L. J. 1137 914

—Verbal mortgage—Subsequent document—Oral evidence admissible to prove transaction 87

—Deed—Option of mortgagee to sue on failure to pay interest or at his pleasure—Starting point of limitation 808

—Redemption—Clog on equity of redemption 184

—by owner of share in equity of redemption or by person having interest in portion of mortgaged property, if allowed 230

—suit for—Burden of proof—Court's duty in such cases.

In a suit for redemption, the plaintiff when he is put to strict proof and is out of possession, must stand or fall by the strength of his evidence and cannot depend upon the weakness of his adversary's case. In such cases it is absolutely wrong to deal with the case of the defendant first and prove it to be worthless and then turn to that of the plaintiff. The Court should see whether the plaintiff has discharged the burden lying upon him; his case cannot be held to be true because the defendant has failed to prove his defence. L. B. LA AUNG v. MAUNG SO 885

—suit for—Mortgage-deed in mortgagee's possession—Oral evidence, admissibility of 892

—simple—Lease of property hypothecated to mortgagee—Construction of documents—Assignment of rent—Rent, if debt—Chose in action—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 6.

In 1898, a simple mortgage was executed of certain properties by the mortgagor. In 1904, he executed a lease of the same to the mortgagee and directed him to apply the rent payable under the lease towards the interest due under the mortgage-bond executed in 1898:

Held, that the two transactions must be deemed to be independent of each other and the simple mortgage was not converted into a usufructuary mortgage on the execution of the lease.

An assignment of rent due under a lease is, unlike mesne profits, not opposed to section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act: it is a fixed amount and is a debt included in the term 'chose in action'. M. CHIDAMBARAM PILLAI v. DORAISWAMY CHETTY 473 —Simple mortgagee, rights of—Trespasser dispossessing mortgagor—Possession, whether adverse to mortgagee.

Mortgage—concl'd.

The possession of a trespasser who has dispossessed a mortgagor, the mortgage being simple, is on adverse to the simple mortgagee and his rights as mortgagee do not become extinguished by the trespasser's possession for more than twelve years. M. VIJAYAPUR & SONAMMA BOI AMMANI, 29 M. L. J. 645; 2 L. W. 1080; (1915) M. W. N. 927; 18 M. L. T. 436

412

Subrogation—Satisfaction

of charge undertaken to be satisfied—Frustrated committed in respect of existence or satisfaction of prior charge—Contract, stranger to, when can claim performance of.

The doctrine of subrogation does not apply when a person simply performs his own obligation or covenant and pays off a charge which he has undertaken or is bound to satisfy. If a person purchases a property subject to two mortgages, retains a portion of the purchase-money for payment to the mortgagees, but pays the first incumbrancer alone and not the second, he cannot treat the first mortgage as kept alive for use as a shield against the second; nor can he claim to be subrogated to the position of the mortgagee whose debt he has satisfied.

If A purchases property subject to three successive charges X, Y and Z with full knowledge of their existence, and retains a portion of the purchase-money in his hands with a view to satisfy the mortgages Y and Z, but subsequently discharges the security Z, he cannot, on satisfaction of the mortgage X, use it as a shield against the mortgage Y. But if the acceptance of the mortgage-deed with an untrue recital as to the satisfaction of the mortgage X by the mortgagee Y enabled the mortgagor to commit a fraud upon the purchaser, the latter can, on discovery and satisfaction of the mortgage X use it as a shield against the mortgagee Y.

Although a stranger to a contract may sometimes be entitled to claim the benefit of the performance thereof, the doctrine cannot be allowed to be invoked to defeat the ends of justice. C. HAR SHYAM v. SHYAM LAL SAHU, 22 C. L. J. 227; 43 C. 69 suit—Mortgage not proved to be duly executed—Simple money-decree, if can be given—Cause of action.

22

In a suit on a mortgage for sale of the mortgaged property against the son of the executant of the mortgage, the mortgage was not proved to have been duly executed:

Held, that under the circumstances no simple money-decree could be given inasmuch as it would entirely change the cause of action. A. MUKSHI LAL v. MANGAT RAI

706

, usufructuary—Possession not delivered—Suit for profits and possession of mortgaged property—Limitation

807

Usufructuary mortgagee

—Purchase by mortgagee of mortgaged property—Merger.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee purchases the property in execution of his own decree on the basis of a simple mortgage, he becomes the absolute owner of the property and the mortgagee right ceases to exist by virtue of the law of merger. A. JAWAHIR MAL v. UPAL RAM

891

Muhammadan Law. See CUTCHI MEMONS.

Alienation of Muhammadan minor's property by unauthorised guardian, effect of 728

Divorce—Kabinnamah

executed by husband authorizing wife to divorce on ground of second marriage, validity of.

A Muhammadan husband executed a kabinnamah in favour of his wife authorizing her to divorce herself from the husband in the event of his marrying a second wife. He, however, married a second wife and imputed unchastity to his first wife and refused to maintain her. Thereupon a document of talaknamah was executed by the wife in accordance with the provisions to that effect in her kabinnamah:

Held, that the contract was not void and the effect of the second marriage was to give the wife a power to divorce her husband. C. MAHARAM ALI v. AYESA KHATUN, 9 C. W. N. 1226

562

Gift—Possession—Mutation, effect of.

Delivery of possession is essential to make a gift valid under Muhammadan Law.

Where there is only an execution of a deed of gift and the donor, retaining the gift-deed himself, continues to exercise rights of ownership over the property for his own benefit and does not profess to hold it either as trustee or agent of the donee, there is no such delivery of possession as is contemplated by the Muhammadan Law, and the gift is invalid. The mere change in the Collector's certificate does not prove, by itself, change of possession. M. SULFALLA SCHIB v. VAJHUDDIN SAHIB v. 2 L. W. 1018; (1915) M. W. N. 876

281

Transfer of possession—Donor continuing to receive rents—Presumption.

A deed of gift evidences merely a declaration of intention and nothing more. In order to make the gift complete and operative, the donor must deliver possession of the subject of gift to the donee and must divest himself of all power over it.

Where, therefore, after the execution of a deed of gift, no act of ownership was exercised over the subject of gift either by the donee or any person on his behalf, but the donor reserved to his own use the rents and profits of the property:

Held, that the gift was not intended to operate as a transfer to the donee and could not be given effect to. M. RAHMAN BI v. FATIMA BIBI, (1915) M. W. N. 430

545

Marriage—Muta marriage, distinctive features of—Co-habitation and reputed, whether sufficient to raise presumption of legitimacy—Acknowledgment by father or family, necessity of.

'Muta' is the lowest form of marriage known to Muhammadan Law—so low as to be practically indistinguishable from concubinage. The two known features about it are, first, that there must be a definite period for the marriage to last either in this world or in the next or in both, and secondly, that a sum of money must be paid to the bride as her dower.

None but children who are in the strictest sense of the word spurious are considered incapable of inheriting the estate of their putative father.

Mere continued co-habitation does not suffice to raise such a legal presumption of marriage as to legitimize the offspring, there must be, besides co-habitation and besides proof of parentage, something in the nature of acknowledgment, either expressed or by conduct, on the part of the reputed father or his family. M. AKBAR HUSSAIN SAHIB v. SHOUKHAH BEGAM SAHEBA 2 L. W. 1191; 18 M. L. T. 525 c57 community—Two brothers and their descendants living and trading together as members of undivided family—Rights of parties inter se, how determined—Hindu Law, how far applicable Hindu family firm and Muhammadan family firm, difference between—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 241—Act how far applicable to Hindu and Muhammadan family trading firms—Custom, connotation of.

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Succession—Nawayat

Prior to 1845, one Haji Hassan, a Muhammadan belonging to the Nawayat community and trading separately on his own account, associated with him his younger brother, Hammed, in the trade. In 1845, on the eve of his departure to Mecca, he executed a document whereby, in the event of his not returning from his pilgrimage, he directed that Hammed should get one-eighth of his properties. Hassan returned from Mecca in 1848 and till 1866, when Hammed died, the two brothers lived together and traded together. Their relations were very cordial, Hammed's son marrying Hassan's daughter. Hassan died in 1870. During the life-time of the brothers, properties were acquired indiscriminately in the name of either. Till 1910, the descendants of the two branches of the family lived together as if they were members of an undivided family and trade was carried on as usual, the accounts standing in the name of one or the other of the representatives of the branches who happened to manage the trade for the time being. In 1910, the present suit was instituted by the members of the younger branch against the members of the elder branch for a partition. It was conceded by the defendants that Hammed and his heirs were entitled to one-eighth of the properties covered by the document of 1845:

Held, per Sadasiva Aiyar, J., (Tyabji, J., dissenting).—That all the properties ought to be equally divided between the heirs of the two branches of the family, inasmuch as from 1848 till the date of suit, the two brothers, their heirs and the heirs of their heirs had acted in such a manner as to show that they had all understood their rights as following from the properties being held in common ownership between the two branches for more than 60 years and the imperfect understanding or agreement between the two brothers which began in 1848, had become fully perfected by their own conduct and the conduct of their heirs.

Per Tyabji, J.—That Hammed and his heirs were entitled to one-eighth of the properties mentioned in the document of 1845, the remaining seven-eighths of the suit properties and all other properties acquired prior to 1870 belonging exclusively to Haji Hassan and his sons, and that the properties acquired after 1870 must be equally divided amongst the heirs of Haji Hassan and Hammed in accordance with Muhammadan Law.

The term 'joint family', when applied to parties governed by the Muhammadan Law of succession, presumably refers to a group of persons belonging originally to one family and living together without having partitioned such property as they have inherited from some common ancestor. Their continuing so to live does not make their status different from what it would have been, had they not done so. Nor does the fact that they have not partitioned the property in any way, affect their rights therein or the legal incidents applicable to the property. No person can by birth derive an interest in the property belonging to his father during his life-time. The members of the group of persons so living together do not form any legal unit. They are not necessarily heirs of one another. Property acquired by one of them does not necessarily form the property of the whole group. The group as constituted at any particular moment is not the legal representative or the continuous successor in law of the persons who constituted the group in a previous generation. The result of this is that it cannot be said that all the property which at any time in the past belonged to the group as a whole, continues to belong to the persons now included, whether arbitrarily or according to agnatic descent, in the group. Membership of the group does not necessarily imply that a member has any share in all the property possessed by each of the other members, or kept in the possession of some person as the manager on behalf of all the group, whether such possession is held at their request or with their consent or merely with their acquiescence.

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Unlike under Hindu Law, under Muhammadan Law the mere fact that one person allows another to live with him and treat him as though he were a co-owner with himself of property which is shown initially to belong to him alone, cannot make the other a co-owner, though, if the origin and ownership of the property is not traced and it is not known which of them is the owner, such circumstances may raise a presumption of co-ownership.

The mode of living adopted by parties cannot affect the law to which they are subject.

In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, express or implied from the conduct of the parties and their mode of life in any particular case, co-owners of property under Muhammadan Law, even if they live together, are expected to pay for their maintenance and other expenses out of their own shares in the property held in co-ownership.

Under Muhammadan Law, property acquired with the aid of what would be called 'ancestral property' according to the Mitakshara Law, does not become 'ancestral,' though acquisitions by co-owners with the aid of property held in co-ownership do accede to that property.

The word 'custom', in its legal sense, necessarily connotes only such rules of conduct as affect rights and liabilities. The ways of living or the observances of a particular class of persons do not become customary rules of law merely because evidence of such ways and observances has to be adduced for the elucidation of the facts existing in any particular case.

Though the provisions of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, are applicable to a Hindu family firm as well, yet in respect of such firms the incidents of the Act are affected by the peculiar doctrines of the joint Muhammadan Law—concl'd.

Hindu family, which are impliedly incorporated in the law of Hindu ancestral firms.

The cases regarding Hindu family firms only lay down that, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the Indian Contract Act must be presumed to govern the relations between the members of such a firm and that the contract to the contrary may be an implied contract, which may even be presumed from the mode of life resulting from the general personal law of the parties, especially when not presuming such an implied contract would bring about inconsistencies and results not contemplated by the parties.

In the case of Muhammadans, section 241 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, has a direct operation, as in their case there is no contract to the contrary nor does their personal law operate so as to make them partners to any extent or otherwise to minimise the effect of the section on their rights.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—Many of the incidents of Hindu joint family system obtain by custom among the Narayats.

Except that the principle of survivorship and that of right by birth as well as that of exclusion of females are inapplicable in considering the rights and liabilities of the persons on whom the business of a Narayati family has descended as heirs, in other respects, the principles and considerations applying to the business of Hindu family firms are applicable to the business carried on by a Narayati family.

Though the term 'undivided family' cannot properly be used to designate the relationship of the families of two Narayati Muhammadan brothers living together and trading together, yet the analogy of the business of a joint Hindu trading family is applicable to such a family. M. HUSSAIN SAIB v. HASSAN SAIB, 2 L. W. 1140; (1915) M. W. N. 880 927

Trusts and life-estates in Muhammadan Law 106

Mulgeni lease—Lessee, whether can cut trees grown spontaneously or by him—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 108 (h).

A mulgeni lessee in South Canara is not entitled to cut trees standing at the date of the grant.

But the landlord has no title to the trees planted by the lessee after the commencement of the lease or to trees and plants of spontaneous growth. The lessee can remove such trees provided he restores the land at the end of his lease period in as good a condition as he received it at the beginning. M. KRISHNACHARYA v. ANTHAKKI, 19 M. L. J. 314; 18 M. L. T. 218; (1915) M. W. N. 726 12

Muta Marriage. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Nattukottal Chetti. See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), s. 118—Promissory note, suit on—Defendant a young boy just emerged from minority with large expectations—Consideration—Burden of proof.

Where in a suit on a promissory note alleged to have been executed by the defendant, it appeared that the defendant was a young boy just emerged from minority, with large expectations but no ready money:

Negotiable Instruments Act—concl'd.

Held, that it was on the plaintiff to prove that consideration had passed for the purpose. M. SAMI SAIB v. PARTHASARATHY CHETTY 739

N. W. Frontier Crimes Regulation (III of 1901), applicability of—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 24

Frontier Crimes Regulation, III of 1901, is still in force in Leiah Tahsil, Mozaffargarh District, and it applies to all persons not being 'European subjects' born or residing in districts to which the Regulation applies.

Though the Regulation IV of 1887 has been repealed by Regulation III of 1901, the notification issued under Regulation IV of 1887, must be deemed to be still in force by virtue of section 24 of the General Clauses Act. P. BHOLA RAM v. EMPEROR, 25 P. R. 1915 Cr; 16 Cr. L. J. 790 646

N. W. P. Rent Act (XII of 1881), s. 8—Tenant—Tenant—Occupancy right, acquisition of.

A person who has been in possession for twelve years without the consent of the zemindar, even if that period of twelve years was completed before the present Tenancy Act came into force, cannot be said to have acquired occupancy right in the holding. U. P. B. R. NIRMAL SINGH v. BAHADUR SINGH 445

Nuisance—Nuisance at law, what constitutes—Act offending susceptibilities of individuals, whether actionable—Establishment of slaughter-house—Suit for injunction, who can bring—Act done under statutory authority, when unlawful—Central Provinces Municipal Act (XVI of 1903), s. 71.

In order to constitute a nuisance at law it is essential that there should exist either actually or impliedly, (1) injuria, i. e., a wrongful act constituting or causing damage, and (2) damnum, i. e., damage, loss, or inconvenience. Damnum absque injuria gives no right of action.

Where the act or omission causing or constituting an alleged nuisance is unlawful per se, e. g., where it is of itself a violation of statutory provisions or of private common law rights, the law will presume damage to exist; but where the act is innocent and lawful, then the question whether it amounts to an actionable nuisance is one of fact to be determined not merely by an abstract consideration of the act itself, but by reference to all the circumstances of the particular case.

An act which offends the susceptibilities of individuals or the sentiments of a class is not, ipso facto, an actionable nuisance and cannot be made a ground for overriding ordinary rights in property.

The establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house for butcher's meat is per se an offensive trade, even though it is not included as such in section 99 of the Central Provinces Municipal Act, 1903.

But whether in any particular case it is an actionable nuisance depends mainly on the locality in which it is placed: and, therefore, the question is one of fact to be determined upon the circumstances of each particular case.

Nuisance—concl.

Where the establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house amounts to a nuisance to one or more persons being in the neighbourhood of it, anyone of such persons may sue for an injunction.

The motive which underlies a complaint of nuisance is relevant in a case of injunction.

Where an act is done under an authority conferred by Statute the conditions laid down by the Statute must have been strictly followed: otherwise the act is unauthorized and wrongful.

Section 71 of the Central Provinces Municipal Act requires that the approval of the Deputy Commissioner to the selection of a site for a slaughter-house shall be obtained before any building of the slaughter-house is begun on the proposed site; and a Municipal Committee which builds a slaughter-house on a site selected by itself without the previous approval of the site by the Deputy Commissioner, does an unauthorized and unlawful act and cannot use the Statute as a defence to an action brought against it on the ground that the act has created a nuisance. N. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR v. NILKANTH, 11 N. L. R. 132

62

Oaths Act (X of 1873), ss. 6, 13—Evidence of child taken without oath, admissibility of—Child's evidence, weight of.

The mere fact that a Court advisedly refrained from administering oath to a witness, who was a child of tender years, does not make his statement inadmissible in evidence. A Court should only examine a child of tender years as a witness after it has satisfied itself that the child is intellectually sufficiently developed to enable it to understand sufficiently what he has seen and to afterwards inform the Court thereof. If the Court is of opinion that by reason of tender years, the child is unable to do this, it ought not only to refrain from administering oath but from examining the child at all. If, on the other hand, the Court thinks that the child, though of tender years, is capable of informing the Court of what it has seen or heard, it is best that the Court should comply with the provisions of section 6 of the Oaths Act.

A child is frequently a most satisfactory witness when the matters deposed to, are not beyond the intelligence of the child. A. DHANI RAM v. EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 1072; 16 Cr. L. J. 829; 38 A. 49

1005

s. 13

1005

Oudh Estates Act (I of 1859), ss. 2, 14, 22—Oudh Estates (Amendment) Act (III of 1910), s. 3—'Primogeniture', meaning of—Res judicata—Talukdar—Heir or legatee of Talukdar—"Would have succeeded," meaning of—Sanad, nature of estate created by—"Successors", meaning of—"Nearest male heir," interpretation of.

The Maniarpur Estate was held, at the time of annexation of Oudh, by one Sughra Bibi a Bachgoti Khanzada of Shia faith. The Summary Settlement was made with her and a sanad in the ordinary primogeniture form was subsequently granted to her. She died on the 11th November 1865, but her name was entered in the first and second lists framed under section 8 of Act I of 1862. She executed a Will on the 2th June 1862 bequeathing her whole estate to her youngest half-brother Akbar Ali Khan who succeeded to the estate on her death. At the date of the execution of the Will and at the date of her death, her eldest half-brother Jafar Ali Khan was alive. Akbar Ali Khan transferred on the 23rd July 1869, by a hiba-bil-awaz 39 villages to his wife Ilahi Khanam. On 29th June 1871, 16 days before his death, Akbar Ali made a Will by which he bequeathed the remaining 43 villages in the estate to Ilahi Khanam. At the time of Akbar Ali Khan's death on the 15th July 1871, his nephew Ghulam Husain Khan, son of his second brother Hasan Ali Khan, was alive. Ilahi Khanam died intestate on 20th April 1899 leaving six daughters Ummatul Fatima, Bibi Batul, Kaniz, Asghari, Ruqaiya and Haidari, who took joint possession of the estate on the death of their mother. After the death of Ilahi Khanam, the question of succession was brought before the Courts on several occasions.

Oudh Estates Act—concl.

Two suits were now brought, one by Ghulam Abbas son of Bibi Batul and the other by Mohammad Jafar son of Ummatul Fatima, both claiming possession of the Taluqa under the rule of primogeniture, asserting that succession to the estate was governed by the terms of the sanad. It was found that Ghulam Abbas was born before Mohammad Jafar.

Held (per Stuart, A. J. C.), that litigations which took place subsequent to the death of Ilahi Khanam to which her daughters were parties, could not operate as res judicata in the present suit as the daughter's sons were not parties to them.

That Ilahi Khanam was neither a talukdar nor an heir or legatee of a talukdar and that succession at her death was not governed by the provisions of section 22 of Act I of 1869.

That the amendment made by the Oudh Estates (Amendment) Act, III of 1910, in the definition of legatee, as given in section 2 of Act I of 1869, could not be given retrospective effect in the present case as it would have the effect of divesting persons who would otherwise be entitled at least to a portion of the estate.

That the words "would have succeeded" as used in section 14 of Act I of 1869 were not equivalent to "might have succeeded," and must be confined to persons in the special line of succession that would have been applicable to the particular case if the transferor or testator had died intestate and the death had occurred at the date of the transfer or in the case of a gift by Will, at the time when the succession opened.

That a transfer to a person coming under any of the clauses of section 22 did not bring the transfer within the provisions of section 14, if that person would be excluded by a senior member in his own class, and that the grouping in the clauses of section 22 could not be held to bind the rule of succession therein.

That therefore at the time of Sughra Bibi's death her eldest brother and the son of her second brother having been alive, the bequest made by her to her fourth brother Abbas Ali Khan had the effect of breaking the prescribed line of succession and so the provisions of section 14 could not be applied.

That explanation to section 3 of the Oudh Estates (Amendment) Act III of 1910, referred only to succession to the estates of a talukdar and, therefore, could not apply to Ilahi Khanam.

Oudh Estates Act—concl'd.

That the rule of primogeniture laid down in the sanads granted by Lord Canning meant the rule of lineal primogeniture as known to English Law.

That the estate created by the aforesaid sanad was not an estate known to English Law and that, to a certain extent, it resembled an estate in fee simple but was differentiated from it by the fact that under its terms, no female could succeed and that it bore some resemblance to an estate in tail male, but was differentiated from that by the fact that a collateral could succeed under the sanad whereas no collateral could succeed to an estate in tail male.

That the word "successors" as used in the sanad meant "successors on death" and included both heirs and devisees but not transferees during life time.

That the words "nearest male heir" could not be interpreted as meaning "nearest male heir according to the personal law of the grantee."

That the meaning of the sanad with regard to succession might be summarized as follows:—In the event of intestacy the case of all relatives of legitimate descent would be considered, all females and those claiming through females would be excluded and the succession would go to the surviving representatives of the highest line, however, collaterals only being admitted in the absence of the survival of descendants.

That, therefore, although succession to the estate was regulated under the terms of the sanad, neither of the plaintiffs-appellants, as daughter's sons, had any title under its terms.

Held (per Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.), that the word "successors" as used in the sanad denoted successive heirs or persons succeeding to the intestate or undisposed of residue rather than persons in whose favour a transfer or bequest might be made by the owner in his life-time.

That in the hands of Akbar Ali Khan and Bibi Ikhani Khanam the estate was governed by the Muhammadan Law and the plaintiffs as sons of the daughters were not entitled to the estate in preference to the daughters.

That exclusion of daughters by the sanad did not mean exclusion of the daughters' sons and that the disability attached to the sex and not to the line.

That among sons by different daughters the preference was to be determined by seniority of the line and the age of persons representing the senior line, but no question of age arose where the persons claiming were not of the same line. O. GHULAM ABBAS KHAN v. BIBI UMMATUL-FATIMA, 18 O. C. 148 748

ss. 14, 22 748

Oudh Estates (Amendment) Act (III of 1910), s. 3 748

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 60, ejectment proceedings under—Proceedings declared null and void—Tenant, if trespasser—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Second application under s. 60, if maintainable.

A zemindar served upon his tenant a notice of ejectment under section 55 of the Oudh Rent Act and subsequently applied for assistance to eject under section 60 which was given, but the tenant did not give up possession. The tenant was then criminally prosecuted, when he set up the defence that he was never legally ejected and that there had been such irregularities in the action taken under section 60, that he was justified in treating the whole proceedings as null and void. This defence was allowed. The zemindar put in another application seeking assistance to eject under section 60. The Court below held that the position of the tenant was that of a trespasser and the zemindar's remedy was in the Civil Court.

Oudh Rent Act—(1886)—concl'd.

Held, that the tenant never having been legally ejected, he was not a trespasser and the previous proceedings having been found to be null and void, a fresh application under section 60 was maintainable. U. P. B. R. BHAGWAN BAKSH SINGH v. AMRAH SINGH 472

— s. 108 (9) (c)—Illegal ejectment—Compensation, suit for—Necessary party—Limitation.

A suit for compensation for illegal ejectment under section 108 (9) (c) of the Oudh Rent Act, lies against the landholder alone and the entire body of the landlords is not a necessary party to such a suit.

Though the plaintiff may bring a suit for compensation between any time from the date of the illegal ejectment up to a year after the date of the recovery of possession, yet he can only get compensation in respect of the time during the year preceding the bringing of the suit in which he was out of possession. U. P. B. R. NATA DIN SINGH v. DWARKA KURMI 447

Partition. See BURDHIST LAW; U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 138.

— Execution—Decree for partition specifying several shares—One party getting more than his due share—Re-adjustment of partition in order to make it accord with terms of decree, whether allowed 311

— Partition decree not executed—Second suit for partition, whether maintainable 205

Partnership, constitution of—Partners, rights of, to purchase partnership property—Settled account, action for balance of, maintainability of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 180—Bailor and bailee—Suit against wrong-doer, who can maintain.

A partnership is constituted whenever the parties have agreed to carry on a business or to share the profits in some way in common.

A partner is entitled to purchase partnership property, provided there is full disclosure, and the parties are at arm's length. It is only where the real truth is concealed and the facts are not disclosed that one partner has a legitimate grievance against the other.

An action for the balance of a settled account would not be restrained merely because there were other unsettled accounts between the parties.

Under section 180 of the Contract Act either the bailor or the bailee may bring a suit against a third person for deprivation or injury to chattel bailed, the latter by virtue of his possession, the former by reason of his property. C. RAMNATH GAGOI v. PITAMBAR DEB, 22 C. L. J. 339 430 — Dormant partner—Contract with firm, suit on—Necessary party.

Partnership - contd.

A dormant partner never need be joined as a co-plaintiff in an action on a contract entered into with the firm or with one of its members. M. GURZU PAYIDAYYA v. VENKADARU VENKATA REDDI 913 — Firm—Partners sued not as partners but in their individual capacity—Pleadings—Plaintiff, whether entitled to change position and seek relief against firm—Acknowledgment of debt without promise to pay, whether can be made basis of suit—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 43.

A plaintiff who sues some of the partners of a firm not as such partners or as representing the firm but in their individual and private capacity, cannot, when he fails to prove his claim as preferred, be permitted to change his ground and continue the suit or ask for relief against the firm itself, nor does section 43 of the Contract Act apply to such a case.

A 'ruqqa' which is merely an acknowledgment or admission of indebtedness and does not contain an express or implied agreement or promise to pay, cannot be made the basis of a suit. P. RAM ADIN v. MUNSHI RAM, 76 P. R. 1915 209

— Joint family—Death of a partner—Surviving partner, if requires certificate to entitle him to effects of deceased—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 45, 263 904

— Manager of joint family, death of—Liability of sons for debts of the firm—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 247 45 — Partner, suit by, to recover damages for use and occupation of partnership property, from other partners, if maintainable.

An owner of a mill entered into a partnership agreement with two other persons in respect of the mill business. The mill was to be used by the firm thus constituted: cash was to be supplied by one of the partners and the profits were to be distributed in certain proportions. A suit was instituted for dissolution of the partnership, for accounts and for incidental reliefs. During the pendency of this litigation the plaintiff purchased from the owner of the mill his right, title and interest in the mill in question and sued the members of the firm for recovery of damages for use and occupation of the mill.

Held, that the suit as brought was not maintainable either if the mill became part of the partnership property or continued to be the private property of the owner. C. MANIRUDDIN v. JANENDRA NATH, 19 C. W. N. 1115 707

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 34 345

— S. 80—Accident, defence of—Burden of proof—Evidence as to deed done convincing—Motive, if necessary—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 342—Written statement by accused, practice of filing, illegality of.

If the accused puts forward a substantive defence of accident within the purview of section 80 of the Indian Penal Code, it is incumbent upon him to prove it.

If the evidence as to the deed done is sufficiently convincing, it is immaterial to consider with what motive it was done.

Penal Code—contd.

Per Beachcroft, J.—When a theory of accident is set up, the Court is entitled to a full and, so far as possible, detailed account of what happened.

The practice of refusing to answer questions in the Sessions Court and of putting in a written statement is a very pernicious practice. There is no provision in the Code for the making of a written statement by an accused and the obvious object of the practice in many cases is to defeat the provisions of section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, probably based on some idea of the Legal Advisers of the accused that he may give himself away. That section if used intelligently by Judicial Officers, is of great use to accused persons for whose benefit the section was enacted. A written statement drafted by an accused's Legal Adviser can never have the same value as answers coming directly from the accused's mouth. The refusal to answer questions may be attended with great risk to the accused, for the Court is bound to question him and a refusal to answer may involve an adverse inference against him. C. EMPEROR v. DWIDENDRA, 19 C. W. N. 1043; 16 Cr. L. J. 724 164

— s. 97—Voluntarily and deliberately engaging in fighting—Private defence, plea of.

The right of private defence cannot be successfully invoked by men who voluntarily and deliberately engage in fighting with their enemies for the sake of fighting, as opposed to the case where men are reluctantly forced to use violence in order to protect themselves from violence offered to them.

Where, therefore, it appeared that a fight took place in a public street and both sides voluntarily engaged in it:

Held, that it was not open to the members of either party to claim the right of private defence. B. BECHAR ANOP v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 888; 16 Cr. L. J. 772 372

— s. 141 345

— s. 143 337

— ss. 143, 147—Lawful assembly, whether becomes unlawful by exciting others to unlawful acts—Rioting—Duty of Court.

An assembly lawful in itself does not become unlawful merely by reason of its lawful acts exciting others to do unlawful acts.

An assembly of persons lawfully exercising their lawful rights would not become an unlawful assembly by repelling an attack made on them by persons who had no right to obstruct them nor by exceeding the lawful use of their right of private defence.

Where an assembly lawful in its origin subsequently becomes unlawful and rioting takes place, it is the duty of the trying Magistrate to determine which party was the aggressor and how the riot actually arose. M. In re MUKKA MUTHRIAN, 16 Cr. L. J. 743 343

— s. 144 345

— s. 147 343

— s. 147—Rioting, charge of—Evidence against each accused, separate discussion of—Practice—Common object, mention of.

In a charge of rioting where a number of men are accused, the Magistrate should deal with the case of each of the accused separately or discuss the evidence against each of the accused, especially when the evidence against each of the accused is by no means equally strong.

Penal Code—contd.

In cases of rioting, the common object should be clearly and specifically set out in the charge.

M. In re RAMASAMY NAIDU, 16 Cr. L. J. 809 825

_____ s. 149 345

_____ s. 163 644

_____ s. 193 340

_____ s. 193, complaint under—Sanction for prosecution, if necessary 161

_____ s. 201 647

_____ s. 265 1001

_____ s. 300, Exception 4—Use of knife—No risk of serious hurt to person using—Offence.

Exception 4 to section 300 of the Indian Penal Code does not apply to the case of an accused, who uses a knife where there is no appreciable risk of even serious hurt to his person. M. In re MUTHUMADA NADAN, 16 Cr. L. J. 747 347

_____ ss. 302, 149, 34, 141,

144—Gang of twenty persons armed with deadly weapons—Arrest of two members of this gang by villagers—Subsequent murder of one of villagers by a member of gang at large—Accused men, whether liable for murder—Intention to commit dacoity—Burden of proof—Common object of gang.

Where a gang of persons making preparations to commit dacoity was discovered and pursued by a body of villagers who succeeded in arresting two members of the gang and just about this time one of the dacoits at large fired his gun and killed one of the pursuing party:

Held, that inasmuch as the separation of the two accused from the gang was prior to the murder, neither section 149 nor section 34 of the Penal Code applied, and the accused could not be held liable for a murder committed by a member of the gang to which they no longer belonged;

(2) that as the prosecution had failed to prove that there was an intent to commit dacoity, or that the party made any movement towards the commission of a dacoity, the charge under section 399 of the Penal Code must fail;

(3) that since there was no proof that the common object was dacoity, nor any evidence that any force or violence was used by the accused party up till the time when the two accused were unwillingly removed from membership of the party, the accused were not guilty of an offence under section 148, Indian Penal Code;

(4) that the accused assembly of about 20 persons in a field at dead of night, many of these persons being armed with deadly weapons, was undoubtedly an unlawful assembly within the meaning of section 141, Indian Penal Code, and since both the accused were so armed, they were liable to punishment under section 144. B. EMPEROR v. HARI BIJAL, 17 Bom. L. R. 806; 16 Cr. L. J. 745 345

_____ s. 326—Nose-cutting—Sentence. Where the accused cut off his wife's nose and was convicted under section 326, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for four years, but on appeal, the Sessions Judge while maintaining the conviction reduced the sentence to imprisonment for two years:

Penal Code—contd.

Held, enhancing the sentence to the full period of four years, that nose-cutting was an offence for which leniency was, ordinarily speaking, quite out of place. P. SIKANDAR v. EMPEROR, 20 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 39 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 782 382

_____ s. 332 995

_____ ss. 361, 363—Kidnapping—Lawful guardianship—Lawful guardianship of Hindu minor widow—Deceased husband's mother, whether lawful guardian—Hindu Law.

The husband's relations, if any exist within the degree of a sapinda, are the guardians of a minor widow in preference to her father and his relations.

Where a minor Hindu widow takes up her residence with her deceased husband's mother with the consent, express or implied, of her husband's brother, the husband's mother is the lawful guardian of the girl for the purposes of section 361, Indian Penal Code. P. EMPEROR v. TEK CHAND, 27 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 780 380

_____ s. 363 380

_____ s. 379—Theft—Dishonest removal of property out of another man's possession to be proved.

Before an accused can be found to be guilty of the offence of theft, it must be found that he dishonestly took some property out of the possession of another person.

Where a tenant believing that a legal distraint had been made by his landlord of the crops of his holding which had been previously attached in execution of a decree against him cut and removed the crops:

Held, that the tenant was not guilty of theft inasmuch as he could not be said to have dishonestly taken the property out of the possession of any other person. A. EMPEROR v. RAM DAYAL, 13 A. L. J. 1058; 16 Cr. L. J. 812; 38 A. 40 828 _____ ss. 380, 201, 511—Theft—Causing disappearance of document, attempt of.

The accused brought a civil suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Mungghyr on the basis of a forged promissory note. The file of the case was sent for and kept in the Court of the Additional Munsif of Jaunpur being required in connection with a suit pending in that Court and it somehow found its way to the house of an official of the Court. The accused got into the inner verandah of the house and removed the forged promissory note from the file. From that place, on being pursued, they tore it to pieces:

Held, that they were guilty of an offence under section 380, Indian Penal Code.

Held, further, that they were also guilty under section 201/511 of the Penal Code. A. SHEONANDAN v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 791 647

_____ s. 409 829

_____ s. 415—Cheating—Wrongful gain or loss.

Section 415 of the Indian Penal Code does not Penal Code—concl.

require, and does not say, that to constitute the offence of cheating, the wrongful gain must be made out of the person deceived. It simply provides that there may be either wrongful loss to the person deceived or wrongful gain to the person who deceives. M. In re VENGOPAL MUDALI, 16 Cr. L. J. 753

— — — s. 420	1001
— — — ss. 426, 451	337
— — — ss. 465, 468, 471	641
— — — s. 477A	829
— — — s. 511	647

Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871) 728Pleadings. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 6.

— — — Late stage of suit—Plaintiff, if can put forward inconsistent case	391
— — — New defence, whether can be raised in appeal	740
— — — New plea, raising of, first in appeal, propriety of	436
— — — Objection to admissibility, whether can be taken in appeal	600
— — — Plaintiff, whether entitled to change position and seek relief against firm	209
— — — Plea raised for first time, whether allowable	632
— — — Practice	833

Suit, when can be dismissed on pleadings alone—Distinction between actionable and non-actionable claim—Proper procedure.

The practice of non-suiting plaintiffs in other than absolutely plain cases, is to be deprecated.

Where, therefore, the plaintiff's suit for contribution was dismissed merely on the pleading without taking any evidence in the case as to the correctness or otherwise of the contentions on each side:

Held, that, as the distinction between an actionable and a non-actionable claim was a fine one, the only proper course in the case was to hear the evidence and examine the documents, and that, therefore, the case must be tried de novo. M. VENKATARAMA AIYAR v. RAJAGOPALA IYER, 29 M. L. J. 786

Poisons Act (I of 1904), s. 10, cls. (a), (b)—Retail sale by unregistered seller, legality of.

Retail sale of poison by a person is unlawful under section 10 of the Indian Poisons Act, unless exempted under clause (a) being a sale in exercise of his profession by a medical practitioner, or under clause (b) being a sale effected by a registered chemist or druggist.

The rules apply only to retail sales and wholesale sales are left uncontrolled. L. B. N. M. DEY v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 764; 8 B. L. T. 244

Police Act (V of 1861), ss. 7, 36—Police Constable punished for corruption departmentally, whether can be also prosecuted criminally—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 163.

A Police Constable who has been dealt with Police Act—concl.

departmentally for corruption under section 7 of the Police Act (V of 1861) can be prosecuted and punished under section 163 of the Penal Code. P. EMPEROR v. GUL MUHAMMAD, 26 P. R. 1915 Cr. 16 Cr. L. J. 788

s. 36Practice. See REMAND.

— — — Appeal—Difference of opinion on some points	565
— — — Appeal—New defence inconsistent with original, if allowed—Limitation	875
— — — Attachment of property, effect of—Omission to frame issue, effect of—Remedy—Certificate sale—Certificate proceedings, irregular—Sale, validity of—Statute, non-compliance with, effect of—Appellate Court, power of, to dismiss suit—Plaint not duly verified and signed—Procedure—Certificate, when invalid—Presumption—Official act, regularity of—Service of notice, proof of	664 — — — Complaint by Magistrate—Magistrate, jurisdiction of, to pass order in that case.
A Magistrate ought not to make any order in any case in which he is even the nominal complainant. A. RUP LAL v. EMPEROR , 16 Cr. L. J. 801	817
— — — Criminal trial—Statement made by witness before Committing Magistrate, admissibility of, in Sessions trial—Witness procurable—Procedure	354

Gift by widow—Suit for declaration by reversioners—Decision on point not raised in pleas, legality of—Second appeal—Custom, validity of, question of, propriety of—Certificate, necessity of—Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), s. 40 (3)—Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (I of 1912), s. 2.

In a suit for a declaration that a gift by a widow of certain ancestral land should not affect the rights of the plaintiffs, who were collaterals of the last male holder, the donee only pleaded that he was the appointed heir of the deceased male holder and though the property after the death of the male holder was mutated in the name of his widow, she was entitled to rectify the erroneous mutation by making the gift. The Court below, however, held that the donee was not the appointed heir, but that the widow was entitled to make the gift in favour of the donee for services rendered;

Held, that the general question of gift by a widow, was not properly before the lower Court and, therefore, the Court had no power to decide the case on that point.

Where the question raised in a second appeal is not the validity or existence of a custom but whether the validity or existence of a custom was a question properly before the lower Appellate Court, a second appeal lies without the certificate of such Court under section 40 (3) of the Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884) as amended by Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (I of 1912), section 2. P. NUR ALI v. BAHAWAL

Legal representative of deceased defendant not impleaded—Decree passed after death of defendant, whether valid—Objection taken in execution, legality of.

Practice—concl.

A decree passed after the death of a defendant and before his legal representative is impleaded, is null and void.

Objection can be taken to such a decree in execution and separate proceedings to avoid it are unnecessary. M. SUBRAMANIA Aiyar v. VAITHINATHA Aiyar, 38 M. 682 193

— Mistake in preliminary decree passed by High Court—Final decree in accordance with High Court's preliminary decree passed by District Court—District Court, power of, to correct mistake—Interest on total amount awarded, if legal—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 2

Where a District Court draws up its final decree in accordance with the High Court's preliminary decree, it cannot correct an error in its final decree as copied from the latter decree.

There is nothing in Order XXXIV, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, which prevents a Court from providing in its own decree for interest on the total amount awarded because such total includes interest on the bond sued on. M. PECHALAPALLI ADISESHADRI v. MUNGAMUR SIVARAMAYYA 320

— Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 374, 376—Murder case—Trial by Jury—Reference—Appeal—High Court—Confirmation of sentence 995

— Rateable distribution, application for, on Original Side—Certificates of Accountant-General and Registrar, necessity of 616

— Rioting, charge of—Evidence against each accused, separate discussion of—Common object, mention of 825

Pre-emption. See BUDDHIST LAW: PESAAR PRE-EMPTION ACT.

— , evasion of, by lawful means, effect of 221

— Purchase by person having preferential right of pre-emption along with person having inferior right, effect of—Several vendees—Price paid in lump sum—Construction of document—Pre-emptor, sale by, after pre-emption decree, effect of.

When a person having a preferential right of pre-emption joins in the purchase a person having an inferior right, he loses his right of pre-emption.

Where the purchase-money for a sale is paid in a lump sum without specification of the amounts paid by the various vendees, the transaction must be regarded as indivisible, though the shares to be taken by the various vendees may have been specified in the deed.

A pre-emptor does not lose his right of pre-emption by selling the land subsequent to the decree for pre-emption. P. HARRIHARAT v. KALA 635

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 9 192

s. 22 662

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 8—Protection order—Appeal—Aggrieved person—Application for protection to be judged on merits.

An interim protection order made under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act—concl.

insolvency jurisdiction is a judicial order and appealable.

The Legislature does not appear to have put any limitation upon appeals made from original orders of a Judge except perhaps orders regulating procedure.

A creditor who has not obtained a decree may be an aggrieved person within the meaning of section 8 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), especially when the insolvent has himself prevented the creditor from attaining that position by opposing proceedings instituted by the creditor for the purpose.

Each application for protection after refusal or suspension of discharge must be judged on its merits. If the insolvent has acted recklessly and disloyally, the fact that he cannot pay is no reason for depriving the creditor of the power of punishing him by attachment and imprisonment to the extent the law allows. B. MAHOMED HAJI v. ABDUL RAHMAN, 17 Bom. L. R. 989 507

s. 17—Suit against adjudicated insolvent—Leave of Court, when to be obtained.

The leave contemplated under section 17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act is leave which ought to be obtained before the commencement of a suit and cannot be granted after the same is filed. B. INJE DWARKADAS TEJBHANDAS, 17 Bom. L. R. 925 948

s. 17—Judgment-debtor adjudicated an insolvent—Court, whether has jurisdiction to entertain execution proceedings—Leave of High Court, necessity of—Security bond for appearance of judgment-debtor—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XI of 1882), s. 9, rules under.

When once a person is adjudicated an insolvent, creditors seeking any remedy against him must apply to a High Court on its insolvency side to get leave for that purpose.

A Court of Small Causes has, therefore, no jurisdiction without the leave of the High Court to entertain an application in execution after the judgment-debtor has been adjudicated an insolvent.

Quere.—Whether section 30 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, or Order XXI, rule 27, of the Civil Procedure Code empowers a Presidency Court of Small Causes to take a security bond for the appearance of the judgment-debtor arrested in execution of a decree? M. KASWARA Aiyar v. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU 192

Presumption. See HINDU LAW.

— Copy of documents 30 years old—Handwriting of copyist 579

— Dying declaration, admissibility of—Certificate of correctness by recording Magistrate—Dying declaration reduced to writing—Substantive evidence 359

— Grant, rent free, to excavate tank—Long possession 391

— Grant—Severance of tenement—Easement 549

— Lambardar, possession by. 463

Principal and agent—Agent, responsibility of, for an error of judgment—Indemnity—Refusal to indemnify, whether sufficient cause for rescission of contract—Sufficient cause—Agent's due on termination of contract 450

————— Insolvency proceeding —
Notice served upon agent, if effectual—Agent appearing—Waiver—Agent, act of insolvency by, if act of principal—Power-of-attorney—General authority—Agency, termination of—Rules framed under s. 51, Provincial Insolvency Act, r. 21, cl. (3) 583

————— Liability of Government for tortious acts of its servants—Government servant acting under statutory powers, whether agent—Illegal order—Government, whether liable 224

————— Nattukottai Chetty—Contract—Promise to reward, construction of—Collection of old debts—Remuneration, amount of.

A promise to pay reward to deserving persons will be construed according to the circumstances of each case, the principle being, whether there is an unqualified contract to give something or the option of giving anything at all is left to the discretion of the proposed donor.

Where a Nattukottai Chetty impliedly agreed to give something extra to his agent as remuneration for the collection of outstandings left uncollected by the agent's predecessor, but did not fix a rate of percentage:

Held, that, in view of the nature of the business of Nattukottai Chetties, the contract was enforceable and the agent was entitled to a reasonable amount as remuneration. M. VELLAYAM CHETTY v. KULANDA-VELUAPPA CHETTY, 29 M. L. J. 749 783

————— Silence or acquiescence of principal, whether amounts to ratification—Agent obtaining pecuniary advantages for himself, duty of—Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 88—Decree in favour of principal—Execution sale—Purchase by agent of immoveable property outside British India—Principal entitled to decree for mesne profits—Mandatory injunction directing reconveyance of property, whether allowed 216

Privy Council Appeal. See APPEAL.

————— Leave to appeal—Appellate Court—Petitioner entitled to benefit of doubt—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 110.

The petitioner claimed maintenance and Rs. 15,000 for residence. The Agent to the Governor before whom the suit was brought allowed maintenance at a certain rate and disallowed entirely the claim for residence. In appeal this claim was allowed, but the value of the claim was fixed at Rs. 5,000. The respondents' application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council was allowed and the petitioner then applied for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council for the amount disallowed:

Held, that in view of the fact that an appeal had already been allowed to be filed by the other party, the leave prayed for should be granted.

Per Aylmer, J.—In dealing with an application for leave to appeal, the petitioner should have the benefit of any doubt in the order granting certificate. M. VIKRAMA DEO GARU v. MAHARAJA OF JYEPPORE, 18 M. L. T. 387 272

Probate. See WILL.

————— Appeal—Division Bench, difference of opinion in—Letters Patent, cl. 15, appeal under, if maintainable—Will, execution of, determination of—Comparison of signature with 7 or 8 years' previous signature, propriety of—Finding of fact, reversing of.

In a probate case an appeal under clause 15 of the Letters Patent is maintainable when the Judges of a Division Bench originally hearing the appeal differ in their opinion.

In order to decide whether a Will was executed or not, it is a dangerous ground to proceed on the estimate of the signature as derived from a comparison with other admitted signatures written seven or eight years before the signature on the Will and to reverse on that ground the appreciation of fact by the trial Judge. C. PANCHUMONI DASSI v. CHANDRA KUMAR GHOSE, 22 C. L. J. 298 319

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 50—Probate, revocation of, application for—Genuineness of Will, question of, if arises—Just cause for revocation, question of, determination of—Assignment of properties after testator's death—Assignee, right of, to apply for revocation—Revocation, ground for—Fraudulent concealment of transfer.

In a Probate Court, after a Probate of a Will has been granted, no question of the genuineness of the Will arises for consideration till the Court has decided that the Probate must be revoked on one or more of the grounds specified in section 50 of the Probate and Administration Act.

Where an application for revocation of a Probate is made, the only question for consideration is whether the appellants have made out a just cause for revocation, and the application cannot be dismissed on the ground that the evidence adduced by the applicants for revocation, is not sufficient to throw doubt upon the genuineness of the Will.

A person interested by assignment in the estate of a deceased may, where a Will has been set up and proved at variance with his interests apply for revocation of the Probate of the Will so set up.

Therefore, if it is proved that a person has acquired by purchase an interest in the properties left by the deceased, he is entitled to be heard in the proceedings for grant of Probate.

Where a notice was served in a Probate proceeding upon a person who, a week before the service of the notice, had transferred his interest in the properties and where the fact of the transfer was known also to the applicant:

Held, revoking the Probate, that the grant was obtained fraudulently by making a false suggestion or by concealing from the Court something material to the case. C. MOKASHADAYINI DASSI v. KARNA-DHAR MANDAL, 19 C. W. N. 108 702

————— ss. 56, 76, 98—Probate granted—Inventory, furnishing of—Property transferred by bifurcation of District to another District—Jurisdiction—Court granting Probate, if can demand inventory 489

————— ss. 76, 98 499
Procedure. See COMPANIES ACT, s. 150; See PRACTICE.

————— Appeal—New party—Remand 263

Procedure—concl.

— — — — — Duty of Court to question accused — Omission to do so, effect of 365

— — — — — Execution—Decree—Suit conditionally decreed on payment of certain amount within certain time—Payment not made—Defendant's execution for costs 554

— — — — — Pleadings—Suit, when can be dismissed on pleadings alone—Distinction between actionable and non-actionable claim—Proper procedure 704

— — — — —, slack, effect of 876

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 4, 12 (3), 51—Insolvency proceeding—Notice served upon agent, if effectual—Agent appearing—Waiver—Agent, act of insolvency by, if act of principal—Power of attorney—General authority—Agency, termination of—Rules framed under s. 51, Provincial Insolvency Act, r. 21, cl. (3).

A notice of proceedings in insolvency instituted by a creditor served on the agent of the debtor, is as effectual as if served on the debtor himself.

Although clause (3) of rule 21 of the rules framed under section 51 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, requires the notice to be served on the debtor himself by registered post, there is no express provision that it should be served only on the debtor. Where, therefore, an agent of the debtor gets notice of the proceedings and appears at the hearing he must be deemed to have waived any objection that he might have had to any supposed irregularities in giving the notice.

For the purposes of section 4 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the act of an agent may be the act of the principal, and, therefore, where an agent departs from the place of business, it constitutes an act of insolvency on the part of the principal, though the English Law requires the act to be a personal act of the principal, i.e., the debtor himself.

Where the power-of-attorney, under which an agent acts, empowers him to do other acts besides carrying on the trade and dealing with his property, his agency does not terminate immediately on the presentation of a petition for the adjudication of his principal as insolvent. It subsists to stave-off bankruptcy orders against his principal. M. KALIANJI SINGJI BHAI v. BANK OF MADRAS, 29 M. L. J. 788; 3 L. W. 13 583

s. 12 (3) 583

ss. 16 (2) (b), 43—

Application for arrest of insolvent debtor—Notice to show cause against re-arrest—Annulment of adjudication, how effected—Order of arrest by Subordinate Judge exercising Small Cause Court powers—Revision.

A Judge sitting in the Small Cause Court cannot divest himself of his powers as a Judge of that Court and immediately proceed to dispose of an oral application made to him to exercise his powers under section 16, clause 2 (b), of the Provincial Insolvency Act.

When a debtor is declared an insolvent, then so long as the order of adjudication subsists and is not annulled, he cannot be deprived of the immunity conferred upon insolvents by the insolvency Act, unless notice has been served upon him to show cause why he should not be arrested.

Provincial Insolvency Act—contd.

There will be no annulment of adjudication once made unless the procedure prescribed in sections 42, 44 and 45 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is followed. The mere fact that proceedings were contemplated under section 43 is not enough to show that the order of adjudication is annulled.

Where on an application being made in execution of a decree of the Small Cause Court to arrest the petitioner, who had already been adjudicated an insolvent, the Subordinate Judge directed the arrest, acting in the exercise of his powers as a Small Cause Court Judge:

Held, that no appeal lay to the District Court against the order made by the Subordinate Judge as a Judge of the Court of Small Causes and the only remedy was by way of revision to the High Court. M. SESHAIYAR v. VENKATACHALAM CHETTIAR 15

s. 22—Receiver—Court's functions—Remedy of purchaser in auction.

Section 22 of the Provincial Insolvency Act does not contemplate that a lengthy inquiry should be held in a complaint against the irregularities of a sale held by a Receiver in an insolvency case as if the matter was a regular claim for specific performance. Under that section the Court simply ratifies, reverses or modifies the executive acts of its officer and any order under that section does not preclude a party from pursuing his ordinary remedy by a suit for specific performance against the Receiver. L. B. RAMAN CHETTY v. A. V. P. FIRM 884

s. 34—Attachment before judgment, cash deposited as security for withdrawing—Defendant declared insolvent—Plaintiff, if acquires any right in security deposit—Receiver in insolvency, right of, to get the money.

Where the properties of the defendant, which were attached before judgment, are released on his payment of a cash security and the defendant is subsequently declared insolvent under Act III of 1907, the plaintiff acquires no lien or charge upon the money deposited as security for getting the attachment before judgment withdrawn and the Receiver in insolvency of the defendant's property is entitled to have the money paid to him.

Such money not having been realized in execution of a decree prior to the adjudication order, section 34 of Act III of 1907 does not apply. G. PRAMODHA NATH v. MOHINI MOHAN SEN, 19 C. W. N. 1200 573

ss. 36, 37—Transfer of property by insolvent shortly before his failure—Good faith, test of—Transfer by insolvent with a view to give preference to one creditor over others—Test—Pressure of creditor, effect of.

Under section 36 of the Provincial Insolvency Act the test of the 'bona fides' of a transfer made by an insolvent in favour of an incumbrancer shortly before his failure is, whether the lender intended that the advance should enable his debtor to carry on his business and whether he had a reasonable ground for believing that it would enable him to do so.

In considering whether a transfer of property made by an insolvent was so made with a view to give one creditor preference over other creditors, the test is "what was the predominant motive in the debtor's mind at the time of the transfer?"

Provincial Insolvency Act—concl'd.

Semble:—The pressure of a creditor excludes preference, which is a voluntary act on the part of the debtor. S. In re FIRM OF MITHOMAL DWARKA DAS, 9 S. L. R. 65

50

s. 37

50

s. 37—Lease by insolvent of his occupancy holding, validity of—Duty of Receiver.

If an insolvent lets at a reasonable rent his occupancy holding, the transaction is valid and cannot be avoided under section 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907.

It is the duty of the Receiver and the Court administering the estate of an insolvent to preserve, as far as possible, the estate of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors. It is not desirable to give up any property that is of value. A. DESEAJ v. SAGAR MAL, 13 A. L. J. 1064; 38 A. 37

716

s. 43

15

s. 51

583

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25

880

Sch. II, art. 7—Suit

for enhanced kattubadi, whether cognizable by Court of Small Cause—Second appeal.

A suit claiming enhanced kattubadi on the ground of default in payment of the money rate, is not a suit for "enhancement of rent" within the meaning of clause 7, Schedule II, of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and is cognizable by a Small Cause Court and, therefore, no second appeal lies in such a suit. M. CHILUKURI SITARAMAYYA v. VENKATA RANGAYYA APPA RAO

871

art. 8—Special authori- zation personal—Rent for homestead land—Construction of Statute.

The special authorization contemplated by clause (8) of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is entirely personal to the presiding Judge.

Semble:—By enacting clause 8 of Schedule II to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act the Legislature intended that suits for the recovery of rent should be tried under the Small Cause Court procedure only by such Judges as have been expressly authorized to exercise jurisdiction in that behalf: it was not intended that jurisdiction should be conferred by a general order on a particular Small Cause Court, irrespective of the qualifications of the individual officer who may preside therein. C. SAFER ALI MANDAL v. GOLAM MANDAL, 19 C. W. N. 1236

177

art. 13—Suit to recover

dues of hereditary office—Jurisdiction.

A suit by an archaka of a temple to recover the dues of his hereditary office from the trustee is within the exemption contained in clause (13) of Schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), and is, therefore, not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. M. SUBBAYA ACHARYA v. KESAVA UPADHAYA, (1915) M. W. N. 846

206 art. 31—Suit to recover damages for wrongful removal of fruits—Question of title, decision of 5

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—concl'd.Sch. II, art. 31—Suit of Small

Cause Court nature—Right of fishery—Second appeal.

Where the plaintiff brought a suit to recover a certain sum of money on the allegation that a particular tank was the joint property of the parties and that the defendant had caught fish from the said tank and appropriated the entire fish by selling them for his own benefit:

Held, that the suit was one of the nature cognizable by the Small Cause Court and that, therefore, no second appeal lay. A. NARAIN DAS v. HARAKH NARAIN LAL

797

Public Gambling Act (III of 1867),

ss. 1, 3—'Place,' interpretation of—Enclosure within low brick walls, if place.

Round the sides of a bullock-run, in the shape of a semi-circle there had been raised a low wall of loose-bricks and it was within the shelter of this low brick-wall that gambling took place:

Held, that the enclosure was a place, within the meaning of the Gambling Act. A. EMPEROR v. MIAN DIN, 13 A. L. J. 1070; 16 Cr. L. J. 826; 38 A. 47

1002

Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900), s. 3(3)

199

Punjab Courts Act (XVIII of 1884), s. 41

797

s. 40(3)

386

Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (I of 1912), s. 2

386

Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41

800

Punjab Government Tenants Act (III of 1893), s. 8—Agreement to allow others to occupy land granted by Government, whether binding.

Where a Government tenant executed a deed of agreement in favour of his three brothers whereby he let them occupy one-half of the land included in the Government grant and on his subsequently seeking to eject them, the brothers sued to have the notice of ejectment cancelled:

Held, that the agreement admitting the plaintiffs to a share in the tenancy without the previous consent in writing of the Financial Commissioner was void, as being in contravention of section 8 of the Government Tenants (Punjab) Act, 1893, and could not be relied on. P. VIR SINGH v. KALA SINGH, 3 P. R. 1915 Rev.

400

Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872), s. 9

—Sale—Exchange—Consideration—Money and land—Principle on which nature of transaction should be determined—Pre-emption, evasion of, by lawful means.

Every transaction in which the consideration does not consist merely of money but also of the conveyance to the vendor by the vendee of some land, must be considered upon its own facts to decide whether it is purely a sale or an exchange or is of a mixed character, being partly sale and partly exchange.

Where the consideration for a transaction consisted of a cash payment of Rs. 3,600 and the transfer by the vendee to the vendor of land valued at Rs. 1,100 and the transaction was an indivisible one;

Punjab Laws Act—concl'd.

Held, that the transaction was not a 'sale' which could be pre-empted.

The evasion of pre-emption by lawful means is quite legitimate. P. GUL MUHAMMAD v. TOTA RAM, 82 P. R. 1915; 172 P. W. R. 1915 221

Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (I of 1900), art. 1Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 12—Pre-emption—Pre-emptor co-sharer in shamilat land.

In applying section 12 of the Pre-emption Act only the proprietary land and not the shamilat land of the pre-emptor is to be considered, as for purposes like this shamilat is a mere appurtenance of the proprietary land. P. JAWALA SINGH v. LADHA, 173 P. L. R. 1915; 114 P. W. R. 1915 272

s. 13—'Shop', meaning of—Residential place with an oven for making rotis, whether shop.

The question whether upon certain facts found a building should or should not be held to be a 'shop' within the meaning of section 13 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, 1905, is one of law and constitutes a good ground for second appeal.

The word 'shop' in its ordinary meaning denotes a building or an apartment which is primarily used for buying and selling goods.

Where a place was primarily used as a residential place:

Held, that it was not a shop although there was in it an oven for cooking rotis for any one who brought his own flour for the purpose and paid in cash or in kind for baking the rotis. P. BHAMBA RAM v. ALGAH BAKSHI, 69 P. R. 1915; 156 P. W. R. 1915 191

s. 16—Notice issued by

Naib-Tahsildar, whether valid—Waiver—Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900) s. 3 (3).

Where a Naib-Tahsildar, under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner, issues a notice with a view to find out whether any member of an agricultural tribe is willing to purchase the land proposed to be sold at a certain price to a person who is not a member of an agricultural tribe, the notice is not one given through any 'Court' as required by section 16 of the Pre-emption Act (II of 1905) and a pre-emptor who asserts his right of pre-emption but protests against the reasonableness of the price at which such land is offered to be sold, does not lose his right of pre-emption. P. KARAM CHAND v. GHULAM HASSAN, 74 P. R. 1915 199

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), ss. 2 (3), 22 (4) (a)—Construction of Statute—Retrospective effects—Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 11—Proviso—Period of 20 years, computation of.

Section 2 (3) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913) was not intended to give and does not give retrospective effect to sub-section (4) (a) of sections 22 and this sub-section can only apply to a case in which the money deposited by a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit is withdrawn by him after the new Act has come into force. In other words, section 22 (4) (a) when read with section 2 (3) of the Act does not enjoin the dismissal of an appeal preferred by the pre-emptor in a case where he had withdrawn the money deposited by him in Court before the new Act came into operation.

Punjab Pre-emption Act—(1913)—concl'd.

A pre-emptor who claims the benefit of the proviso to section 11 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905) should prove the existence of continuous record of ownership of land, on the strength of which he claims pre-emption, for a period of 20 years immediately preceding the date of sale, either in his own name or in that of an agnate of his. In other words, the period of 20 years, referred to in the proviso, over which the record of ownership should extend, should be computed back from the date of sale and if there occur any break, for however short a period, in the record of ownership in the name of the pre-emptor or any other agnate of his, he would forfeit the benefit of the proviso. P. PRITHVI CHAND v. SAFA CHAND, 75 P. R. 1915; 157 P. W. R. 1915 202

s. 22 (4) (a)Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), ss. 4 (15), 5 (1) (d)—Muafi—Mujawar—Village servant—Jagirdar.

The mujawar of a village khargah to whom some land has been granted as a 'muafi' by the village proprietors for the maintenance of the khargah, is a 'village servant', and is, therefore, excluded from the definition of 'Jagirdar' as given in section 4 (15) of the Punjab Tenancy Act. U. P. B. R. SORSA v. KHAWAJA, 4 P. R. 1915 Rev. 238

s. 5 (1) (d)Railway Act of Canada. (Rev. Stat. 1906, c. 37), s. 340*Railway Company. See CARRIER.

—goods consigned to—Non-delivery—Suit for compensation—Limitation—Cause of action—Common carrier, liability of—Special contract, effect of 474

Raiyat. See LANDLORD & TENANT.Ratification—Continuing obligation

Receiver. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, O. 40, R. 1, 5; PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, s. 37.

Registration Act (XVI of 1903), s. 17

ss. 17, 49—Book containing formal declaration of division of status of members of joint Hindu family unregistered, admissibility of, in evidence for proving divided status of family.

In the course of certain partition proceedings among the members of a joint Hindu family, consisting of a father, his two undivided sons and a grandson by a predeceased son, separate lists were prepared of the properties, both moveable and immovable, in the possession of the several members of the family and available for division. These were entered in a book together with the value of such properties. The several lists were then totalled up and the value of the share of each member ascertained and thereunder the following note appeared:—"In the presence of the witnesses named hereunder we divided." Below this note, the parties and the witnesses signed:

Registration Act—(1908)—concl'd.

Held, that the book containing the above entries was a formal declaration of division of status attested by witnesses and that as such, it affected the immovable properties mentioned therein and that not being registered, it was inadmissible in evidence to prove even the divided status of the members of the family. M. AYYAKUTTI MAMKONDAN v. PERIASAMI KOUNDAN, 2 L. W. 1184

615

s. 17—Compromise in Court—Perpetual lease executed but not registered—Mention of lease in compromise—Terms not entered—Lease, admissibility of, in evidence.

A previous suit for ejectment was compromised. A sulehnama was written and filed in the Court. A lease was executed on the same date giving particulars of the terms upon which the land was to be held by the tenant. The lease was a perpetual lease, but it was not registered. In the sulehnama, the lease was mentioned but the terms were not mentioned.

Held, in a subsequent suit for ejectment, that the lease, not being registered, was inadmissible in evidence. U. P. B. R. HARPAL SINGH v. KANDHIVA BUX MISIR

449

s. 17—Compromise incorporated in decree of Court, whether requires registration—Transfer of property by a Hindu in favour of a Hindu widow, effect of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 8.

Section 17 of the Registration Act does not apply to proper judicial proceedings, whether consisting of pleadings filed by the parties or of orders made by the Court.

Where, therefore, a compromise arrived at by the parties to a case is incorporated in the terms of the decree of the Court, such compromise can be adduced in evidence in a subsequent suit notwithstanding that it has not been registered.

Where, a claim by a Hindu widow to a certain property as absolute owner was compromised by giving to the claimant one-fourth of the property in dispute and it was admitted that this one-fourth was far in excess of what she would have been entitled to get if it were intended merely to take the place of her maintenance:

Held, that the presumption of Hindu Law that in a transfer by a Hindu male to a Hindu female only a limited estate is granted, did not apply and that the transfer was an absolute transfer governed by section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act. M. SANKARAVELU PILLAI v. MUTHUSAMI PILLAI, 18 M. L. T. 497; 29 M. L. J. 779; (1915) M. W. N. 956

260

s. 17—Document promising to do some act in future, if requires registration

708

ss. 17, 49—Unregistered lease, terms of, whether admissible for proving fair rent for use and occupation.

A lease of immovable property which is compulsorily registrable and not registered, cannot be looked at for the purpose of determining the fair amount of occupation rent payable in respect of the property which formed the subject of that demise. M. ANNAMALAI CHETTY v. POOSARI SUPPIA, 2 L. W. 1034

279

Registration Act—(1908)—cont'd.

s. 17 (1) (b)—Agreement to re-sell—Consideration—Offer kept open till certain time, effect of.

Where A sells a house and site for Rs. 1,500 to B by a registered deed and B on the same or the following day agrees to sell the property to A for the same amount in writing, B's agreement is compulsorily registrable as it is not merely an agreement to sell which does not require registration, but is one which creates a right of redemption for that amount.

An offer to sell and to keep the offer open to a certain day is voidum pactum and can at any time before acceptance be recalled. L. B. MATHURAN. H. M. YASSIN

390

s. 17 (d)

604

s. 17, sub-s. (2), cl. (1)
Petition embodying terms of compromise incorporated into judicial record—Registration, whether compulsory—Evidence, admissibility in.

A widow applied for Letters of Administration as being the person solely entitled to the estate of her deceased husband, but the application was opposed by the relations of the deceased and she filed a suit for a declaration that she was in possession of the estate and entitled to the whole of it. The parties, however, came to terms and drew up a draft agreement. A petition was then presented to the Court embodying verbatim the terms agreed upon and praying for a decree in terms of the compromise. Subsequently the plaintiff withdrew from the suit on the basis of the compromise and the suit was dismissed. The defendants then sued the widow for rendition of accounts of the estate and it was conceded that their claim must fail unless they could put in evidence the terms of the agreement entered into between the parties in the previous suit.

Held, that the petition embodying the terms of the compromise formed part of the pleadings of the parties in the case and being incorporated as such into the judicial record, did not need registration in order to make it admissible in evidence for the purpose of this suit. P. ROBERT SKINNER v. JAMES SKINNER, 91 P. R. 1915 ss. 32, 34, 35, 77—Suit to compel registration—"Person executing the document", meaning of—Agent—Court, duty of, while proceeding under s. 77—Object of registration—Actual executant—Constructive executant—Suit, maintainability of.

537

The phrase "person executing the document" and its derivatives as used in sections 32, 34, 35, 48 and 73, Indian Registration Act, refer to the person who actually signs or marks the document in token of execution, whether for himself or on behalf of some other person; and he is the proper defendant in a suit brought to compel registration under section 77, Registration Act.

A Registering Officer has to satisfy himself that the document was executed by the person by whom it purports to have been signed, not constructively but actually. Neither the Registrar nor a Court proceeding under section 77 has any concern with the legal effect of the document, e. g., when the executant is an agent professing to execute for a principal, whether he has authority to execute.

Registration Act—(1908)—concl'd.

Registration is designed to guard against fraud by obtaining a contemporaneous publication and an unimpeachable record of each document, and for that purpose, the Registering Officer has only to be satisfied that a certain person, not being a minor or lunatic, admits having signed or marked the deed which purports to have been executed by him.

Where a deed is executed by an agent for a principal and the same agent appears and presents the deed or admits execution before the Registering Officer, that is not a case of presentation under section 32 (c) of the Act or appearance and admission by agent under section 34 (1) and 35 (b). It is a presentation, appearance or admission by the actual executant himself.

A person who executes in favour of another any document which is compulsorily registrable, is bound ipso facto to assist in having that document registered, wholly irrespective of its legal effect upon himself or any other person. N. MOTILAL P. GANGA BAI, 11 N. L. R. 177

ss. 34, 35	867
s. 49	279, 604, 615
s. 77	867

Regulation XVII of 1806—Mortgage by conditional sale—Foreclosure proceedings—Notice, service of, on de facto guardian of minor mortgagor, whether sufficient—Consideration, receipt of, denial of—Burden of proof.

In foreclosure proceedings taken in a mortgage by conditional sale, a notice under Regulation XVII of 1806 delivered to the de facto guardian of a minor mortgagor is sufficient, whether that person is described as de facto guardian in the notice or not.

If the executant of a mortgage-deed, who admitted receipt of consideration at the time of registration denies the receipt of consideration, the burden of proving its non receipt is on him. P. JOWALA SINGH, v. TULSA RAM, 78 P. R. 1915; 173 P. W. R. 1915 212

S. 7—Legal representative, meaning of—'Amount due', meaning of—Redemption by owner of share in equity of redemption or by person having interest in portion of mortgaged property, if allowed.

The expression 'legal representative' ordinarily designates a person who represents the estate of a deceased but in Regulation XVII of 1806, it is used to denote a person who is the mortgagor's representative in law qua the mortgaged property. In other words, it means any person who is interested in protecting the estate and it is immaterial whether the interest is created by the operation of law or by a contract between the parties.

The words 'amount due' in the proviso to section 7 of the Regulation refer to the earlier portion of the section and denote the sum lent under a mortgage-deed plus the interest, if any, but do not include the costs of improvements or the rent which under the deed may be chargeable on the estate.

When a mortgage is with possession, the amount required to be deposited is the sum lent under the mortgage.

Any person who is entitled to redeem may make the deposit though he is owner of only a share in the equity of redemption,

Regulation—concl'd.

A person having an interest in a portion of the mortgaged property is entitled to redeem the whole, unless his claim is opposed by a part owner of the equity of redemption (who may be the mortgagee himself), and in that case he must redeem only the part to which he is entitled. P. FAZL-UD-DIN v. KHARAK SINGH, 83 P. R. 1915; 41 P. W. R. 1915

230

Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863), ss. 8, 10—Devasthanam Committee, vacancy in—Appointment by District Judge—Evidence not taken—Order, if legal—Revision, maintainability of—Nature of proceedings—Qualifications laid down in s. 8, if apply to vacancies subsequent—Improper appointments, how set aside—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 141—Madras Civil Rules of Practice (Mofussil), r. 94, applicability of, to proceedings under s. 10 of Religious Endowments Act.

A District Judge, acting under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act, XX of 1863, is not bound to take evidence before appointing a person to the vacancy of a member of the Devasthanam Committee.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—Rule 94 of the Civil Rules of Practice (Mofussil), in so far as it goes beyond section 141, Civil Procedure Code, 1908, is ultra vires and in so far as it is in conformity with the said section is unnecessary.

The omission in rule 94 of the Civil Rules of Practice (Mofussil) of the qualifying words 'as far as it can be made applicable,' occurring in section 141, Civil Procedure Code, 1908, cannot make the procedure in regard to suits applicable in their entirety to all original petitions, if by the very nature of such petitions portions of the procedure relating to suits cannot be made applicable to such petitions.

The nature of an application under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act, invoking the District Judge's power of appointment to the vacancy of a member of the Devasthanam Committee, makes that part of the procedure in the trial of suits which relates to the taking of evidence not obligatory on the District Judge, though there is nothing to prevent his taking such evidence.

Neither appeal nor revision lies against an order passed by a District Judge under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act, as it is informal in its nature and is one passed outside the Ordinary Civil Jurisdiction of the District Court.

The qualifications contained in section 8 of the Religious Endowments Act, regarding Committee Members apply to vacancies filled up under section 10 of the said Act.

A person improperly appointed under section 10 can be removed either by proceedings by quo warranto or by injunction.

Per Napier, J.—Neither section 141, Civil Procedure Code, 1908; nor rule 94 of the Civil Rules of Practice (Mofussil), applies to proceedings under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act.

Proceedings under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act are not judicial proceedings, and they do not amount to a 'case' within the meaning of section 115, Civil Procedure Code.

Quære.—Whether an order passed by a District

Religious Endowments Act—concl.

Judge under section 10 of the Religious Endowments Act, appointing a person to a vacancy in the Devasthanam Committee can be revised by the High Court?

A High Court will not under section 15 of the Charter Act interfere with a carefully considered order of a lower Court. M. SUBBIAH v. ABBAY NAIDU, 29 M. L. J. 671; 18 M. L. T. 46; 2 L. W. 1099 502

s. 10

502

Res Judicata. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1882, s. 13; CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 11.

Erroneous decision on point of law, if res judicata.

An erroneous decision on a question of law in a previous suit is no bar to a subsequent suit between the same parties, but the findings of facts and the relief given in a previous suit may operate as res judicata. M. VESRARAGHAVA v. KRISHNASWAMI 269

Execution—Dismissal of application—Order for execution, whether res judicata 293

Resulting trust. See TRUSTS ACT, s. 83.

Revenue—Duty of registered holder to pay Government revenue—Co-sharers whether personally liable—Charge on estate—Suit to enforce charge—Jurisdiction 255

Reversioner, suit by. See CUSTOM.

Reversioner's suit—Starting of limitation 290

Review—Evidence not originally available—Application for review 196

Revision (Civil). See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 115.

(Criminal)—High Court, power of, to direct Subordinate Magistrate to take additional evidence—Jurisdiction—Order prohibiting use of public street, interference with—Sentimental caste objections, if to be considered 367

Unreliable evidence—Conviction, legality of—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439.

Where the persons who restored the stolen property to its owner deposed that it was recovered from the petitioner and he was consequently convicted under section 457, Indian Penal Code, but no name of any burglar was given in the first report to the Police and their evidence was not reliable according to the circumstances of the case:

Held, on revision that the lower Courts were not justified in believing it and convicting the petitioner. P. MACHIA v. EMPEROR, 28 P. W. R. 1915 Cr. 16 Cr. L. J. 737 337

Rioting. See PENAL CODE, s. 147.

Riwaj-i-am, entry in, effect of 294

entry in, whether instances necessary to give effect to—Custom 740

Sale. See EXECUTION.

Exchange—Consideration—Money and land—Principle on which nature of transaction should be determined—Pre-emption, evasion of, by lawful means 221

Sale—concl.

of immoveable property less than Rs. 100 in value—Unregistered sale-deed—Possession delivered—Title, if passes—Sale-deed, if evidence of contract to sell—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 54.

In the case of immoveable property of the value of less than Rs. 100, the existence of an unregistered deed of sale does not prevent the transferee from relying on an oral sale followed by possession and the unregistered document can be used as evidence of the contract to sell. M. KATHARI NARASIMH RAO v. BHUPATI RAJ, 18 M. L. T. 371; 2 L. W. 901; 29 M. L. J. 721; (1915) M. W. N. 819 52

Sanad. See OUDH ESTATES ACT, s. 2.

Second Appeal. See APPEAL.

Security to keep the peace. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 107.

Shamlat—Entry in two successive Settlements that all members of certain tribe are entitled to share in shamlat—Contingent entry in third Settlement—Declaratory suit—Cause of action

In the Settlement of 1863, it was entered that the shamlat of the village belonged to all the members of a certain tribe and this entry was repeated in the Settlement of 1887, but in the Settlement of 1900 it was provided that it belonged to only one section of the tribe:

Held, that the last entry was unauthorised and was not of much evidential value as there was nothing on the record to show why the entries of the two previous Settlements were changed and the new entry substituted in the place.

Where defendants have done no overt act amounting to an invasion of plaintiffs' right, the mere allegation in the plaint that the defendants consider themselves co-sharers and openly deny the plaintiffs' exclusive proprietary rights in the land, cannot furnish the plaintiffs a definite cause of action so as to enable them to seek declaration of their title. P. BUDHA KHAN v. MOHAMMAD, 133 P. W. R. 1915 267

Land—Possession of portion by one co-owner—Dispossession—Suit for possession—Possession, nature of, allowed—Joint possession.

In the absence of a special custom whereby a proprietor can hold exclusive possession of a portion of the shamlat until its partition, he is entitled to joint but not exclusive possession if he is ousted by other proprietors in the village. P. NIHAL SINGH v. MAL SINGH, 160 P. W. R. 1915 262

Sir land. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT, s. 4 (12).

Small Causes Court—Jurisdiction—Damages for use and occupation, suit for—Title, determination of—Presumption from occupation—Rent.

A Court of Small Causes has jurisdiction to go into the question of title arising incidentally in a suit for damages for use and occupation.

A purchaser of immoveable property can sue its occupant for damages for use and occupation, if the occupant had occupied the premises with the consent of the previous owner but had been served with a notice that he would no longer be allowed to occupy it free of rent. A presumption to pay rent arises from occupation. L. B. YOO JOO SEIM v. MAUNG BA TIN 893

Specific performance—Contract to sell land—Contract set up different from that proved—Time not of the essence of the contract—Part performance of contract set up—Specific performance of contract proved—Contract with managing member of Hindu family—Sons, whether liable as legal representatives after his death—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint.

A suit for the specific performance of a contract to sell land is not liable to be dismissed merely on the ground that the contract proved in the case is different from the contract alleged in the plaint.

Where time is not of the essence of the contract and especially where there has been a part performance of the contract as alleged by the plaintiff, the Court should allow an amendment of the plaint (if necessary) under Order VI, rule 17, of the Civil Procedure Code, and decree specific performance of the contract as proved.

Where the suit is on a personal contract entered into with the managing member of a Hindu family, it can, on his death, be enforced against the sons and they will be liable, as legal representatives, to fulfil the contract in the place of their father if that contract is, according to Hindu Law, binding on them. But where the sons plead that the sale is not for a legal necessity and that they are not bound by the contract of their father to sell his share in the plaint lands, a Court would be justified in refusing to decree specific performance against them. M. SHUNMUGAM CHETTY v. SUBBA REDDI I

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 9—Adhikar, position of—Tenant or labourer—Suit for possession by adhikar, maintainability of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115.

An adhikar is generally a tenant and as such his possession would be protected under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act.

Therefore, a decision in favour of an adhikar under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act is not liable to be revised under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, in the absence of proof that the adhikar is not a tenant but a labourer. C. DEN NATH DAS v. RAM SUNDAR BARMAN, 19 C. W. N. 1205, 579

s. 9—Plaintiff in joint possession with defendant—Court, whether can restore such possession.

A Court has no power to give joint possession to the plaintiff and the defendant in a suit under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act. M. PARA KOOTHAN v. PARA KULLA VANDU, 29 M.L.J. 760 720

s. 39—Suit for cancellation of sale-deed—Consideration, non-payment of—Intention to effect transfer—Vendor and purchaser—Vendor's right to demand payment—Deed intended to operate on death of vendor—Will—Construction.

Where there is a deed purporting to convey property for consideration and it is found that no consideration passed, one of the questions to be determined in a suit for cancellation of the deed is whether there was any intention to effect a transfer. If there was, the failure to pay the consideration does not necessarily make the sale-deed void or voidable but may only give the right to payment of the consideration together with a lien on the property until the consideration is paid.

Specific Relief Act—concl'd.

Where in a suit for cancellation of a sale-deed purporting to convey certain properties, it appeared that no title was intended to pass under the document until the death of the plaintiff-vendor, on which the properties would vest in the defendant-vendee:

Held, that the document was really intended to operate as a Will and was revocable by the plaintiff at any time. M. GOVINDASAMY RAJA v. KUPPAMMAL 77

s. 42

242

s. 45

618

Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 44, scope of—Stamp duty and penalty—Joint executants—Contribution.

Section 44 of the Indian Stamp Act is only intended to give a right to an innocent party, not guilty of any default in the matter of the proper stamping of a document, to recover the duty and penalty he is obliged to pay from the person or persons guilty of default and is not intended to enable one of several persons, who were under a common duty to pay the proper stamp duty on a document in proportionate shares, to claim from the others contribution in respect of the amount of the stamp duty and penalty which he has been compelled to pay in full owing to their common default. M. RAMAN CHETTY v. NAGAPPA CHETTY, 2 L. W. 1024 285

ss. 65, 70—Failure to affix stamp to receipt—Sanction of Collector, if necessary for prosecution.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try a person in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed under section 65 of the Stamp Act, 1899, without the sanction of the Collector being first obtained to the institution of the prosecution. P. EMPEROR v. RAMJILAL, 21 P. R. 1915 Cr.; 38 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 787 643

s. 70

643

Sch. I, arts. 45, 55—Compromise—Partition—Release, deed of.

Where each of the two rival claimants to a property claims to be the sole and full owner of the property but in order to avoid litigation agrees to release in favour of the other a certain portion of it, the deed executed by either of them is a deed of release and not a deed of partition and is liable to a stamp duty under Article 55 of Schedule I of the Stamp Act. A. JIBAN KUMAR v. GOVIND DAS, 13 A. L. J. 1109 404

art. 55

404

Subrogation. See MORTGAGE.

Succession. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, s. 22; CUSTOM; HINDU LAW.

Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 187—

Party claiming under Will, what must prove—Issue of Probate postponed on account of applicant's failure to pay stamp duty—Legatee, when can maintain suit for administration.

A party claiming an interest under a Will must prove the execution of the document and its terms by the particular procedure prescribed by section 187 of the Succession Act.

Succession Act—concl.

Where, therefore, in a suit by the testator's widow against his executor, it appeared that the defendant did apply for Probate and that the fiat of the Judge was obtained, but that the actual grant had not been issued through the failure of the defendant to pay the stamp duty leviable under the Court Fees Act:

Held, that, as the plaintiff claimed as heir of a legatee, she was under section 187 of the Succession Act in the position of a legatee and must establish her title by production of the evidence required by the section in order to be able to maintain the suit. M. ALAMELAMMAL v. SURAYAPRAKASAROTA, 20 M. L. J. 680; 38 M. 688 491

Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889)—Muhammadans governed by Marumakkattayam Law—Karar—Self-acquisition to lapse to tavazhi—Construction of document—Power to dispose of in life-time.

A karar or family settlement among the members of a Muhammadan family governed by Marumakkattayam Law ran in the following terms:—

"The properties acquired by the members of each tavazhi as their own as well as those that may be so acquired, shall on the death of such acquirers, lapse only to their tavazhi."

Held, that there was nothing in the language of the instrument to show that the acquirer of the property debarred himself from dealing with it during his life-time either by alienation inter vivos or by means of a Will, and that, therefore, a legatee claiming under such a Will made by such a member was prima facie entitled to a succession certificate. M. KOYATTI HAJI v. KOYAMAN KUTTI HAJI 446

s. 4 (a)—Proof of representative title—Joint Hindu family, death of a member of—Survivors, whether require certificate to realize debts of family—Partnership—Death of a partner—Surviving partner, if requires certificate to entitle him to effects of deceased—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 45, 263.

When one member of a joint undivided Hindu family dies, the other members succeed to him by survivorship and do not require any succession certificate in order to sue for debts due to the family.

In the case of a partnership if a partner dies, the surviving partner does not succeed to the dead partner by survivorship and if the surviving partner claims to be entitled to the effects of the deceased person as due to himself alone, a succession certificate is required. P. GURDITTA MAL v. DHARI MAL 904

Succession and Inheritance, distinction between 106

Suit—Compromise—Decree, binding force of.

When a case is settled by compromise, the decision is as binding as if it had been decided after hearing evidence and it is not permissible to go behind that decision and enquire whether the decision might have been different if evidence had been adduced. U. P. B. R. BISHESHAH DASS v. SACHIRUNNISA 902

—for declaration—Non-proprietors living in village on sufferance—Wajib-ul-arz recording exclusive right of proprietary body to refuse of village, whether binding on non-proprietors.

The non-proprietary body of the village of Nizamabad brought a suit for a declaration that the Suit—concl.

refuse and sweepings of the village were not the exclusive property of the defendants, the proprietary body, but that the plaintiffs had a right to dispose of and, if necessary, to sell the sweepings and refuse of their own houses:

Held, that as the non-proprietors lived in the village on sufferance on sites belonging to the proprietary body, the provision of the wajib-ul-arz specifying that all refuse from their houses should be the perquisite of the proprietary body was not inequitable and that the plaintiffs were not entitled to the declaration sought for. P. KARIM BAKHSH v. ALTAH ALI, 18 P. R. 1915; 180 P. W. R. 1915 469

—Decree for possession conditional on payment of money—Decree not executed—Second suit, whether maintainable 205

—for land and suit for money claims, distinction between 189

—*Person holding chaklatnamah, appearance by—Privilege denied—Suit to declare right, maintainability of* 310

—Promissory note filed with plaint missing from Court records—Copy filed—Suit, if fails 30

—Property attached under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, suit to recover possession of, and for declaration—Limitation—Continuing wrong—"Dispossession," meaning of—"Discontinuance of possession," meaning of—Attachment, ownership during—Continuing injury—Suit against Magistrate, if maintainable—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 46 242

—remitting of—Determination of other questions 240

—right of—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1878), ss. 523, 524, distinction between—Claim under section 523 disallowed by Magistrate—Aggrieved person, right of.

The special provisions relating to investigation of claims to property mentioned in section 523 Criminal Procedure Code, do not deprive the person aggrieved of any right of action.

The distinction between a case under section 523 and one under section 524 of the Code of Criminal Procedure suggested by the Judges in Secretary of State for India in Council v. Vakhatsangji Meghrajji 9 B. 668, has no substance. B. WASAPPA TIMAPPA SONAGAR v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 17 Bom. L. R. 979 498

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 4 188

— s. 8 104

Tender—Interest—Bond payable by instalments—Tender of payment of overdue instalments without interest, whether proper.

Where the money due on a bond was payable by instalments, one of the conditions being that if three instalments remained in arrears, the whole money would become payable at once and where after three instalments had fallen due, the debtor tendered payment of the principal money of those instalments without the addition of the interest:

Held, that there was not a proper tender and the plaintiff was entitled to recover the interest on the overdue instalments. M. THIRUVANNAMALAI SERVAI v. VARADARAJULU NAIDU 304

Theft. See PENAL CODE, s. 379.

Tort—Joint tort-feasors—Trespasser, lessee from—Joint liability.

Where more persons than one are concerned in the commission of a wrong, the wronged person has his remedy against all or any one or more of them at his choice. Every wrong-doer is liable for the whole damage and it does not matter whether they acted as between themselves as equals or one of them as agent or lessee of another.

Therefore, where a trespasser let the land trespassed upon to another person who cultivated it and took the produce, both are liable for damages caused by the trespass. N. GOVERDHAN v. MARUTI, 11 N. L. R. 184. 872

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882)—Damdupet, rule of, if applicable to mortgages under the Act. 6

————— s. 3 604

————— s. 6 473

————— s. 6—Relinquishment—Reversionary rights—Settlement of disputed claim.

One Bhagga Lal died possessed of certain property and his daughter-in-law got possession of it. On the death of the daughter-in-law, one Barati Lal made an application for mutation of names on the ground that he was the heir of Bhagga Lal. This application was opposed by Mohan Dei daughter of Bhagga Lal. The dispute resulted in execution of a document by which Barati Lal for a consideration of Rs. 5,000 and on receipt of certain immoveable property, abandoned his entire claim to the property recognizing Musammat Mohan Dei to be absolute owner of it.

Held, that the transaction was not a sale of the reversionary rights of Barati Lal, but was a settlement of disputed claims and was not void under section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act. A. BARATI LAL v. SALIK RAM, 13 A. L. J. 114. 919

————— s. 6 (e) 604

————— s. 8 263

————— s. 52—Decree for sale by

1st mortgagee—Subsequent mortgage in favour of 2nd mortgagee—Sale in execution of decree of 1st mortgagee, effect of, on second mortgage—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 89—Second mortgagee, right of.

A mortgaged certain land with B in 1903. B got a decree for sale of the mortgaged property in 1905. After the decree A mortgaged the same land by way of second mortgage with C in 1906. In 1910 the land was sold by the Court in execution of B's decree and purchased by D. The surplus after paying B's claim was paid away to A. Subsequently C filed the present suit against A and D claiming to have the mortgaged property re-sold.

Held, (1) that C had no remedy against the land but was only entitled to a personal decree and that what was sold at the sale in execution of the 1st mortgagee's decree was the right, title and interest of the mortgagor as it existed at the time of the first mortgage;

(2) that the second mortgage being subsequent to the decree the second mortgagee had no rights other than those of the mortgagor through whom he claimed and was bound by the decree;

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

(3) that the mortgagor's right of redeeming the first mortgage was determined by the decree and the effect of the sale was to deprive the second mortgagee of his security;

(4) that as the second mortgagee failed to save his security by paying the amount of the decree on the first mortgage into Court under Order XXI, rule 89, as representative of the judgment-debtor, the mortgagor, he had no remedy against the land. S. KANAYARAM v. TIRITHISING, 9 S. L. R. 86. 37

————— s. 54 52

————— s. 54—Sale in favour of minor, validity of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 11.

A sale-deed of a house executed in favour of a minor is a valid transaction and the minor can sue for possession of the same after the transaction is complete. A. MUNNI KOER v. MADAN GOPAL, 13 A. L. J. 1084. 792

————— s. 55 179

————— s. 58 (c)—Sale-deed—Price treated as continuing debt—Property made security for re-payment of debt—Agreement to reconvey—Transaction, nature of—Construction of documents—Mortgage or sale.

Where in a suit for a declaration that a certain apparent sale was in reality a mortgage and for redemption of the mortgage, it appeared that plaintiffs executed a sale-deed in favour of the defendants giving them certain property in lieu of a total debt of Rs. 2,500 and contemporaneously with it two other documents were executed, one, an agreement by the defendants to reconvey the property to the plaintiffs on payment within a specified time of the total amount due as well as of any moneys the defendants may spend on the lands, and the second, a rent note passed by the plaintiffs to the defendants providing for the payment to the defendants annually for ten years of a rental of Rs. 287, an amount which was made up of Rs. 62 on account of the Government assessment and Rs. 225 on account of interest on the principal sum of Rs. 2,500 at 9 per cent.

Held, that, inasmuch as the apparent price of Rs. 2,00 was treated and regarded as a continuing debt between the parties and the property was made security for the re-payment of that debt, the deed in question was a deed of mortgage and the plaintiffs were entitled to redeem.

A mere agreement to reconvey does not necessarily signify that the transaction is a mortgage.

Deeds and contracts of the people of India ought to be liberally construed. The form of expression, the literal sense, is not to be so much regarded as the real meaning of the parties which the transaction discloses. B. KASTURCHAND LAKHMAJI v. JAKHIA PADIA PATIL, 17 BOM. L. R. 928. 368

————— s. 76 (a)—Tenancies created by mortgagee in possession, whether binding on mortgagor—Ejectment—Mortgagor, right of.

Tenancies created by a mortgagee in possession are binding on the mortgagor even after the redemption of the mortgage in so far that the relationship of landlord and tenant continues.

Transfer of Property Act—concl.

A person, therefore, who is in possession as a tenant from year to year under a mortgagee and who continued in possession after the mortgage is redeemed by the owner, should be deemed to be a tenant from year to year under the owner thereafterwards instead of under the mortgagee.

Where in the deed of redemption the mortgagee assured the mortgagor that all his (the mortgagee's) rights in the mortgaged property had been extinguished and that thereafter the mortgagor (owner) was to obtain rents from the tenants who had been let into the lands by the mortgagee:

Held, that the right of the mortgagee as the tenants' lessor became transferred to the mortgagor and he was entitled to evict them. M. CHINNAPPA THEVAN v. PAZHANIAPPA PILLAI, 18 M. L. T. 492; 2 L. W. 1132 630

_____ s. 106 697

_____ s. 108 (b) 12

_____ ss. 108 (e), 106—

Destruction of leasehold property by fire or other irresistible force—Notice to avoid lease, operation of—Time, if necessary.

A notice avoiding a lease under section 108 (e) of the Transfer of Property Act does not require any length of time for its operation. The lease becomes ipso facto void when the lessee serves a notice under section 108 (e). Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply where a lessee serves a notice on the lessor to avoid the lease on the ground of the destruction of the property by fire or other irresistible force. C. DAMODA COAL CO. LTD. v. HURMOKE MARWARI, 19 C. W. N. 1019 697

_____ s. 111 (g) 454

_____ s. 111 (g)—“Some act showing an intention to determine the lease,” meaning of—Lawyer's notice to quit, whether sufficient—Person in illegal occupation—Mesne profits, liability for.

The expression “some act showing his” (lessor's) “intention to determine the lease,” occurring in section 111, clause (g) of the Transfer of Property Act, must not be confined to an attempt at re-entry or to the filing of a suit in ejectment. A Lawyer's notice by the lessor showing unequivocally his intention to determine the lease is quite sufficient.

A person who is in illegal occupation of land without the owner's permission or consent is liable for mesne profits. M. SIVARAMA AYYAR v. ALAGAPPA CHETTI, 2 L. W. 944; (1915) M. W. N. 545 211

_____ s. 132—Actionable claim

—Transfer prima facie subject to equities—Transferee, liability of, to ascertain extent of equities

152

Trial—Criminal Circulars of Bombay High Court, Circular No. 37—Trial on holiday, if irregular—Right of accused to defend himself.

A trial of an accused person on a Sunday or any other holiday would not necessarily make the proceedings invalid, but is irregular as being contrary to the provisions of Circular No. 37 of the Criminal Circulars of the Bombay High Court.

Where, therefore, the trial of an accused was commenced and practically finished on a Sunday, the Trial—concl.

accused being unable to engage a Pleader, and the judgment was pronounced on the following day:

Held, (1) that there was an irregularity in procedure which had prejudiced the accused who could not be said to have had a fair opportunity to defend himself;

(2) that the fact that the accused did not ask the Court to adjourn the case did not make any difference. B. BABAN DAUD v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. J. 918; 16 Ck. L. J. 752 352

Trust—Bills sent with direction to collect and remit—Fiduciary relationship 215

Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 6—Trust, declaration of—Terms—Misrepresentation of fact—Contract executed under misrepresentation of fact—Liability of party misrepresenting—Misrepresentation of future intention—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Document promising to do some act in future, if requires registration.

Where a person set apart a sum of Rs. 20,000 for the benefit of his nephew and the nephew's wife and provided that they were to enjoy the interest until his death or until having attained years of discretion they elect to separate from him and where he retained possession and control of the fund, subject only to the interests of his cestui que trust in it:

Held, that there was a clear and sufficient declaration of trust within the meaning of section 6 of the Trusts Act and that there was no need of transferring possession inasmuch as the author of the trust was himself the trustee and the property was specified, the intended beneficiaries were specified, and the purposes of the trust were specified.

Where there was a misrepresentation of fact, the relations of the parties in law would have to be determined by assuming that the fact was as it was represented to be.

In entering into a contract or inducing another person to act, if one should misrepresent a fact, the contract between him and the person so deceived shall be based in law upon the ground that the fact so misrepresented must be made good by the party misrepresenting it. Whereas if it is merely a representation of future intention, it is then only a contract and can only be proved as a contract.

Where, therefore, there was a representation by one H that one L was the adopted son of H and it was upon the faith of that representation that the plaintiff married L and where L died after H and L's widow sued for the property of H:

Held, that the representation should be made good and that, therefore, L's widow was entitled to the property.

A document which is simply a promise to do a certain act in the future or is an offer to be completed when a certain marriage takes place, does not require registration. B. LADKABAI v. NAVIVAHU, 17 Bom. L. R. 783 708

_____ s. 83—“Legal representative,” meaning of—Failure of trust after settlor's death—Resulting trust in favour of heirs of settlor.

Where the subject of dispute is the estate of a deceased intestate for which no administration has been granted, the term “legal representative” in section 83 of the Trusts Act includes the person or persons beneficially entitled who represent the interests of the deceased by virtue of inheritance.

Trusts Act—concl.

The representative by inheritance is to be found according to law at the moment of the death of the deceased.

Where, therefore, a Hindu woman conveyed certain property by a deed of trust, and the trust failed after her death:

Held, that there was a resulting trust in favour of the settlor, and, therefore, the property descended to her heirs at the time of her death. B. DWARKA-DAS DAMODAR v. DWARKADAS SHAMJI, 17 Bom. L. R. 935

s. 88

441
216U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 4 (1), cls. (a), (b), (c)—Sir meaning of.

A mere record of certain plots as sir in partition is not sufficient to bring them under the category of clause (b) of section 4 (1), which requires the establishment of village custom. U. P. B. R. MURID v. KASHIA

855

s. 4 (12)—Sale of proprietary rights including sir by Hindu widow—Ex-proprietary rights not allowed—Sale declared null and void on suit by reversioners, effect of, on sir land.

A Hindu widow alienated the property of her husband including sir. Three years after the sale she claimed ex-proprietary rights but her claim was disallowed. On the death of the widow, the reversioners got the sale cancelled:

Held, that the effect of the cancellation of sale was that sir rights revived in favour of the reversioners. U. P. B. R. BARNAL SINGH v. SHEO NATH

851

ss. III, 112—Partition

—Party required to file civil suit—Failure to file civil suit—Order—Appeal—Jurisdiction.

The applicant applied in the Revenue Court against the defendant claiming partition. The defendant objected that the applicant's share was less than what he claimed. The Collector made an order under section 111 of the Land Revenue Act, requiring the defendant to bring a suit in the Civil Court within three months to determine the question. This was not done. After the expiry of three months, the case again came up before the Collector. The defendant alleged that the decision of the Civil Court for partition in respect of the non-revenue paying property of the parties had settled the question. The Collector overruled this objection. The defendant appealed to the District Judge:

Held, that no appeal lay to the District Judge. A. HAR PRASAD v. MUKAND LAL, 13 A. L. J. 1107

882

s. 112

892

s. 138—Partition of under-proprietary right in specific plots, suit for, maintainability of.

Held, (per Holmes, S. M.)—An application to partition specific plots held in an under-proprietary tenure does not lie in the Revenue Court.

Held, (per Campbell, J. M.)—An application to partition specific plots held in an under-proprietary tenure on which no revenue is assessed can lie in the Revenue Court. U. P. B. R. BISHKSHAR PATHAK v. RAM PRASAD PATHAK, 13 A. L. J. 5 REV.

624

Vendor and purchaser—Vendor's right to demand payment—Deed intended to operate on death of vendor—Will—Construction.

77

Waiver—Acquiescence

159

—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 75—

Instalment bond, consent not to sue on failure to pay instalment, if would amount to waiver.

Waiver is consent to dispense with or forego something to which a person is entitled.

Where it was proved that demand was made in three successive years in respect of three instalments due upon an instalment bond, but the plaintiff consented not to sue for the whole amount, as he was entitled to do under the bond, for default on the first two occasions but refused to consent on the third:

Held, that this amounted to a waiver of the payment of the two earlier instalments.

When the instalment bond was executed on the 6th of November 1908 and provided payment of Rs. 10,000 by annual instalments of Rs. 400, commencing from the 30th of September 1909, and further that in case of default the whole amount payable on the bond was to fall due, and the plaintiff waived the payment of the first two instalments as aforesaid and filed a suit for the recovery of the whole amount on the 12th of November 1914:

Held, that his suit was not barred by limitation and it was decreed for Rs. 9,200. C. RAM CHANDER BAKKA v. RAWATMULL, 19 C. W. N. 1172

672

Pre-emption—Pre-emptor protesting against price

199

Will. See HINDU LAW.—, construction of 77

—, construction of—Legacy of six acres out of 19.40 acres, whether void for uncertainty—English rules of construction, applicability of, to Wills of Hindu agriculturists—Will, uncertainty, validity of.

A Hindu agriculturist bequeathed to his father's sister's second son "six acres of good irrigated nanja lands" and died leaving behind him 19.40 acres of land answering to that description. The legatee died before he got the bequest and his heirs sued the residuary legatee for possession of six acres and for mesne profits. The residuary legatee contended that the legacy of six acres was void on account of uncertainty:

Held, that the legacy was not void on account of uncertainty and that the intention of the testator, as gathered from the document, was that, in the absence of agreement, the lands in question should be partitioned by the Court and six acres out of the 19.40 acres allotted to the legatee who had a vested interest in them as a tenant-in-common along with the residuary legatee.

Per Wallis, C. J.—English rules of construction of Wills are too artificial to apply to the Wills of Hindu agriculturists.

Per Srinivasa Aiyangar, J.—A Will is not void for uncertainty unless it is utterly impossible to put a meaning upon it. M. BHARADWAJ MUDALIAR v. KOLANDAVELU MUDALIAR, 29 M. L. J. 717; 19 M. L. T. 141 —, execution of, determination of—Comparison of signature with 7 or 8 years' previous signature, propriety of—Finding of fact, reversing of

786

319

Will—contd.

Executor—Death of executor—Heir of executor, Locus standi of, to enforce agreements—Letters of Administration—Probate.

An heir of an executor, who has taken the Probate of the Will of a deceased testator and who has died without administering the whole estate, has no locus standi after his death to enforce an agreement entered into by him as such executor with a third person with a view to carry out the intention of the testator.

When such an executor dies, the estate of the testator remains unrepresented until some one takes out Letters of Administration or Probate from the Court. P. DITTA RAM v. RUP CHAND, 152 P. W. R. 1915 802

Gift—Bequest—Interpretation 106

Legacy—Legatee to make good what he owes to the estate before he can take anything.

A legatee is bound to make good to the estate of a testator what he owes to that estate before he can claim payment of a legacy out of the same estate.

Where a fund is being distributed, a party cannot take anything out of the fund until he has made good what he owes to it. It is immaterial whether the amount is actually ascertained or not. If it is not actually ascertained, it must be ascertained in order that the rights of the parties may be adjusted. B. HALAI v. CHATURBHAI GOPALJI, 17 Bom. L. R. 985 500

Residuary clause providing for pooja, etc.—Fund unknown to testator when making Will, whether governed by the Will—Release of claims against estate under mistake, whether binding.

Where in a suit for an account of the administration of the estate and for its administration under the orders of the Court, it appeared that the Will after stating the property which the testator intended to dispose of and dividing it up amongst the various beneficiaries, provided that "the sum which may be left after deducting the above mentioned legacies and such other expenses, shall be utilised in my name without defect for pooja," etc., but that at the time of making the Will, the testator did not know that there was a fund in Court to his credit:

Held, that this fund did not pass under the Will of the deceased but went to the heirs as on an intestacy;

(2) that a release of all his claim against the estate executed by the plaintiff under a mutual mistake was not binding on him. M. KUNTHALAMMAL v. SUTAPRAKASARAYA MUDALIAR, 29 M. L. J. 652; 38 M. 1096 494

Revocation by parol—Actual destruction, whether necessary—Animus revocandi—Omission to make a subsequent Will, effect of—Custom—Intestate succession among Arnins of Lahore Brothers and their sons, rights of, as against widow and daughter's sons.

In cases not governed by the English Law, the Indian Succession Act or any other Statute specifying a particular method of revocation, actual destruction or a formal revocation is not essential to constitute the revocation of a Will.

Under the Muhammadan Law a bequest may be revoked by expressed declaration, oral or written.

Where, therefore, a testator expressed in a Court of Justice his intention of revoking a Will previously made:

Will—concl.

Held, that this was a case of the revocation of Will by parol and that the mere fact that the testator failed to destroy the existing Will or omitted to make a subsequent one, could not have the effect of reviving a Will which had been cancelled.

Among the Arnins of Lahore brothers and their sons are not heirs ab intestato in the presence of the widow and the daughter's sons. P. MIRAN BAKSHI v. MEHR BIRI, 6 P. W. R. 1916 693

Withdrawal of suit—Subsequent suit—Exclusion of time 234

Words and Phrases

"adhin" in road cess 549 amount due 230

appropriate 653

Court in O. XXXIV, r. 8, proviso Civil Procedure Code 240

dispossession 242

directly or indirectly, some claim or question to, or respecting property of like amount or value 295 discontinuance of possession 242 dwelling house 10

encumbrance 801

estate 791

failure to account for money advanced 377 homestead 16

in good faith 322

jeriyati land 852

judgment 955

land 979

legal representative 230, 441 means of gaming 1003

misappropriate 653

money due from him to the company 746

muafi khairati 898

nearest male heir 749 on demand 335, 880

party interested 205

peaceable and open enjoyment 528 person executing the document 867 person interested in the payment of money 255 place 1002

primogeniture 748

rent 852

rules made 924

shop 191

some act showing an intention to determine the lease 211

successors 748

such Court 648

sufficient cause 876

suits for land 581

whose interests are affected by the sale 859 without prejudice 152

would have succeeded in action 14.

Ondh Estates Act (I of 1889) 748

INDIAN CASES.

1915.

VOLUME XXXI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 942 OF 1913.

August 9, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

S. SHUNMUGAM CHETTY—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT
versus

SUBBA REDDI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Specific performance—Contract to sell land—Contract set up different from that proved—Time not of the essence of the contract—Part performance of contract set up—Specific performance of contract proved—Contract with managing member of Hindu family—Sons, whether liable as legal representatives after his death—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint.

A suit for the specific performance of a contract to sell land is not liable to be dismissed merely on the ground that the contract proved in the case is different from the contract alleged in the plaint. [p. 2, col. 2.]

Where time is not of the essence of the contract and especially where there has been a part performance of the contract as alleged by the plaintiff, the Court should allow an amendment of the plaint (if necessary) under Order VI, rule 17 of the Civil Procedure Code, and decree specific performance of the contract as proved. [p. 3, col. 1.]

Where the suit is on a personal contract entered into with the managing member of a Hindu family, it can, on his death, be enforced against the sons and they will be liable, as legal representatives, to fulfil the contract in the place of their father if that contract is, according to Hindu Law, binding on them. But where the sons plead that the sale is not for a legal necessity and that they are not bound by the contract of their father to sell his share in the plaint lands, a Court would be justified in refusing to decree specific performance against them. [p. 3, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Ramnad at Madura, in Appeal Suit No. 687 of 1911, preferred against that of the Subordinate Judge of Ramnad at Madura, in Original Suit No. 250 of 1910.

Mr. R. Kuppasami Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. K. Balamakunda Aiyar and K. Jagannatha Aiyar, for the Respondents.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 27th October 1914 and having stood over for consideration till the 10th November 1914, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiff is the appellant in the second appeal here. He sued for specific performance of a contract whose terms according to the plaint were as under:—

(1) The purchase-money was fixed at Rs. 4,600 on the 11th November 1909 out of which the plaintiff gave an advance of Rs. 200;

(2a) Of the remaining Rs. 4,400, Rs. 900 should be deposited before the Sub-Registrar before whom the sale-deed of the plaint properties had to be registered;

(2b) For the remaining Rs. 3,500, the plaintiff (vendee) was to execute a mortgage-deed to the defendants (vendors) mortgaging the properties that were to be sold, and fixing a period of three years for the repayment of the Rs. 3,500 with interest at $8\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. per annum; and

(3) That the defendants should go to Satur with the title-deeds of the properties on 1st December 1909 and execute the sale-deed and register it.

The lower Appellate Court found that the contract between the plaintiff and the defendants was not on the terms 2 (a) and 2 (b) mentioned above, but that the term was that the plaintiff should pay the Rs. 4,400 (the balance of purchase-money) in cash before the 1st December 1909 and obtain the sale-deed, and that the plaintiff's case as to his being entitled to obtain the sale-deed by merely tendering a hypothecation deed for Rs. 2,500 of the purchase-money repayable in three years was false and that it was due to the default made by the plaintiff in not being ready to pay the whole Rs. 4,400 that the contract was rightly put an end to by the defendants. On these findings, the plaintiff's suit was dismissed with costs.

SHUNMUGAM CHETTY v. SUBBA REDDI.

We must accept the findings of fact by the learned District Judge including the finding that the plaintiff was not ready and willing to pay the Rs. 4,400 on or before the 1st December 1909. But then it is contended by the plaintiff's learned Vakil

(a) that time in this case is not of the essence of the contract; and

(b) that the plaintiff ought to have been at least given a decree for the specific performance of the contract with the terms as found by the District Court.

Neither of the Courts below has definitely found that time was or was not of the essence of the contract in this case. Even if time was not of the essence of the contract, the question remains whether the contract proved in this case being different from the contract alleged in the plaint, the plaintiff is entitled in a Court of Equity to obtain specific performance of the contract proved. This question is by no means free from difficulty. (See paragraphs 634 to 636 of Fry on Specific Performance.) In Mortimer v. Orchard (1), Lord Chancellor Loughborough considered that in strictness the bill ought to have been dismissed when the contract alleged by the bill filed in equity was different from the contract made by the defendants. (In Fry the decision is attributed to Lord Rosslyn.) But the Lord Chancellor gave "the plaintiff credit for building the house" on the property agreed to be leased and specific performance was decreed for the plaintiff according to the contract set up by the answers of the defendants. In Hawkins v. Maltby (2) where one contract was alleged and another proved, the bill was dismissed without prejudice to another bill permitted to be filed. Under the old practice of the Court of Chancery that Court was incapable of permitting an amendment of the record at the hearing except under very unusual circumstances, and hence unless the defendants consented to a decree being passed in the plaintiff's favour according to the contract admitted by them or unless the variation between the contract alleged and that proved consisted in the plaintiff's admission of some terms against himself or the omission of some terms in his own favour or unless such variation was immaterial and unimportant, the Court of Equity had to dismiss the bill. But after the Judicature Acts, the High Court with its larger powers of amendment of records at any stage and ability to deal with the matter once for all would probably allow such amendments as are necessary "for the purpose of determining the real questions in controversy between the parties". Where there had been part-performance, the inclination of Lord Cottingham's mind in Mundy v. Jolliffe (3) seems to have been against dismissing the bill. Their Lordships of the Privy Council seem also to have been influenced by the fact of the part-performance of the contract in Oxford v. Provan (4) in arriving at the conclusion that the real contract between the parties might be ordered to be specifically performed, though the contract alleged in the plaint was different. In the present case the plaintiff alleged in paragraph 5 of the plaint that the properties agreed to be sold were placed in plaintiff's possession on the very date of the contract but the defendants denied it. That question has not been gone into by the lower Courts. Nor was any specific issue raised upon the question whether time was or was not considered of the essence of the contract and whether on the plaintiff's failure to pay the Rs. 4,400 in cash before the 1st December 1909 the defendants were entitled to rescind the contract. This suit was brought

(2) 3 Ch. App. 188; 37 L. J. Ch. 58; 17 L. T. 397; 16 W. R. 209.

(3) (1839) 5 Myl. & Cr. 167; 9 L. J. Ch. 95; 3 Jur. 1045; 41 E. R. 334; 48 R. R. 262.

(4) 5 Moore P. C. (N. S.) 150; 2 P. C. 135; 16 E. R. 472.

(1) 2 Ves. (Jun.) 243; 30 E. R. 615.

SHUNMUGAM CHETTY V. SUBBA REDDI.

on 21st January 1910 within two months of the time fixed for the performance of the contract. Having regard to Order VI, rule 17, of the Civil Procedure Code if time was not of the essence of the contract and the defendants were, therefore, not justified in putting an end to the contract and if especially there had been a part-performance of the contract as alleged by the plaintiff, I would be disposed to allow an amendment of the plaint (if necessary) and give judgment for the plaintiff for specific performance of the contract as proved in the case, allowing damages to the defendants for the plaintiff's failure to pay the Rs. 4,400 within the 1st December 1909. But before deciding the second appeal, it is necessary to obtain findings on the following issues on the evidence on record:—

(1) Was the time mentioned in Exhibit I for the performance of the contract of the essence of the contract?

(2) Was there part-performance of the contract by the plaintiff's having been put in possession of the properties as alleged in the 5th paragraph of the plaint?

Two months' time from the date of the receipt of records is allowed for submission of findings, and ten days for objections.

NAPIER, J.—I concur in the order proposed by my learned brother and reserve the consideration of the principles to be applied until the return of the findings.

In compliance with the above order, the District Judge of Ramnad submitted a negative finding on the first issue and an affirmative finding on the second issue.

This second appeal coming on for final hearing yesterday and to-day after the return of the findings of the lower Appellate Court upon the issues referred by this Court for trial, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—The 2nd defendant's sons, though they obtained their father's interest in the plaint properties by survivorship, might be treated as properly added as his legal representatives for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure in this suit brought on a personal contract by their father and they will also be liable as legal representatives to fulfil that contract in the place of their father if that contract was, according to the Hindu Law, binding on them.

There is nothing in the plaint to indicate that the plaint contract was entered into for any such family necessity as will be binding on the undivided minor sons of the 2nd defendant. The plaintiff ought to have, strictly speaking, made the sons of the 2nd defendant also parties to the suit from the beginning, as they were interested in the properties in respect of which he wished to obtain a sale-deed [see section 27, clause (c) of the Specific Relief Act.]

The plaintiff's learned Vakil argued that it is possible that the plaint lands are the self-acquisitions of the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 and that the 2nd defendant's sons are only entitled to their father's half share as his heirs in the strict sense. There is, no doubt, such a possibility though the probability seems to point the other way.

One of us was to some extent prepared at the former hearing in this case to use the discretionary power of the Court to decree specific performance in the plaintiff's favour even though plaintiff did not prove the particular contract set up by him. But having regard to the further difficulties raised by the contention now put forward by the minor sons of the deceased 2nd defendant who are, having regard to the presumptions of Hindu Law, prima facie, not bound by the contract of their father to sell his share in the plaint lands, we are of opinion that the Court's discretion will be more properly exercised by refusing specific performance in plaintiff's favour.

In the result the lower Appellate Court's decree so far as it dismisses the suit is confirmed but as to the question of costs, we think that the proper order is to direct the parties to bear their respective costs throughout.

Appeal dismissed.

SUBRAMANIA IYER V. VENKATARAMIER.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 2 OF 1914.

August 31, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

K. R. SUBRAMANIA IYER—DEFENDANT—
PETITIONER

VERSUS

VENKATARAMIER AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 9, cl. (2), applicability of—Abatement of suit owing to cause of action not surviving—Plaintiff's legal representative, whether can apply to set aside abatement—Order of abatement a decree—Malicious prosecution of manager of undivided Hindu family—Cause of action, whether survives to remaining co-parceners.

Order XXII, rule 9, clause (2) applies only to cases where an abatement takes place in consequence of an application not having been made "within the time limited by law" to bring in the legal representatives. [p. 4, cols. 1 & 2.]

Where, therefore, a Court treats a suit as having abated owing to the cause of action not surviving, there is no right in the plaintiff's legal representative to apply under rule 9 clause (2) to set aside that abatement. [p. 4, col. 2.]

An order of a Court declaring that a suit has abated owing to the cause of action not surviving is a decree as it determines that the right of the plaintiff ceased to exist on his death. [p. 4, col. 2.]

An appeal against an order passed on one date cannot be treated as one against a decree passed on a different and prior date. [p. 4, col. 2.]

The cause of action for a suit for damages caused by the malicious prosecution of the manager of a joint undivided Hindu family does not, on his death survive to the remaining co-parceners even as regards that portion of the claim which related to the loss incurred by the estate, because the surviving members of an undivided family are not representatives of the deceased member. [p. 5, col. 1.]

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the order of the District Court of Tanjore, in Appeal Suit No. 623 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Valangiman, in Interlocutory Appeal No. 259 of 1912, in Original Suit No. 347 of 1910.

Mr. G. S. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Petitioner.

Messrs. M. O. Parthasarathy Aiyar and T. Natesa Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—We think that when a Court treats a suit as having abated owing to the cause of action not surviving, there is no right in the plaintiff's legal representative to apply under Order XXII, rule 9, clause (2), of the Civil Procedure Code to set aside that abatement. Clause (2) of rule 9 applies only to cases where the abatement takes place in consequence of an application not having been made "within the time limited by law" to bring in the legal representatives. This seems to us to be quite clear from the second sentence in clause (2) of rule 9 which refers to the setting aside of "the abatement" (that is, the abatement mentioned in the 1st sentence) if it be proved that he (the legal representative) was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit.

We think that an order of the Court declaring that a suit has abated owing to the cause of action not surviving is a decree, as it determines that the right of the plaintiff ceased to exist on his death and, therefore, it falls within the definition of a decree, there being no appeal provided for in the Code from that order "as an appeal from an order" [see exception (a) to section (2) of the Civil Procedure Code].

The District Munsif, therefore, acted illegally in entertaining and adjudicating on the incompetent application filed under Order XXII, rule 9, and the District Judge also acted illegally in adjudicating upon such an application on appeal. Both Courts ought to have rejected the petition filed under rule 9 in March 1912, leaving the plaintiff's legal representatives to appeal against the prior order and decree of 19th December 1911 which dismissed the suit as having abated and on the ground that the right to sue did not survive.

We set aside the order of the lower Appellate Court and restore that of the District Munsif dismissing the respondent's application, though the ground of our decision is different from that relied on by the District Munsif.

It is urged that we might treat the appeal to the District Court against the order of the District Munsif on the petition of 7th March 1912 (Interlocutory Appeal No. 259 of 1912) as an appeal against the decree of the District Munsif dismissing the suit passed on 19th December 1911. It is difficult to treat an appeal against an order passed on one date as an appeal against a decree passed on a different and prior date and there is also the fact that the Court-fees paid (8 annas) cannot cover the fees due on the memorandum of appeal against the decree (that is Rs. 37-8). Further, we are of opinion that treating the appeal to the lower Appellate Court as an appeal against the decree of December 1911, the lower Appellate Court was in error in holding that the cause of action for a suit for damages caused by the malicious prosecution of the manager of an undivided Hindu family could survive to the remaining co-parceners even as regards that portion of the claim which related to the loss incurred by the estate in the defence of the criminal case brought against the manager. The cause of action is a single and indivisible one and it is a personal action, though the injury caused to the plaintiff may not be a personal injury in the sense of an injury to the physical or bodily personality. Section 89 of the Probate and Administration Act admittedly cannot be availed of, as the survivors cannot obtain Letters of Administration to the undivided properties and the deceased left no estate, all his interests having lapsed to the other members of the family by survivorship at the moment of his death. Nor could the Legal Representative Suits Act, XII of 1855, apply for three reasons. Firstly, because the wrong which survives to the legal representatives must "have been committed within one year before his death" (that is, the death of the plaintiff) whereas in this case the wrong was committed more than one year before the plaintiff's death; secondly, because section 1 of the Act of 1855 relates to the maintainability of a suit by the representatives and not to the continuation of a suit already instituted and thirdly, because the surviving members of an undivided family are not representatives of the deceased member.

BHANYA V. NAKA.

There will be no order as to the costs of the petition.

Petition allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 34 OF 1914.

December 5, 1914.

Present:—Sir Henry Drake-Brockman, K.T., J. C.

BHANYA—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

NAKA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—

RESPONDENTS.

Jurisdiction—Nature of relief determining factor—

Suit to recover damages for wrongful removal of fruits—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 31.

It is merely the nature of the relief sought that has to be looked to in determining the jurisdiction of a Court. [p. 6, col. 1.]

Bijurji v. Kuvacji, 15 B. 400 and Lakshmanadas v. Anna, 32 B. 356; 6 Bom. L. R. 731, referred to.

The mere fact of a question of title arising does not prevent a suit being cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. [p. 6, col. 1.]

Narayan v. Balaji, 21 B. 248; Pattangunda v. Nilkanth, 20 Ind. Cas. 974; 15 Bom. L. R. 773; 37 B. 675, followed.

Where the plaintiff alleged that he bought the defendant's share of certain fruit produced in a jungle and sued to recover damages for wrongful removal of the same fruit:

Held, that the suit was not one for mesne profits and was triable by a Small Cause Court. [p. 6 col. 1.]

Civil revision against the order of the District Judge, Bhandara, dated the 19th December 1913.

Mr. A. V. Zinjarde, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application under section 115, Civil Procedure Code, for revision of an appellate order passed by the District Judge, Bhandara, deciding that the applicant's plaint was rightly returned to him by the Munsif, Bhandara, for presentation to the local Court of Small Causes.

The plaint was originally presented to the Subordinate Judge, Bhandara, who exercises the powers of a Court of Small Causes in suits cognizable by such a Court and not over Rs. 500 in value. That learned Judge considered the claim to be one for mesne profits and following the decision in Lachman Rao v. Waman Rao (1) returned the plaint.

The claim as laid in the plaint is to recover damages for wrongful removal of mahua and mango fruit from the jungle of Mauzas Pipria and Pitesur, in which the defendant Naka has a share. The plaintiff alleges that he bought Naka's share of the said fruit produced in the Fasli year 1321 (1911-1912 A. D.), but that the other defendants, Sakia and Appa, forcibly removed the produce. He seeks to recover Rs. 150 from Sakia and Appa or in the alternative from Naka.

I agree with the Munsif and the District Judge in thinking that the suit as brought is not one for mesne profits. The decisions in Krishna Prasad v. Maizuddin (2), Annamalai v. Subramanyam (3) and Ramji v. Srinivasa Iyer (4) are clear authorities for the view that Article 31 of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, has no application. Nasir Khan v. Karamat Khan (5), cited by the learned Munsif, was decided under the Act of 1865, but in Krishna Prasad v. Maizuddin (2) it was pointed out that under that Act also a suit for the wrongful reaping and carrying off of the produce of land was cognizable by a Small Cause Court. What has to be looked to in determining the jurisdiction is merely the nature of the relief sought: see Bapuji v. Kavarji (6) and Lakshmandas v. Anna (7). The mere fact of a question of title arising does not prevent a suit being cognizable by a Court of Small Causes: see Narayan v. Balaji (8) and the decision of the Full Bench in Puttangonda v. Nilkanth (9). I may add that it has long been the practice of this Court in applying section 102, Civil Procedure Code, to treat cases of the present kind as so cognizable.

(1) 16 C. P. L. R. 1.

KUNJA LAL BANERJI v. NARSAMBA DEBI.

The suit must be tried by the Subordinate Judge, Bhandara, in the exercise of his Small Cause Court jurisdiction. All costs hitherto incurred will be costs in the case. I allow Rs. 10 as Plender's fee in this Court.

Revision rejected.

(2) 17 C. 707.

(3) 15 M. 298.

(4) 11 Ind. Cas. 31; 35 M. 726; 21 M. L. J. 442; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 180.

(5) 3 A. 168.

(6) 15 B. 400.

(7) 32 B. 356; 6 Bom. L. R. 731.

(8) 21 B. 248.

(9) 20 Ind. Cas. 974; 37 B. 675; 15 Bom. L. R. 773.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.
ORIGINAL CIVIL SUIT NO. 1039 OF 1910.
February 15, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chaudhuri.

KUNJA LAL BANERJI—PLAINTIFF

versus

NARSAMBA DEBI AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS.

Damdapat, rule of, applicable to mortgages under Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882.)

In the Calcutta High Court, the uniform rule has been to disallow as between Hindus interest larger than the amount of principal in making up a mortgage account. [p. 6, col. 2.]

The rule of damdapat is applicable to mortgages under the Transfer of Property Act. [p. 7, col. 1.]

Mr. C. C. Ghose, for the Plaintiff.

JUDGMENT.—This matter arises upon a contention raised on behalf of the plaintiff that the rule of damdapat does not apply to mortgages under the Transfer of Property Act. There was a reference for accounts upon a mortgage decree in this suit in the usual course. Accounts have been taken and the Official Referee has made his report, disallowing interest exceeding the amount of principal applying the rule of Damdapat. It was contended before me on the strength of Madhwa Sidhanta Onahini Nidhi v. Venkataramanjulu Naidu (1) that the rule of Damdapat does not apply. The question has not so far come up for decision in this Court. In In the matter of Hari Lal Mullick (2), the point was raised but not decided. It was held in that case that an order admitting a creditor's claim was tantamount to a decree, and as such put an end to the contractual relationship between the parties. The very same principle has been acted upon in the case of Nanda Lal Roy v. Dharendra Nath Chakravarti (3). In the Bombay case of Jeevanbai v. Manordas Lachmandas (4), the learned Judge held that the rule of damdapat was applicable. I find, however, that in that case 26 Madras was not cited. The current of decisions in the Bombay Court has been that the rule of Damdapat does apply: see the case of Sundarabai v. Jayavant Bhikaji Nadgawda (5).

In this Court the uniform rule, so far as I know, has been to disallow as between Hindus interest larger than the amount of principal in making up a mortgage account. As a Court of first instance I am not prepared to follow, under the circumstances, the Madras case of Madhwa Sidhanta Onahini Nidhi v. Venkataramanjulu Naidu (1). It seems to me that in that case the learned Judges have overlooked the provision of section 4 of the Transfer of Property Act,

(1) 26 M. 662.

(2) 33 C. 1269; 10 C. W. N. 884.

(3) 21 Ind. Cas. 974; 40 C. 710.

(4) 8 Ind. Cas. 649; 35 B. 199 at p. 203; 12 Bom. L. R. 992.

(5) 24 B. 114; 1 Bom. L. R. 551

NUR KHATUN v. SUMAR SAWAYO.

taken with section 37 of the Contract Act. It is conceded in the Madras case that in the Contract Act provision has been made for the application of the rule of dandupat. Section 4 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that the chapters and sections of that Act which relate to contract shall be taken as part of the Contract Act. I, therefore, confirm the report made by the Referee and disallow the contention raised.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 13 OF 1913.

March 19, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C., and Mr. Fawcett, A. J. C.

Musammam NUR KHATUN AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

SUMAR SAWAYO AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code Act (V of 1908), s. 153, O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint—Discretion of Court to permit—New cause of action arising during pendency of suit—Amendment, if permitted.

The plaintiffs sued to recover a share of the estate of A alleging that they were his heirs, but it was found that they were excluded from the inheritance by a nearer cousin who was alive at the time of A's death. [p. 7, col. 2.]

During the pendency of the suit, B one of the defendants, a daughter of A, died and the plaintiffs applied for amendment of the plaint so as to include a claim to a share as heirs of B. The amendment was opposed on the ground of its being based on a new cause of action based on events which occurred subsequently to the suit.

Held, that although the amendment under which the plaintiffs claimed as heirs of B referred to an event which had occurred after the suit had been filed there was nothing in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, forbidding such an amendment. [p. 7, col. 2.]

Bishop Mellus v. Vicar Apostolic of Malabar, 2 M. 295; 3 Ind. Jur. 406; Sakharam Mahadev Dange v. Hari Krishna Dange, 6 B. 113; Sangili v. Mookan, 16 M. 350; 3 M. L. J. 137; Ramanadan Chetti v. Pulikutti Serrai, 21 M. 288 at p. 290; 8 M. L. J. 121, referred to.

Ashidbai v. Abdulla Haji Mahomed, 31 B. 271; 8 Bom. L. R. 652; Turabalishah v. Bibi Naju, 25 Ind. Cas. 863; 8 S. L. R. 28 at pp. 31, 32, distinguished.

There is no absolute rule of law on the subject of amendments. The matter is merely one for the judicial discretion of the Court, which will allow or disallow amendments as the circumstances of the case dictate, only remembering that it should not cause prejudice to the other side and it should, if possible, avoid multiplicity of suits. [p. 8, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decision of the Joint Judge, Sukkur-Larkana.

Mr. Rupchand Bilaram, for the Appellants.
Mr. Parsram Javaharmal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

PRATT, J. C.—The plaintiffs sued to recover a share of the estate of Panjul, alleging that they were heirs as their grandfather, Fazul, was the son of Iso, the great-grandfather of Panjul.

The first Court found that Fazul was a son of Iso, but that the plaintiffs were excluded from the inheritance by a nearer cousin, Safar, who was alive at the time of Panjul's death. But during the pendency of the suit one of the defendants Alim Khatun, a daughter of Panjul, died and the Sub-Judge allowed the plaint to be amended so as to include a claim to a share as heirs of Alim Khatun. The Subordinate Judge then dismissed the claim to a share in Panjul's estate, but decreed the claim to a share in the estate of Alim Khatun. This decree was confirmed on appeal by the District Court.

This appeal is filed by the other heirs and proceeds on two main grounds, (1) that the amendment of the plaint was illegal and (2) that there was no evidence in support of the finding that Fazul was the son of Iso.

Now it is true that the amendment under which the plaintiffs claimed as heirs of Alim Khatun referred to an event which had occurred after the suit had been filed. But the Code does not forbid such an amendment; if it did, there would be many cases in which the plaintiff would be obliged to withdraw his suit and file a fresh suit instead of merely altering the form of his suit to adapt it to subsequent events. For instance, a plaintiff suing for a declaration of title may, if dispossessed pendente lite, amend his plaint and sue for possession, see Bishop Mellus v. Vicar Apostolic of Malabar (1). And in partition suits it is now well established that amendments may be made to meet alteration of shares occurring while the suit is pending, Sakharam Mahadev Dange v. Hari Krishna Dange (2), Sangili v. Mookan (3).

But it is contended that leave to amend on subsequent events should be limited to cases where the plaintiff had a cause of action when the suit was filed. This appears to have been the view taken in Ramanadan Chetti v. Puli.

(1) 2 M. 295; 3 Ind. Jur. 406.

(2) 6 B. 113.

(3) 16 M. 350; 3 M. L. J. 137.

NUR KHATUN v. SUMAR SAWAYO.

kutti Serrai (4). In that case the plaintiff sued to eject trespassers on land which he had leased. The suit was not maintainable owing to the outstanding lease. But that lease determined in the course of the litigation and the plaintiff was not allowed to continue the suit in virtue of the right that accrued to him on the determination of the lease. That was a case under the Code of 1882 and I doubt if it can be supported under the present Code in view of the express injunction in Order VI, rule 17, that all such amendments (i.e., all amendments that work no injustice) shall be made as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the real questions in controversy between the parties.

The case cited in argument is that of Ashid-bai v. Abdulla Haji Mahomed (5) and it does not support the appellants' contention. The plaintiff had sued for partition and failed, as she was proved to have surrendered her rights to the joint property. Another set of heirs who were defendants in the suit then claimed to continue the suit for the ascertainment of their share. This they were not allowed to do, but the Court merely denied their right to have their share ascertained in plaintiff's suit on the ground that their right was a corollary to plaintiff's right and fell with it. But the judgment makes it clear that the Judge considered that he had a discretion in the matter and that he refused to exercise that discretion in favour of the defendants on the facts. The defendants' share was not admitted and the decision of their claim would have involved as the Judge said (page 292), "trying a practically separate suit."

But apart from the cases, I do not understand why the absence of an original cause of action should affect the power of the Court to allow an amendment. When a plaint is presented that discloses no cause of action, the Court is not bound to reject it. It may require it to be amended. This is apparent from section 53 (a) and (b) of the Code of 1882 and the present Code makes no change in this respect for Order VII, rule 11 (a), does not exclude Order VI, rule 17. Hence the Court's power of amendment may supply a cause of action where one does not appear and there is no distinction between what does not appear and what does not exist. If the Court has this power and if it may be exercised at any stage of the proceedings, why should it not be exercised so as to enable a plaintiff, whose original cause of action has failed, to continue the suit on one accruing pendente lite?

There is in truth no absolute rule of law on the subject. The only mandatory provision of the old Code was the proviso to section 53, which forbade an amendment which converted a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character. This has been omitted from the present Code. The matter is merely one for the judicial discretion of the Courts. The new Code has enlarged the limits of that discretion both by section 153 and Order VI, rule 17, and the question has become one rather of fact than of law. The Court will adopt the course that is most convenient in the circumstances of the case and in exercising its discretion it will remember that it should not cause prejudice to the other side and that it should, if possible, avoid multiplicity of litigation. Decided cases, therefore, afford but little help to the determination of questions of amendments.

In the present case the amendment involved no fresh evidence and caused no prejudice to the other side which could not be compensated for in costs, and such compensation has been awarded by the first Court. The Judge was, therefore, we think, right in allowing the amendment instead of referring the plaintiffs to a fresh suit. But even if we thought otherwise, the procedure of the lower Court would be only an irregularity cured by section 99 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The second point raised is purely one of fact. The lower Courts have found that Fazul was the son of Iso and that his mother was married to Iso. The evidence on which the Courts have come to this conclusion is (a) cohabitation of Iso and Fazul's mother, (b) Fazul's sons called Iso's son Kaim 'uncle' (c), intermarriages between Fazul's children and Kaim's children. This is evidence from which the marriage and legitimacy can be legally inferred not only under the special rules of Muhammadan Law if applicable, but also under section 50 of the Indian Evidence Act.

I would, therefore, confirm the decree of the

(4) 21 M. 288 at p. 290; 5 M. L. J. 121.

(5) 8 Bom. L. R. 652; 31 B. 271.

SINGARAVELU PILLAI V. SANTHANA KRISHNA MUDALIAR.

lower Appellate Court and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Fawcett, A. J. C.—I concur.

The wide powers which a Court has under the present Code in respect of granting amendments of the pleadings have already been pointed out by this Court in Turabali-shah v. Bibi Naju (6). And even if it is a good general rule that the rights of the parties in a suit must be ascertained as at the date of the action brought, there is good reason for treating the case of suits for partition as an exception to this general rule. Cf. Ramanadan Chetti v. Pulikutti Servai (4). The Courts do not ordinarily allow partial partition in such cases and endeavour to make it as complete as possible and settle the rights of all the parties interested. It would obviously be inconvenient, if in doing so the Court could not have regard to events occurring subsequent to the date on which the suit is instituted. This differentiates the case from those which Boyd, A. J. C., had in his mind in Turabali-shah v. Bibi Naju (6) when he says the Indian Courts have ordinarily refused amendments in cases where the plaintiff tries to add, by proving some new cause of action, to the dispute which already exists.

Appeal dismissed.

(6) 25 Ind. Cas. 863; 8 S. L. R. 28 at pp. 31, 32.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST APPELLATE ORDER NO. 73 OF 1914.

August 16, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

SINGARAVELU PILLAI—DEFENDANT
No. 11—RESPONDENT—APPELLANT

versus

SANTHANA KRISHNA MUDALIAR—
ASSIGNEE DECREE-HOLDER—PETITIONER
—RESPONDENT.

Execution—Decree passed before the new Civil Procedure Code—Application for order absolute for sale, whether valid—Application dismissed for statistical purposes can be revived.

An application for an order absolute for sale in execution of a mortgage decree, passed before the new Code of Civil Procedure came into force, is an application in execution proceedings and is valid.

Krishna Bar v. Srimati Ranamoyi Debi, 29 Ind. Cas. 120; 19 C. W. N. 470, followed.

An application for execution dismissed merely for statistical purposes, can be revived by a fresh application presented within three years from its dismissal.

Subba Chariar v. Muthuveeram Pillai, 14 Ind. Cas. 264; 36 M. 553; 24 M. L. J. 545, followed.

Civil Miscellaneous Second Appeal against the decree, dated the 31st November 1914, of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kumbakonam, in Appeal Suit No. 821 of 1913, preferred against the order of the Court of the District Munsif of Mayavaram, in Execution Petition No. 82 of 1913, in Original Suit No. 274 of 1906.

Mr. K. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. Muthiah Mudliar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Following the decision Krishna Bar v. Srimati Ranamoyi Debi (1), we hold that the application of 30th October 1909 for an order absolute for sale was a valid application in execution proceedings, as the mortgage decree had been passed before the new Civil Procedure Code came into force.

We agree with the lower Courts that the application of 1909 was dismissed only for statistical purposes. An application in execution so dismissed in 1910 for statistical purposes can be revived within three years of such dismissal. [Subba Chariar v. Muthuveeram Pillai (2).] The present application of December 1912 was, in our opinion, rightly treated as one for continuation of the proceedings in the old application of 1909 and hence no question of limitation arises.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 29 Ind. Cas. 120; 19 C. W. N. 470.

(2) 14 Ind. Cas. 264; 36 M. 553; 24 M. L. J. 545.

RADHA GOBINDA V. NABADWIP CHANDRA PAL.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE NO. 1963
OF 1909.

February 20, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Beacheroff.

RADHA GOBINDA MOZUMDAR—

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

NABADWIP CHANDRA PAL, CHAIRMAN, KUMARKHALI MUNICIPALITY AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

*Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884), ss. 321, 322
(4)—Dwelling house defined.*

A dwelling house is a house with the superadded requirement that it is dwelt in. [p. 12, col. 1.]

Where a holding was ordinarily used as a place of business and was also occupied by the plaintiff while he was in a state of unsound mind and where there was also a cook-shed or cowshed on the property:

Held, that on these facts the holding could not be deemed a dwelling house within the meaning of the first proviso to section 321 of the Bengal Municipal Act. [p. 12, col. 1.]

The effect of amendments of section 322 Bengal Municipal Act considered. [p. 11, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Nadia, dated the 10th August 1909, reversing that of the Additional Mansif, Kushtea, dated the 23rd March 1909.

Babus Kishori La' Sircar and Parish Chandra Roy, for the Appellant.

Babus Hara Kumar Mitra and Rupendra Kumar Mitra, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for cancellation of latrine tax, for refund of the amount realised from him and for damages. The case for the plaintiff is that he has been made liable for latrine tax in respect of holding No. 466 in ward No. 2 within the Kumarkhali Municipality, although that holding was not liable to be assessed with latrine tax under section 321 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884. He seeks to make the Chairman and the Commissioners of the Municipality as also the Municipal Corporation responsible for his claim. The Court of first instance dismissed the suit as against the Chairman and Commissioners personally, but allowed the plaintiff a decree as against the Corporation. Upon appeal by the Municipality, the suit has been dismissed by the District Judge and the cross-appeal of the plaintiff to hold the Chairman and the Commissioners personally liable has also failed. On the present appeal, the judgment of the District Judge has been challenged on the ground that the holding was not liable to be assessed under the proviso to section 322 of the Bengal Municipal Act. The appeal was heard in the first instance by Mr. Justice Sharf-ud-din, who was of opinion that the findings of the District Judge were defective and accordingly remitted an issue to determine whether there is a privy or cesspool within the holding. The District Judge has returned his finding to the effect that there is no privy within the holding. But he has expressed the opinion that upon the question whether there is or is not a cesspool attached to the holding, it is not possible to come to any conclusion, because apparently evidence was not directed to this point. The appeal has now been re-argued before us.

Section 321 of the Bengal Municipal Act provides as follows: When such provision, that is, a provision for the maintenance of an establishment for the cleansing of private privies and cesspools as contemplated by section 320 has been made, the Commissioners may levy fees, to be fixed on such scale with reference to the annual value of the holding, containing dwelling houses or privies within the limits of the Municipality or such part thereof as aforesaid, as the Commissioners may at a meeting from time to time direct. Sub-section (1) of section 322 provides for the levy of the fee payable by the occupier or owner. A proviso is attached to sub-section 4 of section 322 in the following terms: "Provided that no such fee shall be levied in respect of any shop or place of business which does not contain any privies or cess-pools, when a fee under this part is levied from the occupier thereof in respect of his dwelling-house within the same Municipality." There is an apparent contradiction between the terms of the first paragraph of section 321 and the proviso to sub-section 4 of section 322. To explain the precise difficulty, it is necessary to refer briefly to the history of the legislation on the subject. Section 321, as originally framed and incorporated in Act III of 1884, authorised the Commissioners to levy fees in respect of holdings within the limits of the Municipality. The proviso to sub-section (4) of section 322, read with the first paragraph of section 321 in its original form, does not create any difficulty. Section 321 authorises the levy of the fee on all holdings. The proviso to sub-section 4 of section 322 lays down that the fee shall not be levied in certain specified circumstances, that is, if three elements are established, namely, (1) that the holding is a shop or place of business; (2) that it does not contain any privy or cess-pool; and (3) that the occupier thereof has been made liable for latrine fee in respect of his dwelling house within the same Municipality. Section 321 was first amended by section 87 of Act IV of 1894, by which the words "containing dwelling houses" were inserted between the words "value of the holding" and "within the limits." It was apparently overlooked by the Legislature that the result of this amendment was to make the proviso to sub-section (4) of section 322 wholly nugatory. Under section 321 as amended in 1894, the Commissioners were authorised to levy latrine fees only in respect of holdings containing dwelling houses. Consequently, no question could arise as to the exemption of a shop or place of business. Subsequently, by section 15 of the Act II of 1896, section 321 was again amended by the insertion of the words "or privies" between the words "containing dwelling houses" and "within the limits." The section now stands in its amended form. After this second amendment the proviso to sub-section (4) of section 322 is equally superfluous, because under section 321 as finally amended, the Commissioners are authorised to levy latrine fees on holdings containing dwelling houses and holdings containing privies. The latter, that is, holdings containing privies might no doubt include holdings which contain a shop or place of business, but there cannot arise an occasion for exemption of a holding which contains a shop or place of business but does not contain a privy, inasmuch as a holding which does not contain either a dwelling house or a privy cannot at all be assessed under section 321. Be that as it may, there cannot be any occasion for application of the proviso in so far as cess-pools are concerned. We have referred in detail to the terms of the proviso to sub-section (4) of section 322 and contrasted them with those of the first paragraph of section 321 because, in the case before us, at one stage reliance does appear to have been placed upon the proviso. It is plain, however, that the proviso does not touch the present case. The question whether the claim of the plaintiff is well founded or not, must be determined with reference to the terms of section 321. Now, it has been found by the District Judge on remand that the holding in dispute does not contain a privy. Consequently, if latrine fee is sought to be levied, it can be so levied only if it is found that the holding contains a dwelling house, and the question for determination reduces to this, is the holding of this description? The District Judge, who heard the appeal in the first instance, found that there can be no doubt that the holding is used as a place of business. But he added that there was ample evidence that the place was used also as a dwelling house. He took this view, because the witnesses on the side of the plaintiff admitted that there was a cowshed and that the plaintiff himself occasionally resided there while in a state of unsound mind. The District Judge, who heard the appeal after remand, has further found that there are cowsheds on the holding. We have consequently to decide, whether upon these facts, the holding can be regarded as one which contains a dwelling house within the meaning of section 321. It may be added that the plaintiff has admittedly another property which he uses ordinarily as a dwelling house. Now the term "dwelling house" is not defined in the Bengal Municipal Act and we have consequently to attach to the expression its ordinary natural meaning. The learned Vakil for the respondent, however, contended on the authority of the case of Lawson v. Fraser (1) that as the plaintiff occasionally sleeps in a room in this holding, it may be deemed a dwelling house. An examination of the decision mentioned does not bear out this contention. In that case, there was a dwelling house on the property and the real question in controversy was whether the petitioner inhabited that dwelling house. With a view to the determination of this question, the Court held that the fact that he had a building and occasionally slept therein, justified the view that the dwelling house was inhabited by him. This decision consequently does not assist the contention of the respondent. But, what is meant by a dwelling house? Clearly, it is a house with the superadded requirement, that it is dwelt in. In the case of Forl v. Barnes (2), it was held that a house in which a person occupied rooms, though he was absent occasionally on duty, might be properly described as his dwelling house. The meaning of the expression "dwelling house" was also considered in the case of Riley v. Reid (3) where Kelly, C. B., observed that the proper interpretation of the expression "to dwell" is "to live and occupy for all the purposes of life". In the case before us, all that has been found is that the plaintiff uses the place for residence while he is in a state of unsound mind. The circumstance that there is a cookshed or cowshed on the property, plainly does not indicate that it is a dwelling house. There may be a cookshed or a cowshed on a property which is not a dwelling house but which is merely a place of business. On the facts found, we are clearly of opinion that the holding in question cannot be deemed a dwelling house within the meaning of the first proviso to section 321 of the Bengal Municipal Act. The conclusion follows that the latrine fee has been levied in contravention of the Statute.

RADHA GOBINDA V. NABADWIPS CHANDRA PAL.

(1) (1881) 8 Ireland 55.

KRISHNACHARYA v. ANTHAKKI.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the District Judge set aside and that of the Court of first instance restored with costs both here and in the Court of Appeal below.

Appeal allowed.

(2) (1885) 55 L. J. Q. B. 24; Colt. 396; 16 Q. B. D. 254; 53 L. T. 675; 34 W. R. 78; 50 J. P. 37.

(3) 4 Ex. D. 100; 27 W. R. 414; 48 L. J. Ex. 437.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2355 OF 1913.

August 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and
Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

KRISHNACHARYA—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

ANTHAKKI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—

RESPONDENTS.

Mulgeni lease—Lessee, whether can cut trees grown spontaneously or by him—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 108 (h).

A mulgeni lessee in South Canara is not entitled to cut trees standing at the date of the grant. [p. 12 col. 2.]

Gangamma v. Bommakka, 5 Ind. Cas. 437; 7 M. L. T. 231; 33 M. 253, followed.

But the landlord has no title to the trees planted by the lessee after the commencement of the lease or to trees and plants of spontaneous growth. The lessee can remove such trees provided he restores the land at the end of his lease period in as good a condition as he received it at the beginning. [p. 13, col. 1.]

Vasudevan Nambudripad v. Valia Chathu Achan, 24 M. 47 (F. B.); 10 M. L. J. 321; Ruttonji Edulji Shet v. Collector of Tanja, 11 M. L. A. 295; 10 W. R. 13 (P. C.); 2 Sar. P. C. J. 292; 20 E. R. 113, referred to.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of South Canara, in Second Appeal No. 131 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Mangalore, in Original Suit No. 363 of 1910.

Mr. K. Ramanath Shenai, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Sitarama Rao, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This suit was brought to restrain a mulgeni tenant from cutting down the trees in his holding. These include three classes of trees, viz., (1) trees in existence at the grant of the lease, (2) trees planted by the tenant and (3) trees of spontaneous growth. In the District Munsif's Court the plaintiff's Pleader conceded that he had no title to the trees planted by the lessee after the commencement of the lease. In this Court even this position is contested, but if we rely upon the analogy of the Transfer of Property Act, as it was held in Gangamma v. Bommakka (1) that Courts were entitled to do, section 108, clause (h), is against the appellant's contention and no direct authority has been cited for a different view.

The decision in Gangamma v. Bommakka (1) is conclusive on the point that a mulgeni lessee in South Canara is not entitled to cut trees standing at the date of the grant. The plaintiff failed to prove that the defendant had sold or felled any of such trees. Therefore, an injunction was properly refused.

There remains the case of trees and plants of spontaneous growth. In other (1) 5 Ind. Cas. 437; 33 M. 253; 7 M. L. T. 231.

KUSADHAJ BHAKTA v. BROJA MOHAN BHAKTA.

parts of the Presidency by section 12 of the Madras Estates Land Act the Legislature has, as regards ryots possessing occupancy rights in land situated in estates, put trees planted by the ryot and those that grow naturally upon the holding on the same footing and has recognised the ryot's right to enjoy and cut them. In Malabar under the Malabar Compensation for Improvements Act compensation is allowed to the tenants at the rate of $\frac{1}{3}$ ths of the market value for trees spontaneously grown during the tenancy and the cost of protecting and maintaining such trees grown prior to the commencement of the tenancy is to be paid to the tenants. In Vasudevan Nambudripad v. Valia Chathu Achan (2), the right of kanomdars was recognised to remove trees which they have planted during the period of their occupation. This decision does not decide the right even of kanomdars in Malabar to remove trees of spontaneous growth, but it is worthy of notice that when an argument was advanced that trees exhaust the ground and that this was a reason for the landlord being more interested in their growth than the tenant, this suggestion did not meet with the approval of the Full Bench. The only obligation on the part of the tenant that they recognised was that he should restore the land at the end of his lease period in as good a condition as he received it at the beginning. The observation in Ruttonji Edulji Shet v. Collector of Tanna (3), that the trees upon the land were part of the land and the right to cut down and sell them was incidental to the proprietorship of the land, had reference to trees standing on the land when the lease was made. Mr. Ramanath Shenai for the appellant has not been able to advance any sound reasons for vesting in the mulgar the entire right to trees that have sprung up without any effort or expenditure on his part. Nor has the appellant adduced any evidence of custom or usage by which he is entitled to such growth. The lease is silent on the point. We consider that if landlords were to have the power to prevent their tenants from clearing the ground of shrubs and undergrowth, this would greatly interfere with the tenants' use of the land for agriculture. Even in England the property in bushes is in the tenant, vide Berriman v. Peacock (4). In this country it may well be that on leasing land capable of growing timber the lessee may intend to raise and cut timber for sale as firewood, etc., and so long as the trees growing on the land at the date of the lease are not interfered with and the nature of the holding is not changed, it is difficult to see why the tenant should not be entitled to any benefits conferred on him by nature. We, therefore, dismiss this second appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(4) (1832) 2 M. & Scott. 524; 9 Bing. 384; 2 L. J. C. P. 23; 131 Eng. Rep. 600; 35 R. R. 568.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1933 OF 1914.

July 21, 1915.

Present:—Sir Lawrence Jenkins, Kt., Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Holmwood.
KUSADHAJ BHAKTA PRINCIPAL DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

BROJA MOHAN BHAKTA, MINOR, BY HIS MOTHER AND GUARDIAN, Srimati
RASHMANI DASSI—PLAINTIFF—

RESPONDENT.

Compromise decree, suit to set aside—Mistake, if valid ground—Remedy—Amendment of decree—Fresh suit, not maintainable—Fraud, suit to set aside decree on ground of, maintainability of.

A contract of the parties is nonetheless a contract because, there is superadded to it the command of a Judge. It still is a contract of the parties, and as the contract is capable of being rectified for an appropriate mistake so, as the necessary consequence, is the decree which is merely a more formal expression given to that contract. [p. 14, cols. 1 & 2.]

A suit to set aside a decree obtained after contest and giving accurate expression to the Court's intention, is not maintainable. [p. 14, col. 2.]

Per Holmwood, J.—Where there is any divergence between the decree and the judgment, the matter is for amendment of the decree and not for a fresh suit to set aside the decree. [p. 14, col. 2.]

Obiter dictum:—(Per Jenkins, C. J.)—A decree can be set aside on the ground of fraud, if of the required character. [p. 14, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, 3rd Court of Midnapore dated the 7th April 1914, affirming that of the

(2) 24 M. 47 (F. B.); 10 M. L. J. 321.

(3) 11 M. L. A. 295; 10 W. R. 13 (P. C.); 2 Sar. P. C. J. 292; 20 E. R. 113.

KUSADHAR BHAKTA P. BROJA MOHAN BHAKTA.

Munsif, 1st Court, at Tamlook, dated the 22nd February 1913.

Babus Bipin Behari Ghose, Satindra Nath Roy and Manmatha Nath Paul, for the Appellant.

Babu Jyotish Chandra Hazra, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

JENKINS, C. J.—This appeal arises out of a suit to set aside a decree in a previous suit, on the ground that the Judge in passing the decree in that previous suit made a mistake. As an authority for this suit and its competence we have been referred to the decision in the case of Jogeswar Atha v. Ganga Bishnu Ghattack (1). It may be that a superficial examination of that decision gives an appearance of authority for the proposition which the respondent advances before us and apparently has advanced with success in both the lower Courts.

Already it has become noticeable that there has been a crop of cases in this Presidency in which it has been sought to set aside previous decrees on the ground of fraud. The readiness to find fraud encourages this class of litigation and the new departure has been a misfortune. If we encourage the idea that the alleged mistake of a Judge is to furnish a disappointed litigant with a fresh starting point for keeping his opponent in Court, then the misfortune would be gravely increased to the public detriment. There must be some end to litigation. I have said there may appear to be some authority for this suit in the case I have mentioned. But it is apparent from the judgment in that case that there was no intention of proceeding beyond the English authority. No instance has been brought to our notice when a suit to set aside or rectify a decree in a previous suit has succeeded on the ground that the Judge was mistaken though his decree accurately expressed his intention. The only case to which reference was made in the case of Jogeswar Atha v. Ganga Bishnu Ghattack (1) was a decision of an English Court, where the decree was one passed not after contest but on agreement between the parties. But that class of case is governed by a principle that has no application here. It is well settled that a contract of the parties is nonetheless a contract because there is superadded to it the command of a Judge. It still is a contract of the parties, and as the contract is capable of being rectified for an appropriate mistake so, as the necessary consequence, is the decree which is merely a more formal expression given to that contract. I am unable to draw from those decisions of which Haddersfield Banking Company Limited v. Henry Lister and Son Limited (2) are typical the conclusion that a decree after contest and giving accurate expression to the Court's intention can be set aside. There is no analogy between the two cases. In the one the decree is set aside merely because the agreement on which it was founded was set aside. In the other case this consideration has no application. It is not as if the litigant is without remedy. Our Code provides ample means without a fresh suit whereby the litigant can obtain the correction of error. If a fresh suit can be started on the ground placed before us here, then I can see no end to litigation. In holding as I do that this suit does not lie, I am making no new departure. I am merely following previous decisions of this Court and in particular the decision of Sir Comer Petharam in Mahomed Golab v. Mahomed Sulliman (3), the decision of a Division Bench in the case of Sulho Misser v. Golab Singh (4) and finally, the decision of a third Division Bench in the case of Bhonda Singh v. Dowlat Roy (5).

It is not suggested in this case that there was any fraud. Had that been so then the matter would have been different, for it is recognized that a decree can be set aside on the ground of fraud if of the required character.

In my opinion the decree under appeal is erroneous and should be set aside and the suit dismissed with costs throughout.

HOLMWOOD, J.—I entirely agree with what has fallen from the learned Chief Justice. I desire to add that I do not think it matters whether the decree accurately expresses the intention of the judgment, as if there is any divergence between the decree and the judgment, as has been thrown out at one part of the argument before us, then this is a matter for amendment. As long as the Court has

(2) (1895) 2 Ch. D. 273; 64 L. J. Ch. 523; 12 R. 331; 72 L. T. 703; 43 W. R. 567.

(3) 21 C. 612.

(4) 3 C. W. N. 375.

(5) 14 Ind. Cas. 93 15 C. L. J. 675.

(1) 8 C. W. N. 473.

SESHAIYANGAR V. VENKATACHALAM CHETTIAR.

jurisdiction and authority to decide a matter, as it has decided it, it cannot be re-opened by a suit.

I desire to emphasise all that has fallen from the Chief Justice with regard to the disastrous consequences which will follow by opening any fresh door of litigation, such as appears to be indicated in this case.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 693 OF 1914.

August 27, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

G. SESHAIYANGAR—DEPONDANT NO. 1—
PETITIONER

versus

A. B. VENKATACHALAM CHETTIAR—

DECREE-HOLDER—RESPONDENT.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 16 (2) (b), 43—Application for arrest of insolvent debtor—Notice to show cause against re-arrest—Annulment of adjudication, how effected—Order of arrest by Subordinate Judge exercising Small Cause Court powers—Revision.

A Judge sitting in the Small Cause Court cannot divest himself of his powers as a Judge of that Court and immediately proceed to dispose of an oral application made to him to exercise his powers under section 16, clause 2 (b), of the Provincial Insolvency Act. [p. 15, col. 2.]

When a debtor is declared an insolvent, then so long as the order of adjudication subsists and is not annulled, he cannot be deprived of the immunity conferred upon insolvents by the insolvency Act, unless notice has been served upon him to show cause why he should not be arrested. [p. 16, col. 1.]

There will be no annulment of adjudication once made unless the procedure prescribed in sections 42, 44 and 45 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is followed. The mere fact that proceedings were contemplated under section 43 is not enough to show that the order of adjudication is annulled. [p. 16, col. 1.]

Where on an application being made in execution of a decree of the Small Cause Court to arrest the petitioner, who had already been adjudicated an insolvent, the Subordinate Judge directed the arrest, acting in the exercise of his powers as a Small Cause Court Judge:

Held, that no appeal lay to the District Court against the order made by the Subordinate Judge as a Judge of the Court of Small Causes and the only remedy was by way of revision to the High Court. [p. 15, col. 1.]

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Subordinate

Judge of Kumbakonam, in Execution Appeal No. 2135 of 1913, in Execution Petition No. 1634 of 1913, in Small Cause Suit No. 916 of 1910.

Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, for the Petitioner.

Mr. T. Ranga Ramanujachariar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary objection is taken by Mr. Ranga Ramanujachariar that this petition does not lie, as the proper remedy of the petitioner was to have filed an appeal to the District Court against the order of the Subordinate Judge. The Subordinate Judge in directing the arrest of the petitioner acted in the exercise of his powers as a Small Cause Court Judge. The plea of the petitioner was that so long as the insolvency proceedings were undisposed of, he was not liable to be arrested in execution of the decree of the Small Cause Court. The Sub-Judge dealt with this objection as a Judge of the Court of Small Causes. Its correctness can be decided only by a Court to which the Small Cause Court is subordinate and that Court is the High Court. Therefore the petition was rightly filed in this Court.

On the merits.

This was an application in execution of a decree of the Small Cause Court to arrest the petitioner who had been adjudicated an insolvent already. Proceedings were taken under section 43 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, but, apparently on the ground that they may not be successful, they were dropped. While ordering execution of the decree by directing the arrest of the petitioner, the Judge was exercising his powers as a Judge of the Small Cause Court. Mr. Ranga Ramanujachariar argued that in directing the arrest of the petitioner the Judge really exercised the exceptional powers given to him by the penultimate clause of section 16, clause 2 (b), of the Provincial Insolvency Act. I am doubtful whether a Judge sitting in the Small Cause Court can divest (himself) of his powers as a Judge of that Court and immediately proceed to dispose of an oral application made to him to exercise his powers under section 16, clause 2 (b). Even if such an application had been made, though there is nothing on the record to show that it was made, before the immunity given in the Insolvency Act is taken away from a person, there must be a notice to him to show cause why he should not be arrested. As there are no indications in the proceedings before me to show that such a notice was given and that the petitioner had an opportunity of showing cause, I cannot accede to the contention of the learned Vakil for the counter-petitioner that the Subordinate Judge directed the arrest of the petitioner under section 16, clause 2 (b).

DINA NATH NAG V. SASHI MOHAN DEY.

The main contention relates to the question whether the adjudication proceedings against the insolvent had come to an end, thereby depriving the petitioner of the protection he had. The view taken by the Subordinate Judge is this: that as the proceedings under section 43 of the Insolvency Act were contemplated by implication, the adjudication had been put an end to. I am unable to follow the reasoning. The Act provides various modes by which an adjudication can be annulled. Sections 42, 44 and 45 provide the procedure to be adopted for annulling an adjudication once made. None of the proceedings contemplated in those sections were adopted in this case: and I am unable to agree with the Subordinate Judge that the mere fact that proceedings were contemplated under section 43 is evidence of the Subordinate Judge having annulled the order of adjudication. As the adjudication must be deemed to have been subsisting, the arrest of the petitioner was illegal. I must, therefore, set aside the order of the Subordinate Judge; and as I am informed that the prisoner has undergone imprisonment no further order is necessary. I make no order as to costs in this Court.

Petition allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2724 OF 1912.

March 29, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Newbould.

DINA NATH NAG AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—APPELLANTS

versus

SASHI MOHAN DEY TARAFDAR—

PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 182—Homestead, meaning of—Land used for agricultural purposes—Land used for the purpose of gathering and storing thereon the crops raised on adjacent lands.

In order to make section 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applicable, it is not essential that the homestead should be in the same village or be held under the same landlord as the holding of the raiyat. [p. 17, col. 2.]

The expression 'homestead' as used in the section denotes land on which a raiyat has his homestead, that is, land used by him for residential purposes. The section is not applicable where it is established that the land is not used by the raiyat as his homestead; it is not sufficient to show that the character of the land is such as would justify its use as a homestead. [p. 17, col. 2.]

The provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act are applicable to all lands used for agricultural purposes, and are not restricted to such lands alone as are actually under cultivation. [p. 17, col. 2; p. 18, col. 1.]

Where the defendants were *raiya*s in respect of lands in the vicinity of the land in dispute which they had taken with a view to gather and store thereon the crops raised on the adjacent lands actually cultivated by them:

Held, that the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act applied, and the defendants were *raiya*s also in respect of the disputed land. [p. 18, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Mymensingh, dated the 9th July 1912, affirming that of the Munsif of Tangail, dated the 5th March 1912.

Babun Nilmadhub Bose and Mukund Nath Roy, for the Appellants.

Babu Ram Chunder Mozumdar and Dr. Nares Chunder Sen Gupta, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the defendants in an action in ejectment. The plaintiff seeks to eject the defendants on the ground that they were tenants of the disputed land and that their tenancy has been terminated by service of notice to quit under the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. The Courts below have decreed the suit. Upon appeal to this Court, the defendants have contended that they are *raiya*s and cannot be ejected except in conformity with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. This contention is based on a twofold ground, namely, first, that the disputed land is the homestead of the defendants, governed by the provisions of section 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; and secondly, that if the land is not their homestead, it is held by them as raiyats and for agricultural purposes. It may be premised here that the defendants hold as raiyats parcels of land in the neighbourhood; those parcels, however, lie in a different village and are held by them under a landlord other than the plaintiffs. The previous history of the land in dispute has not been very successfully investigated. We are told that it was used as a homestead by one Ram Kani Seal; but no information is available as to whether he was a raiyat or not. In 1904, he transferred the land to the defendants. Since then, the land has been used by the defendants, not as their homestead, but only to gather and store the crops raised by them in the neighbouring fields. The plaintiff-respondent asserts that the holding of Ram Kani Seal was non-transferable and that the defendants did not acquire a valid title by their purchase; this may be assumed to be correct for the purpose of the present argument. The position consequently is that the defendants are tenants in respect of the disputed land, as after their purchase rent was accepted from them by one of two joint landlords; and the land in suit represents only a half share of the entire holding. What, then, is the status of the defendants?

DINA NATH NAG v. SASHI MOHAN DEY.

The first branch of their contention is that this is homestead land governed by the provisions of section 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. That section is in these terms: "When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom or usage, and, subject to local custom or usage, by the provisions of this Act applicable to land held by a raiyat." With regard to this section it has been ruled by this Court in the cases of Kripa Nath Chakrabutty v. Sheikh Anu (1), Protap Chandra Das v. Biseswar Pramanick (2), Golam Mowla v. Abdool Sowar Mondul (3) and Harihar Chattopadhyaya v. Dinu Bera (4) that in order to make section 182 applicable, it is not essential that the homestead should be in the same village or be held under the same landlord as the holding of the raiyat. This position has not been controverted by the respondent and has been made the foundation of an argument by the appellants that even though the land is not used as a homestead by the raiyat, section 182 applies on proof that the land is capable of use as a homestead. The argument in substance is that we should read "any homestead" for the expression "his homestead" and "any holding" for "his holding", to justify the conclusions adopted in the cases mentioned. In our opinion there is no foundation for this contention. To substitute for the expressions "his homestead" and "his holding" the phrases "any homestead" and "any holding" respectively would obviously be to undertake legislation beyond the competence of a Court of Justice. The cases on which reliance has been placed were decided in view of the fact that there is nothing in the language of section 182 to justify its restriction to cases where the homestead and the holding are situated in one village and are held under one landlord. That this was the reasoning on which the principle in question was adopted is clear from the decision in Harihar Chattopadhyaya v. Dinu Bera (4). We are further not prepared to accede to the contention of the appellants that the expression 'homestead' is used in section 182 as a generic term descriptive of a particular kind of land; on the other hand, we think, it denotes land on which a raiyat has his homestead, that is, land used by him for residential purposes. In our opinion, it is plain that section 182 is not applicable where it is established that the land is not used by the raiyat as his homestead; it is not sufficient to show that the character of the land is such as would justify its use as a homestead. The first branch of the contention of the appellants entirely fails.

The second branch of the contention of the appellants is that the land in suit is held by them as raiyats. It is plain that the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act are applicable to all lands used for

(4) 10 Ind. Cas. 139; 14 C. L. J. 170; 16 C. W. N. 536.

(1) 4 C. L. J. 332; 10 C. W. N. 944.

(2) 9 C. W. N. 416.

(3) 9 Ind. Cas. 922; 13 C. L. J. 255.

MUTHAN V. PUNIAKOTI MUDALIAR.

agricultural purposes, and are not restricted to such lands alone as are actually under cultivation. This view is supported by a long series of decisions, amongst which may be mentioned the cases of Fitzpatrick v. Wallace (5), Latifur Rahman v. A. H. Forbes (6) and Hedayet Ali v. Kulanand Singh (7). In the case last mentioned, the question arose, whether land leased for grazing purposes was governed by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It was pointed out that the Bengal Tenancy Act would be applicable if it was found that the grazing was in relation to cultivation, which is the primary purpose for which a raiyat acquires the right to hold land. In the case before us, the defendants are raiyats in respect of lands in the vicinity of the land in suit, which they have taken with a view to gather and store thereon the crops raised on the adjacent lands actually cultivated by them. This gathering and storage of crops raised by them is clearly a purpose ancillary to cultivation. Where, as here, land has been let out for a purpose like this, it is impossible to hold that the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act do not apply; the inference is thus irresistible that the defendants are raiyats also in respect of the disputed land. On behalf of the respondents it has been strenuously contended, however, that there is nothing to indicate that the land was actually let out for this purpose. But we have the undeniable fact that ever since the defendants came into occupation of this land, they have used it for this purpose without protest by their landlord. The landlord is in fact in an inextricable difficulty. If it is his case that the land was let out as a homestead to raiyats, though no doubt they are raiyats in respect of other lands in a different village under other landlords, the provisions of section 182 are applicable. If, on the other hand, the land was let out, as it apparently was, to raiyats for a purpose ancillary to cultivation, the grantees are raiyats in respect of the land. In either view, the defendants are raiyats and can be ejected only in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The plaintiff has not shown that he is entitled to eject them under the Bengal Tenancy Act. His case, on the other hand, throughout has been that the tenancy of the defendants is governed by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, which, in the view we take, are inapplicable as is plain from section 117.

The result is that this appeal is allowed and the suit dismissed with costs in all the Courts.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 727 OF 1913.

August 5, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

MUTHAN alias MUTHUKRISHNA

MUDALI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

PUNIAKOTI MUDALIAR AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Self-acquisition by one member—Presumption.

Where one member of a joint Hindu family acquires property without the aid of ancestral or joint family funds, the property acquired will, in the absence of any indication of intention to the contrary, be owned by all as joint family property. But it may be shown that the person acquiring it treated it as his separate property. [p. 19, col. 1.]

Sa. Narasimham Maistri v. Narasimham Maistri, 25 M. 149 at p. 156; 11 M. L. J. 353; Gopalasami Chetty v. Arunachalam Chetty, 27 M. 32; Muniswami Chetty v. Maruthammal, 7 Ind. Cas. 176; 34 M. 211; 8 M. L. T. 124; 20 M. L. J. 687; (1910) M. W. N. 233; Madhavaiya Chetty v. Damodaram Chetty, 17 Ind. Cas. 347; 12 M. L. T. 240; (1912) M. W. N. 972, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of North Arcot, in Appeal Suit No. 497 of 1912 preferred against that of the District Munsif of Ranipet, in Original Suit No. 5 of 1912.

Mr. V. Narasimha Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Messrs T. Narasimha Aiyangar and A. Srirangachariar, for the Respondents.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 21st October 1914 before Ayling and Hannay, J., the Court delivered the following (5) 11 W. R. 231; 2 B. L. R. 317.

(6) 5 Ind. Cas. 783; 14 C. W. N. 372.

(7) 20 Ind. Cas. 332; 17 C. L. J. 411.

ABDUL GANI C. MAKBUL ALI.

JUDGMENT.—The aspect of the case presented to us on appellant's behalf is that dealt with by the District Judge in paragraph No. 4 of his judgment. He finds that the Manthangal lands were the self-acquisitions of Rajagopala Mudali (brother of the 1st defendant) and that the other suit lands were acquired by Rajagopala Mudali and the 1st defendant out of the profits of their contracts after their father's death without the aid of ancestral or joint family funds. This finding cannot be questioned in second appeal, but the appellant's Vakil argues that the District Judge is wrong in assuming that the lands thus acquired are not part of the joint family estate.

Bhashyam Ayyangar, J., in Sudorsanam Maisiri v. Narasimulu Maistri (1) says: "But, if, as supposed, the property was acquired by all the members of the undivided family by their joint labour, it would, in the absence of any indication of intention to the contrary, be owned by them as joint family property and in that case, their male issue, who, by their birth, become members of such undivided family, necessarily acquire a right by birth in such property". This proposition of law has been accepted in Gopalasami Chetty v. Arunachalam Chetty (2), Muniswami Chetty v. Maruthammal (3) and in Madharaiya Chetty v. Damodaram Chetty (4) and cannot now be questioned.

It is, of course, open to the respondents to show that the property was treated by the persons acquiring it as their separate property; and any indications either way would have to be considered. But this is a question of fact which has not been gone into by either of the lower Courts.

The presumption is in the opposite direction to that indicated by the learned District Judge.

We must call for a finding on the following issue:—

"Were the plaint properties treated as their separate property by the 1st defendant and Rajagopala Mudali or were they thrown into the family joint stock?"

Additional evidence may be adduced; the finding should be submitted within two months and seven days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment of the Court, the District Judge of North Arcot submitted a finding negative on the first part and affirmative on the second part of the issue.

This second appeal coming on this day for final hearing after the return of the above finding of the lower Appellate Court upon the issue referred to it for trial, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—We accept the finding, set aside the decree of the District Judge and remand the appeal for disposal according to law after deciding the other issues. Costs will be provided for in the revised decree.

Appeal allowed; Suit remanded.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 636 OF 1912.

July 28, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Holmwood and Mr. Justice Chapman.

ABDUL GANI CHAUDHURY—PLAINTIFF
APPELLANT

versus

MAKBUL ALI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Revenue Sale Law (Act XI of 1859), s. 37 Proviso—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885)—Raiyats at fixed rates—Ordinary occupancy raiyats—Enhancement of rent—Protection, nature of.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates are primarily the persons referred to in the proviso to section 37 of Act XI of 1859, and the protection provided by the section is extended under the Bengal Tenancy Act to all classes of occupancy raiyats. [p. 20, cols. 1 & 2.]

A person who takes the tenancy originally as a raiyat at fixed rates may not thereby acquire an occupancy right but a man who has already obtained occupancy rights cannot, by obtaining a grant of fixed rent, lose that occupancy right. [p. 20, col. 2.]

Quere:—Whether, in view of the protection offered by section 37 of Act XI of 1859, a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue can enhance the rent of an occupancy raiyat? [p. 20, col. 2.]

(1) 25 M. 149 at p. 156; 11 M. L. J. 353.

(2) 27 M. 32.

(3) 7 Ind. Cas. 176; 34 M. 211; 8 M. L. T. 124; 20 M. L. J. 687; (1910) M. W. N. 233.

(4) 17 Ind. Cas. 347; 13 M. L. T. 240; (1912) M. W. N. 972.

ABDUL GANI V. MAKBUL ALI.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, 1st Court of Chittagong, dated the 11th January 1912, reversing that of the Munsif, 3rd Court of Chittagong, dated the 10th July 1911.

Babus Probodh Kumar Das and Khitish Chandra Chuckerbutty (for Babu Amulya Charan Chatterjee), for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiff to have the holding of the defendant declared such a holding as can be annulled under section 37 of Act XI of 1859.

It appears that the plaintiff is the purchaser of the rights of defendant No. 5, who purchased the taraf at a sale for arrears of revenue. The defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are persons whom the Judge found to have cultivated the land themselves for 30 years before 1895, when they obtained pottah as *raiya*s at fixed rates. That pottah, of course, conferred upon them higher privileges than that of ordinary occupancy *raiya*s, but it certainly did not take away the occupancy right which they had already acquired, for they must have acquired that right prior to the Bengal Tenancy Act, not that in our opinion it would make any difference. The protection of occupancy *raiya*s at fixed rates which is referred to in section 37 of Act XI of 1859 is not one of the ordinary exceptions in that section. It is a proviso expressing the determination of the Legislature that no purchaser shall disturb any of the permanent tenants on the land who are in actual occupation of the soil and are cultivating it. The term occupancy *raiya*s at fixed rent meant in the year 1859 apparently the successors of *kademi khud kasht raiya*s in the Regulations, while the ordinary *khud kasht raiya*s became occupancy *raiya*s. The intention of the Legislature, therefore, was that these *kademi khud kasht raiya*s should not only not be liable to ejectment, but should not be liable to any enhancement of rent; and to these persons have succeeded what the Bengal Tenancy Act now classes as "*raiya*s holding at fixed rates." *Raiya*s holding at fixed rates, therefore, are primarily the persons referred to in the proviso to section 37 of Act XI of 1859. But this doctrine of protection has been extended by recent rulings of this Court to ordinary occupancy *raiya*s, and the judgment of Mr. Justice Mitra which is the leading case [Sarat Chandra Roy Chowdhry v. Asiman Bibi (1)] on this point is frequently followed in this Court and has never been dissented from. The protection, therefore, is extended under the Bengal Tenancy Act from these *kademi khud kasht raiya*s or *raiya*s at fixed rates to all classes of occupancy *raiya*s; and the decision of Mr. Justice Mookerjee upon which the Chief Justice did not express any opinion in the case of Bhutnath Naskar v. Monmotho Nath Mitra (2), which is based upon a technical interpretation of section 160 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, can have nothing whatever to do with the question before us.

It may be argued that a person who takes the tenancy originally as a raiya at fixed rates does not thereby acquire an occupancy right. But that does not imply that a man who has already obtained occupancy rights can by obtaining a grant of fixed rent lose that occupancy right. That appears to us to be neither in accordance with equity or common sense nor the wording of the law.

We must, therefore, hold that the defendants were precisely in the position of those tenants who are mentioned in the proviso to section 37, and that not only are they protected but nothing in the law can be construed to entitle the purchaser to eject them or to enhance their rent. That is the law, and to argue that the purchaser loses a valuable right, namely, the right of enhancement which he would have in the case of ordinary occupancy rights is to misconstrue the whole effect of the section itself, which is in terms directed against enhancement. If the ruling of Mr. Justice Mitra is correct, an occupancy raiya in the ordinary sense of the word is also protected by that section. It is doubtful whether in that case the purchaser can enhance his rent, although the Bengal Tenancy Act itself provides for the enhancement of the rent of an ordinary occupancy raiya. However, this is not the question which we have to deal with here.

Another question which was argued was

(1) 8 C. W. N. 601; 31 C. 725.

(2) 2 Ind. Cas. 675; 11 C. L. J. 98; 13 C. W. N. 1026.

KANNAYYA V. RAMANNA.

with regard to the Judge's view of the khatian of 1898, in which the defendants are recorded as kaimi madhya satyadhikari or intermediate tenure-holders at fixed rent. It was faintly urged that the presumption arising from this record could not be rebutted by evidence of what happened before the record was made. It appears to us that the findings of the Judge as to what happened before the record was made, prove conclusively that the record was wrong; for these men had been cultivating this land with their own hands for 30 years when they obtained the pottah describing them as kaimi rights. The area of the land was only $\frac{1}{4}$ kanis and odd and there was no indication whatever that this holding was a tenure. It can only be a tenure if it is proved that it was demised for the purpose of settling cultivators upon it and for collecting rent, and not for the purpose of being cultivated by the raiya or his family and servants. The facts of the case, which extend up to 1895 and are not altered in any way by the pottah of that date except in respect of giving the defendants fixed rent, conclusively prove that at the time of the Settlement they could not have been tenure-holders within the meaning of section 5 (1), Chapter III, of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The third contention was that we ought to have the pottah before us to construe it. As the defendants have not chosen to appear in answer to this appeal, it is suggested that we ought to give the appellant further time to get this pottah produced. We have always understood that when a decree has been passed against a person who desires to appeal, it is for him to put forward all necessary materials for the purpose of getting the presumption which is against him on the lower Court's judgment set aside. He could easily have made a prayer in the petition of appeal that the defendants be called upon to produce this pottah, or that the lower Court be directed to obtain it and forward it to this Court. We cannot either wait for it now or construe it. The finding, however, of the learned Judge and the arguments of the learned Vakil indicate quite sufficiently what were its contents and the arguments which are based upon it, with which we have already dealt.

As regards the plaintiff's prayer for assessment of fair and equitable rent we cannot see how that can arise in a suit under section 37 of Act XI of 1859, since the very basis of the protection offered by that section is against any enhancement, and enhancement is really what the plaintiff is seeking for. It is not within the scope of the suit; if it were, fair and equitable rent of an occupancy raiya at fixed rates would obviously be the rent which had been fixed for his holding.

The result is that the appeal is dismissed, but without costs as the respondents do not appear.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1455 OF 1914.

September 3, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and
Mr. Justice Phillips.

YELAMPATI KANNAYYA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS NOS. 3 AND 4—APPELLANTS
versus
YELAMPATHI RAMANNA—PLAINTIFF—
RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIII, r. 3—Decree passed in accordance with agreement of parties not appealed against—Decree, if binding in subsequent suit.

In a suit brought to establish the plaintiff's title to the land which he had got by virtue of a decree passed in a prior suit for specific performance of a contract to sell, the defendants alleged that they were not bound by that decree on the ground that it was a decree upon a compromise to which they were not parties. It appeared that what had happened was that the 1st defendant had made a statement on oath that he and other defendants had agreed to execute a sale-deed in favour of the plaintiff who also had made a statement on oath confirming this, and the Court had, thereupon, directed a decree to be made in accordance with the agreement of the parties:

Held, that the order was apparently passed under Order XXIII, rule 3 of the Civil Procedure Code and no appeal having been preferred against it the decree passed therein became final and binding on the defendants. [p. 22, cols. 1 & 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Guntur, in Appeal Suit No. 313 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Guntur, in Original Suit No. 1071 of 1911.

HAR SHYAM LAL SHYAM LAL SAHU.

Mr. K. V. L. Narasimham, for the Appellants.

Mr. Sarvagopali Aiyangar for Mr. V. Ramadoss, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

SPENCER, J.—This suit was brought to establish the plaintiff's title to the land, which he got by virtue of a decree passed in a prior suit brought for specific performance of a contract to sell.

Defendants Nos. 3 and 4, who are appellants in this second appeal, allege that they are not bound by the decree in Original Suit No. 51 of 1907, on the ground that it was a decree upon a compromise to which they were not parties. This appeal has been argued to a great length on the assumption that it was a decree passed with the consent of parties to which section 96 (3) of the Code of Civil Procedure would apply. But it appears that what happened was that the 1st defendant made a statement on oath in the presence of the Pleader for defendants Nos. 1 to 4 that he and defendants Nos. 2 to 4 had agreed to execute a sale deed in favour of the plaintiff according to the prayer in the suit. The plaintiff also made a statement on oath confirming this. The Court thereupon directed a decree to be made in accordance with the agreement of the parties by which the suit was thus proved to have been adjudicated. The order passed by the Court was apparently passed under Order XXIII, rule 3. The defendants, though they must through their Pleader, have been aware of the result of the suit, did not prefer an appeal under Order XLIII, rule 1 (m), or take any other step to have the order which affected them adversely, set aside. It is not now urged that the plaintiff obtained the decree by fraud or collusion. It is simply argued that these defendants are not bound by a compromise to which they were not parties. With this, I cannot agree. They were parties to the prior suit and the decree passed therein having become final, they are debarred from questioning it. In this view the second appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

PHILLIPS, J.—This second appeal has been argued at great length on the ground that the decree which appellants wish to avoid was a decree passed in terms of a compromise. From the judgment in the suit and the decree (Exhibits VII and V) and 1st defendant's statement (Exhibit IV) it is clear that the decree was passed under Order XXIII, rule 3, and consequently the arguments to show that the appellants are not bound by the decree because they were not parties to the compromise, are useless. The language of the District Judge, i. e., 'if the adjudication made against them on the basis of the consent given by their father was illegal', shows that he also treated the decree as one under Order XXIII. Appellants not having appealed against the order recording the compromise under Order XXIII, rule 3, allowed the decree to become final and consequently the District Judge was justified in his finding that the appellants were estopped. I agree that the second appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2757 OF 1912.

March 25, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt., and Mr. Justice Richardson.

HAR SHYAM CHOWDHURY—DEPENDANT
No. 5—APPELLANT

versus

SHYAM LAL SAHU—PLAINTIFF—

RESPONDENT.

Mortgage—Subrogation—Satisfaction of charge undertaken to be satisfied—Fraud committed in respect of existence or satisfaction of prior charge—Contract, stranger to, when can claim performance of.

The doctrine of subrogation does not apply when a person simply performs his own obligation or covenant and pays off a charge which he has undertaken or is bound to satisfy. If a person purchases a property subject to two mortgages, retains a portion of the purchase-money for payment to the mortgagees, but pays the first incumbrancer alone and not the second, he cannot treat the first mortgage as kept alive for use as a shield against the second; nor can he claim to be subrogated to the position of the mortgagee whose debt he has satisfied. [p. 23, col. 2.]

If A purchases property subject to three successive charges X, Y and Z with full knowledge of their existence, and retains a portion of the purchase-money in his hands with a view to satisfy the mortgages Y and Z, but subsequently discharges the security Z, he cannot, on satisfaction of the mortgage X, use it as a shield against the mortgage Y. But if the acceptance of the mortgage-deed with an untrue recital as to the satisfaction of the mortgage X by the mortgagee Y enabled the mortgagor to commit a fraud upon the purchaser, the latter can, on discovery and satisfaction of the mortgage X use it as a shield against the mortgagee Y. [p. 24, col. 1; p. 25, col. 1.]

HAR SHYAM U. SHYAM LAL SAHU.

Although a stranger to a contract may sometimes be entitled to claim the benefit of the performance thereof, the doctrine cannot be allowed to be invoked to defeat the ends of justice [p. 25, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Darbhanga, dated the 2nd February 1912, modifying that of the Subordinate Judge of Darbhanga, dated the 21st April 1911.

Babu Narendra Kumar Bose, for the Appellant.

Babu Lakshmi Narain Singh, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the fifth defendant in a suit to enforce a mortgage security. The property in dispute has been the subject of three mortgage transactions. The first mortgage was created on the 29th March 1888 for a sum of Rs. 700 which carried interest at the rate of 24 per cent. per annum; the second was on the 22nd July 1895 to secure a loan of Rs. 500 on interest at 18 per cent per annum. The third mortgage, now sought to be enforced, was created on the 27th December 1897 to secure a loan of Rs. 700 which bore interest at 18 per cent. per annum. On the 15th October 1901, the mortgagors transferred the equity of redemption to the appellant for a sum of Rs. 2,238. The conveyance recited that there were only two mortgages on the property, namely, those of 1895 and 1897. The purchaser, who was allowed to retain in his hands the entire consideration, agreed to apply the money in satisfaction of the dues on these two mortgages. He subsequently discovered that there was a prior mortgage on the property purchased by him, namely, the mortgage of 1888. He accordingly satisfied the mortgages of 1888 and 1895. The mortgagee of 1897 then commenced this action on the 21st June 1910 to recover his dues. The suit has been contested by the appellant, the purchaser under the conveyance of 1901, who argues that he is entitled to priority to the extent of the mortgages of 1888 and 1895. The District Judge has overruled this contention and has made the usual mortgage decree in favour of the plaintiff. On the present appeal by the purchaser of the equity of redemption, it has been urged that as he has satisfied the mortgages of 1888 and 1895, he is entitled to use them as shields against the mortgagee of 1897.

In so far as the mortgage of 1895 is concerned, it is plain that this contention cannot prevail. It was ruled by this Court in the case of Surjiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Pershad (1), that the doctrine of subrogation does not apply when a person simply performs his own obligation or covenant and pays off a charge which he has undertaken or is bound to satisfy. If a person purchases a property subject to two mortgages, retains a portion of the purchase-money for payment to the mortgagees, but pays the first incumbrancer alone and not the second, he cannot treat the first mortgage as kept alive for use as a shield against the second; he cannot claim to be subrogated to the position of the mortgagee whose debt he has satisfied. The same principle was applied in the cases of Bhiseswar Prosad v. Lala Sarnam Singh (2) and Sat Narain Tewari v. Sheobaran Singh (3). The cases of Tara Sundari Debi v. Khedon Lal Sahu (4) and Prayag Narain v. Cheli Rai (5) are not in principle opposed to this view; they merely furnish illustrations of cases which, the Court thought, (whether rightly or wrongly, it is needless to discuss for our present purpose) fall outside the scope of the rule enunciated in Surjiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Pershad (1). In respect of the mortgage of 1895, it is clear that the appellant discharged an obligation which he had undertaken to fulfil, namely, to satisfy the mortgage, not with his own money, but with money which belonged to his vendors and had been placed at his disposal for that specific purpose. If his vendor had satisfied the mortgage of 1895, as he might well have done, it is plain that he, as mortgagor, could not have treated the mortgage satisfied by him as available by way of defence against the mortgagees of

(1) 2 C. L. J. 288.

(2) 6 C. L. J. 134.

(3) 11 Ind. Cas. 847; 14 C. L. J. 507.

(4) 7 Ind. Cas. 910; 14 C. W. N. 1089.

(5) 7 Ind. Cas. 979; 14 C. W. N. 1093a.

HAR SHYAM V. SHYAM LAL SAHU.

1897. It follows consequently that the appellant is not entitled to priority on the basis of the payment made by him to satisfy the mortgage of 1895.

A question of some nicety, however, arises in respect of the mortgage of 1888. The appellant had undertaken to satisfy the mortgage of 1897; he did not fulfil his obligation, but chose to satisfy the mortgage of 1888. Is he then entitled to use the mortgage of 1888 as a protection against the mortgage of 1897? There can be no room for doubt that if A purchases property subject to three successive charges X, Y and Z with full knowledge of their existence, and retains a portion of the purchase-money in his hands, with a view to satisfy the mortgages Y and Z, but subsequently discharges the security Z, he cannot, on satisfaction of the mortgage X, use it as a shield against the mortgage Y. This follows from the case of Bisheswar Prasad v. Lala Sarnam Singh (2), where reference is made to the decision in Heim v. Vogel (6). In that case, A obtained title to a property subject to two prior charges, and at the same time undertook to satisfy the second charge. He did not fulfil his obligation, but subsequently, when he had acquired rights under the first charge, took his stand thereon as protection against the second charge. His contention was overruled on the ground that he was bound to satisfy the second charge with the money at his disposal; and so long as that money was retained by him, he could not be allowed to prejudice the position of the second encumbrancer by means of title acquired under the first charge. If, consequently, nothing else was known in this case except that there were the three successive charges of 1888, 1895 and 1897 and that the appellant had undertaken to pay the charges of 1895 and 1897 with money placed at his disposal by the mortgagor, the mere fact that he had satisfied the prior charge of 1888 would not entitle him to use it as a shield against the mortgagee of 1897. The latter would prima facie be entitled to contend that as the appellant had in his hands money placed at his disposal by the mortgagor for the satisfaction of his dues, he could not be prejudiced by reason of the payment made by the appellant to satisfy the debt of 1888.

There are, however, special circumstances in this case which, as we shall presently see, take it out of the general rule already explained.

The mortgage of 1897 recited that Rs. 400 out of the Rs. 700 secured thereby had been applied by the mortgagor to satisfy the mortgage of 1888, that the mortgagor had redeemed the mortgage and had obtained the mortgage instrument which he had made over to the new mortgagee as evidence of his title. This was, it is now conceded, an entirely false recital. The sum of Rs. 400 had not been applied to discharge the mortgage of 1888; the mortgage instrument had not been taken back from the mortgagee but was still in his custody. The appellant contends that he was misled by this recital and purchased the property from the mortgagor in the belief that it was subject to two charges only, namely, those of 1895 and 1897. It is indisputable that the acceptance of this instrument with an untrue recital by the mortgagee of 1897 enabled the mortgagor to commit a fraud on the appellant. He intended to acquire a clear title to the property free of all prior charges thereon; he found on enquiry that there were only two subsisting charges to be satisfied, namely, those of 1895, and 1897. He discovered after his purchase that there was a prior charge of 1888 which was falsely described as satisfied in the mortgage instrument of 1897 held by the respondent. Consequently, if we apply the test of intention of the person who satisfies the prior charge, as ruled in the cases of Moresh Lal v. Mohant Bawan Das (7), Gokaldas Gopaldas v. Puranmal Prem-sukhdas (8), Dinobundhu Shaw Chowdhry v. Jogmaya Dasi (9), Mahomed Ibrahim Hossein Khan v. Ambika Pershad Singh (10), Liquidation Estates Purchase Co. Ltd. v. Willoughby (11), Thorne v. Uann (12), Whiteley v. (7) 10 I. A. 62; 9 C. 961; 13 C. L. R. 221; 7 Ind. Jur. 382; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 424.
(8) 11 I. A. 126; 10 C. 1035; 8 Ind. Jur. 396; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 543.
(9) 29 I. A. 9; 29 C. 154; 6 C. W. N. 209; 12 M. L. J. 73; 4 Bom. L. R. 238.
(10) 14 Ind. Cas. 496; 39 I. A. 68; 39 C. 527; 11 M. L. J. 265; (1912) M. W. N. 367; 9 A. L. J. 332; 14 Bom. L. R. 280; 16 C. W. N. 505; 15 C. L. J. 411; 22 M. L. J. 468.
(11) (1898) A. C. 321; 67 L. J. Ch. 251; 78 L. T. 329; 14 T. L. R. 295; 46 W. R. 589.
(12) (1895) A. C. 11; 64 L. J. Ch. 1; 11 B. 67; 71 L. T. 852.

(6) (1879) 69 Missonri 529.

SADAGOPACHARIAR v. RAMA TIRUMALA CHARARIAR.

Delaney (13), Shib Narain v. Baikuntha Nath Santra (14), the answer must be in favour of the appellant, for there is no shadow of a doubt that when he satisfied the mortgage of 1888, he intended to keep the security alive for use as a protection against the mortgage of 1897. On the other hand, if as explained in Gurdee Singh v. Chandrika Singh (15), we treat the doctrine of subrogation as based on equitable grounds, to be applied only where needed to accomplish the ends of justice, it is equally plain that the plaintiff has no claim to consideration as against the appellant; for it was the conduct of the plaintiff which enabled his mortgagor to commit a fraud on the appellant. The plaintiff has also no claim as against the appellant on any contractual basis; he is in no sense privy to the agreement between the appellant and his vendor; and although it has recently been held that a stranger to a contract may sometimes, as explained in Jahandar Baksh v. Ram Lal (16), be entitled to claim the benefit of the performance thereof, as in Nawab Khwaja Muhammad Khan v. Nawab Husaini Begum (17) and Deb Narain Dutt v. Ram Sadhan Mundal (18), that doctrine cannot be allowed to be invoked to defeat the ends of justice. From whatever point of view the case may be considered, it is consequently plain that the appellant is entitled to priority in respect of the payment made by him to satisfy the mortgage of 1888.

The result is that this appeal is allowed in part and the decree of the District Judge modified. The appellant is entitled to priority in respect of a sum of Rs. 344, proportionate to the share of the property now in suit. We direct that the property covered by the mortgage of 1897 be sold in execution of the decree made by the District Judge free of the charges of 1888, 1895 and 1897.

(13) (1914) A. C. 132; 83 L. J. Ch. 349; 110 L. T. 434; 58 S. J. 218.

(14) 20 Ind. Cas. 864; 19 C. L. J. 200.

(15) 1 Ind. Cas. 913; 36 C. 193; 5 C. L. J. 611.

(16) 5 Ind. Cas. 565; 11 C. L. J. 364 at p. 368; 14 C. W. N. 470; 37 C. 449.

(17) 7 Ind. Cas. 237; 37 I. A. 152; 12 C. L. J. 205; 32 A. 410; 14 C. W. N. 865 (P. C.); 7 A. L. J. 871; 8 M. L. T. 147; 12 Bom. L. R. 638; 12 C. L. J. 205; 20 M. L. J. 614; (1910) M. W. N. 313.

(18) 20 Ind. Cas. 630; 41 C. 137; 18 C. L. J. 603; 17 C. W. N. 1143.

Out of the sale-proceeds, the appellant will be first entitled to Rs. 344 and the costs of this suit; from the balance left, the plaintiff decree-holder will be entitled to his dues; the surplus, if any, will belong to the appellant. The appellant is entitled to his costs as against the plaintiff throughout this litigation.

Appeal allowed in part.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2659 OF 1913.

July 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and

Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

M. SADAGOPACHARIAR—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

RAMA TIRUMALA CHARARIAR AND

ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS NOS. 1 AND 2

—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 10, scope of—Later suit disposed of earlier—Parties in two suits claiming under different titles—Pleadings in later suit, if can be urged as bar to previous suit.

After the plaintiff had brought a suit against the defendant, both of them were made defendants in another suit which was decided while the plaintiff's suit against the defendant was still pending. In his defence in the first suit the defendant relied upon the plaintiff's pleadings as defendant in the second suit. The plaintiff contended that as the trial of the second suit was without jurisdiction by reason of section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code, his pleadings in that suit could not be relied upon by the defendant:

Held, that, as the later suit was not between the parties under whom the parties to the earlier suit claimed litigating under the same title, the plaintiff's contention was untenable. [p. 26, col. 1.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Chingleput, in Appeal Suit No. 197 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Poonamallee, in Original Suit No. 149 of 1911.

Mr. K. R. Narayanasawmy Aiyar, for Mr. I. Narasimha Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. N. Dorasawmy Aiyangar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The foundation of the lower Courts' decision was plaintiff's pleading the judgment in Original Suit No. 170 of 1911, in which plaintiff and 1st defendant were ALEJAN BIBI V. RAHAM ALI.

2nd and 1st defendants. Original Suit No. 170 was instituted after the present suit, though it was decided before it. It is argued first that in these circumstances the Court was debarred by section 10, Civil Procedure Code, from trying Original Suit No. 170 until this, the earlier suit, had been disposed of, that the trial was consequently held without jurisdiction and that, therefore, defendants cannot rely on plaintiff's pleading during it or on the decision which ended it.

We cannot accept this. Section 10 requires that the earlier suit shall be between the same parties as the later or, the portion of it at present relevant, between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title. But in Original Suit No. 170 the plaintiff relied, not directly on a title derived from 1st defendant, but on the title of certain alleged vendees from him, whom he repudiated. The title under which the plaintiff in Original Suit No. 170 litigated was, therefore, not that now in question, and the section cannot be applied.

We have been shown no valid reason for holding that the decision in Original Suit No. 170 is not res judicata in the present suit or that the present plaintiff is not now estopped by his pleading there. We have been informed that the decision in Original Suit No. 170 is under appeal, but the fact is not admitted, and nothing to satisfy us regarding it has been produced. In these circumstances the second appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 4257 OF 1913.

February 10, 1915.

Present:— Mr. Justice Richardson and Mr. Justice Mullick.

ALEJAN BIBI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—
APPELLANTS

versus

RAHAM ALI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

*Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 49 (b), 85
—Under-raiyat—Holding for a term—Devolution of interest—Heirs, whether can be ejected without notice.*

There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act which expressly takes away the right of the heirs of an under-raiyat to succeed to the remainder of the term granted by the raiyat within the powers conferred on the latter by section 85, and apart from custom or express enactment there is no doubt that a lease for a term devolves upon the heirs of the original lessee. On the expiry of the term the heirs may be ejected without notice under section 49 (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. [p. 27, col. 1.]

Arip Mandal v. Ram Ratan Mandal, 31 C. 757; 8 C. W. N. 479. Jamini Sundari Dasi v. Rajendra Nath Chakrabarty, 11 C. W. N. 519, distinguished.

Appeal against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Chittagong, dated the 5th September 1913, reversing that of the Munsif of North Roazan, dated the 30th April 1912.

Babu Dharendra Kastgir, for the Appellants.

Moulvie Abdul Jawwad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

RICHARDSON, J.—The defendants in this suit are the heirs of an under-raiyat to whom the plaintiffs, as raiyats of the holding in which the land in suit is situated, granted by a written and registered instrument a lease for a term of nine years. The under-raiyat died some years ago and it has been found that the defendants have since been in possession of the land leased to them and have been paying rent therefor to the plaintiffs. The term of nine years has now expired and the suit was brought by the plaintiffs for the purpose of ejecting the defendants from the land comprised in the sublease. In the first Court the plaintiffs obtained a decree, that decree was reversed by the learned Subordinate Judge in the Court of Appeal below and the suit was dismissed. The learned Subordinate Judge held that the subtenancy granted to the original under-raiyat came to an end with his death, that the payment by and acceptance of rent from his heirs, the defendants, created a new tenancy as between them and the plaintiffs and that the defendants cannot be ejected unless and until notice to quit has been served upon them in accordance with clause (b) of section 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The question before us in this second appeal, which is preferred by the plaintiffs, is whether the learned Subordinate Judge was right in the view which he took of the case and of the respective rights of the parties. For the appellants it has been urged that a raiyat is empowered by section 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, if not expressly at any rate by necessary implication, to grant an under-raiyat by means of a written and registered instrument a sub-lease for a term not exceeding nine years. It is further argued that there is nothing in the Act which has the effect of cutting down a sub-lease for such a term to a sub-lease for the term of the under-raiyat's life if he should die before the expiry of the nine years. This reasoning is in some respects analogous to the reasoning adopted by the Full Bench in deciding the case of the Midnapore Zemindari Company, Ltd. v. Hrishikesh Ghosh (), where the question was whether the holding of a non-occupancy raiyat was or was not heritable. It may fairly be said that there is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act which expressly takes away the right of the heirs of an under-raiyat to succeed to the remainder of a term granted by the raiyat within the powers conferred on the latter by section 85 and apart from custom or express enactment, there is no doubt that a lease for a term devolves upon the heirs of the original lessee. On behalf of the defendants, the respondents before us, our attention has been directed to the Full Bench case of Arip Mandal v. Ram Ratan Mandal (2) and also to the decision of Mr. Justice Mookerjee in Jamini Sunari Dasi v. Rajendra Nath Chakrabutty (3). These cases, however, deal with the position which arises upon the death of an under-raiyat who holds under an annual holding or a tenancy from year to year. In such a case, no doubt the only right which the Full Bench recognises as belonging to the heirs of the under-raiyat upon his death is a right to remain in possession of the land until the end of the then agricultural year for the purpose, if the land has been sub-let, of realising the rent which might accrue during the year or, if not sub-let, for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops. The decision of the Full Bench seems, therefore, to deny to the heirs of the under-raiyat under an annual holding any right of succession properly so called to the tenancy and so the decision was understood by Mr. Justice Mookerjee, who observes: "It follows, therefore, that the Full Bench held that the heirs of an under-raiyat under an annual holding do not acquire any interest in his holding by inheritance." That being so, it is contended for the defendants that there is no real difference between the case of a tenancy for a term of years and the case of a tenancy from year to year and that if a tenancy of the latter sort is not heritable, a tenancy for a term should also be held to be not heritable. In my opinion, weighing the arguments of both sides the balance inclines in favour of the view propounded on behalf of the plaintiffs. It seems to me that inasmuch as under the Act a raiyat is clearly at liberty to grant a sub-lease for a term not exceeding nine years, the lease so granted, in the absence of anything to the contrary in the Act, carries with it the ordinary incidents of a lease for a term of years. One of the incidents of such a lease is that if the lessee dies before the end of the term, his heirs are entitled to succeed him in the tenancy. I do not say that there is no force in the arguments pressed upon us on behalf of the defendants but as I have said, on the whole it seems to me that the view suggested on the other side should prevail.

SUNDAR SINGH v. Musammât GURDEVI.

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 564; 41 C. 1108; 18 C. W. N. 828; 19 C. L. J. 505.

(2) 31 C. 757; 8 C. W. N. 79

(3) 11 C. W. N. 519.

I am, therefore, of opinion that this appeal should be allowed, the decree of the Subordinate Judge should be set aside and the decree of the Munsif should be restored.

The plaintiffs will be entitled to their costs throughout.

MULLICK, J.—I agree.

Appeal allowed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 899 of 1912.

June 25, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan and
Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

SUNDAR SINGH—DEFENDANT—
APPELLANT

versus

Musammât GURDEVI AND OTHERS —
PLAINTIFFS AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANT—
RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Mitakshara—Father's sister's sons, whether can inherit as bandhus—Third party, whether can be impleaded at final stage—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 10.

Where the father's sister of the last male owner and her sons sued for a declaration that the alienation made by the mother of the last male owner in favour of the defendant shall not affect their reversionary rights:

SUNDAR SINGH v. Musammam GURDEVI.

Held, that under the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law the plaintiffs were entitled to inherit as bandhus and could contest the alienation.

Narasimma v. Mangammal, 13 M. 10; Chinnammal v. Venkatachala, 15 M. 421; 2 M. L. J. 86 Nanhi v. Gauri Shankar, 28 A. 187; 2 A. L. J. 654; A. W. N. (1905) 242, referred to.

A person who has not been impleaded either as a plaintiff or a defendant in the Courts below cannot claim to be made a party at the final stage of the case.

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Divisional Judge, Amritsar Division, at Jullundur, dated the 1st April 1912, varying that of the Subordinate Judge, 2nd class, Amritsar, dated the 30th March 1911, decreeing claim.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Appellant.

Chaudhri Ram Bhai Datt and Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—One Gurmukh Singh, an Arora of the town of Amritsar, was the last male owner of the property in dispute. After his death, his mother, Musammam Maya Devi, succeeded to his estate on the usual life tenure, and in January 1908 she effected a sale of the property in favour of the defendant Sunder Singh, who is the appellant before us. The plaintiffs, who are Gurmukh Singh's father's sister and her three sons, have obtained a declaratory decree from the Divisional Judge that the alienation shall not affect their reversionary rights on the death of Musammam Maya Devi, and the vendee has preferred to this Court a second appeal against that decree.

It is quite clear that the decision of the lower Appellate Court that the alienation was not for necessity proceeds upon the evidence adduced by the parties and the finding being one of fact cannot obviously be impeached in second appeal. The Court has considered the facts and circumstances of the case and arrived at a conclusion adverse to the appellant and we see absolutely no reason for interference in second appeal with its decision.

The sole question for determination is whether the plaintiffs are heirs under the Mitakshara School of the Hindu Law, by which the deceased Gurmukh Singh was admittedly governed. Upon that point we have no hesitation in expressing our opinion in the affirmative. It will be observed that the sons of the paternal aunt are expressly mentioned as bandhus in the original text of the Mitakshara and it is manifest that the position of the plaintiffs as bandhus has been affirmed in a series of judgments, vide, inter alia, Narasimma v. Mangammal (1), Chinnammal v. Venkatachala (2) and Nanhi v. Gauri Shankar (3). There is not a single judgment which lays down the contrary rule. We are fully aware of the fact that there was at one time considerable divergence of judicial opinion as to the right of the sister's son as a bandhu under the Mitakshara, but even that matter has now been settled in his favour and his right to inherit as a bandhu has been recognized in a large number of cases decided by the High Courts.

The right of succession of the paternal aunt and her sons has never been doubted and we, therefore, consider it unnecessary to deal with the principles of Hindu Law upon which that right is founded. We accordingly hold that the plaintiffs have locus standi to contest the alienation made by Musammam Maya Devi.

Before concluding, we may mention that Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, on behalf of a person who claims to be the sapinda of Gurmukh Singh, applied at the commencement of the hearing that his client might be impleaded as a party to the appeal, but we declined to accede to the request for the simple reason that the applicant had not been impleaded as a plaintiff or a defendant in the Courts below and had consequently no right to intervene at the final stage of the case. Further, the declaratory decree enures for the benefit of all the heirs, and he will be entitled to avail himself of it, if he establishes his right to succeed to the property in preference to the plaintiffs.

Our decision upon the only point which arises in the appeal is against the appellant. We accordingly affirm the decree of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 13 M. 10.

(2) 15 M. 421; 2 M. L. J. 86.

(3) 28 A. 187; 2 A. L. J. 654; A. W. N. (1905) 242.

MOHES CHANDRA GUHA V. RAJANI KANTA DUTT.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 1138 OF 1914.

May 7, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Roe.

MOHES CHANDRA GUHA—PETITIONER

versus

RAJANI KANTA DUTT AND ANOTHER—
OPPOSITE PARTY.*Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 2 (i)—Consideration—
Release of debtor and acceptance of another in his place.*Where the creditor releases his debtor and accepts a new debtor in his place, the release of the original debtor furnishes good consideration for the new contract.Civil Rule against the decision of the Small Cause Court Judge of Barisal, dated the 11th
July 1914.Babu Asitranjan Chatterjee, for the Petitioner.Babu Bepin Behari Ghose, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This Rule was granted under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, on the application of the plaintiff in the Court below. He sued to recover money due on a bond for Rs. 100 executed in his favour on the 28th July 1910 by one Tilak Chandra Dutt and his two sons, Rajani Kanta Dutt and Mohesh Chandra Dutt. The bond recited that on the 28th May 1904 the plaintiff advanced Rs. 50 to Tilak Chandra Dutt and Mohesh Chandra Dutt and took a bond on the basis whereof payments had been made from time to time, that a considerable sum was still due on account of principal and interest, and, that inasmuch as Mohesh Chandra Dutt was not present and could not renew the bond, Rajani Kanta Dutt joined his father Tilak Chandra Dutt in the execution of the second bond. The Small Cause Court Judge has dismissed the suit as against the two sons on the ground that in so far as they were concerned, the bond was executed without consideration and was not binding on them as it was not registered. We are now invited by the plaintiff to set aside the decree of dismissal in favour of the two sons.

It is indisputable that the suit has been rightly dismissed as against Mohesh Chandra Dutt, as the suit has been brought on the renewed bond and he was not a party thereto. On the other hand, if the suit were treated as brought for enforcement of the original obligation, the claim as against him would clearly be met by the plea of limitation. But in respect of the liability of Rajani Kanta Dutt, it is plain that the Subordinate Judge has taken an erroneous view. One of the witnesses for the plaintiff stated in cross-examination that no cash consideration was paid for the bond in suit. The Subordinate Judge has inferred from this that the bond was without consideration, and his observation that the bond was not binding because unregistered seems to indicate that he had the provisions of section 25 of the Indian Contract Act in view, which, it cannot be disputed, have no bearing on the case. The Subordinate Judge is clearly wrong in his view that a bond cannot be operative unless supported by cash consideration: See Indian Contract Act, section 2 (d). What happened was that the creditor required that the bond should be renewed by the original executants; one of them was absent and could not comply with his demand. The creditor agreed to release the absent debtor from liability, if his brother would make himself responsible in his place. Rajani accordingly executed the renewed bond. This, then, is a case where the creditor released his debtor and accepted a new debtor in his place. The release of the original debtor furnishes good consideration for the new contract: Alliance Bank v. Broom (1), Fullerton v. Provincial Bank of Ireland (2), Glegg v. Bromley (3). The view taken by the Subordinate Judge cannot consequently be supported. But it is necessary to remand the case for investigation of one question and one question only, namely, whether Rajani really executed the bond. He denied in his written statement that he did so, but this point has not been determined by the Subordinate Judge.

The result is that this Rule is discharged in so far as Mohesh Chandra Dutt is concerned; it is made absolute against Rajani Kanta Dutt and the case is remitted to the Subordinate Judge in order that he may re-try the case against him in view of the observations made in this judgment. There will be no order for costs in this Court.

Rule partly discharged; Case remanded.

(1) (1864) 2 Drew. & Sm. 289; 13 W. R. 127; 5 N. R. 66; 34 L. J. Ch. 256; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 1121; 11 L. T. 332; 62 E. R. 631; 143 R. R. 120.

(2) (1903) A. C. 309; 72 L. J. P. C. 79; 89 L. T. 79; 52 W. R. 238.

(3) (1912) 3 K. B. 474; 81 L. J. K. B. 1081; 106 L. T. 825.

HAR PROSAD DASS v. BAKSHI BINDESWARI PROSAD SINGH.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE NO. 437
OF 1912.

April 15, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Fletcher and Mr. Justice Teunon.

HAR PROSAD DASS alias DEWAN DASS
—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

VS.

BAKSHI BINDESWARI PROSAD SINGH alias LALLUJI AND ANOTHER—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 19—Karta of joint Hindu family, acknowledgment by, if valid—Other members, if bound—Promissory note filed with plaintiff missing from Court records—Copy filed—Suff. of facts—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 65.

S, the karta of a joint Hindu family, executed certain promissory notes. S died leaving a brother H and a minor son. H succeeded to the ku hish and renewed one of the hand notes executed by S. In a suit on the notes the plaintiff alleged to have filed the notes with the plaintiff but they were missing from the Court's records. Copies of the notes were filed and admitted by the lower Courts. The debt was not proved to have been contracted for any immoral purpose.

Held, that the plaintiff's claim could not fail by reason of the theft or his inability to produce the original documents before the Courts. [p. 31, col. 2.]

Held, further, that the debt not being for immoral purposes H as the karta of the family was an agent duly authorized in this behalf so as to give an acknowledgment under section 19 of the Limitation Act and that the son of S was bound by the acknowledgment. [p. 32, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, first Court, Shahabad, dated the 9th September 1912.

Babus Maxmothanath Mukerjee, Sateendra-nath Palit for Babu Umakali Mukerjee, Babus Sateendra Nath Mukerjee and Sudhansa Sekhar Mukerjee, for the Appellant.

Babus Mohendra Nath Roy and Raghu Nath Singh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

FLETCHER, J.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff against a decision of the learned Subordinate Judge of Shahabad, dated the 9th September 1912. The plaintiff sued to recover certain sums that were alleged to be due to him from the defendants. The first defendant, Bakshi Harihar Prosad Singh, had a brother, Bakshi Sheo Prosad Singh. In the year 1907 Sheo Prosad Singh died leaving the second defendant, his only son. In his life-time, Sheo Prosad had executed certain promissory notes and, on the 30th April 1906, he executed a fresh hand-note for Rs. 6,000 in favour of the plaintiff in lieu of all the notes that had been executed by him down to that date. On the 22nd November 1906, Sheo Prosad executed a further hand-note for the sum of Rs. 1,000. Sheo Prosad was the karta of this joint Hindu family and the defendant No. 2, his infant son, was a member of that family which was undivided at all times material for the purposes of the present case. On the death of Sheo Prosad, the first defendant succeeded to the office of the karta and he executed five promissory notes in favour of the plaintiff, two being dated the 5th April 1908 and the 12th November 1908 respectively, each of them being for Rs. 1,000, another one dated the 26th December 1908 for Rs. 300 and the two remaining ones being dated the 28th April 1909 and the 15th May 1909, the first one being for Rs. 1,400 and the last one being for Rs. 1,000. Harihar Prosad Singh, the first defendant, also on the 30th April 1909, renewed the hand-note for Rs. 6,000 which had been given by Sheo Prosad Singh by giving a note for Rs. 7,720-2-9. On the original note there was endorsed "executed another hand-note in its stead of the value of Rs. 7,720-2-9 up to date," and it was signed by the defendant No. 1. Default having been made in paying the amount covered by these notes as well as the note for Rs. 1,000 executed by Sheo Prosad on the 22nd November 1906, the plaintiff brought the present suit. The learned Judge of the Court below has given a decree to the plaintiff against the defendant No. 1 alone for the whole amount sued for, except the Rs. 1,000 covered by the hand-note dated the 22nd November 1906. He has dismissed the suit as against the defendant No. 2. The plaintiff has appealed against that decision.

It will be convenient to deal with the five notes that were given by the defendant No. 1 himself after the death of Sheo Prosad in the first place, and then to deal with the renewed note for Rs. 7,720-2-9 that was given by the defendant No. 1 in renewal of the note for Rs. 6,000 executed by Sheo Prosad. No argument was advanced before us as regards the amount covered by the note dated the 22nd November 1906 executed by Sheo Prosad Singh, the claim as regards that being evidently barred by limitation.

HAR PRASAD DASS v. BAKSHI BINDESWARI PRASAD SINGH.

The learned Judge has made this finding with reference to the five notes that were given by the defendant No. 1 himself: "There is nothing to show that the moneys were borrowed for family purposes or for the benefit of the minor. On the other hand, there is evidence adduced by the defendant No. 2 to show that the defendant No. 1 has been leading an extravagant and dissipated life, which renders it highly probable that he borrowed the moneys for his own personal use." The evidence on which the learned Judge came to that conclusion is ample to warrant the conclusion that he came to. The evidence is not very much one way or the other, but it seems to me that, on these five notes, the evidence is not sufficient to establish the liability of the infant, that is the defendant No. 2, with respect to the moneys so advanced. I think, with regard to the amounts due on those five notes, we ought to affirm the decision of the learned Subordinate Judge.

The case on the note for Rs. 7,720-2-9 is not so easy. The first point that was objected to was that the learned Judge of the Court below admitted a copy of this note in evidence and also copies of the notes in respect of which it was a renewal, on the ground that the original documents had been stolen from the Court records. It is said that the whole of that story about the documents having been stolen is a false story. There does not seem to be any reason why the plaintiff who appears to be a man of substance should have set up a bogus story as to these documents having been stolen, so that he could give false copies in evidence. The learned Judge remarks that "it is not altogether improbable that the hand-notes alleged to have been filed with the plaint were stolen about the same time. However this may have been, it cannot be doubted that the hand-notes, or at least, those detailed in paragraph 5 of the plaint were really executed and that the debts have not been repaid." The objection of the respondents to this appeal is that the learned Judge of the Court below admitted secondary evidence of these notes without coming to a definite finding that the document had been stolen or lost. I think the learned Judge, when he remarked that it was not altogether improbable that the hand-notes were stolen, meant to come to the conclusion that whether those documents had been actually stolen or not, at any rate they had been mislaid or had not been found at that time and further, that there was no doubt that the documents had been in existence and that the copies filed were the true copies of those documents. I think the learned Judge was clearly right in holding that the plaintiff's claim should not fail by reason of the theft or his inability to produce the original documents before the Court.

Then the next point is—"Is the defendant No. 2 liable for this amount?" It cannot be denied that the defendant No. 2 was liable to repay the six thousand rupees which was secured by the promissory note of the 30th April 1908. The maker of that promissory note was the father of the defendant No. 2 and, unless it was for an immoral consideration, the defendant No. 2 was liable to pay his father's debt. So far from this debt being given for an immoral consideration, the evidence shows that the moneys were borrowed with reference to a hosiery business that Shoo Prasad was carrying on for the benefit of the joint family. There is no doubt that the defendant No. 2 was liable to pay the amount secured by that note. There are, therefore, only two questions with reference to this matter. First of all "Had Harihar Prasad, that is, the defendant No. 1, power to give an acknowledgment of the debt secured by the note for Rs. 6,000 so as to prevent it from being barred by limitation?" and, secondly, "If he had, whether the acknowledgment in this case is sufficient to answer the purpose of the Statute?" There has been a good deal of conflict of judicial authorities on the question as to whether the persons acting for those under disability are entitled to give an acknowledgment or not. The balance of judicial authorities appears to me to have held that they are able to do so, provided that the debt is not barred by limitation on the date when the acknowledgment is given. That was decided in the Full Bench case of Chinnaya v. Gurunatham Chetti (1) of the Madras High Court. That case was followed and

(1) 5 M. 169.

HAR PRASAD DASS v. BAKSHI BINDESWARI PRASAD SINGH.

approved of in the case of Blasker Tatya Shet v. Vijalal Nathu (2). Whatever conflict there was in the various decisions, it was set at rest by the 21st section of the Indian Limitation Act of 1908, which provides that "the agent duly authorized, as is mentioned in sections 19 and 20 of the Act shall in the case of a person under disability include his lawful guardian, committee or manager." The decisions that the learned Vakil for the respondents relied upon, namely, in the cases of Wajibun v. Kadir Buksh (3) and Chhato Ram v. Bilto Ali (4), can no longer be considered to be good law. These decisions are inconsistent with the statutory provision that now appears in section 21. I think that there is no doubt that the defendant No. 2 being a person liable to pay this debt contracted by his father the defendant No. 1, as the karta of the family, was an agent duly authorized in this behalf so as to give an acknowledgment under section 19 and thus to give a new period of limitation with regard to the amount remaining due on the promissory note for Rs. 6,000. If that is so, the only other question is "Is the acknowledgment in this case sufficient to bind the defendant No. 2?" The learned Vakil for the defendant No. 2, respondent, has tried to limit the acknowledgment to the promissory note for Rs. 7,720-2-9. He says that that does not show any connection between the original hand-note for Rs. 6,000 and this renewed note and that, therefore, as there is no connection between the two documents, it cannot be taken to be an acknowledgment of the liability that existed on the defendant No. 2 to pay the amount which his father was liable to pay on the note for Rs. 6,000. As a matter of fact, that is not strictly so, because the hand-note for Rs. 7,720-2-9 is expressed to be given in lieu of the hand-note dated the 30th April 1906. That certainly established a connection between that hand-note and the hand-note for Rs. 6,000. But, in addition to that, there is the endorsement upon the hand-note for Rs. 6,000 itself in these terms:—"Executed another hand-note in its stead of the value of Rs. 7,720-2-9 up to date." It is quite clear that it was an acknowledgment in respect of the amount due on the former hand-note. It is said that the defendant No. 1 did not express to have made the acknowledgment as the karta of joint family. There is not much authority on that point, but in the case that I have referred to, namely, the Full Bench case reported as Chinnaya v. Gurunatham Chetti (1), the acknowledgment did not express that it was made as binding the family and notwithstanding that the Full Bench considered that the acknowledgment bound the family, on the ground that the karta having power to borrow money for proper purposes had power to give a proper acknowledgment of the existing debt. During the course of the argument it was somewhat faintly suggested that the infant was not liable on this note at all on the ground that he was not a party to the present note. The claim in this suit is not limited to suing on the promissory note itself. There is an obligation to pay outside the note and that obligation bound the other members of the joint family, notwithstanding that they could not be sued upon the note. As a matter of fact presumably the second defendant is bound to pay his father's debt if not contracted for immoral purposes, whether it is a debt on a promissory note or in any other form. In this case, the obligation to repay the money remains on the defendant No. 2. That liability has been, to my mind, properly acknowledged by an agent duly authorized to make the acknowledgment under section 19 of the Limitation Act and the second defendant is, therefore, liable to pay to the plaintiff out of his share of the family estate the amount so due upon that promissory note. I think that we ought to set aside the judgment and decree passed by the learned Subordinate Judge in so far as it relates to the liability of the defendant No. 2 under the promissory note for Rs. 7,720-2-9 and in lieu thereof direct that the defendant No. 2 is liable along with the defendant No. 1 to pay that amount together with interest thereon at the contractual rate down to the institution of the suit out of his share of the joint family property. In other respects the decree of the lower Court will stand. As both parties have partially succeeded in this Court, we

(2) 17 B. 512.

(3) 13 C. 292.

(4) 26 C. 53; 3 C. W. N. 313.

JUGGOBUNDHU SAHA v. CHAND MOHAN SAHA.

make no order as to the costs of this Court. Similarly we think we ought to direct that the plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 should bear their own costs in the lower Court, the plaintiff having succeeded against the defendant No. 2 on one claim and having failed on the other. The order passed by the lower Court for costs as against the defendant No. 1 will stand.

TEUNON, J.—I agree.

Decree modified.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 161 OF 1915.

May 24, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Roe.

JUGGOBUNDHU SAHA—DEPENDANT No. 2

—PETITIONER

versus

CHAND MOHAN SAHA—PLAINTIFF—

OPPOSITE PARTY.

Arbitration—Delegation of functions—Judicial misconduct—Material irregularity—Award—Dealing with matters not covered by submission—Illegal parts of award severable—Legal part, effect on

An arbitrator has no authority to delegate his functions, except possibly the performance of what are called 'ministerial acts', and if he does so, he is guilty of judicial misconduct and his award is invalid. [p. 33, col. 2.]

It is permissible to an arbitrator to take assistance in technical matters, in so far as such assistance is necessary for the discharge of his duties. The decision, however, must ultimately be his own judgment in the matter, although in the process of formation of that conclusion he may take the assistance of experts. [p. 33, col. 2; p. 34, col. 1.]

A Court acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction, if it overrules the objection of judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, without inquiry and without reception of evidence material for the determination of the issue. [p. 34, col. 1.]

A submission furnishes the source and prescribes the limits of the arbitrator's authority and the award both in substance and in form must conform to the submission, and if the award extends to matters not within the scope of the submission, it is void as regards the portion in excess of the submission. [p. 34, col. 1.]

Where the different parts of an award are severable and not dependent on each other, the illegal portion may be cancelled and effect given to the remainder. [p. 34, col. 2.]

Civil Rule against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Dacca, dated the 6th July 1914.

Babus Biraj Mohan Mojumdar and Rajendra Chunder Guha, for the Petitioner.

Babus Dwarka Nath Chuckerbutty, Upendra Lal Roy, Sures Chunder Das and Prokas Chunder Pakrasi, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This Rule was granted on the application of the second defendant in a suit for partition to set aside the decree made therein by the Court below on the basis of an arbitration award. The petitioner impugns the decree on two grounds, first, that the Subordinate Judge acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction when he declined to examine the arbitrator at the request of the second defendant, who alleged that the arbitrator had been guilty of judicial misconduct; and secondly, that the decree made by the Subordinate Judge in conformity with the award is, in part, made without jurisdiction, because it affects immoveable property which is not the subject-matter of the litigation.

As regards the first ground, it appears that when the award had been submitted, objection thereto was taken by the petitioner on the allegation that the arbitrator had delegated his authority to a stranger and that the award was in essence not the act of the arbitrator, but of that person. This was a serious charge of judicial misconduct, and, if established, would invalidate the award for it cannot be disputed that an arbitrator has no authority to delegate his functions, except possibly the performance of what are called "ministerial acts": Lingood v. Eade (1), Emery v. Wase (2); Little v. Newton (3); Tandy, In re (4), Whitmore v. Smith (5), Eads v. Williams (6). The Subordinate Judge states in his judgment that the arbitrator was authorised to take assistance in technical matters; that, indeed, was permissible to him, in so far as such assistance was necessary for the discharge of his duties: Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Lockhart (7), Emery v. Wase (2), Hopcraft v.

(1) (1742) 2 Atk. 501 at p. 504; 26 E. R. 702.

(2) (1801) 5 Ves. 846 at p. 848; 31 E. R. 889; 5 R. R. 181; on appeal 8 Ves. 505; 7 R. R. 109; 32 E. R. 451.

(3) (1841) 9 D. P. C. 437; 2 Scott. (N. R.) 159; 2 Man. & G. 351; 10 L. J. C. P. 88; 5 Jur. 246; 133 E. R. 627; 58 R. R. 436.

(4) (1841) 9 D. P. C. 1044; 5 Jur. 726.

(5) (1861) 7 H. & N. 509; 31 L. J. Ex. 107; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 514; 5 L. T. 618; 10 W. R. 253; 126 R. R. 551.

(6) (1854) 4 De G. M. & G. 674; 24 L. J. Ch. 531; 1 Jur. (N. S.) 193; 43 E. R. 671; 3 W. R. 98; 102 R. R. 326.

(7) (1860) 3 Macqueen H. L. 808; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 1311; 3 L. T. 65; 8 W. R. 373; 119 R. R. 1101.

JUGGUBUNDHE SAHA D. CHAND MOHAN SAHA.

Hickman (8); Anderson v. Wallace (9). But this would not entitle him to delegate his powers practically to another person. The decision must ultimately be his own judgment in the matter, although in the process of formation of that conclusion he may take the assistance of experts: Nanjappa v. Nanja Rao (10). When a charge of judicial misconduct of this description was made against the arbitrator, it was incumbent upon the Court to examine him to ascertain whether the allegation was well founded or not. This is obviously good sense; but if authority is needed for this elementary proposition, reference may be made to the decision of the Judicial Committee in Amir Begam v. Badruddin Husain (11). There is consequently no escape from the position that the Subordinate Judge has acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction, inasmuch as he as overruled the objection of judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, without enquiry and without reception of evidence material for the determination of the issue.

As regards the second ground, it is not disputed that the arbitrator did, by his award, impose restrictions upon the use of immoveable property which did not form the subject-matter of the litigation and of the reference. The decree of the Subordinate Judge, in so far as it confirms that award in this respect, is consequently made without jurisdiction. It is an elementary rule that the submission furnishes the source and prescribes the limits of the arbitrator's authority and the award both in substance and in form must conform to the submission. Consequently, as the arbitrators are inflexibly limited to a decision of the particular matters referred, if the award extends to matters not within the scope of the submission, it is void as regards the portion in excess of the submission: Hill v. Thorn (12); Hids v. Petit (13); Price v.

Popkin (14); Pascoe v. Pascoe (15); Baillie v. Edinburgh Oil Gas Light Co. (16); Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board of Works (17); Moshahel v. Konomutty (18); Narsingh Narain Singh v. Ajodhya Prosad Singh (19); Mohammad Muntaz Ali Khan v. Sakhawati Ali Khan (20). At the same time upon the materials placed before us, it seems that the award might have been amended so as to meet the objection taken on this ground; for as laid down by the Judicial Committee in Amir Begam v. Badruddin Husain (11) where the different parts of an award are severable and not dependent on each other, the illegal portion may be cancelled and effect given to the remainder. See also Buta v. Municipal Committee (21); Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board (17). The Subordinate Judge will deal with this matter, when the case goes back to him.

The result is that this Rule is made absolute, the decree of the Subordinate Judge set aside and the case remanded to him in order that it may be re-heard upon these two points. If the first objection succeeds, the award will be set aside and the Court will itself proceed to try the suit. If the first ground fails, the Court will proceed to consider how the award can be amended so that no restriction may be imposed upon the user of property which is not the subject-matter of the litigation. The costs of this Rule will abide the result. We assess the hearing fee at two gold mohurs.

Rule made absolute; Case remanded.

(14) (1839) 10 A. & E. 139; 2 P. & D. 304; 8 L. J. Q. B. 198; 3 Jur. 433; 113 E. R. 53; 50 R. R. 362.
(15) (1837) 3 Bing. (N. C.) 898; 5 Scott. 117; 3 Hodg's 18; 6 L. J. C. P. 322; 132 E. R. 656; 43 R. R. 847.

(16) (1835) 3 Cl. & F. 639; 6 E. R. 1577.
(17) (1870) 5 Ex. 221; 41 L. J. Ex. 137; 27 L. T. 1; 5 H. L. 418.
(18) 15 W. R. 172.
(19) 13 Ind. Cas. 118; 15 C. L. J. 110; 16 C. W. N. 256.
(20) 28 I. A. 190; 23 A. 394; 5 C. W. N. 581.
(21) 29 I. A. 168; 29 C. 854; 7 C. W. N. 52; 4 Bom. L. R. 673.

(8) (1824) 2 S. & S. 120; 3 L. J. Ch. 43; 57 E. R. 295.
(9) (1835) 3 Cl. & F. 26; 6 E. R. 1347.
(10) 16 Ind. Cas. 478; 23 M. L. J. 290; 12 M. L. T. 133; (1912) M. W. N. 1051.
(11) 23 Ind. Cas. 625; 18 C. W. N. 755; 19 C. L. J. 494; 36 A. 336; 1 O. L. J. 249; 12 A. L. J. 37; 17 O. C. 120; 16 Bom. L. R. 413; (1914) M. W. N. 172; 16 M. L. T. 35; 27 M. L. J. 181; 1 L. W. 1015.
(12) (1680) 2 Modern 319; 86 E. R. 1080.
(13) (1670) 1 Ch. Cas. 185; 2 Freeman 133; 22 E. R. 754.

KRISHNASWAMI PILLAI V. MOOKAYI AMMAL.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL No. 79 OF 1914.

August 10, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

KRISHNASWAMI PILLAI—DEFENDANT

No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

MOOKAYI AMMAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFF
AND DEFENDANTS NOS. 2 TO 14—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Charity owned by joint family—Agreement among members re management—Intention.

Where the members of a joint Hindu family, while dividing the family properties agreed that the charities should be managed by the head of the family in each branch for the time being, and where on the death of such a member his widow claimed to succeed him in the management as against a male descendant of the founder by one of his grand-daughters:

Held, that the language of the agreement clearly pointed to the intention that the management should be in the hands of the male heads and not in the hands of females; and that the widow could not claim to manage the charity even though it appeared that some females had previously asserted the right.

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly, in Original Suit No. 11 of 1913.

FACTS.—One Naga Pillai instituted certain Kattalais and Ubbayams in the Srirangam temple. In 1866 his sons, while dividing the family properties, made also a provision for the conduct of the charity, viz., that the head for the time being of the various branches of the family should manage the charity according to seniority. Plaintiff's husband was managing it till his death in 1907, when the plaintiff claimed to succeed him in the management of the said charity. The defendant, a descendant of the founder by one of his grand-daughters, claimed to be the sole trustee, and asserted his right to manage the charity on the ground that the plaintiff, being a female, was not entitled under the karar to take part in the management. The Sub-Judge gave a decree for the plaintiff, and the present appeal is against that decree.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Iyengar, for the Appellant:—The term "head of the family for the time being" refers only to males, and females are excluded.

INDIA GENERAL S. N. & R. CO. V. LAL MOHAN SAHA.

Mr. S. Venkatachariar, for the Defendant:—Instances of management by females have also occurred in this family, and the term must be understood to include females.

JUDGMENT.—In Exhibit B, to which all the members of the branch to which the plaintiff's husband belonged were parties, it was agreed that the charities were to be managed by the head of the family in each branch for the time being. We think the language clearly points to the intention that the management should be in the hands of the male head and not in the hands of females like the plaintiff. It is true that subsequently one of the widows asserted her right of management against the plaintiff's husband, but after obtaining a decree she gave up her right for a money compensation. The other fact relied on is that in Exhibit D series the leases were made out in the names of the female as well as the male members; but this appears to be accounted for by the fact that the branches were improperly dividing the trust properties among themselves and making payments for the performance of the charities, whereas it is now admitted that they had no beneficial interest in the charity properties. On the whole we are unable to agree with the Subordinate Judge that the plaintiff has proved her right of management. On this ground, the suit fails, and the appeal must be allowed and the plaintiff's suit dismissed with costs throughout.

Appeal allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 689 OF 1914.

June 9, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Roe.

INDIA GENERAL S. N. & R. CO. AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—PETITIONERS

versus

LAL MOHAN SAHA AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIX, rr. 1, 2—Companies, suit against—Proper framing of suit—Amendment of plaint—Service of notice after amendment.

INDIAN GENERAL S. N. & R. CO. v. LAL MOHAN SAHA.

In a suit against the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company for the recovery of damages on account of short delivery of goods committed to their care for transmission by them as public carriers, the plaintiff described the defendants in the plaint as the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company by their joint agent Mr. A. E. Rogers. When the case came on for trial, it was represented to the Court on behalf of Mr. Rogers that he had retired from the service of the Companies mentioned and had in fact left the country. The plaintiff thereupon applied to the Court for leave to omit the name of Mr. Rogers from the plaint. This application was granted and the suit was decreed ex parte as if it had been instituted properly against the two Companies:

Held, (1) that the plaint as originally framed was in contravention of rule 1 of Order XXIX, as the suit should have been framed against the two Companies, described by their proper names; [p. 56, col. 2.]

(2) that, as no question of limitation arose, the amendment of the plaint might stand, but the plaintiffs were bound to serve notices of the suit in the manner provided in rule 2 of Order XXIX after the amendment had been made and the suit properly constituted. [p. 56, col. 2.]

Civil Rule against the decision of the Small Cause Court Judge of Dacca, dated the 25th March 1914.

Babu Manmatha Nath Mukherjee, for the Petitioners.

Babu Prokas Chandra Majumdar, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This Rule was issued on the application of two of the defendants in the suit tried by the Court below. The plaintiffs opposite party instituted this suit against the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company for the recovery of damages on account of short delivery of goods committed to their care for transmission by them as public carriers. The third defendant, who was the consignor of the goods, was joined as a matter of form and no claim was made against him. The plaintiffs described the principal defendants as the India General Navigation and Railway Company and the River Steam Navigation Company by their joint agent Mr. A. E. Rogers. Mr. Rogers entered appearance and pleaded that the suit was not maintainable against him. When the case came on for trial, it was represented to the Court on behalf of Mr. Rogers that he had retired from the service of the Companies mentioned and had in fact left the country. The plaintiffs thereupon applied to the Court for leave to omit the name of Mr. Rogers from the plaint. This application was granted and the suit was decreed ex parte, as if it had been instituted properly against the two Companies. We are now invited to set aside this decree on the ground that the suit as brought was framed in contravention of rule 1, Order XXIX of the Code of Civil Procedure; and that if the application for amendment of the plaint was properly granted, the two Companies should have been served in accordance with rule 2 of Order XXIX. In support of this view reliance has been placed upon the cases of Ram Dase Sein v. Cecil Stephenson (1), Nubeen Chunder Paul v. Cecil Stephenson (2) and Campbell v. Jackson (3).

There is no room for controversy that the plaint as originally framed was in contravention of rule 1 of Order XXIX. But on behalf of the opposite party, an ingenious argument has been put forward that the suit was in essence brought against the two Companies and that the plaintiffs mentioned the name of Mr. Rogers as the person upon whom the process was to be served. There is obviously no foundation for this theory. The suit was substantially against Mr. Rogers although he was sued in his capacity as joint agent of the two Companies mentioned. The suit, however, should have been framed as one against two Companies, described by their proper names, as is clear from the decisions mentioned. There is plainly no excuse for the mistaken course deliberately adopted by the plaintiffs. Even a casual examination of the forms of pleadings appended to the Code of Civil Procedure makes it manifest that the suit was not properly framed; this form is identical with what was contained in section 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure of 1859. In the circumstances of this case, as no question of limitation arises even if the suit be taken to have been instituted against the two companies on the date when the plaint was allowed to be amended, we are of opinion that the amendment may stand. But the plaintiffs were bound to serve notices of the suit in the manner provided in rule 2 of Order XXIX after the amendment had been made and the

(1) 10 W. R. 306.

(2) 15 W. R. 534.

(3) 12 C. 41.

KANAYARAM V. TIRITHSING.

suit properly constituted. There is, moreover, nothing to show that Mr. Rogers was, in respect of each of the two Companies, a person entitled to receive notice under the provisions of that rule. It is needless, however, to deal with this aspect of the case in detail, because Mr. Rogers, it is conceded, is no longer connected with either Company.

The result is that this Rule is made absolute and the decree of the Small Cause Court Judge set aside. The case will be remitted to the Court below in order that the plaintiffs may proceed in accordance with law to serve the defendants, and then to have the suit tried afresh. We may add that a question has been raised before us as to the effect of the death of one of the plaintiffs during the pendency of the suit in the Court below; this will be determined by the Small Cause Court Judge when he takes up the case for final disposal. The petitioners are entitled to their costs in the Court. We assess the hearing fee at two gold mohurs.

Rule made absolute; Case remanded.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 24 OF 1913.

April 28, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C., and Mr. Crouch, A. J. C.

KANAYARAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—
APPELLANTS

versus

TIRITHSING AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 52—Decree for sale by 1st mortgagee—Subsequent mortgage in favour of 2nd mortgagee—Sale in execution of decree of 1st mortgagee, effect of, on second mortgage—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 89—Second mortgagee, right of.

A mortgaged certain land with B in 1903. B got a decree for sale of the mortgaged property in 1905. After the decree A mortgaged the same land by way of second mortgage with C in 1906. In 1910 the land was sold by the Court in execution of B's decree and purchased by D. The surplus after paying B's claim was paid away to A. Subsequently C filed the present suit against A and D claiming to have the mortgaged property re-sold.

Held, (1) that C had no remedy against the land but was only entitled to a personal decree and that what was sold at the sale in execution of the 1st mortgagee's decree was the right, title and interest of the mortgagor as it existed at the time of the first mortgage; [p. 38, col. 1.]

Dadoba v. Arjunji Damodar Raghunath, 16 B. 486, referred to.

(2) that the second mortgage being subsequent to the decree the second mortgagee had no rights other than those of the mortgagor through whom he claimed and was bound by the decree; [p. 38, col. 1.]

(3) that the mortgagor's right of redeeming the first mortgage was determined by the decree and the effect of the sale was to deprive the second mortgagee of his security; [p. 38, col. 1.]

(4) that as the second mortgagee failed to save his security by paying the amount of the decree on the first mortgage into Court under Order XXI, rule 89, as representative of the judgment-debtor, the mortgagor, he had no remedy against the land. [p. 38, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decision of the District Judge, Sukkur.

Mr. Dipchand T. Ojha, for the Appellants.

Mr. Kimatrai Bhojraj, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

PRATT, J. C.—The facts of the case are simple.

On the 19th April 1905 the first mortgagee obtained a decree for sale of the property in suit. On the 9th July 1906 the mortgagor, defendant No. 1, executed a second mortgage in favour of the plaintiffs who are appellants.

On the 9th March 1910 the property in suit was sold in execution of the first mortgagee's decree and was purchased by defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4.

The plaintiffs sue to enforce their 2nd mortgage by sale of the mortgaged property. The lower Appellate Court gave them a personal decree against the mortgagor, defendant No. 1, only.

The plaintiffs appeal claiming a decree for the sale of the property.

The claim is clearly unascertainable. If the second mortgage had been prior to the first mortgagee's suit, they would only have been entitled to recover the amount of their second mortgage out of the surplus sale-proceeds after the sale in satisfaction of the first mortgage. See Form 7, Appendix D of the Civil Procedure Code.

No doubt in that case they would have been at liberty to redeem the first mort.

KYROON BEE P. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS.

gage and to step into his shoes, but here they have not that right for the second mortgage being subsequent to the decree of the first mortgagee, the second mortgagees can have no rights other than those of the mortgagor through whom they claim and the mortgagor's right of redeeming the first mortgage was determined by the decree.

Further, what was sold at the sale in execution of the 1st mortgagee's decree was the right, title and interest of the mortgagor as it existed at the time of the first mortgage, Dadoba Arjanji v. Damodar Raghunath (1). The second mortgage being subsequent to the decree these second mortgagees are bound by it and the effect of the sale was to deprive them of their security.

The second mortgagees as representatives of the judgment-debtor, i. e. the mortgagor might have saved their security by paying the amount of the decree on the first mortgage into Court under Order XXI, rule 89. But they did not choose to do this and have, therefore, now no remedy against the land.

I would confirm the decree of the lower Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

CROUCH, A. J. C.—In this case plaintiffs sued for the recovery of Rs. 100, principal and interest, and sought for sale of certain land alleged to have been mortgaged to them by defendant No. 1. The lower Appellate Court has granted a personal decree against the defendants. Against this latter order plaintiffs appeal.

The facts of the case are as follows:—In 1903, the land in suit was mortgaged by Wasumal, defendant No. 1. The mortgagee instituted a suit to enforce his mortgage, and, in April 1905, a decree for sale was passed. In 1906 Wasumal purported to mortgage the land by way of second mortgage to plaintiffs. In 1910, the land was sold by the Court in execution of the mortgage decree for sale, and was purchased by Tirithsing, Ghanshamdas and Khubsing, respondents Nos. 1—3. The sale realised considerably more than the amount due to the mortgagee judgment-creditor and the surplus after satisfying the decree was withdrawn by the judgment-debtor, Wasumal. The purchasers under the Court-sale entered into possession of the land, and were in possession at date of suit.

Under the old Common Law rule of lis pendens, embodied in section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act, the judgment-debtor could not, after the date of decree for sale, deal with the property so as to affect the rights under the decree of the judgment-creditor. At the sale, the property was sold not subject to the alleged second mortgage, and the purchasers took the property free of it. All that could be transferred to the second mortgagee was such right in respect of the land as the judgment-debtor still had, that is, a right to receive the surplus purchase-money after satisfying the decree. He could not, by executing a deed of mortgage, compel the judgment-creditor to sell subject to the claim of the second mortgage, or compel the judgment-creditor to obtain payment, if he could do so. The plaintiff had, undoubtedly, an equitable right against the surplus sale-proceeds, but this right he made no attempt to enforce. No right, title, or interest in the land itself was transferred, and plaintiff cannot now enforce his claim by a sale of land. Nor has he any right of redemption, for the mortgagor's equity of redemption was sold at the Court-sale.

I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL NO. 88 OF 1914.

September 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

KYROON BEE AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—
APPELLANTS

versus

THE ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Letters Patent (Madras), cl. 15—Judgment—Appeal—Order setting aside abatement—Sufficient cause—Administrator-General's Act (II of 1834), ss. 17, 18—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) O. XXII, rr. 3,

KYROON BEE V. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS.

9—Abatement, order of, if necessary.

An order passed by a single Judge of the High Court sitting on the original side, setting aside the abatement of a suit is a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable. [p. 40 col. 1.]

Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; (1910) M. W. N. 696; S. M. L. T. 453; 35 M. 1; 21 M. L. J. 1, followed.

The sole plaintiff in a suit, a Muhammadan, died on 13th November 1911, leaving a widow, sons and daughters. On the 20th November 1911, the Administrator-General, Madras, was directed by the High Court to take possession of the estate, effects and assets of the deceased. On the 12th August 1913, an order was passed that the suit abated as no legal representative of the deceased had been brought on record. On the 2nd December 1913 the Administrator-General was directed to obtain Letters of Administration to the estate and this he did on 29th March 1914. On the 27th April 1914, he took out a Judge's summons praying that the abatement might be set aside and the suit restored to file and that he might be brought on record as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff. The order of abatement was set aside on the ground that sufficient cause had been shown by the Administrator-General for the delay.

Held, on appeal, that though the Administrator-General, so far as he was personally concerned, had sufficient cause for not making the application before April 1914, he had not explained why the other persons, who were the legal representatives of the deceased till he became such, had not applied to set aside the abatement, that the mere allegation, that the legal representatives had been quarrelling among themselves being no sufficient reason for excusing the delay and that the order setting aside the abatement ought to be set aside. [p. 40, col. 2; p. 41, col. 1.]

Fulvahu v. Goculdas Talabdas, 9 B. 275, distinguished.

Quære.—Whether under the new Code of Civil Procedure an order that the suit shall abate is necessary before an abatement of suit takes place? [p. 41, col. 1.]

Appeal from the judgment and order of His Lordship the Officiating Chief Justice, dated the 30th September 1914, in the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the Madras High Court, in Civil Suit No. 357 of 1911.

FACTS.—One A. G. Mahomed Ghouse instituted Civil Suit No. 357 of 1911 against the defendants on the Original Side of the High Court, Madras, upon an alleged equitable mortgage created in his favour by the defendants, by deposit of title deeds of certain immoveable property situated in Madras. He died on 13th November 1911, leaving behind him a widow, sons and daughters. By an order passed by the High Court, dated 29th November 1911, the Administrator-General, Madras, was directed by the High Court to take possession of the estate, effects and assets of the deceased. As no legal representatives had been brought on record, the suit was on 12th August 1913 declared to have abated.

On 2nd December 1913 the Administrator-General was directed by the High Court to obtain Letters of Administration to the estate. This he applied for on 20th February 1914 and got the Letters of Administration on 29th March 1914. On the 27th April 1914 he took out a Judge's summons to show cause why the abatement should not be set aside and the suit restored to file and why such further or other relief should not be granted as to the Court may seem fit under the circumstances. In support of this Judge's summons he filed an affidavit which, in addition to the above facts, alleged that on 6th January 1912 he got information that the title-deeds (the subject of the equitable mortgage in suit) were with one Gulam Khadir, the father-in-law of one of the sons of the deceased, that in the correspondence which ensued between him and Gulam Khadir, the latter set up a sub-mortgage in his favour by the deceased, that on 3rd December 1912 plaintiff's Vakil intimated to him of the pendency of the present suit, that though the Vakil was written to on 6th December 1912 to go to him and though a reminder was sent on 16th January 1914 he failed to respond to the same, that in the meanwhile criminal proceedings had to be instituted against one of the sons of the deceased for having destroyed a valuable security when he had gone to the Administrator-General's office for inspecting the account books of the deceased, that as a consequence thereof and also owing to quarrels among the sons of the deceased none of the heirs of the deceased would go to him to instruct him regarding the estate, that in the interval there was also a prospect of the differences between the parties being settled amicably as the matters in dispute had been referred to arbitrators and that consequently there was reasonable cause for the delay in putting in that application. The defendants opposed the summons on the ground that there was no sufficient reason for excusing the delay, inasmuch as the Administrator-General was empowered so early as 29th November 1911 to take possession of the estate and there had been nothing to prevent him from continuing the suit. Wallis, Offg. C.J., who heard the summons, set aside the abatement. His order was as follows:—

KYROON BEE V. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS.

"The deceased died in November 1911 and the Administrator-General did not obtain Letters of Administration till March 1914 and made his application on 27th April 1914. I think the application was made with reasonable promptitude after the grant. As regards the fact that the Administrator-General was authorised to collect and take possession of the estate of the deceased under section 17 of the Act, there was a similar order in Fulvahu v. Goculdas Valabdas (1), but that was not held to debar the Administrator-General from applying to set aside the abatement within a reasonable time after the grant. On a consideration of all the facts deposed to in the affidavit, I think there was reasonable cause and set aside the abatement. The Administrator-General to be brought as plaintiff. Costs in cause."

Against this order the defendants preferred this appeal.

Mr. Mir Amiruddin for Mr. D. Chamier, for the Respondent raised a preliminary objection that no appeal lay and relied on Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (2). This objection was overruled.

Mr. T. R. Ramachandra Iyer (with him Mr. V. C. Seshachariar), for the Appellants:—The learned Judges erred in setting aside the abatement. Either the Administrator-General was entitled to come in or he was not. If the former, there is no sufficient explanation for the delay from November 1911 to April 1914. The circumstances stated are insufficient in law. Vide Kichilappa Naickar v. Ramannujam Pillai (3). The order of the High Court, dated 29th November 1911, directing the Administrator-General to take possession of the estate of the deceased had the force of Probate. Vide C. S. Hogg v. Hurry Doss Dutt (4). If he was not entitled to come in, the widow, sons and daughters of the deceased were his legal representatives and no explanation has been offered as to why they failed to apply in time to come on record or to set aside the abatement.

Mr. Mir Amiruddin, for the Respondent, conceded that till the grant of the Letters of Administration, the Administrator-General had no right to come in and argued that owing to disputes between the sons of the deceased nothing could be done earlier and that sufficient cause had been shown for setting aside the abatement.

JUDGMENT.—The respondent's learned Counsel took a preliminary objection that no appeal lay as the order appealed against was not a judgment. We overrule the preliminary objection as we are satisfied that an order setting aside the abatement of a suit is a judgment as interpreted by the Full Bench in the case Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (2), though it may be, to use the words of the learned Chief Justice in the above case, "an order on an independent proceeding which is ancillary to the suit."

The respondent's learned Counsel concedes that till his client (the Administrator-General of Madras) obtained Letters of Administration in March 1914, his client was not the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff and that the deceased's widow and his two sons and his other children were his legal representatives. The suit abated six months after the plaintiff's death, that is, in May 1912. The present application was made by the Administrator-General in April 1914, more than 20 months after an application to set aside the abatement became barred. Section 5 of the Limitation Act, read with Order XXII, rule 9, of the Civil Procedure Code, no doubt, empowers the Court to excuse this 20 months' delay if the applicant satisfies the Court that there was sufficient cause for not making the application before July 1912. The learned Judge holds that the Administrator-General, so far as he personally is concerned, has shown sufficient cause why he did not make this application before April 1914. But it seems to us that the long delay of those persons who were the deceased plaintiff's legal representatives till the Administrator-General became such legal representative, ought to have been also explained satisfactorily before the abatement could be set aside so as to prejudice the defendants, and we could see nothing in the affidavit filed in support of the application to explain such delay, except the allegation that two of the legal representatives of the plaintiff were quarrelling among themselves.

(1) 9 B. 275.

(2) 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. I.; (1910) M. W. N. 696; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1.

(3) 25 M. 116.

(4) 1 Boul. 654; 3 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 394.

WILLIAM GRAHAM v. PHANINDRA NATH MITTER.

As regards the case of Fulrahu v. Goculdas Valabdas (1), relied on by the learned Judge, that was decided under the old Civil Procedure Code of 1877. Sections 366 and 368 of the old Code contemplated the passing of an order of abatement by the Court before the suit abated and for the setting aside of such an order by a second order. In that case the order of the Court that the suit shall abate and the second order setting aside the order of abatement were passed on the same day and hence no question of limitation in respect of the application to set aside the abatement arose. In the present case the abatement took place in May 1912 and even if under the new Code a first order that the suit shall abate is necessary before the abatement takes place, that order also had been passed several months before the application to set aside the abatement was filed. The case of Fulrahu v. Goculdas Valabdas (1), therefore, seems to have no application.

We are, therefore, constrained to set aside the order of the learned Judge and to direct that the application of the Administrator-General do stand dismissed. Costs of all parties except the heirs of the plaintiff under the Muhammadan Law are to come out of the estate.

Appeal allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE NO. 166 OF 1911.

June 11, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice D. Chatterjee and Mr. Justice Chapman.

WILLIAM GRAHAM—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

PHANINDRA NATH MITTER AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 13, 35, 83—Chittas, if admissible in evidence—Entry in public registers, relevancy of—Bengal Survey Act (V of 1875), ss. 41, 63.

Where chittas were prepared by Government as only part of and in explanation of proceedings which were regularly taken for the assessment of rent upon lands said to be improperly held rent-free and where the whole of the proceedings together with the petition, under which the proceedings were initiated, and the reports of the Collector and the orders of the Board of Revenue were put in evidence:

Held, that all the papers taken together furnished a valuable evidence. [p. 43, col. 1.]

Held, also, that the chittas were admissible in evidence inasmuch as they were coupled with proceedings which were of the nature of resumption proceedings and the lands therein were identifiable. [p. 44, col. 1.]

An entry in a register prescribed by law and being a public register kept for the public benefit under the sanction of official duty is relevant under section 35 of the Evidence Act no matter whether the clerk who wrote the entry had any personal knowledge or whether the register was a copy of a previous register which had become untidy. [p. 44, cols. 1 & 2.]

A decision under the Survey Act based upon a survey map made behind the plaintiffs is not binding on the Civil Courts upon the question of title. [p. 44, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the 1st Subordinate Judge of 24-Pargannahs, dated the 20th of December 1910.

Babus Charu Chandra Biswas, and Satyendra Nath Mitter, for the Appellant.

Babus Nilmadhab Bose and Rupendra Kumar Mitter (for Babu Hara Kumar Mitter), for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In the suit out of which this appeal arises the plaintiffs claimed a plot of land roughly thirteen kotas in area in Kidderpore, suburb of Calcutta. The plaintiffs derived their title in the following way. At the beginning of the last century the Government constructed a new road in that locality. A survey was made in 1800 and again in 1801 for the purpose of assessing the compensation to be awarded to the persons from whom the lands for the road were taken. It appears that certain side-lands, which had been taken and might subsequently be required for the purposes of the road, were then noted as dar-i-pin lands: the lands which had been taken and which lay outside these dar-i-pin lands were noted as be-darkari or surplus lands and these latter surplus lands were settled with former holders under lakheraj sanads. In 1810 the plaintiffs' ancestor Ram Bhadra Mitra received such a sanad (Exhibit 11) in respect of seven kotas of this surplus land. In order apparently to regularise these settlements and to assess rent for land improperly held, a fresh survey was undertaken with the result that in 1837 the heirs of Ram Bhadra Mitra received a notice to the effect that they had been found in possession of 9 kotas 9 chittaks 10 gundas of land and were asked to prove their title to it. The heirs of Ram Bhadra Mitra were invited to take settlement of the excess land found in their possession. In 1840, however, there appears to have been yet another survey and measurement by an amin, Kalipada Chatterjee. The Board of Revenue were not satisfied and directed yet another survey. This was carried out by a Deputy Collector, Radha Nath Ganguly in 1846. He found the heirs of Ram Bhadra Mitra in possession of eight kotas 7 chittaks 12 gundas in two plots which were numbered 168 and 169 (Exhibit 8c). The Board of Revenue, however, eventually decided that no rent could reasonably be demanded for any of the excess lands reported to be in possession of tenants. The heirs of Ram Bhadra Mitra therefore remained in possession of their two plots Nos. 168 and 169 rent free as before. The plaintiffs claim, and we think reasonably, that their possession of plots Nos. 168 and 169 can be related back to the sanad granted to their ancestor Ram Bhadra Mitra in 1810 (Exhibit 11). It is not disputed that the plaintiffs are the heirs of Ram Bhadra Mitra, the grantee of that sanad.

WILLIAM GRAHAM C. PHANINDRA NATH MITTER.

The defendants do not now contest the facts above set forth, except to somewhat faintly suggest that the connection between the sanad of 1810 and the plots Nos. 168 and 169 had not been made out. We are satisfied, however, that the connection has been made out. The questions for our determination, therefore, are:—First, whether the land which has been decreed to the plaintiffs has been properly identified with the plots Nos. 168 and 169 above referred to? and secondly whether the plaintiffs have been in possession within 12 years of the suit?

It will be observed that 13 kotas were claimed in the plaint. But as the case was put before us the plaintiffs did not claim more than the land which had been identified with the said plots Nos. 168 and 169.

The immediate occasion of the suit was a decision under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, affirmed by the Commissioner in appeal in July 1908 to the effect that the plaintiffs were in possession of two kotas odd only. We shall deal in the proper place with the bearing of this decision on the merits. The present suit was instituted in July 1909.

The suit was decreed in part, that is, a decree was given for the land identified as plots Nos. 168 and 169 above referred to. The defendants appealed to this Court, and the plaintiffs filed a cross-objection averring that they were entitled to the entire 13 kotas claimed by them. At the hearing of the appeal the learned Judges observed that the western boundary of the land had not been determined and remanded the case for a finding on this point. A finding has been come to and has been submitted. The whole case has been argued before us de novo. The cross-objection by the plaintiffs has not been pressed.

We proceed to consider the first question, namely, whether the land which has been decreed to the plaintiffs has been properly identified with plots Nos. 168 and 169 of the survey of 1846. No map of 1846 is forthcoming. What we have is a serial list of holdings (Exhibits 8a to 8c). The relation of each holding to the holding bearing the previous number is noted. The name of the possessor and a description of the boundaries of each holding is given. The length, breadth and area are also noted. It is also noted whether the land is 'dar-i-pin', i.e., within the boundaries of the lands reserved as side-lands for the purposes of the road or whether it is surplus land. The results obtained by the amin in 1840 and by the Deputy Collector in 1846 are both given. These lists are called chittas. They are more than 30 years old, have been produced from proper custody and can be presumed to be genuine.

It has been argued that these chittas cannot be treated as evidence without proof of their accuracy. It is said that they are not public documents within the meaning of section 83 of the Evidence Act and that the chittas having been prepared by the Government for their own private use, they cannot in any case be used as evidence. Among other cases the case of Ram Chunder Sao v. Bunseedhur Naik (1) is relied on. But in the case now before us the chittas are only part of and in explanation of proceedings which were regularly taken for the assessment of rent upon lands said to be improperly held rent free. The whole of the proceedings have been put up in evidence including the petition under which the proceedings were initiated, the reports of the Collector and the orders of the Board of Revenue. All these papers taken together furnish valuable evidence that the Government recognised the right of the plaintiffs' predecessors to hold the land described in the chittas as rent free. In the case of Ram Chunder Sae v. Bunsedhur Naik (1) upon which the appellants relied Garth, C. J., was of opinion that the chittas in that case coupled with the resumption proceedings would have been admissible. Here the chittas are coupled with proceedings which are of the nature of resumption proceedings. The persons who made the measurements are dead, but there is evidence on the record that measurement was actually made. The appellants have not in fact had the temerity to contend that the chittas were prepared without any measurement at all. The report of the Commissioner leaves no doubt in our minds that there was actual measurement. Whether it was sufficiently accurate to make identification of the plots Nos. 168 and 169 possible is a question which we shall proceed next to determine. If that be determined in favour of the chittas, the remaining objection to their admissibility must fail.

WILLIAM GRAHAM V. PHANINDRA NATH MITTER.

We proceed then to consider in detail whether plots Nos. 168 and 169 of the chittas have been properly identified. For the preliminary consideration of this question the map recently prepared by Mr. Smart, Superintendent of Survey, may be referred to. A cursory examination of the chittas will reveal the fact that they assume that the Circular Garden Reach Road runs due north and that the directions of east and west and south are assumed to correspond. That this is the basis upon which the chittas have been prepared has now been conceded in argument. The next point to consider is that there are two landmarks on the map which can reasonably be assumed to have remained unaltered since the time of the chittas, one is the Panchanan Tola, an ancient shrine at the corner of Watgunge Street (plot No. 158 of the chittas), and the other is the Munshigunge Road (plot No. 166 of the chittas). Considerable argument was addressed to us regarding the location of plot No. 158 and the plots intervening between it and the Munshi-gunge Road. We do not think it necessary to go into this in detail, as the result intended was only to indicate that the chittas of these plots were somewhat carelessly prepared. There is nothing to suggest that the location of the Munshigunge Road, plot No. 166, has altered except in the matter of two feet in breadth, which may be neglected. The plots which we are concerned with are on the other side of the Munshigunge Road and their identification is not affected by any carelessness in preparing chittas of the plots on the Panchanan Tola side.

The area between the Munshigunge Road and Tolly's Nala is comparatively small. Assuming, as we are entitled to do, that plots Nos. 168 and 169 of the chittas are the lands granted by the sanad of 1810, the area within which these plots must be found is still further restricted, for according to the sanad they must be within 250 feet of the Bridge Road.

Taking the plot next in number to the Munshigunge Road in chittas we come to plot No. 167. This is described in the chittas as at the corner of the Munshigunge Road and the Bridge Road. There are two plots now at this corner numbered in Mr. Smart's map No. 145 and 145/1. Plot No. 145/1 is at the corner but has been found to be dar-i-pin land, i.e., land included in the side-lands of the road. Plot No. 145 has thus been identified as plot No. 167 of the chittas. We are satisfied that the finding that plot No. 145/1 is dar-i-pin land is correct. From the configuration of the approaches to the road in Mr. Smart's map it is fairly obvious that it is dar-i-pin. It is so described in the official register and that it is dar-i-pin is in accord with the statement in an old official paper (Exhibit C) (referred to without objection) that 15 feet of dar-i-pin land was left on each side of the road after the drain. The actual width of plot No. 145/1 is about 18 feet. If No. 145/1 is dar-i-pin land, then plot No. 145 of Mr. Smart's map is certainly plot No. 167 of the chittas. The area of plot No. 145 differs from plot No. 167 by five chittaks odd only and this the Commissioner says can be accounted for, by the recently constructed drains. Plot No. 167 of the chittas being thus determined it follows that plots Nos. 168 and 169 must be where they have been located by the decree. The only argument that can be put forward to the contrary is to suggest that the words purba dakshin in the description of the boundaries of plot No. 167 in the chittas mean south and east, and not south-east as they undoubtedly do and that a portion of plots Nos. 168 and 169 lay directly to the so-called east of plot No. 67 and had been absorbed by the thakurbari. We are not prepared to accept the meaning sought to be put on the word purba dakshin. There is evidence that the area of the thakurbari plot has increased considerably since the time of the chittas, but there was room for considerable encroachment towards the road side. There is nothing to indicate encroachment towards plot No. 145; on the contrary, there is evidence that there was formerly a boundary wall on that side (defence witness No 8). We are satisfied that plots Nos. 168 and 169 have been properly located by the decree. We may say that in the argument in appeal the location of the western boundary was not seriously attacked, except upon general grounds such as those indicated above. Assuming our reasoning to be correct, nothing has been said to lead us to think that the western boundary has not been properly determined. We are satisfied with the grounds given by the Commissioner for his finding on this point.

WILLIAM GRAHAM V. PHANINDRA NATH MITTER.

The decision under the Survey Act was based upon a partition map made behind the backs of the plaintiffs. It is not, of course, binding upon us upon the question of title. And it does not preclude us from finding that during a period anterior to that decision the plaintiffs were in possession.

It has been argued that the extract from the official register (Exhibit 3), which as will be seen above we relied upon for proof that plot No. 145/1 was dari-i-pin land, was not admissible in evidence. The register was produced by a Government Survey Inspector (plaintiff's witness No. 1). It is a register of the Survey Office. Now the registers kept in the Survey Office are prescribed by the Board of Revenue under section 63 of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875. The register, therefore, appears to have been prescribed by law. In any event, it was a public register kept for the public benefit under the sanction of official duty. It matters not whether the clerk who actually wrote the entries had any personal knowledge or whether the register was a copy of a previous register which had become untidy. The entry was clearly relevant under section 35 of the Indian Evidence Act.

As regards possession within 12 years of the suit we are satisfied that this has been made out. Defendant No. 2, Khetra Mohan Ghose and his father before him held the land (the plaintiffs say) under them. Khetra Mohan sub-let to defendant No. 3, Shayama Charan and under arrangement with Khetra, Shayama Charan paid Khetra's rent direct to the plaintiffs. The defence case was that only two kotas of the land were thus held by Khetra and Shayama Charan under the plaintiffs and that the remainder was held under the defendants. Khetra is in the service of the defendants and his evidence on the point is, therefore, wholly unreliable. The plaintiffs, after giving Khetra and Shayama Charan notice to produce the original rent receipts, themselves produced counterfoils showing that rent was paid to them till well within 12 years of the suit for the entire area in suit. This is supported by the following circumstances. The defendant No. 2 Khetra Mohan, says in his evidence that before Shayama Charan his mother, Hara Sundari was the tenant. In 1902 the principal defendants sued Hara Sundari in ejectment. The suit ended in a compromise in which the principal defendants agreed with Hara Sundari to pay "the rent and tax which is paid to Thakurdas Mitra" (the father of the present plaintiffs). The areas roughly correspond to the areas in dispute in the present suit and the inference is that the principal defendants then admitted that the father of the present plaintiffs was in possession in 1902. The suit, therefore, was not barred by limitation.

We agree with the finding that the attempt to deprive the plaintiffs of the property was engineered by the defendant No. 2, Khetra Mohan Ghose, who was in the service of the principal defendants when he became a tenant of the land under the plaintiffs.

We desire to acknowledge the assistance we have received from the Bar,

NARAIN DAS V. RALLI BROTHERS.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.
Hearing fee three hundred rupees.
The cross-objection is dismissed.
Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 469 OF 1912.

March 16, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and
Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

NARAIN DAS AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
APPELLANTS

versus

RALLI BROTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—

RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act I of 1908), O. XXXII, r. 3 —Appointment of guardian ad litem. Omission to make formal order, effect of—Manager of joint family, death of—Liability of sons for debts of the firm—
Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 247.

Where the plaintiffs duly made an application for the appointment of a guardian ad litem of the minor defendants and the Court issued notices as required by Order XXXII, rule 3, sub-rule 4, and the guardian took all proper steps to defend the case:

Held, that the mere omission to pass a formal order to appoint him as guardian ad litem was a mere irregularity which could be condoned and did not amount to a defect vitiating all proceedings. [p. 45, col. 2.]

Walian v. Banke Behari Pershad Singh, 30 C. 1021; 30 I. A. 182; 7 C. W. N. 774; 5 Bom. L. R. 882; Dhanpat Mal v. Khazana, 67 P. R. 1897, referred to.

Where the father of the minor defendants was a partner in a firm and as Manager of a joint Hindu family consisting of himself and his sons represented the whole family in the partnership:

Held, (1) that his death did not bring about a dissolution of the partnership and the family, which may be regarded as a persona, remained partners both before and after his death; [p. 45, col. 2.]

Maharaj Kishen v. Har Gobind, 27 Ind. Cas. 69; 101 P. R. 1914; 218 P. L. R. 1915, referred to;

(2) that the liability of the minors for the debts of the firm was limited only to their share in the firm. [p. 46, col. 1.]

Joykisto Cowar v. Nityanand Nundy, 3 C. 738; 2 C. L. R. 440; 3 Ind. Jar. 117, followed.

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Multan Division, dated the 26th December 1911.

Mr. Gobind Das, for the Appellants.

Mr. Morton, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal preferred by Mussammatt Sita Bai on behalf of her minor sons. In the lower Courts their uncle, Than Ram, acted as their guardian ad litem, and it is alleged by the mother that he did not properly defend the suit and that his action has prejudiced the minors. As the good faith of Than Ram has been impeached, we consider it desirable to remove him from the office of the guardian ad litem and appoint Mussammatt Sita Bai instead for the purpose of prosecuting the appeal (Vide Order XXXII rule 11).

Upon the merits we think that, with the exception of a slight modification in the form of the decree, the judgment of the learned Divisional Judge is quite correct and that this appeal must fail. We entertain no doubt whatever that the minors were effectively represented in the Court of first instance by Than Ram, for whose appointment as guardian ad litem an application was duly made by the plaintiffs and whereupon the Court issued notice as required by Order XXXII, rule 3, sub-rule 4. He engaged a Pleader to defend the case against the minors and took all proper steps to present their case to the Court. In these circumstances the omission to pass a formal order to appoint him as guardian ad litem is a mere irregularity which can be condoned and does not amount to a defect vitiating all proceedings; see, inter alia, Walian v. Banke Behari Pershad Singh (1) and Dhanpat Mal v. Khazana (2).

It is abundantly clear that Sita Ram, their father, was a partner in the firm of Sita Ram-Channu Ram and that he, being the Manager of the joint Hindu family consisting of himself and his sons, represented the whole family in the partnership. His death did not, therefore, bring about a dissolution of the partnership and the family, which may be regarded as a persona, remained partner both before and after his death [Maharaj Kishen v. Har Gobind (3)]. Even if there was a technical dissolution we are of opinion that the partnership was renewed on the old terms. The minors were consequently partners in the firm at the time when the contracts in dispute were entered into, and we fail to understand why the omission on the part of Than Ram to raise the false plea that they were not partners should be regarded as an act of negligence by the guardian.

(1) 30 C. 1021; 30 I. A. 182; 7 C. W. N. 774; 5 Bom. L. R. 882.

(2) 67 P. R. 1897.

(3) 27 Ind. Cas. 69; 101 P. R. 1914; 218 P. L. R. 1915.

AYYA RAGHUNATHA P. THIRUMALAI ECHAMBADI.

As to the amount of damages and brokerage, the learned Judge of the Court of first instance has given very sound reasons for his conclusions, and it is noteworthy that at the time of the hearing of the appeal in the lower Appellate Court the findings of the District Judge were not challenged on behalf of the minors. We have considered the question and do not see any sufficient reason for taking a different view.

As regards the extent of the liability of the minors, the rule laid down in Jaykisto Coorav v. Nittyanund Nundy (4) and section 247 of the Indian Contract Act makes only the shares of the minors in the firm liable for the debts thereof and Mr. Morton for the respondents states that this is what the lower Appellate Court intended to do and has actually done. Mr. Gobind Das, on the other hand, contends that the decree as framed is ambiguous and capable of the construction that the entire ancestral property of the minors, whether forming part of the firm's assets or not, has been made liable for the decretal amount. We have considered the terms of the decree and are of opinion that they are not free from ambiguity.

We, therefore, modify it so as to direct that the minors' liability is confined to their shares in the assets of the firm and that neither their person nor their other property is liable for the amount decreed against them. In all other respects the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal partly allowed.

(4) 3 C. 738; 2 C. L. R. 440; 3 Ind. Jur. 117.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL MISCELLANEOUS PETITION NO. 2161
OF 1915.

September 24, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

AYYA RAGHUNATHA THATHA-CHARIAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—PETITIONERS

versus

THIRUMALAI ECHAMBADI THIRU-VENGADACHARIAR AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

*Appeal—Privy Council appeal—Leave to appeal—
Case below appealable value—Test for certifying case fit for appeal—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 109 cl. (c), 110, O. XLV, rr. 2, 3, 8.*

Where a case is admittedly below the appealable value a certificate declaring it a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council ought not to be granted unless there is some substantial question of law of general interest involved. [p. 47, col. 2.]

Motichand v. Ganga Prasad Singh, 24 A. 174 (P. C.); 10 I. A. 40; 6 C. W. N. 362; 4 Bom. L. R. 156; Bombay Hydraulic Traction Corporation v. Dorabji Cursetji Shroff, 27 B. 415; 5 Bom. L. R. 348; Sadagaya Chariar v. Krishnaswamy Row, 4 A. L. J. 33; 11 C. W. N. 585; 5 C. L. J. 566; 17 M. L. J. 240; 9 Bom. L. R. 663; 2 M. L. T. 204; 50 M. 185 at p. 188 (P. C.); 10 I. A. 93, followed.

Petition praying that in the circumstances stated therein and in the affidavit filed therewith, the High Court will be pleased to grant a certificate to enable the petitioners to appeal to His Majesty in Council against the decree of this Court, in Appeal No. 175 of 1910, preferred against the decree of the District Court of Chingleput, in Original Suit No. 10 of 1906.

Mr. T. Narasimha Aiyangar, for the Petitioners.

Mr. C. Narasimha Chariar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—This is an application for the grant of a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to his Majesty in Council from the judgment of this Court in Appeal No. 175 of 1910*. The application as amended is filed under section 109, clause (c), of the Civil Procedure Code read with Order XLV, rules 2, 3 and 8. I think the more accurate way of describing the application is that it is filed under Order XLV, rule 2 alone. The ground stated in the application is that though the case does not fulfil the requirements of section 110, it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council and hence comes within the last sentence of Order XLV, rule 3, clause 1, the power to appeal being given by section 109, clause (c). As was pointed out by my learned brother in the course of the arguments, there is no express section or Order in the Civil Procedure Code directing the Court to issue a certificate when it finds that an applicant under Order XLV, rule 2, has established grounds entitling the applicant to a certificate. Order XLV, rule 7 seems, however, to imply that the Court should grant a certificate where proper grounds are shown for such grant and where the opposite party to whom notice goes under Order XLV, rule 3, clause 2, has failed to show cause against the grant of the certificate.

*See 28 Ind. Cas. 604—Ed.

AYYA RAGHUNATHA V. THIRUMALAI EACHAMBADI.

In Motichand v. Ganga Prasad Singh (1) their Lordships of the Privy Council state at page 177: "But then Mr. Mayne suggests that their Lordships ought to give special leave to appeal. Now, the practice of this Board in advising His Majesty to exercise His prerogative and to give special leave to appeal, is well known, and this Board does not advise His Majesty to exercise His prerogative in that manner unless there is some substantial question of law of general interest involved." Then at page 178 their Lordships say: "Their Lordships think it is a good rule to lay down that where a party comes for special leave to appeal, the case being under appealable value, and, therefore, not an appeal as of right, he should in the first instance apply to the High Court for leave to appeal, on the ground that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council." It seems to me that when the High Court has to consider the question whether it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to "His Majesty in Council," it might legitimately look to the criterion of fitness laid down by the practice followed by their Lordships in advising His Majesty to give special leave to appeal, the Legislature in the Civil Procedure Code having itself given no indications as to the criterion of fitness to be adopted by the High Court under Order XLV, rule 3, clause 1. I do not, of course, mean that our powers are so wide as those exercised by the Board in granting special leave but that where the Privy Council states a guiding principle, we can safely adopt that.

Jenkins, C. J., seems to have followed that rule in the case in Bombay Burmah Trading Corporation v. Dorabji Cursetji Shroff (2). At page 418 he says: "It is, however, obvious that the financial and commercial position of the company may be seriously affected by the questions at issue, and having regard to that and to the importance to Indian Companies generally that these rights should be precisely defined in relation to the point that has arisen in this case, I think that we ought to certify that the case is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council." Though Sir Lawrence Jenkins does not refer in his judgment to Motichand v. Ganga Prasad Singh (1), that case was cited before him in the course of the arguments. (See the report at page 416.) Again in Sadugopa Chariar v. Krishnamoorthy Row (3), their Lordships of the Privy Council through Lord Macnaghten made the following pronouncement: "The High Court refused leave to appeal on the ground that the matter in dispute was below the appealable value. Special leave, however, was granted on the representation that the appeal raised questions of law of general importance touching the rights of religious bodies in India in regard to public processions, and the right of one religious body to prevent a rival sect and an alien deity from invading precincts apparently public but devoted or appropriated from time immemorial to the observance of its own peculiar ritual and worship; and at the same time involved the consideration of the effect of previous decisions on similar questions between members of different sects of one and the same community." At page 190 their Lordships say: "Their Lordships may observe that it (the suit) does not seem to involve such far-reaching issues as were put forward in the petition asking for special leave to appeal."

I am, therefore, clear that unless in this case there is some substantial question of law of general interest involved, we ought not to certify that this is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council, it being admitted that the case is below the appealable value.

In coming to a conclusion on the above question, I might be permitted to remark in the first place that neither myself nor my learned brother was a member of the Bench (Sir C. Sankaran Nair and Oldfield, JJ.) who decided the case of Tirumalai Eachambadi v. Royadurgam Krishnasami (4). Both these learned Judges are now on leave and one of them is not returning to this Court. This is rather unfortunate, as the applicants' learned Vakil interpreted the judgment of this Court as imposing more stringent restrictions on the actions and the rights of the applicants (defendants

(3) 30 M. 185 at p. 188; 4 A. L. J. 333; 11 C. W. N. 585; 5 C. L. J. 566; 17 M. L. J. 240; 9 Bom. L. R. 663; 2 M. L. T. 204 (P. C.); 20 I. A. 93.

(4) 28 Ind. Cas. 604; (1915) M. W. N. 281.

(1) 24 A. 174; 29 I. A. 40; 6 C. W. N. 362; 4 Bom. L. R. 156.

(2) 27 B. 415; 5 Bom. L. R. 348.

AYYA RAGHUNATHA V. THIRUMALAI ECHAMBADI.

Nos. 2, 4, 5, 6 and 9) and of the Vadagalai sectarians represented by them than the law allows, while the respondents' Vakil argued that the said interpretation of the judgment by the applicants' learned Vakil was inaccurate.

After hearing full arguments, I think that the learned Judges' decision involved the following findings and issues:—

(a) The Vadagalai defendants are entitled to recite any portion of the Tamil Vedas, called Prabhandham either at the time of the processions within the temple or at other places in the temple of Varadarajah Swami at Conjeeveram where the Thengalais do not carry on the worship. There is nothing in the law to prevent any Vadagalai from worshipping the deities consistently with the equal rights of other worshippers. There is nothing to prevent any Vadagalai from reciting any portion of the Prabandham separately and as an act of personal devotion. But it would be an interference in the regular poojah or worship within the temple between the time of its commencement (with the ringing of the bells) and its close (with the distribution of Thirtham and Prasadham) and it would be a violation also of the Tengalai plaintiffs' mirasi Adyapakam office right if the Vadagalais form a goshti or a congregation of their own and repeat a portion of the Tamil Vedas which is different from that portion of the Tamil Vedas which is being recited as a part of the regular temple worship by the Tengalai mirasidars during the time of such worship within the temple.

(b) That when a procession is taken along the public streets outside the temple according to the temple customary practice, that procession is a compact organised procession from the front portion of that procession, which begins at the spot in front of the carved image of the deity where the Tengalai miras office-holders recite in a congregation the Tamil Vedas, up to the point behind the vehicle of the image where the Vadagalai office-holders recite the Sanskrit Vedas.

(c) That the Vadagalais are entitled to join the Tengalai goshti reciting the Tamil Vedas and join that chanting with the Tengalai office-holders but should not chant a different portion of the Tamil Vedas

(similarly as regards the right of the Tengalais to join the Vadagalais' Sanskrit Veda, reciting goshti in the rear-subject to similar restrictions).

(d) The Vadagalais should not, however, form an organised congregation or ghosti of their own between the front end and back end of the religious procession and chant the Tamil Vedas as a separate group, as that will be setting up a rival right as against Tengalai miras office-holders and will be an interference with such rights, whereas the recital by an individual Vadagalai devotee of a stanza or stanzas in the Tamil Vedas is a bona fide devotional act of private worship even when he has joined the procession as an individual worshipper, and it would not be an interference with the congregational recital led by the Tengalai miras officials.

(e) There is nothing to prevent the Vadagalais from even forming an organised goshti and reciting Tamil Vedas or anything they like at a reasonable distance in front of the Tengalai Tamil Veda-reciting goshti which begins the procession, or at a reasonable distance behind the temple procession which ends with the Sanskrit Veda-reciting goshti.

On these conclusions, the learned Judges (Sankaran Nair and Oldfield, JJ.) passed a decree modifying slightly the decree of the Court of first instance.

In this application for a certificate to appeal 28 grounds of attack are mentioned. But most of them are either general attacks or recitals of facts and repetitions and may be ignored. The only grounds, therefore, which need be set out are grounds S. 9, 18 and 20, which are as follows:

"8. The learned Judges have proceeded on the assumption that the right of any individual Vadagalai to worship the deity without interfering with others by the recital of any appropriate mantras or Prabhandams, &c., in a temple is very different from the right to form a goshti or congregation of his own sect and recite anything different from the Prabhandams which are recited by the mirasidars. The learned Judges have not explained in what the difference consists. There can in law or in fact be no such difference provided the recitation in combination of a set of individuals does not cause any physical interference to the Tungalais reciting, such recital stands on the same legal footing as recital by any single individual or separate recitals by several separate individuals.

AYYA RAGHUNATHA v. THIRUMALAI ECHAMPADI.

"9. The learned Judges should have held that provided there is no physical disturbance to the performance by the Tungalais of Conjeeveram of their duty of reciting the Prabhandams, there is nothing in law to prevent Vadagalais or any others from reciting as ordinary worshippers the Prabhandams or any other hymns as they choose at any time.

"18. The learned Judges have dealt with the question as to the temple processions in the public streets as if they were Tungalai processions. They are clearly not Tungalai processions and it is not the Tungalais who carry the idol in the procession. On the other hand, they are temple processions common to all in which Tungalais are only entitled to join in Adhyapakam service.

"20. The learned Judges seem to consider that the question in regard to the street procession in this suit was something different from the one which came up for decision in Vijayaraghava Chariar v. Emperor (5), while in fact the question is in substance identical. The procession being a common procession in which both Vadagalais and Tungalais and also all Hindus take part, the question is whether any recitation at a particular part of the procession can be an actual interference with the exercise of the Tungalais' right of joining and marching along in procession in front. On the other hand, the learned Judges have dealt with it as if the question were whether the Vadagalais were entitled to join in and form part of the procession, assumed to be a Tungalai procession."

The question is whether these grounds really arise out of the judgment and if so, whether they raise such substantial question or questions of law of general interest as would justify our issuing a certificate of fitness for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council. After giving my best considerations to the matter, I have come to the conclusion that they do not raise any such questions. There seems, no doubt, to be some ambiguity of expression in two places in the judgment where the procession is spoken of as a Tungalai procession. I think that what the learned Judges meant was that that length of the procession which was occupied by the Tungalai Tamil Veda official reciters (who led the chant) and those worshippers who joined them might be referred to as the Tungalai procession. The decision in Vijayaraghava Chariar v. Emperor (5) was given in a case which arose out of criminal proceedings and the valuable judgments given in that case have to be read in the light of the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Sadagopa Chariar v. Krishnamoorthy (3). I am not satisfied that the learned Judges of this Court, whose decision is sought to be appealed against to the Privy Council, committed any error of law in their consideration of the due effect to be given to the decision in Vijayaraghava Chariar v. Emperor (5).

Far from the questions being of general religious interest to the community, I am satisfied that the litigation is the result of the action of a small though influential faction of Vadagalai sectarians residing in Conjeeveram. The bigotry of this faction and the not less rigorous bigotry of a corresponding Tungalai faction in the same town have been responsible for the continuous Conjeeveram Temple litigation, which has never ceased from where it began from 60 years ago. The rights of general worshippers, if I may say so with respect, have been fully safeguarded by numerous other decisions and have not been, in my opinion, affected by any of the observations found in the judgment in question. It is only the claim of this faction among the Vadagalais to introduce innovations into the customary practices during the period of the regular official worship in the temple and into and within the organised processional body during the carrying on of the customary processions outside the temple and their attempts to create disturbance to the public peace that have been properly, if I may say so, restrained by the judgment.

The contentions of the applicants that they only rely on the rights of ordinary temple worshippers, that they are anxious to safeguard the rights of the general public using the public highways seem to me to be patent pretences. It seems to me, therefore, that no question of law of general interest is involved but only the question whether the Courts should encourage the never-sleeping ingenuity of a certain temple faction, which is continually inventing fresh sources of Criminal and Civil litigation and new ingenious ways of interference with the exercise of temple office rights and discharge of temple office duties vested in the mīrāsī temple office-holders, who belong to the rival Tungalai sect. I would, therefore, dismiss this application for the grant of a certificate. The applicants will pay the respondents' costs.

In re FIRM OF MITHOMAL DWARKA DAS.

NAPIER, J.—I entirely concur. I have nothing to add.

Application dismissed.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

INSOLVENCY No. 24 of 1913.

March 19, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Pratt, J. C.

In re THE FIRM OF MITHOMAL DWARKA-DAS—INSOLVENT.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 36, 37—Transfer of property by insolvent shortly before his failure.—Good faith, test of.—Transfer by insolvent with a view to give preference to one creditor over others.—Test—Pressure of creditor, effect of.

Under section 36 of the Provincial Insolvency Act the test of the 'bona fides' of a transfer made by an insolvent in favour of an incumbrancer shortly before his failure is, whether the lender intended that the advance should enable his debtor to carry on his business and whether he had a reasonable ground for believing that it would enable him to do so. [p. 50, col. 2.]

Ex parte Johnson, In re Chapman, (1884) 26 Ch. D. 338; 53 L. J. Ch. 762; 50 L. T. 214; 32 W. R. 693; 48 J. P. 648, referred to.

In considering whether a transfer of property made by an insolvent was so made with a view to give one creditor preference over other creditors, the test is "what was the predominant motive in the debtor's mind at the time of the transfer?" [p. 52, col. 1.]

Ex parte Topham, In re Walker, (1873) 9 Ch. 614; 42 L. J. Bk. 57; 28 L. T. 716; 21 W. R. 655, referred to.

Semble: The pressure of a creditor excludes preference, which is a voluntary act on the part of the debtor. [p. 52, col. 1.]

Butcher v. Stead, (1875) 44 L. J. Bk. 129; 7 H. L. 839; 33 L. T. 541; 24 W. R. 463, referred to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Harchandrai Vishindas, for the Petitioning Creditors.

Mr. Dipchand T. Ojha, for the Insolvent.

Messrs. Hirdaram Mewaram, for the Mortgagees.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application by three petitioning creditors to set aside as void as against the Official Receiver a mortgage executed by the insolvent, Mithomal Dwarkadas. The insolvency petition was filed on the 21st October 1913 and the insolvent was adjudicated on the 23rd January 1914. The mortgage was executed on the 3rd August 1913 and is, therefore, within the periods limited in sections 36 and 37.

The mortgage was a mortgage of the whole stock in trade of the insolvent in his three shops in Karachi, Shikarpur and Chaman for a cash advance of Rs. 40,000. It is admitted that the consideration was cash and that it was paid in instalments from the 18th August 1913 to the 16th or 17th October 1913. There is a dispute as to the payment of a small part of the consideration, Rs. 4,200, to which I shall refer presently. But it is admitted that there was a substantial cash consideration contemporaneous with the mortgage. The mortgagees were two creditors of the insolvent. The issues that remain for decision, therefore, are:—

(1) Under section 36—was the mortgage bona fide?

(2) Under section 37—was the insolvent on the 3rd August 1913 unable to pay his debts as they became due?

(3) Also under section 37—was the mortgage executed with a view to giving the two mortgagees or either of them preference over other creditors?

As to the first issue, the real test of bona fides is that stated in Ex parte Johnson, In re Chapman (1): "Did the lender intend that the advance should enable his debtor to carry on his business and had he a reasonable ground for believing that it would enable him to do so?" If that was the intention of the mortgagees the transaction is unimpeachable. But if they knew that the debtor would not be enabled to carry on business, if the mortgage was merely a device for defeating other creditors, the transaction is not bona fide.

(1) (1884) 26 Ch. D. 338; 53 L. J. Ch. 762; 50 L. T. 214; 32 W. R. 693; 48 J. P. 648.

In re FIRM OF MITHOMAL DWARKA DAS.

Now, the insolvent's affairs were by no means hopeless at the time the mortgage was executed. He had a large stock in his shops. The sale of these not only realized enough to pay the mortgage-debt but left a surplus of Rs. 15,000 available to the Official Receiver. His manager says that at the time of the mortgage the debts were a lakh of rupees and the assets about 1½ lakhs of rupees. There was, therefore, good reason to suppose that with pecuniary assistance he would be able to tide over a period when the money market was tight. The insolvent's own accounts show that as a matter of fact the advances received on the mortgage enabled him to continue to do business. He paid hundis for Rs. 64,000 and drew hundis for Rs. 78,000 and one of the hundis he paid was in favour of one of the petitioning creditors. The insolvent himself says that he drew the advance in order to be able to honour his hundis and carry on his business. He also adds that he utilized the money in his business. The insolvent is much incensed against the mortgagees, because he thinks they have dealt harshly with him and driven him into the Bankruptcy Court (see notice Exhibit 9). There is, therefore, no reason to suppose that he has given this evidence in collusion with the mortgagees. I, therefore, fully believe the evidence of the mortgagees, Mr. Chellaram and Mr. Thorburn of Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co., that the advance was made in order to assist an old customer whose position they then believed to be absolutely sound. Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. had contracts outstanding with the insolvent which resulted in losses to the amount of Rs. 23,427 (Exhibit 14). But there is nothing to show that these losses were anticipated at the time of the mortgage, for no attempt was made to secure their payment. The other mortgagee, Mr. Basarmal, was a creditor in respect of hundis for Rs. 10,000 and he did, as I shall presently show, gain an advantage in regard to them. But I think he acted in the belief that the best way of securing the hundis was to enable the debtor to continue to carry on his business and meet all his hundi liabilities and so pay not only himself but other creditors also. So far as he is concerned, I think the transaction may more properly be referred to this motive than that of defeating other creditors.

There is one other point on which evidence has been led as affecting the bona fides of the transaction and that is that Rs. 4,200 of the consideration was not paid. But the evidence of payment is overwhelming. The insolvent signed a receipt for it, Exhibit 4. It is entered in his accounts as also in the accounts of Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. (Exhibit 12). Mr. Cowasji, the cashier, made the payment and produces the office cash slip (Exhibit 13). The money was paid and it appears that after the mortgagees took possession, it was privately deposited by the insolvent with Mr. Chellaram who will now, no doubt, hand it over to the Official Receiver.

On the second issue the evidence is not very clear. I have already indicated the financial position of the insolvent on the 3rd August. His assets were in excess of his liabilities, but he was probably unable to pay his debts as his assets were not liquid. It must have been for this reason that he executed the mortgage. I would, therefore, find on this issue in the affirmative.

On the third issue my finding is in the negative. There is no suggestion that any preference was shown to Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. But the other mortgagee Mr. Chellaram, had made his credit available to the insolvent. The insolvent drew hundis on himself in favour of Mr. Chellaram. These were sold by Mr. Chellaram in the bazar and the sums so realized paid to the insolvent. Now at the date of the mortgage hundis for Rs. 10,000 endorsed by Mr. Chellaram were outstanding. If the insolvent were unable to meet the hundis at due dates the holders would have recourse to Mr. Chellaram. At or about the time that each instalment of the advance was paid to the insolvent, a sum of money was deposited by the insolvent with Mr. Chellaram sufficient to meet the liability on the next hundi that would fall due. The last hundi fell due on the 11th October and a week after it was paid, the mortgagees foreclosed. It is contended on these facts that the whole transaction was a cloak to the preferential payment of the hundis on which Mr. Chellaram was liable. Mr. Chellaram explains that the deposits were made by the insolvent merely in order to get the benefit of interest. But the insolvent wanted money and was not in a position to lend money at interest; and the dates of the deposits so nearly correspond with the dates when the *hundi*s were due that I have no doubt that Mr. Chellaram took advantage of his position to see that the *hundi*s on which he was liable, were paid. It is only natural that Mr. Chellaram should do so. But on this issue I am not concerned with Mr. Chellaram's motives at all. It is the motive of the insolvent that has to be considered. What is the predominant motive in the debtor's mind, that is the test: Ex parte Topham, In re Walker (2). Now it is absurd to suppose that the insolvent who was not in a desperate position would have mortgaged the whole of his business simply to secure Mr. Chellaram. It is also idle to suggest that Mr. Chellaram dealt with the insolvent harshly. The alleged harsh treatment might lead to the inference that the insolvent was acting under the pressure of Mr. Chellaram—but the pressure of a creditor excludes preference, which is a voluntary act on the part of the debtor; see Butcher v. Stead (3).

KATHARI NARASIMHA RAJU v. BHUPATI RAJU.

The transaction was, therefore, bona fide and for consideration and did not constitute a fraudulent preference. I dismiss the application with costs.

Application dismissed.

(2) (1873) 8 Ch. 611; 42 L. J. Bk. 57; 28 L. T. 716; 21 W. R. 655.

(3) (1875) 44 L. J. Bk. 129; 7 H. L. 839; 33 L. T. 541; 24 W. R. 463.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 258 OF 1914.

September 6, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

KATHARI NARASIMHA RAJU—

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BHUPATI RAJU RAGUNADHA RAJU

AND OTHERS—DEPENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Sale of immoveable property less than Rs. 100 in value—Unregistered sale-deed—Possession delivered—

Title, if passes—Sale-deed, if evidence of contract to sell—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 54.

In the case of immoveable property of the value of less than Rs. 100, the existence of an unregistered deed of sale does not prevent the transferee from relying on an oral sale followed by possession and the unregistered document can be used as evidence of the contract to sell. [p. 53, cols. 1 & 2; p. 54, col. 1.]

Veda Muppan v. Kathari Padayachi, 5 Ind. Cas. 57; 7 M. L. T. 372; Ammani v. Jagannatha Reddi, 30 Ind. Cas. 7; 1915 M. W. N. 442; 18 M. L. T. 103; Nagappa v. Deva, 14 M. 55; Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban, 25 Ind. Cas. 772; (1914 M. W. N. 768; 27 M. L. J. 497; 16 M. L. T. 344; 1 L. W. 754, referred to.

Appeal, under section 15 of the Letters Patent, preferred against the judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Oldfield, in Second Appeal No. 1652 of 1913, preferred against the decree and judgment of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Masulipatam, in Appeal Suit No. 91 of 1912, against the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Tanuku, in Original Suit No. 131 of 1909.

Mr. P. Chenchiah for Mr. T. Prakasam, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Somayya for Mr. P. Narayana-murthi, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiff is the appellant. He owned the plaint land in 1900 and 1901. He brought the suit in 1909, having been out of possession for eight or nine years before the suit. His story was that the 3rd defendant became his lessee in 1900. That story has been found to be false. The lower Courts have further found that in 1901 the plaintiff sold the plaint lands to the 3rd defendant, executed an unregistered sale-deed for Rs. 50 to the 3rd defendant and put the 3rd defendant in possession of the land. On these findings they dismissed the plaintiff's suit. That unregistered sale-deed is not produced, the 3rd defendant suppressing it according to the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, who are the vendees from the 3rd defendant.

The contention in second appeal is that the plaintiff, though he failed to prove the lease to the 3rd defendant, is entitled to succeed on his title which existed in 1901 and had not been lost either by adverse possession when the suit was brought in 1909, or by his execution of the unregistered sale-deed of 1901 which is invalid and useless for the purpose of effecting a transfer of ownership, by reason of the provisions of section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act.

KATHARI NARASIMHA RAJU v. BHUPATI RAJU.

If there was no valid sale to the 3rd defendant in 1901, the plaintiff is entitled to succeed on his title as the suit is not barred by limitation. The plaintiff (appellant) relies on the decision in Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban (1) for his contention that no title passed under the unregistered sale-deed for Rs. 50 (relied upon by the defendants Nos. 1 and 2), though it was accompanied by delivery of possession. It has been held in at least two cases in this Court, reported as Veda Muppan v. Kathari Padayachi (2) and Ammani v. Jagannatha Reddi (3), that notwithstanding the existence of an unregistered sale-deed, which cannot validly effect a transfer of ownership even in respect of a sale of property of the value of less than Rs. 100, the delivery of the property sold in pursuance of the contract of sale is sufficient under section 54, paragraph 3, of the Transfer of Property Act for the transfer of the title. Under paragraphs 5 and 6 of section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, a contract for the sale of immoveable property does not create any interest in, or charge on, such property and hence such a contract, though in writing, need not be registered even if it is for a price of Rs. 100 or more. Paragraph 3 of the section, which refers to the transfer of title by delivery, does not say that the contract of sale, which is to be converted into a sale (or transfer of title to the property), should be an oral contract and cannot be evidenced by the written deed, or that an invalid writing, purporting to transfer title prevents the delivery itself of its effect of transferring the title. According to the definition of sale in the 1st paragraph of section 54, two things (it seems to me) are required to constitute a sale: (1) a contract to transfer the ownership of the sold land in exchange for a price paid, etc., and (2) the transfer of such ownership, accordingly, by the vendor. In the case of property of the value of less than Rs. 100, the contract of sale followed by the delivery of property in pursuance of that contract completes the sale according to paragraph 3 and a registered conveyance is not indispensable. In Nagappa v. Deru (4), it has been held that an unregistered sale-deed even for a sum of Rs. 100 can be used in evidence for proving the contract to sell, though not to prove the transfer of ownership. A fortiori a sale-deed for less than Rs. 100 can be used as evidence of the contract to make that sale. If there are any observations in Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban (1) which tend to support the view that an unregistered document of sale cannot be used as evidence to prove even the contract of sale, I am not, with the greatest respect, prepared to agree with those observations. There is nothing in paragraph 3 of section 54 which constrains us to hold that if there is a contract of sale which is evidenced by a deed which is invalid to transfer title, the transfer of title by delivery cannot take place. The case in Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban (1) seems to have been decided on a very strict construction of the pleadings in that case against the defendants [see the sentence in the judgment at page 346]: "Under these circumstances we do not think that it is open to these appellants to set up an oral sale as to which there was no issue or any evidence."

I would, therefore, dismiss the Letters Patent Appeal with costs.

NAPIER, J.—I assume that in this case there was no oral evidence to prove the oral sale other than the unregistered document. The questions are, whether the fact that there is a document prevents the 3rd defendant relying on an oral sale followed by possession and whether, if not, he can use the unregistered document to prove that the transfer was an exchange for a price paid or promised within the meaning of section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act. On the first point I can see no reason why the existence of the document should prevent the proof aliunde. Section 54 says that transfer may be made either by a registered instrument or by delivery. Until the document is registered, it has no effect to "transfer" and it must be open to the parties at

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 772; (1914) M. W. N. 768; 27 M. L. J. 497; 18 M. L. T. 344; 1 L. W. 754.

(2) 5 Ind. Cas. 57; 7 M. L. T. 372.

(3) 30 Ind. Cas. 7; (1915) M. W. N. 442; 18 M. L. T. 108.

(4) 14 M. 55.

KAMTA PERSHAD v. INDUSTRIAL BANK OF INDIA, LTD.

any stage before registration to adopt the simple process of delivery. On the second question reliance is placed on the language used by the Judges who decided the case Muthukaruppan Samban v. Muthu Samban (1), which certainly lends support to that view. I am, however, unable to agree with it. The document is not compulsorily registrable under section 17 of the Registration Act, and, therefore, we have not to consider whether the proposed use to prove the agreement would not be permissible, because it would affect immoveable property within the meaning of section 49 of the Registration Act. I am unable to accept the construction put on section 54 in the above case that it requires all sale-deeds, if in writing, to be registered. In my opinion it only requires that if the sale-deed is to be relied on to establish transfer it must be registered. There being no law requiring the document to be registered, I see no reason why it should not be proved and used as required by the Evidence Act, section 91. That it could be so used is assumed in Krishnaamma v. Suranna (5), a case decided by a Full Bench of this Court [vide also Bimaraz v. Popaya (6) and Kota Muthanna Chetti v. Alibeg Sahib (7)], and the same view has been taken by this Court quite lately in a case reported as Ammani v. Jagannatha Reddi (3). I am, therefore, of opinion that the unregistered document is admissible in evidence to prove the contract, and there being evidence of delivery, the sale is proved. I agree, therefore, with the learned Judge and would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(5) 16 M. 148; 3 M. L. J. 54.

(6) 3 M. 46.

(7) 6 M. 174; 7 Ind. Jur. 11.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL MISCELLANEOUS APPEAL No. 2482
OF 1914.December 2nd, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

KAMTA PERSHAD—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

INDUSTRIAL BANK OF INDIA, LTD.

(IN LIQUIDATION)—DEFENDANT—

RESPONDENT.

Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 150—Contributory. Liability of, to pay debt due by him to Company—Procedure.

Under section 150 of the Companies Act, 1882, a contributory can be required, not only to meet calls which may be made on him, but also to pay any debt which he owes to the Company. [p. 55, col. 1.]

But the Court is not bound to proceed under section 150 for the recovery of debt due from a contributory and may, if so advised, direct the Liquidator to file a regular suit for the purpose. [p. 55, col. 1.]

Miscellaneous first appeal from the order of the Additional Judge, Ludhiana, dated the 7th October 1914.

Mr. Gulla Ram, for the Appellant.

Mr. Manohar Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The learned Counsel for the appellant has admitted before me that his client was rightly held to be a contributory in respect of two shares, and has, therefore, not attacked the finding on that point. The appellant has also been required to pay to the Liquidator the debt due from him to the Company. The amount of this debt, as fixed by the lower Court, is supported by the pro-notes executed by the appellant and by the properly kept account books of the Company. He was given every reasonable opportunity of rebutting the case made out by the Liquidator, but it appears that he intentionally abstained from appearing in the Court. In these circumstances I cannot accede to the request for further enquiry and must hold that the amount has been fully proved.

It has been urged by Mr. Gulla Ram that the appellant cannot be called upon, in the summary proceeding, to pay the debt due from him and that the Liquidator should be ordered to establish his claim by bringing a regular suit for the purpose. The learned Counsel is unable to cite any authority in support of his contention and I myself feel no doubt whatever that it is altogether untenable. If the appellant had not been a contributory and had been a mere outsider qui the Company, I would have been prepared to hold that the summary remedy was incompetent in his case. But it has been admitted that he is a contributory and that being so, the law seems to me quite clear that a contributory can be required, not only to meet calls which may be made on him, but also to pay any debt which he owes to the Company.

NALLAGONDA PEDDA V. ASUPALLEE BUDDA REDDY.

This proposition is fully supported by section 150 of the Indian Companies Act, VI of 1882, which lays down in clear terms that the Court in a winding-up proceeding is empowered to direct a contributory to pay to the Liquidator any money, whether due as a debt or otherwise, which he owes to the Company. The object of the law is to avoid multiplicity of actions and to provide a cheap and expeditious remedy for the collection of the Company's assets which are in the hands of its contributories or officers. The section, therefore, provides a summary remedy for realising the debt due from the members of the Company, who are deemed to be parties to the winding-up proceeding. The language of the section is plain and does not admit of any doubt, and I see absolutely no reason for placing upon it a construction which would defeat the object which the Legislature had in view.

A similar provision will be found in section 165 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act of 1908, 8 Edward VII, C. 69. Further, the judgment of Lord Romilly, M. R., in In re the Marlborough Club Company, Limited (1) shows that if it had not been a case of fully paid share-holders, who could not have been put on the list of contributories, the Court would have allowed the Liquidator to recover by summary process debts due by share-holders to the Company.

I have accordingly no hesitation in overruling the contention raised on behalf of the appellant. I may add that the Court is not bound to proceed under section 150 for the recovery of debt due from a contributory and may, if so advised, direct the Liquidator to file a regular suit for the purpose.

The result is that the appeal fails and is hereby dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 37 L. J. Ch 296; 5 Eq. 365; 18 L. T. 46; 16 W. R. 668.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2672 OF 1913.

August 31, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

NALLAGONDA PEDDA CHENNA

REDDI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS

—APPELLANTS

versus

ASUPALLEE BUDDA REDDY—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

*Gift—Possession under a gift from a limited owner—
Gift invalid against reversioners—Trespass by stranger —Suit by donees for possession based on title, notwithstanding ability of.*

Two days before her death, one S made a gift of certain immovable properties, which she inherited from her father, in favour of her step-sons. Prior to this gift the properties had been in the possession of her husband on her behalf and subsequent to the gift the husband continued to hold possession on behalf of the donees, his minor sons. Four days after the death of S, the defendant trespassed upon the properties and took forcible possession of the same. Four months afterwards, the plaintiffs, as donees under the gift aforesaid, instituted the present suit in ejectment against the defendant.

Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover possession from the defendant, a trespasser, even though the gift in their favour was invalid as against the reversioners [p. 57, col. 2; p. 58, col. 1.]

Sundar v. Pa-bari, 12 A. 51 (P. C.); 16 I. A. 186; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 448, followed.

Quere.—Whether the plaintiffs would be entitled to possession, if they themselves had obtained forcible possession from the true owner? [p. 57, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Kurnool, in Appeal Suit No. 66 of 1913, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Nandyal, in Original Suit No. 729 of 1912.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 5th and 6th of November 1914, the Court (Sadasiva Aiyar and Hannay, JJ.) made the following ORDER.—Before deciding this second appeal, we consider it advisable to obtain a finding from the lower Appellate Court on the 3rd issue in the case on the evidence on record.

The District Judge of Kurnool will submit his finding within six weeks from the date of receipt of records and the parties will be at liberty to file objections to the said finding within ten days after notice of the receipt of the same shall have been posted up in this Court.

In compliance with the above order, the NALLAGONDA PEDDA V. ASUPALLEE RUDDA REDDY.

District Judge of Kurnool submitted the following

FINDING.—I have been directed to record a finding on the evidence already on the record on the third issue framed by the original Court, which is that of the District Munsif of Nandyal. The third issue runs thus:—

Whether the defendant is the nearest reversioner to the suit estate after the death of the late Subbakka; and if so, whether the gift of Subbakka to the plaintiffs binds him?

The learned District Munsif in the judgment in Original Suit No. 72 of 1912 on his file has found the first part of this issue in the negative and has expressed himself in no measured terms; and with this part of the finding, I can but agree. The defendant has called no witnesses who can speak as relations to the claim which he sets up to be the son of the brother of Rami Reddy, the last male holder of the suit properties; and the evidence which he does adduce on the subject is of very little use to him. He himself states that Rami Reddy was one of four brothers, but it is not explained why in such a case the properties on partition were divided only into two shares instead of into four. Nor is it explained how, if the defendant's father got a fourth share of the family estate on division, he or the defendant has come to lose it so that he has none of the estate now.

So far as to probabilities. With regard to the oral evidence other than that of defendant himself, D. W. No. 2 says in his examination-in-chief that Rami Reddy had three brothers, but in cross-examination states that he had no brother. She also thinks that defendant's father may have been Narappa Reddy, though his father was actually Pedda Fakeer Reddy. This witness is wrongly described in the lower Court's judgment as D. W. No. 3. D. W. No. 3 is actually the Bogam witness, and is correctly described as such by the lower Court. He does not know much about Rami Reddy's family, as he says that their property consisted of one terraced house (middle).

Nor does he know the name of the father of defendant. D. W. No. 4 knows the names of neither the father nor mother of defendant's father and Rami Reddy; but speaks to their being brothers because he lives in their village. He is not related to any of them, and the lower Court has made a mistake, probably clerical one, in saying that he is related to the parties. D. W. No. 5, whose age is given as 50, and not as 40 stated by the lower Court, says that Rami Reddy and defendant's father were brothers, but he too cannot say who their father was. All this oral evidence is of the very smallest value and quite unconvincing. It is pointed out for the defence that the evidence for the plaintiffs also is not that of relatives, and only consists of a denial of the defendant's claim to be the nearest reversioner. But the burden of proof is on the defendant, and he has not discharged it. I uphold the lower Court's finding on the first part of the issue.

As to the second part of the issue, the plaintiffs do not deny that the gift of Subbakka to the plaintiffs will not bind defendant if he is the nearest reversioner. The lower Court has held that, since the defendant is found not to be a reversioner to the suit estate, the gift to plaintiffs binds him, but this is not a proper finding on the issue. What has to be found is if the gift binds him supposing he is found to be the next reversioner, and I find as to that that it does not bind him. The point, however, is of very little importance when the first part of the issue is found against the defendant.

This second appeal coming on for final hearing on the 25th of August 1915 after the return of the finding of the lower Appellate Court upon the issue referred by this Court for trial, Mr. S. Duraiswami Iyer, for the Appellants, argued that the appellants had obtained peaceable possession under the deed of gift. They were, therefore, entitled to hold such possession against all except the true owner. The reversioners had not come forward now and the defendant, who was a trespasser, was not entitled to withhold possession. See Sundar v. Parbati (1) and Ganapathi Mudali v. Venkatalakshminarasappa (2). Even if the appellants were trespassers themselves, they were entitled to protection as against subsequent trespassers.

(1) 12 A. 51 (P. C.); 16 I. A. 1-6; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 448.
(2) 25 Ind. Cas. 109; (1914) M. W. N. 728.

NALLAGONDA PEDDA v. ASUPALLEE BUDDA REDDY.

Mustapha Sahib v. Santha Pillai (3), Narayana Row v. Dharmachar (4), Adinarayana Iyer v. Krishnan (5).

Mr. S. Ranganatha Iyer, for the Respondent:—The suit is one based on title and not one under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act. The plaintiffs must show a subsisting title in them before they can succeed in recovering possession from the defendant. As against the cases cited for the appellants as to the right of a trespasser suing another trespasser for possession, see Nisa Chand Gaita v. Kanchiram Bagani (6). The cases in Sundar v. Parbati (1) and Asher v. Whitlock (7) do not support such an extreme position.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiffs are the appellants. Both the plaintiffs are minors. They are suing by their father, Chenna Reddi as their next friend.

The land in dispute belonged to their step-mother, Subbakka, by inheritance. She had only a life interest therein. She died issueless on the 21st August 1912. Two days before her death, she made a gift of the plaintiff lands to her minor step-sons, plaintiffs, evidently because she was on loving terms with her husband who was looking after the lands for her. The gift is, no doubt, invalid after her death as against the reversionary heirs of her father as whose property she inherited it. As I said, her husband was in possession on her behalf on the date of the gift-deed to her step-sons and he continued to be in possession during the two days which elapsed between the gift-deed and her death and for four days afterwards. Reading the plaintiff paragraphs Nos. 5 to 8 literally, it seems to me clear that the plaintiffs' next friend considered himself to have been in possession after the date of the gift on behalf of his wife's donees (that is, his own minor sons, the plaintiffs) till he was dispossessed by the defendant about the 25th August 1912. The suit was brought within four months afterwards, namely, on the 23rd December 1912. The suit was not, however, brought under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act, but relying on the title under the gift-deed (which became invalid against the reversioners after the plaintiffs' step-mother's death) and mentioning also the continued possession of the plaintiffs' next friend for about one week after the date of the gift-deed till the dispossession by the defendant. The defendant has been found by the lower Courts to be a pure trespasser (the title he set up as alleged reversioner having been found against), he not having denied in his written statement the allegations as to possession in the plaintiffs' next friend for six days after the gift-deed and the dispossession on the 25th August as set out in the plaint.

Taking it that the minor plaintiffs cannot make out a good title as against the reversioners of Subbakka's father's estate, I think that the principle of the decision in Ganapathi Mudali v. Venkatalakshminarasayya (2), decided by Miller, J., and myself, applies to the facts and as the plaintiffs' next friend had obtained and was in peaceable possession for several years before the deed of gift and continued in such possession for six days after the deed of gift (his possession on the date when the defendant dispossessed him being treated in the plaint as the minor plaintiffs' possession and his dispossession being treated as the dispossession of the plaintiffs), he on behalf of his minor sons is entitled to recover back possession from the defendant who forcibly ejected him. Sundar v. Parbati (1), their Lordships of the Privy Council say at pages 56 and 57 that "their possession was lawfully attained in this sense, that it was not procured by force or fraud, but peaceably, no one interested opposing." "It does not admit of doubt that they" (the persons so in possession) "are entitled to maintain their possession against all comers except the person who can plead a preferable title." It is not necessary for the purposes of this case to decide whether, if a person (who was dispossessed by the defendant) himself came into possession not peaceably but by using force against the real owner, such a person could maintain his possession against the second trespasser. For instance (to

(3) 23 M. 179.

(4) 28 M. 514; 13 M. L. J. 140.

(5) 18 Ind. Cas. 97; 1912 M. W. N. 707.

(6) 26 C. 579; 3 C. W. N. 568.

(7) (1865) 1 Q. B. 1; 35 L. J. Q. B. 17; 11 Jer. (N. S.) 925; 13 L. T. 254; 14 W. R. 26; 148 R. R. 598.

HIRALAL v. GOPIKA.

take an extreme case), A, the real owner, is forcibly dispossessed by B. B is in possession for three months and then B is forcibly dispossessed by C who continues in possession for 11½ years. Can B successfully maintain a suit for restoration of possession against C on the strength of B's three months' possession? The cases in Mustapha Sahib v. Santha Pillai (3), Narayana Row v. Dharmachar (4) and Adinayana Iyer v. Krishnan (5), no doubt do go that length [see, however, Nisa Chand Gaita v. Kanchiram Bagani (6)] but as I said before, it is not necessary to decide that question as the plaintiffs got into possession in this case peaceably.

In the result, the lower Appellate Court's decision against the plaintiff will be reversed and that of the District Munsif restored with costs in plaintiffs' favour in this and the lower Appellate Court.

NAPIER, J.—I agree. If the matter were res integra, I should have serious doubt whether the view taken by the High Court of Calcutta in Nisa Chand Gaita v. Kanchiram Bagani (6) is not correct. The decision of the Privy Council in Sundar v. Parbati (1) is authority for the proposition that in certain circumstances persons actually in possession without title are entitled to maintain their possession against all comers, except a person who can show a preferable title, and are entitled to consequential remedies. The decisions in Mustapha Sahib v. Santha Pillai (3) and Narayana Row v. Dharmachar (4) would go as far as holding that a person entering into possession of immovable property with knowledge that he had no title and even by force, can, when evicted by any one but the true owner, maintain an action to recover possession. With the greatest deference to the learned Judges, I find no authority for this position either in the decision of the Privy Council or in the English case of Asher v. Whitlock (7). As, however, I agree with my learned brother that the plaintiff in this suit held possession under a bona fide claim of title, I agree in allowing the appeal and restoring the decree of the District Munsif.

Appeal allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 218 OF 1914.

February 27, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Drake-Brockman, Kt., J. C.

HIRALAL AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—
APPELLANTS
versus

Musammal GOPIKA—DEFENDANT—
RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 66—Sale in execution of decree—Suit by heirs of certified purchaser—Defendant, if can set up title.

Section 66 of the Civil Procedure Code is confined to suits brought against certified purchasers. [p. 59, col. 1.]

Where the plaintiffs sued to eject the defendant from certain plots of land on the ground that the lands were bought by the plaintiffs' brother at an auction sale held in execution of a decree against the original owner:

Held, that it was open to the defendant to set up her own title and to show that the certified purchaser was a mere benamidar for her [p. 59, col. 2.]

Ghazindia v. Bishan Dial, 27 A. 443; A. W. N. (1905) 39; 2 A. L. J. 111; Musammal Bukhs Koneur v. Lalla Buhoree Lal, 18 W. R. 57 (P. C.); 10 B. L. R. 159; 4 M. L. A. 496; 3 Sar P. C. J. 69; 20 E. R. 871, followed.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Nagpur, dated the 22nd November 1913, confirming that of the Junior Subordinate Judge, Nagpur, dated the 29th July 1913.

Mr. M. Chuckerbutty, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT. The plaintiffs in the suit out of which this second appeal arises sued to eject the defendant from two malik makbuz plots and one absolute occupancy field in Mauza Khedi. It is common ground that these lands were bought in 1902 by Khannulal, deceased brother of the plaintiffs, at an auction sale held in execution of a decree obtained against the original holder. The plaintiffs' case is that Khannulal was in possession till his death in 1909, when he was succeeded by his widow, who in turn died in 1911 after being ousted by the defendant in 1910: they claim accordingly as Khannulal's heirs.

The Courts below have concurred in finding that Khannulal was a mere benamidar for the defendant, who has all along been in possession on her own behalf as beneficial owner. They have also overruled the plaintiffs' contention that section 66, Civil Procedure Code, operates to preclude the defendant from setting up a beneficial title as against the heirs of the certified auction-purchaser, and the only point pressed in second appeal is that they are wrong in so doing.

AGUSTUS BROTHERS v. FERNANDEZ.

The part of section 66 on which reliance is placed for the plaintiffs-appellants is the first sub-section and runs as follows:—

"No suit shall be maintained against any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court in such manner as may be prescribed on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or on behalf of some one through whom the plaintiff claims."

In the Code of 1882 the corresponding provision, namely, the first paragraph of section 317, stood thus:—

"No suit shall be maintained against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of any other person, or on behalf of some one through whom such other person claims."

In Hirachand v. Kishendas (1) it was held by Ismay, J. C., on the strength of the Privy Council ruling in Musammal Buhuns Kowur v. Lalla Buhoree Lall (2) that section 317 aforesaid was, like the corresponding provision (section 260) in Act VIII of 1859, confined to a suit brought against a certified purchaser. The substitution in section 66 of the present Code of the word 'plaintiff' for the words 'any other person' only serves to make it still clearer that the Legislature intended to give effect to the view of the Privy Council, and not to change the law as laid down by that Tribunal. The same view as to the scope of section 317 in the Code of 1882 was taken by a Divisional Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Ghazi-ud-din v. Bishan Dial (3), where the facts were very similar to those in the present case. Other authorities in the same sense are Govinda Kuar v. Lala Kishun Prosad (4) and Muthuvaiyan v. Sinna Samavaiyan (5).

It is true that in Balaji v. Dajiba (6) Crosthwaite, J. C., citing Jokhee Lall v.

- (1) 9 C. P. L. R. 55.
 (2) 18 W. R. 157 (P. C.); 10 B. L. R. 159; 14 M. L. A. 406; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 69; 20 E. R. 871.
 (3) 27 A. 443; A. W. N. (1905) 39; 2 A. L. J. 111.
 (4) 28 C. 370.
 (5) 28 M. 526; 15 M. L. J. 419.
 (6) 2 C. P. L. R. 137 at p. 139.

Huns Kooer (7), held the effect of section 317 in the Code of 1882 to be to make the title of the auction-purchaser complete against any one who claims on the ground that the purchase was benami on behalf of another, and laid down this rule as applicable even where the suit is brought by the auction-purchaser and not against him. The learned Judicial Commissioner, however, did not notice the Privy Council ruling above mentioned or the later one to the same effect, namely, Lokhee Narayan Roy Chowdhry v. Kalypoddoo Bandopadhyaya (8). The later authorities I have cited and the difference between section 66 (1) of the present Civil Procedure Code and section 317 of its immediate predecessor make it clear to my mind that the law is still as laid down by the Privy Council. I hold, therefore, that the lower Courts were right in allowing the defendant to set up her title and to show that Khannulal was a mere trustee for her. This appeal accordingly fails and is dismissed without notice to the respondent.

Appeal dismissed.

(7) 10 W. R. 167.

(8) 23 W. R. 358; 2 I. A. 154.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

REFERRED CASE No. 1 OF 1914.

August 31, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
 Mr. Justice Napier.

Messrs. AGUSTUS BROTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
versus

M. A. FERNANDEZ—DEFENDANT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 4, 6, O. II, r. 2—Provisions of Code, whether applicable to Village Munsifs—Suit for recovery of portion of price of article sold instituted in Village Munsif's Court—Subsequent suit for balance of amount due on account of various purchases, whether barred.

AGUSTUS BROTHERS v. FERNANDEZ.

Order II, rule 2 of the Civil Procedure Code prohibits only the splitting of claims arising out of the same cause of action. [p. 61, col. 1.]

Where a customer makes distinct purchases on distinct dates, the merchant has got a distinct cause of action in respect of each purchase or set of purchases unless there is an agreement or settlement of accounts between the parties consolidating all these separate causes of action into one. [p. 61, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, in a suit for the balance of the amount due from the defendant on account of small purchases made by him on different occasions from the plaintiff's shop, it appeared that the plaintiff had previously sued for one portion of the claim in the Village Munsif's Court:

Held, that Order II, rule 2, did not apply and the subsequent suit was not barred. [p. 62, col. 1.]

Beni Ram v. Ram Chandra, 26 Ind. Cas. 302; 12 A. L. J. 959; 36 A. 560; Mandal & Co. v. Fazul Ellahi, 26 Ind. Cas. 209; 41 C. 825, followed.

The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 are inapplicable to Village Munsif's Courts. [p. 62, col. 1.]

Mir Khan v. Kularsa, 13 M. 145, followed.

Case stated under rule 1, Order XLVI, of Schedule I of Act V of 1908, by the Subordinate Judge of Cochin, in Small Cause Suit No. 97 of 1913.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIYA AIYAR, J.—The facts which have led to this reference by the Subordinate Judge of Cochin in a Small Cause Suit in his Court, might be shortly stated thus: The defendant made purchases from the plaintiff's shop for small sums from time to time till 26th May 1912, made part payments and had to pay Rs. 88-7-0 as balance on such purchases. The suit was brought in September 1913 for the recovery of this Rs. 88-7-0 and interest. The plaintiff had, at the end of 1912, brought a suit in the Village Munsif's Court of Cochin for the recovery of Rs. 2-4-0, being the price of one bottle of whisky purchased by the defendant in April 1912, this item of Rs. 2-4-0 being one of the several items of account in respect of the purchases made by the defendant up to the 26th May 1912.

The lower Court has made this reference assuming that, if the first suit had been brought in an ordinary Civil Court instead of in the Court of the Village Munsif, Order II, rule 2, corresponding to old section 43 of the Civil Procedure Code, would be a bar to the present suit. Order II, rule 2, says (omitting portions unnecessary for this case): "Every suit shall include the whole claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action;.....Where a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of,.....any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted."

I am not at all sure that where a customer makes distinct purchases on distinct dates, the merchant has not got a distinct cause of action in respect of each purchase or set of purchases. In Beni Ram v. Ram Chandra (1), it was held [doubting the decision in Preonath Mukerji v. Bishnath Prasad (2)], that when a debtor gave a hundi for Rs. 500 out of a debt of Rs. 4,000 and odd, and the creditor first brought a suit on the hundi, he was not precluded from maintaining a second suit for the balance due on account by reason of Order II, rule 2. In the case Preonath Mukerji v. Bishnath Prasad (2) [the soundness of the decision in which, was doubted in Beni Ram v. Ram Chandra (1)] the Court held that where a doctor got a promissory note for Rs. 700 for seven days' fees and continued to attend on the patient for six days more and then first brought a suit on the promissory note and recovered Rs. 700, he was barred by section 43 [Order II, rule (2)] from bringing a suit for the Rs. 600 due for the attendance during the remaining six days. In Mandal & Co. v. Fazul Ellahi (3), Jenkins, C. J., and Woodroffe, J., held that though the contract between the parties was contained in one and the same writing, if that writing expressly said that it related to two separate contracts (one relating to the delivery of cases of candles to be shipped in July 1908 and the other to the delivery of cases of candles to be shipped in August 1908), two separate suits can be maintained. I am aware that a merchant does not usually bring numerous separate suits against the same customer, each suit for the amount due on each purchase transaction. But that is because he is entitled under Order II, rule 3, Civil Procedure Code to unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant unless prohibited by rules 4 and 5 of Order II.

1) 26 Ind. Cas. 302; 36 A. 560; 12 A. L. J. 959.

(2) 29 A. 256; A. W. N. (1907) 41; 4 A. L. J. 85.

(3) 26 Ind. Cas. 209; 41 C. 825.

AGUSTUS BROTHERS V. FERNANDEZ.

Order II, rule 2, prohibits only the splitting of claims arising out of the same cause of action and if the cause of action in respect of purchase for Rs. 2-4-0 was different from the other causes of action in respect of other purchases and if there was no agreement (or settlement of accounts) between the parties which consolidated all these separate causes of action into one cause of action, I think that Order II, rule 2, has no application and this reference is, therefore, incompetent.

Assuming, however, that the claim made in the Village Munsif's Court was on the same cause of action as that under which the present suit is brought, the question is whether Order II, rule 2, is applicable when the first suit had been brought in the Village Munsif's Court. In Mirkhan v. Kadarsa (4) it was held that the Civil Procedure Code has no application to the Courts of Village Munsifs at all, as section 6 of the old Civil Procedure Code provided that nothing in the Civil Procedure Code affected the jurisdiction or procedure of Village Munsifs and that hence the concurrent jurisdiction of the ordinary Civil Courts was not taken away by the provision in section 15 of the Civil Procedure Code that "every suit shall be instituted in the Court of the lowest grade competent to try it."

Though, in the present case, the provision of the Civil Procedure Code to be considered is not section 15, but Order II, rule 2, the same reasoning applies. But the learned Subordinate Judge who has made this reference entertains a doubt as to whether the decision in Mirkhan v. Kadarsa (4) even as regards the applicability of section 15 of the Civil Procedure Code, has not become inapplicable where the decision has to be under the new Code owing to the change in the language of section 6. Section 6 of the old Code of 1882 enacted (among other things) as follows: "Nothing in this Code affects the jurisdiction or procedure (c) of Village Munsifs or village punchayats under the provisions of the Madras Code or (d) shall operate to give any Court jurisdiction over suits of which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds the pecuniary limits of its ordinary jurisdiction." Section 6 of the Code of 1908 says:—"Save in so far as is otherwise expressly provided, nothing herein contained shall operate to give any Court jurisdiction over suits the amount or value of the subject-matter of which exceeds the pecuniary limits (if any) of its ordinary jurisdiction." The learned Subordinate Judge who has made this reference, thinks that the omission in the present Code of the words "affects jurisdiction or procedure of Village Munsifs, etc.," on which words the learned Judges who decided Mirkhan v. Kadarsa (4), relied, might make some difference, though he notices that section 4 of the new Code of 1908 is more widely worded than section 4 of the old Code. While section 4 of the old Code saved certain specific Acts affecting the Central Provinces, Burma, Punjab and Oudh and the laws passed under the Indian Councils' Act of 1861, relating to suits between landlords and tenants and suits relating to partition of immoveable property, section 4 of the new Code of 1908 very generally says that "nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any special or local law now in force or any special jurisdiction or..... any special form of procedure prescribed, by or under any other law." It was because the savings under section 4 had been extended in the new Code, section 6 of the new Code confined itself to the provision (d) of the old Code section 6, namely, that ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction should not be exceeded. The learned Subordinate Judge says that section 4 (1) of the new Code as regards this saving clause is somewhat differently worded from the saving clause of section 6 of the old Code, and hence he is in doubt as to whether the ruling in Mirkhan v. Kadarsa (4) is applicable when interpreting section 4 (1) of the new Code in the same manner as when interpreting section 6 of the old Code. I do not find any material change in the wording and if there is any difference, the saving under section 4 (1) of the new Code is larger in scope than that under section 6 of the old Code and hence the ratio decidendi in Mirkhan v. Kadarsa (4), is a fortiori applicable to section 4 (1) of the new Code.

Ameer Ali and Woodroffe are also of opinion; (See Commentary under section 6) that it was in view of the extended scope of section 4 of the present Code, the reproduction of sections 6 and 7 of the last Code (except as to the final paragraph, which is the present section 6 has been considered unnecessary.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILKANTH.

It is to be observed that in making this reference the Subordinate Judge has not clearly drawn up the point or points on which doubt is entertained by him (see Order XLVI, rule 1). However, taking it that the reference is whether Order II, rule 2, applies when a suit is brought for the balance of a claim arising out of the same cause of action after a suit had been brought for one portion of the claim in the Village Munsif's Court, I would answer the reference in the negative.

NAPIER, J. I agree that the suit is not barred by Order II, rule 2, and think that the question is clear beyond doubt. Section 4 of the Code of 1908 is very wide in terms; therefore, the provisions of the Code are inapplicable to Village Munsifs' Courts. There are no provisions in the Code for these Courts corresponding to sections 7 and 8, which make certain sections applicable to Provincial Small Cause Courts and Presidency Small Cause Courts. Chapter IV to Chapter VI of the Madras Village Courts Act, I of 1889, provides complete procedure for such Courts, covering the same ground as the Civil Procedure Code does for its Courts. Section 18 enacts the very rule which the Subordinate Judge seeks for in the Civil Procedure Code. There are numberless sections of the Civil Procedure Code which are manifestly inapplicable to village Courts. The reference, therefore, must be answered in the negative.

Reference answered in the negative.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 716 OF 1914.

July 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Stanyon, A. J. C.

THE MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

NILKANTH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—

RESPONDENTS.

Nuisance—Nuisance at law, what constitutes—Act offending susceptibilities of individuals, whether actionable—Establishment of slaughter-house—Suit for injunction, who can bring—Act done under statutory authority, when unlawful—Central Provinces Municipal Act (XVI of 1903), s. 71.

In order to constitute a nuisance at law it is essential that there should exist either actually or impliedly, (1) injuria, i. e., a wrongful act constituting or causing damage, and (2) damnum, i. e., damage, loss, or inconvenience. Damnum absque injuria gives no right of action. [p. 67, col. .]

Where the act or omission causing or constituting an alleged nuisance is unlawful per se, e. g., where it is of itself a violation of statutory provisions or of private common law rights, the law will presume damage to exist; but where the act is innocent and lawful, then the question whether it amounts to an actionable nuisance is one of fact to be determined not merely by an abstract consideration of the act itself, but by reference to all the circumstances of the particular case. [p. 67, col. .]

An act which offends the susceptibilities of individuals or the sentiments of a class is not, ipso facto, an actionable nuisance and cannot be made a ground for overriding ordinary rights in property. [p. 68, col. 1.]

The establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house for butcher's meat is per se an offensive trade, even though it is not included as such in section 99 of the Central Provinces Municipal Act 1903. [p. 64, col. 1.]

But whether in any particular case it is an actionable nuisance depends mainly on the locality in which it is placed; and, therefore, the question is one of fact to be determined upon the circumstances of each particular case. [p. 64, col. .]

Where the establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house amounts to a nuisance to one or more persons being in the neighbourhood of it, any one of such persons may sue for an injunction. [p. 64, col. 2.]

The motive which underlies a complaint of nuisance is relevant in a case of injunction. [p. 72, col. .]

Where an act is done under an authority conferred by Statute the conditions laid down by the Statute must have been strictly followed; otherwise the act is unauthorized and wrongful. [p. 66, col. 2.]

Section 71 of the Central Provinces Municipal Act requires that the approval of the Deputy Commissioner to the selection of a site for a slaughter-house shall be obtained before any building of the slaughter-house is begun on the proposed site; and a Municipal Committee which builds a slaughter-house on a site selected by itself without the previous approval of the site by the Deputy Commissioner, does an unauthorized and unlawful act and cannot use the Statute as a defence to an action brought against it on the ground that the act has created a nuisance. [p. 66, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Saugor, dated the 16th September 1914, reversing that of the Munsif, Saugor, dated the 30th January 1914.

Mr. F. W. Dillon, for the Appellant.

Dr. H. S. Gour, for the Respondents.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILKANTH.

JUDGMENT.—The suit out of which this appeal has arisen was filed on the 12th April 1913, in the Court of the Munsif of Saugor by three persons, namely, Nilkanth Rao, Brahmin, Trimbak Rao, Brahmin, and Hiralal, Kori, all residents of "Madia Naka," a Municipal ward in the town of Saugor. The plaintiffs claimed a perpetual injunction to restrain the defendant, the Municipal Committee of the town of Saugor, from establishing and maintaining a slaughter-house for goats on a site within the vicinity of the dwelling houses of the plaintiffs. The Munsif, in a careful and well-reasoned judgment, held that the plaintiffs had not made out a case for the grant of an injunction, and dismissed the suit with costs. This decree was, however, upset by the District Court on appeal by two of the plaintiffs, namely, Nilkanth Rao and Hiralal, to whom a decree for a perpetual injunction, as prayed for in the plaint, was granted. The defendant-Committee has, therefore, made this second appeal upon various grounds set out in the memorandum of appeal, which will be considered in due course. The case was argued with great ability by learned Counsel on both sides, and I have had some difficulty in forming a conclusion.

The questions involved are of some public importance, and there is no published decision of this Court to which I can refer as a guide to a proper decision. The main issues of law which arise may be stated thus:—

(1) Is the establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house within the residential quarter of a town per se, a nuisance at common law?

(2) If so, can a private suit for an injunction be maintained by any person more particularly affected by such nuisance?

(3) If so, what statutory protection is there against such a suit for a Municipal Committee in the Central Provinces?

It will be readily perceived that if the answer to either of the first two questions is in the negative, then the present suit cannot proceed; and that it will be equally untenable if the Statute Law gives an absolute protection, under all circumstances, to the act of the defendant Committee in establishing and maintaining the slaughter-house in dispute.

Upon a careful consideration of the matter, I am of opinion that this suit cannot be disposed of on the above issues only. The conclusion to which I have come upon each of them may be briefly stated thus:—

(1) The slaughter of animals for sale is undoubtedly an offensive business, but whether or not it amounts to a public or private nuisance, is a question depending for answer upon the facts of each particular case.

(2) Where the establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house amounts to a nuisance to one or more persons living in the neighbourhood of it, any one of such persons may sue for an injunction.

(3) The statutory power given to Municipal Committees in the Central Provinces to fix places for the slaughter of animals for sale does not authorize such Committees to cause a nuisance.

As to the first point, it is a matter of common sense, beyond all reasonable dispute, that the slaughter of animals for food cannot be seen, or the noises connected with it heard, or the odours arising from it inhaled by the general body of the public, judged by such standards as I must apply in this case, without a strong sense of repugnance. The business is one which is offensive per se. In England this has always been the view, and it has, therefore, been held that a slaughter of animals for sale, when carried on in a populous place, or too close to a residential dwelling, may amount to a nuisance: Jones & Powell, In re (1), Rex v. Watts (2). In Rattigan v. Municipal Committee of Lahore (3), a case which is much relied on by the defendant-appellant in this appeal, it was proved by the expert testimony on both sides, and generally accepted by the learned Judges who decided the case, that the business carried on in a slaughter-house is, per se, of an offensive character. It is for this reason that

(1) (1628) Palm. 536 at p. 539; 81 E. R. 1208.

(2) (1826) 2 Car. & P. 486; 31 R. R. 636.

(3) 106 P. R. 1888.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILKANTH.

the establishment and maintenance of slaughter-houses, like other offensive trades, has long been subject to special statutory regulations both in England and in British India. For example, the private Act of Parliament, 45 Geo. III c. 99, s. 56, which was afterwards replaced by 59 Geo. III c. 39, s. 88, forbade the keeping, use, or employment of any house or place for the purpose of slaughtering animals, not killed for butcher's meat, within a distance of one thousand yards from a work-house. Slaughter-houses for butcher's meat have generally been the subject of Municipal Regulations in England, because the business of slaughtering is by its nature accepted as offensive to the senses of those brought too closely into contact with it. In India the same conditions prevail. Every Municipal and Cantonment enactment requires the local authorities governed by it to control and regulate the establishment and use of slaughter-houses. Section 71, Central Provinces Municipal Act, 1903, is the law here applicable, and sub-section (3), which forbids the slaughter of animals for sale at any but the places fixed and controlled by the Committee, implies an acknowledgment by the Legislature that the business to be carried on in a slaughter-house is dangerous or offensive to the public. The conclusion, then, is irresistible that the establishment and maintenance of a slaughter-house for butcher's meat is, per se, an offensive trade, even though it is not included as such in section 99 of the local Municipal Act.

But an offensive business is not, ipso facto, a nuisance against which the law will grant relief. The slaughter of animals for butcher's meat is a business which, from its nature, is liable to cause a nuisance to the neighbourhood where it is carried on; but whether in any particular case, it is an actionable nuisance, depends mainly on the locality in which it is placed: and, therefore, the question is one of fact to be determined upon the circumstances of each particular case. It follows from this that a slaughter-house may be a nuisance in one place and not necessarily so in another; and also that it may be a nuisance to the general public in one situation and only a nuisance to particular persons in another. Thus it may be (i) no nuisance, (ii) a public nuisance or (iii) a private nuisance, and subject to (i) no suit, (ii) a suit by or on behalf of the public aggrieved by it, and (iii) a suit by a private person injured by it. Where, as here, it is alleged to be a private nuisance to the dwellers of habitations nearest to it, such a suit as the present is clearly maintainable. A private nuisance may arise out of an act itself wrongful, or an act, not in itself necessarily wrongful, but the consequences of which are prejudicial to the plaintiff's person, house, land, etc.: Reynolds v. Clerk (4). It is a form of nuisance which affects those persons who are immediately within the scope of its operation, but does not injure or inflict inconvenience upon others who are further removed from it. It may be even advantageous or pleasurable to those who are at a distance, as in the case of church bells: Soltan v. De Held (5).

It will be observed that I have now reached the second of the three issues raised by me, namely, the right of the plaintiffs, as private persons, to maintain this suit. The importance of the division of nuisances into public and private lies chiefly in the difference of the remedies applicable to, and in the right of action given by, each. In England it was at one time held that any one might abate a public nuisance: James v. Hayward (6), Rex v. Wilcox (7). But, on the Civil side, it is now held to be the law that a private individual has no right of action against a public nuisance, unless he can show that he has sustained some special damage over and above that inflicted upon the community at large: Colchester v. Brooke (8), Dimes v. Petley (9), Bateman v. Bluck (10). Action against a public nuisance in England must ordinarily be taken by or in the name of the Attorney-General: Wallasey Local

(4) (1725) 8 Mod. 272; 1 Stra. 634; 88 E. R. 193; Fortes. 212; 2 Ld. Ray. 1399.

(5) (1851) 2 Sim. (N. S.) 133 at p. 142; 21 L. J. Ch. 153; 16 Jur. 326; 61 E. R. 291; 89 R. R. 245.

(6) (1630) Cro. Car. 184; 79 E. R. 761.

(7) (1690) 2 Salk. 458; 91 E. R. 395.

(8) (1845) 7 Q. B. 339; 68 R. R. 458; 15 L. J. Q. B. 59; 9 Jur. 1090; 115 E. R. 518.

(9) (1850) 15 Q. B. 276; 41 R. R. 573; 19 L. J. Q. B. 449; 14 Jur. 1132; 117 E. R. 462.

(10) (1852) 18 Q. B. 870; 88 R. R. 813; 21 L. J. Q. B. 406; 17 Jur. 386; 118 E. R. 329.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR v. NILEKANTH.

Board v. Gracey (11), Tottenham Urban District Council v. Williamson (12), Stoke Parish Council v. Price (13), Boyce v. Paddington Borough Council (14), Watson v. Hythe Borough Council (15). The Indian Codes of Civil Procedure, prior to that now current, contained no analogous law. But in the present Code section 91 expressly provides as follows:—

"(1) In the case of a public nuisance the Advocate-General, or two or more persons, having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate-General, may institute a suit, though no special damage has been caused, for a declaration and injunction or for such other relief as may be appropriate to the circumstances of the case.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any right of suit which may exist independently of its provisions."

Section 93 of the same Code extends to Local Governments, and to Collectors or other officers appointed by them, similar powers in places outside the Presidency towns. A public nuisance may affect one person so much more than all others in the same neighbourhood as to amount to private nuisance so far as he is concerned. Where a noise caused by a tinman plying his trade affected three houses only, it was held that this was a private nuisance and not indictable: Rea v. Lloyd (16). But, even in England, a private individual, having a valid right of action in respect of the special injury sustained through a public nuisance, may join as a plaintiff in the proceedings of the Attorney-General for relief against his special injury: Attorney-General v. Logan (17), Attorney-General v. Lonsdals (Earl) (18),

Attorney-General v. Cokermonth Local Board (19), and several other cases which I need not cite. But a private individual may bring an action in his own name in respect of a public nuisance, when, and only when, he can show that he has suffered some particular, direct, and substantial damage over and above that sustained by the public at large, or when the interference with the public right involves a violation of some private right, or of some special protection or benefit given to him by Statute: Bhawan Singh v. Narottam Singh (20), Paine v. Partrick (21), William's case (22), Robert Murys's case (23), Attorney-General v. Forbes (24), Bell v. Quebec Corporation (25), Whelan v. Hewson (26), Boyce v. Paddington Borough Council (14), Devonport Corporation v. Plymouth, Devonport Tramways Co. (27). In every private action material damage, actual or prospective, must be made out before an action can be maintained. There is no right of action against a damnum absque injuria. In the present case the plaintiffs have alleged material injury, actual and prospective, and I have no doubt that, upon the allegations set forward by them and brought out in full detail by some of their witnesses, the action is maintainable, so far as the law of procedure is concerned.

I come now to the third of the issues of law raised by me, namely, as to the extent of statutory protection given to the defendant Committee in the matter of establishing and maintaining slaughter-houses. In many cases acts, which would not merely be offensive or dangerous but would amount to nuisances, whether common or merely private, are found to be authorized by the words of a Statute. For instance, to break up or place any permanent obstruction on (11) (1887) 36 Ch. D. 593; 56 L. J. Ch. 739; 57 L. T. 51; 35 W. R. 694; 51 J. P. 740.

(12) (1896) 2 Q. B. 353; 65 L. J. Q. B. 591; 75 L. T. 238; 44 W. R. 676; 60 J. P. 725.

(13) (1899) 2 Ch. 277; 68 L. J. Ch. 447; 80 L. T. 643; 47 W. R. 663; 63 J. P. 502.

(14) (1903) 1 Ch. 109; 72 L. J. Ch. 28; 87 L. T. 564; 51 W. R. 109; 67 J. P. 23; 1 L. G. R. 98.

(15) (1906) 70 J. P. 153; 4 L. G. R. 340; 22 T. L. R. 245.

(16) (1802) 4 Esp. 200.

(17) (1891) 2 Q. B. 100; 65 L. T. 162; 55 J. P. 615.

(18) (1868) 7 Eq. 377; 38 L. J. Ch. 335; 20 L. T. 64; 17 W. R. 219.

(19) (1874) 18 Eq. 172 at p. 176; 44 L. J. Ch. 118; 30 L. T. 590; 22 W. R. 619.

(20) 2 Ind. Cas. 365; 31 A. 441; 6 A. L. J. 499.

(21) (1690) Carth. 191; 90 E. R. 715.

(22) (1592) 5 Co. Rep. 72 b; 77 E. R. 163.

(23) (1612) 9 Co. Rep. 111 b, 113 a; 77 E. R. 895.

(24) (1836) 2 My. & Cr. 123; 45 R. R. 15; 40 E. R. 587.

(25) (1879) 5 App. Cas. 84; 49 L. J. P. C. 1; 41 L. T. 451.

(26) (1871) 6 Ir. R. C. L. 283.

(27) (1884) 52 L. T. 161; 49 J. P. 405.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR P. NILKANTH.

a public highway is, prima facie, a nuisance. But statutory powers have been given in many cases to do this to railway and tramway companies, and for the purposes of laying gas or water mains, electric light cables, and telegraph and telephone poles and wires; and where the Statute, by express words or by necessary implication, does sanction the act which causes the nuisance, all remedy, whether by indictment or action, is taken away, provided that the statutory sanction is used in a cautious and reasonable way: Ret. v. Pease (28); London, Brighton and South Coast Railway Company v. Trumpton (29). The Courts, however, are careful to see that authority to commit the nuisance complained of is expressly given or necessarily implied from the words of the Statute in question. If such authority is not so given, an action may be successfully brought against the corporation causing the nuisance: Powell v. Fall (30); Rapier v. London Tramways Company (31). Even where the Statute does authorize a nuisance the persons so authorized are responsible if they exercise their powers negligently, and without taking reasonable precautions to prevent damage resulting therefrom: Vaughan v. Taff Vale Railway (32); Jolliffe v. Wallasey Local Board (33).

In the Central Provinces every Municipal Committee is empowered, with the approval of the Deputy Commissioner, to fix and abolish places, either within or without the limits of the Municipality, for the slaughter of animals for sale, and, with the like approval, to grant and withdraw licenses for the use of such places, or, if they belong to, or are under the control of the Committee, to charge rent or fees for the same: section 71, Act XVI of 1903. But it is clear that these provisions convey no authority to establish, maintain, or license any slaughter-house which is, or may become, a public or private nuisance. On the contrary, the Legislative intention in giving the above and other powers of inspection and control is manifestly this, that, as far as possible, the arising of any such nuisance may be prevented. Therefore, if a Municipal Committee establishes, maintains, or licenses the use of a slaughter-house which, whether by reason of its situation, or of the manner in which, or the description of animal for the killing of which it is used, is a public or private nuisance in law, the Statute will afford no defence to such Committee against an action for relief against the nuisance.

It is also clear that, where an act is done under an authority conferred by Statute, the conditions laid down by the Statute must have been strictly followed; otherwise the act is unauthorized and wrongful. The remedy of a private individual, for an injury caused to him by an act which is in itself wrongful, stands on a much higher level than where the act is not wrongful. Section 71 of the Municipal Act above mentioned requires the approval of the Deputy Commissioner to the selection of a site for a slaughter-house. It is clear that in this country such an approval is a very material condition governing the statutory authority given to Municipal Committees. It is not a mere form. The Legislature is perfectly alive to the danger and difficulty which may arise from the conflict of feelings and sentiments among persons of so many different persuasions as are collected together in Indian towns, and it, therefore, expressly requires the approval of the highest local authority, and one generally independent of, and impartial to, the causes of difference, to approve of every selected site. I am clear that the intention of the Legislature is that this approval shall be obtained before any building of a slaughter-house is begun on the proposed site; and that an approval of the site, after the house has been built, which may be influenced by considerations of factum valet, or of the public expense and inconvenience involved in refusing sanction, is not a due compliance with the law. I hold that a Municipal Committee which builds a slaughter-house on a site selected by itself without the previous approval of the site by the Deputy Commissioner, does an unauthorized and unlawful act, and cannot use the Statute as a (28) (1832) 4 Farn. & Adol. 30; 1 N. & M. 69; 2 L. J. M. C. 26; 110 E. R. 366; 38 R. R. 207.

(29) (1885) 11 App. Cas. 45; 55 L. J. Ch. 354; 54 L. T. 20; 34 W. R. 657; 50 J. P. 388.

(30) (1880) 5 Q. B. D. 597; 49 L. J. Q. B. 428; 43 L. T. 562.

(31) (1898) 2 Ch. 588; 63 L. J. Ch. 36; 2 R. 448; 69 L. T. 361.

(32) (1860) 5 H. & N. 679; 29 L. J. Ex. 247; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 599; 2 L. T. 394; 8 W. R. 549; 120 R. R. 779.

(33) (1878) 9 C. P. 62; 43 L. J. C. P. 41; 29 L. T. 682.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILEANTH.

defence to an action brought against it on the ground that the act has created a nuisance.

Having thus demonstrated the legal aspect of the case, so far as the right of suit and the statutory defence to it are concerned, it is necessary to consider what amounts to a private nuisance giving right to an action at law. In order to constitute a nuisance at law it is essential that there should exist, either actually or impliedly, (1), injuria i. e., a wrongful act constituting or causing damage, and (2) damnum, i. e., damage, loss, or inconvenience. Damnum absque injuria gives no right of action. An injuria is the violation of some right which another possesses. There must, therefore, be a right existing in the complainant, and a corresponding duty on the part of the alleged wrong-doer not to interfere with that right: per Bramwell, B., in Dunn v. Birmingham Canal Company (34). Absence of the right, or of the duty, or of the violation of the duty, prevents the act complained of from being actionable. Where the act or omission causing or constituting an alleged nuisance is unlawful per se, e. g., where it is of itself a violation of statutory provisions or of private common law rights, the law will presume damage to exist: Baten's case (35); Pindar v. Wadsworth (36); Embrey v. Owen (37); Pennington v. Brinsop Hall Coal Company (38); Attorney-General v. Conduit Colliery Company (39); McCartney v. Londonderry and Lough Swilley Railway Co. (40). But where the act is innocent and lawful, then the question whether it amounts to an actionable nuisance is one of fact to be determined, not merely by an abstract consideration of the act itself, but by reference to all the circumstances of the particular case: Sturges v. Bridgman (41);

Rushmer v. Polsue & Alfieri Ltd. (42), affirmed Polsue & Alfieri Ltd. v. Rushmer (43), and numerous other cases. In dealing with a case of an alleged private nuisance it must be remembered that every person is entitled, as against his neighbour, to the comfortable and healthful enjoyment of the premises owned or occupied by him, whether for business or pleasure. In England it has been well laid down that in deciding whether, in any particular case, this right has been invaded and a nuisance thereby caused, it is necessary to determine whether the act complained of is an inconvenience materially interfering with the ordinary physical comfort of human existence, not merely according to elegant or dainty modes and habits of living, but according to plain and sober and simple notions obtaining among the English people: per Knight Bruce, V. C., in Halter v. Selfe (44). It is also necessary to take into account the circumstances and character of the locality in which the complainant is living, and the similar annoyances which previously existed there: St. Helen's Smelting Company v. Tipping (45); Polsue & Alfieri Ltd. v. Rushmer (43). It should also be borne in mind that a person cannot, by applying his property to special or extraordinary uses or purposes, whether for business or pleasure, restrict the right of his neighbour in the ordinary and legitimate enjoyment of his property, [Robinson v. Kilvert (46)] or impose upon his neighbour burdens which, in the ordinary course of things, he is not called upon to bear. Extraordinary user may be an alteration or use of premises for purposes which are noxious, or dangerous, or so offensive as to be a real nuisance. And the party who brings about a change in the existing state of things by introducing an offensive business into a neighbourhood where no such business pre-

(34) (1872) 8 Q. B. 42 at p. 49; 42 L. J. Q. B. 34; 27 L. T. 683; 21 W. R. 266.

(35) (1610) 9 Co. Rep. 53 b; 77 E. R. 80.

(36) (1802) 2 East. 154; 6 R. R. 412; 102 E. R. 328.

(37) (1851) 6 Ex. 353; 86 R. R. 331; 20 L. J. Ex. 212; 15 Jur. 633; 17 L. T. 79.

(38) (1877) 5 Ch. D. 769; 46 L. J. Ch. 773; 37 L. T. 149; 25 W. R. 874.

(39) (1895) 1 Q. B. 301; 64 L. J. Q. B. 207; 15 R. 267; 71 L. T. 777; 43 W. R. 366; 59 J. P. 70.

(40) (1904) A. C. 301; 73 L. J. P. C. 73; 91 L. T. 105; 53 W. R. 305.

(41) (1879) 1 Ch. D. 852 at p. 865; 48 L. J. Ch. 785; 41 L. T. 219; 28 W. R. 200.

(42) (1906) 1 Ch. 234; 75 L. J. Ch. 79; 93 L. T. 823; 54 W. R. 161; 22 T. L. R. 139.

(43) (1907) A. C. 121; 76 L. J. Ch. 365; 96 L. T. 510; 23 T. L. R. 362.

(44) (1851) 4 De G. & Sm. 315 at p. 322; 87 R. R. 393 at p. 398; 20 L. J. Ch. 433; 15 Jur. 416; 64 E. R. 849; 17 L. T. 103.

(45) (1865) 11 H. L. Cas. 642; 35 L. J. Q. B. 66; 11 Jur. (N. S.) 785; 12 L. T. 776; 13 W. R. 1083; 145 R. R. 348.

(46) (1889) 4 Ch. D. 88; 58 L. J. Ch. 392; 61 L. T. 60; 37 W. R. 545.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR v. NILKANTH.

viously existed, is, in my opinion, bound to show that his act is legal and justifiable.

It seems clear that all these considerations must be made in this case, not with reference to the plain, sober and simple notions obtaining among the people of towns in England, but according to what is found to be reasonable and proper in view of the conditions which prevail in this country. But, as pointed out by Stanelly, C. J., in Shahbaz Khan v. Umrao Puri (47) in dealing with a question in which the ordinary rights of property are involved, the Courts must act upon some general principle or rule of law. It has been well laid down in a series of cases that an act which offends the susceptibilities of individuals or the sentiments of a class, is not, ipso facto, an actionable nuisance, and cannot be made a ground for overriding ordinary rights in property: Hadjee Muzhur Ali v. Gundlawaree Sahoo (48), Muttumira v. Queen-Empress (49), Queen-Empress v. Byramji Edalji (50), Queen-Empress v. Zaki-ud-din (51), Romesh Chunder Sanyal v. Hiru Mondal (52) and Shahbaz Khan v. Umrao Puri (47), approved in Mohammad Yakub v. Emperor (53). But in applying these rulings, it must be remembered that what is not indictable as a public nuisance may yet be actionable as a private nuisance. This distinction will be further considered hereafter.

So far I have discussed the law from the point of view of an existing nuisance. But in the present case the plaintiffs also complain of possible future injury, and to that extent their suit is a quia timet action. Therefore it seems necessary to discuss the law governing the right to an injunction against an act which is objected to on the ground of prospective injury. In England it has been held that the injured party need not wait until he has suffered injury before seeking relief: Penruddock's case (54), and an injunction may be granted to restrain the commission of a prospective nuisance: Dawson v. Paver (55), Elwell v. Crowther (56), Attorney-General v. Kingston-on-Thames Corporation (57). To obtain such an injunction it is necessary to show a strong case of probability that the apprehended mischief will in fact arise: Attorney-General v. Manchester Corporation (58). If imminent danger of a substantial kind be shown, or should it appear that the apprehended danger, if it comes, will be irreparable, an injunction will be granted: Fletcher v. Bealey (59), Haines v. Taylor (60), Ripon (Earl) v. Hobart (61). An injunction to restrain the erection of a hospital for infectious diseases will only be granted when there is a real danger to health and property; in the present state of science the establishment of a small-pox hospital will not be assumed to be a serious source of danger so as to constitute a nuisance for which an injunction will be granted in a quia timet action: Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill (62), Bendelov v. Wortley Union (63), Fleet v. Metropolitan Asylums District (Managers) (64), Attorney-General v. Nottingham Corporation (65), Attorney-General v. Manchester Corporation (58), Attorney-General v. Rathmines & Pembroke Hospital Board (66). It is not sufficient merely to allege that the proposed acts of the defendant will have an illegal result as against the plaintiff, without putting before the Court sufficient material to enable it to judge

(55) (1847) 5 Hare 415; 71 R. R. 155; 4 Railw. Cas. 81; 16 L. J. Ch. 274; 11 Jur. 766; 67 E. R. 974.

(56) (1862) 31 Beav. 163; 135 R. R. 383; 31 L. J. Ch. 763; 8 Jur. (n. s.) 1004; 10 W. R. 615; 54 E. R. 1100.

(57) (1865) 34 L. J. Ch. 481; 146 R. R. 703; 11 Jur. (n. s.) 596; 12 L. T. 665; 13 W. R. 888.

(58) (1893) 2 Ch. 87; 62 L. J. Ch. 459; 3 R. 427; 68 L. T. 608; 41 W. R. 459; 57 J. P. 343.

(59) (1885) 28 Ch. D. 688; 54 L. J. Ch. 424; 52 L. T. 541; 33 W. R. 745.

(60) (1846) 10 Beav. 75; 50 E. R. 511; 76 R. R. 96; On appeal 2 Ph. 209; 11 Jur. 73; 41 E. R. 922; 78 R. R. 71.

(61) (1834) 3 My. & K. 169; 41 R. R. 40; Coop. t. Brough. 333; 3 L. J. Ch. (n. s.) 145; 40 E. R. 65.

(62) (1881) 6 App. Cas. 193; 50 L. J. Q. B. 353; 44 L. T. 653; 29 W. R. 617; 45 J. P. 864.

(63) (1887) 57 L. T. 840; 57 L. J. Ch. 762; 36 W. R. 168.

(64) (1884) 1 T. L. R. 80; affirmed 2 T. L. R. 361.

(65) (1904) 1 Ch. 673; 73 L. J. Ch. 512; 90 L. T. 308; 52 W. R. 281; 68 J. P. 25; 2 L. G. R. 698; 20 T. L. R. 257.

(66) (1904) 1 I. R. 161; 7 Irish Law Rep. 679.

(47) 30 A. 181 at p. 184; A. W. N. (1908) 64; 5 A. L. J. 147; 7 Cr. L. J. 381.

(48) 25 W. R. 72 Cr.

(49) 7 M. 590; 1 Weir 246.

(50) 12 B. 437.

(51) 10 A. 44; A. W. N. (1887) 232.

(52) 17 C. 852.

(53) 6 Ind. Cas. 454; 32 A. 571; 7 A. L. J. 649; 11 Cr. L. J. 355.

(54) (1598) 5 Co. Rep. 100 b; 77 E. R. 210.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILKANTH.

of that question for itself: Haines v. Taylor (60). Where some degree of present nuisance exists, the Court will take into account its probable continuance and increase, and its present existence raises a presumption of its continuance: Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Improvement Commissioners (67), Phillips v. Thomas (68). It seems to me that the law as above laid down for England is the proper law to apply, mutatis mutandis, to quia timet actions in India. In doing so, the conditions of climate, of scientific and sanitary development, of the efficiency attained by corporations and others in the management and control of dangerous and offensive trades, of the disposition and habits of the people generally, and the like, obtaining in this country as compared with England must, of course, be taken into account. But the general principles and doctrines propounded in the English cases afford a proper guide for the just decision of similar cases in India.

Next it seems expedient to draw a further distinction between public and private nuisances, because, from some of the pleas raised and arguments advanced on behalf of the defence, the distinction appears to have been overlooked. For example the first ground in the memorandum of appeal before me reads thus:—

"That it should have been held that the plaintiffs could not maintain this suit inasmuch as the alleged nuisance is not shown to be one which affects them in any greater degree than it affects other residents of the locality."

Such a contention would be perfectly correct, supposing the fact to be as stated, if the erection of the slaughter-house caused a public nuisance so as to make section 91, Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, applicable. But the rule embodied in the above ground of appeal has no application where there is no allegation on either side that a common nuisance has been caused.

As in England, so in India, a remedy is provided against a public nuisance by the criminal law as well as by way of a civil action.

Section 268, Indian Penal Code, thus defines a nuisance of that class:—

"A person is guilty of a public nuisance who does any act, or is guilty of an illegal omission which causes any common injury, danger or annoyance to the public or to the people in general who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, or which must necessarily cause injury, obstruction, danger or annoyance to persons who may have occasion to use any public right."

A common nuisance is not excused on the ground that it causes some convenience or advantage."

It is not necessary that the annoyance caused by an act or illegal omission indicted as a common nuisance should injuriously affect every single person within its range of operation. It is sufficient that it should affect people in general who dwell in the vicinity: per Anderson, J., in Phiraya Mal v. Emperor (69). Sections 269 to 289 inclusive of the Indian Penal Code deal with various acts which have been held to constitute public nuisances in England, and section 290 covers all other acts and omissions found to or come under that category. The erection of a slaughter-house, in some circumstances, may be a public nuisance. But that is not a point which has been raised in this case, and it is not necessary to discuss it. A private nuisance is an act affecting some particular individual or individuals as distinguished from the public at large. It is in the quantum of annoyance that public nuisance differs from private. But the extent of the injury to the particular individual must be measured by a more or less general standard and not merely by any susceptibilities peculiar to the individual concerned. The legal maxim applicable is lex non favet votis delicorum:—the law favours not the wishes of the dainty, and it clearly inspired the dictum in Walter v. Selfe (44).

Having thus considered the law applicable to a suit for an injunction against a private nuisance, I turn now to the particular facts of this case. As already stated, the first Court found that no nuisance had been created. The lower Appellate Court has held that a nuisance both actual and prospective has come into existence. This is a finding of fact and it if had been based upon a proper consideration of the case

(67) (1866) 1 Ch. 349; 35 L. J. Ch. 382; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 308; 14 L. T. 154; 14 W. R. 562.

(68) (1890) 62 L. T. 793.

(69) 9 P. R. 1904; 69 P. L. R. 1904; 1 Cr. L. J. 513.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR V. NILKANTH.

from a correct standpoint and accompanied by a sound appreciation of what amounts in law to a nuisance, this appeal could not have been maintained. But it is just in these matters that both the Courts below seem to me to have erred, and I am of opinion that the case must go back for proper trial and decision. In itself it is a suit of small value, but the question involved is one of public importance and likely to arise again and again.

The allegations of the plaintiffs may be stated thus:—

The slaughter-house is located so close to their residences as to be a nuisance causing actual and prospective injuries as given below:—

(1) By offending the susceptibilities of the plaintiffs, who are vegetarian Hindus;

(2) By the offensive noises and odours inseparable from the business of slaughtering;

(3) By reducing the value of their property owing to the vicinity of an offensive business;

(4) By a gradual setting up of impurity and pollution in the neighbourhood when carnivorous birds and small animals shall have been attracted, and unwholesome odours and refuse shall have had time to accumulate by a continued use of the slaughter-house, causing annoyance, discomfort, and possible impairment of health to the plaintiffs.

The pleas of the defendant may be stated thus:—

(1) The slaughter-house creates no present nuisance being built and managed with due regard to sanitation, and the site for it being selected in order that it might be close to a market established for the sale of the meat brought from it.

(2) The objections taken by the plaintiffs are sentimental and unreal.

I leave out of consideration some technical and absurd pleas put forward by the defendant as to no cause of action having arisen, the plaint being insufficiently stamped, and the plaintiffs being liable to pay damages for delaying the construction of the slaughter-house.

The learned District Judge has correctly reproduced some of the propositions as to what the law requires to be found in a case of nuisance. But he has made no application of them in deciding this suit. He has brushed aside the maxim, lex non favet votis delicatorem, and has regarded the question before him purely from the point of view of a vegetarian Brahmin. In doing so he has accepted as a foundation for his decision much that is merely the opinion of such Brahmins, without any experience of the conditions attaching to slaughter-houses. The following extracts from the judgment of the lower Appellate Court will make this clear:—

"The evidence adduced in the case describes the ordinary concomitants which the existence of a slaughter-house denotes or makes apparent."

I frankly confess my inability to obtain an intelligent grasp of which this sentence means. The learned Judge proceeds:

"Witnesses have described nuisance caused according to their own state of feeling, sentiment and power of observation."

It would have been more to the point if witnesses could have deposed to what was within their knowledge as experts, or their experience as persons who have lived near slaughter-houses.

The learned Judge correctly treated as valuable the evidence of the Civil Surgeon, but he only looked at it from one side. He found that at the time of his judgment "the sanitary arrangements made by the defendant Committee are perfect" and that "the place always looks clean and tidy." Then he added, "but it is not possible to look into this consideration as there is no guarantee when laxity may prevail." This was a pure conjecture because the learned Judge carefully excluded, as irrelevant, evidence going to show the experience obtained in such cases in other Municipal slaughter-houses. In fact such evidence is most important and in law most relevant as affording a guide to the decision of two facts in issue, namely, (1) what is the general public feeling as to slaughter-houses being established close to dwelling-houses in towns in India, and (2) what is the usual effect and efficiency of Municipal management of slaughter-houses. The learned Judge, like the two witnesses upon whose opinions his judgment largely turns, guesses without evidence at the prospective injury pleaded by the plaintiffs. He writes:—

"The inconveniences to which the plaintiffs with their neighbouring owners are subjected by the existence of the slaughterhouse in question are thus described by two respectable residents of the locality who have their residential quarters similarly situate to the slaughter-house as that of the plaintiffs."

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAJJOR V. NILKANTH.

These witnesses are stated to be P. W. No. 10, Vasudeo Ramchand Halve, and P. W. No. 11, Sadasheo Madho Parande.

Of the respectability of these witnesses there is no doubt, Vasudeo Rao being the Clerk of Court in the office of the District Judge of Raipur, and Mr. Parande being an Additional District Judge at Nagpur. They possess houses said to be respectively within 100 feet and 300 feet from the slaughter-house in dispute and half a furlong or one furlong from the houses of the plaintiffs. There is evidently some error in the distances so given. The witnesses do not reside in these houses at present. They both confess to absolute ignorance of what takes place in a slaughter-house, and admit having no personal experience as to the conditions prevailing in the immediate vicinity of a slaughter-house, never having lived near any such establishment. Therefore, their statements, as to the results likely to ensue from the establishment of the slaughter-house in dispute near the houses of the plaintiffs, are purely conjectural. The inconveniences which they predicate may be thus stated:—

(1) Noxious odours from the slaughter-house will reach the houses of the plaintiffs.

(2) The constant sight of the slaughter-house will bring unpleasant thoughts to the minds of the plaintiffs.

(3) Crows and vultures will be attracted and will defile the neighbourhood with their droppings, and will make it impossible for the plaintiffs to place grain and other articles of food outside. They will also scatter bones and meat about the place and foul the water of wells.

(4) Numbers of dogs will begin to frequent the locality: their fighting will cause disturbance, and among them animals suffering from rabies may appear and be a source of serious danger.

(5) The continuous slaughter will be ever before the eyes or present to the minds of the people in the vicinity.

(6) Flies with their concomitant trouble and danger will assemble in large numbers.

(7) The carnivorous birds may be a source of danger to newborn babes.

(8) Morning worship will be rendered impossible owing to distraction caused by the noises and odours from the slaughter-house, and by the mental distress arising from a constant recollection or imagining of what may be going on within its walls.

(9) People of the class of witnesses will not care to buy houses in the neighbourhood.

The learned Judge accepts these opinions as evidence which cannot be doubted, and lays stress on the fact that the first two plaintiffs are Brahmins. He then introduces his own extra-judicial knowledge or his personal sentiments into the matter and goes a good deal beyond the evidence. He refers to the first two plaintiffs as "high classed Maharashtra non-flesh-eating Brahmins of the old type," and to the first of them, Nilkanth Rao, as one who "has reached the hoary age of 70 without deviating in the least degree from the first principles taught to him by his ancestors." The learned Judge then surmises that nothing could annoy this plaintiff more than the presence of the slaughter-house, and that such an abomination "is likely to shorten his life." Further on we read:

"His mental vision could not possibly get rid of the phenomenal aspect of the operation carried on inside the four walls of that little building standing right in front of his view, howsoever barricaded by high walls of brick and mortar. It must be practically a matter of impossibility to him to denude his faculty of the memory of the details attendant, which must in the very nature of things so engross his attention as to lead to extreme nausea or a sense of disgust whether at the time of worshipping or of eating or of drinking or of sleeping."

If we descend, from this very estimable regard for the feelings of a venerable Brahmin gentleman, and from the realms of high ideal and vivid imagination, to the terra firma of facts and sober judgment, we shall find that the slaughter-house stands behind the house of this plaintiff and that he need never look at it unless he wants to do so: that it emits no foul or peculiar odour at present: that the bleating of assembled goats is a common and constant noise in all parts of Indian towns: and that the plaintiff has probably never been in a slaughter-house in his life, and cannot, therefore, build up any true mental vision of what goes on in there. I am very far from saying that he will not suffer any annoyance from the fact of a slaughter-house being established within 50 or 60 yards of his residence; but exaggerated and imaginary descriptions of that annoyance are not legal findings in a case of nuisance. We see here a marked disregard of the maxim already quoted. If the case of the plaintiffs can be placed no higher than as one of wounding the susceptibilities of a septuagenarian and vegetarian, it is a case that must fail. But there may be much more in it when it comes to be regarded from the proper point of view. The findings must be based on evidence and not on mere opinion and conjecture. When the evidence is there the Court may, of course, make all the presumptions open to it under section 114 and other provisions of the Evidence Act. It may serve some purpose if I lay down some of the points of inquiry and the nature of the evidence required.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF SAUGOR P. NILEKANTH.

The first point is to enquire into the position and conditions of the locality into which this slaughter-house has been introduced. Is it on the outskirts of the town or well inside it? Is it populous? What is the approximate number and general class of people living within a radius of say 500 yards of the slaughter-house? Were any offensive trades of any kind carried on in the neighbourhood before the slaughter-house was established? If so, did any one object to them?

Next we want the evidence of experts and not the opinions of inexperienced persons as to the effect of placing a slaughter-house, however well managed, within 50 or 60 yards of residences, regarded from a purely sanitary point of view. In the Punjab case, on which much reliance was placed by the learned Counsel for the appellant, the distances were 220 yards and 440 yards, and nine doctors differed, five being on one side and four on the other. In India the law has placed no limit of distance, but we have seen that in England, in bygone centuries, one thousand yards was laid down for the interval between a slaughter-house and a work-house necessary to avoid an indictment against those who set up the former. There must have been something universally accepted as offensive in the vicinity of such an establishment. In this branch of the subject the climate of Saugor is an element to be considered, offensive trades being generally aggravated by heat, especially moist heat.

Next it is very necessary to ascertain how Municipalities in these provinces generally dispose of their slaughter-houses; and whether such houses, as a general rule, have been found to attract dogs, cats, flies, vultures, kites, and crows which constantly haunt the precincts and defile the neighbourhood: and, if so, up to what radius their droppings and scavenging are so concentrated as to amount to a nuisance. There should be plenty of evidence of this available in Saugor itself, in connection with the slaughter-house which the one now in dispute was erected to replace. Evidence on this point should be of witnesses who are living, or have lived, close to a Municipal slaughter-house, or been otherwise in a position to see the effect of its presence on its immediate surroundings.

It will also be necessary to see whether the Committee complied with the law by obtaining the approval of the Deputy Commissioner to the site selected before they proceeded to build the disputed slaughter-house thereon.

The fact that the slaughter-house is near the meat market or otherwise serves the convenience of the Committee is, of course, no defence. Nor should the Court attach any importance to the consideration that the Committee will be put to serious expense if the slaughter-house is now condemned. Objection was made very promptly, and the Committee have proceeded with the building and started work therein with their eyes open to that objection. The fact that the President and Secretary of the Committee are Mussalman gentlemen should not be admitted to consideration unless it appears that this fact furnishes a motive for the complaint made by the plaintiffs: for the motive which underlies a complaint of nuisance has been held to be relevant in a case of injunction:

TANSEY v. RIVETT.

Attorney-General v. Cambridge Consumers' Gas Company (70). Attorney-General v. Sheffield Gas Consumers' Company (71), Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company (72), Christie v. Davey (73). But the fact that the resolution to reject the objection of residents in the neighbourhood, and build the slaughter-house on the site in question, was only carried by the votes of four members against three of the defendant Committee is a fact which the Court may consider in coming to a conclusion as to the suitability of the site.

Finally the plaintiffs' case should be regarded from the point of view of, say, an even-minded, tolerant, flesh-eating Hindu of the same education and refinement as the plaintiffs. What would such a man undergo from the proximity of the slaughter-house to his dwelling apart from any hypersensitive objections based on religious grounds? It is only on some such basis that the interference of the Civil Court can be justified. Law is not a panacea for all the ills that flesh is heir to, and it is only on general principles, where an actionable wrong is clearly made out, that assistance from the Courts can be invoked. In dealing with the rights of the plaintiffs to a reasonable use and enjoyment of their dwelling-houses the rights of the defendant Committee to an equally reasonable use and enjoyment of Municipal land or land under Municipal management and control must not be overlooked. The learned Judge must hold the balance even and carefully and strictly exclude his own personal prejudice, if any, against slaughter-houses. The case must go back for a fresh decision upon the lines indicated.

The appeal is allowed. The decree of the lower Appellate Court is reversed, and the case is remanded to that Court for a fresh decision with advertence to the remarks made in this judgment. There will be no refund of Court-fees. Costs here and hitherto will follow the event. I allow Rs. 30 as Pleader's fees in this Court.

Appeal allowed; Case remanded.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1082 OF 1911.

March 29, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Donald Johnstone, KT., and Mr. Justice Shah Din.

TANSEY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

RIVETT—DEFENDANT RESPONDENT.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s.—73—Breach of contract to make plaintiff a partner—Damages, measure of.

Where the defendant promised to admit the plaintiff to a partnership but broke the promise and, thereby, caused him loss—

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was entitled to damages to the extent of the loss caused by the breach; [p. 74, col. 2.]

(2) that the measure of damages in such cases is the difference between the value of the plaintiff's estate immediately after the defendant's breach of promise and the value it would have had if the defendant had performed his promise. [p. 74, col. 2.]

First appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Ambala, dated the 20th June 1911.

Mr. C. Bevan Petman, for the Appellant.

The Hon'ble Mr. Muhammad Shafi, K. B., and Mr. Muhammad Ilyas Khan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This a part-heard and part-decided case. On 3rd August 1914, a Division Bench consisting of Johnstone and Scott-Smith, JJ., in an order which should be read along with this judgment decided that, while it was not proved that defendant actually made plaintiff a partner, he had certainly promised to do so; that there was adequate consideration for that promise; that defendant broke that promise and that plaintiff is entitled to damages "if he can show loss."

In argument Mr. Shafi has laid some stress upon the words in italics as if they meant that plaintiff must show loss in a concrete and positive way; but in our opinion, the words must be liberally construed in

(70) (1868) 4 Ch. 71; 38 L. J. Ch. 94; 19 L. T. 508; 17 W. R. 145.

(71) (1853) 3 De. G. M. & G. 304; 98 R. R. 151; 22 L. J. Ch. 811; 17 Jur. 677; 11 W. R. 245; 43 E. R. 119.

(72) (1891) 2 Ch. 479 at p. 414; 60 L. J. Ch. 630; 63 L. T. 864.

(73) (1893) 1 Ch. 316; 62 L. J. Ch. 439; 3 R. 210.]

KEEPILACHERI PARKUM V. VANNATHANKANDIYIL.

accordance with the authorities—in short, the words really mean “to the extent to which he is under the law entitled.”

We have heard very lengthy and complicated arguments, but the matter is really simple and most of the facts have been already found or are patent on the record.

Put briefly and generally, plaintiff, after a term of employment by the firm, returned to England, and was induced in 1901 to come back and resume work. There can be no doubt that hopes of a partnership were held out to him. Time passed and now and again, e.g., in 1905, the subject was raised and discussed, and was, at least once, put aside because defendant contemplated turning the concern into a Company; and finally in October 1908 things proceeded so far that a memorandum was drawn up showing plaintiff's share in the firm as valued at Rs. 28,750 as from 1901, this amount being almost entirely worked off at date by crediting to plaintiff Rs. 4,500 per annum as share of profits and debiting him year by year with interest on the successive balances not yet thus liquidated; and then upon a suggestion by plaintiff, the figure was put at Rs. 30,000, plus an additional Rs. 7,500, for which he was to give a pro-note, to be worked off by plaintiff out of salary and profits and to be treated as a loan as from 1908. This was actually posted up in the firm's books, and plaintiff continued to work until 26th March 1910, when he was turned out. No deed of partnership had been executed, and for this and other reasons, the previous Division Bench held that plaintiff never actually became a partner.

In our opinion, plaintiff has suffered substantial loss. Had defendant performed his engagements, plaintiff would now be a partner to the extent of 1/8th in a solvent firm of which the capital was valued by defendant at 3 lakhs; and in our opinion* it is immaterial how much plaintiff put in in cash into the business, or whether he put in anything. The measure of damages in such cases is the difference between the value of plaintiff's estate immediately after defendant's breach of promise and the value it would have had if defendant had performed his promise.

On 26th March 1910, plaintiff found himself out of employment and, so far as we know, with nothing but the savings, if any, he had effected from his salary. Had defendant carried out his promises, plaintiff would have been a partner in the firm with a Rs. 37,500 interest. At the same time we cannot give plaintiff a cash decree for this sum in full, for a share in a firm cannot, in view of the uncertainties of commerce and certain indications on the record, to which we do not wish to draw particular attention, that the firm has not in all respects been doing well, be taken as equivalent to cash of the same amount as the estimated value of the share; and we, therefore, take 2/3rds of that value as a fair figure. The plaintiff is, we hold, entitled to 2/3rds of Rs. 37,500, i.e., to Rs. 25,000 with costs in full. We give costs in full, because it was natural for plaintiff to claim all he has claimed; and we dismiss the cross-objections.

Appeal accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1009 OF 1914.

September 24, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

KEEPILACHERI PARKUM CHEEPOTHI
AMMAD AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—

APPELLANTS

versus

VANNATHANKANDIYIL AMBALA-THANKANDI AYISSA AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Letters Patent (Madras), s. 37—Appellate Side Rules of the Madras High Court, r. 105, if ultra vires—Appellant's failure to make necessary deposit for printing—Appeal, whether liable to be dismissed—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, rr. 11, 16.

* [Cf. Leake on Contract, 5th Edition, page 740 and page 742: Section 73, Indian Contract Act: Per curiam in Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341; 2 Com. L. R. 517; 23 L. J. Ex. 179; 18 Jur. 358; 2 W. R. 302; 23 L. T. (o.s.) 60; 196 R. R. 742.

Ogdens, Ltd. v. Nelson; Ogdens, Ltd. v. Telford, (1905) A. C. 109; 74 L. J. K. B. 433; 53 W. R. 497; 92 L. T. 478; 21 T. L. R. 359.

Akuljoo v. Hurbhuj, 68 P. R. 1867, quoted by Mr. Shafi, was a case of brokerage partnership with no capital involved.

KEEPILACHEERI PARKUM P. VANNATHANKANDIYIL.

Rule 105 of the Appellate Side Rules of the High Court directing dismissal of an appeal for default of prosecution if any of the papers mentioned therein have not been printed owing to the appellant's failure to make the necessary deposit therefor, is covered by section 37 of the Letters Patent and is not ultra vires. [p. 75, col. 2.]

The rule does not contravene the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure by limiting the right of appeal conferred by section 100 nor is it at variance with the provisions of Order XLI as to the manner of disposal of an appeal. [p. 75, col. 2.]

Where an appeal is liable to be dismissed on a preliminary ground, the appellant cannot demand a hearing on its merits. [p. 76, col. 1.]

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Tellicherry, in Appeal Suit No. 666 of 1911, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Nadapuram, in Original Suit No. 593 of 1910.

FACTS of the case appear clearly from the judgment.

Messrs. B. Narasimha Rao and T. K. Govinda Aiyar, for the Appellants:—The power to frame rules regulating the hearing of appeals must be derived from the Code of Civil Procedure and not from sections 13 or 14 of the Charter Act, section 37 of the Letters Patent or the Court Fees Act. The rules contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, viz., Order XLI, rules 11, 17 and 18 are exhaustive.

Rule 105 of the Appellate Side Rules of the Madras High Court in reality curtail the right of appeal given by section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure and is, therefore, invalid and ultra vires. Ramhari Sahu v. Madan Mohan Mitter (1) and Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad (2).

The appeal having been posted after issue of notice, the appellant is entitled to be heard on the merits of the appeal.

Mr. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Respondents.

This second appeal coming on for orders under rules 100 A and 105 of the Rules of the High Court, Appellate Side, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

AYLING, J.—This second appeal comes before us for orders with reference to rule 105 of the Appellate Side Rules. The appellants admittedly failed to make the necessary deposit for printing papers as required by the rules within the time allowed: and in our order on Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 2329 of 1915 we have declined to extend the time. Under the rule, the appeal is, therefore, liable to be dismissed.

It has, however, been argued that the latter part of the rule itself (rule 105) is ultra vires. The rule runs thus:—

"The appeal shall be liable to be dismissed for default of prosecution, if any of the papers mentioned in this rule have not been printed owing to the appellant's failure to make the necessary deposit therefor."

The rule, as it stands, has been in force since 1905 and has frequently been enforced by dismissal of appeals. Even in 1905 it was in no sense a novel provision. A similar penal clause is found in the rules as far back as 1879, though it is omitted or modified in the rules as re-issued between 1900 and 1905. No authority whatever has been quoted in support of the contention that it is ultra vires, and so far as I am aware its validity has never hitherto been questioned.

It is, in my opinion, undoubtedly covered by section 37 of the Letters Patent, which gives this Court power "to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating all proceedings in Civil cases which may be brought before the said High Court."

Our attention was drawn to the proviso, which enacts that in making such rules and orders the High Court shall be guided as far as possible by the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. I cannot accept this argument that the rule contravenes the provisions of the Code by limiting the right of appeal conferred by section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure: and I do not think there is much force in the contention that it is at variance with the provisions of Order XLI (reproducing section 541 et seq. of the old Code) as to the manner of disposal of an appeal. There seems to be no reason why an order of dismissal for infringement of this rule should not be covered by either rule 11 (1) or rule 16 of Order XLI of the Civil Procedure Code. Which of these would be applicable would depend on the procedure followed by the Appellate Court prior to the time of default. In the present case notice has issued under rules 13 and

(1) 23 C. 339.

(2) 24 C. 350 (F. B.); 1 C. W. N. 21.

RAFI-UD-DIN v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

14, respondents have been served: and appearance has been filed for two of them (respondents Nos. 3 and 4). The appeal has not been posted under rule 12 for disposal on its merits, appellant having made default in payment of printing charges while respondent was being served with notice. Rule 16 would, therefore, appear to be applicable. But under either rule the dismissal would appear to be legal. Each gives appellant a right to be heard "in support of the appeal", but where the appeal is liable to be dismissed on a preliminary ground, he cannot demand a hearing on the merits of the appeal.

The penal proviso in the rule under consideration appears to be substantially identical with that embodied in the rules of the Calcutta High Court, Part II, Chapter VIII, rule 17, and Chapter IX, rule 5. The former clause (rule 17) was the subject of consideration in two cases [Ramhari Sahu v. Mudan Mohan Mitter (1) and Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad (2)]. The immediate question was the nature of the remedy available to an appellant whose appeal had been dismissed for default but it is to be observed that throughout the argument in each case no doubt appears to have been felt as to the validity of the rule.

In my opinion rule 105 is not ultra vires.

I would direct the dismissal of the appeal with costs.

TYABJI, J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 1159 OF 1913.

March 31, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan and
Mr. Justice Chevis.

RAFI-UD-DIN—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER
versus

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA—
DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), ss. 3, 18—Collector, whether a Court—Order rejecting application for reference—Chief Court, whether can interfere.

A Collector who takes action under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act is not in any sense a Civil Court, and the Chief Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with his order rejecting an application praying that the matter of the award be referred for the determination of the Court. [p. 76, col. 2; p. 77, col. 1.] Administrator-General of Bengal v. Land Acquisition Collector, 12 C. W. N. 241; Krishna Das Roy v. Land Acquisition Collector of Pabna 13 Ind. Cas. 470; 16 C. W. N. 327; 16 C. L. J. 165, dissented from.

Robert Leslie v. Collector of Mergui, 1 L. B. R. 132, followed.

Petition for revision from the order of the Special Land Acquisition Officer and Collector, Delhi, dated the 26th July 1913.

Mr. Sundar Das, for the Petitioner.

The Government Advocate and Mr. Mool Chand, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The first and most important question involved in this petition and in Civil Revisions No. 754 of 1912 and No. 280 of 1914 is whether this Court has jurisdiction to interfere with an order of a Collector, purporting to be made under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, which rejects an application by a person interested, who has not accepted the award, that the matter be referred for the determination of the Court.

The authorities on this point are in conflict. On the one hand we have two decisions of the High Court of Calcutta [Administrator-General of Bengal v. Land Acquisition Collector (1) and Krishna Das Roy v. Land Acquisition Collector of Pabna (2)] which support the contention that such orders can be revised by the High Court under its general powers of revision. On the other hand, we have a ruling of the Chief Court of Burma [Robert Leslie v. Collector of Mergui (3)] to the opposite effect.

We have given these authorities and the arguments addressed to us our best consideration, and as a result are satisfied that the view taken by the Burma Chief Court is correct. In our opinion, neither the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code nor the provisions of the Punjab Courts Act give this Court the power to revise orders passed by any officer or Tribunal other than a Civil Court subordinate to the Chief Court, and we find it impossible to hold that a Collector who takes action under section 18 of Act I of 1894 is in any sense a Civil Court. He is certainly not a "Court" as that expression is defined in section 3 of the Act, and we are unable to find any support in the provisions of the Act for the proposition that the Collector in rejecting an application made to him under section 18 of

(1) 12 C. W. N. 241.

(2) 13 Ind. Cas. 470; 16 C. L. J. 165; 16 C. W. N. 327.

(3) 1 L. B. R. 132.

GOVINDASAMY RAJA V. KUPPAMMAL.

the Act "is a Court and acts judicially and his order is subject to revision" by the High Court.

Admittedly, in all proceedings up to and including the time of making his award, the Collector is in no sense a Judicial Officer, but merely the agent of Government, acting ministerially. Is then there anything in section 18 of the Act which implies that in accepting or rejecting an application thereunder, the Collector is transformed into a Civil Court?

We can find nothing to justify this inference. He is certainly not a "Court" as defined in the Act itself, and the learned Counsels who appeared on behalf of the various petitioners were unable to enlighten us as to the kind of Civil Court into which the Collector had developed when dealing with applications under section 18. Civil Courts as they exist in the Punjab are specified and defined in the Punjab Courts Act and, so far as we can see, the Collector cannot be regarded as any one of those Courts. Mr. Fazal-i-Husain seeing this difficulty, put forward the extraordinary proposition that the Collector was, as it were, the clerk of the Court to which the reference should be made! It is hardly necessary for us to deal seriously with a suggestion of this kind.

We were much pressed with the argument that unless this Court had power to revise orders passed by Collectors under section 18 of the Act, grave injustice might result in cases where the Collector refuses on arbitrary or insufficient grounds to make the reference prayed for. But even if we are to assume that such orders cannot be revised by the Collector's superior Executive or Revenue Officer, we cannot, on the ground of inconvenience or even of the possibility of injustice, arrogate to ourselves a jurisdiction which we do not possess by law, and as at present advised, we are satisfied that we have no power to interfere with orders passed by a Collector, even if, in passing those orders, he acted not merely as a Revenue Officer, but as a Revenue Court.

We hold, therefore, that we have no jurisdiction to entertain these petitions for revision and we accordingly reject them. As the petitioners had the authority of the Calcutta rulings to support their contentions and as the question is res integra so far as this Court is concerned, we leave the parties to bear their own costs in all these cases.

Revision rejected.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2385 OF 1913.

August 26, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt., and
Mr. Justice Tyabji.

GOVINDASAMY RAJA—DEFENDANT NO. 1

—APPELLANT

versus

KUPPAMMAL—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 30—Suit for cancellation of sale-deed—Consideration, non-payment of—Intention to effect transfer—Vendor and purchaser—Vendor's right to demand payment—Deed intended to operate on death of vendor—Will—Construction.

Where there is a deed purporting to convey property for consideration and it is found that no consideration passed, one of the questions to be determined in a suit for cancellation of the deed is whether there was any intention to effect a transfer. If there was, the failure to pay the consideration does not necessarily make the sale-deed void or voidable but may only give the right to payment of the consideration together with a lien on the property until the consideration is paid. [p. 79, col. 2.]

Fulley Mahomed v. Dattabhoj, 25 B. 10 at pp. 18, 19; 2 Bom. L. R. 907, followed.

Where in a suit for cancellation of a sale-deed, purporting to convey certain properties, it appeared that no title was intended to pass under the document until the death of the plaintiff-vendor, on which the properties would vest in the defendant-vendee.

Held, that the document was really intended to operate as a Will and was revocable by the plaintiff at any time. [p. 80, col. 1.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Chingleput, in Appeal Suit No. 193 of 1912, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Chingleput, in Original Suit No. 403 of 1910.

Mr. C. S. Venkatachariar, for the Appellant.

Mr. N. Viswanadha Aiyar, for the Respondent.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 4th and 5th November 1914, and having stood over for consideration till the 13th November 1914, the Court (Oldfield and Tyabji, JJ.) delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

OLDFIELD, J. —I agree to the remand for findings proposed in the judgment which my learned brother is about to deliver and reserve discussion of the case until their receipt.

GOVINDASAMY RAJA V. KUPPAMMAL.

TYABJI, J. The plaintiff prayed for (1) a declaration that a sale-deed (Exhibit I, dated 1st June 1909 and purporting to convey the house and lands referred to in the schedule to the plaint) is "nominal and that neither the 1st defendant nor any other defendants acquired any right thereby," (2) for cancellation and delivery of the said deed to the plaintiff, (3) for possession of the said lands of which the defendants or some of them had (according to the plaintiff) unlawfully taken possession in July 1910, (4) for mesue profits and (5) costs.

The sale-deed was purported to be executed for 8 items of consideration, making up altogether Rs. 2,000. The District Munsif held that no part of the consideration was received by the plaintiff prior to the suit (paragraphs 6—16 of his judgment). He found, however, that a year after the institution of the suit, the 1st defendant discharged a debt of Rs. 100 payable by the plaintiff: the agreement to discharge this debt was the 7th item of consideration in the deed.

The District Munsif then proceeded to consider the effect of the finding that there was "an absence or non-payment" of consideration. For this purpose he first referred to the report in the Madras Law Journal of Amirthammaly Ponnusami Pillai (1), Amirthammaly Periasami Pillai (2), the judgment in the Letters Patent Appeal in which does not seem to have been brought to his notice. Next (in paragraph 19 of his judgment) he considered the effect of the averments in the plaint, which he held to be tantamount to an averment on the part of the plaintiff of an understanding between the parties that the transaction was not to be given effect to at once, but was brought about to meet the contingency of plaintiff's sudden death and to take effect only after her death.

This being the state of the pleadings according to the District Munsif, he referred to the evidence and stated his conclusion in paragraphs 21 and 22 of his judgment.

In the result he gave a decree "declaring that the sale-deed, Exhibit I, is a nominal one during the life-time of the plaintiff and that it cannot confer any title on defendants so long as plaintiff is alive, and directing recovery by plaintiff of possession, from defendants, of the plaint B schedule property."

Both parties appealed to the District Court, the plaintiff in order to obtain the unrestricted declarations for reliefs prayed for and the defendants to have the suit dismissed altogether.

In appeal the plaintiff succeeded completely.

The plaintiff's grounds of appeal to the lower Appellate Court are not before us. The defendants' grounds of appeal raised the contention

(1) that it should have been held that title was intended to pass to the defendants by the sale-deed (ground 1);

(2) that full or at least partial consideration had been paid (grounds 2, 3 and 4);

(3) that as part of the consideration had been paid by the defendants, the only remedy of the plaintiff was to sue for the balance (ground 15);

(4) that the District Munsif made out a new case for the plaintiff (referring no doubt to the finding on the 1st issue) (grounds 9 and 11); the rest of the defendants' grounds of appeal to the lower Appellate Court are either merely argumentative or not relevant to the questions before us.

The learned District Judge accepted the District Munsif's conclusion that the recitals in the sale-deed of consideration having proceeded from the 1st defendant to the plaintiff were "fictitious," adopting the reasoning in paragraphs 6—16 of the District Munsif's judgment. Having referred to these paragraphs by number and expressed his concurrence, the District Judge proceeds to consider in paragraph 3 of his judgment the effect of the evidence, and finally deals with the law in paragraphs 4 and 5 of his judgment, distinguishing the facts as found by himself from the facts which, in his opinion, would be necessary to make the discussion in paragraphs 18 and 19 of the District Munsif's judgment applicable.

The District Judge's view as to the effect of the evidence is thus expressed in paragraph 3 of his judgment: "the intention was that title should not pass unless the plaintiff died at or about that time from the illness from which she was then suffering." He again adverts to the view that he took of the evidence in paragraph 5

(1) 17 M. L. J. 386.

(2) 4 Ind. Cas. 507; 5 M. L. T. 255; 32 M. 325.

GOVINDASAMY RAJA v. KUPPAMMAL.

which brings out the effect of his finding, and the difference between the views of the evidence taken by himself and the District Munsif respectively.

The District Judge's view as to the legal consequence of the facts found is expressed partly in paragraph 3, partly in paragraphs 4 and 5 of his judgment. It is to the effect that the condition precedent to the sale having any effect had become impossible of fulfilment and that, therefore, the plaintiff was entitled to have the sale-deed cancelled.

The defendant appeals to this Court and the grounds argued before us are that the lower Appellate Court proceeded on a point which was not covered by the pleadings, that it erred in holding that the sale-deed does not operate because the condition precedent was not fulfilled, that the defendants were taken by surprise and had no opportunity of adducing any evidence on the point, that there was no evidence that the sale-deed should operate only if the plaintiff died of the illness she is alleged to have been suffering from at the time of Exhibit I, that no such agreement could be proved as it would be opposed to the provisions of section 92 of the Indian Evidence Act and that there was ample consideration for the sale-deed.

The first question, therefore, that has to be decided is whether the lower Courts were right in interpreting the pleadings as they did. In this connection it is no doubt true that the defendants did not suggest to the lower Appellate Court, as they now do, that they could have adduced evidence on the allegations considered to have been proved by the District Munsif and that they omitted to do so owing to their being misled by the terms of the plaint and taken by surprise at the hearing. On the other hand, the lower Appellate Court does not deal with the defendants' grounds of appeal in which they complained that the District Munsif had made out a new case for the plaintiff; and what is more, the case that the lower Appellate Court finds in favour of the plaintiff is not identical with that which the District Munsif considered might fairly be taken to represent the allegations in the plaint. For the case that the District Munsif considered to be alleged and made out was that the sale was to take effect when and as from the time that the plaintiff died: the District Judge held the plaintiff's case to be that the sale-deed was to have effect only if the plaintiff died of the illness from which she was then suffering.

The defendants are also justified in complaining that the real questions which the Court has to take into consideration in order to grant the reliefs prayed for have not been kept in mind. The importance of this in connection with section 39 of the Specific Relief Act is insisted upon and illustrated in Valley Mahomed v. Dattubhoy (3).

Where there is a deed purporting to convey property for consideration and it is found that no consideration passed, one of the questions to be determined for the purposes of section 39 of the Specific Relief Act is whether there was any intention to effect a transfer. For if there was, then failure to pay the consideration does not necessarily make the sale-deed void or voidable. It may only give the right to payment of the consideration together with a lien on the property until the consideration is paid.

In these circumstances it is necessary before disposing of this appeal to ask for findings on the following

Issues :—

(1) Whether the sale-deed referred to in the plaint was executed subject to a separate oral agreement constituting a condition precedent to its coming into operation.

(2) If the 1st question is answered in the affirmative, then what were the terms of the said agreement?

(3) Was the consideration referred to in Exhibit I intended to be paid by the 1st defendant, and

(4) Was it intended to effect any real transfer by Exhibit I and if so, what was the nature of the transfer intended to be made?

Inasmuch as no condition precedent is clearly put forward in the plaint, the defendants are entitled to have a written statement setting forth the case of the plaintiff on this point. Such a written statement shall be furnished within a reasonable time to be fixed by the District Judge.

The findings will be submitted within two months; seven days will be allowed for filing objections.

AHMAD DIN ANIS-UL-RAHMAN v. ATLAS TRADING CO.

Fresh evidence may be adduced.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment, the District Judge of Chingleput submitted the following

FINDING.— * * * * *

Issue (1). I find * * * * * that there was a separate oral agreement constituting a condition precedent to the sale-deed coming into operation.

Issue (2). * * * * * the agreement was not that the sale-deed should come into operation only if she died of the disease she was then suffering from, but that it was that it should come into operation only in the event of her death, whenever that may happen.

Issue (3). * * * * * the consideration referred to in Exhibit I was not intended to be paid by the 1st defendant.

Issue 4. * * * * * it was intended that the 1st defendant should be put forward as the ostensible owner of the property conveyed under Exhibit I, but that possession and enjoyment should continue with the plaintiff during her life-time.

This second appeal coming on for final hearing on the 11th August 1915, after the return of the findings of the lower Appellate Court upon the issues referred to it for trial, and having stood over for consideration till this day, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—The findings of the District Judge are not as clear as they might be. But we understand them to amount to this: that no title was intended to pass under the document Exhibit I until the death of plaintiff, on which the properties would vest in defendants. There is evidence to support this view, and we see no reason for not accepting it. It follows that the document was really intended to operate as a Will and would be revocable by plaintiff at any time.

On this view, we see no reason to modify the decree of the lower Appellate Court except as to costs. Bearing in mind that plaintiff has only herself to blame for the litigation into which her disingenuous conduct has landed her, we direct that both parties bear their own costs throughout.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1367 OF 1913.

March 31, 1913.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and
Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

AHMAD DIN ANIS-UL-RAHMAN—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

ATLAS TRADING COMPANY OF DELHI
DEPENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 104 (1) (f), (2)—Order filing private award in part—Second appeal, whether competent—Error of law, whether ground for revision.

On an application for filing an award made without the intervention of the Court, it was decided that part of the award, being on a matter which could not be the subject matter of arbitration, was void; but that the valid portion of the award being separable from the invalid one, the award could be filed so far as it was free from the objection of invalidity. On appeal the application for filing the award was rejected on the ground that a private award must be either affirmed in its entirety or rejected in toto.

Held, (1) that no second appeal lay in the case; [p. 80, col. 1.]

(2) that the order was not open to revision as an error of law is not a material irregularity and did not constitute a ground for revision. [p. 81, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Delhi, dated the 16th June 1913.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. Moti Sagar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs-appellants applied to the Court of first instance under paragraph 20 of the second Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code for filing an award made without the intervention of the Court. The Court decided that part of the award, being on a matter which could not be the subject-matter of arbitration, was void; but as the valid portion of the award was separable from the invalid one, the Court ordered the award to be filed so far as it was free from the objection of invalidity. Upon appeal by the defendant, the learned Divisional Judge held that a private award must be either affirmed in its entirety or rejected in toto and that the order of the lower Court accepting part of the award was bad in law. He accordingly accepted the appeal and rejected the application for filing the award.

The plaintiffs have preferred a second appeal from the decision of the Divisional

SUNDARAM IYER v. KULATHU AIYER.

Judge and we have no hesitation in holding that no second appeal lies in the case. It is clear that the decision of the Court of first instance was an "order" and not a "decree" and that an appeal against it was preferred under section 104 (f), Civil Procedure Code. Now, section 104, sub-section (2), provides in the clearest possible terms that no appeal lies from an order passed in appeal under that section. We must, therefore, hold that the second appeal is incompetent.

Mr. Nanak Chand has, however, asked us to treat the memorandum of appeal as an application for revision; but we are of opinion that there is no good ground for interference on revision. It is manifest that the order of the Divisional Judge is entirely in accordance with the principle of the judgments passed under the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, and the question, whether the law has been modified by the new Code, is not free from difficulty.

It is true that paragraph 14 (a) of the second Schedule of the Code of 1908 authorizes the Court to accept the valid portion of an award if it is separable from the bad portion thereof; but it is a debatable point whether that provision is applicable to an award made outside the Court. The judgment in Dhanpat Rai v. Musammat Kahn Deri (1) has applied the rule laid down under the Code of 1882 to a case which was decided under the new Code and has impliedly held that the Code of 1908 did not change the existing law in regard to private awards. In these circumstances, it cannot be said that the decision of the lower Appellate Court is so palpably erroneous as to call for interference on revision.

Taking the matter in the most favourable light for the appellants, the only thing that can be urged is that the lower Appellate Court has made a mistake of law. But it has been repeatedly held that an error of law is not a material irregularity and does not constitute a ground for revision.

Further, the fact that another remedy by way of regular suit to enforce the award is available to the appellants, is also a ground for our declining to exercise the discretionary jurisdiction in revision.

For these reasons we dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 237 OF 1914.

September 1, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and
Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

SUNDARAM IYER AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

KULATHU AIYER—PLAINTIFF—
RESPONDENT.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), ss. 3 (5), 5, 53, 111, 112—Person entitled to arrears of rent, if landholder—First charge on holding, right of—Landholder out of possession, whether can attach holding—Remedy open to him.

A person to whom arrears of rent are due is a "landholder" notwithstanding the fact that his estate has terminated, but he has not a first charge on the holding. He can distrain the moveable property or the trees on the holding of the defaulter but is not entitled to attach the holding itself. [p. 85, col. 1.]

Ramsami v. Bhaskarasami, 2 M. 67 at p. 73 (P. C.); 5 C. L. R. 241; 6 L. A. 170; 3 Ind. Jur. 420; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 50; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 646; 3 Shome L. R. 36, followed.

Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 23 Ind. Cas. 632; 18 C. W. N. 747; (1914) M. W. N. 397; 15 M. L. T. 380; 12 A. L. J. 653; 27 M. L. J. 4; 1 L. W. 1059; 41 C. 926 (P. C.), followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Tinnevely, in Appeal Suit No. 111 of 1913, preferred against that of the Revenue Divisional Officer of Shermadevi, in Summary Suit No. 5 of 1912.

Messrs. M. D. Devadoss and V. S. Govindachariar, for the Appellants.

Mr. S. Ramaswami Aiyar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

SPENCER, J.—The question which we have to decide is, whether a landholder in Madras who has ceased to be a landholder can recover rent for the years when he was a landholder by bringing the ryot's holding to sale under the provisions of Chapter VI of Madras Act I of 1908. For Bengal it has been decided by the Privy Council with reference to the Bengal Tenancy Act that he cannot [Vide Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (1)]. The

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 632; 18 C. W. N. 747; (1914) M. W. N. 397; 15 M. L. T. 380; 12 A. L. J. 653; 27 M. L. J. 4; 1 L. W. 1059; 41 C. 926 (P. C.).

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 422; 30 P. R. 1914; 11 P. W. R. 1914; 31 P. L. R. 1914.

SUNDARAM IYER V. KULATHU Aiyer.

Madras Estates Land Act is modelled on the Bengal Tenancy Act. Therefore, the above decision must have great weight with us so far as it is based on provisions which have been repeated in the Madras Act. There are, however, several distinctions between the two Acts. In Bengal a landlord must bring a suit and obtain a decree before he can bring to sale the tenant's holding. In Madras he can proceed summarily to attach the holding by notice to the defaulter served through the Collector, provided that he has exchanged a patta and muchilika with the ryot or tendered him such a patta as he was bound to accept. Section 5 of Madras Act I of 1908 and section 65 of Bengal Act VIII of 1885 both declare that the rent shall be a first charge upon the holding. Section 109 of the Madras Act provides for the case of a conflict between the right of a landholder distraining produce and the right of a Civil Court decree-holder by declaring that the landholder's right shall prevail, but this does not apply to the case of a landholder selling the ryot's holding. As in Madras he does not occupy the position of a decree-holder, there can be no competition from other decree-holders for rateable distribution of the proceeds of the sale.

Section 148, clause (h), of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which declares that "notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Civil Procedure Code an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest has become and is vested in him," does not find a place in the Madras Act. Thus one strong argument for the position that the right to sell the holding for arrears is vested in the landholder qua landholder is wanting. The Privy Council decision dwells on the anomaly which would arise by two persons, the landlord and the ex-landlord, having simultaneously a first charge on the tenure, and it goes so far as to class the ex-landlord as an outsider.

This anomaly would present no real difficulties in Madras. Under section 111, a landholder cannot sell the holding for arrears until the revenue year in which they became due is over, and he has under section 112 only one year in which he can take this step. Unless proceedings begun by one landholder were still going on when the succeeding landholder wished to sell the holding for the rent of the following year, there would be no conflict of interests. Even after the sale of the holding the purchaser would be liable for the rent of the year in which he was in occupation. In case of a dispute between two or more rival claimants to the title of landholder, section 3 (5) provides that the person who shall be deemed to be landholder for the purpose of this Act is the person whom the Collector may recognise or nominate as landholder. Again, when there is an intention to distinguish between landholders in possession and other landholders who have no subsisting interest, the Madras Act speaks distinctly of landholders in possession (vide section 200). This may be used as a not very convincing argument that where the word "landholder" occurs in the Act without qualification, it includes persons out of possession.

I will now consider whether there are any other indications within the four corners of the Act that landholders have, as in Bengal, no right to proceed against their ryots' holding, unless their interest as landholders subsists at the time.

It is provided in section 53 that the remedy of landholders against the ryots' moveables and holdings under Chapter IV of the Act is only available to those landholders who have exchanged a patta and muchilika with their ryots, or have tendered them such a patta as they were bound to accept, or there must be a valid patta or muchilika continuing in force. Can it be said that a valid patta or muchilika 'continues in force' between a ryot and landholder who has ceased to have any subsisting interest in the estate? If the answer is 'No, but he is a person who has exchanged or tendered a patta under the first part of section 53,' we must then look to section 52 and we find this section declaring that no ryot shall be bound to accept a patta for a period of more than one revenue year and that pattas and muchilikas accepted or exchanged for any revenue year remain in force only until the commencement of the revenue year for which fresh pattas are accepted or exchanged.

SUNDARAM IYER v. KULATHU AIYER.

Under the old Act (VIII of 1865) it was recognised by the Privy Council in Ramasami v. Bhaskarasami (2) that there must be a subsisting relation of landlord and tenant for the exchange of pattas and muchilikas.

The result, therefore, is that distraint and sale are remedies open only to landholders who have at the time of exercising this power a valid patta in force between themselves and their ryots. I am aware that in his commentary on the Act, Mr. V. Ramadoss takes a different view, but the illustration which he gives to make the matter clear begs the whole question.

Again, in section 3 (5) a landholder is defined as 'a person owing an estate or part thereof' and it is doubtful if he can lay claim to be called such a landholder merely because at some previous date he has owned an estate. If, as in this case, he is a lessee and comes within the description of a person "entitled to collect the rents of the whole or any portion of the estate by virtue of any transfer from the owner," there can be no reason for imputing to the Legislature an intention to create in favour of such persons rights of greater extent and duration than those which are declared to be the property of owners who are landholders in their own right.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the lower Courts were right in their conclusions that, as the defendant was not the lessee for Fasli 1322, he could not attach the plaintiff's lands for the arrears of Fasli 1321. In such cases the only remedy left to the ex-landholder is the right of suing upon his contract for rent.

This second appeal is dismissed with costs. The memorandum of objections is also dismissed with costs.

SESHAIAH AIYER, J.—Vagikulam is an inam village belonging to the Vyasarayya Mutt. The defendant had a lease of it from the mutt for 10 years up to the end of Fasli 1321. His son became the lessee in Fasli 1322. The plaintiff, who is a ryot of the village, is alleged to have made default in the payment of rent for Fasli 1321. In or about September 1912, the defendant attached the plaintiff's holding for the arrears. This suit is to raise the said attachment. The only question for decision is whether defendant, who had ceased to be the lessee from July 1912, can attach the plaintiff's holding for the rent due to him while he was the lessee. There is no question that the defendant was a landholder up to the end of Fasli 1321. See Bachu Ferrajugar v. Bhogireddy Subbarayudu (3). It is also undisputed that the lessee who succeeded the defendant was a landholder at the time when the attachment was made.

(2) M. 67 at p. 73 (P. O.); 5 O. L. R. 341; 6 I. A. 173; 3 Ind. Jur. 420; 4 Sar. P. O. J. 50; 3 Suth. P. O. J. 646; 3 Shome L. R. 36.

After hearing the matter argued very fully on both sides and having regard to the grounds of the decision in Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (1), I have, though not without hesitation, come to the conclusion that the defendant had no right to enforce the attachment of the plaintiff's holding in September 1912. The reasoning of the Judicial Committee in Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (1) applies to this case, although, as I shall presently show, the provisions of the Act which the Privy Council had to construe, differ in some material respects from the Estates Land Act. The definition of "landholder" would apply, in my opinion, to the defendant. The somewhat hypercritical comments of the learned Vakil for the respondent on the language of section 3 (5) have not convinced me to the contrary. He laid stress upon the phrase "owning an estate" and argued that it predicates a subsisting interest at the time of the attachment. The next clause "entitled to collect the rent," would certainly apply to the man whose lease had expired but to whom arrears were still due. I do not think that the word "owning" was intended to negative the rights of persons who owned the estate at the time the arrears fell due. Another argument which belongs to the same category is the distinction sought to be made between rent and arrears of rent. I am of opinion that the defendant was a landholder when he attached the holding. One has only to look at section 205 of the Act to see that the Legislature in Madras contemplated the existence of landholders with co-ordinate or mutually exclusive rights. It is different in Bengal. The definition of "landlord" (it is not landholder) is that he is

(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 171; 36 M. 126; 10 M. L. T. 282; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 251.

SUNDARAM IYER v. KULATHU AIYER.

"a person immediately under whom a tenant holds". This would undoubtedly exclude the defendant in Bengal. So far as I am able to see, there can be but one landlord at a time in Bengal, although there may be a proprietor and a landlord. There is no provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act corresponding to section 200 of our Act which limits the power of the landholder in possession. Consequently the observation of the Judicial Committee in Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (1) that there can be but one landlord, cannot apply to conditions which obtain in Madras.

It seems to me that to hold that on the expiry of the lease the lessee has no right of distraint would render nugatory the provisions of the Act. Sections 77 and 111 make it clear that distraint proceedings should be commenced only if the rent due during the "next preceding 12 months remains unpaid." These sections do not impose the further restriction that at the time of the distraint, the distrainer must be the sole landholder. As proceedings of this kind are prohibited during the year that rent falls due, it seems to me that the Legislature contemplated action being taken by the person who had the estate when the arrears fell due. On the other hand, the Bengal Legislature confers the right to distraint only on the person in whom the estate vests at the time. Section 148 (h) prohibits an assignee of a decree from distraining unless the estate itself is transferred to him. There is no corresponding provision in the Madras Act. I do not think that the fact that in Bengal distraint proceedings have to be taken after decree in a Civil Court affects the question. My conclusion upon this portion of the case is that the defendant was entitled to distraint.

The third question is "could he distraint the plaintiff's holding?" It is here that the ratio decidendi of the Privy Council decision affects the defendant. In the Madras Act, there is a provision for the landholder distraining the general moveable property of the defaulter. See section 77. In section 121 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which corresponds to section 77, this power is not given. In Madras, (a) the holding, (b) the crops on the holding, (c) the ordinary moveable property of the tenant and (d) the trees on the holding, subject to specified exceptions, can be distrained. In Bengal the distraint can only be with reference to (a) and (b). Therefore, if in the present case, the defendant had distrained the moveable property or the trees, I would have held that the proceedings were not illegal; both the landholders having the right to distraint these properties. In the case of the holding itself, section 5 of the Madras Act and section 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act give the landholder or the landlord, as the case may be, a first charge for the rent due. In Madras, the first charge extends to the crops on the holding as well, but although in Bengal the crops can be distrained, the rent is not made a first charge on them. This right of first charge must be taken to have been given only to the landholder who has a subsisting interest. [See Ramasami v. Bhaskarasami (2).] There would certainly arise a conflict of interests in the case of the holding being attached by two persons. The lessee that has passed out may not take action until the very end of the second year. The lessee in possession may commence proceedings in the beginning of his second year. As some time must elapse before the holding is brought to sale, the question will have to be dealt with whether both or either of them had the right to attach and whose rights should take precedence. It was argued that this dispute can be settled by the Collector under the second clause of section 3 (5) of the Estates Land Act. I think the clause would only enable the Collector to recognise one of two claimants as the landholder. It would not authorise him to decide the question of priority regarding the rights of two landholders. The Judicial Committee in the Calcutta case pointed out in more than one place that the right to distraint the holding is dependant upon the right of first charge. It is also pointed out that "to acquire the right which the section gives, not only the person obtaining the decree must be the landlord at the time, but the person seeking to execute it by sale of the tenure, must have the landlord's interests vested in him." Again we have this strong expression of opinion: "In whose decree and on whose application is the tenure to be sold? The question admits of only one answer, that it is the existing landlord alone who can execute the decree; the ex-landlord is an outsider, and, whilst he can execute his decree against the debtor as a money-decree, he has no remedy against the tenure itself."

TUFEL MUHAMMAD v. SHAHAB DIN.

The expression "existing landlord" and "ex-landlord" may not be appropriate to designate the position of the two landholders in Madras, but there is no doubt that the Judicial Committee have clearly and emphatically laid down that a holding can be sold only by the landlord who has a subsisting interest in the estate. The language of section 127 of the Estates Land Act is in favour of this position. Under clause (c), if the holding is sold, the person to whom the arrears were due in the previous Fasli gets no portion of it. The arrears payable under clause (b) will go to the attaching landholder and not to the person whose interest has ceased. I must, therefore, conclude that the holding can be attached only by the landholder who has the estate still in his possession.

As I have discussed the sections at some length, I may re-state my conclusions thus:—

1. A person to whom arrears are due is a landholder, notwithstanding the fact that his estate has terminated.

2. The law does not give him a first charge on the holding.

3. He can distrain the moveable property or the trees on the holding of the defaulter.

4. He is not entitled to attach the holding.

These propositions will reconcile the provisions of the Estates Land Act with the decision of the Judicial Committee in Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (1). The second appeal must be dismissed with costs. The memorandum of objections must also be dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1289 OF 1913.

March 31, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan and
Mr. Justice Chevis.

TUFEL MUHAMMAD AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

SHAHAB DIN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Custom—Succession—Self-acquired property—Kakezai

Sheikhs of Hoshiarpur—Sister—Collaterals—Onus probandi—Muhammadian Law, whether can be pleaded in second appeal.

Among Kakezai Sheikhs of Hoshiarpur a collateral cannot oust a sister or her descendants from property which was acquired by her brother and has, after his death, come into her possession. [p. 86, col. 1.]

Where the plaintiffs based their claim to succeed upon a special custom but having failed to establish it sought to rely upon their personal law:

Held, that the plaintiffs could not in second appeal ask the Court to decide the case upon the basis of Muhammadian Law. [p. 86, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Hoshiarpur Division, dated the 28th March 1913.

Mr. Fazal-i-Husain, for the Appellants.

Bakhshi Tek Chand, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—One Shams-ud-Din, an ekka-driver of Hoshiarpur town and by caste a Kakezai Sheikh, died in 1891 leaving a widow, Musammât Hitti, who, upon her husband's death, took possession of the property left by him and retained the same until her own death in October 1911. Plaintiffs, who are agnates in the fourth degree of Shams-ud-Din, brought the present suit in February 1892 and in it they claim to recover the said property from the defendants, Musammât Umri (who is the daughter of a sister of the deceased) and Nizam Din, who is the son of another sister of deceased.

Defendants pleaded that of the property in dispute the moveables belonged to Musammât Hitti herself and the house was the acquired property of Shams-ud-Din; that Musammât Hitti succeeded to the house as absolute owner after her husband's death; that Musammât Hitti had prior to her death made an oral gift of the property in suit to Musammât Umri; and that in any case plaintiffs had no right to succeed to the house in the presence of Musammât Umri and Nizam Din.

It is quite clear from the plaint and the statement made in Court by plaintiffs that the latter based their claim to succeed upon a special custom whereby they were entitled, after the death of Musammât Hitti, to succeed to the whole of the property to the entire exclusion of Musammât Umri and Nizam Din, the direct descendants of two of Shams-ud-Din's sisters, and in their plaint and pleadings no reference was made to the Muhammadian Law of succession.

TUFEL MUHAMMAD v. SHAHAR DIN.

The first Court found that the moveable property had not been proved to have been the property of Shams-ud-Din; that the house was the acquired property of the latter; and that plaintiffs had failed to prove that by custom they were entitled to succeed to such property in preference to sisters and sisters' descendants, or that Musammal Hitti had no power to make a gift of it to the defendant, Musammal Umri. It accordingly dismissed the suit. The Divisional Judge on appeal agreed with the first Court's findings as regards the moveables and as to the validity of the gift of the house to Musammal Umri. He further held that plaintiffs had failed to prove that they were the heirs or reversioners or residuaries of Musammal Hitti.

Plaintiffs succeeded in obtaining from the Divisional Judge's successor-in-office a certificate to the effect that there was a question of custom involved in the case, viz., whether Kakegai Sheikhs of Hoshiarpur are governed by Customary Law in the matter of inheritance, and that the case was of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal. Upon the strength of this certificate, an appeal preferred by them to this Court was admitted to a hearing before a Division Bench, and has been argued before us at some length on their behalf by Mr. Fazal-i-Husain.

It is obvious that upon the record as it stands plaintiffs' claim, based as it was upon a special custom whereby collaterals entirely exclude sisters in succession to acquired property, must fail, as the three alleged instances given in proof of this custom are absolutely valueless. Each instance is easily explainable—and indeed has been explained—on grounds which are wholly consistent with the defendants' contention that a collateral cannot oust a sister or her descendants from property which was acquired by her brother and has, after his death, come into her possession. Defendants are in possession, and it is for plaintiffs to prove that they have the right to recover the property from the former.

This they have failed to establish, and Mr. Fazal-i-Husain, realising the weakness of his clients' case upon this point, wished to argue that in any event plaintiffs were entitled under the Muhammadan Law to claim part of the property. The obvious answer to this is that plaintiffs never relied upon their personal law in the Courts below. They deliberately ignored its provisions and strenuously urged that they were heirs by special custom to the entire property, though if Muhammadan Law applied, they could at best have claimed only $\frac{1}{12}$ th, sisters being entitled to $\frac{2}{3}$ rd and Musammal Hitti to $\frac{1}{12}$ th, and Musammal Hitti's share having been gifted to Musammal Umri. The first Court, no doubt, framed an issue as to plaintiffs' possible rights under Muhammadan Law, but it gave no finding on that issue probably because plaintiff never urged their rights under that law, and dismissed the suit on the ground that plaintiffs had failed to prove the custom set up by them. In the circumstances, if plaintiffs had really relied on their personal law in the alternative, we would have expected to find in their memorandum of appeal to the Divisional Judge's Court a ground to the effect that in any event, plaintiffs were entitled to part of the property under that law. But there is in that memorandum of appeal no hint of any such alternative claim, and it is too late now in second appeal, when plaintiffs realise the hopelessness of their claim as preferred, for them to ask us to decide the case upon the basis of Muhammadan Law. They have vainly endeavoured to wrest the whole property from defendants and by so doing have sacrificed—and deliberately—the very small share that might have fallen to them if they had taken their stand on Muhammadan Law.

The suit has been rightly dismissed, as plaintiffs have failed to establish the custom upon which they relied, and we accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

BOMMARAJU VENKATA PERUMAL v. SUBRAMANYA NAYANI VARU.

NGA LU DAW v. MI MO YI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER NO. 370 OF 1913.

March 19, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar and

Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

RAJE BOMMARAJU VENKATA PERUMAL RAJU BAHADUR VARU, MINOR BY GUARDIAN W. A. VARADACHARIAR—

RESPONDANT NO. 2—APPELLANT

versus

SUBRAMANYA NAYANI VARU AND OTHERS—PETITIONERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act I of 1908), O. XXI, r. 10, 64—Execution—Order for attachment—Application for execution not disposed of—Subsequent application for sale of property, whether barred.

Where an order for attachment was made on an execution application but the application was not disposed of in any way and another application was made for the sale of the property:

Held, (1) that there could be no bar of limitation in the case as the decree-holder was only asking that effect be given to the application which was already pending before the Court;

(2) that the decree-holder had not disabled himself by laches from seeking to enforce his remedies under the pending application.

Subba Chariar v. Muthuveeram Pillai, 14 Ind. Cas. 264; 36 M. 553; 24 M. L. J. 545, Venkatamma v. Manikkam Nayani Varu, 26 Ind. Cas. 244; 16 M. L. T. 399, followed.

Appeal against the order of the District Court of North Arcot, in Execution Petition for Revision No. 66 of 1910, in Original Suit No. 27 of 1884.

Mr. L. A. Govindaraghava Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. T. V. Venkatarama Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—An order for attachment was made on the execution application in 1897. That application has not been disposed of in any way. The present one was to sell the attached property. There can be no bar of limitation in such cases, as the decree-holder only asks that effect be given to the application which is still pending before the Court. His present prayer should not be regarded as a new application. We are unable to hold that the decree-holder has either abandoned his application or that he has disabled himself by laches from seeking to enforce his remedies under the pending application. Following Subba Chariar v. Muthuveeram Pillai (1) and Venkatamma v. Manikkam Nayani Varu (2), we hold that the application is in time and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 14 Ind. Cas. 234; 36 M. 553; 24 M. L. J. 545.

(2) 26 Ind. Cas. 244; 16 M. L. T. 399.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 153 OF 1914.

April 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. McColl, A. J. C.

NGA LU DAW AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

MI MO YI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—

RESPONDENTS.

Buddhist Law—Inheritance—"Payin" and "lettetpwa" property, meaning of—Right of child claiming through both parents—"Auratha" son, definition of—Out-of-time grand-children, right of, to inherit—Verbal mortgage—Subsequent document—Deal evidence admissible to prove transaction.

"Payin" property means property already owned by a person when he or she marries, whether he or she actually obtained possession or not. Property inherited by a person during marriage is not "payin" but "lettetpwa." [p. 89, col. 2.]

A child who has a claim through both parents gets a double portion both of inherited and of other lettetpwa property of what a child, who claims through one only, gets. [p. 90, col. 1.]

Ma Sio Nyo v. Ma Kyaw, U. B. R. (1892-96), II, 159; Maung Tun Gyan v. Ma Bala, U. B. R. (1897-01), II, 185 and Ma Min E. v. Ma Kyaw Taki, L. B. R. (1892-1900) 361, followed.

Maung Gale v. Maung Hya, 4 L. B. R. 189, dissenting from.

Out-of-time grand-children, if they be the children of the "auratha" son, receive the same share as their youngest uncle or aunt. [p. 92, col. 1.]

The Auratha son is the son who in case his father dies or becomes incapacitated is competent to take his place in the family. [p. 92, col. 1.]

A married three wives in succession. His son by the 1st wife having predeceased him. His grandsons sued his daughters by the other wives for their share of the property left by A. The defendants contended (1) that all the lands were inherited by A during his 3rd wife's coverture; (2) that certain plots had been mortgaged by A and redeemed by the 1st defendant; (3) that the plaintiffs were not entitled to inherit as they had been guilty of unfilial conduct; (4) that, at any rate, they were liable for their share of A's funeral expenses and (5) that A had given certain plots of land to the 1st and 2nd defendants:

Held, (1) that the gift to the 1st and 2nd defendants, even if proved, was invalid as they were living with the father at the time; [p. 89, col. 1.]

(2) that the presumption was that the plaintiffs were entitled to inherit and the burden of proving unfilial conduct was on the defendants and that the mere fact that the plaintiffs took no part in maintaining A, though he was blind and lame for many years before his death, was not sufficient; [p. 89, col. 2.]

(3) that if the plaintiff's father had been alive he could have been entitled to inherit one-half of the property acquired during his mother's marriage, &

NGA LU DAW T. MI MO YI.

quarter of the property inherited by A during either of the other two marriages and one-third of A's "pyin" brought to the 1st marriage, and the plaintiffs were entitled to get their father's share between them; [p. 91, col. 2; p. 92, col. 2.]

(4) that the 1st defendant having re-deemed certain lands the plaintiffs must pay their share of the mortgage-money before getting their share of the inheritance; [p. 92, col. 2.]

(5) that, as two different plots of land were mortgaged and redeemed as one parcel, the plaintiffs being entitled to one third of one and one-fourth of the other and the areas and values of the two were also different, it was fair under the circumstances of the case to apportion the charge according to the value of the lands than according to the area. [p. 93, col. 1.]

Where a mortgage is effected verbally and possession is given, the transaction is complete and the fact that a document is subsequently executed does not bar oral evidence of the original transaction. [p. 89, col. 2.]

Mr. S. Mukerjee, for the Appellants.

Mr. C. G. S. Pillay, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs-appellants are the grand-children of Maung Hnin, who married three wives in succession, namely, Ma Ngwe, Ma Kye U and Ma Kywet O. The plaintiffs-appellants are sons of Maung Ne Kya, son of Maung Hnin by his first wife, Ma Ngwe, who predeceased his father.

The 1st defendant-respondent, Ma Mo Yi, is daughter of Maung Hnin by his second wife, Ma Kye U. Her sister, Ma Mo Hmi, was not made a party to the suit as she had been given in adoption to others.

The 3rd defendant-respondent is Maung Hnin's daughter by his third wife, Ma Kywet O.

The plaintiffs-appellants alleged that Maung Hnin had left six pieces of land the plans of which are marked *, *, *, * and **.

The total area of these lands is 13.17 acres. The plaintiffs-appellants claimed the whole of *, *, * and *, two-thirds of *, and one-sixth of *, total 9.23 acres. Why the lands should be divided in that way they did not explain, and the matter is made still more obscure by the 5th paragraph of the plaint, in which it is stated that as all the lands were acquired during their mother's coverture they were entitled to one-half and the defendants-respondents to one-fourth each. No attempt was made to obtain an explanation.

The defence was (1) that all the lands had been inherited by Maung Hnin during Ma Kywet O's coverture from his father, Maung Kathe, (2) that the land * had been mortgaged by Maung Hnin to one Maung Paw Kye and that the 2nd defendant-respondent was working it as his tenant, (3) that Maung Hnin had mortgaged the lands * and * and the 1st defendant-respondent had redeemed them for Rs. 61-8-0, (4) that the plaintiffs-appellants were not entitled to inherit as they had been guilty of unfilial conduct and (5) that if they were held entitled to inherit, they should be held liable for their share of the expenses of Maung Hnin's funeral which amounted to Rs. 73-12-0.

When the case came to trial, a further defence was set up to the effect that Maung Hnin had given the lands * and * to the 1st defendant-respondent and the lands *, * and * to the 2nd defendant-respondent.

The Township Judge found that the lands *, *, * and * had been inherited by Maung Hnin from his mother during his first wife, Ma Ngwe's coverture and that he had inherited the lands * and * during his third marriage from his father.

He further found that the land * had been mortgaged to Maung Paw Kye, and that the lands * and * had been redeemed by the 1st defendant-respondent for Rs. 61-8-0. He also apparently held that the alleged gifts had been proved, and that they were valid, but he dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiffs-appellants were not entitled to inherit, as they had not assisted in maintaining their grandfather, Maung Hnin, who for several years before his death was lame and blind.

On appeal, the learned District Judge found that the alleged gifts had not been proved and that the mortgage to Maung Paw Kye could not be proved, as it had been effected by an unregistered mortgage-deed. He overlooked the questions of the redemption of the lands * and * by the 1st defendant-respondent and of the funeral expenses; he found that the plaintiffs-appellants had not been guilty of such conduct as would debar them from inheriting; he declined to go into the question whether Maung Hnin had inherited the lands during his first, second or third marriages, because he imagined that the inherited property must be 'payin,' and following Maung Gale v. Maung Bya (1), he held that if plaintiffs-appellants' father had not predeceased Maung Hnin they would have been entitled to one-third of the lands, but that as they were out-of-time grand-children they were entitled to one-twelfth, and he accordingly gave them a decree for a one-twelfth share.

NGA LU DAW v. MI MO YI.

Both the parties have appealed to this Court, the plaintiffs on the ground that they should have been given a bigger share, and the defendants on the grounds that the lower Appellate Court should have held that the lands had been inherited during the third marriage, that the plaintiffs-appellants were debarred by their conduct from inheriting and that the gifts were proved.

As regards the gifts I would say that, even if proved, the gift of the lands * and  to the 2nd defendant-respondent would be invalid as she was living with her father at the time. A text from the Kaingsa runs: "A gift made, though not in extremis, is invalid if delivery of possession has not taken place before the death of the donor and it shall revert to the estate; but if there has been delivery of possession the co-heirs cannot claim it."

"The above rules refer to children living apart from the parents. As regards children living with the parents a gift does not take effect even when there has been delivery of possession, because children living with the parents are still under parental control." The same rule is given by the Kandaw, Vannadhamma, Rasi and Panam Dhammatha and has, I think, generally been accepted.

There is some evidence that the 1st defendant-respondent lived with the 2nd defendant-respondent and, therefore, with Maung Hnin, in which case the gift of the lands * and * would be invalid too, but in any case I do not think the evidence is such as to establish that Maung Hnin really and finally divested himself of his property. He apparently merely allowed the 1st defendant-respondent to redeem these two pieces of land so that she might help to maintain him with its produce. I am of opinion, therefore, that there was no gift.

As regards the mortgage to Maung Paw Kye, the lower Appellate Court is wrong. In the first place, Maung Paw Kye says that the mortgage was first effected verbally and that later its terms were reduced to writing. If possession were given in the first instance the transaction was complete, and the fact that a document was subsequently executed would not bar oral evidence of the original transaction. In the second place, the 2nd defendant-respondent was admittedly in possession of the land * as Maung Paw Kye's tenant, and consequently as Maung Paw Kye was not a party to the suit this piece of land should not have been included in the decree.

The Township Judge found that the lands * and * had been redeemed by the 1st defendant-respondent for Rs. 61-8-0. He also found that the accounts of Maung Hnin's funeral had been settled. These findings have not been challenged in this Court by either side and, therefore, they may be accepted.

With regard to the contention that the plaintiffs-appellants are debarred by unfilial conduct from inheriting from Maung Hnin, I agree with the lower Appellate Court. The presumption is that they are entitled to inherit and the burden of proving unfilial conduct is on the defendants-respondents. The facts that Maung Hnin for many years before his death was lame and blind and that the plaintiffs-appellants took no part in maintaining him, are not sufficient. The defendants-respondents apparently maintained their father out of his own properties, none of which was in the plaintiffs-appellants' possession, and there is no evidence that the latter were ever called upon to render services and refused, or that they were on other than the best terms with their grandfather.

The learned District Judge clearly does not properly understand what 'payin' properly means. It means property already owned by a person when he or she marries, whether he or she has actually obtained possession or not. Property inherited by a person during marriage is not 'payin' but 'lettetpwa,' although on divorce the principle of nissayo and nissito is applied to it [Mi Myin v. Nga Twe (2)]. The lands in

(1) 4 L. B. R. 189.

(2) U. B. R. (1906) Buddhist Law, Divorce 19,

NGA LU DAW v. MI MO TI.

suit were not admitted to be Maung Hnin's payin property on the contrary, the plaintiffs-appellants alleged that it was all lettelpwa of the first marriage and the defendants-respondents alleged that it was lettelpwa of the third marriage.

Of course if Maung Gale v. Maung Bya (1) was rightly decided, it would not matter whether the lands were inherited during the first or the third marriage, because it was held that the rule that the children of a marriage during which property was acquired get, when that property is partitioned, double what the children of other marriages get, did not apply to property inherited during a marriage.

I am, however, unable to agree with that ruling. The principle that a child who has a claim through both parents gets double what a child who claims through one parent, only, gets, was laid down in Ma Sein Nyo v. Ma Kyee (3), Ma Min E. v. Ma Kyaw Tahi (4) and Maung Tun Gyaw v. Ma Bala (5). The principle is clearly discernible in many texts, it is a most reasonable one and it was not disputed in Maung Gale v. Maung Bya (1). But it was there held that it only applied to property acquired by the joint exertions of husband and wife and not to inherited property, because such property was acquired without exertion.

I do not think this is a sufficient reason for differentiating between property inherited during a marriage and other lettelpwa property.

Property given to a married couple could not be said to have been acquired by the joint skill or labour of both, and yet obviously the principle in question would have to be applied to such property.

There would have been nothing unreasonable in a rule that property inherited during a marriage was the separate property of the spouse who inherited it, but that was not the rule adopted.

Furthermore, the ruling in question seems to me to be directly opposed to the texts that specifically provide for the case in point.

Mr. Justice (now Sir Henry) Hartnoll says, "The texts lay down no general rule.

The Kungya does not differentiate between hereditary and other acquired property. The Dhamma gives the son of the first marriage preference over the other two. The Manukya gives preference to the son of the marriage during the continuance of which the hereditary property was acquired, because he has the right to inherit the property through both parents. In section 245 the Cittara says "... The mother's separate property shall be divided equally among all the three sons..." The meaning of this text would seem to be that the mother's hereditary property is to be divided equally amongst the sons of the three marriages." Apparently, he considered that the texts were so contradictory that no general rule could be deduced from them and that, therefore, the fairest thing to do was to divide inherited property equally amongst all the children and he thought that the passage from the Cittara cited favoured such a distribution. I venture the opinion that the learned Judge was wrong on both points.

The Kungya, it is true, gives a rule which is to be found nowhere else. It is one of the oldest Dhammathats reputed to have been compiled in the year 728 B. E. and the rule which it gives was very likely the rule then in force, but it seems to have been altered later. The texts from the other Dhammathats collected in section 245 of U Gaung's Digest, which are all probably 300 years nearer the present time and probably only a little more than 150 years old, can be easily reconciled.

The rule appears to be, as I have said above, that the child who claims through both parents gets a double portion both of inherited and of other lettelpwa property. The Dhamma lays down that where three wives are married in succession, "the hereditary property of the father shall be divided into three shares; the son of the first wife shall receive two shares and the two sons by the second and third wives shall receive the remaining share between them." The remark that the Dhamma gives the son of the first wife preference over the other two seems to me hardly to express the case. This text obviously refers to the case where the property has been inherited during the first marriage, and that is why the son of that marriage gets more than the sons of the other marriages. Moreover, the compiler of the

(3) U. B. R. 1892-96, II, 159.

(4) L. R. (1892-900) 361.

(5) U. B. R. (1897-01), II, 185.

NGA LU DAW V. MI MO TI.

Dhamma has clearly made a mistake which is pointed out by the compiler of the Manukye. In the case of two marriages only, the son of the marriage during which property was acquired would, of course, get two-thirds and the son of the other marriage would get one-third under the general rule. In applying this rule to a case of three marriages the compiler of the Dhamma still gives the son of the marriage during which the property was acquired two-thirds and consequently each of the other sons only gets one-sixth. The compiler of the Manukye says that this is wrong: "As regards the father's hereditary property the statement that if it is acquired during the first marriage and taken to the subsequent marriages during which no property was acquired it shall be reckoned as property belonging to the first marriage, and that the son of the first marriage shall take two shares and the son of the subsequent marriage one share, refers to the case where there are only two wives and there is a son by each. In the present case, as the three sons are of the same father though by different mothers, the whole of the father's hereditary property shall be divided into four shares: the son of the first wife shall receive two shares and the sons by the second and third wives one share each. Debts, if any, shall be liquidated similarly. The same rule shall, mutatis mutandis, apply if the father comes into the possession of the hereditary property while living with the second or with the third wife, or if debts are contracted then. . . A son is given two shares out of the property acquired during his mother's life-time, because he has the right to inherit the property through both parents."

The text is as clear as it can possibly be and no distinction whatever is made between property inherited by the father during marriage and property acquired otherwise during the same period.

The text from the Rajabala at first sight appears to distinguish between hereditary property and other lettetpwa. The English translation runs: "All property other than hereditary property, acquired during the life-time of each mother, shall be divided into four shares and her son shall take two shares and the son of each of the other two mothers one share each." But this is a mistranslation. The text should run: "All property other than the wife's hereditary property, etc." The excepted property has been dealt within the preceding line, which lays down that the son of each mother shall succeed to her hereditary property.

None of the other texts in this section refer specifically to property inherited by the common parent, but they all agree with the Manukye as to the distribution of lettetpwa between the three children of three different marriages, and if there had been any question of a different rule for property inherited during marriage by the common parent and other lettetpwa, one would have expected that the rule would be given.

The passage from the Cittara cited by Mr. Justice (now Sir Henry) Hartnoll cannot bear the meaning which he placed on it.

The texts cited in section 246 of the Digest provide for the converse case where a woman marries in succession three husbands and has a son by each. The text in question lays down that her separate property shall be divided equally amongst all the three sons, it does not say that property inherited by her during one of the marriages is to be so divided. The first passage from the Cittara given in section 245 of the Digest— it is not translated in the English translation—shows clearly enough that property inherited by the father during one of the marriages is not to be divided equally amongst the sons of the three marriages.

I am of opinion, therefore, that if plaintiffs-appellants' father, Maung Ne Kya, had been living he would have been entitled to inherit one-half of the property acquired during his mother, Ma Ngwe's marriage, a quarter of the property inherited by Maung Hnin during either of the other two marriages and one-third of Maung Hnin's payin brought to the first marriage.

It is, therefore, necessary to decide when each of the lands in suit were acquired, with the exception of the land *, which is not shown by the plaintiffs-appellants to have been in Maung Hnin's possession when he died and which must, under the circumstances of the case, be taken to be, as alleged, under mortgage to Maung Paw Kye and incapable at present of partition.

There is evidence that * was given to Maung Hnin by his father, Maung Katho. I see no reason to disbelieve this evidence, and as there is none on the other side, I accept it. But the plaintiffs-appellants' contention that the gift was made during Ma Ngwe's coverture, cannot be accepted, in view of the evidence that this land was given to Maung Hnin on the occasion of his novitiate. The presumption is that he was not yet married, and that he took this piece of land to his first marriage as his payin. Maung Ne Kya if living would, therefore, be entitled to one-third of this piece of land.

NGA LU DAW V. MI MO YI.

According to the witnesses, Ma Pon Nyo and Maung Kyaw Nya, the lands * and * were inherited by Maung Hnin from his mother during his first marriage and the lands * and * were inherited from his father, Maung Kathe, i.e., during the third marriage, as Maung Kathe died after Maung Hnin had married Ma Kywet O.

The only evidence on the other side is that of the witnesses Maung Hmu and Maung Te Naung, who say that all the lands were inherited from Maung Kathe. They are much less definite than Ma Pon Nyo and Maung Kyaw Nya, and they were disbelieved by the Township Judge, and, therefore, I think the evidence given by Ma Pon Nyo and Maung Kyaw Nya should be taken as correct.

If he had been living, therefore, Maung Ne Kya would have been entitled to one-third of the land *, one-half of the lands * and * and one-fourth of the lands * and *. It remains to be considered whether the plaintiffs-appellants are entitled to these shares or as out-of-time grand-children to one-fourth of these shares.

The learned District Judge in awarding the plaintiffs-appellants a one-twelfth share of the lands overlooked the rule that out-of-time grand-children, if they be the children of the auratha son, receive the same share as their youngest uncle or aunt.

The question of the definition of the auratha son, however, remains. The eldest son is generally but not necessarily the auratha son. The son, who in case his father dies or becomes incapacitated is competent to take his place in the family, is the auratha son. If the eldest son be blind or otherwise incapacitated his younger brother, if competent, and not he is the auratha son, vide the text from the Dhammathakya and other texts collected in section 62 of the Digest, Volume I.

Consequently, I take it that until the eldest son reaches the age of discretion there can be no auratha son in the family. Again, though the eldest son cannot claim one-fourth of the estate from his father on the death of his mother, he can claim that share from his mother on the death of his father because he then takes his father's place in the family, he nevertheless, if competent to replace his father in case of the latter's death, becomes the 'auratha' son as soon as he becomes so competent and does not have to wait until his father's death to attain that position. I think this is clear from the texts collected in section 162 of Volume I of the Digest, of which I would particularly mention that from the Dhamma, which is more emphatic in the original Burmese than in the English translation. The Burmese runs: "If the eldest, the auratha, son dies whilst his parents are still living . . .", thus clearly indicating that the eldest son may attain the position of an auratha son whilst his father is still alive.

It is not suggested that Maung Ne Kya was in any way incapacitated from taking his father's place; he married and had children and, therefore, must have attained the age of discretion and in fact only predeceased his father by 10 years. He was, therefore, the auratha son.

It is not necessary to go into the question whether it is only the eldest son of the auratha son that can get the same share as the latter's youngest brother, because Maung Ne Kya's eldest son is still alive and he and his brother—the two plaintiffs-appellants—can obviously only get their father's share between them.

Lastly, as I have held that the lands * and * were redeemed by the 1st defendant-respondent for Rs. 61-8-0, it is obvious that the plaintiffs-appellants must pay their share of this debt before they can get their share of the inheritance.

One final difficulty remains. The lands * and * were mortgaged and redeemed as one parcel, but the plaintiffs-appellants are entitled to one-third of * and to one-fourth of the land * and the question is how the redemption money is to be apportioned between these two lands. The area of * is slightly more than five times that of * but its value according to the 1st plaintiff-appellant is only five-fourths of the value of * and this valuation has not been disputed. I think it is fairer to apportion the charge according to the value of the lands than according to the area. The plaintiffs-appellants must, therefore, pay four-ninths of Rs. 61-8-0 = Rs. 27-5-4.

RAJA OF PITHAPURAM v. JONNALAGODDA VENKATASUBBA ROW.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court is accordingly modified as follows:—Upon the plaintiffs-appellants paying into Court within six months of this date the sum of Rs. 27-5-4, the lands *, *, *, * and * will be partitioned and a one-third share of *, a one-fourth share of the lands * and * and a half share of the lands * and * will be given to the plaintiffs-appellants, i. e., 4-65 acres altogether. There will be no order as to costs as the plaintiffs-appellants claimed about double what they were entitled to.

Appeal accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1506 OF 1914.

September 13, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

THE RAJA OF PITHAPURAM, THROUGH
M. SUBBARAYADU GARU, DEWAN AND AUTHORISED AGENT—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus

JONNALAGODDA VENKATASUBBA
ROW—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), Ch. IV, s. 52—Agreement to pay enhanced rate entered into before Act came into force—Pattas and muchilikas exchanged under Rent Recovery Act, whether binding on tenant after Estates Land Act came into force.

An agreement to pay an increased rate of rent entered into before the Madras Estates Land Act came into force by a person who was a yearly tenant does not bind him after the Act came into force, as his status is changed by the Act. [p. 93, col. 2.]

Section 52 applies only to pattas and muchilikas exchanged since the Act came into force and no retrospective effect can be given to that section so as to bring within its operation pattas and muchilikas executed under the Rent Recovery Act, VIII of 1865, and tenable for a year only. [p. 93, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Godavari at Rajahmundry, in Appeal Suit No. 185 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the Head-quarters Deputy Collector, Cocanada, in Land Suit No. 122 of 1911.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Aiyangar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. P. Narayana-murthi and V. Ramadoss, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The defendant was let into possession before the Madras Estates Land Act under Exhibit III which fixed the rent at Rs. 221 per fasli. Settlement operations began in the zemin-dari, and the Settlement Officer recommended that a rent of Rs. 394 should be levied on the holding.

Consequently in July 1907 the defendant agreed to pay Rs. 394 and odd a year, as he understood that to be the recommendation of the Settlement Officer. Meantime the Madras Estates Land Act came into force, and the defendant became a permanent tenant. After the first year was over, disputes arose regarding the rate of rent. Nothing was paid for Fasli 1318. Then the officials of the zemin-dari suggested that the rent should be brought down to Rs. 285. The defendant agreed to this, but stipulated that this rate should not apply to Fasli 1318. The defendant paid at the rate of Rs. 285 for Faslis 1318, 1319 and 1320. The present suit is to recover the balance due on the footing of the rent agreed in July 1907.

The Deputy Collector gave the plaintiff a decree for rent at the rate claimed by him. The District Judge held that he is not entitled to anything more than 285 rupees a year. We think the lower Appellate Court is right. It was argued before us that as the only binding agreement was that entered into in July 1907, under section 52 of the Act, it is enforceable for the suit faslis. We are unable to uphold this contention. Chapter IV deals with permanent occupancy ryots. The agreement came to at a time when the defendant was only a yearly tenant cannot apply to his changed status. Further, we are of opinion that section 52 only applies to pattas and muchilikas exchanged since the Act came into force. Under the old Act, pattas and muchilikas remained in force only for a year and we see no ground for giving retrospective operation to section 52.

The only provisions which enable Courts to fix the rent are contained in sections 27 and 28. There were payments at the rate of Rs. 285 for a number of faslis. This was in pursuance of a compromise arranged between the parties. Although there were disputes regarding some unessential particulars, we think that the parties were agreed on the main question as to fixing the rent at Rs. 285. This was the amount lawfully paid in faslis 1318 to 1320 and was lawfully payable in the subsequent fasli under section 28 of the Act.

MI CHAN MYA v. MI NGWE YON.

The District Judge is, therefore, right in holding that the plaintiff is not entitled to anything more than Rs. 285 for the suit faslis.

We dismiss the second appeal with costs.

Mr. Ramadoss's client agrees to pay the interest on the arrears due, if it has not been already paid.

The memorandum of objections is also dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL NO. 81 OF 1914.

April 27, 1915.

Present:—Mr. McColl, A. J. C.
MI CHAN MYA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

MI NGWE YON—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Buddhist Law—Inheritance—Share of children of first marriage—Keitima child adopted before second marriage, right of—Undutiful conduct—Burden of proof.

Under the Buddhist Law adoption, like marriage, is not a mere contract, nor is it a grant or other disposition of property, nor is an adoption required to be in writing and, therefore, the fact that a deed of adoption was drawn up, does not preclude other evidence of the adoption. [p. 96, col. 1.]

The object of the keitima adoption is generally to provide the adoptive parents with an heir. In the case of such an adoption there must be a distinct occasion on which it takes place, it must be public and there is very often, though not always, a ceremony. [p. 95, col. 2.]

According to the Buddhist Law of inheritance, the children of a first marriage are, on the death of their father, who has married again after the death of their mother, entitled to three-fourths of the property taken to the second marriage, and one-eighth of the lettelpica of that marriage. The same rule applies to a keitima child adopted by a man and his first wife. [p. 98, cols. 1 & 2.]

In the case of keitima child living apart from his adoptive parents, the real question for determination is whether the surrounding circumstances proved to exist establish an intentional severance of the family tie or not. The requirement of joint residence can be safely released in the case of an adoptive child who is also a blood relation. [p. 96, col. 1.]

Where the keitima child was the niece of the adoptive father and a year after her marriage lived in a granary in his compound, except for one year when she lived in her father-in-law's house, and for certain months in every year during which she lived in a field hut for the purpose of cultivating her adoptive father's field:

Held, that so far as a joint living was concerned, the requirements of the Dhammathats were sufficiently complied with and consequently the burden of proving that she was by undutiful conduct debarred from inheriting was on the adverse party. [p. 96, col. 2.]

Mr. C. G. S. Pillay, for the Appellants.

Mr. R. K. Banerjee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The 1st defendant-appellant is the widow of Maung Po, deceased, and the 2nd defendant-appellant is their infant son. The plaintiff-respondent sued them for a three-fourths share of Maung Po's estates alleging that she had been adopted by Maung Po and his first wife, Ma Hla Dun, as their keitima child, and that the whole of the estate had been acquired by Maung Po before he married the 1st defendant-appellant and had been taken by him to that marriage.

The defence was that the plaintiff-respondent was not Maung Po's keitima daughter, that even if she were, she had not maintained filial relations with him and that in any case she was not entitled to get three-fourths of the estate.

The Courts below found the adoption proved and awarded plaintiff-respondent three-fourths of the property taken to the 2nd marriage and one-eighth of the lettelpica of that marriage. The defendants-appellants have now appealed under section 100, Civil Procedure Code, on various grounds.

The first ground is that the findings of the lower Appellate Court as to adoption are contrary to the provisions of Buddhist Law, inasmuch as (1) there was little or no evidence of publicity and notoriety, and (2) there was no evidence as to whether the adoption was keitima or apaddittha. Reliance is placed on Ma Pica v. Ma The The (1) as to adoption being a mixed question of fact and law. I have no doubt as to the correctness of this contention, but of course this Court cannot go into the credibility of witnesses in an appeal under section 100, Civil Procedure Code, unless the lower Appellate Court has committed some error of law or procedure in believing or disbelieving the witnesses; and that is not urged in the present case.

MI CHAN MYA V. MI NGWE YON.

Now apart from evidence of repute there is the direct evidence of Maung Shwe Lun (plaintiff-respondent's natural father), Maung Tun U, Maung Pi (Maung Po's brother) and Maung Kyi Maung that the plaintiff-respondent was adopted and that a ceremony to which monks were invited was held. Maung Shwe Lun on cross-examination gave evidence which contradicted the plaintiff-respondent and went to show that there had been a rupture of the filial bond, but on re-examination he contradicted his previous statements. The Courts below discarded the whole of his evidence on the ground that he was a paralytic. I do not think their action can be called in question in an appeal under section 100, Civil Procedure Code. The other witnesses, if believed, —and their credibility cannot be questioned now—conclusively prove the adoption and prove that it was a public one. Moreover, there is evidence of later repute, e. g., that given by the witnesses Maung Kyaw Za Maung Shan Gyi and the important documentary evidence that the plaintiff-respondent was entered in thathameda assessment rolls as Maung Po's daughter. I would add that the circumstantial evidence corroborates the direct evidence of the adoption, but it is unnecessary to refer to it because the direct evidence which cannot now be challenged proves the adoption.

As to there being no evidence as to whether the adoption was a keitima or an apaddittha one, I would say in the first place that the point, if taken at all, should have been taken in the Court of first instance. To allow the evidence to be recorded without asking a question on the point and then to urge on appeal for the first time that there was no evidence as to the kind of adoption was not fair to the plaintiff-respondent. I thoroughly agree with the learned Divisional Judge that it must be taken that when the witnesses spoke of an adoption they meant a keitima adoption. Moreover the evidence points to a keitima adoption and not to an apaddittha one. An apaddittha son is described in section 16 of U Gaung's Digest as, "a foundling brought up in the family" (Manu), "a foundling adopted casually and brought up in the family" (Haru), "a child casually adopted and brought up in the family of the adoptive parents, being abandoned by his natural parents" (Kaingza). "A child casually adopted whether its parents or relatives are known or unknown" (Dhamma and Manukye), "son casually adopted through compassion" (Kandaw), "son casually adopted" (Vivicchaya), "a foundling brought up in the family" (Pakasani), "foundling or destitute child casually adopted" (Manu). "Foundling casually adopted" (Panam and Kungyalinga and Amwebon). It is clear that there is a very great distinction between such an adoption and a keitima adoption. In the latter kind of adoption there must be a distinct occasion on which the adoption takes place, it must be public and there is very often, though not always, a ceremony. The object of the adoption is generally to provide the adoptive parents with an heir. The reason for an apaddittha adoption is pity for the child, who is destitute, an orphan or abandoned by his parents. The adoption, though perhaps not necessarily so, is at any rate usually a gradual process, so that it is generally impossible to say at what precise moment a child taken into a family became an apaddittha child. All idea of a ceremony in such an adoption is excluded by the language of the definitions.

In the present case Maung Po and his first wife, Ma Hla Dun, were childless and no doubt wished for an heir to inherit their wealth. The plaintiff-respondent was Ma Hla Dun's own niece, there was a ceremony and after she was taken into the family she was treated as a keitima daughter would have been.

The next ground of appeal is that the lower Appellate Court contravened the provisions of the Evidence Act in that "whilst discarding all evidence of the document, it admitted oral evidence of Maung Pi and Maung Kyi Maung, who spoke to the execution of a deed of adoption."

But the learned Divisional Judge did not rely on the contents of the deed deposed to, he relied on the evidence given by these witnesses that there was a public ceremony at which the plaintiff-respondent was adopted. An adoption, like a marriage, is not a mere contract, nor is it a grant or other disposition of property, nor does the law require an adoption to be in writing and, therefore, the fact that a deed of adoption was drawn up, does not preclude other evidence of the adoption.

MI CHAN MIYA v. MI NGWE YON.

The next two grounds of appeal are that the lower Appellate Court should have found that the filial tie, if one had ever existed, had been ruptured and that as separate living was proved it should have placed the burden of proof on the plaintiff-respondent.

To take the last point first, it was held in Maung Shwe Thwe v. Ma Saing (2) that in the case of a keittina son living apart from his adoptive parents, the burden of proving that he had maintained filial relations and that there had not been a severance of the adoptive tie was on him. But in that case the rulings Maung Aing v. Ma Kin (3) and Ma Gyan v. Maung Kywin (4) were approved. In the former case the late Mr. Burgess held that the requirement of joint residence could be safely relaxed in the case of an adopted child who was also a blood relation, and in the latter case he said, "the real issue for determination in such cases is whether the surrounding circumstances proved to exist establish an intentional severance of the family tie or not." This passage was quoted with approval by Mr. Justice (now Sir Herbet) Thirkell-White. In Maung Shwe Thwe v. Ma Saing (2), there is nothing to show whether the plaintiff was a blood relation of his adoptive mother or not, but he had been living apart from her for 11 years and during that time she had only visited him once and he had only paid her one visit and that was immediately before her death. It was held that the circumstances of the case indicated clearly an intentional severance of the adoptive tie. In Maung Aing v. Ma Kin (3), the adopted child after marriage lived in a house in the same compound as the adoptive parents and it was held that the requirements of the Dhammathats in respect of the joint living were practically fulfilled. In Ma Gyan v. Maung Kywin (4) also, the adoptive daughter lived after her marriage not in her adoptive parents' house but in a house close by, and it was held that she was entitled to inherit.

In the present case, a year after her marriage the plaintiff-respondent lived in a granary in her adoptive father's compound, except for one year when she lived in her father-in-law's house, and for certain months in every year during which she lived in a field hut for the purpose of cultivating Maung Po's fields. Following Maung Aing v. Ma Kin (3) and Ma Gyan v. Maung Kywin (4), I hold that so far as joint living is concerned the requirements of the Dhammathats were sufficiently complied with, and consequently the burden of proving that the plaintiff-respondent was by undutiful conduct debarred from inheriting, was on the defendants-appellants.

Now it appears from the evidence that the plaintiff-respondent on one occasion unearthed some money which Maung Po had buried and apparently misappropriated some of it and was turned out of the house in consequence, and it is alleged that the adoptive tie was then ruptured. But when turned out, plaintiff-respondent went and lived not with her natural parents but in her father-in-law's house and she subsequently returned and again lived in Maung Po's compound. It is clear from the evidence that they were reconciled before Maung Po married the first defendant-appellant, and I agree with the learned Divisional Judge that the circumstances do not point to a severance of the adoptive tie or disentitle plaintiff-respondent from inheriting.

The next ground of appeal is that the lower Appellate Court erred in relying upon the thathameda roll for 1906-07, in which plaintiff-respondent is shown as Maung Po's daughter, whereas in the roll for 1908-09 she is shown as living separately and assessed accordingly.

1908-09 was apparently the year during which plaintiff-respondent lived with her father-in-law. Three extracts from thatha-

(2) U. B. R. (1897-01), II, p. 135.

(3) U. B. R. (1892-96), II, p. 22.

(4) U. B. R. (1897-96), II, 176.

MI CHAN MYA U. MI NGWE YON.

meda rolls were filed, viz., for 1906-07, 1907-08 and 1909-10, in each of which the plaintiff-respondent is shown as Maung Po's daughter and is assessed with him as one household. The extract from the roll for 1909-10 is in accordance with the evidence that plaintiff-respondent after being driven out of the house by Maung Po went and lived a year in her father-in-law's house and then returned and lived with Maung Po again, i.e., in his compound.

The next ground of appeal is that the lower Appellate Court did not consider all the evidence for the defence. The witnesses for the defence tried to make out that the plaintiff-respondent went to live in Maung Po's house as servant and that at the end she was his tenant and worked his land.

But it is quite certain that if plaintiff-respondent had merely gone to live in Maung Po's house as a servant, the occasion would not have been celebrated by a ceremony to which pongyis were invited and defendants-appellants' own witness, Maung So, admitted that there was such a ceremony. A tenancy might explain plaintiff-respondent's living in Maung Po's field-but, but it would not be a sufficient explanation of her living in his compound.

The last ground of appeal is that the share awarded to the plaintiff-respondent, viz., three-fourths of the property taken to the second marriage and one-eighth of the lettetpwa of that marriage, is contrary to Buddhist Law as there is a son of the second marriage. It has not, however, been stated what the correct share is.

Texts from many Dhammathats dealing directly with this question are collected in section 229 of U Gaung's Digest, Volume I. These texts, however, are by no means unanimous and it is very noticeable that no text from the Manukye is included amongst them, and I have not been able to find any text in that Dhammathat bearing on this question. The text from the Yazathat quoted in section 229 gives the children of the first marriage one-half of the property taken to the second marriage and the widow and the children of the second marriage a quarter each, but the great majority of the Dhammathats are divided into two schools, of which one gives the children of the first marriage three-fourths of the property taken to the second marriage and the widow one-fourth, and the other gives the children of the first marriage the larger share, the widow a share and the children of the second marriage a share, and the more numerous texts give these shares as five-eighths, two-eighths and one-eighth respectively. Apparently the latest ruling on the point is Ma Leik v. Maung Nwa (5). In that case a Bench of the Chief Court of Lower Burma held that as the majority of the texts cited in section 229 of U Gaung's Digest were in favour of the children of the first marriage getting three-fourths of the property taken to the second marriage, that rule should be adopted; it was, however, apparently not noticed that most of the texts that give this rule do not specifically state that this rule applies where there are children of the second marriage. The rule generally stated is that the children of the first marriage get three-fourths and the widow one-fourth and no reference whatever is made to the children of the second marriage. Section 220 of the Attasankhepa Dhammathat runs as follows: "Let the property brought by the father or mother be divided into four shares and let the children of the former marriage take three shares and the step-father or step-mother one share. This rule applies when there is no issue by the second marriage. If, however, children are born after the second marriage, let the property brought by the father or mother be divided into eight shares, and let the children of the former marriage take five shares, the step-father or step-mother two shares and the children of the second marriage one share." The Attasankhepa Dhammathat was compiled by the late Kinwun Mingyi, U Gaung, the compiler of the Digest. He was learned in Buddhist Law and had experience of its application and his opinion is entitled to very great weight. Unfortunately this particular work of his is dogmatic. No authorities are cited; throughout the work there is evidence of attempt to reconcile contradictory texts of the older Dhammathats without any hint of the method of reconciliation, and the tendency is to elaborate intricate rules of division of property, which are never followed in practice, e.g., the rule given in section 161.

(5) 4 L. B. R. 110.

NAVANNA VENA RAMA CHETTY v. ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR.

Now it is obvious enough that the rules given in the older Dhammathats for partition of property brought to a second marriage between the children of the first marriage, the widow and the children of the second marriage are contradictory, and putting aside a few of the texts, it looks at first sight as if the rule given in section 220 of the Attasankhepa successfully reconciled the majority of them, because the majority do not mention children of the second marriage when giving the rule regarding the partition of property taken to that marriage, and consequently it might be assumed that the rule of three-fourths and one-fourth only applies where there are no children of the second marriage, and that when there are such children, the rule of five-eighths, two-eighths and one-eighth given by the other Dhammathats applies. But in the first place, it seems to me impossible that the compilers of the former Dhammathats can have overlooked the point that there might be children of the second marriage, seeing that they proceed immediately to refer to such children when considering the partition of the lettelpica of the second marriage, and in the second place, the text from the Manuyin after giving the rule of three-fourths of the atet property to the children of the first marriage and one-fourth to the widow, continues, "such property shall not be given to the offspring of the second union," and the text from the Dayajja says "The mother having died, the father marries again and dies leaving issue by the second marriage. The children of the former marriage shall get three out of four shares of their own parents' property and the remaining share shall be given to their step-mother." It is further to be noted that the Dhammathats that give the five-eighths, two-eighths, and one-eighth rule are much older than the Munyan and the Dayajja.

Finally, the rule of three-fourths to the children of the first marriage is perfectly intelligible as was pointed out by Mr. Justice Moore in Ma Leik v. Maung Nwa (5). The children of the first marriage get their own mother's share, viz., one-half, and they get their father's share, in all three fourths. The children of the second marriage get nothing because their mother is still living, but on her death they get her share.

As regards the lettelpica of the second marriage the texts are almost unanimous that the children of the first marriage get one-eighth and this rule has not been disputed.

I thus agree with the lower Appellate Court on all points and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1566 of 1913.

August 18, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

NAVANNA VENA RAMA CHETTY—DEFENDANT No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

A. L. A. R. R. M. ARUNACHALAM
CHETTIAR AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—

RESPONDENTS.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 151, scope of—Relief under s. 151, when granted—Circumstances to be considered.

Section 151, Madras Estates Land Act, is intended to give the landholder a right to sue for the reliefs mentioned therein only when the holding as a whole is rendered substantially unfit for agricultural purposes by the acts of the ryot committed on the whole or on any part of the holding. [p. 100, col. 1.]

In arriving at a decision as to whether the holding as a whole is so rendered unfit by the acts of the ryot on any part of the holding, reference must be had to the circumstances of individual cases, to the size of the holding, to the area withdrawn from actual cultivation and to the effect of such withdrawal upon the fitness of the holding taken as a whole for profitable cultivation. [p. 100, cols. 1 & 2.]

Hari Mohan Misser v. Surendra Narayan Singh, 34 C. 718; 17 M. L. J. 361 (P. C.); 2 M. L. T. 399; 11 C. W. N. 794; 6 C. L. J. 19; 9 Bom. L. R. 750; 34 I. A. 133, followed.

Appeal against the decree of the District Court of Ramnad, in Appeal Suit No. 106 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the Deputy Collector of Devakota, in Summary Suit No. 556 of 1912.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar and R. Kuppuswami Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. Srinivasa Aiyangar, for the Respondents.

This second appeal coming on for hearing on the 30th October 1914, and having stood over for consideration till the 6th November 1914, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—The 1st defendant is the appellant. The plaintiffs who are the landlords of the plaint land brought this suit for the following reliefs:—

NAVANNA VENA RAMA CHETTY v. ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR.

(a) that the permanent damage to the plaint land area of $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam, inflicted by the defendants by their having erected two walls on the site and placed two stone pillars thereon, be removed at the defendants' expense;

(b) that the defendants may be made to pay the plaintiffs their costs.

The plaint $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam area is in one corner of a big tope land measuring a little over 12 kurukkams in extent in the village of Kalakkudi. The plaintiffs' complaint is that as the 12 and odd kurukkams were granted as tope lands on tope cowle (that is for cultivation of fruit trees), the defendants had no right to convert any portion of the lands into a building site and the defendants by enclosing $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam by walls, by raising its level and by fixing stone pillars have made that portion unfit for horticulture. The suit was brought in the Revenue Court under section 151 (2) of the Madras Estates Land Act.

The second issue raised in the case was whether the suit land or any portion of it has been materially impaired in its value for agricultural purposes and if so, when? The Suits Deputy Collector gave his finding as follows:—"It is clear from the evidence that the $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam in question has been rendered unfit for cultivation. I, therefore, find this issue in favour of plaintiffs." Now the issue was whether the suit land or any portion of it has been materially impaired in its value for agricultural purposes and the finding is that $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam in question has been rendered unfit for cultivation. There is no finding that the suit land of 12 and odd kurukkams taken as a whole has been materially rendered unfit for cultivation as a tope.

The lower Appellate Court in a very short judgment says: "It may be that the plot in question is only a small fraction of the holding but that circumstance would not take the case out of the purview of section 151 of the Madras Estates Land Act;" and on this finding, the Suits Deputy Collector's decree directing the defendants to remove the walls and to restore the land to its original state was confirmed.

Of the contentions in second appeal before us, only one need be considered, the others not being seriously pressed. That one contention is that the Courts below have not considered and tackled the question whether there was a material impairing of the holding of 12 and odd kurukkams taken as a whole by acts done on the plaint $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam area, and that is what they had to consider under section 151, clause 2, of the Madras Estates Land Act.

Section 151, clause 1, of the Act is as follows:—

"A landholder may institute a suit before the Collector to eject an occupancy ryot from his holding only on the ground that the ryot has materially impaired the value of the holding for agricultural purposes and rendered it substantially unfit for such purposes." Clause 2 allows the landholder to sue not only for the relief of ejectment mentioned in clause 1 but also for injunction, or for the repair of the damage, or for compensation or for a combination of these three reliefs. I am unable to accept the ingenious argument of the respondents' learned Vakil, Mr. S. Srinivasa Aiyangar, that the right given by the second clause to the landholder allowing him to sue for an injunction, is not governed by the condition laid down in the first clause, namely, that the ryot must have materially impaired the value of the holding for agricultural purposes and rendered it substantially unfit for agricultural purposes. The second clause is clearly a supplement to the first clause, giving the supplementary and alternative reliefs to the relief of ejectment given by the first clause, the right to sue for these supplementary and alternative reliefs, however, being governed by the same conditions.

The provisions of section 151 were compared by learned Vakils on both sides during the arguments with the provisions of section 11. Section 11 says: "a ryot may use the lands in his holding in any manner which does not materially impair the value of the land or render it unfit for agricultural purposes." It will be seen that there is a slight difference between the wording of section 11 and the wording of clause 1 of section 151 in two points. The word "substantially" is omitted in section 11 before the words "unfit for agricultural purposes." Again the word "and" is substituted in section 151 for the word "or" before the word "render." Lastly the words "for agricultural purposes" appear only at the end of section 11, whereas they appear after both the verbal clauses in section 151, clause 1. I am unable to see what the difference between "materially impairing the value of the holding for agricultural purposes" and "rendering it substantially unfit for agricultural purposes" is or why the conjunction "and" was substituted for "or" in the latter section. I do not think that any real distinction was intended to be made by the slight differences in phraseology between section 11 and section 151, clause 1.

NAVANNA VENA RAMA CHETTY V. ARUNACHALAM CHETTIAR.

The substantial question for decision is, therefore, whether section 151 intended to give the landholder a right to sue for any of the reliefs mentioned therein in all cases, even if only a part of the holding was rendered unfit for agricultural purposes, or whether it intended to give the right to sue for any of those reliefs, only when the holding as a whole was rendered substantially unfit for agricultural purposes by the acts of the ryot committed on the whole or on any part of the holding. On this question I think we are bound by the decision of the Privy Council in Hari Mohun Misser v. Surendra Narayan Singh (1). In that case, the Calcutta High Court in construing section 23 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (on which section 11 of the Madras Estates Land Act is founded) laid down that the landholder is entitled to an injunction to remove an indigo vat built upon a portion of a large holding, "because that portion had become evidently unfit for agricultural purposes." Their Lordships of the Privy Council say that the proposition of law so laid down by the High Court, (namely, that even if a part of a holding had become unfit for agricultural purposes, the landlord is always entitled to an injunction to rectify the acts done on that part of the holding) cannot be upheld, as that proposition was laid down too broadly and unconditionally. Their Lordships say that "reference must be had to the circumstances of individual cases," "to the size of the holding," "to the area withdrawn from actual cultivation," and "to the effect of such withdrawal upon the fitness of the holding taken as a whole for profitable cultivation" before the relief of injunction could be granted.

We are bound to follow this ruling of their Lordships and as we find that the lower Courts have in arriving at their conclusions merely considered the question whether the $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam in dispute was rendered unfit for agricultural purposes, and have not considered the question whether with reference to the circumstances of this individual case with regard to the size of the holding, with regard to the area withdrawn from actual cultivation and with regard to the effect of such withdrawal upon the fitness of the holding, the value of the holding as a whole has been materially impaired for the purpose of the horticulture, we cannot confirm their decrees.

I would, therefore, call for a finding from the lower Appellate Court on the following issue on the evidence already on record: "Has the holding of 12 and odd acres taken as a whole been materially impaired in value for agricultural purposes" (which include horticultural purposes) "or rendered substantially unfit for the said purposes owing to the acts found to have been committed by the defendants on the $\frac{1}{4}$ th kurukkam referred to in the plaint, having reference to the circumstances of this case, having regard to the size of the holding as a whole and to the size of the area withdrawn from actual cultivation and to the effect of such withdrawal upon the fitness of the holding taken as a whole for profitable cultivation." The finding should be submitted within six weeks from the receipt of records and 10 days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment of this Court the District Judge of Ramnad submitted the following

FINDING.

In the circumstances pointed out above, I find the issue in the negative and against plaintiffs.

This second appeal coming on for final bearing after the return of the finding of the lower Appellate Court upon the issue referred by this Court for trial, the Court

(1) 17 M. L. J. 381; 34 C. 718 (P. C.); 2 M. L. T. 299; 11 C. W. N. 794; 6 C. L. J. 19; 6 Bom. L. R. 750; 84 L. A. 183.

NGA TWE V. NGA BA.

delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—We accept the finding and setting aside the decrees of the lower Courts, we dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs in all Courts payable by the plaintiffs to the 1st defendant.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION No. 176 OF 1913.

April 30, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Saunders, A. J. C.

NGA TWE AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS

versus

NGA BA—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 20—Payment towards interest—Intention.

In order to save limitation under section 20 of the Limitation Act, 1908, the payment towards interest must be the payment of interest as such, that is to say, the debtor should pay the amount with the intention that it should be paid towards interest and there must be something to indicate such an intention.

Mr. Tha Gywe, for the Applicants.

Mr. C. G. S. Pillay, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The defence of the defendants-applicants to this suit on the ground of non-execution and non-receipt of consideration was merely foolish, and though the lower Court's judgment barely complied with the provisions of the law, I think under the circumstances it may be accepted as complying. But on the question of limitation, both the Courts below appear to have gone wrong. The lower Appellate Court considered the point and appears to have thought that as the payments made by the defendants were appropriated to interest, limitation was thereby saved. But it was pointed out in Maung Hlaing v. Maung Et Gyi (1) that to save limitation the payment towards interest must be the payment of interest as such, in other words, there must be an intimation by the defendant that the payment made by him is to be appropriated to interest. The point was clearly explained in Mohammad Abdulla Khan v. Bank Instalment Company, Limited, in Liquidation (2). It was there explained that the payment of interest will save limitation when the payment is made as such, that is to say, when the debtor has paid the amount with the intention that it should be paid towards interest and there must be something to indicate such an intention. The mere appropriation by the creditor of these payments to interest is not such an indication as would enable a Court to hold that payments were made towards interest as such by the debtor.

It is suggested for the plaintiff respondent that the payments were made towards principal and that the endorsements may have been in the handwriting of the defendant. But this was not the plaintiff's case. The amounts paid were apparently less than the interest due upon the dates of payment, and from the calculations given in the plaint, none of the principal has yet been paid.

I do not think it is necessary to remand the case to the Court of first instance, inasmuch as there was an issue on the question whether the defendants-applicants made payments towards principal and interest. The promissory-note having been executed on the 23rd February 1910, and the suit filed on the 26th March 1913, the claim was barred by limitation, and the plaintiff's suit must be dismissed with costs.

Suit dismissed.

(2) 2 Ind. Cas. 379; 31 A. 495; 6 A. L. J. 611.

(1) U. B. R. (1892-96), II, 466.

MURUGESA MUDALI v. SAMA GOUNDAN.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST APPELLATE ORDER NO. 40
OF 1914.

August 16, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.MURUGESA MUDALI—PLAINTIFF—DECREE-HOLDER—COUNTER-PETITIONER—
APPELLANT

VERSUS

SAMA GOUNDAN AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—PETITIONERS—RESPONDENTS.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47,
O. XXI, r. 101—Petition by judgment-debtor objecting to sale in execution—Objections by third party as well—Order, whether appealable.*

An order passed on an application by a judgment-debtor objecting to the sale of certain immoveable property in execution of a decree is, as between the parties to the suit, an order passed under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and is appealable even though it also disposes of objections made by third parties to the delivery of possession.

Civil Miscellaneous Second Appeal against the order of the District Court of North Arcot, in Appeal Suit No. 793 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Tirupattur in Miscellaneous Petition No. 132 of 1913, in Execution Petition No. 128 of 1912, in Original Suit No. 464 of 1911.

Mr. V. Viswanatha Sastri, for the Appellant.

Mr. K. R. Subramania Sastri, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The respondents put in a petition in the Court of the District Munsif to cancel the delivery of certain shops purchased by the decree-holder in execution of a decree passed against the respondents as trustees of a temple.

The respondents contended that the shops did not belong to the judgment-debtor temple solely but to five other institutions and further contended that even the interest of the debtor temple in the corpus of the shop property could not have been and was not legally sold but only its right to receive a share of the rents and profits.

We must take it that the petition was filed partly under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code (which has been held to apply also to disputes between decree-holder-purchasers and judgment-debtors) and partly under Order XXI, rule 101. As only one order was passed in respect of both these contentions by each of the lower Courts and as that order has been based mainly on the contention raised by the respondents as trustees of the judgment-debtor temple, we hold that an appeal lies against the order of the District Munsif to the District Court and from the order of the District Court to this Court. We accordingly overrule the preliminary objection raised by the respondents' Vakil to the entertainment of this appeal.

As regards the merits, it is clear to us from the records that all the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor temple in the shops could be brought to sale under the terms of the decree, and were so brought to sale in execution and were purchased by the decree-holder and not merely the right to share of the rents and profits.

The lower Courts' orders are set aside as based on an untenable preliminary ground.

The petition case will be remanded to the District Munsif for the passing of fresh orders after giving findings on the following points:—

(1) To what share in the corpus of the properties sold was the judgment-debtor temple entitled?

(2) If the respondents as trustees of the other institutions are entitled to occupy the shops in virtue of those institutions owning substantial shares in the shops, whether the appellant is not entitled even to the delivery of the shops under Order XXI, rule 96, of the Civil Procedure Code?

Costs hitherto will be costs in the cause.

Appeal allowed; Petition remanded.

MI SA U V. NGA MEIK.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL NO. 219 OF 1912.

May 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. McColl, J. C.

MI SA U—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

NGA MEIK AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11, Expt. I —Suit for possession and mesne profits—Claim as to future mesne profits not adjudicated upon—Subsequent suit for such profits, whether barred.

In a previous suit for possession the plaintiff claimed mesne profits which had already accrued as well as future mesne profits. He was awarded mesne profits already accrued, and the decree was silent as to future profits. On his bringing a fresh suit for future mesne profits the plea of res judicata was raised.

Held, that the mere omission of the Court to adjudicate upon the claim for future profits did not operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for such profits. [p. 104, col. 1.]

Ram Dayal v. Madan Mohan, 21 A. 425; A. W. N. (1899) 153, followed.

Mr. S. Mukerjee, for the Appellant.

Mr. J. C. Chatterjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In a previous suit the plaintiff-appellant sued the defendants-respondents and others for possession of some land of which, she alleged, the defendants-respondents were in wrongful possession. In her plaint she claimed mesne profits which had already accrued, viz., for the years 1269 and 1270 and also future mesne profits.

She won her suit in the District Court and she was awarded mesne profits for the years 1269 and 1270, but the decree was silent as to future mesne profits.

She then brought the present suit for mesne profits for 1271 and 1272 which she estimated at Rs. 975. The only defence raised was that the suit was res judicata. On appeal the lower Appellate Court held, on the strength of a passage in Messrs. Ameer Ali and Woodroffe's Civil Procedure Code that the suit was res judicata and dismissed it.

Had the plaintiff not claimed future mesne profits in her previous suit, there can be no doubt that under the Code of 1882 she would have been entitled to bring a separate suit for them, Nga Lu Pe v. Nga Shwe Yun (1), but the lower Appellate Court has held that the fact that she did claim them and the omission in the present Code of certain words which appeared in section 244 of the Code of 1882 make a difference. In my opinion they do not.

The following words appeared in section 244 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, viz., "nothing in this section shall be deemed to bar a separate suit for mesne profits accruing between the institution of the first suit and the execution of the decree therein, where such profits are not dealt with by such decree." In the corresponding section 47 of the present Code, these words have been omitted. In referring to this omission, in their notes to Order XX, rule 12, Messrs. Ameer Ali and Woodroffe say: "The penultimate section (sic) of section 244 of the last Code has not been re-enacted, and probably any claim made and not expressly granted in the decree will be deemed to have been refused within the meaning of Explanation V of section 11." It was on this passage that the lower Appellate Court relied. As the lower Appellate Court says, the opinion of the learned authors is entitled to very great weight, but not to the same weight as would have attached to it, had it been delivered from the Bench after the point had been argued before them.

Now it was not section 244 of the last Code that enabled a separate suit for mesne profits accruing due after institution of the suit to be brought. Section 244 (b) laid down that where such mesne profits had been granted by the decree any matter respecting them should be dealt with by the executing Court, and not in a separate suit, and the words referred to laid down that where such mesne profits had not been dealt with in the decree this section would not bar a separate suit, but they did not specifically sanction such a suit, they did not lay down that in spite of what appeared in other sections of the Code such a suit might be brought though these words implied that such a suit might be brought. Therefore, the right to bring such a suit did not depend upon these words but existed independently.

The omission of these words, therefore, could not by itself effect any change. The words were no doubt omitted because clause (b) was omitted. If such a suit as the present one would not have been barred by section 13 of the Code of 1882, there appears to be no reason why it should be barred under the present Code, because Explanation III to section 13 of the Code of 1882 is identical with Explanation V of section 11 of the present Code.

NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU GARU v. VENNAVALI SESHAGIRI RAO.

The Allahabad High Court held under the old Code in Ram Dayal v. Madan Mohan (2), which was a suit for possession of immoveable property and for mesne profits both before and after suit, that the mere omission of the Court to adjudicate upon the claim for future mesne profits would not by reason of section 13, Explanation III, operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for mesne profits accruing due after the institution of the former suit. In referring to this ruling, apparently with approval, Messrs. Ameer Ali and Woodroffe quote the following passage from the judgment: "The words 'relief claimed' apply only to something which forms part of the 'claim' strictly so called, that is, something which the plaintiff may claim as of right, something included in his cause of action and which if he establishes his cause of action, the Court has no discretion to refuse. They do not include something which the plaintiff cannot in the suit claim as of right, but can only claim in the sense of an appeal to the discretion of the Court and which the Court may refuse in the exercise of its discretion on grounds of general expediency or otherwise, even if the cause of action is fully established." These words express better than any words of mine could do my exact view, and I would only add, a Court has a discretion to refuse to include future mesne profits in a decree for possession of immoveable property merely because they are not yet and never may be due, and that, therefore, to bar on this ground a fresh suit for such profits after they have become due would be to deny the plaintiff his obvious rights.

The amount of mesne profits has not been denied.

In Civil Appeal No. 165 of 1911, however, it was held that the plaintiff-appellant was entitled to two-thirds only of the land. The decretal amount should, therefore, be Rs. 650.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court is set aside and the plaintiff-appellant is granted a decree for Rs. 650 and proportionate costs in all Courts.

Appeal accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEALS NOS. 275 AND 276 OF 1914.

September 20, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Phillips.

G. NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU GARU,
RECEIVER OF NIDADAVOLE AND MADUR ESTATES—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT IN BOTH

versus

IN L. P. A. No. 275 OF 1914

VENNAVALI SESHAGIRI RAO—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

IN L. P. A. No. 276 OF 1914

PANUALA AMMAYYA SASTRULU—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) as amended by Act (VI of 1905), s. 7, cl. V (d), XI (cc)—Suit to recover possession of immoveable property from tenant—Valuation for purpose of jurisdiction—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 14, applicability of.

The Legislature by enacting Act VI of 1905 has not only amended the Court Fees Act, but has incidentally withdrawn a class of suits from the provisions of section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act and added it to those falling under section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act. [p 105, col. 2.]

Nandan Singh v. Debi Din, 25 Ind. Cas 975; 12 A. L. J. 933; Chalasamy Ramiah v. Chalasamy Ramaswami, 13 Ind. Cas. 903; 11 M. L. T. 155; (1912) M. W. N. 199, referred to.

The valuation, therefore, for purposes of jurisdiction of a suit to recover possession of land from a tenant is not its market value under section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act or section 7, clause V(d) of the Court Fees Act, but one year's rental payable by the tenant, for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint under section 7, clause XI (cc), of the Court Fees Act. [p 105, col. 2.]

Appeals under clause 15 of the Letters Patent against the order and judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ayling, in Civil Revision Petitions Nos. 312 and 313 of 1913, reported in 24 Ind. Cas. 374, preferred against the order of the District Court of Kistna at Masulipatam in Miscellaneous Appeals Nos. 6 and 7 of 1914, (preferred against the order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Ellore, in Original Suits Nos. 18 and 19 of 1912).

NARAYASWAMI NAIDU GARU V. VENNAVALI SESHAGIRI RAO.

FACTS of the case appear clearly from the judgment.

Mr. P. Nagabhushanam, for the Appellant:—The Amending Act VI of 1905 has not the effect of withdrawing suits for the recovery of immoveable property from a tenant from the provisions of section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act. Madras Act III of 1873 is the Act of a Local Legislature and the Amending Act VI of 1905 is that of the Supreme Legislature. The Legislature may have intended that its provisions should not be affected by an Act of the Government of India Naudan Singh v. Debi Din (1), Chalasamy Ramiah v. Chalasamy Ramaswami (2).

Mr. K. S. Aravamudan Aiyangar, for the Hon'ble Mr. B. N. Sarma, for the Respondents:—Anyhow the result of Act VI of 1905 is that section 7, clause V (d) of the Court Fees Act is amended and the scope of section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act is enlarged.

JUDGMENT.

PHILLIPS, J.—The appellant brought a suit for recovery of the suit lands and for rent against a tenant and valued his suit for purposes of jurisdiction according to the market value of the land in accordance with the provisions of section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873) and section 7V (d) of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870). He accordingly presented the plaint before the Subordinate Judge, but it was returned for presentation before the District Munsif on the ground that, if valued under the provisions of section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act, the value of the suit would be below Rs. 2,500, and the question has now come up in Letters Patent Appeal as to which provision of law should be applied in valuing the suit for purposes of jurisdiction.

The Court Fees Act was amended by Act VI of 1905 and a new category of suits was added to section 7 of the Court Fees Act as clause XI (cc), i.e., for the recovery of immoveable property from a tenant. Undoubtedly the present suit comes under this category, and the effect of the amendment is to remove such a suit from section 7, clause V, to section 7, clause XI, of the Court Fees Act. All suits falling under section 7 (v) of the Court Fees Act are excluded from the provisions of section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act VII of 1887, which provides that the valuation of suits for the computation of Court-fees shall be the same as for purposes of jurisdiction. The suits excluded from the provisions of section 8 are those falling under section 7, clauses V, VI, IX and X (d) of the Court Fees Act, and until the passing of Act VI of 1905 a suit for the recovery of immoveable property from a tenant would not have been valued in accordance with section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act, but in accordance with section 14 of the Civil Courts Act. Section 14 has not been expressly repealed and the only question we have to determine now is, whether it has been impliedly repealed by Act VI of 1905 in respect of suits under section 7 XI (cc). This latter Act is only an amendment of the Court Fees Act, and only incidentally affects the Suits Valuation Act by creating a new category of suits falling under section 8 of that Act, and impliedly removing such suits from the provisions of section 14 of the Madras Civil Courts Act. In the Suits Valuation Act it is expressly laid down in section 6 that when rules are framed under section 3, section 14 of the Civil Courts Act shall be repealed. From this it is obvious that the Suits Valuation Act, when passed, was not intended to repeal section 14 until a certain event happened, and that event has not happened, but by enacting Act VI of 1905 the Legislature has not only amended the Court Fees Act, but has incidentally withdrawn a certain class of suits, the one under consideration, from the provisions of section 14, Civil Courts Act, and added it to those falling under section 8 of the Suits Valuation Act. Whether the Legislature intended Act VI of 1905 to have this effect or not, it is clear that the effect has been caused, and consequently the law must be deemed to have been changed by the later enactment. The fact that the Civil Courts Act is an Act applicable only to the Presidency of Fort St. George, whereas the amending Act applies to the whole of India, does not in my opinion affect the question, for the greater contains the less, and the law laid down in the amending Act is applicable to Madras as well as to other parts of India. The ruling reported as Chalasamy Ramiah

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 975; 12 A. L. J. 933

(2) 13 Ind. Cas. 903; 11 M. L. T. 155; (1912) M. W. N. 199.

SUKRAMANIA PILLAI V. KUPPAMMAL.

v. Chalasamy Ramaswami (2) has very little bearing on this case, for it does not deal with section 7, clause XI (cc) and all that can be said is that some of the observations in the judgment to certain extent support appellant's line of argument. The ruling in Nandan Singh v. Debi Din (1) is if anything, against him. I would, therefore, dismiss the appeal with costs. Letters Patent Appeal No. 276 follows.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—I concur in dismissing the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEALS AGAINST ORDERS NOS. 367, 368 & 369 OF 1914.

August 11, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

SUKRAMANIA MUDALI AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

KUPPAMMAL—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sec. 1, Art. 91—Sale. Deed giving no present interest in property—Suit to set aside deed on ground of fraud—Starting point of limitation.

A suit to set aside a sale-deed on the ground of fraud, where the deed does not give any present interest in the property is within time if brought within three years from the date of the defendants' attempt to take unlawful possession of the property.

Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa, 15 M. L. J. 228; 28 M. 349, followed.

Appeals against the order of the District Court of North Arcot, in Appeal Suits Nos. 87, 88 and 113 of 1914, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Vellore, in Original Suits Nos. 360 to 362 of 1912.

Mr. W. V. Ranganayana Aiyengar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. N. S. Narasimhachariar and K. S. Ganesa Aiyar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The decision in Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa (1) is exactly in point. At this stage we are not required to examine the averments in the plaint and to say whether plaintiff can succeed in the face of the deed she had executed. The plaint sets up a case of fraud, and states that the defendants were not given any present interest in the property. The cause of action is stated to be defendants' unlawfully taking possession of the property. Therefore, (1) 28 M. 349; 15 M. L. J. 228,

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

according to the plaintiff, the necessity for suing to set aside the sale-deed arose on the attempt to take unlawful possession, which event happened within three years of the suit. The decision in Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa (1) follows an earlier ruling of this Court in Sundaram v. Sithammal (2), which has been accepted as good law in Vithai v. Hari (3); the decision of the Judicial Committee in Janki Kumwar v. Ajit Singh (4) has been considered in the Madras and Bombay cases. Our attention has not been drawn to any case in which Singarappa v. Talari Sanjivappa (1) has not been accepted. We must, therefore, dismiss the appeals with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

(2) 16 M. 311; 3 M. L. J. 144.

(3) 25 B. 78; 2 Bom. L. R. 638.

(4) 15 C. 58; 14 I. A. 148; 12 Ind. Jur. 9; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 92; Radque and Jackson's P. C. No. 99.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL CIVIL SUIT NO. 859 OF 1913.

July 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Beaman.

THE ADVOCATE GENERAL—

PLAINTIFF

versus

JIMBABAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS.

Cutchi Memons—Custom—Personal law—Hindu Law—Muhammadan Law—Presumption—Will—Gift—Request—Interpretation—Disposition of whole property, power of—Conversion to Muhammadanism, effect of—Law, uniformity and certainty of—Courts, policy of—Joint Hindu family—Power of disposition by Will—Succession and inheritance, distinction between—Custom, revocation of—Trusts and life-estates in Muhammadan Law—Evidence of members of Bar, value of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 48.

The Cutchi Memons have acquired by custom the power of disposing of the whole of their property by Will. [p. 121, col. 1; p. 148, col. 2; p. 152, col. 1.]

The Cutchi Memons have never adopted as part of their Customary Law the Hindu Law of the joint family, as a whole, or the distinction existing in that law between ancestral family, and joint family and self-acquired property. [p. 148, col. 2; p. 152, col. 1.]

The Cutchi Memons are subject by custom to the Hindu law of succession and inheritance as it would apply to the case of an intestate separated Hindu possessed of self-acquired property, and no more. [p. 148, col. 1; p. 152, col. 1.]

A Will by a Cutchi Memon recited—

(1) The executors "shall out of my 'punji' set apart three lacs," etc., "shall spend according to law the said sum or certain portions thereof in connection with some good works of charity in such manner as they may think just and proper such as sanitarium, suvaddkhana (lying-in-hospital), musafarkhana (resting house for travellers), madressas (schools), scholarships,

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMBABAI.

dharamshalas, medical dispensaries, etc., (i. e.), in connection with any such khaicat (that is, charity work), that is in connection with such different works of charity."

(2) "Should no son be born to me agreeably to what is written above or should (one) be born (and) should (he) die without leaving a son or heir, . . . then as regards my whatever 'panji' there may be left, they shall utilize the whole of the said 'panji' or portions thereof in such manner as they in their discretion think proper in connection with the above-mentioned or any other good works of 'khaicat' (charity):"

Held, that the Will was a good and valid Will in all respects, and that the bequests to charity were neither void for uncertainty nor bad under the Muhammadan Law as offending against the radical principle that a gift must be made in presenti and not conditioned in futuro. [p. 152, col. 1.]

On conversion to Muhammadanism, converts, no matter what their previous religion may have been, must be taken at that moment to have renounced all their former religious and personal law in so far as the latter flowed from and was inextricably bound up with their religion, and to have substituted for it the religion of Muhammad with so much of the personal law as necessarily flows from that religion. [p. 111, col. 2.]

The Wills of Cutchi Memons must be interpreted, where interpretation is necessary, in the light of the Muhammadan rather than of the Hindu Law. Where, therefore, it is a question whether a devise by a Cutchi Memon is good or bad, the answer must depend upon whether it conforms in essentials with the requirements of the Muhammadan Law of gift. [p. 149, col. 2; p. 116, cols. 1 & 2; p. 115, col. 2; p. 121, col. 1.]

A Court should rather look to uniformity of legal decisions than to nice logical or philosophical accuracy. Policy requires that there should be continuity in legal decisions, for nothing can be worse than keeping the law in perpetual uncertainty and so perhaps unsettling titles which have for many years been supposed to be thoroughly sound and marketable. [p. 148, col. 2.]

Muhammadans must, in the first instance, be presumed to be governed by the Muhammadan Law. [p. 109, col. 2; p. 115, col. 1.]

Bequests by Will are after all only gifts to take effect upon the death of the donor, and as such originally belong to the law of gift. [p. 116, col. 1.]

The power of disposing by Will of a man's property can have no logical connection whatever with the Hindu Law of the joint family. [p. 109, col. 2; p. 110, col. 2.]

Obiter.—As the adoption of a custom is by the volition of the party adopting, so it is equally in their volition to abandon any such custom and once again place themselves strictly under their proper unmodified law. [p. 112, col. 1.]

The distinction of the English Law between succession and inheritance does not exist in India. [p. 112, cols. 1 & 2.]

Trusts are utterly unknown to the Muhammadan Law and so, too, is the power of creating a succession of life-estates. [p. 116, col. 1.]

Quere.—Whether the making of Wills is part of the law of succession and inheritance? [p. 110, col. 1; p. 148, col. 2.]

Quere.—Whether on the question of sects of Muhammadans having adopted special customs of the Hindu Law, the opinion of the Bar is relevant under section 48 of the Indian Evidence Act? [p. 116, col. 2; p. 117, col. 1.]

FACTS.—A Cutchi Memon of Bombay died possessed of a very large estate, the major part of which was ancestral. About six months before his death he made a Will by which he bequeathed his whole property, self-acquired as well as ancestral, to

(1) charity;

(2) his mother, widow, two sisters, one sister's son and the other sister's daughter, all of whom survived the testator.

The Will recited inter alia:

The executors "shall out of my 'panji' set apart three lacs", etc., "shall spend according to law the said sum or certain portions thereof in connection with some good works of charity, in such manner as they may think just and proper, such as hospitals, sanitarium, samaradkhana (lying-in-hospital), musafar-khana (resting house for travellers), madressas (schools), scholarships, dharamshalas, medical dispensaries, etc., i. e., in connection with any such 'khaicat' (that is, 'charity' work), that is, in connection with such different works of charity." (Clause 24.)

"I have no issue now whatever, as written above, but should hereafter, by the grace of God, any children be born of the womb of my present wife, or should I hereafter publicly marry another lady of my caste and creed according to the custom of my caste and creed and should any children be born of her womb hereafter, and should daughters be so born to me, I direct... shall set apart a sum of rupees one lac for each of my daughters, and they shall," etc. (Clause 25.)

"Should any son or sons be born to me agreeably to what is written above by my present or any other wife," etc., "then after paying, etc., my said son alone shall become the owner thereof should I have only one son, or my said sons shall become the owners thereof in equal shares should I have more than one, . . . but should any son whatever of mine die without leaving a child after his marriage but before attaining the age of eighteen years, his brother or brothers shall become his heir or heirs and should such deceased son have no brothers, then, under the circumstances first mentioned, the whole share of the deceased or, under the circumstances secondly mentioned, his remaining share shall be included in my remaining 'punji' and the same shall be utilized in 'khairat' (charity) in accordance with what I have hereinafter written." (Clause 26.)

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBARAI.

"They shall utilize the whole of the said 'punji' or portion thereof in such manner as they, in their discretion, think proper in connection with the above-mentioned or any other good works of 'khairat' (charity)." (Clause 27.)

On account of a disagreement between the executors the provision of the Will relating to charity was not fully complied with. Therefore, the Advocate-General of Bombay filed an Administration suit, impleading all the legatees as defendants.

Mr. Bahadurji (Advocate-General) and Mr. Taraporevala, for the Plaintiff.

Messrs. Wadia and Mulla, for Defendant No. 1.

Messrs. Inverarity and Kanga, for Defendant No. 2.

Messrs. Bahadurji and Davar, for Defendants Nos. 3 and 4.

Messrs. Jinnah and Campbell, for Defendant No. 5.

Messrs. Setalvad and Desai, for Defendant No. 7.

JUDGMENT.—The substantial questions to be answered here are: (1) whether a Cutchi Memon is entitled to dispose of more than one-third of his property by Will; (2) whether certain bequests to charity in this Will are void or are good and valid bequests. Implied in these questions is a consideration of the long-standing controversy as to the precise extent to which the sect of Cutchi Memons is governed, not by the Muhammadan, but by the Hindu Law.

When the case came on for trial, it was hoped that it might be made a test case for the settlement of several points upon which a difference of opinion still exists in the mixed law administered by this High Court to the two sects of Khojas and Cutchi Memons; and it was with that object in view that all the learned Counsel concerned spared no efforts to collect and bring before the Court all available material and directed their arguments to an extensive and searching survey of this entire field of law.

Ever since Sir Erskine Perry's famous judgment delivered in the year 1847 in what what is commonly known as the Khojas Memon's case, Hirbae v. Sonubae (1) it had become almost customary in this Court to treat these two sects as though they were on precisely the same footing and must necessarily be governed to the same extent by the mixed law declared by one decision after another to be applicable to them. In the course of the trial it became clear that however the questions directly in issue be approached, the evidence confined to practices and customs of the Khojas could not really be relevant. Assuming that the Court had to enquire here into an alleged custom of the Cutchi Memon sect its decision will have to be given upon evidence that such a custom had universally prevailed and been long established not amongst the Khojas, but amongst the Cutchi Memons. Nor could the mere fact that evidence was forthcoming to show that a similar custom has been adopted by the Khoja community make that evidence relevant in this case. It is perhaps unfortunate that the expectations, with which the trial was entered upon, have so far been frustrated, that the judgment can declare no more than what is shown to be the law governing the powers of Cutchi Memons to dispose of their property by Will. It is further to be noted that notwithstanding the habit of regarding the Khojas and Cutchi Memons as in all respects identical for the purposes of such a discussion, they are really distinguishable upon broad theoretical grounds which might have, if they have not had, practical consequences. While there are many peculiar features in the sectarianism of the Khojas, strongly marking them off from orthodox Muhammadanism the Cutchi Memons, except for the alleged historical fact that they were originally Hindus and were converted four hundred or five hundred years ago to Muhammadanism, are, at the present day, strict and good Moslems. In a recent case of Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2), I examined the whole case-law touching both the Khojas and the Cutchi Memons critically and, I think, exhaustively. It was a great satisfaction to me to find that Macleod, J., is in entire agreement with the conclusions then reached. In a very recent case of

(1) (1847) Perry's O. C. 10; 4 Ind. Dec. (o. s.); 100ⁱ 2 Mor. Dig. 431.

(2) 22 Ind. Cas. 195; 15 Bom. L. R. 1044; 38 B. 449.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

Mangaldas v. Abdul Razak (3), that learned Judge had to deal with a cognate point indirectly arising out of the general proposition, which must be said to have been established by the decisions of this Court, that the Khojas and Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law in all matters of simple succession and inheritance. I think that Macleod, J.'s judgment in that case is theoretically correct and draws more than one very necessary distinction. The very same questions indirectly arise here, as, I think, they always must, until this Court has decided much more clearly than it ever yet has done within what limits the practical application of the proposition I have just cited must be confined; for it is obvious that in considering the testamentary capacity of a Cutchi Memon the Court will almost necessarily be brought at once into contact with the legal notions peculiar to the law of the joint Hindu family. I think it will be convenient to incorporate the whole of my judgment in the case of Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2) by reference here. It would be mere idle waste of time and vain repetition to cover the ground again; and such criticism as has been directed against parts of that judgment in the present argument has only confirmed me in the conviction that it is substantially accurately reasoned and lays down correct conclusions. In minor points it might require modification here and there in the light of the fuller information given me during this trial regarding the procedure and details of the cases tried before Sir Erskine Perry in 1847 and Scott, J., in 1885. But as a critique raisonnee of the manner in which the legal doctrine grew in this High Court and came to be accepted by succeeding Judges and the profession generally, I still entirely adhere to it. It has been a source of great satisfaction to me that in the course of his able and interesting argument, the oldest, greatest and by far the most experienced Advocate of this High Court at the present time more than once admitted the general correctness of my reasoning throughout my judgment in the case of Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2). He said that it had been his own view as far back as 1885 when he advanced it tentatively before Scott, J., in the case of Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4). But he thought it was now much too late to undo what had already been done and had endured through these years into a settled doctrine of the Court and the accepted rule of practice with the profession. To that extent I am prepared to agree with Mr. Inverarity.

Speaking broadly, in dealing with any case of this kind arising among the Khojas or Cutchi Memons, I feel myself bound to start from the proposition that these sects are governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance, but looking to what I still cannot help thinking the very loose and often very inaccurate manner in which that doctrine came to be established, I should insist on confining it within the narrowest permissible limits. Take, for example, the case tried by Scott, J., in 1885. There, as here, the question was as to the extent of the testamentary capacity of a Cutchi Memon. The learned Judge appears to have started actually with what I conceive to be the correct general proposition that Muhammadans must, in the first instance, be presumed to be governed by the Muhammadan Law; but, as he proceeded, as far as I can see, not upon evidence, but upon the case-law, to substitute the presumption that in all matters of succession and inheritance they were governed by the Hindu Law, the first presumption was in the case he actually had to try merely nugatory and need not have been stated. Enlarging his second proposition to an extent which I have endeavoured to show is not logically legitimate, he also presumed the existence amongst the Cutchi Memons of a very special feature of the law of the joint Hindu family; and he appears to have thrown on the party alleging that a Cutchi Memon had a right to dispose of his property by Will the burden of proving that that right included ancestral as well as self-acquired property. But the power of disposition by Will, as a general legal notion, can have nothing whatever to do with the very special notion of ancestral property as an integral part of the law of the joint Hindu family. The question really was not whether a Cutchi Memon could prove as special custom that he had the right of disposing by Will of joint ancestral family property, but a totally different question, viz., whether the Hindu concept of the joint Hindu family had been adopted as a custom amongst the Cutchi Memons. The onus of proof, had the question been rightly stated, would then have been on the party alleging that the Cutchi Memons had adopted, as a custom, the whole law of the joint Hindu family. Nothing of that kind has ever been admitted. Nor does it follow from the proposition that the Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance that they are also governed by the whole law of the joint Hindu family. As I pointed out in my judgment in Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2) it is extremely difficult, if indeed not impossible, to disentangle parts of the concept of the joint Hindu family from what might otherwise be called the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance. It may be doubted whether the making of a Will is, in strictness, part of the law of simple succession and inheritance. It has been strongly contended in this case that it must be so; and while I am prepared to accede, subject to reservations, to that contention, I should still insist upon imposing upon it very definitive limitations. In the first place, as I stated in summarising my analysis of the case-law in my judgment in Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2), I think that logically the very loose general proposition should be thus qualified, that the Khojas and Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance as in the case of a separated Hindu disposing of his self-acquired property. Subject to that qualification, the rule would not be open to any very serious theoretical and to no practical objection at all. But as soon as it is supposed to imply other Hindu notions peculiar to the law of the joint Hindu family, it is open to both theoretical and practical objections of the most serious kind: theoretical, because the rule can only be said to rest upon proved customs, and no custom of this kind has ever been alleged, let alone proved; practical, because no Cutchi Memon or Khoja could ever then dispose of his property without the risk of having his Will attacked on the ground that the property disposed of was joint family property or joint ancestral family property. The nucleus doctrine would come into play and the door would be opened to interminable inquiries as to the remote origin of the testator's wealth. I have said that, rigorously analysed, the power of disposing by Will of a man's property can have no logical connection whatever with the Hindu Law of the joint family. Just as in the case of a gift inter vivos, so a man can only dispose by Will of that which is his own. According to the very special and artificial concept of the joint Hindu family, no member of it can say that any part of his common wealth is his own. There can never, therefore, be any question of disposing of the joint family property either by Will or by gift inter vivos. But in the case of Muhammadans, who may have adopted from the Hindus the custom of disposing of their property by Will, it does not follow that any such difficulties need arise. Eliminate the notion of the joint Hindu family, and all the property which has come to a man from his father, although he might have children of his own, would, under the Muhammadan Law or any other than the Hindu Law, be his own to dispose of as he chose. Before, then, the power of disposition by Will could be controlled by the law of the joint Hindu family, it would be essential to prove that the testator had adopted the custom of the joint Hindu family and if it were found that he had disposed of the property which, under that law, would be joint family property, the result would be that his Will was pro tanto bad, simply because he had given away what was not his own. Observe further that as long as a joint Hindu family is in existence there can, strictly speaking, be no question of succession or inheritance at all. If then the result of the long series of cases in this High Court were no more than to establish a custom amongst the Khojas and Cutchi Memons in virtue of which they can be said to be governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance, that custom ex vi terminorum must lie wholly outside the law of the Hindu joint family. Under the strict Muhammadan Law power to dispose of the property by Will is restricted to one third. Muhammadans claiming to have adopted the custom giving them larger powers of disposition from the Hindu Law might well prove that they had in consonance so far with that law customarily disposed of their whole property; and yet may also prove, attempt or desire to prove, that in any other respects they had not adopted the law of the Hindu joint family. In fact, as I have just said, so far from the latter being a necessary corollary to the former, it is, when closely scrutinised, properly antithetical to it.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JIMBAHAL.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMRABAI.

Looking back over the cases decided by Sir Erskine Perry and Scott, J., I think it must be admitted now that the evidence in the former case went far beyond the scope of the question which alone fell to be determined. Taking the case of the daughters, for example, I believe Sir Erskine Perry really meant to find that a custom had been proved showing that the parties had virtually adopted the whole Hindu Law; or perhaps it will be more correct to say that he believed the evidence to prove that in spite of their conversion they had always substantially retained that law, and the special custom with which alone he was concerned was proved rather in derogation of the Hindu than of the Muhammadan Law; for, unless he had also meant to find in the case before him that all the parties concerned constituted a joint Hindu family, the exclusion of the daughters would have been as repugnant to the Hindu as to the Muhammadan Law. In the case before Scott, J., nearly 40 years later, the trial again appears to me to have proceeded on the presumption that many of the characteristic features of the law of the Hindu joint family had been adopted by the Cutchi Memons and very likely had those trials been more rigorously (I mean more rigorously in the logical sense) conducted, some such result might have been obtained. But in view of what was actually in controversy, I cannot help thinking that the results were unsatisfactory. I think it still remains impossible to say that in any single case reported in our law books up to the present day has it been alleged that either the Khojas or the Cutchi Memons have adopted by special custom the whole law of the joint Hindu family. Doubtless it has always run through the minds of the numerous eminent and learned Judges, who had to try this question in various forms, that these two sects of the Khojas and Cutchi Memons were originally Hindus. They, therefore, appeared to have found it a very easy inference that in spite of their conversion to Muhammadanism they should have preserved their whole original personal law. But while such an inference might be used as lightening the burden of proof, it could not properly, in my opinion, be made the ground for such large conclusions as have been drawn from it. On conversion to Muhammadanism, converts, no matter what their previous religion may have been, must be taken at that moment to have renounced all their former religious and personal law in so far as the latter flowed from and was inextricably bound up with their religion, and to have substituted for it the religion of Muhammad with so much of the personal law as necessarily flows from that religion. Thus, when the Khojas and the Cutchi Memons were converted, I take it to be an universally true proposition that, in the eye of the law, they then became subject, in every respect, to the Muhammadan and not to the Hindu Law. Whatever may have happened later, there was at the time a break, a new starting point, from which all their legal relations must be re-adjusted. Remembering that these two sects were surrounded by their former Hindu co-religionists and were living frequently in a Hindu Raj with access only to Courts presided over and administered by Hindu Judges, it is extremely probable, apart from all other considerations that they should gradually have re-adopted much of their old law, not indeed as law but in the form of custom. It is quite possible that that process went very far, probably two or three centuries ago, when these people were few and, for the most part, poor. It cannot, however, be denied that in the case of both the sects, their adherence to Muhammadanism has withstood anything like a complete re-incorporation with their former Hindu co-religionists. I have pointed out in my judgment in Jan Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2) how intimately connected the whole theory of the joint Hindu family is with radical religious concepts, and for that reason if the Muhammadanism of these people was at any time a real religion, something more than an empty name, I do not see how it is possible that they could have reverted completely to the old Hindu family system. Many features they may have adopted, and probably did adopt, from it. This, I think, is quite evident from the depositions of the witnesses examined in the earlier cases. But the later tendency has been, I think, in the direction of stricter adherence to the Muhammadan and completer severance from the Hindu Law. In this connection it must never be forgotten, what was tersely stated by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Abraham v. Abraham (5), that inasmuch as the adoption of a custom is by the volition of the parties adopting, so it is equally in their volition to abandon any such custom and once again place themselves strictly under their proper unmodified law. If that is the correct legal view, it will follow that in the case before me I have to consider whether the Cutchi Memons have proved a custom authorising them to make Wills, and, if so, what are the limits of that custom. Along with this question will have to be considered the further, though quite distinct, question whether they have also been proved to have adopted the law of the joint Hindu family. For, if the last question be answered in the affirmative, then the quantum of the property of which they might dispose by Will might be very different in any given case.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

It will be observed that the sixteenth issue has been designedly worded in rather curious form, inviting the Court to decide whether the testamentary powers of a Cutchi Memon are not those of a Hindu; that is to say, impliedly, whether a Cutchi Memon is liable to certain disabilities in disposing of his wealth which attach to a Hindu under the law of the joint Hindu family. And it is the implication, I think, rather than what is expressed in the issue that the parties to this case feel to be of primary importance. Let me then consider a little more closely in what sense and how far making Wills can be said to be a part of the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance. Looking to our own Succession Act, which is largely concerned with devises, it cannot be doubted that, speaking loosely at any rate, Wills in the contemplation of lawyers belong to the law of succession and inheritance. Is there then any distinction between succession and inheritance? At the present day probably none of practical importance. Viewed historically, succession was a term probably confined to moveables and inheritance to immoveable property; and under the old law of England different persons would succeed or inherit, respectively. It is difficult, however, to find any ground for such a distinction in this country. There is no common law of India in the same sense in which there is a common law of England. In dealing with Hindus and Muhammadans, where they are not expressly governed by Statutes, the business of the Courts is to apply to them, as far as possible, their own law. It is only where their own law does not apply and they are not under Statute that the Courts turn to the common law of England, or govern their decisions by what is very generally termed, the principles of equity and good conscience. Admitting that Wills belong more properly to the law of succession and inheritance than to any quite distinct law of their own, the question is not yet completely answered. In the first place, the power of disposing of property by Will is no more peculiar to the Hindu than to the Muhammadan Law. On the contrary it is in the latter system that we find more positive restrictions placed upon the disposing power, and apparently more definite ideas formulated in legal rules. For the purposes of the present enquiry what has to be considered is: (1) the Muhammadan rule prohibiting a man from disposing of more than one-third of his property by Will; (2) the limitation imposed upon the disposing power of individuals under the Hindu Law arising out of the legal conception of the estate of a Hindu joint family. I am not now concerned with further technical qualifications and conditions to be found in the Muhammadan Law of Wills. I have stated the main distinction in the most general terms. And, so stated, this at least becomes apparent, that what is in controversy really has nothing to do with the making of Wills qua Wills, but with what under the Hindu system defines the property which is a man's own and, therefore, capable of being devised by him. This is what is really meant by the plaintiff in this suit, who wishes to prove that the disposing power of

(5) 9 M. I. A. 195; 1 W. R. (P. C.) 1; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 591; 2 Ser. P. O. J. 10; 19 E. R. 716.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL C. JIMBABAI.

a Cutchi Memon is in all respects that of a Hindu. But before such a proposition can be established, those contending for it must prove that the Cutchi Memons have adopted the law which embodies the concept of joint family property. And here I should like to add a few observations upon what I have stated a little more generally in the opening part of this judgment. When I said that no such custom as that of having adopted the entire law of the joint Hindu family had ever been alleged, much less proved, in our Courts, I am not to be supposed to have overlooked what appears to have been in controversy, the procedure adopted and the conclusions reached in such cases as those of Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) and Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy (6). The latter is a Khoja case. In the latter case a son sued his father for partition. Both the parties appear to have gone to trial upon the footing that the law of the joint Hindu family had been accepted as part of the Customary Law of the sect to which they belonged. In the first Court, the trial was, therefore, principally directed to ascertaining whether the property in suit was ancestral or self-acquired. On appeal, however, the case was decided on a narrower ground suggesting a reversion to an earlier stage of the law, in which it still lay upon Muhammadans alleging themselves to have adopted any peculiar feature of the Hindu law to prove it. Merely expressing obiter an opinion as to the character of the property in suit, the Appeal Court held that the parties had not proved that their sect had adopted so much of the Hindu Law of the joint family as would entitle a son to demand partition of his father. I am not here concerned with the reasoning by which that conclusion was reached. The only comment I need make upon it is that it involves much of that large process of inference, unsupported by direct proof, which has characterised the whole long course of litigation affecting in this respect the Khoja and Cutchi Memon sects. Further, if the Khojas had really, as appears to have been taken for granted, adopted the rest of the law of the Hindu joint family, while they had not adopted that part of it which gives the son a right to enforce partition against his father, it is obvious that the resultant system amongst them must be radically different from the recognised system prevailing among the Hindus under the Hindu Law of the joint family. It is an essential feature of that law that every member of the joint Hindu family takes an interest in the joint family property at birth; and it is a correlate of that proposition that a member invested with such rights can, if at the head of his stirp, enforce it by partition. The broad principle, perfectly clear and intelligible in itself, became obscured in the controversy arising upon the right of a son to enforce partition between his father and his uncles. Partition in a Hindu joint family being always per stirpes, such a right would conflict with the fundamental principles upon which the whole system rests. And it appears to me that there is very little relevance in introducing the divergent opinions of Judges upon such a point into a consideration of a much wider and simpler proposition. I do not know that in this Presidency any doubt exists as to the right of a son to enforce partition of joint family property against his father; and as I pointed out in my judgment in San Mahomed v. Datu Jaffar (2), the Privy Council have emphatically insisted upon the correlation of the two rights, that is to say, acquiring an interest by birth and enforcing it by partition, as being inseparable from, and complementary of, each other making up the basic principle of this part of the law of the joint family. By introducing such a variant as that the son amongst the Khojas has not the right to enforce partition during his father's life-time, the radical difference between any such law of the Hindu joint family as the Khojas may really have adopted and that law as it exists in its complete form amongst the Hindus, has been established. Nor is it always possible to say that the customary law of these people in respect of the legal concept of the joint family is the same as the Hindu Law. The point is of capital importance because it indicates that similar radical divergences might be, and probably would be, found, had the question ever been specifically raised between the customary law of the Khojas and Memons,

(6) 13 B. 534.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMBAHAI.

and the Hindu Law regarding the distinctions drawn in the latter between joint ancestral, joint family and self-acquired property. And what I was insisting upon in my general observations was that neither amongst the Khojas nor the Cutchi Memons is any reported case to be found in which a party has expressly alleged that the Hindu Law of the joint family, containing the peculiar legal concept of the joint ancestral or joint family property, has ever been adopted by these sects. On the contrary, in the two cases I have mentioned, it has been assumed, and assumed merely inferentially from the earlier decisions, that such wholesale adoption of the complicated Hindu Law of the joint family had been made by both the Cutchi Memons and the Khojas. In the case before Scott, J., the question again turned directly upon the character of the property alleged to have been disposed of by the impugned Will; and again it was taken for granted that if it was ancestral, the burden of proving that the testator had power of disposing of it lay upon the party so alleging. Now, it is obvious that the same kind of inquiry might as well be entered into in the case of any English Will, once a presupposition is made that if the property disposed of complies with certain requirements it also gains a peculiar legal character. An enormous percentage of property disposed of by English Wills in England might be shown to be ancestral family property, in the sense that it has come into the hands of the testator under conditions which in Hindu Law would imprint that character upon it; but it would be absurd to say that, unless it could also be shown that the English Law had adopted the concept of the Hindu joint family, the resulting corresponding legal consequences from the facts proved arose. That is a point which I wish to emphasise. If it had not been virtually assumed by the Courts that amongst the Khojas and Cutchi Memons, property falling within the definition of ancestral family property or joint family property in the Hindu Law also acquired the peculiar characteristics given to it under the special law of the joint Hindu family, there would have been no point at all in the enquiries made by the Courts in the two cases I have mentioned.

To this the answer would naturally be, that unless the parties themselves had been fully aware that their sects had adopted the whole Hindu Law of the joint family, they would never have gone to trial on the issues raised in these cases. That answer is plausible but, in my opinion, not conclusive. As regards the particular contestants their admissions might suffice, but the admissions of parties in any given case would hardly be an adequate equivalent for that strict and elaborate proof which the law requires when such special custom is set up and disputed in derogation of the general law governing litigants. I have also pointed out in my previous judgment that forty years after Sir Erskine Perry's decision in the Khojas and Memons' case (1) it would have been virtually impossible for any member of these sects to obtain legal advice at this Bar except upon the footing that they were, to all intents and purposes, Hindus and not Muhammadans. That opinion had struck deep roots and no doubt gathered some support from the nature of the evidence recorded before Sir Erskine Perry, confirmed by the long and virtually settled practice on the Ecclesiastical Side of the Court, and it is indisputable that long before 1885 the Courts and the whole profession here had settled down to the unshakeable belief that the decisions of the Court had firmly established the rule that the Khojas and Cutchi Memons were, in respect of their entire family system, Hindus and not Muhammadans. I have already criticised the value of the long-established practice on the Ecclesiastical Side of the Court and it would be waste of time to repeat that criticism here. I still think that far too much importance was attached to those materials in every case in which they were referred to. It probably is true that when such questions first came before this High Court a very large number of Khojas and Cutchi Memons were saturated with Hindu notions regarding the law of the joint family. They would be predisposed to accept the decisions of the Courts as interpreted by the profession generally and so gradually habituate themselves to the belief that in law, at any rate, rather owing to the decisions of the Court than any volition of their own,

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

they were subject to the whole law of the joint Hindu family. In the course of the argument here, it has frequently been said that my former judgment insisted too much upon this law having been forced upon the reluctant sects of the Khojas and Cutchi Memons by the Judges and the profession. In 1847 I do not think that either sect would have thought it a very serious hardship had the Courts decided that in the eye of the law they were Hindus and not Muhammadans. The Courts never did decide anything of the kind; but I concede that, on the evidence before him, Sir Erskine Perry probably thought that the Khojas and Cutchi Memons had virtually retained the whole of their domestic and personal law as distinct from religion. No one could then have foreseen the length to which the judgments in those cases would afterwards be carried. And it is no doubt true to some extent, as contended by Mr. Inverarity in this case, that the most serious grievance which the Khojas and Cutchi Memons now have is, not that they have been placed definitely under the Hindu Law, but that they are perpetually being called upon to prove this or that custom in derogation both of the Muhammadan and of the Hindu Law. They stand now in the unfortunate position of being governed in many most important relations in life neither by the Hindu nor by the Muhammadan Law. Legally their condition is one more or less of chaos and that undoubtedly has been brought about by the loose and often inaccurate reasoning and wide inferential processes upon which I have commented in my criticism of the case-law. Had that law been constructed step by step as each case came before the Courts by strict logical process, always starting from the first presumption that, as Muhammadans, these people were governed by the Muhammadan Law, and any alleged custom in derogation of it must be proved, the result might have been, and I think it would probably have been, very different. In a sense then I do think that this law has been forced upon the Khojas and Cutchi Memons by the Courts and the profession, although it is arguable whether during the process, at any rate in its earlier stages, the bulk of the communities realized what was going on, or took any strong objection to it. As they increased in wealth and intelligence, however, indications are not wanting of some resentment at being thus compelled to appear in the Courts as Hindus rather than Muhammadans. The Cutchi Memons, with whom I am presently concerned, are undoubtedly good Moslems and feel deeply the imputations cast upon them by their co-religionists on account of the length they have gone, or are supposed to have gone, in substituting the Hindu Law of the joint family for the laws of the Quran. Speaking of the Quran, I may note in passing that the restrictions imposed upon the power of a Muhammadan to bequeath more than one-third of his property by Will are not to be found in the Quran at all. Yet this has been so long an integral part of their own Muhammadan Law and is supposed to be based upon a view of family obligation and duty approved by the Prophet, that any departure from it now can hardly be altogether dissociated from the profoundly religious sentiment which forms the basis of and interpenetrates the whole of the systems of the Muhammadan and the Hindu Law respectively. In this connection another point also arises. Assuming that the Cutchi Memons have adopted and proved the custom of making Wills at present of their whole property, are such Wills to be interpreted by the Muhammadan or the Hindu Law? Upon this point, I believe, no considered judgment is to be found in our Courts. I was told in the course of the argument that in a very recent case Macleod, J., had held that a Khoja Will must be construed by reference to the Muhammadan Law. I am strongly inclined to the same opinion. I see no solid ground for holding that even if a larger power of disposition had been acquired by the Khojas or the Cutchi Memons than they would ordinarily have under the Muhammadan Law, that law, nevertheless, should not govern all the dispositions they make in exercise of that enlarged power. Assuming for a moment that, apart from the question of joint family property, which, as I said, lies outside the scope of the law of Wills altogether, different constructions and different effects would have to be put upon and given to bequests under the Hindu and Muhammadan Law, then in the absence of proof of custom in each particular case, I should still hold that Memons' Wills must be interpreted and construed under the Muhammadan and not the Hindu Law. And I think that the Courts would be slow to encourage attempts to prove interminable variant customs of this kind even where the Khojas and Cutchi Memons are themselves desirous of setting them up. I entertain some doubt whether the point really has much practical importance. It is true that the Courts appear to have conceded much more liberal powers for creating various estates by Will to Hindus than Muhammadans. But I am not aware that the distinction rests upon any solid theoretical ground. Bequests by Will are after all only gifts to take effect upon the death of the donor, and as such originally belonged to the law of gift. The Muhammadan Law is much more precise in detail in dealing with gifts than the Hindu Law. And that is probably why the Courts have regarded a Muhammadan's testamentary power more jealously than that of a Hindu. But in every civilized society which has attained the point of recognizing general principles of law, however crude and elementary these may now appear, the theory of gift is originally much the same. As social relations become more complicated and require a more complex system of law, various elaborate and artificial enlargements of the simple power of gift make their appearance. I think, however, that it would be untrue to say that anything in the least corresponding with such highly evolved and extended powers as are to be found at the present day in the English Law, can be discovered in the authoritative legal writings either of the Hindus or of the Muhammadans. Trusts, for example, are, as I have had occasion to say in more than one judgment, utterly unknown to the Muhammadan Law. So, too, is the power of creating a succession of life-estates. My own conviction is that such powers were equally unknown to the early Hindu law-givers. All these, in effect, have been the creations of the English Courts, and the fact that they have been more loosely and widely extended to Hindus than to Muhammadans is probably due, as I have just said, not to any inherent difference of principle to be found in the pronouncements of the early law-givers, but in the fact that the Muhammadans were much more precise and fuller in enunciating limitations upon the power of gift. If, however, there is any valid legal distinction to which effect ought to be given between the powers of Muhammadans and Hindus in regard to the creation of artificial estates by Will, I should say unhesitatingly that no matter what other Hindu customs the Cutchi Memons may or may not have adopted, every Will they make must be interpreted, for the purposes of ascertaining the validity or otherwise of bequests therein contained, according to the Muhammadan, and not the Hindu Law.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JINERAI.

In this case, for the first time, an attempt has been made to prove that the Cutchi Memons have adopted the Hindu Law of the joint family virtually in its entirety; that is to say, that they recognise the peculiar quality given to joint family property by the Hindu lawyers. Further, it is sought to prove that they have adopted, as a custom, the power of disposing of the whole of their own property by Will. The burden of proving both these points, notwithstanding the previous decisions of the Courts, clearly still lies, in my opinion, upon the parties so alleging. I have, therefore, now to consider the evidence laid before me with the object of ascertaining whether it discharges all the requirements imposed by the highest judicial authority upon parties setting up special family, tribal, or local custom in derogation of their general law. The evidence naturally breaks up into three main groups: (1) the Wills, Exhibits B, B1 to B101; (2) the oral testimony of the leading Cutchi Memons; (3) the opinion of the so-called experts. As to the latter, Mr. F. E. Dinshah and Mr. Inverarity, for example, I entertain considerable doubt whether it is relevant at all under section 48 of the Indian Evidence Act. Certainly, in the case of Mr. Dinshah, even if it be relevant, it can be of little or no value. Doubtless, in questions of this kind, the

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

Courts in England have always given respectful attention to the long-established practice of the profession and the opinion of eminent Counsel, as, for example, upon points of conveyancing. But where it is, as here, a question of sects of Muhammadans having adopted special customs of the Hindu Law, I feel very great doubt whether it can logically be said that even so eminent and experienced a Counsel as Mr. Inverarity is likely to know of the existence of such rights or customs. It is said that Counsel learn from their clients in the course of advising professionally of the existence or otherwise of such a right or custom as was in controversy. But I doubt very much whether that was intended by the framers of section 48. In truth, what has actually happened probably is that Mr. Inverarity's advice throughout the long period of his professional activities has done much more than any volitional act of the community themselves to imprint upon them the belief that, at any rate, for all purposes of litigation, they must accept the position of Hindus governed by the law of the joint Hindu family. Speaking for myself, I do not think that the opinion of the Bar collectively or any member of it is of any real value upon such a point. We all know what the opinion of the Bar has been, and I have endeavoured to show how it has grown up. In the course of his long and interesting argument Mr. Inverarity, notwithstanding his repeated admissions that he inclines strongly to accept the correctness of my own reasoning in the case of Jan Mahomad v. Datu Jaffar (2), yet strove strenuously to prove that the various cases I have criticized were quite rightly decided. It needs, however, only to study the cases themselves to discover the many flaws and fallacies in the reasoning more or less commonly accepted throughout the series which gave rise to conclusions thereafter wholeheartedly and unquestioningly adopted by the profession. But had the case no other importance, it would obtain a peculiar interest from the evidence given by Mr. Inverarity, in which the Court has had the benefit of much intimate and personal opinion growing out of his exceptionally long, distinguished and honourable practice at this Bar. If I seem not to attach as much weight to that evidence as its authorship might deserve, it is simply because I doubt whether it is the kind of evidence which the law requires, certainly not because I undervalue Mr. Inverarity's great personal qualities and reputation.

I will now consider the proof afforded by the Wills. These are 105 in number (five of these viz., B8, B14, B60, B65 and B80 were afterwards withdrawn) B, B1 to B101 and F, J and K. They commenced from the year 1845, Exhibit B, two years before Sir Erskine Perry's judgment. And here I may incidentally note that the practice of making Wills is not very ancient even amongst the Hindus. It may be doubted whether any true Hindu Will dates back more than one hundred years; and we have here a Muhammadan Will seventy years old. It is not, therefore, a case of the Muhammadans borrowing the custom from some ancient and well-established branch of the Hindu Law, but rather, as it would appear, small sects of Muhammadans, living under Hindu rule and surrounded by Hindus, adopting almost contemporaneously with their Hindu co-religionists an entirely new practice. This body of Wills has been carefully analysed by learned Counsels engaged on both sides, and minutely criticised in detail. The broad lines of attack and defence were: (a) that this long, consistent series of Wills disposing of the whole property proved conclusively that the Cutchi Memons had entirely abandoned the Muhammadan Law of Wills; (b) on the other hand, that an analysis of these Wills will show that they are hardly, if at all, inconsistent with the principles of the Muhammadan Law, and that a very large percentage of them might have been made consistently under that law. It is pointed out by the plaintiff, relying on these Wills, that they not only dispose of the whole property but also contain many allusions to self-acquired and joint ancestral family property. Further, that they create many estates opposed to the fundamental principles of the Muhammadan Law (and supposedly permissible under the Hindu Law). Neither of these lines of attack or defence appears to me to be very forcible. I shall, however, have to deal with this material a little more in detail.

Mr. Setalvad, on the other hand, tendered eighteen, but put in five, Wills said to have been made by orthodox Muhammadans. None of these Wills has been proved. When they were tendered, it was agreed in order to shorten the proceedings and lessen the cost, that they should be examined by the Counsel.

on the other side and, if necessary, admitted. At the close of the case, Mr. Taraporewalla said that he was not prepared to admit that some of the makers of these Wills might not belong to the classes of Muhammadans declared to be amenable to the Hindu Law by Mr. Justice Ranade in the case of Bai Baiji v. Bai Santok (7). Subject to that the Wills were allowed in, Exhibit No. 7. The suggestion is that even orthodox Muhammadans sometimes make Wills in contravention of the Muhammadan Law, although it cannot be, and never has been, inferred from that fact alone that they were in that or in any other respect subject to the Hindu Law of the joint family. The effect of the Wills put in by the plaintiff is, I think, to prove conclusively that the Cutchi Memons have adopted the custom of disposing of the whole of their property by Will. The series covers a long period and it appears to be practically uniform and consistent. To that extent, these Wills alone would, I think, be sufficient to prove the existence of the custom in derogation of the strict principles of the Muhammadan Law. The further question remains to be answered, how far, if at all, these Wills prove anything more; as, for instance, that by custom the Cutchi Memons have not actually discarded the Muhammadan Law of Wills, but have adopted the Hindu Law of the joint family. This will not be established merely by the fact that the Wills dispose of the testator's property in a manner inconsistent with the Muhammadan Law, for we have already reached the conclusion that the practice has grown up in the form of a custom in derogation of the Muhammadan Law. That being so, it is not to be expected that the societies or communities, who have intentionally abandoned so far the principle of the Muhammadan Law, feel constrained to rehabilitate it in detail by conforming, notwithstanding the practice, strictly to its precepts. This really disposes of by far the greater part of Mr. Setalvad's elaborate criticism on this part of the case. He endeavoured to show by attacking these Wills that, if in form inconsistent with the general principle of the Muhammadan Law, there was nothing in the testators' dispositions which could be taken as deliberate recognition of the whole Hindu Law. The point, however, is that every one of these Wills purports to dispose of all the disposable property of the testator. The same line of argument used by the plaintiff is equally infirm for his purposes. Nothing appears to me to be gained by showing that a great number of these Wills create series of successive estates in opposition to the principles of the Muhammadan Law of gift. Once it is conceded that the custom of disposing of the whole of the testator's property by Will has been adopted by the Cutchi Memon sect, it is idle to scrutinise too closely the manner in which such dispositions have been made or to draw inferences from the closeness with which they sometimes correspond with, or the wideness with which they sometimes diverge from, the recognised principles of the Muhammadan Law. It is, however, significant to note that seven of these Wills bequeath one-third of the property specifically and the remaining two-thirds to the testator's heirs according to the Muhammadan Law. The first of these is B29, dated the 7th July 1886, and the last is B88, dated the 26th January 1911. By 1886 just after Scott, J.'s judgment in the case of Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4), there can be little doubt but that a strong revulsion of feeling had set in amongst the better class of Cutchi Memons and that many of them much regretted the length the Courts had gone in subjecting them to the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance and so giving cause of offence to the faithful and estranging them from their more orthodox co-religionists. The Wills I have just mentioned exhibit a strong regard for the strictest Muhammadan Law, and the reason why the testators adopt the peculiar form found in these Wills doubtless was a desire to give practical effect to what they believe to be the injunctions of their religion. Nothing could well be more anomalous than their position as it was then understood in respect of this power of making Wills. It was by no means certain in the opinion of lawyers whether the Cutchi Memons could dispose of more than one-third of their property by Will. Those amongst them who were strict Muhammadans probably did not desire to do so; but they were in this dilemma: If they left two-thirds of their property undisposed of as the Muhammadan Law compelled them to do, in order that it might be distributed amongst those whom the Quran considered to have the best right to share it, the result brought about by the case-law upto that period was that the undisposed of two-thirds would be taken not by the heirs designated by the Muhammadan religion and morality, but by the heirs ascertained in accordance with the principles of the Hindu Law. It is not strange then to find some pious Cutchi Memons availing themselves of the powers of full disposition, which they appear to have been in a fair way of acquiring by custom at that period, in order to comply practically, at any rate, with the commandments of their religion. Bearing in mind the large part which volition must always play in bringing a custom into existence or allowing it to fall into desuetude, indications of this kind, just at the time when the case-law on the subject seemed likely to expand most dangerously and inimically to Muhammadan religious sentiment, are of no little value. On the other hand, the plaintiff, who relies upon these Wills to prove that the Cutchi Memon community had adopted in its entirety the Hindu Law of the joint family, points to many passages in them, in which express allusion is made to self-acquired, as opposed to ancestral, family property. Thus, in B17, dated the 26th February 1878, the testator says that the "whole is my self-acquired property." So also B31, B37, B47, B50, B53, B58, B68 and B73. Reading these nine Wills, covering a period from 1878 to 1903, it certainly appears that the testators, whether of their own initiative or under legal advice, were keeping in view the peculiar attributes of joint ancestral as distinguished from self-acquired property under the Hindu Law. It is noteworthy that the first Will in which any allusion of the kind is to be found is thirty years after the date of Sir Erskine Perry's judgment, when the doctrine of the Courts was supposed to be settled and the opinion of the Bar had long been uniformly in favour of the proposition that Cutchi Memons were, for the purposes of this argument, to all intents and purposes Hindus. Whether such indications ought to be taken as conclusive of the fact suggested is quite another question. I think, it must be admitted, that the Cutchi Memons generally were fairly alive to what was implied in the term "joint ancestral family property" as forming part of the Hindu Law of the joint family. This was only natural in view of their origin and later environment. It is quite possible that in a confused and general way they have re-adopted notions peculiar to the Hindu Law, from which at the time of their conversion and immediately thereafter they had never completely and intelligibly freed themselves. That this was done by deliberate act of volition I gravely doubt. To whatever extent the old Hindu Law of the joint family regained currency and application amongst the Cutchi Memons, it must be attributed, I should prefer to think, rather to unconscious re-absorption under pressure of the predominant Hindu environment, notions and habits long familiar, than to any conscious preference for and substitution of those notions and habits for the laws commanded by their new religion. It may indeed be doubted that either the Khojas or the Cutchi Memons were, for centuries after their conversion, thoroughly conversant with the whole of the Muhammadan Law. In the infancy of their existence they were probably not in a position to discriminate between some of the moral precepts of their new and their old religion, particularly when such were required to be practically applied in some of the most intimate relations of ordinary life. At that period too their material condition, if we may be permitted to conjecture, was probably one of almost universal poverty and insignificance. In such circumstances they might easily and unconsciously have fallen back into the old grooves of Hinduism in regulating their family life and petty personal affairs. It is quite likely that just as Muhammadans do to this day, the members of the same family lived together making no nice distinctions between the quantum of the earnings of each, and not caring to separate the personal acquisitions, such as they might have been, of every member of the family from the fund upon which they all lived. Living under such conditions they would naturally find no difficulty in believing that they were still regulated by the principles of the Hindu Law of the joint family, which would seem to be peculiarly appropriate. Nevertheless, inasmuch as they have not only retained but accentuated and heightened their religious divergence from their original co-religionists, I find it difficult to believe that they could synchronously have consented to merge so much that is essential to the Muhammadan Law in a conscious re-absorption of the Hindu Law of the joint family. By the year 1878, any Cutchi Memon making a Will must have been fully alive to the necessity of explaining that the property he purported to dispose of, was his own. In view of the strong line taken by the Courts, he could not have been ignorant of the danger attending the disposition of the whole of his property on the analogy of the Hindu Law. Still, so far approving of it as to desire an equal liberty of full disposition of his own property, he probably knew himself and, if he did not, would certainly have been advised, that if any property so disposed of had fulfilled the definition of ancestral family property in the Hindu sense, his Will purporting to dispose of it would have been pro tanto invalid. It is true that the use of such expressions would appear superfluous in the case of any one except a Hindu, subject to the law of the joint Hindu family. Even in the latter case they could be merely declaratory not carrying with them, strictly speaking, any legal consequences. The difference between a Hindu and any other person disposing of the property which had come to him from his father would be in the former case that the property was not his own to dispose of, while in the latter case it ordinarily would be. And the fact that we find in these Cutchi Memons' Wills declaratory emphasis laid on the fact that the property was not ancestral but self-acquired, certainly proves that in and after 1878, at any rate, the sect was fully aware that it was in danger of finding itself under the entire law of the joint Hindu family. That it in fact was so is conclusively proved by the course of litigation in 1885 and amongst the Khojas in 1887. I may further give by way of illustration a very recent case of Ahmedbhoy Habibbhoy v. Sir Dinshaw M. Petit (8), in which the same question was sought to be re-agitated indirectly. The suit was nominally for specific performance of a contract to buy certain property belonging to the plaintiff. Indirectly the plaintiff sought to obtain a judicial decision that the said property was his self-acquired property and that his sons had no interest in it as members of a joint undivided Hindu family. I tried that case and I refused to go into the question thus indirectly raised. But the fact that it was raised, elaborately argued, and a great deal of evidence given on it as late as 1909, shows to what extent members of the Khoja and Cutchi Memon sects are, at the present time, involved in grave uncertainties as to their legal position in the present state of the case-law. It is no exaggeration to say that the accepted notions, never clearly excogitated, developed as time went on into something like chaos as regards many incidents peculiar to the Hindu Law of the joint Hindu family, which may or may not be incorporated in the Customary Law, real or supposed, of these sects. Thus, for instance, this is the first case, nearly seventy years after Sir Erskine Perry's judgment, in which the competency of Cutchi Memons to dispose of the whole of their property by Will has ever been put directly in issue. Furthermore, it is the first case in which the much more important question, whether or not merely by implication both Khojas and Cutchi Memons are subject to the complete law of the joint Hindu family, has invited express decision. It is obviously, therefore, high time that these questions of such vital importance to the two sects, who are constantly growing in intelligence and importance, were definitely answered and their legal position clearly defined. At the present day no Khoja or Memon, and many of them have accumulated great fortunes, knows how far his property is his own, or what, if any, limits are imposed upon his power of disposing of it by Will. If it be a fact, as suggested by the five Wills put in by the other side, that orthodox Muhammadans, who have nothing whatever to do with the law of the joint Hindu family, have also been in the habit of disposing of their entire property by Will, then the inference which I am asked to draw from these 105 Wills, namely, that the mere fact of disposing of the whole property of Memons by Will connotes the adoption of the whole law of the Hindu joint family, is immediately destroyed. It is not, however, on that ground only, or, indeed, chiefly that I should refuse to accede to so much of the plaintiff's arguments. In the absence of any previous case-law on the subject, and treating the matter before me as res integra, I should not feel even pressed by the production of these Wills to the conclusion that they prove, not only a custom in the matter of making Wills opposed to the stricter Muhammadan Law, but that they prove much more, namely, that the makers had also adopted the whole law of the joint Hindu family. Nothing in them, except the language of the seven Wills, I specially noted, points to any such conclusion, and that language can, I think, be easily explained by reference to the historical origin of the sect, to circumstances in which the first centuries of their existence were passed, and, lastly, the attitude of the Courts for forty years preceding the first of them without the need of making any such violent inference. My conclusion upon this body of evidence is that it proves no more than that the Cutchi Memons have adopted the custom of disposing of the whole of their property by Will. It does not prove that they have adopted the notion of joint ancestral family property with all its legal attributes and incidents as exhibited in the law of the Hindu joint family. And indirectly it affords indications of the strong leaning towards the strict Muhammadan Law which has been enlarged in favour of the Cutchi Memon community by the adoption of their special custom.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. IMRABAI.

(8) 3 Ind. Cas. 124; 11 Bom. L. R. 545; 6 M. L. T. 200.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL C. JIMBABAI.

Before considering the oral evidence recorded in this case, I should like to make some general observations on those Wills in which it is declared that the testator is only disposing of his own self-acquired property. We have no means at the present day of ascertaining what the property was and how it was acquired. Naturally, with some knowledge of the Hindu Law of the joint family, a man who was disposing of what he knew to be ancestral family property in that sense, would declare in his Will that it was his self-acquired property whether in fact it was so or not. I expect that if the whole truth was known, an ingredient of the joint family property or joint ancestral property, as these terms are used in the Hindu Law, would be found in what was disposed of by these Wills. At any rate a great number of them must include much property to which such notions were at least potentially applicable. From the mere fact that such declarations have been thought necessary, it is at least as inferable that the testator was disposing of what under the Hindu Law of the joint family was not his own to dispose of as that he was making a simple truthful declaration of fact.

The first witness examined was Sidick Ebrahim Nakoda, who is a Cutchi Memon aged fifty-three. He is a man of no consequence or social position. He says that he sells turbans and caps, and says he keeps a very small shop and pays no income tax. He begins by saying that the Cutchi Memons will away their property as they please, sometimes the whole and sometimes a part. In answer to the Court he says that the Cutchi Memons cannot dispose of ancestral property by Will. He says that his own father made a Will of his property valued about Rs. 16,000 and that he himself was disinherited. He says that this property was self-acquired. He gives no particulars as to how his father started these self-acquisitions. He then goes on to depose to the making of Wills of large estates by Cutchi Memons. This is of no great importance. In cross-examination he says that the law of succession is included in the Quran, but the custom has gone the other way. He then goes on to explain how the custom went the other way. He says that the Cutchi Memons were originally Hindus, who were converted in Sind and migrated to Cutch. He says that they were under a Raja and if they had disputes, they had to go to the Raja's Court and they were disposed of according to the law of the Raja, i. e., the Hindu Law; and that practice was still going on. He says that they applied twice to the Sirkar to place them under the Muhammadan Law, but they failed. Speaking for himself, he says that he would prefer the law of succession laid down in the Quran, but he cannot speak for the sect generally. He says that the exclusion of wives and daughters from the succession originated in the Raja's Court. If this were really so, it must have been, I suppose, on the footing that the litigants constituted a joint Hindu family at the time. The question was then put to him:

"Do you say that the law of the Hindu joint family has been introduced into your sect by custom?

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMEABAI.

A. Yes. If there is no Will."

Then the next question:

"Do you mean to say that the law of survivorship is applicable to you?"

(After some explanation of what was meant by the law of survivorship)

"A. No. That law does not apply, because the son of a pre-deceased son takes with his uncles. The daughter does not take with the sons."

(It is clear that the witness does not understand what he is talking about here.)

"Q. Do you say that the Hindu Law of partition applies?"

A. Yes. If one dies without a Will."

He then goes on to say that the son can claim partition of ancestral family property during the life-time of his father.

"Q. Can you give a single instance of such a partition?"

A. Yes. Abdul Rahim Haji Mussa Suleiman. His son, Ibrahim, took some money and separated; he took some Rs. 60,000. That was about two years ago.

The father gave him the Rs. 60,000. Abdul Rahim was then, and still is, doing business. His son was in the business with him, a business in piece-goods.

Q. What was the ancestral property of which this Rs. 60,000 was a share?

A. That I do not know."

[It is clear that this is not necessarily an instance of partition at all, but rather of the ancient practice of portioning a son off out of his father's wealth: see the remarks of Sargent, C. J., in Ahmedbhoy Hubibbhoy v. Cusumbhoy Ahmedbhoy (6)].

Further, he says that Wills have been made for the last fifty years or sixty years, only after the community migrated to Bombay.

Reviewing the evidence of this witness, as a whole, it must be admitted that it is rather emphatic in favour of the adoption of the law of the joint Hindu family, but the man himself is hardly of a character to command much confidence. Many of his answers in cross-examination suggest that he has not fully appreciated all that is involved in his earlier statements. It is not definitely so stated in his evidence, but I suppose he has spent the whole of his life in Bombay; so that he has naturally fallen under the belief, rooted in the decisions of this Court and the practice of the profession, that the law is generally as he declares it to have become by custom. I cannot say that I attach much importance to his evidence upon the custom as a custom.

The next witness is Haji Adam Haji Usman Noorani, fifty-two years of age and a Cutchi Memon and a Shetia of the Jamat:

"Q. Do you know the custom of your community about the making of Wills?"

A. Yes.

Q. Describe it.

A. If a Cutchi Memon has self-acquired property, he can dispose of it as he pleases.

Q. Of the whole?

A. Yes. But this does not apply to ancestral property. He cannot make a Will disposing of any part of the ancestral property.

Q. How long has such a custom prevailed?

A. Since I have been in Bombay, I have observed it, that is, for forty years."

The rest of his examination-in-chief merely relates to instances of Cutchi Memons who had made Wills and is of no importance. In cross-examination, he says that he is disputing his brother's Will on the ground that the property disposed of was ancestral property. And this might account for his statement in the earlier part of his evidence that the ancestral property cannot be disposed of by Cutchi Memons by Wills. In his cross-examination, he says that he would be greatly pleased if the Government put them under the Muhammadan Law again.

"Q. You now want power to dispose of all your self-acquired property because you are told that the Courts hold that you are under the Hindu Law, and in this way you may be able to give the remainder of your property to your heirs according to the Muhammadan Law?"

A. Yes.

Q. In your community you have always been told that the Courts have held that the Hindu law governs you?

A. Yes.

Q. The whole Hindu Law?

A. Yes.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMRAI.

Q. And in that belief your people have been making these Wills?

A. Yes."

He says:

"I know that Saboo Sidick left his property to his son, Mohamed. Mohamed can dispose of that property by Will."

(If the witness is right here, what becomes of his reiterated statements that the ancestral property cannot be disposed of by Will?)

Q. But if it came from his father it would be ancestral?

A. No. The father had acquired it, and the son was a partner of the father."

This again makes it quite clear that these people's notion about what is meant by the term "ancestral family property" in the Hindu Law is hopelessly confused. This witness appears to be a respectable man, but the quotations I have made from his evidence show that he has no very clear idea upon the main point to which his evidence is directed. He does not really know, in the case of the Wills he speaks to, whether the property left was, or was not, ancestral in the Hindu sense of that word. It is to be remembered that he is only fifty-two years of age and his intelligent memory can, therefore, hardly go back more than thirty years. By that time, the Bombay opinion was already definitely formed, and the witness's evidence shows how he received that opinion from the decisions of the Courts and the like sources in Bombay itself. In my opinion his evidence is worth little or nothing upon the alleged custom.

The next witness is Mohamed Cassim Lakhtani, a Cutchi Memon fifty years of age and a landed proprietor. He says that Cutchi Memons can will away all their self-acquired property, but if it be ancestral no Will can be made. He then proceeds to give instances of numerous Wills, including Wills by Cutchi Memon widows. Such Wills certainly would not be valid under the Hindu Law in the ordinary circumstances, nor would they consist with notions underlying the law of the joint Hindu family. I am speaking here in the most general terms and am not overlooking cases in which Hindu women dispose of their own Stridhan property by Will, but if I understand the witness aright, the widows who made Wills here were wealthy Memon widows who disposed of their whole property in which, under the Hindu Law, they would only have had a life-estate. In the absence of an explanation as to how they came by their property, this comment must be taken as in a measure merely conjectural. One thing is, however, to be noted and that is that none of these Wills, and, as far as I know, none of the Wills exhibited in the case which I have already examined were disputed. From this it is open to the plaintiff to argue that the custom was so well settled that no one thought of calling it in question. On the other hand, if the custom had really been in exact accordance with the law of the joint Hindu family, it seems in the highest degree improbable that the Wills disposing of so large wealth should have gone unchallenged on the ground that ancestral or joint family property made up part of the testators' estate.

In cross-examination he says:

"I mean by 'ancestral property' property got from the father or grandfather. If the property is left to the son by Will, then it is not ancestral in the hands of the son, but is his own.

Q. Your community believes that the Courts have held that the whole Hindu Law governs them?

A. Yes. But that also is the custom."

He says:

"I heard from my grandfathers and my ancestors that there had been suits in the High Court here and that that custom had been deposited to and proved.

Q. What custom?

A. I do not know what evidence they gave.

Q. What custom?

A. The whole Hindu Law.

The Court: Including adoption?

A. No. I have not seen any adoption case. I do remember one instance of adoption.

He says:

"I had a brother. He is dead. He left a widow.

Q. You have taken that property claiming that it was joint?

A. Yes, because it was got out of my father's money.

Q. But you have claimed it by survivorship?

A. But that was ancestral property. My ADVOCATE-GENERAL F. JIMDABAI.

paternal cousins are joint with me. But I have my son, and he is likewise entitled to it. I cannot deal with that property; else my son would come in and oppose me".

If this is correct, it really does represent the adoption of the law of the joint Hindu family pretty completely. This witness is very strongly in favour of the contention that the whole Hindu Law of the joint family had been adopted by the Cutchi Memons. He is entitled to more weight because it might affect a very large property of his own.

The next and perhaps the most important of this group of witnesses is Suleman Abdul Wahed, aged sixty-seven. He is not a Shetia but is one of the leading members of the Cutchi Memon Jamat. He says:

"I know our custom about making Wills. We cannot make a Will of ancestral property, but we can make a Will of self-acquired property, according to the Hindu or Muhammadan Law. We can dispose of the whole of the self-acquired property by Will. A Cutchi Memon cannot dispose of any part of ancestral property by Will"....

Next follow a number of instances of Wills most of which are found among the Wills recorded. In reference to one of them he says:

"But I think that at present unfortunately we are, to that extent, under the Hindu Law."

To the Court.—"I think so, because I have been told so ever since I came to Bombay from Poona in 1874, and those decisions of the Judges made us subject to the Hindu Law". "I never heard from the Jamat in Bombay that there had been such a custom before the Courts here made it for us". "The Jamat told me that the Courts had decided that we were governed by such a custom. I did not ask the Jamat what custom had governed them in Cutch before they came to Bombay....I have not heard of any case of the Cutchi Memon dying intestate where his property was divided among his heirs according to the Muhammadan Law....I can only say that in Poona the estate goes upon an intestacy to the heirs under the Hindu Law; in Cochin, to the heirs according to the Muhammadan Law, and, in Cutch, I do not know how it goes. I cannot give a single instance of a Cutchi Memon dying in Poona without leaving a Will, and the property going according to the Hindu Law; the families in such cases would ordinarily be very poor, and the property might be divided according to either the Hindu or the Muhammadan Law."

He then goes on to describe the circumstances of his own family, saying that they were "joint" in the Hindu sense:

"My nephew filed a suit for partition of this joint family estate, and the property was partitioned under a decree of the Court". "I gave my son, Abdul Rahman, his share of the ancestral property and took a release from him".

After this follows the cross-examination in which the witness says:

"I am an orthodox Muhammadan, I believe firmly in the Quran. Memons are orthodox Muhammadans, they all believe in the Quran.

Q. You and they would consider it sinful to depart from what is laid down in the Quran?

A. Yes. The Quran only allows us to dispose of one-third of our property by Will. I and the members of our community would much like to follow that rule of the Quran.

Q. But your people have been doing the contrary for some years because they have been told that the Courts have made the Hindu Law binding on them?

A. Yes.

Q. Your people have been told that ever since Sir Erskine Perry's decision?

A. Yes. I much regret, and I know that others do too, that the Courts should have thus imposed the Hindu Law upon us.

Q. If you were told that the Courts had never held that, how would you dispose of your property?

A. According to the Quran.

Q. Your community has never got reconciled in all these years to the Courts having imposed the Hindu Law upon them?

A. No.

Q. A large majority of you have striven all these years to get those decisions upset?

A. Yes. Most certainly our people would wish to follow the Quran if they were allowed to; they feel that they are helpless because they have been told that the Hindu Law of intestate succession governs them. We got this idea of ancestral property from the Bombay Barristers, Solicitors and other like vultures. Until I came to Bombay I never heard of this distinction; as strict Muhammadans we know nothing of it.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

Q. What do you mean by ancestral property?

A. Property which comes from the grandfather, whether the grandfather made a Will of it or not. In Mecca and other holy places they will not allow that we are Muhammadans at all, because we have had this Hindu Law forced upon us. I feel very strongly upon all these points, and I much regret that the Courts should ever have decided as they have done. I say that the son takes a vested right in ancestral property at birth is an idea made for us by the Courts. It may be called a custom as it has been followed here for many years, since the Courts decided that way."

In re-examination the witness says:

"I would like the Muhammadan Law to be applied in all cases of intestacy as well as in testamentary disposition. I should not like any part of the Hindu Law to be left."

I have quoted from this witness in extenso, because his evidence, as a whole, is striking and characteristic, I think, of the real and best sentiment of the community. It is clear from the opening portions that the root ideas of the Hindu family have struck deep in spite of religious protest, and that much against their Will the strictest Muhammadans among the Cutchi Memons have accepted, though it can hardly be said that they have become reconciled to, the Hindu Law so liberally made for them by the Courts. It cannot be denied that, in the first instance, there was none of this marked repugnance to the Hindu Law of the joint family. And when I come to look a little more closely into the previous cases, I dare say I shall have to admit that at any rate, when the question first came before Sir Erskine Perry that learned and eminent Judge was right in supposing that by enlarging in some directions the restrictions imposed by the Muhammadan Law, and giving the Cutchi Memons a part, if not the whole, of the Hindu Law of succession including that of the joint Hindu family, he was meeting the wishes of a majority of the community as well as validating a single proved custom in derogation of the Muhammadan (and the Hindu) Law. But in view of the growing wealth and intelligence of the community and the development of a strong re-action in favour of strict adhesion to the Muhammadan

Law, I can entertain no doubt but that the opinion has now been proved mistaken. In the evidence of this witness we find in petto a reflection, and I submit a complete confirmation, of most of the general views I ventured to express regarding the real attitude of this community towards the case-made law in my former judgment.

The witness is a very intelligent and influential old man of undoubted probity, who has held the high office of Sheriff of Bombay. The effect of his evidence is, I think, that while, in his opinion, his community is, at the present day, under the Hindu Law of the joint family, that has not been brought about by the deliberate and volitional adoption of that law as a custom, but by the too precipitate action of the Courts. And the feeling of the better part of the sect to-day is strongly in favour of throwing off every feature of the Hindu Law with which it has gradually been fettered. I have said that in the course of the arguments addressed me on behalf of the plaintiff in this case, I have been reproached over and over again with having insisted, upon a misconception of what actually happened at the trials, the procedure and the form of the issues, that the Courts and the profession forced a most unwelcome law upon reluctant Muhammadan sects. I think that I am vindicated, to some extent, by the strong feeling shown by this witness. It may well be that the law was not so unwelcome in 1847 as it has since become, and I certainly do not mean to suggest that the eminent Judges and Counsel mainly responsible for bringing it to its present state were not guided in each and every trial by the most correct judicial principles. But I do say, and shall remain for ever convinced, that over and over again much, too much, was taken for granted, and that it was as much the decisions of the Courts and the opinion, of course the perfectly honest opinion of the profession, as any real customary adoption by either Khojas or Cutchi Memons of part or the whole of the Hindu Law of the joint family, that have made the law as it is generally supposed to be to-day. One thing at least is made clear beyond all possibility of dispute, that if Mr. Wahed is a true spokesman for his sect, this sect, would, if left to itself, and not pinned down by judicial decision, renounce any such custom

ADVOCATE-GENERAL, T. JIMBARAI.

(admitting that it had ever been adopted) as that which the legal doctrine of this Court has now made an integral, and indeed the dominating factor of their personal law.

The next witness examined was Ali Mahomed Haji Yusuf, a Cutchi Memon fifty years old. He is a person of little importance compared with the last witness. He says he is a dealer in salt:

"I know the custom of our community as to making Wills. Cutchi Memons make their Wills according to Hindu Law. They can dispose of the whole of their self-acquired property."

The Court. "When did you first hear of self-acquired property?"

A. I was born in Bombay, so I have heard of it all my life. We cannot dispose of our ancestral property by Will."

In cross-examination the witness says:

"Q. Your custom exists because you have been told that the Courts have decided that the Hindu Law of Wills, etc., applied?"

A. Yes.

Q. You have been told so all these years by the lawyers?"

A. No member of the legal profession has talked to me about it. My community, however, has been told that this was settled by the Courts?"

Q. They were told that the Courts had applied the Hindu Law in all particulars?"

A. No. Only about Wills, and about property and inheritance and succession. There is a feeling in our community that the Courts have been wrong in applying the Hindu Law to us.

Q. And but for this they would follow the Muhammadan Law?"

A. Yes."

The next witness is Haji Yusuf Subhani, aged sixty. He says he is an ordinary member of his community, a mill-owner and the President of the Anjuman-i-Islam.

"I know the custom of our community in the matter of making Wills. A Cutchi Memon can dispose of his self-acquired property by Will, the whole of it. He cannot dispose of ancestral property. I have never heard it said that a Cutchi Memon cannot dispose of more than a third of his self-acquired property."

In cross-examination he says:

"I have been told that a custom had been established in the Courts. That is why we have made the Wills in the manner I have described."

After some cautious answers which do not commit him much to any great preference for the Muhammadan Law, he says:

"From a religious point of view I should prefer the Muhammadan Law. I would prefer the rule laid down by the Quran."

We gain little information from this witness. His last answers show that he is a peace-loving man, sitting on the fence for the present, waiting to throw in his lot with the winning side.

The next witness is Abdul Satar Gaya, a Doctor, aged thirty-two. He says that he knows the custom of his community about making Wills

"A Cutchi Memon can dispose of his self-acquired property as he pleases. A Cutchi Memon cannot make a Will of his ancestral property."

The Court. "What do you mean by ancestral property?"

A. Property coming from great-grandfather, grandfather, father."

In cross-examination he says:

"I have been told ever since I was grown up that the Courts had held that the Hindu Law governs Cutchi Memons generally in matters of inheritance or property."

Q. If the Courts had not decided, as they have, you Memons would prefer to follow the Muhammadan Law?"

A. I think so.

Q. If they were left free now, would they follow the Muhammadan Law?"

A. I think the majority would, I myself would. I do believe that in giving the go-by to the Quran and forcing the Hindu Law on us, the Courts have done wrong. I should say that that was the feeling of the majority of our community."

The next witness is Ibrahim Haji Sidik, aged thirty-five, a landed proprietor:

"I know the custom of our people in making Wills. Sometimes they make their Wills according to custom."

Q. What is the custom?"

A. I have heard that the Hindu Law applies.

Q. Do you mean the whole Hindu Law?"

A. I do not know that. We can make our Wills as we please, whatever the property is.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

We cannot dispose of ancestral property by Will. Grandfather's property becomes joint family property. I include father, grandfather, great-grandfather, etc."

In cross-examination after showing an intelligent understanding of what is meant generally by ancestral and joint property, he says:

"I have heard that the Courts have held that the Hindu Law of Wills applies to us. That is the belief in our community. That is why we make our Wills in that way. The Hindu Law of property and inheritance has been held by the Courts to apply to us, that is what is generally believed in the community. I am an orthodox Muhammadan, so are most of us Memons. We should like to follow the precepts of the Quran."

The next witness is Tyeb Haji Gul Mahomed, aged sixty-two, a merchant and a contractor. He says:

"I know our custom about making Wills. We can dispose of our self-acquired and our ancestral property too. Was born at Malabar."

(N. B. This is the only one of these witnesses, I think, who says that Cutchi Memons can dispose of their ancestral as well as their self-acquired property by Will. Possibly because, being from Malabar, he is not so saturated as the rest with the legal doctrine of this High Court.)

In cross-examination, he says:

"The custom had been in force many years before the decisions of the Court gave legal effect to it."

I may observe on that that the witness could here only be speaking from hearsay, as the decisions of the Court began before he was born.

"Q. If the Courts had not so decided, you would have preferred to follow the Muhammadan Law?"

A. But the custom had been in vogue for a long time.

Q. Who told you that this was the custom when you came to Bombay?

A. My grandfather told me. He was then in Bombay. I came here first in 1918 (1860). It was when I was here in 1930 (A.D. 1874) that I first heard of this custom."

The next witness is Abdul Rahim Haji Ibrahim, aged thirty-six, not a leading member of the community, a hosier. He says a Memon can will away his self-acquired property as he pleases. He cannot will away his ancestral property. In cross-examination:

"I would like to follow the Muhammadan Law of Wills. I have always been told that the Courts have held that the Hindu Law of Wills governs us. That is what all the members of my community believe."

The next witness is Abubakar Haji Mahomed, aged fifty-four, owns landed property in Bombay and says he knows the custom of his community about making Wills:

"I have made a Will according to the Muhammadan Law. I have disposed of the whole of my property. I have said that the distribution is to be made according to the Muhammadan Law. The decisions of the Courts in our cases have put us under the Hindu Law. Among the Memons the custom is that the Hindu Law applies."

Q. What is the power of the Cutchi Memon to make Wills?

A. The thing is this, as the Hindu Law prevails they make Wills so that their widows and daughters may get something out of the estate.

Q. Do you know whether these Cutchi Memons recognize the law of ancestral family property?

A. Yes. A Cutchi Memon cannot will away ancestral property."

In cross-examination he says that the Courts have decided that the Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law in all matters of succession, inheritance, Wills, etc.:

"We think that if we do not make a Will our property will go by Hindu Law."

Q. You think then that the Courts have wrongly applied the Hindu Law?

A. All I know is that this has been the custom from the time of my forefathers."

This concludes the evidence of this kind given before the Court. It must be admitted that it points directly to a considerable and settled opinion, however unpalatable, that much, if not the whole, law of the joint Hindu family governs Cutchi Memons. But it is to be remembered that over the period covered by the lives and personal experience of all the witnesses, it was virtually impossible for any Cutchi Memon to approach the Courts except upon the footing of a Hindu in all the essentials of the personal law of the joint Hindu family. And it cannot be denied that the decisions of the Courts had done more than anything else to contribute to that result. It is only when we turn back to the origin of the wide rule, which had thus been established, and follow as I did in my former judgment the various steps of the process, that we shall be in a position to discriminate, if indeed this be now possible, between what was a real custom and what was rapidly added to it by judicial decision.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JIMBABAI.

As I have said, the points actually in controversy between the litigants before Sir Erskine Perry lay within a very narrow compass. I think it very unfortunate, looking back over this piece of legal history, that that great Chief Justice should have delivered one judgment in the cases before him thus, at the very outset, introducing elements of logical confusion which rapidly bred and multiplied. I think, too, that the procedure followed put the preliminary enquiry on much too wide and loose a base. For all essential purposes, the points in controversy need not have been so extended as to lead the learned Chief Justice to believe that in order to deal with them it was necessary to open a general enquiry into the question whether the two sects of Khojas and Cutchi Memons had by that time adopted, as a custom, the whole Hindu Law of the joint family, with all its derivative legal notions and consequences, as directly affecting the law of succession and inheritance.

But with the fuller information given me in the course of this trial at my disposal, it seems to me that something of this kind happened. The result was not very satisfactory even for the limited purposes of the two trials, since the learned Chief Justice, in his judgment which, after all, is all that now concerns us, confined himself to a very cautious opinion that these sects had adopted a law analogous to the Hindu Law. How closely analogous, or in what main points diverging from it, and if so diverging, then whether back to the Muhammadan Law or in the direction of merely analogous customs, nothing, I think, is said. But what the learned Chief Justice meant to hold was, I believe, that Khojas and Cutchi Memons were under a Customary Law closely akin to, if not identical with, the Hindu Law of their former co-religionists, and that from that starting point, it lay on them to prove customs in derogation not of their own, the Muhammadan, but of this rather vaguely adopted analogue of the Hindu Law.

The Cutchi Memon case (1) tried before Sir Erskine Perry arose out of a dispute between the widow, Rahimatbai, of one Haji Nur Mahomed and three uncles of the deceased. Following the procedure of those days it appears that the Chief Justice sent certain issues down to be tried before himself on the Plea Side of the Court. These are very instructive as showing how the subject, then virtually res integra in this High Court, was then approached.

The issues were:

"1. Whether the set of Muhammadans commonly called or known by the name of Cutchi Memons is subject to a valid usage or law of inheritance and succession different from the general Muhammadan Law of inheritance and succession to goods?

2. Whether, from the death intestate of Haji Nur Mahomed in the pleadings of this cause mentioned, his uncles, etc., succeeded to his estate as his heirs or otherwise, in exclusion of the said complainant, and one Tezbai, another widow of the said Haji Nur Mahomed, subject, however, to providing for their maintenance?

3. Whether upon the death intestate of the said Haji Nur Mahomed, the said complainant as one of his two widows became entitled by succession to a share consisting of one-sixteenth part of his estate?

And it is ordered that the complainant here shall be the plaintiff on the trial of such issue on the Plea Side of this Court and that the said defendants, etc.,...and if the Court at such trial shall find any other special matter, the same shall be indorsed on the postea."

So far this appears to be perfectly correct, and to establish the general proposition from the very beginning of this litigation that any one alleging a special custom in derogation of the law of the parties must prove it. We find, accordingly, that the defendant opened with witnesses in support of the plea.

The first of these witnesses was Haji Yusuf Haji Baludina, who says that "he had lived in Bombay for seventy years, was regarded as a sort of head of his sect." (N. B. The witness talks of 'caste'). He says, "there is a particular custom of inheritance among them, namely, that a widow is entitled to maintenance as long as she remains unmarried. Some say that the Cutchi Memons were converted to Muhammadanism two, three or four hundred years ago. They were Hindus before, Lohanas." He then speaks of the custom prevailing among Lohanas proper. But no one has ever alleged in these Courts, I believe, that they are not subject to the ordinary Hindu Law, and it is plain from what the witness says, namely, that among Lohanas a widow is maintained by her sons, etc., that he is thinking of the condition of widows in an undivided Hindu family. He says:

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

"I am not particularly informed of the custom among the Lohanas. Divorce is not allowed among Memons, plurality of wives is allowed in case of sterility. According to Muhammadan Law, females ought to inherit, but we have not allowed any female as yet to inherit."

In cross-examination he says:

"No disputes regarding inheritance have ever occurred with us in Cutch;" "the husband and wife were expelled from the caste, they were expelled because this custom had never been disputed before."

This was the first instance I ever knew."

(Note. As the husband appears to have died intestate, thus giving rise to the dispute, it is not easy to understand why he was expelled from the "caste.")

To the Court; "I say that the Muhammadan Law lays down the rules as to inheritance, but we have not observed it. Our custom is not of recent origin but has prevailed four or five hundred years."

The next witness is Abdulla Rakhia, who says that there are many tribes of Cutchi Memons but they are all of one "caste:"

"We do not follow the Mussulman Law as laid down in the Quran. I do not know what the Hindu Law is. We do not allow females to inherit with us. If a man leaves a widow and brothers she is not allowed any particular share."

(This again would only be true under the Hindu Law in the case of a joint family.)

"We do not allow daughters to inherit. If a man died leaving brothers and sons, if the family is divided, the sons take alone; if undivided, the brothers equally. If four brothers should be in partnership, and one dies leaving sons, the sons inherit."

(Observe the loose confusion between partnership and the true "joint Hindu family.")

"I have often heard that part of the Quran read which lays down the rule of inheritance, but we do not follow it because it is not our custom. We did not set the Quran aside but our custom did. This custom of inheritance has existed among us always. If a man left his property to his widow the panch would give effect to it. Divorce is not allowed among us. When this case was brought into Court the panch expelled the husband and the woman."

The next witness is Haji Fazul Jaffir, says, he is one of the panch, came from Bhuj:

"With us women do not inherit, when a man leaves a widow she remains in the house and gets maintenance."

In cross-examination adds nothing of note

The next witness is Haji Absakur, says, he knows the law of inheritance laid down in the Quran but the Cutchi Memons do not follow it. According to the law Cutchis follow, women do not inherit.

At this point I find the note by the learned Chief Justice:—

"I intimate that a prima facie case is launched of custom amongst Cutchi Memons, and if they have evidence to show it (sic) they should call witnesses."

Then Haji Mahommed Haji Ibrahim is called and says, that he is a Cutchi Memon and that his father died three months ago leaving brothers, nephews, daughters and a widow. He made a Will (this is called for).

Another witness is then called, Mulluk Haji Umar, who gives an instance in which it would seem that some sort of distribution was made of the deceased's property

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

but not strictly according to the Muhammadan Law—:

"I have not heard of any widow in our caste being allowed a share as Muhammadan widows are."

Another witness appears to have been offered but not examined, and the Advocate-General then admits that his evidence does not go further to disprove the custom set up.

That is the whole evidence upon which a judgment was based that has had such astonishingly wide consequences. I should observe that at this trial the evidence in former cases was tendered and it was found to take up so much time discussing it sentence by sentence, in order to determine whether or not it was against the declarants' interest, that much was let upon the record, subject to stricter examination when the case was over.

After the above analysis I cannot say that I think any of this record of previous depositions is relevant under section 32, clause 3. I do not find in these depositions per se any declarations against the interest of the makers. Nor do I think that these depositions of men long dead are admissible under any other provision of the Indian Evidence Act. I have examined them, however, with the object of bringing out clearly what really were the materials before Sir Erskine Perry in 1847. Many statements do suggest that the witnesses were saturated with the Hindu Law, or, at any rate, that they had accepted, with modifications, some salient features of it. But I do not think it would be correct to say that anything to be found in the trial on the plea side before Sir Erskine Perry establishes a conscious adoption of the whole law of the Hindu joint family. The witnesses appear to draw no distinction between the position of females in an undivided and a divided Hindu family. They appear to have been imbued generally with the stringent limitations imposed by the early Hindu law-givers on a woman's capacity. But the custom they set up, goes very much further than the true Hindu Law. It does not appear to recognize the widow's estate and peremptorily excludes daughters altogether and in all circumstances.

I cannot understand how upon these issues and this evidence, it ever could have been supposed that the Chief Justice found that the Cutchi Memons were not only not governed by the strict Muhammadan Law of succession and inheritance, but that they were governed by the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance. All that the issues suggest and the evidence proves is that there was a valid custom or usage inconsistent with the Muhammadan Law. Sir Erskine Perry appears to have thought that it was, in a measure, analogous with the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance. Further than that, I do not think he went in the way of generalization obiter. He certainly found it proved, as a special custom, that among the Cutchi Memons widows would not take, and that uncles would exclude them upon the intestacy of husband or nephew. That was all that he was asked to decide, and that was all that he did decide. I do not suppose that it will be contended, e.g., that this case decided inter alia that the Cutchi Memons had proved a special custom in supersession of the Muhammadan Law of divorce or marriage.

The evidence recorded in the case of Mahomed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) has been given in evidence here, as it is pretty certain that a great deal of it, at any rate, must have been against the interest of the declarants. Before running over it, I may make one or two general observations on the case. The Court was asked to try the validity of two Wills made by two Cutchi Memon brothers, who, with two more brothers, had, for a considerable time, carried on a large and flourishing partnership business. The objection was that the property was ancestral, and that the testators had no power to dispose of any part of it by Will. An attempt was made by Mr. Inverarity to re-open the whole question with reference to the power of making Wills and the restrictions upon that power arising out of the legal notion of ancestral property peculiar to the Hindu Law, which was supposed to have been included in the law of "succession and inheritance," consistently applied (in theory) since Sir Erskine Perry's judgment in 1847 to the Cutchi

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JIMBAHAL.

Memons. But this attempt was not successful. The issues are, however, interesting in this connection. The learned Judge, notwithstanding the principles he sets forth in the opening passage of his judgment, virtually conducted the trial on the second of his presumptions, treating the first as already disposed of. What actually happened was that the learned Judge took it for granted, as far as I can see, that the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance had been judicially and finally decided to govern Cutchi Memons. That being so, it was mere surplusage to mention, as a fundamental principle, that in all cases arising between Muhammadans, the Muhammadan Law must, in the first instance, be presumed to govern. That is a perfectly correct principle, but at the time of this trial, the learned Judge was evidently convinced that it had been completely displaced and that trials of the kind he was conducting, must start from the second principle, namely, that Cutchi Memons are to be presumed to be governed by the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance. Along with this, he appears to have taken it for granted that the distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property is an integral part of that law. The burden of proving, therefore, that among the Cutchi Memons a custom had been established ignoring any such distinction, was thrown upon the parties alleging it. This is in conformity with the third of the learned Judge's principles, namely, that it will be open to this community to prove any special custom whatever even in matters of succession and inheritance in derogation of the ordinary Hindu Law. It appears that a good deal of the old evidence, taken from the records of the Ecclesiastical Side of the Court, was again laid before the Judge at this trial, as though upon the trial of an issue arising under his first principle. But it is as clear that he regarded that original presumption as wholly displaced by the decisions of the Court from Sir Erskine Perry's time onwards. And I think that the evidence of witnesses recorded at this trial was all directed to proving the special custom relied upon in derogation of the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance. Such a "custom" is, of course, no more than a part of the Muhammadan Law which has never known any distinction between joint ancestral, joint family and self-acquired property. But then for the double assumption (a) that the Hindu Law and not the Muhammadan Law governed this sect in all matters of inheritance and succession, and (b) that included in that branch of Hindu Law was the whole legal notion of the joint Hindu family, it is clear that the trial must have taken another course. I repeat that had the onus been thrown, as in my opinion it clearly ought to have been thrown, on those who alleged that, even conceding Wills formed a part of the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance, the Cutchi Memons had further imposed upon themselves the Hindu Law of the joint family with its dominant conceptions of ancestral and joint family property, the result of the trial might, and probably would, have been very different. I am supported in that opinion by the remarks of the learned Judge himself upon the character of much of the evidence recorded and the light it threw upon the attitude of the community, as a whole, towards this substitution of Hindu for their own Muhammadan Law.

I think it is impossible to say that anything by way of proof, coming from the right quarter and directly given for that purpose, is added by this trial to the extremely meagre and inconsequent proofs formerly collected and made the foundation of the Court's doctrine that the Cutchi Memons were in all respects governed by the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance. The learned Judge, indeed, remarks that a good deal of the evidence led to prove the special custom confirms in his opinion the correctness of the Court's previous decisions on this point. While that may be so, it is equally clear that none of it has any bearing (I mean none that is quoted in the judgment) upon the actual point under investigation. If the law of succession and inheritance governing this sect is understood to be the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance, as limited to the case of a divided Hindu disposing of, or leaving, self-acquired property, then the succession would, in all cases, be the same and the only contentious question that could arise would be, not as to the testamentary power of the deceased, for that is always full under the Hindu Law, but as to the ownership of the property bequeathed. No man can give by Will what is not his own. No Hindu can, of course, dispose by Will of any part of the joint family property whether moveable or immoveable, for the simplest of all reasons that it is not his own during his life-time to give away. Precisely the same principle would, in theory, regulate gifts inter vivos, but in practice a good deal of confusion and obscurity has been introduced into the Hindu Law here, because of the inaccurate and unsystematic habits of thought which make every original treatise on the Hindu Law the despair of exact thinkers. The question which the learned Judge had to answer was the narrow and sharply defined question, whether the Cutchi Memons had ever voluntarily imposed upon themselves, as a custom, the Hindu Law of the joint family, as exhibited particularly in the distinction between ancestral, joint and self-acquired property. Because they are supposed to have imposed upon themselves a law of inheritance and succession corresponding with that which would be applied to the case of a separated Hindu in possession of self-acquired property, it does not follow that they had also adopted a totally different feature of the Hindu Law which, speaking strictly, has nothing to do with succession and inheritance at all.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

I will now go over this evidence, or parts of it, critically, for my purposes in the present case.

Mahomed Sidick Haji Abdulla, plaintiff, says: "We all lived together as a joint undivided family", but in cross-examination he was asked what he meant by an undivided family, and answered: "I only meant by it that I and my father lived together and ate together. If there had been no property we should have done so." Slight though this is, it is very instructive. The learned Judge has noted that when the witness was given the word for "undivided" in the sense of the Hindu Law, he did not know what it meant. What he says in cross-examination, clearly sets the limits upon his idea of a joint Hindu family. And it is, I have no doubt, perfectly true, that the archaic custom of families living together to the third and even fourth generation, a patriarchal custom noticed by Sir Charles Sargent in his judgment in Ahmed bhoj's case (6), prevailed almost as universally among Bombay Muhammadans as Hindus. But it does not follow from this that the former had any knowledge of, or desire to adopt, the peculiar legal consequences attaching to, the Hindu concept of the joint Hindu family. After this witness was examined, the record shows that Mr. Inverarity was called upon to open for the defendant, that is to say, to prove the custom among Cutchi Memons of not making any distinction between joint family and self-acquired property. At the outset it may be noted that it would be almost impossible to prove such a custom. Instance after instance might be given of sons and brothers inheriting, but in every such instance, ex hypothesi, the property in question must be assumed to have been self-acquired in the Hindu sense. On the other hand, it would have been comparatively easy to prove the custom affirmed by the Court as a custom, namely, that this sect had adopted the Hindu Law of the joint family. Of course had it been open to the defendant to prove that, e.g., daughters had inherited, that would have been in point to show that the property there could not have been joint family property. But all instances of that kind had long ago been ruled out by the first decision. Nor can there be much doubt, I think, but that to that extent the Cutchi Memons had long ago and on the whole consistently renounced the Muhammadan Law. It is instructive, too, to note how Mr. Inverarity opened his case. He said that the questions to be answered were questions of fact: (1) Was Ismail's property ancestral? (2) Whether among Cutchi Memons there is ancestral property in the sense that the son takes a right by birth? He goes on to say that if the property is ancestral, then the Will does not operate against the plaintiff, which seems to be giving up his main defence.

Haji Hassan, who appears to be the defendant, says:

"There are not many instances of sons and father dividing the ancestral property in their life-time. I never heard of any. I know Haji Cassum Haji Ibrahim; he separated from his father during his father's life. Cassum had a share in the trade. The father gave a share in the estate of his own accord. He got a share out of his father's property, not out of the ancestral property. He got it, not as a share of what his father got from his grandfather, but as a share of his father's own property... I know Haji Adam Haji Rahim Alwani. He had four sons. They did not get a share out of the grandfather's property, but out of the father's property which he had received from his father. I heard that they gave their father releases. I know Haji Hussan Abdul Rahim. He has either three or four sons. All his sons separated from him. They got a share, but at the father's own pleasure, not by suit. The property of the father may have come from the grandfather. I mention Haji Elias Haji Jusub. I heard he made a Will. He was my uncle's son. He had a son, Haji Saleh Mahommed. This son separated in his father's life-time. He got a partition from his father, but when sons get a partition they hold it to come from their father at his pleasure. The son gave his father a release. Memons have made Wills for many years, I cannot say how many. We have fixed customs; all that our jamat follows, is fixed. So extremely uncertain are the customs that there is no difficulty in producing any number of witnesses on either side."

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBARAI.

[N. B. That is probably true.]

Haji Ahmad Haji Abdulla is asked:

"Among the Cutchi Memon community is there no distinction made between self-acquired and property derived from the father as to the power of alienation?"

A. After him, it should go to his son. What a man gets from his ancestors, he gets as his own property, and he can deal with it as he pleases in his life time. He can will it. According to our usages a son does not acquire by birth a right to the ancestor's property."

He then gives the names of testators all of whom "had received property from their fathers." "They all had sons at the time of their death."

In cross-examination he says:

"We Memons are governed by Mussulman Law. So long as there are sons, no one else will get the property. If there are two sons living and a grandson of a third son, the two brothers could give to the son of the third son."

[N. B. Here we have a considerable confusion of thought, but an indication, it must be admitted, that some infiltration of ideas from the law of the Hindu joint family had taken place.]

"The Court adopted Hindu Law, and made stridhan, but we do not agree to the Hindu Law. Whenever a Memon suit comes into Court, nearly always a custom is set up. There is no difficulty in getting any number of witnesses on either side. Since Sir Erskine Perry's time I do not know of any instance of a custom being established in a Court of law."

[N. B. Here the witness is not so far wrong.]

Haji Tyeb Rahimatulla says he is one of the principal members of the Cutchi Memon community. Asked as to whether according to the usages of the community there is no distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, he replies:

"The son becomes the mukhtyar on the death of the father. The father may do what he likes with his property. If he does not give it to his son he may give it to any one. He can will it away. Among Cutchi Memons a son does not acquire by birth a right to his father's property. As to the ancestral property in the Hindu sense, if there is a son, he gets it after his father. The son can get it in the father's life if the father gives it of his own accord; but not against his father's will. So long as the father is alive, the son cannot prevent him from giving it away."

Very little comes out in cross-examination, but the witness says with emphasis:

"We are not governed by Hindu Law. All our customs are related to Muhammadan Law, but there are some differences in our customs."

Haji Alana Vaidina says that he is one of the principal members of his sect:

"There is no ancestral property in the Hindu sense of the word. The son does not acquire any right by birth in the property of the father. The father can make a Will of the property if he likes."

In cross-examination:

"It is true that when there is a suit in Court the caste divides into sections, and you can get witnesses to say anything in support of a suit. ... The Memons are govern-

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMBHAWI.

ed by the law of the Quran. A man can will away his property from his relatives, but it is contrary to the law of the Quran. Nobody can prevent him."

Tar Mahommed Haji Arab says:

"Among Cutchi Memons there is no ancestral family property in the Hindu sense. A son acquires no right by birth in the property of his father. A Cutchi Memon can leave away by Will the property left him by his father. Such a Will is in accordance with our usages."

Gives instances. In cross-examination he says:

"I mean by there being no ancestral property in the Hindu sense, that the grandson has no right in the grandfather's property. I do not understand Hindu Law. I do not know what Hindu ancestral property is. We are Muhammadans and we want Muhammadan Law. . . . I know only a little of Muhammadan Law. We have hitherto, by custom, made sons inherit to the exclusion of all the other sharers. Muhammadan Law out of Court can be applied, but a few go to Court to get Hindu Law since 1847. I have never heard of the Will of a Cutchi Memon which has given the property away from the sons."

In re-examination:

"The application of Hindu Law to us is not according to our usages. A grandson has no right by birth in the grandfather's property. A living son would exclude the son of a dead son, by Muhammadan Law, and so among the Memons."

Rahimtullah Junas says, he is a man of position, a tailor:

"If a Cutchi Memon received property from his father he can give or will it away and his son cannot prevent him. According to Hindu Law I do not know the rights of the grandson to his grandfather's property. Among the Cutchi Memons, a grandson has no right to share in property inherited from his grandfather. A Will made by his father in such circumstances is valid according to our usages. The application of the Hindu Law by the Court is not according to our usages. . . . We observe the Muhammadan Law of marriage and divorce; we are much stricter than Khojas. We observe all the feasts."

In cross-examination he says:

"According to inheritance formerly we did not conduct ourselves according to Muhammadan Law. Formerly our law of inheritance was according to Hindu Law. For a long time, thirty or forty years, we were governed by the Hindu Law of inheritance. For many years Wills have been in use among us."

Gives instances. In re-examination he says:

"We have been governed by Hindu Law of inheritance since the case decided by Sir Erskine Perry."

Sabu Sidick (the ancestor of the present litigants, I think) says that he is a principal member of the Cutchi Memon community, and a large merchant:

"Cutchi Memons who inherit from a father can, according to our usages, will it away even if there are sons. A son has no right to share in the property which his father has got from the grandfather. A son acquires no right among us to the property inherited by his father. If the father wills away the property according to our usages, the Will is valid."

Gives instances. In cross-examination he says:

"The Cutchi Memons have been governed by our law, that is, the Muhammadan Law, ever since we became Memons. There is no other law given us. Those who do not obey that law are sinners. I observe that law. If others do not, they go to hell. Nothing about inheritance has happened in my family, but I would act according to Muhammadan Law. My father has power to give away all his property to the exclusion of his heirs."

[N. B. This is not of course in accordance with the Muhammadan Law.]

"There are customs among us which differ from the Muhammadan Law. It is not a fixed custom not to observe Muhammadan Law. There is no rule whatever in cases of inheritance: there are customs which agree with Muhammadan Law, and some which do not. There are no fixed customs which do not agree with Muhammadan Law. There has been a revival of the Muhammadan religion among us."

In re-examination he says:

"It has been religious zeal, not the Courts, which has caused our movement. We object to the Courts deciding according to Hindu Law."

ADVOCATE-GENERAL C. JIMBABAI.

I have quoted freely from the evidence of this witness, partly because he was a man of considerable importance and the ancestor of the present litigants, but more because his evidence is so strongly indicative of what was then the feeling among the community about the extent to which it had been brought under the Hindu Law.

Haji Jusub Haji Ahmad says:

"Among Cutchi Memons, a man who has inherited property, I do not know what he can do with it."

But instances the case of his own father, who apparently inherited what, in the eye of the Hindu Law, would have been ancestral property, and yet was distributed under an oral Will.

In cross-examination says:

"The family comes from Cannanore. His father made no Will. Releases were not passed and the property was divided. I was joint with my father and grandfather, we were all joint in trade."

[N. B. This goes no further than the notion of partnership, which is quite familiar among the sect.]

Usman Alla Rakhia is a well-to-do Cutchi Memon merchant.

"If a Cutchi Memon inherits property from his father I have not seen anyone do what he likes with it. I do not know much about it, I do not attend the jamat much.

Q. Among Cutchi Memons are the customs and usages in force according to the Hindu or the Muhammadan Law?"

[The question was excluded as there was no issue and the plea was not taken in the pleadings, "moreover it is not for the witness but for the Judge to say what law is applicable." In view of what had already preceded, I must own that this strikes me as very strange. It appears to indicate that the learned Judge had made up his mind that, speaking generally, the whole Hindu Law of the joint family applied.]

"A son has no right to his father's property during his father's life. A son cannot prevent his father from doing what he likes with it."

In cross-examination he says:

"A father can will away his property to anybody. He has the right. He can will away the whole of his property; it is by Muhammadan Law that he can deal with his property as he pleases. A man dying and leaving ancestral property and sons can will his property away from them. I do not know of any such case."

Haji Satar Haji Ibrahim says he is a leading member of the Cutchi Memons, a merchant:

"According to the usages of the Cutchi Memons, a son has no right to his father's property until the father gives him property. Son cannot prevent the father from willing it away. It makes no difference if the property was derived from the grandfather."

In cross-examination:

"A man may give away all his property from his heirs, such is the mushaa (custom) of our jamat. I do not know Muhammadan Law. The power to will away from the heirs is a special custom of the Memons."

In re-examination he says:

"We have Muhammadan Law now, but the practice of the Court is, that daughters do not get a share."

Haji Jakaria Muledina says that he is a dealer in European goods, and is reputed to be a leading member of the community:

"According to the usages of the Cutchi Memon community, we can make a Will if we like. Son cannot prevent father from making a Will. There is no difference between what a man has made himself and what he has inherited."

In cross-examination:

"The son always gets his father's property after the death of his father. If the Muhammadan Law takes away testamentary power it must go. We want Muhammadan Law."

Aba Fakir Mahommed says:

"Among Cutchi Memons a father has power to make a Will of his property. I have not heard of such a thing being done if he has inherited the property from his father. It depends upon his pleasure, no one could prevent it. A son could ask his father for partition; it is at the pleasure of his father, a father has power over all property whether inherited or not."

ADVOCATE-GENERAL F. JIMBADAL.

In cross-examination:

"When a man makes a Will he follows his pleasure. I have never heard of property being willed away from the sons. A Cutchi Memon in his life has power to give his property to anybody. I have never heard about a Will."

Nur Mahommed Haji Jakaria says he is a merchant on a large scale in Calcutta:

"Cutchi Memons rules in Bombay and Calcutta differ, in Calcutta there is Muhammadan Law for all Cutchi Memons. I do not know about the law in Bombay."

In cross-examination:

"All Muhammadaus of all kinds in Calcutta are governed by Muhammadan Law."

This is interesting, as showing that in the small offshoot of the sect settled in Calcutta (there are said to be only about one hundred and twenty in all) no material departure from the orthodox Muhammadan Law has taken place.

Jusub Lakha says, he is a large Cutchi Memon shop-keeper:

"Cutchi Memons can make a Will and give the property to whom it ought to be given. It makes no difference whether he acquired property or inherited it. Among us Cutchi Memons, a son has no right to the father's property during the latter's life."

In cross-examination:

"I have never known a case of a Memon willing his property away from his sons; he has power to will away one-third of his property. The rest goes to those who are entitled."

[N. B. That is the true Muhammadan Law; but this is the first witness yet who has declared that the law is strictly observed on this point.]

"I have never known of a case of a Memon giving away by Will all his property. Our questions have been decided according to Hindu Law, and to that we do not agree. We Memons bring suits on one or another set of customs; we can get any number of witnesses on either side."

In re-examination:

"The suit decided in the Courts a few months ago against the Muhammadan Law, made us get up our petition. I do not know our usages well, but we go by Muhammadan Law."

Mahommed Ahmed says he is a well-to-do Cutchi Memon merchant:

"A Memon can make a Will of his property if he likes, inherited as well as other property. A son cannot prevent his father dealing with his property as he likes."

In cross-examination:

"A Memon can make a Will excluding his sons, he is the owner . . . has never heard of the property being willed away from the sons."

Sidik Parpaiya, a landowner, says his property is self-acquired:

"According to our usages, I can make a Will of that property. It would be just the same if I had inherited it. According to our usages, a son cannot prevent his father from willing it away. A son has no right to property inherited by his father from his father."

In cross-examination:

"A man can will away his property to whom he pleases including the property inherited from his father. He can will it to a stranger. I do not remember an instance. If a son gets a share it depends upon the pleasure of the father. I remember Sir Erskine Perry's decision, it was well-known to all the members of the jamat."

Haji Jan Mahommed says:

"A Cutchi Memon can make a Will according to Muhammadan Law; there is no difference between inherited and self-acquired property."

In cross-examination:

"A Will according to Muhammadan Law can be made by a Cutchi Memon. I have never known property willed away from sons to strangers. There is no difference between inherited and self-acquired property, that is, according to Muhammadan Law."

Junas Sidik Ladha, a tailor, says:

"A Cutchi Memon can make a Will of his own property. Some make Wills if there is inherited property, but it cannot be done. I do not know that a Cutchi Memon cannot make a Will of inherited property. We follow Muhammadan Law, that is my opinion."

Haji Abdul Latif is the Kazi of Bombay:

"Cutchi Memons I know, they are undoubtedly Mussalmans; but those who have acted contrary to the Muhammadan Law must be excluded. In cases of divorce, Memons come to me and get it."

In cross-examination, nothing material. In re-examination he says:

Jusub who gave evidence before Sir

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBARAI.

Erskine Perry, C. J., repented publicly in the presence of many persons, on the third day ceremony of Abdul Harun's death, in the mosque."

Haji Ismail Mehdi had a grandfather who was Kazi of Bombay:

"The Cutchi Memon community are very orthodox Muhammadans."

Then follows rebutting evidence on behalf of the plaintiff.

Haji Kassim Sukkur, one of the Shettias of the Cutchi Memons, seventy-three years old

"I am well acquainted with the customs of the Cutchi Memons. A man who has inherited property from his father cannot make a Will giving it away, but it must go to his sons, (Gives instances of sons getting a "share" from their fathers during the life-time of the latter). We recognize ancestral property. It follows the same rule as ancestral property among the Hindus. Wills are a later institution among us."

In cross-examination:

"A son cannot prevent his father making a Will of his property. If a Cutchi Memon had inherited property from his father and made money out of it by trade, his son could not prevent his making a Will of it. If a Cutchi Memon inherited property from his father and made money in trade, the grandson by a deceased son has a right. If a son is born, he has a right. I am an orthodox Muhammadan, but the Sirkar will not let us be so. We would follow Muhammadan Law in everything but for the Sirkar. Before the Sirkar made us unorthodox we followed the Muhammadan Law. It was Sir Erskine Perry who made us unorthodox. Before that we followed Hindu Law. I cannot give you an instance of that. I never heard of our following the Hindu Law before that decision of Sir Erskine Perry."

[N. B. The evidence seems to have been taken down wrongly here, as it is contradictory on the face of it.]

"Hindu Law is applied to us in all questions concerning property. Sir Erskine Perry made it Hindu Law—Hindu Law—Hindu Law. I should not have said so before my nephew brought a suit against me."

In re-examination:

"Before the decision of Sir Erskine Perry Hindu Law was followed. A father cannot will away ancestral property to the injury of his son or son's son."

Haji Ibrahim Saki Ladha is a Cutchi Memon shroff:

"I know what ancestral property is. A father cannot deprive his son by Will of his share of ancestral property. A son has a right by birth in it. Ancestral property is governed among us by Hindu Law. The custom of making Wills is new; it arose in 1844."

In cross-examination:

"A Cutchi Memon cannot make a Will disinheriting his son. All my property is self-acquired; if I had a son I could not disinherit him. We cannot disinherit any one, whether the property is self-acquired or ancestral. I first heard about Hindu Law about fifty years ago. All my life I have wished to carry out the precepts of the Quran; all Cutchi Memons are Mussalmans; if the Sirkar allowed it, we would all follow the Muhammadan Law. I do not know what the Hindu Law about ancestral property is. Before 1847 I can give no instance of property divided among Cutchi Memons."

Haji Abdul Rahim, a leading member of the community, says that he sold some immovable property and his sons were asked to join in executing the sale-deed, which they did. They were asked to do so by Abdulla. Payne was the Solicitor:

"A man who received property from his father cannot disinherit his sons of it by Will. I observe Hindu Law as regards ancestral property. There is no difference among us between ancestral and self-acquired property, the father's right over both is the same. Among Cutchi Memons the son has a right during the father's life to ancestral and self-acquired property. A father can make him a sub-partner and he afterwards gets it on the father's death. A father cannot disinherit his son of either kind of property because it is contrary to the Quran. It is the invariable practice of Cutchi Memons to obey the Quran and not to disinherit their sons. Many Cutchi Memons make Wills. I have never heard of one being disputed before this case. When Cutchi Memons make Wills, we observe Hindu Law. We give legacies in the way the Hindu Law gives the property."

Haji Alarakhia Dada:

"I do not know what ancestral property is. It is what is left by father or grandfather."

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JIMDABAI.

In the case of a son and a grandson by a predeceased son all is divided between them. I cannot say whether a Memon with ancestral property can disinherit his sons."

In cross-examination:

"There is no difference between ancestral and self-acquired property; the sons have a right to both. The son's right arises on the death of the father. It depends on the father's pleasure; that is so whether the property is self-acquired or ancestral."

In re-examination.

"There is no difference between ancestral and self-acquired property. I do not know if it can be willed away. When a son is born he gets a right to the property, all the property, not only that of a special kind which belonged to his father."

I pause on this man's evidence to observe the curious light that it throws on the ideas prevalent among the poorer and less instructed members of the sect upon the question of disinheritance. The man is comparatively poor and of no consequence. But his evidence shows how easily legal ideas clothed in popular language are picked up, confused, and attributed to widely different sources. Thus while this witness is very emphatic in declaring that no Cutchi Memon can will his property away from his sons (heirs according to the Muhammadan Law), he bases this on the Muhammadan Law and refuses to acknowledge any distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property in this connection. And yet it is solely on this distinction that the Hindu Law rests. The Hindu Law shows no particular repugnance to the disinheritance of sons by a father who is disposing of his self-acquisitions.

Haji Harun Haji Adam says that he is acquainted with the law which governs inheritance among Cutchi Memons:

"It is Cutchi law, which is Hindu Law."

Here again we get a useful side light on the origin and development of this reversion to Hindu legal notions.

"Wills are now made by Cutchi Memons, it is a custom only a few years old. The Will is valid if made according to Hindu Law; it could not be made differently."

[This kind of statement is really meaningless, except as intended to introduce the distinction between classes of property of which a Hindu may or may not dispose by Will. But the prevalent idea in the minds of most illiterate or imperfectly educated Hindus and Muhammadans is that a Will must follow the main lines of ordinary inheritance. This is not true either of Hindu or Muhammadan Law, for the simple reason that Wills were quite unknown to the Hindu Law, until recent times, while the provisions of the Muhammadan Law were intended to prevent arbitrary dispositions of more than a fraction of the property in defiance of religious and moral obligation.]

"Ancestral property is property belonging to ancestors, grandfather and so on. There is no custom different from Hindu Law as regards the disposal of ancestral property. A man cannot deprive sons, etc., of their share in ancestral property. He cannot leave his ancestral property to anyone but his son.

Of course he cannot really leave his "ancestral" property to any body.

"But the grandfather could make a Will if the property is self-acquired. He can will his own share of ancestral property after giving the sons their share."

This means, if it means anything, that after a partition each member of the family can dispose of his share by Will. (Gives instances of a partition enforced by sons.)

In cross-examination:

"Is insolvent and lives on what his wife allows him."

Haji Jalta Musa says he is acquainted with the laws and customs of Cutchi Memons with regard to property:

"I know what ancestral property is. It is ancestor's property. There is no custom regarding it which differs from Hindu Law. The son at birth acquires a right in it. A son can get partition during the life of the father. The father cannot will it away. I know cases where sons have obtained shares of ancestral property."

Gives instances. In cross-examination:

"I have no money whatsoever, I have been insolvent twice. I have never spoken to Cutchi Memons about the custom about ancestral property. I have always talked about this since I came to Bombay in 1915 circa (1861). Not because I had any doubt. I know it. If a man has sons he cannot leave his ancestral property from them by Will. He cannot deal with his self-acquired property. He cannot leave it to an outsider."

In re-examination:

"As to ancestral and self-acquired property

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMBABAI.

the difference is that a man cannot give ancestral property save to his sons or grandsons, but if his property is self-acquired, he can give it to his widow or any other person. No one has ever given it to an outsider."

[N. B. Though the man is of no account, his evidence is interesting as showing that in spite of his strong leaning to the plaintiffs' case, he cannot trace the prohibition in the Hindu Law against alienation of ancestral property to any other notion than the sentiment, much stronger in the Muhammadan than, the Hindu Law, against depriving the natural heirs of the estate.]

Haji Sidik Jan Mahomed:

"I got a share of my uncle's property. I do not know anything of the customs of my community."

In cross-examination:

"Is a Molloo, a Muccadam of cargo boats... His father divided his estate in his life-time between his sons... He gave us our share willingly and we asked him to give something to the grandson. He made this division of his own accord. It is Muhammadan Law in respect of property. Those who have a right to it, get it. A Cutchi Memon can give property, he gets from his father to anyone he likes, he is full owner. I know of no instance of willing it away to strangers."

In cross-examination he says:

"According to the practice of our community the father is mukhtyar of both kinds of property, self-acquired and ancestral. The son has no right in inherited property unless the father gives it to him."

In re-examination:

"Self-acquired property is the money a man gets himself. I do not know of any other kind of property save what a man makes for himself. The property he has received from his father, is also property. In a father's life-time everything is joint, if sons be living with the father it is all joint, but the father is mukhtyar of everything."

Haji Jan Mahomed Hussain:

"Sells bundles of coir matting. Nobody knows about Wills in Cutch."

In cross-examination says:

"I know nothing about it. I am only a labourer. I only knew labourers in Cutch. I have never known people who had property either there or here."

Ibrahim Haji Jakaria appears to have been only eighteen years old.

[N. B. This is the witness upon whom the learned Judge lays much stress as showing that Hindu and not Muhammadan rules of succession were followed. But it is obvious that the witness's evidence has no bearing at all upon the main question, namely, whether there is any known distinction among Cutchi Memons between ancestral or self-acquired property since, in the circumstances, the succession to either kind of property would have been just the same.]

Saleh Mahommed Elias says:

"The custom among us is that if there is a property belonging to the father it comes to the son. There is no such thing known as a Will."

Describes a rule of succession akin to that of the Hindu Law, but having no bearing on the distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property:

"If a man has inherited property from his father and has none himself, he cannot leave it from his sons."

Haji Mahommed Saleh Mahommed says that:

"Wills are not known in Cutch. They are never made there. If a man with ancestral property has a son, I do not know whether the son has any right by birth. I know no difference between inherited and self-acquired property. There is no inheritance in Cutch, there is no money in Cutch. A Cutchi Memon widow cannot, in any circumstances, get more than maintenance whatever the husband's property was. If a man gets nothing from his father but makes money himself, he could not give it away from his sons unless he did it secretly... Our Quran says half should be given to daughters of what is given to sons. A father's property is his, let it come to him from anywhere."

[N. B. Again note how radical is the idea that in no circumstances and no matter what the property, can a father disinherit his sons, a Muhammadan rather than a Hindu notion.]

Hassan Dada:

"Amongst us Cutchi Memons, a man cannot make a Will disinheriting his son if he has ancestral property. A grandson has an equal right with the son to ancestral property if the ancestral property has descended through two or three generations. The sons have a right to it if they ask for it."

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBARAL.

Haji Mahommed Haji Ismail:

"Ancestral property is property which the father has as grandfather's property. A son and grandson by a predeceased son would equally inherit ancestral property. I do not know whether the law is that sons can demand partition from the father."

In cross-examination:

"Among Cutchi Memons I do not think there is any difference between ancestral and self-acquired property as regards the father's power of disposal. I cannot even say what is in law the difference between ancestral and self-acquired property."

Elias Haji Abdulla:

"After my grandfather's death, his property was not divided; it is still undivided. How could I have a share? I was admitted to a right, so I kept quiet. We are joint. I do not know what right I was admitted to."

In cross-examination, it is clear that the witness's condition is one of ordinary partnership with his uncles rather than that of a member of an undivided Hindu family.

Haji Sidik Haji Ibrahim describes what happened in his own family. It appears that members of the family asked for a partition and the matter was referred to arbitration. But again the subject is inextricably mixed with what might have been the ordinary partnership rights of these persons:

"Among us Cutchi Memons a man cannot will away his ancestral property from his sons or grandsons. A man with ancestral property making a Will can only leave equal shares to his sons. The son has a right at birth in ancestral property."

In cross examination he says that his father's Will was valid according to the customs of the Cutchi Memons. In re-examination he says:

"A son acquires a right at birth in all kinds of property. But there is a distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property. A grandson can take the grandfather's property, but he takes self-acquired property too. A father cannot make a Will disinheriting his son of self-acquired property. A father cannot disinherit a grandson (sic) of self-acquired property."

[N. B. The concluding part of the witness's evidence points the same way as that of many others. Clearly he has no real idea of any difference between ancestral and self-acquired property, but he is deeply imbued with the Muhammadan sentiment against disinheriting the natural heirs, and that is about all his evidence, stripped of mere terms, comes to].

Hassan Dada re-called for cross-examination says:

"A man should give his ancestral and self-acquired property to his sons."

Maulvi Hissam-ud-Din:

"The Muhammadans always make converts when they can. Such converts always follow the Muhammadan Law, that law is contained in the Quran. I have considered the Cutchi Memons to be full Muhammadans even as regards the inheritance of females, till that day (i.e., the day of the meeting in the mosque). That is the only difference I have heard of."

Haji Dada appears to have been re-called and he says:

"As regards ancestral and self-acquired property, the father can do what he likes with self-acquired property, but the son has a right in ancestral property. No one has willed self-acquired property away that I know of. How can a man give his property to other people? He cannot do it. If a Cutchi Memon had self-acquired property and five sons he ought to give every one of them. I cannot say if he can give it all to one. I do not know if he can. I do not know if a man with ancestral property can give it all to one. A man should give his ancestral and his self-acquired property to his sons."

I have now completed this long and tedious labour. Much of the evidence I have been examining is, in my opinion, inadmissible in the present suit; much of it, however, certainly is admissible. I have made an abstract of it all, partly because the trial I am engaged upon is of a somewhat unusual nature, possessing, for the limited purposes of this branch of law in this Court, what might perhaps be called an historical interest; partly because it was not easy without going over all the evidence to say what parts of it were, and what were not, relevant; partly again because Mr. Inverarity was extremely desirous that not only what was put on record to-day, but what had been recorded before Sir Erskine Perry nearly seventy, and before Scott, J., thirty, years ago, should also be available for the Court's information; and lastly, because I have permitted myself both in this and the incorporated judgment to comment upon Scott, J.'s judgment with some freedom. I have thought it best, then, to reproduce in the form of a mere abstract the most valuable (as it seemed to me) portions of the material upon which that learned Judge based his conclusions. Whatever may be advanced against the relevancy of much of this evidence, its general interest can hardly be denied, nor the importance, if this can be done in a controversy of the kind, of tracing the formation of opinion in the sect. Several points of importance emerge. This complete review of the evidence confirms, in my opinion, what I have said more than once in this and the incorporated judgment, that but for the strong judicial and professional prepossessions of long standing which existed at the date of this trial, its result would have been different. It can hardly be doubted that if the matter had been res integra, and the question raised had been, whether among a sect of Muhammadans an alleged custom recognizing and adopting the distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property in the sense of the Hindu Law of the joint family existed, no Court could have held on such evidence that the alleged custom was proved. But the Court started its real inquiry from the point that the decisions of the Court had settled the law so far, that this Muhammadan sect was governed in all matters of succession and inheritance by the Hindu Law, therefore, that it lay upon any one of them, who alleged that notwithstanding that the sect had never adopted the Hindu distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, to prove it. Even so, the evidence was so conflicting and nicely balanced that the decision may be thought to have been determined by the placing of the onus. The learned Judge did not think that the defendants setting up the custom had proved it, that is to say, the negative of the custom, as, in my opinion, it ought to have been stated for decision. The defendants could not prove that "by a custom of the community" no regard was, or ever had been, paid to the distinction drawn by the Hindu Law of the joint family between ancestral and self-acquired property. But suppose that, without making any assumptions at all, or taking anything for granted, the plaintiffs had been called on to prove affirmatively that the Cutchi Memons had, by custom, incorporated the complete legal notions of ancestral and self-acquired property, as applied in the law of the Hindu joint family, in their own law, can any one suppose that the evidence I have just reviewed; would have satisfied any Court, or proved the affirmative proposition to the satisfaction of any Judge?

ADVOCATE-GENERAL F. JIMBAHAL.

I attribute the result of this trial, the first in which any serious attempt appears to have been made to prove (though from a wrong starting point) that the Cutchi Memons had adopted parts of the Hindu Law of the joint family ancillary to the general law of "simple succession and inheritance", whatever that may be, much more to the preceding case-law and the strong professional opinion which prevailed within the Court than to any proof of any custom whatever existing in reality and outside the legal atmosphere of this Court, among Cutchi Memons themselves.

Yet, if the decision had been the other way, as, in my opinion, it ought to have been and would have been but for the case-law, consider how different the position would be to-day.

One of the most striking features of the evidence, as a whole, taken before Scott, J., in 1885 is that it is far more uncertain, more contradictory, and evidently more unsettled than the evidence (such as it was) recorded forty years earlier before Sir Erskine Perry, or thirty years later before myself. So few witnesses were examined before Sir Erskine Perry and the points to which his enquiry was directed were, comparatively speaking, so narrow that it is little wonder that the evidence seemed so unanimous, and that Counsel on the other side soon gave up the attempt to rebut it. I also believe that in those days, the sect, as a whole, probably was more under the influence of Hindu ideas than it is to-day: more particularly in all points affecting the legal capacity of females to inherit or enjoy property. But the evidence shows that all the witnesses were, in the most general sense, under the impression that the Hindu Law of the joint family had, with other parts of the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance, been adopted by the Cutchi Memon sect, or revived (with modifications) by inherited propensity or gradual pre-assimilation from a predominantly Hindu environment.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMPAHAL.

But in the next forty years there had been a strong revulsion of feeling. And notwithstanding that for some centuries after their conversion, these isolated Muhammadans had very likely fallen back in practice under the example and pressure of great bodies of their former co-religionists, so that they hardly knew themselves to what extent their property law was, Hindu or Muhammadan, I should very gravely doubt whether they had, when the Cutchi Memons' case (1) came before Sir Erskine Perry, any definite notions at all upon such a complex of law as that which makes up the Hindu Law of the joint family and comprises the highly artificial notion of joint ancestral family property. For the most part, they probably did live together as long as families held together, more than one generation at the time finding place under the paternal rule of the elders. From a habit so universally prevalent among primitive Oriental people and so propitious for the assimilation of the specialized legal concept of the Hindu family, they might very easily, merely by imitation and under the pressure of greater mass, even had they not themselves been predisposed by long centuries of heredity, have conformed in many respects to the law and usages of the Hindu states and peoples among whom they lived. But looking only to strict law, it is clear that if they stated their customs correctly before Sir Erskine Perry, they had, while abandoning the Muhammadan Law on the one hand, gone some distance beyond the Hindu Law on the other. On one point there was and always has been practical unanimity, that widows can only enjoy maintenance, and that, speaking generally, females are excluded from inheritance. It is not true, of course, that females are so excluded under the Hindu Law. But for all practical purposes, as far as they were yielding to the pressure of circumjacent Hindu sentiment, that pressure probably transformed itself in idea into a reproduction of the joint Hindu family, without much regard to the cognate notion of the separated Hindu. But it is not to be too hastily inferred from this conjecture, that while they realised with some precision the effect of that part of the law of the Hindu joint family which operates to restrict the legal capacity of females within the joint family, they had equally clear conceptions of the whole of that legal structure.

Rather I should be inclined to say that the evidence I have examined, taken as a whole, up to the year 1885, shows that the Cutchi Memons, wherever it was a question how property should be disposed of, or descend, were deeply penetrated by the religious sentiments of the Muhammadan Law, and that the determinant consideration (qualified as to women by the disfavour with which Hindu Law has consistently treated them so long as the status of the joint family continued) always was the Divine disapproval of disinheriting natural heirs. Although the words come glibly enough to their tongues, it is easy to read between the lines that hardly one of the witnesses who declare that no Cutchi Memon could deprive his sons of ancestral property, referred that doctrine to any technical legal distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, or meant more than that a father had no right to Will his property away from his sons. But for the exclusion of females from this rule, and the need of qualifying it in favour of a testator's limited power of disposition permitted by the Muhammadan Law, such an opinion might be much more easily and naturally traced to the Quran and later logic of the Prophet or sages than to any principle of the Hindu Law of the joint family. Similarly, when a witness after witness says that sons acquire a right by birth in their father's ancestral property, I am pretty confident that, apart from the ready use of loose phraseology, they meant what might as well have been expressed without suggesting any distinction, in the Hindu sense, between ancestral, joint and self-acquired property, namely, that whatever a father had and however he had come by it belonged in a sense, and subject to a limited power of disposition, to his natural heirs, these appearing in the light of Hindu sentiment as primarily sons and grandsons. It is, of course, quite true to say loosely that, under the Muhammadan

ADVOCATE-GENERAL T. JINABAI.

Law, sons acquire a right by birth in their father's property, since he cannot leave the whole of it away from them without their consent. And relieving the evidence of these witnesses, quite untrained in legal dialectic, from words having a special legal connotation, the gist of what they mean, as well as say, appears to me to be in closer conformity with the general Muhammadan than the special Hindu Law of the joint family. The probability of this being the true interpretative key of the conglomerate of confused and inconsistent testimony laid before the Courts, is seen to be the greater, when we allow ourselves to consider for a moment the root and binding principle of the unique legal concept of the Hindu joint family. This was undoubtedly religious, and divorced from its religious reasons and sanction, it is hardly thinkable that the elaborately artificial fabric of the Hindu joint family would have persisted and held its own to this day against so many violently disruptive and disintegrating secular influences.

No compelling force of that kind operates upon the Cutchi Memons; on the contrary, what of Hindu Law they have appropriated or retained, is in strong antagonism to Divine precept. And the stronger their religious feelings, the stronger must be their aversion from elements of Hindu Law carrying with them echoes of the old faith, which survived their conversion to Muhammadanism. This note is audible enough in the evidence before me, as well as in that taken before Scott, J. I seem to miss it in the earlier evidence given before Sir Erskine Perry. But that is probably because the few Cutchi Memons, who then gave their testimony, had not realized the full extent of their action, nor how far the apparently unimportant schism thus inaugurated might be carried. It is interesting to read forty years later, that some at least of the Cutchi Memons, who gave evidence before Sir Erskine Perry in favour of heretical customs and usages, were afterwards conscience-stricken and openly recanted, and did penance in the public mosques. It does not necessarily follow that they had not spoken the truth; but if this story be true, it throws a significant light upon the trend of the will of the sect, as a whole, even so far back as 1847. By 1885, the evil of which the seeds were so thoughtlessly and selfishly sown in 1847 had assumed serious dimensions, and to-day we are told that the faithful refuse to acknowledge Cutchi Memons as true Muhammadans in the shadow of the holy places. No wonder if that is so, that the community, a thoroughly sound Moslem community to-day, notwithstanding their origin and the subsequent irruption of Hindu ideas, should bitterly resent the apparent irrevocability of early lapses, most unluckily brought prominently before the Courts and so clamped upon them by one judicial decision after another. No wonder they despair of any escape and salvation by the abandonment of every Hindu strain in their law and customs, and the unqualified re-adoption of the entire Muhammadan Law, unless the Legislature intervene.

A comparison of the feeling of the community, and I might say, the sense of the community too, as expressed in the evidence given in 1885 and that given in 1915 with its feeling and sense to-day shows, I think, how powerfully the decisions of the Courts and consensus of professional opinion have combined in operation to curb the reactionary movement that is so conspicuous in 1885. The ideas of some of the principal witnesses who have testified before me, are much clearer than any to be found on record in the earlier cases. They appear to understand much better than they did, all that is implied in the Hindu notion of joint ancestral family property. But I shrewdly suspect that that is not because they have in the intervening period become more Hinduized, but simply because, (a) they have become more intelligent, and (b) all the legal advice they can obtain, is based upon an exaggerated idea of the extent to which they have proved by custom in the Courts their subjection to the Hindu Law. Until Macleod, J., and I almost together struck the first loud note of dissent, it had become, and long been, virtually axiomatic in local professional circles that both Khojas and Cutchi Memons were governed not only by the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance as applied to an intestate separated Hindu, but the whole law with every one of its incidents and consequences of the Hindu joint family. In small measure, however distasteful this conviction undoubtedly must have been to a growing majority, many in the sect were reconciled to it by the compensatory consideration that they at least had full power of disposition over their "self-acquired" property. But we have seen reactionary tendencies at work even here. It is not very uncommon to find good Moslems of this sect making use of that extended power to defeat the custom which the Courts have imposed upon them. As the law stands to-day, I have pointed out that they are in this predicament. If they make a Will of the whole of their property, they run counter to their duties as good Moslems. But if they do not, the undisposed of two-thirds will certainly be given by the Courts not to the heirs designated by the Muhammadan, but to those designated by the Hindu Law. That is why we find Cutchi Memons giving away one-third of their property (usually to charity) and the other two-thirds to their heirs according to Muhammadan Law. No stronger proof is needed of the desire of such people, were they free to choose, of re-placing themselves under their own law. Even those who before me have admitted that the Courts have given them the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance, and that they to-day believe that they are governed by it, add, almost to a man, that if they had their own way, they would abide by the Muhammadan Law. Now if the decision of Scott, J., in 1885 had been the other way if he had held that the Cutchi Memons had no custom by which they recognized the Hindu legal distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, I think it is certain that, fortified by that decision, they would cheerfully have reverted, as far as they could, to their own law, from which they had been gradually driven ever further and further by the current of legal authority which began to set in that direction in 1847.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

Adverting, for a moment, to the evidence which, throughout the chain of case-law, seems to have been the determinant factor, I mean the records of the Ecclesiastical Registrar, I must admit that not having those records before me, I find it difficult to appreciate the light in which the learned Judges regarded them or the reasoning used upon them.

Thus in Ashabai v. Haji Tyeb Haji Rah mtulla (9 Sir Charles Sargent says:

"The Ecclesiastical records of this Court (9) 9 B. 115 at p. 120.

show that Khojas and Cutchi Memons have, ever since the decree in the case of the Khojas and Memons before Sir Erskine Perry in 1847, [Hirbae v. Sonabae (1)] been regarded in the Supreme Court and subsequently in this Court as Hindus who had been converted to Muhammadanism whilst retaining their Hindu Law of inheritance.....The above records are even richer in instances of the application of Hindu Law of inheritance to the estates of Memons than to those of Khojas, and establish a non-contentious practice extending over many years."

I quite admit that Khojas and Memons have, ever since Sir Erskine Perry's judgment, been regarded in the Supreme and afterwards in this Court as Hindus. What next follows is an historical fact which no one disputes. But it is apparently intended to support inferentially the immediately given conclusion that these sects had, in spite of their conversion, retained their old Hindu Law. But the point is not how these people were regarded in the Court, and by an officer of the Court, the real point is whether they were rightly so regarded. And no one, I think, who desires to be scrupulously careful in his reasoning, could say that the view necessarily or even rightly followed from the decision. Nor, except in cases of intestacy, am I able to understand what appears to have pressed so heavily on the minds of all these eminent Judges, except up to a point which falls very far short of the lengths to which they carried their conclusions. I think it may be correct to say that these records do establish the fact that members of the Khoja and Cutchi Memon sects had adopted the custom of making Wills of their whole property. That custom is consonant with the Hindu, and opposed to the Muhammadan, Law. But I am not at all clear what is meant by making Wills in conformity with Hindu, rather than Muhammadan, Law in any other sense, unless, indeed, we are here to import the conclusion, which is being sought to be proved in the present case, that the Wills also prove that the Cutchi Memons had adopted the Hindu distinction between ancestral, joint and self-acquired property. How a Will can prove that, except in preamble, where the testator states that the property disposed of, is his own self-acquired property, I do not know. And such a statement is almost certain to be made, where the trend of professional opinion was so decided and unanimous in favour of the doctrine that these people were, although Muhammadans, yet governed by the whole Hindu Law of the joint family. Apart from that, given a power of disposing of the whole property of the testator by Will, it appears to me futile to point to the nature of the dispositions and say, these are such as a Hindu, rather than a good Muhammadan, would make. The case is different, of course, where the records relate to the grant of Letters of Administration. As to this, Sir Michael Westropp observes in Shivji Hasam v. Datu Marji Khoja (10):—

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMHABAI.

"The Ecclesiastical Registrar has collected several precedents at that side,—some being cases disposed of by the Court and others by the Ecclesiastical Registrar. In all, the Hindu Law, as indicating the person entitled to succeed to the property, would seem to have been taken as the guide in granting Letters of Administration, except in one or two instances, in which the person so entitled expressly consented to the grant to another.

"In the case of The goods of Vallu Musani administration was granted by the Court, in 1855, to an undivided brother of the deceased in preference to the widow."

That may well have been, had it been taken for granted, as it undoubtedly was immediately after 1847, that the Cutchi Memons and Khojas were, to all intents and purposes, excluding those purely religious, Hindus not Muhammadans. But it is precisely against such large assumptions, taken per saltum, that I enter my own emphatic protest. The further and fuller enquiry and argument in this case have strengthened, rather than weakened, the opinions I expressed in my judgment in Jan Mohamed v. Datu Jaffar (2) on this point. Nothing could have been easier in the then state of professional opinion than to have satisfied the Court that any two brothers living together were "undivided" in the sense of the Hindu Law. And as the parties concerned were probably quite content to have their property dealt with at that time on that footing, and if they were not, were certain to have been advised that it was no use protesting, the result was almost inevitable. Nevertheless it appears to me to represent an inversion of the proper sequence of cause and effect. The decisions of the Courts were not the effect of judicially proved customs, but the practice of the Court, most arbitrarily adopted, was the cause of these customs being submitted to for many years by the sects concerned.

Later on we find a much fuller statement by that most eminent and learned Judge, Sargent, J., upon this body of proof. He says in Hirbai v. Gorbai (11):

"But it was said that in any case, since the judgment of Sir Erskine Perry, a uniform practice has prevailed in this Court in the exercise of its Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, both in its contentious and non-contentious business, of administering the Hindu Law of inheritance in the absence of proof of any special appeal custom to the contrary.

"Now an examination of the records of the Ecclesiastical Side of the Supreme Court (during the interval of 16 years which elapsed between the date of Sir Erskine Perry's decision and 1863) shows that there were as many as ten applications for Letters of Administration to Khoja Estates, seven of which were disposed of by the Registrar as non-contentious business and three by the Court itself.

"The first of these latter cases is that of Vallu Musani in 1855, who died leaving a widow, a son and daughter who were minors, a brother. The widow applied for administration. A caveat was entered by the brother, alleging that his brother had been his partner and joint in food and estate, and that the widow was illiterate and unfit to manage the estate, and that the widow of a Khoja leaving male issue was only entitled to maintenance. The Court granted Letters of Administration to the brother. The decision is in accordance with Hindu Law on whichever ground the Court proceeded.

"In the next case, that of Pirbhai Manji, the deceased left a widow and an infant son. Application was made by the widow, and at first opposed by persons who relied on a Will; but, the Will having been declared invalid,

(10) 12 B. H. C. R. 281 at p. 293.

(11) 12 B. H. C. R. 294 at p. 300.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMBARAL.

they alleged that the deceased had other relations, viz., a maternal grandmother and a maternal uncle, and his four sons. Administration was granted by the Court to the widow. The decision is in accordance with Hindu Law, and exclusively so, as by Muhammadan Law the widow would not be the natural guardian of her infant son for the purpose of managing his property, although she might be entitled to the custody of the child if under seven. And, as no custom was alleged, it is apparently a decision that the Court will apply Hindu Law.

"In the last case of Dossa Nanji in 1862, the deceased left a widow and a niece. The widow applied for administration, and the niece objected on the ground that the widow intended to sell the property; and the Court, consisting of Sir M. Sausse and Sir J. Arnould granted administration to the widow, she undertaking not to sell or mortgage. This is also in accordance with Hindu Law.

"Passing to the cases decided by the Registrar, the first is that of Jairoj Dharramsi in 1855, who died leaving a widow, four brothers, and no issue. A brother applied for administration, and the widow entered a caveat, but withdrew it, and Letters were granted to the brother. The second is that of Mahomed Allowany, where the application was by a brother, alleging that he had been joint in food and estate with his brother, and that a widow was only entitled to maintenance; and the Registrar, on consent of the widow, granted Letters to the brother. In the third case, Pardhan Ravji, the mother applied, there being a widow and an infant son, and the Registrar refused, unless the widow consented, which she ultimately did. The fourth is that of Mithu Sonji, where the family left consisted of three sisters, and administration was granted to one, the others being in Cutch. The fifth is that of Vallubhai Alvany, where Letters were granted to the widow, there being a mother and daughter. In the sixth, that of Dada Alvanna in 1859, the family consisted of a son, six daughters, and a grandson, and administration was given to the son. In the seventh, that of Pachan Punjani, administration was granted to the widow.

"It is to be remarked that in all these cases, with the exception of two the widow either applied for administration or entered a caveat, and that in all administration was either given to the widow, or, if not, it was with her consent, or under special circumstances, analogous to those of an undivided Hindu family, as in the case of Vallu Musani.

"It may be said that it would be unsafe to draw any positive conclusion from these scanty materials as to what the practice of the Court really was, although they undoubtedly point to such a practice as I have stated, and are difficult to explain on any other supposition."

It is particularly instructive to note what was the nature of the caveat in Vallu Musani's case in 1855:

"A caveat was entered by the brother, alleging that his brother had been his partner and joint in food and estate and that the widow was illiterate and unfit to manage the estate, and that the widow of a Khoja leaving male issue was only entitled to maintenance."

I think it safe to conjecture that the first ground taken by the caveator was his own, and the true ground, while the others were suggested by his professional advisers in accordance with their own opinion. The second case cited certainly was decided rather in accordance with the Hindu than the Muhammadan Law. The third was a conflict between widow and niece, the latter's objection apparently being confined to apprehensions lest the widow should alienate the property. The widow was granted administration on undertaking not to sell or mortgage. I cannot say that that is a very convincing case either way. Those appear to have been the only three contentious cases which were procurable before 1863. That is to say, no better evidence than this could be got from these records, during the seventeen years next following Sir Erskine Perry's judgment. It is obvious, I think, that no positive conclusion could or ought to be drawn from the cases decided by the Registrar, or even from these with the three contentious cases added. But the learned Judge, while conceding so much, thought that there was much subsequent corroboration, and this corroboration consists of the decisions, beginning with that of Sir Mathew Sausse in Ganghai v. Thavar Mulla (12) which, I hope, I have sufficiently dealt with and disposed of in my previous judgment. These extracts will show clearly enough what I mean when I say that I find it hard sometimes to follow the reasoning of the learned Judges who one after the other built up the law administered by this Court to Khojas and Cutchi Memons. In my opinion and speaking with great respect to the many much greater Judges than I, who have handled the subject, these records of the Ecclesiastical Side of the Court appear to prove very little more than the ease and rapidity with which, within a small legal circle, a doctrine may be developed and settled. I think too that, at any rate in the earlier days, they suggest that there was great laxity of thought and indifference, to say no more, in distinguishing clearly between Muhammadan and Hindu Law, and where the latter was found to have invaded and superseded the former, setting precise limits upon these proved substitutions. Coming back to the case decided by Scott, J., in 1885 I find the learned Judge saying:

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

"In a series of exhibits put in by Mr. Starling Hindu Law is evidently considered the governing law of the sect. Thus out of sixty Cutchi Memon Wills, in only one the principles of Muhammadan Law seem to have guided the Registrar. That case did not go to the Court, but Will No. 8 was submitted to the Court and Perry, C. J., decided (14th January 1852) that the widow of a separated Memon is entitled to the property."

I repeat I do not know what the first part of the passage cited means. I do not know how the Registrar could have been guided by the principles of the Hindu, rather than the Muhammadan Law in dealing with these Wills. I suppose, though here I may be wrong, that all he had to do, was to see whether the Wills were duly executed. And as I have already said, if it be conceded that Muhammadans have so far departed from their own law as to have adopted the custom of willing away all their property, I am at a loss to understand upon what ground any distinction could be drawn in dealing with such Wills between principles of Muhammadan and principles of Hindu Law. It is curious to find that in 1852, five years after the decision of the Khojas and Cutchi Memons' case (1) Sir Erskine Perry holds that the widow of a "separated" Cutchi Memon is entitled to her husband's estate. I have pointed out in this judgment that in all the sea of confused and conflicting testimony recorded, the single point upon which all witnesses appear to be unanimous is that in no circumstances can a widow among Cutchi Memons get more than maintenance. I do not know whether Sir Erskine Perry's decision rested on evidence, but, I should guess in the absence of certain information, that it was grounded on a mere inference drawn by him from his own decision in 1847.

The last point I propose to mention as a result of my close examination of the case of Mohamed Sidick v. Haji Ahmed (4) is that it finally laid to rest the doubts which up to that time Mr. Inverarity had felt upon the question whether Cutchi Memons were subjected to the same extent as Khojas to the Hindu Law, I will not say of simple succession and inheritance, but also of the Hindu joint family with all its legal incidents and consequences. How great must have been the formative influence of Mr. Inverarity's professional opinion through the succeeding thirty years of his brilliant and strenuous practice may be easily imagined. That may have had as much to do as any other single cause with consolidating local opinion, at any rate, and compelling, if not reconciling, Cutchi Memons of Bombay to regard themselves as virtually governed by the whole Hindu Law of succession and inheritance and the joint family. I shall not pause to discuss in detail the evidence given by Messrs. Inverarity and F. E. Dinshah in this case. I have gone over it carefully. I need not attach any importance to Mr. Dinshah's opinion. He is a comparatively young, though no doubt distinguished Attorney, and I do not consider that his opinion, the result of his practice for, say, the last thirteen years, is of much value. We all know what the Bar opinion has been during that period, and, I think, I know how it has come to be what it is. Mr. Inverarity's evidence is of a very different quality, and whether it be relevant or not, it assuredly is most interesting. But it does not help me much. It shows how a great Advocate forms his opinions, beginning by taking all that his seniors at the Bar told him for gospel, and gradually with ripening experience passing through a phase of critical doubt to a settled personal conviction. Even now I should doubt whether Mr. Inverarity is logically satisfied. I understand him to mean no more than that after 1885, he regarded the Law as settled both for Khojas and Memons, and perhaps I ought to add rightly settled, by the decisions of this Court. After that he accepted this position as the basis of all professional advice he gave. I think in this connection that I ought to say that, in my opinion, it must be conceded that the specific issue, whether or not the Hindu distinction between ancestral, joint and self-acquired property was part of the law governing the Cutchi Memons, was tried, and the learned Judge undoubtedly meant to find that it did. But as I have explained, I am quite sure that he would not have decided the issue as he did, had he not approached it under pressure of a strong professional prepossession, and what I believe to have been an unwarrantable presumption, that is to say, from an entirely wrong point. And, at best, the judgment is only that of a Court of co-ordinate authority. It is a judgment which deserves to be treated with the highest respect, not only because of its intrinsic qualities but also because of the eminence of its author. And I hope that I have evinced my respect sufficiently by the length of time I have given to a very close study and criticism of it. I can only say now that, with deference, I cannot agree with it.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL P. JIMFARAI.

I may now resume this judgment so far and state in a word or two my own conclusions. Accepting the proposition that the Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance, I find that it is not proved in this case, and never yet has been proved, in this Court affirmatively that they have adopted the Hindu Law of the joint family, or have made by custom the Hindu legal notions of ancestral joint family as distinguished from self-acquired property any part of their law. As these notions are foreign to their own law, not finding any countenance or place in true Muhammadan Law, I hold that they are not to be deemed to affect in any way the sect of Cutchi Memons either in the matter of making Wills or in matters of succession and inheritance. In so holding, I must refer to what has always been used as a weighty, if not a conclusive, argument, namely, that it is too late now to alter the law, and that a Court should look rather to uniformity of legal decisions than to nice logical or philosophical accuracy. Policy requires that there should be continuity in legal decisions, for, nothing can be worse than keeping the law in perpetual uncertainty, and so perhaps unsettling titles which have, for many years, been supposed to be thoroughly sound and marketable. I agree I have no intention of unsettling a single title which has become good under the former decisions of this Court. If the principle for which I contend be uniformly accepted as good law, no member of the Cutchi Memon sect will have any reason to complain, nor will the titles under which they hold property to-day be in any risk of being destroyed or even impaired. For I next hold that the custom of making Wills of the whole of their property has now been proved to be a part of the law governing Cutchi Memons. And if we limit the old proposition to what I regard as the widest scope to which it has any right of legitimate application, namely this, that Cutchi Memons are governed by the Hindu Law of simple succession and inheritance as it would be applied to a separated Hindu with self-acquired property, it becomes apparent that the custom I find, fits in easily and naturally with that proposition, and cannot operate to vex or unsettle titles acquired under the earlier case-law. Heretofore it has been the general opinion, at any rate during the last forty years or so, that Cutchi Memons, while empowered to dispose of the whole of their property by Will, were yet precluded from disposing of any property which was joint ancestral or joint family property, in the sense of the Hindu Law of the joint family. If I am right that distinction must now disappear, and the proposition will be much wider, namely, that a Cutchi Memon may dispose of the whole of his own property, no matter how he got it, by Will. But that cannot undo anything which has been done under the more restricted power. Therefore, not a single title can be unsettled by adopting the rule of law I propose.

I do not think it necessary to decide whether the making of Wills, is part of the law of succession and inheritance. It is enough to find that the Cutchi Memons have proved that they have acquired by custom the power to dispose of all their property by

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBARAI.

Will. This does not compel them to disobey their Muhammadan Law. It leaves them free to give full effect to it, if they so desire, by doing what many have already done, that is, giving away one-third as they please and bequeathing the other two-thirds to their heirs according to Muhammadan Law. It is true that if they die intestate, the Courts will give their property to their heirs according to the Hindu and not according to the Muhammadan Law. The more reason why they should not die intestate if they are really anxious to carry out the sacred commands.

While, therefore, the law as I propose to declare it, is not open to any objection on the ground that it will unsettle settled titles, it has many great advantages. First, it is clear and easy of uniform application. Second, it will protect the Cutchi Memon sect against the worst danger to which they are now exposed, the liability to explain the accumulation of great wealth, often by successive generations over long periods, to avoid the application of the nucleus doctrine and generally to satisfy the Courts that in its present form it is self-acquired and not joint ancestral or joint family property. This is by far the most harassing and expensive litigation in which wealthy persons can become involved. Third, it will wipe out an existing anomaly, the isolated attitude of the Bombay High Court in dealing with Article 127 of the second Schedule of the Indian Limitation Act. Every other High Court in India has held that that Article does not apply to Muhammadans. The Bombay High Court alone has held that it does. I have shown in my previous judgment how that doctrine came to be accepted as settled law in this Court. It is surely desirable that upon such a question the law of the whole country should be uniform. And it would immediately become so as soon as all distinctions between ancestral, joint and self-acquired property among Cutchi Memons and Khojas were obliterated.

Further, it might help to remove certain other causes of doubt in regard to minor points of the Hindu Law, which appear to have been taken for granted by the Court here in isolated judgments as being included in the general proposition that Cutchi Memons and Khojas are in all respects governed by the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance.

I shall now deal, as briefly as I can, with the second question to be answered at this trial. The bequests to charity are impugned on two grounds: (1) that they are bad for uncertainty, (2) that they are bad because they are conditional. The latter point has special importance in connection with the very elaborate and precise Muhammadan Law of gift. I have said in an earlier part of this judgment that assuming I find that Cutchi Memons have by custom acquired the right of disposing of the whole of their property by Will, I should certainly incline to the opinion that such Wills must be interpreted, where interpretation is necessary, in the light of the Muhammadan, rather than of the Hindu, Law. Where, then, it is a question whether a devise by a Cutchi Memon is good or bad, the answer must depend upon whether it conforms in essentials with the requirements of the Muhammadan Law of gift. I feel no doubt on either of the points taken by the objectors. It has often been held that gifts to "dharma" are void for uncertainty. I have never been able to concur whole-heartedly in the niceties of legal distinction which have led to, and been used in support of, these decisions. In this country "dharma" does mean roughly, and almost invariably in the cases which have come up for legal decision, just "charity" and nothing else. It is true that an Oriental's idea of charity might be a little wider and looser than that of Lord Eldon, particularly amongst the lower and more illiterate classes of Hindus and Muhammadans. But a liberal use of the convenient doctrine of cypres, which is surely elastic enough to reach almost anything which Judges wish to reach, might have validated the technical defects, and cured the infirmity. The ground of the rule in England appears to have been that as all charities were the special care and under the direct control of the Court of Equity, that Court must refuse to accept as "charity" any gift which, by reason of the vagueness of the language in which it was expressed, left the Court in doubt as to how it was to be applied. I should hardly have thought that, outside the region of a rather hyper-refined legal pedantry, such considerations had any substance or real practical weight. But so the law undoubtedly stands, and where testators bequeath funds to "dharma," the Courts decline to validate the gift as a gift to "charity" in the English sense. But I do not think that the testator here leaves us in any doubt as to his meaning or true intention. We find in clause 24 of the Will that he thus expresses himself, "they shall out of my 'punji' set apart three lacs," etc., "shall spend according to law the said sum or certain portions thereof in connection with some good works of charity, in such manner as they may think just and proper, such as hospitals, sanitarium, sucavad khana (lying-in-hospital), musafar khana (resting house for travellers), madressas (schools), scholarships, dharmashalas, medical dispensaries, etc., i. e., in connection with any such 'khairat' (that is, 'charity' work), that is, in connection with such different works of charity." The use of the Persian word "khairat," followed by the English word "charity" as explanatory of "dharma" shows how solicitous the testator was to make it perfectly clear that he meant charities in the legal sense. And this is plain too from the enumeration of objects, upon which he desired that the fund should be spent. All of these are good charities. Again, in clause 27: "they shall utilize the whole of the said 'punji' or portions thereof in such manner as they, in their discretion, think proper in connection with the above-mentioned or any other good works of 'khairat' (charity)." Now, this must, I think, be read in connection with the fuller descriptions contained in the preceding clause 24. Thus, reading all together, I cannot see that there is any such uncertainty as would be a sufficient ground for declaring the bequests bad. In my opinion, they are very good charitable bequests.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBAPAI.

The next objection is based upon the language of clause 27: "Should no son be born to me agreeably to what is written above, or should (one) be born (and) should (he) die without leaving a son or heir, ... then as regards my whatever 'punji' there may be left," etc. It is argued that this is a conditional gift to charity and, therefore, unsustainable. First, let us see what was written "above," agreeably to which, what follows in clause 27, is to be understood Clause 25:

"I have no issue now whatever, as written above, but should hereafter, by the grace of God, any children be born of the womb of my present wife, or should I hereafter publicly marry another lady of my caste and creed according to the custom of my caste and creed and should any children be born of her womb hereafter, and should daughters be so born to me, I direct... shall set apart a sum of rupees one lac for each of my daughters, and they shall," etc., (continued in clause 26) "should any son or sons be born to me agreeably to what is written above by my present or any other wife, etc., then after paying, etc., my said son alone shall become the owner thereof should I have only one son, or my said sons shall become the owners thereof in equal shares should I have more than one, ... but should any son whatever of mine die without leaving a child after his marriage but before attaining the age of eighteen years, his brother or brothers shall become his heir or heirs and should such deceased son have no brothers, then, under the circumstances first mentioned, the whole share of the deceased or, under the circumstances secondly mentioned, his remaining share shall be included in my remaining 'punji' and the same shall be utilized in 'khairat' (charity) in accordance with what I have hereinafter written."

What is the total effect of these dispositions? The testator intends to provide for any daughters that may be born to him, but these are expressly excluded in clause 27 from among the heirs. Then he provides for sons being born to him by his present or future wife. There is a provision that should a son be born to the testator and die after marriage but before attaining the age of eighteen without leaving a child (the context shows that he means a son), his share is to go over to his brothers. This appears again in the concluding clause, where, however, the conditions disappear. Reading this with what follows in clause 27, I have no doubt that what the testator meant was that should he have a son at the time of his death that son would take absolutely and defeat the alternative gift to charity. Should he have had such a son and should he have died leaving a male child, alive at the testator's death, then the last-named grandson would defeat the gift to charity. The intention cannot, in my opinion, be that should a son be born to the testator and be alive at his death, he should take an estate conditioned against the charity by having a son of his own. I read the Will as intending to confer an absolute estate, against the charity, upon any son or grandson of the testator who might be alive when the Will came into force. But should there be no such son or grandson living, then the residue of the "punji" was to go at once and absolutely to charity. I do not understand the testator to have meant, or said, that even if he had a son at the time of his death, that son was only to take conditionally against the suspended gift to charity, the condition being that before his estate could become absolute, he must have a son of his own. In other words, I do not understand this to be a bequest to charity conditioned in futuro upon the testator's son, should he have left a son him surviving, in his turn having no son. In my opinion had there been a son of the testator alive at the date of the testator's death, the charity would have been at an end. In this view the gift is not conditioned in futuro, but an absolute gift in the alternative. If a son be alive at my death, then no gift to charity, but if there be neither son nor grandson alive at my death then an absolute and immediate gift to charity, such is what I understand the testator to have meant and said. In holding then that the gift is good, I am not contradicting anything I have said in a previous judgment of my own [Jainabai v. R. D. Sethna (13)], upon which Mr. Setalvad relied, or relaxing in any degree what I conceive to be the very strict limitations imposed upon gift by the Muhammadan Law. Nor do I think that this is a case governed by the recent decision of the Privy Council in Chunilal Parvatishankar v. Bai Samrath (14). With greatest deference to the highest judicial tribunal in the land, I can only say for myself that I find much difficulty in understanding how the principle which I understand to underlie that decision, could be given anything like uniform practical application. There, there was a devise to the testator's two sons equally of the whole estate, and it was provided that in the event of one son predeceasing the other without male issue, the surviving brother should take the whole. Again, speaking with submission, I should, from a very long experience of the natives of this country, their habits of life, social ideas and testamentary notions generally, have had no hesitation in concluding, as the learned Judges of appeal here did conclude, that the intention was that if one of the testator's sons should die during the testator's life-time without leaving male issue, then the other son should take the whole estate and make due provision for the maintenance of his sister-in-law. But their Lordships of the Privy Council held, seemingly without hesitation or doubt, that the true construction of the Will was that even though both sons should have survived the testator, and each should have accordingly taken half of the estate, yet, upon the death of one of them without leaving male issue, the other was to take his share. The practical objection which I have ventured to suggest is that, after such a gift had vested, and to all seeming absolutely, it is difficult to understand how the donee could be prevented from wholly dissipating it if he chose to do so. In the case put, for example, let us suppose that the two sons had taken the estate in equal shares in the year, say, 1910, and both had lived to the year 1960, when one died. Let us suppose that in the meantime the son who died first in 1960 had been actively engaged in commerce or land speculation and had enormously added to what he had received in 1910, while at the same time leaving his whole estate so blended and intermixed that it would be utterly impossible to say how much of it had come to him under the Will in 1910, could it be held that the surviving brother was to take the whole against, say, a surviving widow or a daughter? Certainly not. But if not the whole, then how much? I will not pursue that subject. Suffice it to say that in the construction I put upon this Will no difficulty of that kind need arise nor need I consider the hard doctrine laid down in the case of Chunilal Parvatishankar v. Bai Samrath (14)

ADVOCATE-GENERAL V. JIMBABAI.

I hold therefore :

(13) 6 Ind. Cas. 513; 12 Bom. L. R. 341; 34 B. 604.

(14) 23 Ind. Cas. 646; 6 Bom. L. R. 366; 26 M. L. J. 647; 18 C. W. N. 844; 19 C. L. J. 563; 12 A. L. J. 742; 16 M. L. T. 59; 38 B. 399; 1 L. W. 762.

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU.

That it is well established and conclusively proved in this trial that Cutchi Memons have acquired by custom the power of disposing of the whole of their property by Will.

I hold that it is not proved in this case and never has been proved affirmatively that the Cutchi Memons have ever adopted as part of their Customary Law the Hindu Law of the joint family, as a whole, or the distinction existing in that law between ancestral family, and joint family and self-acquired property.

I hold further that Cutchi Memons are subject by custom to the Hindu Law of succession and inheritance as it would apply to the case of an intestate separated Hindu possessed of self-acquired property, and no more.

I further hold that the Will challenged in this suit is a good and valid Will in all respects, and that the bequests to charity are neither void for uncertainty nor bad under the Muhammadan Law as offending against the radical principle that a gift must be made in presenti, and not conditioned in futuro.

Various other points were taken in the pleadings, and have been raised in the form of issues. With the exception of certain allegations made against Mr. Hormasji, Vakil, none of these were gone into at the trial, nor any mention made of them in the arguments. The allegations against Mr. Hormasji were, after his evidence had been recorded, withdrawn. As to the other points, I take it that the various parties who took them intentionally abandoned them, since no evidence was led upon any of them nor were they mentioned in the elaborate concluding arguments of Counsel. Some, I gathered, were left to be referred to the Commissioner, should a reference be found necessary, after judgment had been given on the main controversy. I am not, therefore, now in a position to say anything further upon, or attempt to decide any of those subordinate and incidental points.

By consent: The usual administration decree in terms of prayers (a), (b), (c) and (d) of the plaint. Referred to the Commissioner Issues Nos. 12 and 13 to be argued after the receipt of the Commissioner's report. Issue No. 14 also referred to the Commissioner.

All costs out of the estate including costs of a motion for Receiver. The costs of the Advocate-General between attorney and client. Those of the executors as between attorney and client.

On the strength of authorities [Mills v. Farmer (15), Currie v. Pye (16) and Moggridge v. Thackwell (17)], I think I may give defendant No. 7 her costs out of the estate as between attorney and client. So ordered.

Further costs and directions reserved.

Order accordingly.

(15) (1815) 19 Ves. (Jun.) 483; 1 Mer. 55; 13 R. R. 247; 34 E. R. 595.

(16) (1811) 17 Ves. (Jan.) 462 at p. 468; 34 E. R. 179.

(17) (1803) 7 Ves. (Jun.) 36; 32 E. R. 15; 6 R.R. 76.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL NO. 101 OF 1913.

August 20, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer, Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter and Mr. Justice Napier.

Y. S. VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY—
PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

A. SUBBA NAIDU AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Construction of documents—Surrounding circumstances—Intention—All clauses to be given effect to—Assignment of debt—Debtor's assent communicated to assignee—Debtor, whether can subsequently plead any claim or charge—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 132—Actionable claim—Transfer prima facie subject to equities—Transferee, liability of, to ascertain extent of equities—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 23—"Without prejudice," meaning of, when used in a private document.

A Court is empowered to look to surrounding circumstances in deciding what the intention of the parties to a particular transaction was. [p. 155, col. 2.]

Parties are bound by the words they have used, however clear their intention may be. [p. 157, col. 2.]

In construing a document, a Court will not adopt such a construction as will reduce one important clause of it to a nullity. (Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.) [p. 158, col. 2.]

Where there is an assignment of moneys in the hands of a debtor and the debtor communicates to the assignee his assent to deliver the moneys in accordance with the terms of the assignment, he cannot afterwards assert, as against the assignee, any claim or charge in his own right, of which no notice had been given to the assignee. [p. 157, col. 1.]

Walker v. Roston, 9 M. & W. 411; 11 L. J. Ex. 173; 60 R. R. 770; 152 E. R. 174; Griffin v. Weatherby, 3 Q. B. 753; 9 B. & S. 726; 37 L. J. Q. B. 280; 18 L. T. 881; 17 W. R. 8 and Macfarlane v. Lister, 57 L. J. Ch. 92; 58 L. T. 201; 37 Ch. D. 88, followed.

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY V. SURBA NAIDU.

Liversidge v. Broadbent, (1859) 4 H. & N. 603; 7 W. R. 615; 28 L. J. Ex. 332; 118 R. R. 643, referred to.

Quere.—Whether this obligation is based on contract, estoppel, or waiver? [p. 157, col. 1.]

Under section 132 of the Transfer of Property Act, the assignee of an actionable claim prima facie takes it subject to all existing equities and it is his duty to ascertain their extent. [p. 157, col. 2.]

Mangles v. Dixon, (1852) 3 H. L. C. 702; 1 Mac. & G. 437; 1 Hall. & Tw. 542; 19 L. J. Ch. 247; 10 E. R. 278; 88 R. R. 296, referred to.

The onus of proving affirmatively that the assignment of an actionable claim is free from an existing right, is upon the assignee. [p. 157, col. 2.]

The words 'without prejudice' when used in private documents, have not the well-known meaning which they have when used in connection with an actual or impending litigation. [p. 158, col. 1.]

Letters Patent Appeal from the judgment of the Chief Justice and Oldfield, J., dated the 16th September 1913, in Original Side Appeal No. 44 of 1912 (Civil Suit No. 210 of 1909).

FACTS of the case appear from the judgment.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar and A. Suryanarayaniah, for the Appellant:—The learned Trial Judge erred in law in granting leave to amend the written statement as he did. Before that order, the case of the 3rd defendant Company was, that it was only a stake-holder. Otherwise it admitted the plaintiff's claim. Where, therefore, the claim of the 4th defendant was satisfied and he withdrew from the suit, the 3rd defendant had absolutely no defence. It was neither legal nor equitable under such circumstances, especially after the case had been pending for a very long time, that the 3rd defendant should have, at that late stage, been allowed to raise for the first time a new defence. The 3rd defendant Company must stand or fall by the position which it originally took up and since there were no longer any rival claimants before the Court, it ought not to be allowed to resist the plaintiff's claim on any ground other than the one originally put forward by it. The defendant Company is not entitled to anything more than commission. They are certainly not entitled to interest or disbursements. Exhibit A is very clear. It refers only to commission. The parties are bound by the words used. Their intention is immaterial. The addition of the words 'without prejudice' is meaningless and without any effect. Clause 12 of the agreement creates no lien. Clause 12 is subject to clause 11 and under the latter clause the defendant Company has to pay all current balance, after satisfying certain claims, to the mine owners. Further under Exhibit E, as soon as the mine owners extracted any mica from the mines designated and put it in a deliverable state, the mica became appropriated to the purposes of the lien, and the plaintiff obtained a special property therein. It is not open to the defendant Company at this stage of the litigation to agitate the point as to the maintainability of suit. They did not raise it in the pleadings and no issue was joined thereon. On the other hand, the additional issue framed by Sankaran Nair, J., assumed the existence of such a contract. Wallis, J., as well as the Appellate Bench rightly refused to allow this point to be raised.

Admittedly there was a valid assignment in favour of the plaintiff. The assignment had been communicated by the defendant Company to the plaintiff. It is not competent to the defendant Company to assert any charge or claim of which they have not given notice to the plaintiff. See Griffin v. Weatherby (1); Walker v. Rostron (2) and Macfarlane v. Lister (3).

Mr. D. Chamiar and Dr. K. Pandarai, instructed by Messrs. Short, Bewes & Co., for the Respondents:—The suit itself is not maintainable. First, there was no contract between the defendant Company and the plaintiff and secondly, between the mine owners and the defendant Company which could give the plaintiff a right to sue. See Liversidge v. Broadbent (4). The order granting leave to amend the written statement is perfectly legal and equitable. The defendant Company never admitted the plaintiff's claim. By using the word 'commission' in Exhibit A, it was never intended to give up the rights of the defendant Company under the agreement of 1906. The discrepancy between the language of the agreement and that of the assignment was not discovered until after the action was well started. See also Ex-

(1) 3 Q. B. 753; 9 B. & S. 726; 37 L. J. Q. B. 280 18 L. T. 881; 17 W. R. 8.

(2) 9 M. & W. 411; 11 L. J. Ex. 173; 60 R. R. 770; 152 E. R. 174.

(3) 37 Ch. D. 86; 57 L. J. Ch. 92; 58 L. T. 201.

(4) (1859) 28 L. J. Ex. 232; 4 H. & N. 603; 7 W. R. 615; 118 R. R. 643.

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU.

hibits B, D, F and G for similar inaccuracies. The expression there used, viz., 'proceeds of mica' means, even according to plaintiff, 'net proceeds after deducting commission.' Under section 132 of the Transfer of Property Act an assignee of an actionable claim takes it subject to all existing equities. Mangles v. Dixon (5). The onus of proving that the assignment is free from the existing right of the defendant Company, is on the plaintiff. He has had notice of the contract between the defendant Company and the mine owners, under which the former were entitled to deduct not only commission but also interest and disbursements. The addition of the words 'without prejudice' to Exhibit A and A1 is significant. They cannot be treated as mere surplusage. The writer must certainly have meant something. From the context in which they are used, it is clear that they are not used in the ordinary sense in which they are used in connection with pending litigation. As the writer says, what was meant by the words was 'without prejudice to the existing rights of the Company.'

JUDGMENT.—This was an action brought by a merchant in Cuddapah, called Venkata Subbiah Chetty, against two persons, who may for brevity be called the "Naidus," the South Indian Export Company and Heinrich Brandt. The facts giving rise to the action are as follows:—

The Naidus were the owners of some mica mines in Nellore. On the 17th of February 1906, they entered into an agreement, Exhibit I, with the South Indian Export Company regarding the working of the mines and disposal of the produce. The general nature of the agreement was that the Company should receive the produce of the mines and sell it, should receive a commission on the gross amounts realized by sale and certain specified disbursements incurred in connection therewith. They were further to give the owners a standing advance of Rs. 55,000, and were to receive on that sum and on any further sums they might advance, interest at 6 per cent. (Clause 5). It was provided by clause 11 that the Company should first pay the commission, interest and disbursements due to themselves out of the realized proceeds of the mica sales, then pay various creditors of the Naidus in certain proportions and hand the balance, if any, to the Naidus. Clause 12 provided that the Company should, subject to clause 11, have a lien on all cash and mica in their hands as security for the repayment of all sums which might fall due under the agreement. The agreement was to continue to be in force for five years from 1st of March 1906, and all moneys due to the Company, including the standing advance of Rs. 55,000, were to be paid off and discharged not later than two months before the expiration of the agreement, i. e., by the 1st of January 1911.

(5) (1852) 3 H. L. C. 702; 1 Mac. & G. 437; 1 Hall. & Tw. 542; 19 L. J. Ch. 240; 10 E. R. 278; 88 R. R. 296.

The agreement duly came into force, and under it quantities of mica were sold and payments made by the Company to the various creditors of the Naidus, including the plaintiff. Meanwhile the Naidus were being pressed by the plaintiff for further security and a further share of the proceeds of the mines. He had apparently obtained decrees against them to an amount exceeding a lakh of rupees. In these circumstances the Naidus entered into an arrangement with the plaintiff, which is set out in a letter dated the 20th of November 1908 (Exhibit E). The material part of that letter is as follows:—

"We undertake that all the mica produced in our mines at Kalichedu and Tellabodu will be delivered only through the South Indian Export Company; and that the net sale-proceeds after deducting their commission will be paid to you only by the said Company. In confirmation of this our undertaking, we have this day caused the Manager, South Indian Export Company, to give you an undertaking that the sale-proceeds will be paid to you by him as aforesaid. We hereby agree and give you a lien on the mica now in our hands and future mica from the above said mines till the above said amounts are fully repaid."

On the same date the Naidus wrote to the South Indian Export Company a letter (Exhibit A1) which contains the following passage:

"We request you to give an undertaking to Venkata Subbiah Chetty that you will pay him from time to time the net sale-proceeds, after deducting your commission, of all the mica produced in our mines at Kalichedu and Tellabodu that we shall deliver through you as per agreement between ourselves."

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU.

On the following day, the 21st of November, the South Indian Export Company wrote to the plaintiff a letter (Exhibit A) in these terms:

"We have received a letter from Messrs. Subba Naidu and Kondappa Naidu, dated the 20th November, copy of which we enclose for your information. The contents of this letter have been duly noted by us and the instructions given therein, will be carried out as occasion arises."

Enclosed with this letter was a copy of the Naidus' letter of the 20th November to the Company (Exhibit A1) and both documents were headed "without prejudice."

It will be observed that, whereas the agreement of the 17th February 1906 enabled the Company to deduct their commission, disbursements and interest in the first instance out of the sale-proceeds of the mica, Exhibit A is a direction to the Company to pay the net sale proceeds after deducting commission only, without any mention of disbursements or interest. It seems quite clear in the light of what happened subsequently that 'commission' was in fact used as a compendious term to include interest and disbursements as well, and that neither the Company nor the Naidus, who were parties to the agreement of February 1906, nor the plaintiff, who was also acquainted with it, noticed the variation in phraseology. It has been suggested in this Court that we ought to suppose that the parties deliberately and with intention altered the rights of the Company under the agreement of February 1906 by this correspondence, and that we may assume that some forbearance on the part of the plaintiff in pursuing his remedies against the Naidus was the inducement offered to the Company for giving up their right of priority in payment of interest and disbursements. There is no trace of anything of the sort in any of the documents, and no evidence to that effect was sought to be given at the trial. Mr. Simson, the Managing Director of the Company, was examined as a witness, and even although it was not directly in issue, it is almost impossible to believe that he would not have been asked some question about it if any such tripartite arrangement had taken place. In accordance with the instructions contained in the letter of the 20th November 1908 (Exhibit A1), the Company proceeded to remit the balance of the proceeds of the Kalichedu and Tellabodu mica to the plaintiff. It is not in evidence what deductions they made from it in respect of their own charges. But again it is difficult to believe that, if they had in fact discontinued the deduction of interest and disbursements, that fact would not have been brought out at the trial. Their interpretation of what their rights were, would not, of course, determine them, but it is an element in the history of the case. While we are on this point, we may say that we do not share the doubt expressed by one of the learned Judges who heard the first appeal as to our power to look to surrounding circumstances in deciding what the intention of the parties was [See River Wear Commissioners v. Adamson (6)].

All went well until June 1909, when the Company received instructions from the Naidus to deliver the proceeds of certain cases of mica to one Ramachandra Chetty. They at once by a letter of the 24th of June (vide Exhibit B) notified the plaintiff of these instructions; and on the 26th of June Mr. Ramachandra Raju, the plaintiff's then Vakil, answered by a letter (Exhibit F) of that date protesting against the proposed delivery to Ramachandra Chetty, informing the Company that the proposal was an unlawful one and demanding delivery of the sale-proceeds to the plaintiff. The Company, thereupon, communicated with the Naidus, who informed them [vide Exhibit H] (1) that the 37 cases of mica did not come from Kalichedu or Tellabodu; and (2) that the plaintiff had broken his contract with the Naidus and consequently absolved them from the further carrying out of the arrangement of 1908. In fact both these statements proved to be untrue, though doubtless the Company had not then the means of knowing their falsity. At any rate, on the 16th of July, by a letter of that date (Exhibit J), the Company informed the plaintiff that they had been instructed that the mica did not come from Kalichedu or Tellabodu, and that they were, therefore, about to deliver to (6) 2 A. C. 743 at p. 763; 47 L. J. Q. B. 193; 37 L. T. 543; 26 W. R. 217.

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU.

Ramachandra Chetty. This brought the matter to a head, and, after some further correspondence, the plaintiff instituted this suit, joining as defendants, the two Naidus and the South Indian Export Company as the 3rd defendant. The plaintiff in his plaint set out the effect of the correspondence of November 1908, claimed specific performance 'of the contract evidenced by' that correspondence, and payment to him of the net sale-proceeds of the 36 cases of mica. The Company then applied to the Court to have Heinrich Brandt, the 4th defendant, added to the suit on the ground that he, as a secured creditor of the Naidus, had claims against the proceeds of the mica, which might conflict with the claims of the plaintiff. They also filed a written statement in which they set out the provisions of the agreement of February 1906, and asserted their claim to deduct interest, commission and disbursements under that agreement and disclaimed any interest in the balance, asking only to be protected against the rival claims of the plaintiff and the Naidus and the 4th defendant (vide paragraphs Nos. 11, 13 and 16). Subsequently the claim of the 4th defendant was in some manner satisfied and withdrawn; and an application was made to Bakewell, J., by the defendant Company to amend their written statement. Leave was given and certain amendments were made. It was strenuously argued by Mr. Rangachariar on behalf of the plaintiff that this leave ought never to have been given and that the amendments should be disregarded, on the ground that until the amendments were made the defendant Company had only taken up the position of stake-holders, and that on the withdrawal of the 4th defendant from the suit, they ceased, on their own showing, to have any defence and that they ought not, after the action had been pending for a considerable time, to be allowed for the first time to resist the plaintiff's claim on any other ground than the presence of rival claimants. If it were the fact that the defendant Company had conceded the plaintiff's claim as now formulated, except as subject to the claims of the 4th defendant, this contention would have great force. But it is not the fact that the defendant Company ever submitted to the claim ultimately made by the plaintiff in this action. The claim made in the plaint appears on examination to be one thing, the submission in the defence another, the claim being for the net proceeds less commission only, the submission being to pay the net proceeds less not only commission but interest and disbursements as well. We very much doubt whether the parties or their Pleaders had at this time realized this discrepancy, or whether any question as to the nature or extent of the deductions was present to the mind of the plaintiff at the time that the suit was filed. But whether the parties had realized it or not, there it was on the pleadings and it is not correct to say that the amendment allowed, enabled the defendant Company to resist the claim finally made, that they were not entitled to deduct disbursements and interest. What the amendment did effect was to enable the Company to claim for the first time an alleged lien on the mica and its proceeds by reason of the termination, reached during the pendency of the suit, of the agreement of February 1906. All sums repayable under that agreement had fallen due on the 1st of January 1911, including the standing advance of Rs. 55,000; and if their lien was valid, the debt in respect of which it was exercised would be increased by at least Rs. 55,000 as from that date. This was a claim, good or bad, which the Company could not have made in their original written statement, and it cannot be seriously pressed that we ought to interfere with the discretion of the learned Judge allowing the amendment which raised it.

A long discussion took place in the argument before us as to whether the present action was maintainable at all. Mr. Chamier contended on behalf of the defendant Company that there was no contract between the defendant Company and the plaintiff and, assuming that to be established, there was no contract between the Naidus and the defendant Company on which the plaintiff could sue. Mr. Rangachariar for the plaintiff, while resisting those propositions, further contended that the point was not open to the defendant Company, as it was not raised in the pleadings and that the first additional issue settled by Sankaran Nair, J., after the 3rd defendant had amended his written statement, implied the existence of a valid contract between the plaintiff and the defendant Company. It is no doubt a strong thing to allow the defendant to take a point which does not appear in the pleadings and the issues, and both the trial Judge, Wallis, J., and the Bench before whom this appeal was originally heard, refused to allow them to do so. This, however, is a very exceptional case, because, in our opinion, it is reasonably clear that, at the time of the drafting of the pleadings and the first settlement of issues, certainly the defendant Company and probably the plaintiff, and their respective advisers, had not grasped the extent of the plaintiff's ultimate claim. However, in the view we take of this case, it is not necessary to decide the point whether it is open to the defendant Company or not, or whether either of the alleged contracts were made. There was—and this is not disputed—at any rate a valid assignment in favour of the plaintiff, and the real question is, what, on the true construction of the documents, was it that passed by the assignment?

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY V. SUBBA NAIDU.

It seems to be clear law that where there is an assignment of moneys in the hands of a debtor and the debtor communicates to the assignee his assent to deliver the moneys in accordance with the terms of the assignment, he cannot afterwards assert, as against the assignee, any claim or charge in his own right, of which he has given the assignee no notice. It is not quite clear from the authorities whether this obligation is based upon contract, estoppel or waiver, but the existence of the obligation is clearly recognised in the English authorities both before and after the Judicature Act. See Walker v. Rostron (2) and Griffin v. Weatherby (1). These cases are not altogether easy to reconcile with Liversidge v. Broadbent (4). But the decision in Macfarlane v. Lister (3) seems quite unequivocal.

It seems reasonably clear that the simple word 'commission', used in Exhibit A1, to describe deductions to be made by the defendant Company, was used per incuriam; and that there was no intention to cut down the defendant Company's right under the agreement of February 1906. Moreover, as has been pointed out, it was not until the action was well started that the discrepancy between the language of the assignment and the agreement was discovered. Similar inaccuracies occur elsewhere in the correspondence. For instance, in Exhibits B, D, F and G, "the proceeds of the mica" is used where what was meant was 'the net proceeds after deduction (even on the plaintiff's own showing) of the commission fees.' However clear the intention of the parties may be, they are bound by the words they have used, and it is impossible to say that commission means commission plus something else. If, therefore, there were nothing to qualify or amplify the word 'commission' in Exhibit A1, or in the defendant Company's adoption of it in Exhibit A, we should be constrained to hold that the defendant Company had given away their right to interest and disbursements. It is to be observed that by section 132 of the Transfer of Property Act, the assignee prima facie takes subject to all existing equities. It is the duty of the assignee to ascertain the extent of the existing equities [Vide Mangles v. Dixon (5)] and where there is an existing right, the onus will be upon the assignee to show affirmatively that the assignment to him was free of it. We have come to the conclusion that Exhibits A and A1, when carefully examined, do not amount to an assignment free from the claims of the defendant Company to interest and disbursements. In the first place Exhibit A1 speaks of the mica as being "delivered as per agreement between ourselves." That clearly informed the plaintiff that mica was being delivered in accordance with a contract subsisting between the Naidus and the defendant Company. It is in evidence that the plaintiff was cognizant of the terms of that contract under which indeed he took a direct benefit (See clause 11—II). It must, we think, be taken that this brought to his knowledge the fact that there was an agreement under which the defendant Company had a right to deduct interest and disbursements as well as commission. The business purpose of Exhibit A was to inform the plaintiff that in future the proceeds of the Kalichedu and Tellabodu mines would go to him in their entirety after they left the defendant Company's hands and not to the Naidus and further, would not be depleted by prior payments to other creditors of the Naidus. Still, again, though that may have been the business object of the letter, if it really purported to cut down the Company's rights, the plaintiff is entitled to take advantage of that.

VENKATA SUBBIAH CHETTY v. SUBBA NAIDU.

Finally, both to Exhibit A and Exhibit Al the Company prefixed the words "without prejudice." When used in connection with actual or impending litigation, these words have a well-known meaning which is quite inapplicable to their use in these documents. On the other hand it is a strong thing to treat them, as the plaintiff desires us to treat them, as unmeaning and of no effect. The writer undoubtedly meant something by the phrase, and if what he meant could or ought to have been understood by the recipient, we must give effect to it. We know what the writer meant, because he said what he meant in the witness-box. The question was probably inadmissible, but it was put and answered without objection. He said that he 'meant without prejudice to the Company's rights under the agreement of 1906.' The question is, did the plaintiff know, or ought he to have known, what Mr. Simson meant? We think that the proper inference is, he ought, and did. He had in Exhibit Al a clear reference to the agreement of 1906, of whose terms he was cognizant before. And after all, this interpretation seems to us to be in accordance with the ordinary and natural meaning of the words. It is quite true that when a man makes an offer "without prejudice," the effect is to prohibit the reading of the letter if the offer is not accepted. But the actual meaning of the words in such a case is this: "I am making an offer which I do not admit I am bound to make; and I make it without prejudice to my existing legal rights." In other words, "you shall not use this letter as an admission that I owe what I offer." So here we think that "without prejudice" meant 'without prejudice to the Company's existing legal rights,' that is, to their rights under the agreement of 1906, to which express reference was made in Exhibit Al. There is in fact no offer, only a notice that they were aware of a certain assignment, and an assurance that the instructions would be given effect to without prejudice to their own rights and without binding themselves to any course in future. That is, in our view, the effect of the letter.

This disposes of the main point in the appeal; for Mr. Rangachariar concedes that, if the defendant Company's claim to deduct interest and disbursements is good, no enquiry is necessary to ascertain whether the proceeds of the 36 cases of mica will be exhausted thereby. But the further question was decided by the learned trial Judge, and is before us, as to whether, as after 1st January 1911, the defendant Company were entitled to exercise a lien on the goods for their advances which then became repayable, as well as for interest and disbursements. As we have held that the plaintiff took subject to the defendant Company's rights under the agreement of 1906, it follows that he took subject to any lien created by that agreement; and reliance is placed on clause 12 as creating such a lien. Mr. Rangachariar in effect argues that no lien at all was created by that instrument. He says that the lien created by that clause was in terms subject to clause 11 and clause 11 obliged the defendant Company to pay all current balance after satisfying certain claims to the owners, the Naidus. A Court will not readily adopt a construction that reduces one important clause of an agreement to a nullity; and where a man professes by his contract to give a lien to another, any reasonable construction will be adopted to give effect to it: ut res magis valeat quam pereat. A perfectly natural construction gives effect to both clauses; viz., that the operation of the lien is subject to the discharge of all payments guaranteed to be made except those to the Naidus themselves; and that their right to receive the balance depended on there being no further increase under clause 5 of the standing loan of Rs. 55,000. We are, therefore, of opinion that the lien created by the agreement of February 1906 was valid and could be exercised in respect of the capital sums falling due from the Naidus to the Company. The right to enforce it against the proceeds of any particular consignment, might conceivably depend upon the facts as to that consignment; and the only consignment in question in these proceedings is that of the 36 cases of mica already referred to, with regard to which the question need not be considered on Mr. Rangachariar's admission. We understand that subsequent consignments with regard to which the question of the general lien will be important are the subject of another pending action. We, therefore, desire to guard ourselves against prejudging in any way the results of those proceedings.

KURA V. MADHO.

One other contention requires to be noticed. Mr. Rangachariar contended that the lien which the Naidus purported to give the plaintiff by the concluding words of Exhibit E, was of such a nature that, as soon as they extracted any mica from the designated mines and put it in a deliverable condition, there was a specific appropriation of such mica to the purposes of the lien, passing a special property in it to the plaintiff. In support of this contention he cited Maradugula Venkataratnam v. Kotala Ramanna (7). It is more than doubtful whether in face of clause 12 of the agreement of February 1906 the lien purported to be given to the plaintiff was one which the Naidus could validly give. But be that as it may, it could obviously give no property in the mica as the arrangement never contemplated that the mica should ever be handled by the plaintiff at any stage after it left the mine in a merchantable condition; it was to be consigned for sale not to him, but to the defendant Company; and even if the lien is to be treated as an assignment, the assignment to him was not of the proceeds in his own hands but in the hands of the defendant Company. In these circumstances, it is impossible to hold that there was at any time any appropriation of the mica to him.

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs, certified for two Counsel.

Appeal dismissed.

(7) 9 Ind. Cas. 255; 21 M. L. J. 413; 9 M. L. T. 276.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 502 OF 1911.

April 1, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Shah Din

KURA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—
APPELLANTS

versus

MADHO AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS,

AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 13, Expl. II—Res judicata—First suit as purchasers—Second suit as reversioners—Purchase of ancestral property by reversioners, effect of—Waiver—Acquiescence.

After a land was sold to the defendants, it was sold again to the plaintiffs-reversioners, and when the latter sued their vendor for possession of the land as purchasers, the former, having been added as parties, set up their prior purchase as a defence and the plaintiffs' claim was dismissed. Upon this, the plaintiffs sued as reversioners for a declaration on the ground that the land was ancestral and the sale, being in favour of defendants, was without consideration and necessity.

Held, that the plaintiffs' suit was not barred by the rule of res judicata. [p. 160, col. 1.]

A reversioner by purchasing an ancestral property does not admit the alienor's unrestricted powers, nor does he thereby renounce his position and rights as reversioner. [p. 160, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Hoshiarpur Division, dated the 19th January 1911.

Lala Balwant Rai, for the Appellants.

Mr. Sundar Das, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT—This further appeal under the old law was "admitted on grounds 3 and 4." Appellants-defendants, however, claimed that, according to law and practice the appeal having been admitted, they are entitled to argue each and every ground stated in the memorandum of appeal. Evidently the learned admitting Judge thought that ground 2 was untenable, and on examination we find that this is so. We also think no case has been made out on grounds 3 and 4. Grounds 1 and 5 are general.

The first clause of ground 2 proceeds on the law of res judicata. The important facts are, that on 1st June 1903 the alienor Daya Ram sold the property in suit to defendants, and on 1st July 1903 he sold the same property to plaintiffs. On 6th June 1904 plaintiffs sued for the land and were met by the sale-deed of 1st June 1903; the claim was dismissed finally by the Chief Court on 15th March 1907. On 22nd October 1907, the present suit was brought for a declaration that the sale of 1st June 1903 was invalid as against plaintiffs-reversioners, as being a sale of ancestral land without consent of reversioners, and not for consideration and "necessity." The first Court applied Explanation II to section 13 of the old Civil Procedure Code, and held that in their earlier suit plaintiffs should have asked for a declaration that the sale of 1st June 1903 was ineffective against them; but the lower Appellate Court ruled that the two suits were based on entirely different causes of action. It is not clear that this amounts to a sufficient refutation of the first Court's views; but nevertheless it seems to us that the matter is not res judicata. It is admitted before us that, before the questions now in issue could have been agitated in the earlier suit, amendment of the plaint would have been necessary. Plaintiffs there sued only their vendor, and the present defendants were added upon his pleas. It seems to us clear that the question, whether the earlier deed should be held invalid as against plaintiffs in the capacity of reversioners was outside the scope of the suit as laid, and the importation of it into the case would have made the suit one of a different nature and probably also multifarious. The explanation, therefore, does not apply, and we overrule ground 2 (a).

KURA P. MADHO.

Ground 2 (b) is concerned with waiver or acquiescence. Again, the first Court found for defendants, the reasons given being that plaintiffs, by themselves purchasing on 1st July 1903, admitted alienor's unrestricted powers; and Labh Singh v. Gopi (1) is quoted in support. There the waiver was presumed from the fact that plaintiff's grandfather had already sued for pre-emption on the occurrence of the obnoxious alienation. Here plaintiffs-reversioners by purchasing merely accelerated the coming of the property to themselves, being willing by paying a sum down to avoid the necessity of waiting till succession should open out. We are unable to see how a reversioner by purchasing renounces his position and rights as reversioner. Ground 2 (b) is overruled.

Ground 3 does not impress us. No doubt defendants did plead that plaintiffs were not reversioners and that the land was not ancestral. The first Court dismissed the suit upon the doctrines of res judicata and waiver and did not go into other points. The lower Appellate Court set aside the findings on those two points, and remanded for re-trial, an order that was altered by this Court into one under Order XXI, rule 25, for enquiry and report. The "report" dealt only with the questions of consideration and "necessity." Plaintiffs put in certain objections to it, but defendants never objected that the questions of reversionership of plaintiffs or of ancestral nature of the property should have been gone into; and in the lower Appellate Court, at the final hearing, apparently not a word was said about those questions. These facts, coupled with the implicit admission in defendants' res judicata and waiver pleas that plaintiffs had a locus standi, make it clear to us that issues 1 and 2 were tacitly dropped; and we cannot agree with the learned Advocate for the appellants that the case must go against plaintiffs because they cited no evidence to prove relationship or the descent of the property from the common ancestor.

Ground 4 is untenable. The lower Appellate Court has shown unmistakably that consideration and "necessity" have not been made out. The marriage of Daya Ram, the alleged "necessary" event, has not even yet come off, Rs. 286 of the Rs. 500 purchase-money has not been paid even yet, and Rs. 104 "received at home" is almost certainly a fiction.

For the reasons we dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

In re PARAMESWARA NAMUDURI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE NO. 18 OF 1915.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION NO. 14
OF 1915.

August 26, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

In re K. PARAMESWARA NAMUDURI—
ACCUSED NO. 2—PETITIONER.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 195
(1) (b)—False endorsement on promissory note with intent to use it as evidence—Suit on promissory note —Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 193, complaint under—Sanction for prosecution, if necessary.

Section 195 (1) (b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure aims at providing that where, prior to the institution of a criminal prosecution, a properly constituted judicial tribunal has placed itself in a position to determine whether the facts constituting the offence really exist, the Criminal Court should decline cognizance unless that tribunal has, in effect, certified that in its opinion, the complaint is one worthy of investigation. That safeguard should not be limited to cases where the offence is committed pendente lite but should extend also to fabrication of false evidence in advance. [p. 162, col. 1.]

Noor Mahomed v. Kaikhosru, 4 Bom. L. R. 268; Lalla Prasad v. Emperor, 17 Ind. Cas. 794; 13 Cr. L. J. 863; 10 A. L. J. 294; 34 A. 654; Giridhari Maricari v. Emperor, 12 C. W. N. 822; 8 C. L. J. 73; 8 Cr. L. J. 51; Teni Shah v. Bolahi Shah, 5 Ind. Cas. 879; 14 C. W. N. 479; 11 Cr. L. J. 250, followed.

When an offence is of such a nature that at the time of committing it, the accused must have legal proceedings in mind and prior to his being charged with the commission of the offence, legal proceedings of the same nature have already commenced in any Court, it is most in consonance with the intention of the Legislature to require that the sanction of the Court should be obtained. [p. 164, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, the complaint set out that the accused wrote an endorsement on a promissory note executed in favour of the complainant, purporting to record a payment of Rs. 1,500 while no such payment was ever made and that the accused intended to use the endorsement as evidence in case the complainant brought a civil suit to recover the amount due:

Held, that the uncertainty at the time of writing the endorsement as to whether any suit could ever be brought, did not affect the completeness of the offence and that the Court could not take cognizance of the offence without the sanction of the Civil Court. [p. 161, col. 2; p. 162, col. 1.]

Petition, under sections 435 and 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Malapuram, in Calendar Case No. 25 of 1914 (since re-numbered as Calendar Case No. 106 of 1914).

Mr. A. Sivarama Menon, for the Petitioner.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Government.

ORDER.

AYLING, J. — The complaint in this case sets out that sometime in the month of Chingam 1087 (Malabar) corresponding to August 1912, the accused persons, the present petitioners, wrote an endorsement on a promissory note, which had been executed in favour of the complainant (present counter-petitioner), purporting to record a payment of Rs. 1,500 towards that promissory note. No such payment, according to complainant, was ever made; and his case is that the endorsement was written with the intention that it might appear in evidence in case he (complainant) brought a civil suit to recover the amount due on the promissory note.

Now assuming that complainant is in a position to make out (1) that accused wrote the endorsement, (2) that the payment which it purports to record was never made, (3) that the intention of accused was that the endorsement should appear in evidence in a judicial proceeding, then the offence of fabricating false evidence defined in section 192, Indian Penal Code, and made punishable by section 193, Indian Penal Code, would seem to be established. The intention above referred to, must almost necessarily be a matter of inference, but if it were shown that the accused could have had no other object than the appearance of the endorsement in evidence, in case a suit should be brought on the promissory note, then I do not think the uncertainty, at the time of writing the endorsement as to whether any suit would ever actually be brought, affects the completeness of the offence.

The question is whether in this case the Joint Magistrate before whom the complaint was presented on 20th February 1914 was precluded from taking cognizance of the offence by reason of section 195 (1) (b), Code of Criminal Procedure. I agree with my learned brother that the earlier presentation of the complaint before a Magistrate who had no jurisdiction to entertain it, may be disregarded.

In re PARAMESWARA NAMBUDDI.

It is admitted that before 20th February 1914, complainant had actually filed a suit on the promissory note (Original Suit No. 275 of 1912 on the file of the Court of the District Munsif of Walawanad) and got a decree which was at that time under appeal. The question is whether this circumstance renders the sanction of the Civil Court necessary under section 195 (1) (b), Code of Criminal Procedure.

It has been argued before us that it does not; inasmuch as the suit had not admittedly been instituted at the time when the endorsement was written and the offence committed. I cannot accept this view. The object of this clause of the section seems to be to save the time of Criminal Courts being wasted, and accused persons being needlessly harassed, by erecting a safeguard against rash, baseless, or vexatious prosecutions for the offences specified. It aims at doing so by providing that where, prior to the institution of the criminal prosecution, a properly constituted judicial Tribunal has placed itself in a position to determine whether the facts constituting the offence really exist, the Criminal Court should decline cognizance unless that Tribunal has, in effect, certified that, in its opinion, the complaint is one worthy of investigation. I see no reason why this safeguard should be limited to cases where the offence is committed pendente lite; and should not extend to cases of fabrication of false evidence in advance. Its desirability is just as great in the one case as in the other.

It is, of course, necessary that the "proceeding in any Court" referred to in the clause should be actually instituted before the Criminal Court is asked to take cognizance of the offence. If it is not, there is nothing in section 195 to prevent the Court from taking cognizance of the case. And once the Court has lawfully taken cognizance of the case, its jurisdiction is not affected by the subsequent coming into existence of a circumstance which would have barred its jurisdiction, if it had existed at the time of institution.

In my opinion this was a case in which the sanction of the Civil Court was necessary, and the complaint should have been dismissed by the Joint Magistrate.

TYABJI, J.—In this case we are asked to revise an order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Malapuram, dated 23rd April 1915, in which he held that he could take cognizance of the complaint before him notwithstanding that no sanction had been obtained under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

The facts alleged in the complaint are that an endorsement had been falsely made in the handwriting and signature of the 2nd accused to the effect that Rs. 1,500 had been paid in respect of a certain promissory note; and it is admitted before us that if the complainant's story is true, then false evidence was fabricated on or about the 30th of August 1912. The complainant's case is that it was fabricated for the purpose of being used in some stage of a judicial proceeding and that, therefore, an offence under section 193, Indian Penal Code, was committed.

The complaint was filed in the first instance before a 2nd Class Magistrate on 19th November 1912, but as he had no jurisdiction to take cognizance of it, it was transferred on the 20th February 1914 to a Magistrate of the 1st Class.

Between the date of the complaint before the 2nd Class Magistrate and the transfer to the 1st Class Magistrate's Court, civil proceedings were instituted (viz., Original Suit No. 275 of 1912 in the Court of the District Munsif of Malawanad, resulting in Appeal No. 40 of 1913 which was disposed of on 13th October 1913). The promissory note is alleged to have been filed as an Exhibit in these civil proceedings.

It seems to me to be clear that the complaint before the 2nd Class Magistrate cannot be considered for fixing the date of the criminal proceedings, as that Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the offence.

If this is correct, then the offence is alleged to have been committed on or about 30th August 1912, civil proceedings were commenced some time after, and then on 20th February 1914 the complaint was filed before the first Class Magistrate.

It is admitted that the sanction of the Civil Court has not been obtained and the question arises whether the omission to do so, is fatal to the proceedings in the 1st Class Magistrate's Court.

In re PARAMESWARA NAMUDRI.

Section 195 (1) (b) of the Criminal Procedure Code, as it has to be read in the present connection, provides that no Court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under section 193 of the Indian Penal Code, of fabricating false evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of a judicial proceeding when such offence is committed in or in relation to any proceeding in any Court, except with the previous sanction of the Court. The real point arising in this case is, whether it can be predicated of the offence in question, that it is committed in or in relation to any proceeding in any Court," notwithstanding that the offence was complete before any proceeding had been taken in the Civil Courts.

In Noor Mahomed v. Kaikhasru (1), the acting Chief Presidency Magistrate, in his reference to the High Court, pointed out that if the clause in question is interpreted very widely, it may retrospectively render nugatory many complaints which are valid when filed; and the Court accepting the Magistrate's view, was of opinion that when the offence in question is one under section 471 of the Indian Penal Code (use of a forged document) and the document is alleged to have been used outside the Court, no sanction is necessary. According to this case, if the document has already been used outside the Court and the charge refers to that offence, no sanction is necessary, though subsequently to such use legal proceedings are instituted and the document is produced or given in evidence in Court, and apparently though such production in Court may have been prior to the complaint. A similar view is expressed by Knox, J., in Lalla Prosad v. Emperor (2).

No authority has been cited to us having reference to section 195 (1) (b). The cases brought to our notice were all under section 195 (1) (c).

Clauses (b) and (c) agree in some respects, but differ in this that the offence is identified in clause (b) by reference to the fact that it has a direct connection with some proceeding in Court, viz., having been (i) committed in, or (ii) in relation to the proceeding; whereas in clause (c) the offence has to be connected not with the proceeding, but (i) with a document produced or given in evidence in the proceeding and (ii) by the fact that the document has been produced or given in evidence by a party to the proceeding.

In the one case, it suffices if the offence has reference to the proceeding, in the other, it must have reference to a party to the proceeding, and to a document produced or given in evidence by the party. The corresponding portions of the particular expression on which the present decision turns are also not the same; clause (b) runs "when the offence is committed," clause (c) "when the offence has been committed."

In Giridhari Marwari v. Emperor (3), the Counsel for the prosecution conceded that subsequent legal proceedings altered the circumstances in regard to a charge for forgery (section 463) so that the prosecution could not proceed, though the offence was complete and the complaint had been made before any legal proceedings had been instituted. But the concession was opposed to the decision in Noor Mahomed v. Kaikhasru (1), to which I have just referred and the Court did not in Giridhari Marwari v. Emperor (3) itself express any opinion on the question.

In Teni Shah v. Bolahi Shah (4), it is merely stated at page 480: "this forgery is alleged to have been committed in respect of a document produced at a proceeding in this Court; it comes, therefore, within the express words of section 195 and before the petitioner could be prosecuted for forgery sanction is required." The case does not take us any further.

These decisions, as I have already said, are on clause (c). The offences referred to in clause (b) fall under two classes:—

I. Some of them (e.g., those under the Indian Penal Code sections 205 et seq.) are such as can be committed only in or in relation to, legal proceedings.

II. There are others (including the offence under section 193, Indian Penal Code) which may be committed irrespective of legal proceedings.

(1) 4 Bom. L. R. 268.

(2) 17 Ind. Cas. 799; 13 Cr. L. J. 863; 10 A. L. J. 294; 34 A. 654.

(3) 12 C. W. N. 822; 8 C. L. J. 73; 8 Cr. L. J. 51.

(4) 5 Ind. Cas. 879; 14 C. W. N. 479; 11 Cr. L. J. 280.

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

It is only in regard to an offence falling under the latter head that the qualification "when such offence is committed in or in relation to any proceeding" can have any force.

Again, some of the offences falling under the second head are such that the accused must have legal proceedings in contemplation; and the offence now in question (fabrication of evidence for the purpose of being used in any stage of a judicial proceeding) is obviously one of this nature.

In regard to offences of the last mentioned kind, it seems to me that the operation of the clause must be attracted to cases where, before any charge is brought against the accused, such legal proceedings have already commenced as the prosecution alleges to have been in the contemplation of the accused at the time of the commission of the offence. I can quite see that by interpreting the section in a very strict way when the offence is complete prior to there being any legal proceedings, there may appear no necessity for sanction. For it may be said that no act can be done, and no offence committed, in or in relation to any non-existent proceeding. But as my learned brother points out, the object of the section is to prevent rash, baseless or vexatious prosecutions in regard to offences for which a safeguard is available. Hence when the offence is of such a nature that at the time of committing it, the accused must have legal proceedings in mind, and prior to his being charged with the commission of the offence legal proceedings of the same nature have already commenced in any Court, it seems to me that it is most in consonance with the intention of the Legislature to require that the sanction of the Court should be obtained.

This decision is not opposed to that given in Noor Mahomed v. Kaikhosru (1). For there the offence was under section 471—the use of a forged document—not an offence in which the accused has necessarily any legal proceedings in mind at the time of committing the offence, and the actual offence charged had no reference to any legal proceedings.

In my opinion, therefore, the Court cannot in this case take cognizance of the offence.

Petition allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.
CRIMINAL REFERENCE NO. 22 OF 1915.
CRIMINAL APPEAL NO. 262 OF 1915.
May 17, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chitty and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.
EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR

versus

DWIJENDRA CHANDRA MUKERJEE—
ACCUSED APPELLANT

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 80—Accident, defence of—Burden of proof—Evidence as to deed done convincing—Motive, if necessary—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 342—Written statement by accused, practice of filing, illegality of.

If the accused puts forward a substantive defence of accident within the purview of section 80 of the Indian Penal Code, it is incumbent upon him to prove it. [p. 167, col. 2.]

If the evidence as to the deed done is sufficiently convincing, it is immaterial to consider with what motive it was done. [p. 171, col. 1.]

Per Beachcroft, J.—When a theory of accident is set up, the Court is entitled to a full and, so far as possible, detailed account of what happened. [p. 172, col. 2.]

The practice of refusing to answer questions in the Sessions Court and of putting in a written statement is a very pernicious practice. There is no provision in the Code for the making of a written statement by an accused and the obvious object of the practice in many cases is to defeat the provisions of section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, probably based on some idea of the Legal Advisers of the accused that he may give himself away. That section if used intelligently by Judicial Officers, is of great use to accused persons for whose benefit the section was enacted. A written statement drafted by an accused's Legal Adviser can never have the same value as answers coming directly from the accused's mouth. The refusal to answer questions may be attended with great risk to the accused, for the Court is bound to question him and a refusal to answer may involve an adverse inference against him. [p. 173, col. 1.]

Messrs. J. N. Roy, S. K. Sen and A. Sen, Counsel, and Babus Monmotho Nath Mukerjee and Probodh Chandra Chatterjee, for the Accused.

Mr. Sultan Ahmad (Deputy Legal Remembrancer, Bihar and Orissa) and Babu Kunja Behari Mukerjee, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

CHITTY, J.—In this case the appellant, Dwijendra Chandra Mukerjee, was found guilty of murder by the majority of the Jury (4 to 1) and sentenced to death by the Sessions Judge of Khulna. He has appealed, and the matter comes before us also on a reference under section 374, Criminal Procedure Code. The petition of appeal contains no less than 27 grounds based on the alleged errors of law and instances of misdirection on the part of the learned Sessions Judge. None of these, however, have been touched upon in the argument before us and it was conceded for the appellant that there had been no want of fairness in the trial. The main facts of the case are not in dispute. The deceased girl, Aparna Debi, was the second daughter of Purna Chandra Bhattacharya of Senhati. Senhati is about five miles from Khulna on the other side of the river. Purna Chandra died some time ago. Aparna was married to Charu Chandra Mukerjee of Pabla near Daulatpur. He is the Head Master of the Siddipasa High English School. At the date of her death, 12 November 1914, Aparna was about 14 years of age. She had attained puberty in the preceding Chaitra and had resided with her husband at Pabla, but at the time of her death was living in her father's house. The other inmates of the house were Satish Chandra Bhattacharji, her cousin and the present head of the family, her mother, Bidhu Mukhi, her elder sister, Charubala, her aunt, Birajmohini, Saradindu, a boy of about 12, a cousin, and the infant daughter of Satish aged seven or eight. Another aunt, Monmohini, also lived in the compound but in a separate hut. She was old and infirm and does not appear to have had any knowledge of the occurrence.

EMPEROR F. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

Dwijendra, the appellant, is the son of Saroda Charan Mukerjee, who resides at Senhati and is President of the local punchayet. The appellant himself was a Head Constable in the Police force at Khulna. He had a gun, a single-barrelled 12 bore breech-loading hammer gun, for which he held a license. It is in evidence that he was fond of shooting and had shot a leopard. He also shot pigs and birds. A number of cartridges were found in his house, some loaded with shot others with bullets, both lethal and spherical. Some he appears to have loaded himself, using black powder. It is also in evidence that he often carried the gun, especially at night, for his own protection. He had been employed in the Criminal Investigation Department and may have been in some danger from political suspects. He was well acquainted with all the family of Purna Chandra Bhattacharji. Purna

Chandra had been the guru of his father, Saroda, and Bidhumukhi was the preceptor of Saroda's wife. Dwijendra was a frequent visitor at Purna Chandra's house, and it is said that he always treated Charubala and Aparna with the respect due to daughters of his guru. There is no evidence of anything approaching impropriety in the relations between Dwijendra and Aparna. There is evidence that there was some dispute between the family of Aparna and that of her husband about money matters, but it does not appear how far Dwijendra was aware of this. On 10th September 1914, Satish, as head of the family, had written a petition to the Khulna Police complaining of Charu Chandra's ill treatment of his wife (Exhibit 1). This was given by him to Dwijendra to deliver, but later on he asked him not to deliver it as the matter had been settled. The petition, however, remained with Dwijendra and was found with him after the occurrence. It is also in evidence (though Satish now denies it) that Dwijendra accompanied Satish when he brought Aparna back from her husband's house. The precise date of that is in doubt but it was either at the end of Bhadra or beginning of Assin, i.e., in the week 12th to 19th September 1914. Charu Chandra was absent from Pabla when his wife left, and it appears that his absence was secured by a bogus telegram. There is nothing, however, to connect Dwijendra with that telegram. All that can be said to be proved is that Dwijendra knew of the trouble between Aparna and her husband, and of her return to her father's house and the reasons for it.

On the evening of the occurrence, 12th November 1914, about 7 or 7.30 P.M. Dwijendra was met on the road leading from Sarada's to Purna Chandra's house by the two Kabirajs, Bejoy Kumar Sen Gupta and Hementa Sen Gupta. All were going to the north and Dwijendra overtook them. Some remarks passed between him and Bejoy as to some medicine. He was carrying a gun under his arm. He had a chadar tied round his head, galpatta fashion, and wore a long black coat and slippers. Hementa said to him "you are going out at night armed with a gun. Some accident might happen." To this Dwijendra gave no reply but passed on. The witnesses went to the house of Ambika Charan Sen, their co-sharer.

EMPEROR P. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

It should be stated that the plan annexed to the proceedings, shows correctly the buildings, etc., in Purna Chandra's bari and also the roads in the locality. There is no question as to its correctness and, therefore, no necessity to describe it in detail.

About or shortly before 8 p. m., the state of things in Purna Chandra's bari was as follows: Birajmohini was in the western kitchen. In that kitchen was a tin lamp by the light of which the boy Saradindu was eating his evening meal. There was also a hurricane lamp on the verandah. Satish was in the eastern kitchen cooking for himself, Bidhumukhi, Charubala and Aparna, who messed together. Charubala, who was far advanced in pregnancy, could not cook, and Aparna would not. She had cooked the midday meal, but was offended with her mother, who had slapped her for some trifling offence. Bidhumukhi was giving Satish's daughter her food in the eastern kitchen. Charubala and Aparna had gone to the hut of their other aunt, Monmohini. About that time Satish asked Birajmohini to call them to come and eat their supper. She did so and they returned. Charubala went to, and remained for a short time at, the western kitchen speaking to Saradindu. Aparna went on, passed the eastern kitchen and went into the dalan and into the middle room in the northern building from the east. About the same time Dwijendra came into the bari from the south. Birajmohini saw him pass her, that is, pass the western kitchen. Bidhumukhi also saw him pass along the rowak to the east and enter the northern building by the eastern door. Satish's little daughter cried out "Oh grandmother, Dwijen is entering the house with his gun uplifted." Charubala then came to the eastern kitchen and her mother told her to call Buri (the pet name of Aparna) to come there. Charubala then entered the house by the eastern door, which would take her into the eastern room. Almost immediately afterwards came the report of the gun, which was heard not only by the inmates of the bari but by others in the village. There is no doubt that Aparna was then and there shot dead by Dwijendra, whether intentionally or by accident, in the middle room of the northern building. The bullet, which was fired at a very short distance, struck her on the left temple about an inch from the eye, passed through her head and emerged behind the right ear, just above the mastoid process. It struck the eastern wall of the room 22 inches from the ground, i.e., just above the takhtaposh and fell to the ground behind the takhtaposh, where it was discovered on the 14th by Mr. Cornish, District Superintendent of Police. Charubala cried out "Mother, Buri has gone," and then "Dwijen has shot Buri dead and has gone away." It is undisputed that Dwijendra did run away. He left the northern building by the southern door, and in his haste fell over a heap of firewood which was lying in front of the southern steps. He left his slippers behind in the courtyard and just outside the bari he dropped the fore-end of his gun. He was seen running away, within the bari, by both Bidhumukhi and Birajmohini, and on the road outside going south by Bejoy and Hemanta. Bejoy was for catching hold of him but Hemanta held him back, saying he might get shot. Dwijen had the gun still in his hand. Both the ladies and Satish went at once to the room where Aparna had been killed. They found her lying on the takhtaposh against two pillows. Her head was to the north and her face to the west. Her legs from the knees downwards were over the south end of the takhtaposh. The mosquito-curtain, which was hanging by three of its corners from the north and east walls, was alight in two places and Bidhumukhi put out the flame by slapping it with the palms of her hands. Satish appears to have been so overcome with the shock that he swooned. He was revived by pouring water on his head. When he came to senses, he went or was taken to the baitakkhana. By this time, a number of the villagers had assembled, including Nepal Chandra Chakravarti, Saroda Charan Mukerjee, Akhoy Dutt, Dr. Amrita Lal Sen, Bhola Nath Chakravarti, Nibaran Chandra Sen, Kanai Lal Sen and three choukidars. Some of these persons depose to hearing the ladies of the house crying "Oh Dwijen, what a calamity (sarbanash) have you wrought on us!"

In the baitakkhana in the presence of a number of the villagers Satish wrote out a letter to be sent to the Police at Khulna. The first draft (Exhibit 3) was not completed. The wording was slightly altered and the letter re-written and signed by Satish (Exhibit 2). As it is of importance, I set it out in full:—

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

"To

The High in Dignity, the Officer in charge of the Thana,

A cat used to infest our house, and I asked my disciple, Head Constable Dwijen Mukherji, to kill that cat. Dwijen came after evening; and chasing the cat he entered into our northern dardalan and fired on the cat. But he missed his aim; and my sister Aparna Debi, who was lying on a cot in the ghar came to be shot on the head, and died in consequence thereof. I have no enmity with Dwijen. Finis. Dated Senhati, Thursday, the 26th Kartick, 1321.

Sd/. Satish Chandra Bhattacharjee, Senhati."

This was despatched at once by a messenger, but as he could not get a boat to cross the river, it was not recorded at the Police Station until 7 A.M. on the 13th. Meanwhile the body of the girl was left lying as it was found, the room was locked and a chowkilar put on guard.

Jai Kumar Chakravarty, Sub-Inspector of Police, who was at Hajigram, heard of the occurrence about 2 A.M., and at once proceeded to Senhati, arriving about 6 A.M. He held an inquest. He has described how he found the body, which was in the same position as it had been left overnight. He also found an ear-ring on the floor. This evidently came from the girl's left ear, as that in the right ear was in place, and had been forcibly removed, as the hasp was straightened out. Dwijendra's slippers the Sub-Inspector found lying some 3 or 4 cubits apart by the southern rowak. He sent for Dwijendra, who came at 10 or 10-30 A.M. and explained how he had come to shoot the girl, where he was standing and so forth. Dwijendra's house was searched that afternoon. Nothing much turns upon what was found there.

On the 14th November Mr. Cornish came to Senhati. He too examined the premises and as above stated, found the bullet by the wall beneath the takhtaposh. He too questioned Dwijendra and heard his version of how the girl had met with her death.

Thus far the facts are not seriously disputed. There are two alternatives for consideration in this case: (1) Has the prosecution made out a case of deliberate killing? (2) Was the death of Aparna Debi the result, as the accused maintains, of an unfortunate accident? It might, of course, happen that, while disbelieving the theory of accident, the Court might consider that the prosecution had not made out their case, but that is not the case here. If the accused puts forward a substantive defence of accident within the purview of section 80 of the Indian Penal Code, it is incumbent upon him to prove it. Here the accused has called no evidence. He relies for proof of any fact upon the oral or documentary evidence put before the Court on behalf of the Crown. As the acceptance of either alternative means the rejection of the other, they may be conveniently considered together. Now, apart from the facts detailed above, there is a considerable body of evidence which, if believed, leaves no doubt that Dwijendra murdered Aparna, and entirely negatives the theory of accident. In the first place, how did he come upon the scene? On behalf of the accused an attempt was made to show that he spoke to Saradindu in passing the western kitchen and also greeted Satish in the eastern kitchen with the words "Thakur Mahashai". It was argued that a man who had gone there with the deliberate intention of murdering the girl, would not thus make his presence known to the inmates of the bari. Now there is nothing upon the record to show, nor do I understand it to have been the case for the Crown, that the murder was so deliberate and premeditated as that. Whatever may have been his motive for visiting Aparna that evening, there is nothing to show that he had already resolved to kill her. At the same time it is not proved that Dwijendra spoke either to Saradindu or to Satish on his arrival as alleged. Saradindu in the Sessions Court in examination-in-chief said he saw Dwijen pass the kitchen, but made no mention of his calling out. In cross-examination he said he did not remember if he did so, or if he had given evidence before the Committing Magistrate to that effect. In the Magistrate's Court, he had said that some one called out "Indu" and that the voice seemed to be that of Dwijen Mukerjee. It was suggested by the defence that this witness had been tampered with. There is no foundation for this suggestion, and if there was any tampering it was from the other side. Of this, there is the evidence of the Sub-Inspector, who saw Akhoy Dutt tutoring Saradindu in the verandah of the Court. The witness is a child of 10 years old and it would be unsafe to rely upon his statements, the more so as pressure was brought to bear upon him with regard to them. It is true that Bidhumukhi says she heard Indu call out who goes there and Dwijendra answered that it was he. On the other hand Birajmohini, who was in the western kitchen with Saradindu, flatly denies that Dwijendra called to him, and we may accept her statement. Then Satish, no doubt, says that while he was cooking some one called out "Thakur Mahashai" to him from the courtyard. Before the Committing Magistrate he had said that some one had called out to him, but that he could not make out whose voice it was. Bidhumukhi says that though Dwijendra often called out "Thakur Mahashai", on this occasion he said nothing. We may take it that Dwijendra came through the courtyard and passed into the house without attempting in any way to conceal his arrival, but without speaking to any one.

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

The next evidence in chronological order is that of Charubala. Now she claims to have been an eye-witness of the deed, and if her evidence be accepted, the case for the Crown is proved. She had stopped at the western kitchen, while Aparna had gone on into the house. Charubala followed after a short time entering the northern building from the east. She says:—"I then went to call her (Aparna) from the middle room. I got as far as the door between the middle room and the eastern room. I saw Dwijen standing in the centre part of the middle room. Seeing me he took something out of his pocket and turned to the west. I told my sister to come and eat her rice as it was ready. As soon as I said this, Dwijen turned round to the east and levelled his gun. I said, 'Dwijen, what are you doing?' He fired his gun and said 'I am giving her something to eat.' The shot killed my sister. When I went to the place, my sister was lying down with her face resting on her right hand. She was not lying flat down, but was reclining against the pillows." Before the Committing Magistrate, Charubala did not claim to have actually seen the shot fired. There she said that she heard the report as she was entering the eastern room by the eastern door, and that she ran into the middle room in time to see Dwijen escaping by the south door with his gun in his hand. She has explained why she did not tell the whole truth on that occasion. Though her reasons on paper may not appear very cogent, I think that what she now says is substantially true. It may fairly be asked why, if it were really and truly an accident, should Charubala and the other members of Aparna's family combine to perjure themselves and make what was only an accident appear as a crime. It was suggested that they had done so at the instance of Dr. Amrita Lal Sen, who, it was said, was on bad terms with Dwijendra and owed him a grudge. There is no foundation on the record for such a suggestion. It is true that Dr. Amrita Lal Sen from the first declined to believe in the theory of accident, and did not hesitate to let the Police know his opinion. He also recommended and insisted upon a Police investigation. But this any impartially minded man would have done under the circumstances, which, to say the least, were highly suspicious. In my opinion advantage has been taken by the defence of the untimely death of Dr. Amrita Lal Sen to foist upon him much in this case for which he was not in the slightest degree responsible, and in particular the responsibility for the case being pressed against Dwijendra. Dr. Amrita Lal Sen was seized with smallpox about the time of the trial in the Sessions Court and died before the trial was concluded. His evidence before the Committing Magistrate was rightly put in and read at the trial. He had not, however, been cross-examined, though the accused had the opportunity to do so, and the suggestions now made were, of course, not put to him. They are mere suggestions and I see no reason to suppose that the testimony of Satish and the other members of his family or indeed that of any of the witnesses for the prosecution was at all more unfavourable to the accused by reason of any action or influence of Amrita Lal Sen. I can see no other possible reason why the members of Aparna's family should depose falsely against the accused. An important question is what amount of light there was in the middle room at the time when the gun was fired. As to this, the evidence is not absolutely clear, but there appear to have been two lamps in the eastern kitchen which lighted the verandah and the courtyard to the east of the house. There was also an earthenware lamp inside the house. Bidhumukhi says that she had placed it in the eastern room of the dalan near the door leading from the eastern to the middle room and that it was so placed in order to light both rooms. Charubala now says that this lamp was in the south window of the middle room. Before the Magistrate she had said that she came into the middle room carrying a lamp, but this she now admits was not the case. She does, however, say that there was a hurricane lamp burning at the south west corner of the bed. Bidhumukhi also says that Charubala immediately after the occurrence had told her of this hurricane lantern, and Bidhumukhi further says that Dwijendra was carrying a lantern, when he came. There seems to be some doubt about this lantern, but the evidence is clear that there were two lamps in the eastern kitchen, which would light up the space between that and the house, and there was a lamp just outside the door between the two rooms which would give light to both. The middle room was certainly not in complete darkness, as was suggested on behalf of the accused. The next question of importance is the position of Aparna when she was shot. The statement of the accused, to which he consistently adhered, was that he was entering the middle room from the closed verandah on the south in pursnit of a cat, which had run into that room, that when he was just on the threshold of the south door towards the west he brought down the gun from his shoulder to point it at the cat, that the gun went off, and the bullet hit and killed Aparna. Now this would be impossible if Aparna was lying, reclining or sitting on the takhtaposh. The evidence shows that the muzzle of the gun when fired was within three feet of and probably not more than two feet from her head. This is shown by the fact that her face was scorched, her left eye-brow and hair singed and her clothing burnt in one or two places. Seeing this difficulty, it was suggested that Aparna was not shot on the takhtaposh, but while squatting on the floor near its south-west corner; since it was also supposed that there must have been a considerable flow of blood from the wound (as indeed there was) the further wild suggestion was made that there had been a pool of blood on the floor and that Amrita Lal Sen had washed it up. The fact that he was seen washing his hands with ashes shortly before he left the house about 2 A. M. that night was the only foundation for that suggestion. Then it was said that Aparna must have been lifted from the floor on to the takhtaposh and this was put to one or two of the witnesses and denied. For this suggestion too there is no foundation in fact. If she was shot while sitting on the floor by a man standing up, it appears impossible that the bullet should have struck the wall where it did, i. e., four inches above the takhtaposh and 22 inches from the ground. The evidence proves conclusively that Aparna was shot as she sat or reclined upon the cot. The pillows were soaked with blood, and there was a pool of blood beneath the takhtaposh at the spot where her head lay. The fact that brains and blood were found by the wall shows that her head was somewhere near the wall, while the fact that the bullet struck the wall at right angles indicates that Dwijendra was somewhere in the middle of the room, and not at the south door as he alleges. From his statement to Mr. Cornish, it appears that the cat could not have been much more than two feet from the muzzle of the gun when it went off. This is absolutely inconsistent with the undoubted fact that Aparna's head was about the same distance from the muzzle of the gun at the same moment. In conclusion on this point it is proved beyond all reasonable doubt that the accused entered the house by the eastern door and not from the south verandah. His statement, therefore, about his pursnit of the cat from that direction cannot possibly be true.

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

EMPEROR E. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

It may be well at this point to deal generally with the accused's defence of "accident". It appears to me to have only two circumstances to recommend it, one that there had been some talk in Purna Chandra's house a few days before about driving away or killing a cat, and the other that it was undoubtedly raised at an early stage of the proceedings. There seems to have been some talk about a strange cat which was coming to the compound and causing some annoyance. But the result of the conversation was certainly not such as would justify Dwijendra in coming to the bari as he did and without further permission firing at the cat inside a small room 14 feet 6 inches by 9 feet. The ladies had expressed a reluctance to have the cat killed at all. It would have been abhorrent to them to have it killed in a room where they used to sit. But in my opinion it is wildly improbable that had he come with the intention of shooting a cat, Dwijendra, who had a good knowledge of fire arms, should have acted as he did. He would certainly have spoken to Satish or someone about it first, and obtained definite permission. There is nothing but Dwijendra's statement to prove that the cat was there at all that evening. If it was and he did follow it as he says, it is incredible that he should think of shooting it with a 12 bore bullet within a small room in complete darkness. As to the gun going off by accident, that too is highly improbable. The gun was produced in Court. It has a very stiff pull and would be most unlikely to discharge by accident. Then if it was an accident, why did he run away? If this fact stood alone it might not have much weight. But here we have the case of a man who, as he says, by an unfortunate accident has taken the life of a girl friend in a house where all the family were his friends. Is it not more likely that he would remain and express contrition, and do what he could to make amends? Instead of that he bolts away in the darkness like a criminal. In his haste, he drops his slippers, he falls over the heap of firewood, and then allows the fore-end of his gun to drop off. This last implies haste and some violence, as the fore-end is by no means easy to remove. An attempt was made by the defence to prove that when running away Dwijendra cried out "ki karte ki karilam", an expression which might indicate a feeling of horror at what had happened. The child Saradindu was the only one who speaks to this. As I have said above, his evidence cannot be trusted. It cannot, therefore, be taken as proved that Dwijendra made use of any such expression. Then we have the letter written by Satish to the Police. Satish says that it was dictated to him and that he was made to write it. Of this, there can be no doubt. His state of mind was such that he could hardly have written it of his own motion; but there is an even more cogent reason than that, which is that it was impossible for Satish to have personal knowledge of the facts narrated. The suggestion that it was dictated by Amrita Lal Sen is absurd. Moreover he did not appear on the scene until the writing was nearly complete. It was clearly inspired by some one who wished to screen Dwijendra. There is evidence that it was Dwijendra's father, Saroda, who dictated the letter, and this I believe to have been the case. Dwijendra, presumably ran away to his house, so that he would have seen his father before he came to Purna Chandra's house. They may very well have agreed upon what should be said. Saroda then taking advantage of Satish's weakness got him to write the letter. This reduces the significance of the 'cat' theory being advanced at an early stage, to nothing at all. The last piece of evidence against the accused is the letter, dated 22nd December 1914 (Exhibit 7), written by him from Jail to his father. This was intercepted by Amrita Lal Sen and by him made over to the Police through his brother, Mohendra. As to the genuineness of the letter there is no question. The request to his father to have the old fore-end of his gun fitted with a new steel piece and stamped with the number and the maker's name, may be susceptible of an explanation compatible with innocence. But in that letter he also asks his father to use all his endeavours to persuade Chota Thakurani (i.e., Bidhumukhi) and Charubala to depose in his favour. Again he says: "Please tell Satish Thakur Mahashai that if my life be spared it will do him no harm" and again: "After consulting the Counsel please win over (or get into your hands) the witnesses of the Thakurbari, otherwise there will be danger." This does not read as the letter of an innocent, falsely accused man. It is true that in this case there is no evidence, which indicates the motive for the murder. If, however, the evidence as to the deed is sufficiently convincing (and in my opinion it is), it is immaterial to consider with what motive it was done. If, as I find, Dwijendra fired at Aparna at a distance of two or three feet, there can be no doubt that he intended to kill her. It is idle to speculate why he did so. What passed between them in that room is now known only to Dwijendra. There is no need to suppose that the act was premeditated, or that he had gone to the house with a fixed intention to murder the girl. It may have been done on the spur of the moment, the act being facilitated by the fact that he had the gun and cartridges with him. It is nonetheless murder. After giving the case the fullest and most anxious consideration, there is only one conclusion to which I can come, viz., that the accused intentionally killed the girl and that the story of accident cannot possibly be accepted. It is against all the evidence in the case and in its details utterly improbable. It does not appear why the Jurors who brought in the verdict of guilty recommended that the extreme penalty should not be inflicted. I agree with the learned Sessions Judge in my inability to see any extenuating circumstances.

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

I would dismiss the appeal and confirm the sentence of death.

BRACECROFT, J.—This case presents a feature very unusual in cases in this country, viz., an admission of the act which caused death, coupled with a plea of accident. And because it is such an unusual plea, the facts must, I think, be examined with particular care, for it would be lamentable if a candid story were rejected too lightly or from expecting too high a standard of conduct from the accused immediately after the accident, if accident it was.

We have only one person, the accused, who can tell us exactly what happened in that room, for in my opinion we cannot accept the story of Charubala, as told in the Sessions Court, that she actually saw the occurrences.

It is possible that she may have seen what she says she saw, but the explanation for not telling the story in the Magistrate's Court, is not to my mind entirely satisfactory; at any rate it would be extremely unsafe to act on evidence so far in advance of the evidence given in the Magistrate's Court.

The accused has this in his favour, that his acts do not suggest a premeditated murder. The slippers which he wore are heavy and without heels and caused a shuffling sound as he walked. They are not the sort of footwear one would expect a man to use who wanted to conceal his presence. The position in which they were found, indicates that they were discarded or fell off as the accused ran away, rather than deliberately taken off before the accused entered the building. If the accused called out to Satish, as Satish says, though Bidhumukhi denies the fact, that does not suggest an intention to conceal his presence. This act is, of course, open to the suggestion that he wished to see if the coast was clear. Apparently Satish did not answer, and there is, therefore, nothing to show that accused knew that anyone of the household was about. Neglect to conceal his presence could, of course, be reconciled with the theory of premeditated murder on the supposition that accused intended to plead accident, but if he had a story of accident ready, his flight from the spot is inexplicable, except on the theory that thinking his presence to have been unobserved, he suddenly abandoned that idea. But I do not understand the Crown to have committed itself to the theory of premeditated murder.

Saradindu's evidence that when accused ran out of the building he cried out "ki karte ki karilam" is strongly pressed in accused's favour. If true, the ejaculation is capable of explanation as one of remorse for an act done intentionally on failure to achieve some object, as well as of an act done unintentionally. Unfortunately Saradindu mentioned this ejaculation of the accused for the first time at the trial and there is good reason to think that attempts were made on the part of the accused to influence the witnesses, though in regard to the Sub-Inspector's evidence that he saw Akhoy Dutt tutoring Saradindu in the Court premises, I feel sceptical. The explanation which he gives for not informing the Public Prosecutor or the Court Inspector, is to my mind insufficient.

EMPEROR V. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

The statement of Satish Kandu, that accused said "Buri has been killed by a bullet from my gun," is a statement of the same class, suggesting accident. The witness's evidence in the Sessions Court is an improvement on that given in the Magistrate's Court, where the accused, when asked by the witness who he was, is reported to have said only "I" and nothing more. In this case, however, a statement to the same effect as that made in the Sessions Court had been made by the witness to the Police during the investigation. If true, the accused could not then have been attempting to conceal his identity: it is possible that accused had then realised that Birajmohini had seen him and possibly also that Charubala and Saradindu had, and concealment being useless thought that his safest course was to allege accident.

The strongest point in accused's favour is the apparent absence of motive. The learned Deputy Legal Remembrancer suggests that the motive, though known, was concealed to avoid a scandal. On the evidence there is nothing to support the suggestion, and the absence of motive would be enough to turn the scale in the accused's favour in the absence of any account but his own, if that account were a reasonable and possible one, and not shown to be untrue. I am prepared to accept the story that a strange cat had been a nuisance to the household, that Satish had expressed a wish that it should be made away with and that the accused was prepared to shoot it. On the theory that Satish believed that accused was chasing the cat, learned Counsel for the accused based his explanation of the letter that was sent to the Police giving information of the occurrence. He argued that Satish put two and two together and so sent the letter, which is true in its main detail but not in all the facts, and that Amrita Lal Sen Gupta, whom he made responsible for all accused's troubles, attempted to suppress the letter; but throughout his argument, till reply, repudiated the idea that accused's father, Saroda, had anything to do with it. He then conceded that possibly Saroda brought information to the household that it was an accident.

I am not prepared to accept the theory that the information was guess work on the part of Satish, a guess that happened to be correct in its main detail. If it had been merely a matter of inference, it is highly improbable that he would have stated it as a definite fact. It is not suggested that any one in the house saw the cat that evening. Saroda was early on the scene and it seems to me not only in the highest degree probable in any event that he brought the story of firing at a cat which Satish was willing to accept, but if the defence set up by the accused is true, it seems to me that that is the most natural thing to have happened, for if accused was afraid to face the household, it was very natural for his father to go and explain matters. But that line has not been taken: it would have made Saroda's appearance in the witness-box an absolute necessity on behalf of the defence, and the defence must for some reason or other have been unwilling to risk that.

I am not prepared to accept the suggestion, made on no sound basis, against Amrita Lal that he got up the case against the accused. If Amrita Lal was responsible for the members of the household giving false evidence or suppressing the truth, he would not have openly stated in his evidence that he told the chowkidar to inform the Police that he did not believe in the theory of cat-killing and have requested the presence of the Superintendent of Police. That he did send this message is supported by the formal information drawn up by the Sub-Inspector on the morning of the 13th.

I have said that we must not too lightly reject a candid story of accident. Equally, we must not too lightly accept a story to which by reason of its apparent candour we naturally incline. When a theory of accident is set up, we are entitled to a full and, so far as possible, detailed account of what happened. In this case we do not get it. The accused was ill advised enough to give equivocal answers to the Committing Magistrate and some of his statements were untrue. This does not matter much as to the fact of his alleging accident, for he had alleged that long before, but it was the first opportunity he had, in the course of the enquiry, of disclosing the facts to a Judicial Officer.

EMPEROR C. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

Then in the Sessions Court he put in a written statement, which alleges that he could not see whether there was any one in the room when he began to aim at the cat, because there was no lamp in the room, but omits to explain what is extremely important, how he came to know, after the gun had gone off, that he had killed Aparna.

This practice of refusing to answer questions in the Sessions Court and of putting in a written statement, which it may be said has now become almost universal in the Province, but which is largely a growth of recent years, is a very pernicious practice and in my opinion the sooner it is put an end to the better. There is no provision in the Code for the making of a written statement by an accused and the obvious object of the practice in many cases is to defeat the provisions of section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, probably based on some idea of the Legal Advisers of the accused that he may give himself away. That section if used intelligently by Judicial Officers, is of great use to accused persons for whose benefit the section was enacted. A written statement drafted by an accused's Legal Adviser can never have the same value as answers coming directly from the accused's mouth, and it cannot anticipate the points on which the presiding officer considers explanation desirable. It frequently happens that verbal explanation is refused and the promised written statement never filed. The refusal to answer questions may be attended with great risk to the accused, for the Court is bound to question him and a refusal to answer may involve an adverse inference against him.

In this case, the putting in of a written statement instead of answering questions is particularly to be deplored, for it is clear that on a story of accident many questions naturally arise. Four obvious questions are, how did accused know that he had killed Aparna, why did he use ball cartridge to shoot a cat, how did a gun with so stiff a pull go off accidentally, and why did he run away. The first of these is particularly important, as I shall show later: I am willing to assume that a possible explanation could be found for the other three facts, which are prima facie suspicious.

One extremely important point against the accused is the statement of Bidhumukhi that she saw accused enter the building by the east door. If believed, that statement at once stamps accused's story as untrue. As is natural there are some statements in her evidence in the Sessions Court, which are not to be found in her evidence before the Magistrate. Any difference that there may be between the two depositions is not of great importance, but this particular statement was made in the Magistrate's Court and in spite of its importance, there was no cross-examination on it. No doubt the accused had already indicated his defence which was inconsistent with that statement, but the witness ought to have been pressed on that, which is perhaps the most important statement in her evidence. If failure to cross-examine on it was an accidental omission, which is improbable in Counsel of Mr. Roy's experience, it was a most unfortunate one.

The accused pointed out to the various Police Officers engaged in the investigation, the spot at which, he said, he was when the gun went off. His statements do not appear to be consistent. Mr. Cornish says the distance was about four yards from where the woman was. This is rather an inaccurate method of description. If it means four yards from her feet there is a great difference between the spot shown to Mr. Cornish and that shown to Sub-Inspector Jai Kumar Chakravarti, to whom the spot shown was 8 or 8½ cubits from deceased's head. If Mr. Cornish referred to the deceased's head, and the language will hardly bear that construction, the two places are the same. The difference involved in Mr. Cornish's looseness of description is practically the whole length of the girl's body. The spot pointed out to the Deputy Superintendent is stated by him to be 3½ cubits to the south-west of the door. He did not measure the distance till six weeks later. In the circumstances the accuracy of his memory as to the exact spot, may be questioned, though evidently it was not quite the same spot as that pointed out to Jai Kumar.

It might possibly be suggested that the difference in the spots pointed out to the different Police Officers, could be explained on the supposition that the accused's attention was more centred on the pointing out of the direction of his fire than the exact spot at which he stood. This supposition would hardly explain the varying positions given by him to the cat. But let that pass; there might be some confusion as to the exact position of an animal of rapid movement such as a cat, and let us assume for the purpose of argument the position most favourable to the accused, the one pointed out by him to Jai Kumar. That would be just by the south-east corner of the westernmost of the two door pillars. That point is 12 feet from the point where the bullet hole in the wall was found and 6 feet 3 inches from the edge of the takhtaposh.

EMPEROR I. DWIJENDRA CHANDRA.

From that spot, the girl could not have been shot in the position in which she was found lying in the bed. Nor could she possibly have been shot, if, as suggested, squatting on the floor at the foot of the bed. The position of the hole in the wall, if nothing else, makes that impossible.

Now comes the importance of having a statement from the accused how he knew the girl had been killed when he had not seen her before. Death must have been instantaneous, she could not have cried out and hardly have moved. He must, therefore, have seen her. Accused's suggestion practically commits him to the case that the girl was sitting on the floor or fell on the floor, and that must be untrue, for I have no doubt that she was found on the bed by the first person who entered the room after the gun was fired.

Now, it is a rather curious thing that a shot fired from the place shown by the accused at 5 feet from the ground—I take 5 feet as about the probable height of accused's shoulder as it is argued he was a tall man—directly at the hole in the wall would pass the edge of the takhtaposh 2 feet 6 inches about it, which would be about the height, the girl's head might be expected to be if she were sitting at or near the edge of the takhtaposh. Exactitude is impossible for we don't know the height of the girl; she is said to have been about the same height as Charubala and was apparently tall for her years as the Civil Surgeon seems to have over-estimated her age—he puts her down as aged about 16 whereas in fact she was about 14. If she had been shot when sitting on the takhtaposh near the edge, it is possible that she would have fallen in the position in which she was found. This was not a theory advanced on behalf of the accused, but one which I thought ought to be considered in view of accused's allegation that he did not see the girl before his gun went off.

There are two difficulties to accepting such a position. In the first place, assuming accused's contention to be correct that there was no lamp in the room, there would have been a background of light, for the light from the lamp in the eastern room must have fallen across the takhtaposh though the south-west corner would have been outside its rays, and the accused could hardly have failed to see the girl with the background of light. In the second, there is the more serious difficulty that if there had been any scorching at all, it would not have been to the extent observed in this case. The distance from the accused's shoulder to the girl's head would have been not less than 6 feet 9 inches and from the muzzle of the gun to her head not less than 2 feet 11 inches. In the experiments made by Mr. Cornish, there appeared to him to be no scorching at 3 feet, while in the present case there was a great deal of scorching on the face and head.

Added to this, is the fact that the shape of the hole in the wall made by the bullet led Mr. Cornish to the opinion that the bullet had been fired at right angles.

The physical appearances then contradict the accused's story; and it is disproved at the start by the evidence that accused entered the building by the east door.

I have most anxiously considered the case, giving the accused the advantage of every possible theory for the points left unexplained in his story even when that story ought to have been explicit, and I can come to no other conclusion but that the girl's death was not due to any such accident as described by him.

I, therefore, agree in thinking that we ought to dismiss the appeal and confirm the sentence of death.

Appeal dismissed.

In re RAPU NAIDU.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE No. 259 OF 1915.
CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 210 OF 1915.
September 24, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.

In re BAPU NAIDU AND OTHERS—ACCUSED

—PETITIONERS.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 424—
Rioting—Omission to consider case of each accused separately, effect of.*

In a case of rioting where the Magistrate has failed to consider the question whether the evidence regarding each individual accused is sufficient to show that he participated in the rioting, the conviction is bad and liable to be set aside.

Petition, under sections 435 and 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Joint Magistrate of Tindivanam in Criminal Appeal No. 21 of 1915, preferred against the judgment of the Court of the Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Tindivanam in Calendar Case No. 105 of 1915.

FACTS.—A number of persons were charged before the Stationary Sub-Magistrate of Tindivanam with the offence of rioting punishable under section 147, Indian Penal Code. The Sub-Magistrate convicted eleven persons. Against these convictions, all the eleven persons appealed to the Joint Magistrate of Tindivanam. The latter officer upheld the convictions. In the judgment which he wrote, he fairly discussed the prosecution story as a whole and assigned reasons for accepting the same. He, however, omitted to consider the case of each accused separately and declined to discuss the evidence regarding alibi, on the ground that one witness only spoke to alibi on behalf of each accused and the same was not corroborated. The accused, thereupon, preferred this revision petition to the High Court.

Mr. T. V. Muthukrishna Iyer, for the Petitioners:—The conviction is unsustainable, inasmuch as the appellate Magistrate has failed to deal with the case of individual accused separately. The case being one of rioting, it is very essential that this should have been done, as the question of participation was important. Then again the Joint Magistrate has gone wrong in declining to discuss the evidence regarding alibi. The reason assigned for such a course is that the alibi evidence is spoken to only by one witness for each accused and is not otherwise corroborated. This again is clearly wrong. The alibi of second accused is supported by D. W.s Nos. 2 and 5, that of 5th and 6th accused by D. W.s Nos. 4 and 5, and that of the 11th accused by D. W.s Nos. 1, 5, 6 and P. W. No. 9. The whole case is the outcome of enmity as will be apparent from the cross-examination of P. W. No. 1.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Government, argued contra in support of the conviction.

ORDER.—The judgment of the Joint Magistrate, while fairly discussing the prosecution story as a whole and giving satisfactory reasons for accepting it, has omitted to consider the case against the individual accused separately. This is very necessary in a rioting case in which 11 accused are implicated, and in which the occurrence is obviously the outcome of previously existing ill-feeling. The Magistrate has, in fact, declined to discuss the alibi evidence on the simple ground that each alibi is spoken to only by a single witness. This is not so. The alibi of 2nd accused is supported by the 2nd and 5th defence witnesses; that of 5th and 6th accused by the 4th and 5th defence witnesses; and that of 11th accused by the 1st, 5th and 6th defence witnesses, as well as 9th prosecution witness. The case of this latter accused calls for special consideration also, as he is admittedly a particular enemy of the 1st prosecution witness, and cross-examination of the latter has been directed to show that he has been impleaded falsely on that score alone. I think it must be said that the Magistrate has failed to consider the question, whether the evidence regarding each individual accused is sufficient to show that he participated in the rioting.

I, therefore, set aside the order of the Joint Magistrate and direct him to restore the appeal to file and dispose of it according to law, giving the parties an opportunity of addressing fresh arguments if they desire as regards the individual complicity of accused.

Petition allowed; Case sent back.

RAMALINGAM PILLAI V. RAJA OF RAMNAD.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE No. 270 OF 1915.
CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 221 OF 1915.

October 7, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.
RAMALINGAM PILLAI, AGENT OF TWO MINORS OF LATE CHITOORSAMI THEVAR —PARTY NOS. 2 & 3, COUNTER-PETITIONERS —PETITIONERS

versus

RAJA OF RAMNAD—PARTY No. 1—

RESPONDENT.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 145—
Possession, how to be determined—Delivery of symbolical possession by a Civil Court, bearing of, on Magistrate's enquiry*

In proceedings under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, the Magistrate will enquire into the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute regardless of delivery of its symbolical possession to a party by a Civil Court under the provisions of rule 96, Order XXI, Civil Procedure Code.

Petition, under sections 435 and 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Sub-Divisional first Class Magistrate of Ramnad Division, in Miscellaneous Case No. 28 of 1915.

Mr. G. S. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Petitioners.

Messrs. L. S. Veeraraghava Aiyar and S. Krishnamachariar, for the Respondent.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Government.

ORDER.—The order of the Subordinate Judge, Exhibit A, is passed under Order XXI, rule 96, of the Civil Procedure Code, which applies only to cases in which the property is in actual possession of a third party—in this case, the present petitioners; and the Subordinate Judge is very careful to state that it does not prejudice their right to the interest claimed by them (petitioners) or their right to resist Periasami Thevar (under whom respondent claims) when he seeks physical possession. Exhibit B, the delivery attakshi, is to the same effect.

These proceedings have no bearing whatever on the actual possession of the lands in dispute, which is the only subject of enquiry under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

CHEMIKKALA CHINNA REDDI V. EMPEROR.

The Joint Magistrate relying on Exhibits A and B, has declined to exercise the jurisdiction vested in him of enquiring into the actual possession of the lands and passing an order in favour of the party in whom such actual possession is found to reside.

His order is set aside as illegal, he will restore the case to file and dispose of it according to law.

Petition allowed; Order set aside.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE No. 369 OF 1915.

CASE REFERRED No. 43 OF 1915.

July 30, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.
CHEMIKKALA CHINNA BALI AND ANOTHER—ACCUSED—PETITIONERS

versus

EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal law—Procedure—Notice to Police Inspector in charge of case, before disposing of it, necessity of.

A Magistrate is bound to give notice to the Police Inspector in charge of a case before disposing of it.

Case referred for the orders of the High Court, under section 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code, by the Sessions Judge of Cuddapah in his letter, dated the 24th June 1915, No. 509 Criminal.

Mr. P. R. Grant, on behalf of the Government.

ORDER.—The conviction is clearly wrong. As pointed out by this Court on a previous occasion, the Magistrate was bound to give notice to the Police Inspector in charge of the case before disposing of it.

The conviction is set aside. I direct the Magistrate to re-hear the appeal after giving notice to the Inspector.

Conviction set aside.

SAFER ALI MANDAL v. GOLAM MANDAL.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL RULE No. 1036 OF 1914.

July 21, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

SAFER ALI MANDAL—PLAINTIFF

AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS

—PETITIONERS

versus

GOLAM MANDAL AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

*Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, cl. (8)—Special authorization personal—Rent for homestead land—Construction of statute.*The special authorization contemplated by clause
(8) of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is entirely personal to the presiding Judge. [p. 178, col. 1.]*Semble:—By enacting clause 8 of Schedule II to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act the Legislature intended that suits for the recovery of rent should be tried under the Small Cause Court procedure only by such Judges as have been expressly authorized to exercise jurisdiction in that behalf: it was not intended that jurisdiction should be conferred by a general order on a particular Small Cause Court, irrespective of the qualifications of the individual officer who may preside therein. [p. 178, col. 2.]*Civil Rule against the following decision of the Court, dated the 4th June 1914, in Civil Rule No. 251 of 1914:—"This is a Rule to set aside the judgment and decree of a Small Cause
Court Judge, on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to try the suit, which is for recovery of rent of homestead land. Objection was taken in the Court below that under Article 8 of the second Schedule to the Small Cause Courts Act, such a suit was excluded from the cognizance of a Small Cause Court.
This objection was overruled on the ground that a similar suit in respect of this very land had been tried as a Small Cause Court suit in 1906. In our opinion, the view taken by the Small Cause Court Judge is erroneous."It is plain from clause (8) that a suit for recovery of rent other than a house-rent is not triable as a Small Cause Court suit [Uma Churn Mandal v. Bijari Bewah(1)], unless the Judge of the Small Cause Court has been expressly invested by the Local Government with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect thereto. It is possible that Babu Beharilal Chatterjee who in 1906 tried the previous suit for rent, had been invested by the LocalGovernment with authority to exercise jurisdiction in respect of suits for recovery of rent.
But it has not been shown that the present
Small Cause Court Judge, Babu Tincowri
Chowdhury, has been so authorised. A special authorisation under clause (8) is entirely personal to the presiding Judge; it is not as if the Court were specially invested with jurisdiction to try a particular class of cases.
Consequently, the mere fact that a similar suit was in 1906 tried as a Small Cause Court suit does not show that the present suit could have been similarly tried."The result is that this Rule is made absolute, the decree of the Small Cause Court Judge set aside and the case returned to him in order that it may be tried as a regular suit.
The petitioner is entitled to his costs both here and in the Court below. We assess the hearing fee in this Court at one gold mohur."

Maulvi Wahed Hossein, for the Petitioners.

Babu Purnendu Sundar Banerjee, for the Opposite Party.JUDGMENT.—We are invited in this Rule to review our judgment in the case of Golam Mandal v. Safer Ali Mandal. That Rule was obtained by the defendants, in a suit for recovery of rent of homestead land, to set aside the decree of the Small Cause
Court Judge on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to try the suit. The Rule was heard ex parte on the 4th June 1914 and was made absolute. On the 3rd September 1914 the plaintiff and two of the defendants applied to us to review our decision on two grounds, namely, first, that the notice of the Rule had not been served upon the petitioners, and, secondly, that materials essential for a correct decision of the question in controversy were not placed before the Court. We accordingly granted the present Rule. The allegation that the notice of the Rule had not been duly served, has not been contradicted by the opposite party. We have consequently allowed the matter to be re-argued, and this course was clearly desirable in view of the fact that the question raised is one of jurisdiction, which may affect the decision not merely of the case before us, but also of other similar cases tried by the Small Cause Court Judge.The plaintiff sued the defendant for recovery of arrears of rent of homestead land.

(1) 15 C. 174.

SAYER ALI MANDAL C. GOLAM MANDAL.

An objection taken by the defendants that the suit was excluded from the cognizance of the Small Cause Court by Article 8 of the second Schedule to the Small Cause Courts Act was overruled by the Judge in the Court below on the ground that a similar suit in respect of this very land had been tried as a Small Cause Court suit in 1906. We set aside the decree made by the Small Cause Court Judge in favour of the plaintiff, on the ground that there was nothing to show that the Judge had been expressly invested by the Local Government with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect to suits of this class. We are now invited to review our decision on the ground that the Judge had, as a matter of fact, been duly authorised by the Local Government. In support of this contention reliance has been placed upon the following notification of the Government of Bengal dated the 21st June 1904:—

"Let here⁽²⁾ notified that the Munsifs of Alipore and Seallah in the District of 24-Parganas are vested under clause (8) of the second Schedule of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887) with power to try, under the Small Cause Court procedure, suits for the recovery of rent of homestead lands within their respective jurisdictions, when the value does not exceed Rupees fifty." It has been argued on behalf of the opposite party that this notification is of no avail, and that what is requisite is that the particular Judge who tries the case should have been expressly invested by the Local Government with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect thereto; in other words, that the special authorization contemplated by clause (8) is entirely personal to the presiding Judge. In our opinion, this contention is well founded.

Clause (8) of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act excepts a suit for the recovery of rent other than house-rent from the cognizance of a Court of Small Causes, unless the Judge of the Court of Small Causes has been expressly invested by the Local Government with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect thereto. Clause (8) of the Schedule must be read along with sub-section 1 of section 15, and when they are so read, it becomes obvious that a distinction is drawn by the Legislature between "a Court of Small Causes" and "the Judge of the Court of Small Causes." Clause (8) requires that the Judge should have been expressly invested with authority to exercise jurisdiction, and not that jurisdiction should have been conferred upon the Court. The distinction between the Court as an institution in which the Judge exercises judicial functions and the particular individual who presides in that Court is fundamental and well recognised. (See for instance section 6 of the Small Cause Courts Act). As an illustration reference may be made to the decision of the Full Bench in Bahadur v. Eradatullah (2), where it was pointed out that the word "Court" implies a sense of continuity notwithstanding a change of officers. On the other hand, when we turn to section 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, we find an instance where a Judicial Officer may be specially empowered to exercise a particular jurisdiction. It is clear, upon a plain reading of clause (8) and assigning to the term "Judge" its natural meaning, that the Legislature intended that suits for the recovery of rent should be tried under the Small Cause Court procedure only by such Judges as had been expressly authorised to exercise jurisdiction in that behalf; it was not intended that jurisdiction should be conferred by a general order on a particular Small Cause Court, irrespective of the qualifications of the individual officer who may preside therein. It is not disputed that Babu Tincowri Chaudhuri, who tried this suit, had never been expressly invested by the Local Government with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect to suits for the recovery of rent. The notification of the 21st June 1904 is, as we have said, of no avail; what was needed was a notification authorising the particular officer to try suits for the recovery of homestead lands after jurisdiction had been conferred upon him under section 25 of Act XII of 1887. The order under section 25 of Act XII of 1887 constituted this officer a Judge of a Court of Small Causes within the meaning of clause (8) of Act IX of 1887, as explained in the case of Akshay Kumar Shaha v. Hira Ram Dosad (3). But as he was not expressly invested with authority to try suits for the recovery of homestead land, he has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law; Sahodora Mudali v. Sarabosabhi Dasi (4). It is desirable that matters should be set right by the Local Government on an early date by the issue of notifications from time to time expressly investing particular officers (whether they be Judges of Small Cause Courts under sections 6 and 8 of Act IX of 1887 or section 25 of Act XII of 1887) with authority to exercise jurisdiction in suits for the recovery of rent of specified classes of land and of specified amounts. But in so far as the present suit is concerned, there is no escape from the position that the decree was made without jurisdiction. We accordingly affirm our previous decision and discharge this Rule; but, in view of the special circumstances of the case, we make no order as to costs.

(2) 6 Ind. Cas. 801; 37 C. 642; 12 C. L. J. 45; 14 G. W. N. 799; 11 Cr. L. J. 407.

(3) 35 C. 677; 7 C. L. J. 407.

SAMU PATHAN v. CHIDAMBARA ODAYAN.

We direct that a copy of our judgment be forwarded to the Local Government for information and for such action as may be deemed necessary.

Rule discharged; Case remanded.

(4) 27 Ind. Cas. 255; 20 C. L. J. 494; 42 C. 635; 19 C. W. N. 1030.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 884 OF 1914

August 5, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

SAMU PATHAN PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER versusCHIDAMBARA ODAYAN—DEPENDANT—
RESPONDENT.

Mortgage—Mortgage-debt, transfer of—Covenant, implied, for title—Breach of covenant for title—Suit for damages, maintainability of—Cause of action, when arises—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55.

There is no implied covenant for title on a transfer of a mortgage-debt, as it can hardly be regarded as a transfer of ownership of immoveable property. [p. 179, col. 2.]

Therefore, in such a case a suit to recover damages for an alleged breach of covenant for title is not maintainable. The cause of action for a suit for damages for breach of covenant for title arises on the execution of the conveyance. [p. 180, col. 1.]

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Mayavaram, in Small Cause Suit No. 1805 of 1913.

Mr. A. V. Visvanatha Sastri for Mr. G. S. Ramachandra Iyer, for the Petitioner.

Mr. K. S. Jayarama Iyer, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff obtained an assignment of a mortgage-debt from the defendant and sued the mortgagor for the mortgage amount. That suit was dismissed on the ground that the mortgagor had no title to the mortgaged properties. Why the plaintiff did not obtain a personal decree against the mortgagor is not explained. The plaintiff brought the present action in the Small Cause side of the Sub-Court, Mayavaram, to recover damages for an alleged breach of a covenant for title. The 1st Court dismissed the suit and this application is to revise the decree of the first Court. Plaintiff contends that the mortgage is an interest in immoveable property, that the transfer was a sale of immoveable property and by virtue of section 55 of the Transfer of Property Act, the defendant should be deemed to have contracted that the interest which he professed to transfer subsisted.

A charge on land is undoubtedly an interest in immoveable property, and I will assume, though there is a difference of opinion on this point, that for the transfer of such a charge, the formalities required for the sale of immoveable property should be complied with. See Ramasami Pattar v. Chinnan Asari (1), Subramaniam v. Perumal Reddi (2), and section 8, Transfer of Property Act. Ghose on Mortgage, page 72 (note). But I am not prepared to hold that there is an implied covenant for title on a transfer of a mortgage-debt. A transfer of a mortgage can hardly be regarded as a transfer of ownership of immoveable property. What is sold is primarily not the charge but the debt [Subramaniam v. Perumal Reddi (2)]; and the rights of such a transferee are practically the same as those of a transferee of an actionable claim, though a mortgage-debt is not an actionable claim as defined in the Transfer of Property Act. In a transfer by way of mortgage there is implied a covenant for title and the transferee of a mortgage gets the benefit of this

(1) 24 M. 449; 11 M. L. J. 132.

(2) 18 M. 454; 5 M. L. J. 92.

VIRCHAND VAJEKARAN SHET v. KONDU KASAM ATAR.

covenant. [See section 65, clause (a), of the Transfer of Property Act]. My attention has not been drawn to any case, Indian or English, in which such a covenant was implied; on the other hand the case of Marnham v. Weaver (3) seems to assume that there is no such covenant. I agree with the lower Court that the plaintiff has no cause of action against the defendant. Further, the suit appears to be barred by limitation, as the cause of action for a suit for damages for breach of a covenant for title arises on the execution of the conveyance. As, however, the question was not argued before me, I do not desire to express any final opinion on the question.

I dismiss the petition with costs.

Petition dismissed.

(3) 80 L. T. 412.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 193 OF 1914.

June 21, 1915.

Present:—Sir Basil Scott, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Shah.

VIRCHAND VAJEKARAN SHET—

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

KONDU KASAM ATAR AND OTHERS

—DEPENDANTS RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 22—Mortgage, suit on, filed within time—Added defendants, limitation against—Estate of mortgagor liability of.

A mortgage, effected on the 23rd of June 1899, became due on demand on the 1st January 1900. The suit to enforce payment of money was brought after the death of the mortgagor, a Muhammadan, against his only son, a minor, on the 23rd of June 1911. The defendant's guardian urged that the mortgagor left other heirs, a widow and two daughters. The plaintiff applied, on the 29th of January 1912, to have them added as parties and they were so added on the 12th of February 1912. The added defendants contended that the suit was barred as against them under section 22 of the Limitation Act:

Held, that the addition of parties after the expiry of the time for the institution of a suit does not necessarily involve its dismissal under section 22 of the Limitation Act.

Held, further, that this suit was not barred against the added defendants inasmuch as the money was specifically charged on the whole property and the property was liable to be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage in priority to the satisfaction of any interest derived from the mortgagor subsequent to the date of the mortgage.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Thana, in Appeal No. 5 of 1913, confirming the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge at Kalyan, in Civil Suit No. 114 of 1911.

Mr. P. B. Shingne, for the Appellant.

Mr. W. B. Pradhan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This suit was brought by a mortgagee under a simple mortgage to recover the amount of his claim by sale of the mortgaged property.

The mortgage was effected on the 23rd of June 1899, the mortgage-debt becoming due on demand, which was made on the 1st January 1900. The suit was instituted after the death of the mortgagor, a Muhammadan, against his only son, a minor, on the 23rd of June 1911. It was, therefore, within time if properly constituted.

The plaintiff alleged that the mortgagor was dead, that his only heir was the defendant and that the property of the deceased was in that defendant's possession.

The defendant's guardian having alleged that the deceased left other heirs, a widow and two daughters, the plaintiff applied, on the 29th of January 1912, to have them added as parties and they were so added on the 12th of February 1912.

It was then contended by the added defendants that the suit was barred as against them under section 22 of the Indian Limitation Act. This plea found favour with the lower Courts and the suit for sale was dismissed so far as the shares of the added defendants were concerned.

In our opinion the judgments of the lower Courts cannot be supported.

The suit was properly brought by the plaintiff to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property within twelve years of the date when the money sued for became due. The money was specifically charged on the whole property and the property was liable to be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage in priority to the satisfaction of any interest derived from the mortgagor subsequent to the date of the mortgage.

A decree for sale obtained after contest in the suit as originally constituted would have been binding on the other heirs even though they had not been added: Assamatham Nessa Bibee v. Roy Lutchmeeput Singh (1) and (1) 4 C. 142 (F. B.); 2 C. L. R. 223; 1 Shome L. R. 219.

MATI LAL PODDAR v. JUDHISTIR DAS.

Davalava v. Bhimaji Dhondo (2). The suit, therefore, was, as originally filed, one in which the plaintiff could have obtained the relief sought. It was not improperly constituted in the sense of being instituted only against one of several parties to a contract. Nor was it instituted to enforce claims against shares in the hands of heirs: it was to enforce a mortgage lien binding on the whole property in the hands of any heir of the mortgagor. As pointed out in Gurneayya v. Dattatraya (3), the addition of parties after the expiry of the time for institution of the suit does not necessarily involve its dismissal under section 22. We set aside the decree of the lower Court and decree the plaintiff's claim for sale against all the defendants with all costs to be added to the mortgage-debt.

Decree set aside.

(2) 20 B. 338.

(3) 28 B. 11; 5 Bom. L. R. 618.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL No. 211 OF 1912.

June 9, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Roe.

MATI LAL PODDAR—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

JUDHISTIR DAS TEOR AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI—Pleading—Plaintiff bound to state nature of deeds supporting his title—Parties to be restricted to their pleadings—Inconsistent pleadings.

It is absolutely essential that a plaintiff, not to be embarrassing to the defendants, should state those facts which will put the defendant on his guard and tell him what he will have to meet when the case comes on for trial. It is not necessary to set out the evidence whereby the plaintiff proposes to prove the facts which give him the title [p. 182, col. 1.]

A plaintiff is bound to state the nature of the deeds on which he relies in deducing his title from the person under whom he claims and show the devolution of the estate to himself. [p. 182, col. 1.]

Parties should be held strictly to their pleadings and should not be allowed to prove at the trial any fact which is not stated in their pleadings. [p. 182, col. 1.]

A plaintiff may in certain circumstances rely upon several different rights alternatively though they may be inconsistent. But he cannot be permitted to allege two absolutely inconsistent statements of facts each of which is destructive of the other. [p. 183, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Dacca, dated the 6th May 1912.

Babu Gopal Chunder Das, for the Appellant.

Babus Joges Chunder Roy and Upendra Lal Roy, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by the plaintiff against the preliminary decree in a suit for partition of joint property. The decree has been assailed on two grounds, namely, first, that the lower Court has erroneously determined the share of the plaintiff; and, secondly, that the lower Court has made an incorrect order for costs in favour of the defendants.

As regards the first ground, it appears that the disputed property was, on the 10th September 1898, purchased at an execution sale for Rs. 6,130 by a person whom we shall call X. X had a brother Y who had four sons A, B, C and D. On the 7th November 1900, X conveyed a six-annas share of the property to his three nephews A, B and C. On the 14th June 1910, A transferred a two-annas share to the defendants on the assumption that he was competent to deal with that share as one of the three brothers in whose favour the conveyance had been executed by X. On the 6th October 1910, X, B, C and D conveyed fourteen-and-a-half-annas share to the plaintiff, namely, a ten-annas share held by X, and four-and-a-half-annas share claimed by B, C and D, on the hypothesis that the conveyance by X, though nominally in favour of A, B and C, had really benefited A, B, C and D. On the 23rd January 1911, the plaintiff commenced this action for partition on the allegation that he was entitled to fourteen-and-a-half-annas share of the property while the defendants were entitled to the remaining one-and-a-half-annas share. The defendants answered that they had acquired a good title to a two-annas share by their purchase from A, and that the plaintiff was entitled to only fourteen-annas share.

The plaintiff, it may be observed at the outset, is singularly meagre; it does not narrate the history of the title of the plaintiff, nor does it mention the deeds whereby the title had devolved on him. The defendants accordingly urged in their written statement that the plaintiff was not entitled to relief on a plaint so framed and was bound to disclose the details of his title. This contention was well founded, as the plaintiff was bound to state the nature of the deeds on which he relies in deducing his title from the person under whom he claims and to show the devolution of the estate to himself: Philipps v. Philipps (1), Darbyshire v. Leigh (2), Davis v. James (3); for as Cotton, L. J., said in Philipps v. Philipps (1), it is absolutely essential that the pleading, not to be embarrassing to the defendants, should state those facts which will put the defendants on their guard and tell them what they will have to meet when the case comes on for trial. This much the plaintiff is bound to do, though he need not set out the evidence whereby he proposes to prove the facts which give him the title: Williams v. Wilcox (4), Gautret v. Egerton (5). The Court, however, took no notice of the objection, and raised a comprehensive issue in these terms: "What is the share of the plaintiff in the property in suit." The plaintiff was thus left free to nullify the salutary rule enunciated by Brett, L. J., in Philipps v. Philipps (1) that the parties should be held strictly to their pleadings and should not be allowed to prove at the trial any fact which is not stated in the pleadings. What the consequence has been, we realise when we come to examine the case on the merits. We find that the title alleged by the plaintiff is contrary to the tenor of the admitted deeds. On the face of the sale-certificate, X became the sole owner by purchase of the property in dispute. Under the conveyance executed by X in favour of A, B and C, they became jointly interested in a six-annas share. After this transaction, a ten-annas share was left to X. Consequently, A was prima facie entitled to a two-annas share which he transferred to the defendant. B and C were entitled to a four-annas, while their uncle X had a ten-annas share: this they conveyed to the plaintiff, who thereby obtained a fourteen annas share. D was apparently not entitled to any share at all. The claim of the plaintiff to a fourteen-and-half-annas share cannot consequently be sustained, unless it is established that these deeds do not represent the true state of facts. The plaintiff in his plaint has furnished no indication of the source of his title, nor does he afford a clue to the grounds, if any, upon which he challenges the admitted deeds. When we turn to the evidence, however, we find that he has attempted to develop two inconsistent cases. He called one of his vendors, namely, X to prove that X and Y, who were separate in food and estate, became joint owners of the property by purchase at the execution sale and that the consideration was furnished by them in the proportion of ten to six, though the purchase was made in the name of X alone. The witness added that thereafter Y took a conveyance from him in respect of a six-annas share in the name of his three major sons. X in substance repudiated the allegations he had solemnly made in the conveyance in favour of his nephews. On this basis, the plaintiff can succeed only if he proves that what purports to be a conveyance to A, B and C, is in reality a deed of relinquishment in favour of their father Y, and that upon the death of the latter, his four sons A, B, C and D have taken equal shares by right of inheritance. The plaintiff then called another set of witnesses, namely, his vendors B, C and D to contradict the allegations of X, on the hypothesis that the property was acquired by X alone and was transferred by him for consideration under the conveyance in the names of A, B and C either to Y or to A, B, C and D. The defendants found themselves in a position of embarrassment, when these contradictory allegations were sprung upon them, without any indication afforded in the plaint; but fortunately, the testimony of one set of witnesses neutralised that of the other, and the Subordi-

MATI LAL PODDAR V. JUDHISTIR DAS.

(1) (1878) 4 Q. B. D. 127; 48 L. J. Q. B. 135; 39 L. T. 556; 27 W. R. 436.

(2) (1896) 1 Q. B. 554; 65 L. J. Q. B. 360; 74 L. T. 241; 44 W. R. 452.

(3) (1884) 26 Ch. D. 778; 53 L. J. Ch. 523; 50 L. T. 115; 32 W. R. 406.

(4) (1858) 8 A. & E. 314 at p. 331; 3 N. & P. 606; 1 W. W. & H. 477; 7 L. J. Q. B. 229; 112 E. R. 857; 47 R. R. 595.

(5) (1867) 2 C. P. 371; 36 L. J. C. P. 191; 16 L. T. 17; 15 W. R. 638.

MATH LAL PODDAR V. JUDHISTIR DAS.

nate Judge held that the plaintiff had failed to prove his title to any share in excess of fourteen annas. In our opinion, the plaintiff should not have been allowed to proceed on the plaint as framed; he should have been called upon to specify in his statement of claim, the nature of the deeds and transactions from which he deduced his title. The plaintiff, deliberately and for obvious reasons, departed from the well-recognised rule applicable to the matter; when the plaint was filed, he could not make up his mind which alternative to choose, and consequently left his case to be developed by his witnesses. Now, it may be conceded that a plaintiff may in certain circumstances rely upon several different rights alternatively, though they may be inconsistent. This was recognised by the Full Bench in Narendra Nath Barari v. Abhoy Charan Chattopadhyaya (6) and is in conformity with the rule recognised in Philipps v. Philipps (1); Berdan v. Greenwood (7); Hawkesley v. Bradshaw (8) and In re Morgan, Owen v. Morgan (9). But as pointed out by the Judicial Committee in Mahomed Buksh v. Hosseini Bibi (10), the plaintiff cannot be permitted to allege two absolutely inconsistent statements of facts each of which is destructive of the other. In the case before us, the plaintiff, it is true, did not make a definite case in the plaint but sought at the trial to develop two inconsistent cases on the testimony of two different sets of witnesses. The Subordinate Judge rightly held that the evidence was not reliable enough to establish either the one case or the other. He has pointed out that the evidence to show that the execution purchase, though made in the name of X, was for the benefit of both X and Y, is utterly untrustworthy. The two brothers at the time were separate. There is no independent evidence to corroborate the assertion of X that a proportionate part of the consideration was furnished by Y.

(6) 34 C. 51; 4 C. L. J. 437; 11 W. N. 20 (F. B.); 1 M. L. T. 384.

(7) (1874) 3 Ex. D. 251; 47 L. J. Ex. 528; 39 L. T. 223; 26 W. R. 902.

(8) (1880) 5 Q. B. D. 302; 49 L. J. Q. B. 333; 42 L. T. 285; 28 W. R. 557.

(9) (1887) 35 Ch. D. 492; 56 L. J. Ch. 603; 56 L. T. 503; 35 W. R. 707.

(10) 15 C. 684; 15 I. A. 81; 12 Ind. Jur. 291; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 175.

Nor is there any trustworthy evidence to show that, after this purchase, Y obtained joint possession of the property along with X. There is, on the other hand, no tangible evidence to prove that the conveyance executed by X in favour of A, B and C was really a conveyance in favour of Y, or of A, B, C and D. It was suggested at one stage of the argument in the Court below, and that suggestion has been repeated in this Court, that the conveyance might possibly be treated as a deed of relinquishment. This theory is extremely improbable. If the parties really intended the document to operate as a deed of release, there is no conceivable reason why it should not have been described as such; it is inexplicable why recitals untrue in fact should have been deliberately inserted in the deed, and why a large amount should have been paid as stamp duty on the conveyance, while a smaller amount would have sufficed for a deed of release. We are clearly of opinion that the plaintiff has failed to prove that the deed of conveyance by X in favour of A, B and C was in reality other than what it purported to be. But the appellant has argued that as the parties in a suit for partition occupy the position of counter-claimants, it was incumbent upon the defendants to set up and establish their special case. There is plainly no force in this contention. The defendants had no occasion to meet any case alleged in the plaint, while the two alternative cases developed in the evidence were destructive of each other. The first ground consequently fails.

As regards the second ground, it has not been seriously disputed by the respondents that the order for costs is erroneous. The Subordinate Judge has allowed the defendants the full amount of Pleader's fees on the value of the suit. This order could not properly be made at the stage of the preliminary decree, when the matter in controversy related only to a half-anna share in the property valued at Rs. 320. We hold accordingly that the Pleader's fee in Court below should have been assessed at one gold mohur only and that the total costs allowed to the defendants should have been fixed at Rs. 42-1-9 instead of Rs. 376-1-9. Subject to this variation, the decree of the Subordinate Judge will be affirmed. The respondents are entitled to their costs in this Court. We assess the hearing fee at two gold mohurs.

KOLANGORATH RAMAN NAYAR v. KANNOTH.

Decree modified.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 990 OF 1914.

September 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Phillips.

KOLANGORATH RAMAN NAYAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

KANNOTH alias KANDOTH VELLA-
RIKKA KUNHI KOLANDAN
MUSALIAR AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Malabar Law—Kanom mortgage with covenant for perpetual renewal—Intention—Clog on equity of redemption—Denial of jennu's title—Forfeiture—Statements of deceased persons not made in course of business, admissibility of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (2).

A kanom mortgage, with a covenant for perpetual renewal, is rather a perpetual kanom than an ordinary mortgage with a clog on the equity of redemption and is, therefore, not invalid. The kanomdar in such circumstances does not forfeit his kanom mortgage by denying the jennu's title. [p. 185, col. 2; p. 186, col. 1.]

Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad, 27 M. 26, followed.

Venkatasubbayya v. Venkayya, 15 M. 230; 1 M. L. J. 677; Neelakandhan v. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, 30 M. 61; 16 M. L. J. 462; 1 M. L. T. 426; Thambayarsamy Moodetty v. Hoosain Rowthen, 1 M. L. J. 21, A. 241; 3 Sath. P. C. J. 198; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531; Gopalan Nair v. Kunhan Menon, 30 M. 300 at p. 303; 17 M. L. J. 189; 2 M. L. T. 161; Mayavanjari Raman Nair v. Kandapurn Nayar, 1 M. H. C. R. 445; Mayavanjari Chumaren v. Nimini Mayuran, 2 M. H. C. R. 109, referred to.

Merely assertions of title as owner by a person having rights in lands of a very substantial kind should not necessarily be treated as denial of the title of a landlord whose rights are of an attenuated character. [p. 185, col. 2.]

Abbakka Shethi v. Seshamma, 25 Ind. Cas. 944; (1914) M. W. N. 915; 16 M. L. T. 442, followed.

Statements of deceased persons not made in the usual course of business are not admissible in evidence under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act. [p. 185, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree and judgment of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Tellicherry, in Appeal Suit No. 387 of 1911, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Tellicherry, in Original Suit No. 167 of 1910.

Mr. K. P. M. Menon, for the Appellants.
Mr. T. K. Govinda Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiffs are the appellants. They are the jennies of the plaintiff lands, but their predecessors-in-title had executed a perpetual kanom (see Marupat, Exhibit A), in December 1857 in favour of the 1st defendant's ancestor for the sum of Rs. 120 reserving a nominal rent of one fanom per year. Whether this one fanom is to be treated as the agreed excess annual profits which the usufructuary kanom mortgagee is to pay to the mortgagee, or whether a kanom mortgage being usually held to be (as a combination of a mortgage and a lease) an anomalous mortgage, the one fanom is to be treated as rent seems to be an arguable point. The plaintiffs treat the 1st defendant in the plaint as both mortgagee and lessee, and contend that the lease has been forfeited because the 1st defendant denied in a reply notice, Exhibit F (alleged to have been signed and sent by him), dated January 1908 that he was a tenant under the plaintiffs. (See paragraphs 4 and 5 of the plaint which does not refer to any other denial of title before the date of suit.) The plaintiffs did not treat the kanom of 1857 in the plaint as a perpetual kanom, but as an ordinary kanom for the customary period of 12 years and contended in their plaint, paragraph 6, that the cause of action arose on the 26th December 1869. They also gave another date for the cause of action, namely, the date of Exhibit F (18th January 1909).

The District Munsif found (a) that the kanom was not one for 12 years as alleged in the plaint, but an irredeemable kanom (see paragraph 10 of his judgment).

(b) That the 1st defendant did send reply, Exhibit F, though he denied having sent it.

(c) That the 1st defendant forfeited his irredeemable kanom tenure by reason of the plaintiffs' title in the letter Exhibit F.

On these findings he gave judgment for the plaintiffs for redemption of the kanom.

The learned Subordinate Judge on appeal agreed with the District Munsif that the reply notice, Exhibit F, was proved to have been sent by the 1st defendant, but held on the strength of Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1) that a perpetual kanom is not forfeited by denial of the landlord's title. He, therefore, dismissed the plaintiffs' suit reversing the District Munsif's judgment.

KOLANGORATH RAMAN NAYAR V. KANNOTH.

The contentions before us in second appeal are—

(1) That the clause in the Marupat, Exhibit A, against surrender is a clog on redemption, invalid in law and as such inoperative. (See 2nd ground of second appeal memo.)

(2) That the perpetual right must be held to have been forfeited on the ground of the denial of the landlord's title, the case of Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripal (1) not being applicable to the facts of the present case. (See the 5th ground of second appeal memo.)

As regards the first contention, the mortgage now in question is dated in 1857. This Court in several cases [see for example Venkatasubbayya v. Venkayya (2) and Nee akandhan v. Ananthakrishna Aiyar (3)] has followed the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Thumbusawmy Moodelly v. Hoosain Rowthen (4), which held that the law of India was not the law of the English Courts of Chancery in respect of stipulations in documents of mortgage restricting the right of redemption, that the Indian Courts, when they applied the rules of the English Chancery Courts in such cases, "assumed the functions of the Legislature", and that, as regards mortgages made before 1858 when the erroneous course of decisions began in Madras, the intentions of the parties to the mortgage should be carried out without reference to the decisions of the English Courts of Equity.

As regards anomalous mortgages executed after the Transfer of Property Act came into force, also the provisions for perpetual renewal are valid according to the opinion of the present Chief Justice found in Gopalan Nair v. Kunhan Menon (5).

In the case of Kottal Uppi v. Edavalath Thathan Nambudiri (6), a perpetual kanom was recognised by this Court and relief was granted against the forfeiture of the perpetual term incurred by the breach of the stipulation in the kanom-deed that forfeiture would be incurred by non-payment of rent regularly.

This contention, again, about the perpetual term being illegal, was not put forward in the plaint which relied only on the forfeiture by reason of the denial of title in the notice, Exhibit F. I would, therefore, reject this contention.

Coming to the second contention, the respondent's learned Vakil attacked the finding of the lower Courts, namely, that the 1st defendant signed and sent the reply, Exhibit F, as not supported by any legal evidence. Neither Court refers to any positive evidence that the 1st defendant signed and sent Exhibit F. The District Munsif presumes that the 1st defendant must have signed and sent it because in two previous documents, Exhibits K and M, he had set up kudima jeum title. The Subordinate Judge says without reference to any evidence whatever, "I find that the reply, Exhibit F, is proved to have been sent by the 1st defendant." The fact that Exhibits K and M are genuine is not legal proof that Exhibit F is genuine. The only evidence in the case on the plaintiff's side about Exhibit F is that the plaintiff's kariyasthan was told by the writer of Exhibit F that the writer wrote it at the request of the 1st defendant. That statement of the writer who is now dead, made to the plaintiff's kariyasthan is not alleged to have been made in the ordinary course of the writer's business. That statement, therefore, does not come under section 32, clause, 2 of the Evidence Act and cannot prove that the 1st defendant did ask that writer to write Exhibit F. That is the only denial of title relied upon in the plaint. Mr. K. P. M. Menon, the learned Counsel for the appellant, relied upon the denial of title in Exhibits K and M. But apart from the fact that these alleged denials are not relied upon by the plaintiffs in the plaint, I think that assertions of title as owner by a person having rights in lands of a very substantial kind should not necessarily be treated as denial of the title of a landlord whose rights are of a very attenuated character [see also Abbakka Shetthi v. Seshamma (7) decided by Napier, J., and myself as to the caution re-

(2) 15 M. 230; 1 M. L. J. 677.

(3) 30 M. 61; 6 M. L. J. 462; 1 M. L. T. 426.

(4) 1 M. 1; 2 L. A. 241; 3 Sutr. P. C. J. 198; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531.

(5) 30 M. 300 at p. 303; 17 M. L. J. 189; 2 M. L. T. 161.

(6) 6 M. H. C. R. 254.

(7) 25 Ind. Cas. 944; 16 M. L. T. 442; (1914) M. W. N. 915.

MAYA DEVI P. RAM CHAND.

quired to be exercised by Indian Courts in applying the doctrine of forfeiture of denial of title.

Further, I am prepared to follow the decision of Boddam, J., and Bashayam Aiyangar, J., in Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1) that such denial by a mortgagee within the period of his contractual mortgage term does not work a forfeiture of the term. It was argued that Raman Nair v. Kandalam Nayar (8) and Mayarajaji Chumachen v. Nimalai Mayuran (9), which the learned Counsel contends are in his favour, have not been considered in Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1). I cannot accept this argument, as the Vakils who argued that case (Messrs. Sankaran Nair and Sundara Aiyar) were two of the most eminent Vakils of this Court. Sir Bhashyam Aiyangar (one of the learned Judges who decided that case) and those two learned gentlemen (who also became learned Judges of this Court afterwards) possessed quite exceptional knowledge of Malabar Law, including the case-law.

Further, the judgment in Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1) does refer to decisions cited by the respondents' Vakil and states the effect of those decisions. I am quite satisfied, therefore, that these two cases must have been cited before the learned Judges who decided Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1). That case clearly decided that while the customary period of 12 years for an ordinary kanom cannot be availed of by a mortgagee who denied his mortgagor's title within that period, such a denial of the mortgagor's title does not make the mortgagee liable to forfeit the term contracted for between the parties. As the term contracted for in this case is a perpetual term, it cannot be forfeited by denial. I am not inclined to question the correctness of the decision in Raman Nair v. Vasudevan Namboodripad (1) after this length of time, though the distinction made between the case of a customary term and a contractual term in that decision may be rather fine (see also the criticism of this decision in Moore's Malabar Law, pages 229 and 230).

In the result I would dismiss the second appeal with costs.

PHILLIPS, J.—I concur.

Appeal dismissed.

(8) 1 M. H. C. R. 445.

(9) 2 M. H. C. R. 109.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1274 OF 1913.

July 28, 1915.

Present:— Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and
Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

Musammal MAYA DEVI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM CHAND—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Hindu Law—Marriage—Guardian appointed by Court—Infant girl given in marriage without guardian's consent or in disobedience of Court's order, effect of—Marriage performed in inauspicious times—Right to give girls in marriage—Duty of giving girls in marriage, rules as to, nature of—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 24.

A Hindu marriage performed at a time regarded inauspicious by the astrologers cannot be treated as ineffectual in law. [p. 187, col. 1.]

Under Hindu Law, in the event of the father and paternal male relations losing their right by death or waiver to give a girl in marriage, the right of selecting the husband for a female infant devolves on the mother. [p. 187, col. 1.]

The rules as to the duty of giving Hindu girls in marriage are directory and not mandatory. Therefore, in the absence of force or fraud, a Hindu marriage otherwise legally contracted and performed with the necessary ceremonies is not invalidated by the absence of consent of the guardian entitled to give such consent. [p. 187, cols. 1 & 2.]

Venkatacharyulu v. Rangacharyulu, 14 M. 316; 1 M. L. J. 85; Ghazi v. Sukri, 19 A. 515; A. W. N. (1897) 130; Mulchand Kuber v. Bhudhia, 22 B. 812, relied upon.

Dyal v. Narain Das, 64 P. R. 1884, distinguished.

The circumstance that the marriage of a Hindu girl was celebrated by her guardian in disobedience of the order of the Civil Court would not invalidate the marriage, if it was performed by the guardian in good faith and for the welfare of the minor and if in the absence of that guardian's appointment under the Guardians and Wards Act by the Court, the guardian would have been entitled to give the girl in marriage. [p. 187, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Court of the Divisional Judge, Gujranwala Division, at Lahore, dated the 24th May 1913, affirming that of the District Judge, Gujranwala, dated the 23rd December 1912, decreeing the claim.

The Hon'ble Mr. Muhammad Shafi, K. B., for the Appellants.

Mr. Kirkpatrick and Lala Tiroth Ram, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal arises out of an action brought by the respondent, Ram Chand, against his wife, Musammal Maya Devi, for the restitution of conjugal rights. The facts which are relevant to the point of law in issue in this appeal are simple and may be stated in a few words

MAYA DEVI v. RAM CHAND.

Musammât Maya Devi's father died in 1903, and in 1905 Musammât Radhi, her mother, was appointed her guardian by the District Court, with the direction that she should not perform the marriage of the minor without the sanction of the Court. It appears that the mother celebrated the marriage of her daughter with Ram Chand sometime in 1909 without obtaining the necessary permission of the Court, and the factum of this marriage is no longer in dispute. The cardinal point for consideration is whether the Court should refuse to recognise the validity of the marriage.

We may state at once that the fact that the marriage was solemnized in the sangât year does not render it invalid. A sangât year may be an inauspicious time, but there is no authority for holding that the marriage performed at a time regarded inauspicious by the astrologers should be treated as ineffectual in law. Nor do we consider that the disparity in the ages of the parties is such as would constitute a sufficient reason for setting aside the marriage, which has been duly solemnized.

There was some discussion before us as to whether the marriage was performed in accordance with the Hindu rites or whether it was, what is commonly known, an anand marriage. The Courts below have not recorded a clear finding on this point but the report of the Commissioner, who is a retired officer of judicial experience, is that the marriage was celebrated according to the ceremonies prescribed by the Hindu Law and we think his view is supported by the evidence on the record.

It is manifest in the event of the father and paternal male relations having lost their right to give the girl in marriage by death or waiver, the right of selecting the husband for a female infant devolves upon the mother and Musammât Radhi was, according to the rules of Hindu Law, fully competent to give her daughter in marriage. The rules as to the duty of giving (girls) in marriage are directory and not mandatory and it has been held over and over again that in the absence of force or fraud, a Hindu marriage otherwise legally contracted and performed with the necessary ceremonies is not invalidated by the absence of consent of the guardian entitled to give such consent, vide Venkatacharyulu v. Rangacharyulu (1) Ghazi v. Sakru (2) and Mulchand Kuber v. Bhudhia (3). The judgment in Dyal v. Narain Das (4) does not lay down any rule to the contrary and it appears that the Court on the peculiar circumstances of that case annulled the marriage because it was celebrated by the mother in opposition to her husband's authority and because the marriage was found to be unnecessary and unsuitable. It is doubtful whether those circumstances would justify a Court in setting aside a Hindu marriage performed with the usual rites, but the ruling has clearly no applicability to the case before us.

It follows from the above discussion that if no proceedings had been taken under the Guardians and Wards Act and if the mother had not been appointed guardian by the Court, the validity of the marriage in question, which was performed by her in good faith and for the welfare of the minor, could not have been successfully contested in a Court of law. And we do not think that the absence of sanction has the effect of invalidating a marriage which is otherwise legally contracted. In fact the Bombay High Court in their judgment in Bai Dhwali v. Moti Karson (5) decided that the circumstance that the marriage was celebrated in disobedience of the order of a Civil Court, does not invalidate it. In this view we entirely concur.

It will be observed that no male paternal relation of the father has raised any objection to the marriage and that Beli Ram, who has been contesting the claim of the plaintiff, is the second husband of Musammât Radhi and is not in any way related to the minor. We are unable to say whether it is his solicitude for the welfare of the minor or some ulterior motive which has actuated him in fighting out this case.

(1) 14 M. 316; 1 M. L. J. 85.

(2) 19 A. 515; A. W. N. (1897) 139.

(3) 22 B. 81.

(4) 64 P. R. 1884.

(5) 22 B. 509.

NARAYAN SINGH P. AIYASAMI REDDI.

Upon a consideration of all the circumstances and the law bearing on the subject, we are satisfied that the marriage between Ram Chand and Mysammata Maya Devi is a valid transaction and that there is no cogent reason for disturbing the decree for restitution of conjugal rights granted by both the Courts below. We accordingly affirm the decree appealed from and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL NO. 363 OF 1914.

August 2, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

M. NARAYAN SINGH—DEFENDANT—

PETITIONER—APPELLANT

versus

AIYASAMI REDDI AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 63
—Suit to set aside attachment of immovable property, valuation of—Jurisdiction—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 4.

In a suit instituted under Order XXI, rule 63 of the Code of Civil Procedure (both against the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder) to cancel the attachment and also to declare that the judgment-debtor has no interest in the property attached, the market value of the land and not the amount due under the decree in execution of which the land was attached, determines the Court which should entertain the suit. [p. 189, col. 1.]

Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra, 35 C. 202; 12 C. W. N. 169; 35 I. A. 22 (P. O.); 7 C. L. J. 36; 5 A. L. J. 10; 17 M. L. J. 618; 2 M. L. T. 506; 10 Bom. L. R. 1; Fisher v. Arunachella Chettiar, 2 Ind. Cas. 522; 9 M. L. J. 236; 5 M. L. T. 70, followed.

Krishnasami Naidu v. Somasundaram Chettiar, 30 M. 335; 17 M. L. J. 95; 2 M. L. T. 116 (F. B.), distinguished.

Appeal, under clause 15 of the Letters Patent, against the order of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri, in Civil Revision Petition No. 907 of 1913, reported in 27 Ind. Cas. 265, preferred against that of the District Court of Chingleput, in Original Suit No. 31 of 1913.

Mr. S. Krishnamurthi Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—We think the learned Judge is right. The 1st defendant obtained a decree against the 2nd defendant and attached the suit property as his. The plaintiff put in a claim petition. He made the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder (2nd and 1st defendant) parties to that petition. His claim was disallowed and he has brought this present suit under Order XXI, rule 63. The value of the property in suit is Rs. 4,000, whereas the decree of the 1st defendant is for Rs. 300. The question for determination is, what is the value of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction. The Court-fee under Schedule II, Article 17, of the Court Fees Act, will be the same whatever be the value of the property. The District Judge held that the suit ought to be instituted in his Court, as the value of the land in dispute exceeded the pecuniary limits of the District Munsif's jurisdiction. The defendant asks this Court to revise the order on the ground that the value of the suit is the value of the decree obtained by the 1st defendant against the 2nd defendant.

Under section 4 of the Suits Valuation Act, the plaintiff is not entitled to put a higher value on the suit than what is covered by his interest in the litigation. The decision of the Judicial Committee in Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (1) is to the same effect. Their Lordships say that the value of the action is its value to the plaintiff. If that criterion is applied, the suit ought to be valued with reference to the relief sought by the plaintiff. In Fisher v. Arunachella Chettiar (2), this Court came to the conclusion that for purposes of jurisdiction the right put forward by the plaintiff fixes the value of the suit.

On the other hand, the decision of the Full Bench in Krishnasami Naidu v. Somasundaram Chettiar (3) lays down that in determining jurisdiction the lowest value, whether it be that of the decree under execution or of the property under attachment, should be accepted as determining the forum for the trial of the suit. We find no reference in this judgment to the decision of the Judicial Committee in Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (1). Moreover, in the present case both to the claim pro-

(1) 35 C. 202; 12 C. W. N. 169; 35 I. A. 22 (P. O.); 7 C. L. J. 36; 5 A. L. J. 10; 17 M. L. J. 618; 2 M. L. T. 506; 10 Bom. L. R. 1.

(2) 2 Ind. Cas. 522; 9 M. L. J. 236; 5 M. L. T. 70.

(3) 30 M. 335; 17 M. L. J. 95; 2 M. L. T. 116 (F. B.).

ATRABANNESHA BIBI V. SAFATULLAH MIA.

ceedings and to the suit the judgment-debtor was a party. The prayer in the suit is not only to cancel the attachment but also for a declaration that the judgment-debtor has no interest in the property. The proper issue must relate to the conflicting title of the plaintiff and of the 2nd defendant, and the decision on it will be binding on both. Consequently, the value to the plaintiff of this suit is his full interest in the land whose attachment he seeks to raise. The learned Judges who decided Krishnasami Naidu v. Somasundaram Chettiar (3) based their decision on the ground that the judgment-debtor will not be affected by the decision in the suit. The present case is distinguishable from the Full Bench ruling, because the plaintiff here has distinctly asked for an adjudication against the 2nd defendant. It is doubtful whether the Full Bench decision is good law having regard to the decision in Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam Misra (1). However that may be, we feel no difficulty in holding in this case that the learned Judge is right in his view that the value of the suit is the value of the entire property claimed by the plaintiff.

We dismiss the Letters Patent Appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2673 OF 1912.

July 7, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Ne bould.

ATRABANNESHA BIBI—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

SAFATULLAH MIA AND OTHERS—

DEPENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Benamidar—Suit for partition of immoveable property by benamidar, if maintainable—Suits for land and suits for money claims, distinction between—Nature of partition.

A benamidar cannot maintain a suit for partition of joint immoveable property. [p. 190, col. 2.]

Seemle:—A distinction has been recognised in the Calcutta High Court between suits for land and suits for money claims in the determination of the question of the competence of a benamidar to maintain a suit: in the former class of cases the right has been denied; in the latter class of cases the right has been sustained. [p. 190, col. 1.]

The essence of partition is that the property is transformed into estates in severalty and one of such estates is assigned to each of the former occupants for his sole use and as his sole property. [p. 190, col. 2.]

No analogy can be established between partition and the enforcement of a money claim, even when such claim is associated with land, as in the case of a benami mortgage or of a benami lease, though as regards leases and mortgages, there is apparently some divergence of judicial opinion. [p. 190, col. 2.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Mymensingh, dated the 5th March 1912, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge of Mymensingh, dated the 24th April 1911.

Babus Ram Chunder Mozumdar and Dharendra Lal Kastgir, for the Appellant.

Babu Dwarka Nath Chakrabarti and Moulvi Nuruddin Ahmed, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—A question of law of first impression has been raised in this appeal, which has been preferred by the plaintiff in a suit for partition of joint immoveable property. On the 30th April 1906 the plaintiff took a conveyance in respect of a share of the disputed land from her brother. On the 28th September 1909 the plaintiff instituted this suit for partition and joined her vendor as pro forma defendant. The contesting defendants resisted the claim on the ground, amongst others, that the sale was a fictitious transaction and that the plaintiff as the nominal owner was not entitled to maintain the suit. The Courts below have concurrently found upon the facts in favour of the defendants and have dismissed the suit. The question thus arises whether a benamidar can maintain a suit for partition of joint immoveable property.

On behalf of the appellant reference has been made to the cases of Basi Poddar v. Ram Krishna Poddar (1) and Baburam Mandar v. Ram Sahai Sahoo (2), where the right of a benamidar to apply for reversal of an execution sale of land under section 310A of the Code of 1882 was sustained, as also to the decision in Sreenath Nag v. Chundernath Ghose (3), Bhoobunessur Roy v. Juggessuree (4), Sachitanandu Mohapatra v. Baloram Gorain (5)

(1) 1 C. W. N. 135.

(2) 8 C. L. J. 305.

(3) 17 W. R. 192.

(4) 22 W. R. 413.

(5) 24 C. 644.

ATKABANNESSA BIBI F. SAFATULLAH MIA.

Hari Gobinda Saha v. Purna Chandra Saha (6), Alikjan Bibi v. Rambaran Shah (7) and Kirtibasa Das v. Gopal Jea (8), where the right of a nominal mortgagee to enforce the security was recognised. On behalf of the respondents, on the other hand, reliance has been placed upon the doctrine now well settled in this Court, that a benamidar is not competent to maintain a suit for possession of immoveable property: Meheranissa Bibi v. Hur Churn Bose (9), Fuzzeela Beebe v. Jundak Beebe (10), Kulee Prasanna v. Dinanath (11), Tamamunissa v. Wajjulummon Hossee (12), Hari Gobind Adhikari v. Akhoy Kumar Mozumdar (13), Issar Chandra Dutt v. Gopal Chandra Das (14), Barnala Sundari Ghose v. Dina Bantha Khan (15), Mohendra Nath v. Kali Prashad (16). This doctrine is in accord with the pronouncement of the Madras High Court in Kuthaperumal Rajali v. Secretary of State (17), though possibly a discordant note is sounded in the still later case of Venkatachala Asari v. Subramania Chetty (18); while a contrary view has been adopted in Bombay: Dagdu v. Balwant Ramchandra Natu (19), Ravji Appaji Kulkarni v. Mahadev Bapaji Kulkarni (20) and in Allahabad: Nand Kishore Lal v. Akmal Ata (21), Yad Ram v. Umrao Singh (22). These cases indicate that a distinction has been recognised in this Court between suits for land and suits for money claims, in the determination of the question of the competence of a benamidar to maintain a suit: in the former class of cases the right has been denied; in the latter class of cases the right has been sustained. The substantial question in controversy is, within which of these classes does a suit for partition of land fall. In our opinion a suit for partition of immoveable property should, for our present purpose, be included in the same category as a suit for possession of land. The object of a suit for partition is to alter the form of enjoyment of joint property by the co-owners; or, as has sometimes been said, partition signifies the surrender of a portion of a joint right in exchange for a similar right from the co-sharer. Partition is thus the division made between several persons of joint lands, which belong to them as co-proprietors, so that each becomes the sole owner of the part which is allotted to him; the essence of partition is that the property is transformed into estates in severalty and one of such estates is assigned to each of the former occupants for his sole use and as his sole property. No intelligible principle has been suggested whereby an analogy can be established between the process thus described and the enforcement of a money claim, even when such claim is associated with land, as in the case of a benami mortgage or of a benami lease, though it may be observed that even as regards leases, [Donzelle v. Kedarnath Chuckerbutty (23), Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v. Donzelle (24), Inderbuttee v. Mubhoob Ali (25), Jainarayan Bose v. Kallumbini Dasi (26), Purnia v. Torab (27), Bogar v. Karam Singh (28)] as also as regards mortgages, [Alikjan Bibi v. Rambaran Shah (7), Munshi Basiruddin v. Mahomed Jalish (29)], there is apparently some divergence of judicial opinion. We accordingly hold that the plaintiff as benamidar is not entitled to maintain a suit for partition of the joint property in dispute.

It has finally been argued on the authority of the decision in Ram Bhurosee Singh v. Bissesser Narain Mahata (30), that the defendants should not have been

(6) 1 Ind. Cas. 522; 11 C. L. J. 47.

(7) 7 Ind. Cas. 166; 12 C. L. J. 357.

(8) 9 Ind. Cas. 499; 19 C. L. J. 193.

(9) 10 W. R. 220.

(10) 11 B. L. R. 60 n; 10 W. R. 469.

(11) 11 B. L. R. 56 at p. 64; 19 W. R. 434.

(12) 20 W. R. 72.

(13) 16 C. 364.

(14) 25 C. 98; 3 C. W. N. 20.

(15) 25 C. 874; 3 C. W. N. 12.

(16) 30 C. 265; 7 C. W. N. 229.

(17) 30 M. 245; 17 M. L. J. 174.

(18) 8 Ind. Cas. 264; 8 M. L. T. 377; (1910) M. W. N. 633.

(19) 22 B. 820.

(20) 22 B. 672.

(21) 18 A. 69; A. W. N. (1895) 160.

(22) 21 A. 380; A. W. N. (1899) 130.

(23) 7 B. L. R. 720; 16 W. R. 186.

(24) 20 W. R. 352.

(25) 24 W. R. 44.

(26) 7 B. L. R. 723 n.

(27) (1865) Wyman 14.

(28) 13 P. W. R. 1.07; 141 P. R. 1906; 96 P. L. R. 1907.

(29) 12 C. W. N. 409.

(30) 18 W. R. 454.

BHAMBA RAM v. ALLAH BAKHSH.

allowed to object that the plaintiff was not the real owner. There is no foundation for this contention. The defendants allege that the vendor of the plaintiff was a party to a prior partition suit instituted in 1907 and that the present suit had been instituted at his instance and on his behalf by his benamidar with a view to enable him to escape from the effects of the decree in the earlier litigation. This, if established, is a complete answer to the suit as framed, and the defendants were undoubtedly competent to urge this defence, as they have successfully done. This also meets another objection taken by the defendants, namely, that the proper procedure was not to dismiss the suit but to direct that the beneficial owner be made a joint plaintiff—a course commended in Sita Nath Saha v. Nobin Chunder Roy (31), Gopi Nath Choley v. Bhugout Pershad (32), Kallee Prosonno v. Dinonath (11), Bhola Pershad v. Ram Lal (33). In the present case the procedure now suggested cannot possibly be adopted. In the first place the vendor of the plaintiff cannot be joined as a co-plaintiff without his consent. In the second place if he was so joined, it would be of no avail as the relief claimed must be refused on the ground that the suit is barred by the decree in the prior partition suit.

As a last resort the plaintiff has relied upon her jote right, but we are of opinion that the District Judge has very properly left the matter open for adjudication in a separate suit appropriately framed in that behalf.

The result is that the decree of the District Judge is affirmed and this appeal dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(31) 5 C. L. R. 102.

(32) 10 C. 697.

(33) 24 C. 34.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1979 OF 1912.

April 1, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal and
Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

BHAMBA RAM AND ANOTHER—DEPENDANTS
—APPELLANTS

versus

ALLAH BAKHSH—PLAINTIFF AND OTHERS
—DEPENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 13—'Shop', meaning of—Residential place with an oven for making rotis, whether shop.

The question whether upon certain facts found, a building should or should not be held to be a 'shop' within the meaning of section 13 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, 1905, is one of law and constitutes a good ground for second appeal. [p. 191, col. 2.]

Feroze-ud-Din v. Rahim Bakhsh, 8 Ind. Cas. 356; 192 P. L. R. 1910; 96 P. R. 1910, referred to.

The word 'shop' in its ordinary meaning denotes a building or an apartment which is primarily used for buying and selling goods. [p. 192, col. 1.]

Where a place was primarily used as a residential place:

Held, that it was not a shop although there was in it an oven for cooking rotis for any one who brought his own flour for the purpose and paid in cash or in kind for baking the rotis. [p. 192, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Multan, dated the 10th October 1912.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Sh o Narain, for the Appellants.

Bakhshi Tek Chand and Mr. Badr-ud-Din, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The point which requires decision in this appeal is, whether the property in dispute is a shop and consequently exempt from pre-emption. We have to determine it upon the facts found by the lower Appellate Court, and it seems to us clear that the question, whether upon those facts, the building should or should not be held to be a shop within the meaning of section 13 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, is one of law and constitutes a good ground for second appeal—vide, inter alia, Feroze-ud-Din v. Rahim Bakhsh (1). We have, therefore, no hesitation in overruling the preliminary objection that no second appeal lies from the decree of the Divisional Judge.

Upon the merits, the Advocate for the appellants has not been able to satisfy us that the concurrent finding of the lower Courts as to the nature of the property is erroneous and we have not, therefore, called upon the respondents' Pleader to reply. It is clear that the building consists of three rooms and a roofed verandah, which is a kind of thara or platform and it appears that in that platform there is an open sunk oven for cooking rotis. The lower Appellate Court has found that the vendors, Musammal Muradan and her son Allah Wasaya, lived in the rooms, and that she used the oven for cooking rotis for any one who brought his own flour for the purpose and paid her either in cash or in kind for her services in baking the rotis. It has further found that the woman did not actually sell rotis there.

(1) 8 Ind. Cas. 356; 96 P. R. 1910; 192 P. L. R. 1910.

EASWARA AIYAR v. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU.

On these facts we are unable to regard the property as a shop. The word 'shop' is not defined in the Act, and it is not easy to lay down a complete and exhaustive definition of the term. But in its ordinary meaning it denotes a building or an apartment which is primarily used for buying and selling goods. Judged by this test even the roofed verandah, apart from the rooms which are undoubtedly used for residential purposes, can hardly be called a shop. And, if we take the entire building as one tenement, we have no doubt that it cannot be regarded as a shop. The ratio decidendi in cases in which the property is used for more than one purpose, is to find out the primary or main purpose for which it has been used; and we are of opinion that the primary use in this case was certainly residential. We find that prior to 1906, the property had in all the deeds been described as a house and it is only in the deeds executed in that year and subsequently that the vendees and their predecessors-in-interest got it described as a shop. It is quite possible that the object of that description was to defeat the right of pre-emption. As regards the other properties in the locality, no definite information can be gathered from the evidence on the record. It, however, appears that some of them are houses while others are shops, pure and simple.

In view of all the circumstances of the case, and more especially the primary use to which the building has been put, we agree with the lower Courts that it has not been proved to be a shop, and that the plaintiff has established his right to pre-empt it. We accordingly maintain the decree of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT. REFERRED CASE NO. 3 OF 1914.

September 3, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

C. A. EASWARA AIYAR—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

K. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU—
DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 17—Judgment-debtor adjudicated an insolvent—Court, whether has jurisdiction to entertain execution proceedings—Leave of High Court, necessity of—Security bond for appearance of judgment-debtor—Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 9, rules under.

When once a person is adjudicated an insolvent, creditors seeking any remedy against him must apply to a High Court on its insolvency side to get leave for that purpose. [p. 196, col. 1.]

A Court of Small Causes has, therefore, no jurisdiction without the leave of the High Court to entertain an application in execution after the judgment-debtor has been adjudicated an insolvent. [p. 196, col. 1.]

Quere.—Whether section 30 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, or Order XXI, rule 27, of the Civil Procedure Code empowers a Presidency Court of Small Causes to take a security bond for the appearance of the judgment-debtor arrested in execution of a decree? [p. 196, col. 1.]

Case stated, under section 69 of Act XV of 1882, by the Judges of the Presidency Court of Small Causes of Madras, in F. B. No. 58 of 1913 and Suit No. 6809 of 1913.

FACTS of the case appear from the following

REFERENCE.

One Easwara Iyer, the plaintiff in this case, had obtained a decree against one Jayaram Naidu in Small Cause Suit No. 1048 of 1912 on 31st January 1912 for Rs. 307-12-0 and costs. On 12th September 1912 the said Jayaram Naidu filed his petition and schedule in the Insolvency Court, Madras, and obtained from that Court a protection order under section 25 of the Insolvency Act, vide Exhibit II in this case. The said order gave protection to him in the first instance till 22nd of November. The plaintiff's decree-debt was not included in the debtor's schedule when first filed. On the 30th November, the plaintiff got Jayaram arrested under a warrant he obtained from this Court, in execution of his decree in the said Small Cause Suit No. 1048 of 1912. The amount of the warrant was Rs. 396-9-3. Jayaram was kept in intermediate custody for two days and produced before the 3rd Court on 2nd day of December to be committed to jail or otherwise dealt with as the Court directed. Jayaram then filed an application in Court supported by an affidavit asking for release from custody for a fortnight, on the ground that he had already filed his petition and schedule in insolvency and obtained protection but by oversight, he had omitted plaintiff's decree-debt in his schedule, that he had already applied to have the schedule amended and expected orders in a week. The Court granted an adjournment till the 12th December and directed Jayaram to be released from custody during that time on his giving security for his appearance to the satisfaction of the Registrar. The present defendant, Govindarajulu Naidu, agreed to be the surety and Jayaram and he executed the bond filed as Exhibit A in this suit to the Registrar and Jayaram was thereupon released. By the bond Jayaram and the present defendant agreed to pay to the Registrar and his assigns, etc., the sum of Rs. 396-9-3 on condition that the obligation was to be void "if the said Jayaram Naidu shall appear in the said Court on the 12th day of December 1912 (with the protection order) and on any subsequent day or days to which the hearing of the said application may be adjourned until it shall be disposed of, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue." The sum mentioned in it is the amount in the warrant under which Jayaram was arrested. On the adjourned date, Jayaram as well as the surety appeared, but did not produce the amended schedule or protection order and Jayaram prayed for a further adjournment to produce these documents and the Court granted him a further adjournment to 19th December and he was again released on the same security. On the adjourned date, parties again appeared and produced the copy of the amended schedule including plaintiff's decree-debt therein, vide Exhibit I, but did not produce the copy of the protection order. From Exhibit I, it is clear that at some time on or before 13th December the debtor's schedule had been amended to include plaintiff's decree-debt, for it bears the date 13th December 1912. An oral application for further adjournment was again made and granted till the 8th of January 1913, Jayaram being released on the same security. On that date Jayaram did not appear in Court though the Vakil for the defendant and the surety was present. The Court thereupon rejected Jayaram's application. Immediately the surety put in an application to Court stating that he did not produce Jayaram in Court as the latter was seriously ill and unable to move from his bed and asked for three days' time undertaking to produce him by then. On that, the Court passed on 8th of January 1913 the order, "on the same security extended till Saturday", i. e., the 11th of January. On the 11th the Court passed the order "debtor not produced, plaintiff might take such steps as he may be advised." On the 22nd January, on plaintiff's application for assignment of the bond to him the Court passed, without any notice to Jayaram or the surety, the order "sanctioned". On the 4th of February the assignment deed was executed in plaintiff's favour by the Registrar. On the 19th of February the surety, the present defendant, made an application to the Registrar to set aside the assignment of the security bond, stating in the affidavit in support of it that his inability to produce the debtor in January was on account of the latter's illness and that he was ready to produce him then, that this debt had been included in the schedule and a protection order obtained when he was asked to produce the defendant and that, therefore, the decree-holder had not been prejudiced by his default to produce him. That application after notice to plaintiff was adjourned from time to time. The plaintiff filed the present suit on 22nd of April. On 9th May, the surety's application was dismissed for default, the surety not appearing apparently because the question of his liability under the bond was already raised in the suit. All through these execution proceedings the copy of the protection order now produced in this suit, Exhibit II, was not produced in Court. Exhibit II now filed, shows that Jayaram Naidu was granted protection by the Insolvency Court on 12th September 1912 in the first instance till the 22nd of November; and protection was "extended" four times till 21st February 1913, 28th March 1913, 4th April 1913 and 3rd May 1913. These "extension" orders are not dated and do not state expressly the dates of commencement. We are not agreed as to the validity and the effect to be given to these orders.

RASWARA AIYAR V. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU.

EASWARA AYYAR P. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU.

Plaintiff's suit against the defendant surety for the amount of the bond is based on the ground that on 8th January 1913 Jayaram Naidu failed to appear (see paragraph 6 of the plaint). The defendant pleaded that the debtor was not produced on that date as he was too ill, that he was ready to produce him then, that the plaintiff had no cause of action as he could not have taken steps even if Jayaram had been produced as a protection order had been obtained then, that the sum mentioned was penal and that plaintiff was not entitled to it.

The learned trial Judge found against the defendant on all these pleas and decreed the suit as brought. The defendant applied to the Full Court under section 38 of the principal Act. In the Full Bench, we are not agreed on the question whether in the circumstances of the case, the bond should be enforced against the surety, the defendant; the Chief Judge and the second Judge holding that the decree of the first Court should be reversed and the suit dismissed; the third Judge holding that his first judgment was correct and that the decree should be confirmed. We have delivered separate judgments setting forth our reasons for our individual views; a reference to which judgments is respectfully requested. As we have differed in opinion we beg to make this reference to the High Court under section 69 of the principal Act. The question we refer for the opinion of the High Court is as follows:—

"In the circumstances of the case as set out above, should the bond Exhibit A be enforced against the surety, the defendant, and is plaintiff entitled to a decree for the amount thereof."

Messrs. Venkatasubba Row and Radha Krishnayya, for the Appellant:—The Small Cause Court had jurisdiction to take this bond. By the term "other legal proceeding" it is not intended to include arrest of a judgment-debtor. That is clear from the provisions of the Provincial Insolvency Act, which specially make mention of the judgment-debtor's person.

It is also clear from section 49 of the repealed Insolvency Act.

In the absence of any provision, the decree-holder is entitled to take steps; further in this case, the decree-debt was not included in the schedule at all. It was only when application for execution was made that it was included and the protection sought.

Mr. W. V. Rangaswamy Aiyangar, for the Respondent:—The Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to take this bond at all. It must come under section 30 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act which contains no provision as to taking of a bond. Such a provision is found only in the Code of Civil Procedure, section 54, and has not been repeated in the rules framed under section 9 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act.

JUDGMENT.

NAPIER, J.—This is a reference under section 69 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act—Act XV of 1882. It is much to be regretted that the Judges of that Court did not adhere more closely to the directions of the section in making their reference. They do not state clearly the points on which there is a difference of opinion. They practically refer the whole case to this Court saying that they are not agreed on the question, whether "under the circumstances of the case, the bond should be enforced against the surety, the defendant." In my opinion this is not a proper reference, and were it not that one of the Judges of that Court has now retired, I would, speaking for myself, return the reference for re-submission in strict accordance with law. As that course is now impossible, I will deal with it as if the reference was on three points:—(1) whether there was any jurisdiction in the Court to take the bond, (2) whether the protection order granted by the High Court in the exercise of its insolvency jurisdiction operated to make the bond void and (3) whether the sum mentioned in the bond was penal. These three points have been elaborately argued before us. On the second point, the principal questions to be considered are:—Whether the continuance order did in fact relate back to cover the date when the bond was taken and also whether the protection order, continued after he had entered this debt in his schedule, could be read as covering this debt when no specific reference was made to the fact in the continuance order. From what we learn from the Registrar, it is clear that these orders for continuance of protection are made in rather a routine manner after once the protection has been given and I am inclined to think that any continuation of protection would cover all debts contained in the schedule at the date of each of such continuation order unless the order is made exempting from protection with respect to any particular debt. The point, however, is not under the present procedure of much importance, for I am of opinion that the first question must be answered in the negative. I hold that the Small Cause Court had, after the 2nd of December, the date of his adjudication, no jurisdiction over the debtor to make any order against him without the sanction of the High Court. Section 17 of Act III of 1909 is far wider in its terms than the corresponding provisions in the old Insolvency Act of 1848 on which the present protection system is based. Section 17 covers the same ground as section 7 and section 49 of the old Act; but provides an entirely different procedure. Under section 49 a suit or action or execution proceeding pending in a Court at the time when the insolvent filed his schedule could be stayed, set aside or suspended by that Court; the Insolvency Court having power under another section to protect the insolvent from arrest on account of either all or any of the debts mentioned in the schedule. Section 17 of the present Act goes a great deal further. It provides that no creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted in respect of any debt provable in insolvency shall, during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings, have any remedy against the property of the insolvent, or commence any suit or other legal proceeding except with the leave of the Court, and on such terms as the Court may impose. It is argued before us that applying for a warrant in execution proceeding is not commencing other legal proceedings within the meaning of the section, and a case reported as Empeor v. Mulshankar Harinand Bhat (1) is relied on as an authority for that position, the words used by one of the learned Judges being, "by 'other legal proceeding' is meant broadly other proceeding of a Civil nature connected with the insolvent's estate." The question before the Court was, however, whether the proceedings in a Criminal Court were without jurisdiction under this section, and it is with reference to that contention that the observation is made. That case is, therefore, no authority for the position. Reliance is also placed on the difference in the language of the Provincial Insolvency Act which "have any remedy against the property or the person of the insolvent or commence any suit or other legal proceeding". I do not, however, think that the difference in wording detracts from the meaning to be given to the words "other legal proceeding". Execution proceedings were specifically mentioned in section 49 of the old Act and were clearly intended to cover applications for arrest, as the proviso to the section enacts that if a person was already in custody, he should not be discharged out of it otherwise than by a protection order which could be made under section 13. It is further argued that if section 13 of the Act is to be held to include proceedings by way of application for warrant of arrest in execution, there is no necessity for a protection order. The answer is that the words in section 17 will not avail to discharge an insolvent from arrest any more than the words of section 49 of the old Act and that the order of the High Court is still necessary in such circumstances and may be granted or refused by the Court as it thinks fit. I am, therefore, not prepared to cut down the broad principle on which the section is based, namely, that when once a person is adjudicated an insolvent, creditors seeking any remedy against him must come to the High Court on its insolvency side to get leave for that purpose. Applying this view of the law to the facts of the case, I am of opinion that after the 2nd of December, the date when the order of adjudication was made, the Court of Small Causes had no jurisdiction without the leave of the High Court to entertain any application in execution against the insolvent: and that leave admittedly not having been procured, taking of security in execution proceedings was ultra vires of the Court. The matter being one of jurisdiction, it is immaterial whether the insolvent claimed the benefit of the section or not, though as a matter of fact, it is clear that the Court was aware of the adjudication. In this view, it becomes unnecessary to consider any other question, and I would answer the reference by the learned Judges as indicated above. I would add that it is not at all clear to me under what provision of the Small Cause Courts Act, this bond was taken. Section 55 (4) of the Civil Procedure Code provides that where a judgment-debtor who has been arrested, expresses his intention to apply to be declared an insolvent, he can be released on furnishing security; but the High Court in making rules for the Presidency Small Cause Courts under section 9 of that Act has not embodied this provision in the rules and I have great doubt whether either section 30 of the latter Act or Order XXI, rule 27, empowers the Court to take a bond of this nature.

BASWARA AIYAR V. GOVINDARAJULU NAIDU.

(1) 7 Ind. Cas. 963; 35 B. 63; 12 Bom. L. R. 750; 11 Cr. L. J. 548.

SKINNER V. BADRI KRISHEN.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—I agree that the first question should be answered in the negative that decree-debt of the plaintiff against the insolvent was "provable" in the insolvency. Hence section 17 of Act III of 1909 took away the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court to pass any orders in execution without the leave of the High Court after the judgment-debtor had been adjudicated an insolvent. The bond sued on was, therefore, obtained without jurisdiction and is void. I do not answer the other questions as the answer to the first question is sufficient for the decision of the suit.

Reference answered in the negative.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 687 OF 1912.

April 28, 1915.

Present:—Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

R. H. SKINNER—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BADRI KRISHEN—DEFENDANT—

RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. II, r. 15—Fraud—Decree based on award obtained by fraud—Suit to set aside such decree, whether competent—Decree, whether can be set aside on ground that it was obtained by perjured evidence—Review.

A decree cannot be set aside in a subsequent action on the mere proof that such a decree was obtained by perjured evidence, on the principle that a matter cannot be re-agitated on the same materials or on materials which might have been laid before a Court in the first instance. [p. 197, col. 2.]

If evidence not originally available comes to the knowledge of a litigant at a later date, his remedy lies in seeking a review of the judgment if applied for without unreasonable delay. [p. 197, col. 2.]

A decree based on an award was passed in 1905. In 1911, the plaintiff sued to set aside that decree on the ground that during the course of the arbitration, the defendant had filed a fraudulent account and supported its items by false evidence. The document upon which the plaintiff based his allegation of fraud was in his possession in 1902:

Held, that in this case the only remedy open to the plaintiff lay through a review, and not by a separate suit. [p. 198, col. 1.]

Quere:—Whether a decree based on an award could not be set aside by a separate suit under any circumstances whatsoever? [p. 98, col. 1.]

Obiter dictum.—Where one of the parties to arbitration proceedings has been personated or has received no notice of the proceedings, a suit to set aside the award on the ground of fraud might be maintainable. [p. 198, col. 1.]

First appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dated the 25th January 1912, rejecting the plaint.

Chaudhri Rambhaji Datt, for the Appellant.

Lala Moti Sagar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The parties to this case in the year 1905 were disputing concerning certain sums of money which the present plaintiff claimed as due to him on a lease. A suit was instituted, but the parties agreed to refer the whole case to an arbitrator and on the 25th October 1905 the arbitrator gave his award in accordance with which the judgment followed on the 20th November 1905. The present suit was instituted by the plaintiff on 12th April 1911, and the plaint shows that the Court is asked to set aside the decree which issued on the award of 1905 on the ground that during the course of the arbitration, the defendant filed a fraudulent account and supported its items by the false evidence of a dismissed servant of the plaintiff. The defendant contended that the fraud alleged was not of the kind required to give a cause of action for setting aside the decree and that in any case no action lay for setting aside a decree based on an award, even though fraud be established.

SKINNER V. BADRI KRISHNEN.

The learned Judge, relying upon Mohomed Golab v. Mahomed Sulliman (1) and Kappu Naidu v. Subbaraya Reddi (2), held that the fraud alleged, i.e., perjury and subornation of perjury did not render the suit maintainable. Also with regard to the second plea he held that Mehta Kashi Ram v. Dadabhoy (3) was good authority for the view that a decree based on an award can be attacked on the ground that it was obtained by fraud only by means of a review, and not by a separate suit. Before this Court plaintiff has come in first appeal and his case was argued at some length yesterday afternoon by Mr. Rambhaji Datt on his behalf, but when the Court met this morning Mr. Rambhaji Datt expressed his unwillingness to continue to represent plaintiff, on the ground that his client after the rising of the Court yesterday evening had taken away the brief from him and stated that he wished to engage a more senior Counsel. In the circumstances Mr. Rambhaji Datt had not been able to study the case as well as he might have done and in view of the affront which his client had offered, he asked the leave of the Court to withdraw. Considering that Mr. Rambhaji Datt had received a very serious affront and had not been treated by his client with courtesy, we made no objection to Mr. Rambhaji Datt's withdrawal from the case and the plaintiff has been heard at considerable length in support of his appeal. From his remarks, it has been made quite clear that the document upon which he bases his allegation that the award was obtained by fraud, was in his possession in 1902; and that from 1902 to either February or March 1910 that document remained in his possession but in the envelope containing it, which he had never opened. He freely admits that for this great delay there was no other cause but his own negligence, but he contends that as the case is a clear one, this should not prevent the Courts from granting him relief to which he is equitably entitled. It is needless to say that in this appeal we are not concerned with the facts, except so far as an understanding of them is necessary for the decision of the legal questions before us.

A reference to the authorities cited before us shows that it is a generally accepted rule of law that a decree cannot be set aside in a subsequent action on mere proof that such a decree was obtained by perjured evidence. This rule is clearly based upon the very important principle that a matter cannot be re-agitated on the same materials or on materials which might have been laid before a Court in the first instance. If evidence not originally available comes to the knowledge of a litigant at a later date, his remedy lies in seeking a review of the judgment, but a review of judgment will be granted only if there has been no unreasonable delay in applying to the Court. Now in the case before us, the proof of perjury which plaintiff now wishes to adduce was in his possession three years before the award was delivered, and again this suit was not instituted until some 13 or 14 months after the perjury had come to the plaintiff's knowledge. There remains the further question whether under any circumstances a decree based upon an award can be set aside by a regular suit. There appears to be no authority directly in point with the exception of Mehta Kashi Ram v. Dadabhoy (3). With the views expressed in that judgment we find ourselves entirely in accord. An examination of the rules concerning arbitration proceedings contained in the second schedule of the Civil Procedure Code shows that the procedure in such proceedings has been hedged round by many precautions and safeguards. In rule 15 we find provision made to meet a case identical with that now propounded by the plaintiff. When an award is filed an opportunity is given to either side to show

(1) 21 C. 612.

(2) 10 Ind. Cas. 105; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 355; 9 M. L. T. 454.

(3) 124 P. R. 1880.

SUBRAMANIA AIYAR v. VAITHINATHA AIYAR.

that the award is bad by reason of the deceitful or fraudulent conduct of either party. The plaintiff in this case did not avail himself of that provision and we must take it that the Legislature intended arbitration proceedings to be final and not to be open to challenge in an indirect manner.

Consequently we hold that the only remedy open to plaintiff lay through a review and not by a separate suit.

It is not necessary for us to decide that in no circumstances imaginable a decree on award can be set aside by separate suit; in a case where one party had been personated and had received no notice of the proceedings, such a suit might be maintainable, but any decision of ours on this hypothetical question would be a mere obiter dictum.

All that we should decide is that in this case, no separate suit is competent.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 390 OF 1911.

November 18, 1913.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield.

M. SUBRAMANIA AIYAR—PETITIONER

versus

VAITHINATHA AIYAR AND ANOTHER—

RESPONDENTS.

Practice—Legal representative of deceased defendant not impleaded—Decree passed after death of defendant, whether valid—Objection taken in execution, legality of.

A decree passed after the death of a defendant and before his legal representative is impleaded, is null and void.

Goda Coopuramier v. Sundarammal, 3 Ind. Cas. 739, 6 M. L. T. 271; 33 M. 167, distinguished.

Radha Prasad Singh v. Lal Sahib Rai, 17 I. A. 150; 13 A. 53; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 600; Janardhan v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 317; 4 Bom. L. R. 23; Imdad Ali v. Jagan Lal, 17 A. 478; A. W. N. (1895) 109, followed.

Objection can be taken to such a decree in execution and separate proceedings to avoid it are unnecessary.

Petition, under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), praying the High Court to revise the order of the Subordinate Judge of Mayavaram at Kumbakonam, in Miscellaneous Application No. 1662 of 1910, in Small Cause Suit No. 1219 of 1910.

Messrs. K. R. Krishnaswami Aiyangar and S. V. Padmanabha Aiyangar, for the Petitioner.

Mr. N. Rajagopala Achariar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—It is admitted that the decree under execution was passed after the death of the defendant and before his legal representatives were impleaded. It is argued, firstly, that this did not affect its validity, and secondly, that the decree passed is not void but must be set aside in separate proceedings for that purpose, before it can be treated as a nullity.

Goda Coopuramier v. Sundarammal (1) is relied on. But it deals with exceptional circumstances and the case of a plaintiff; and it is not clear that the decision would have been the same if a decree against a defendant had been in question. On the other hand, in Janardhan v. Ramchandra (2), Radha Prasad Singh v. Lal Sahib Rai (3) and Imdad Ali v. Jagan Lal (4), the two last mentioned cases relating to decrees against defendant, it was held that the decrees were nullities. Authority is, therefore, against the petitioner's contention on this point; and, the decree under execution being null and void, proceedings to avoid it are unnecessary.

It is argued, next, that the respondents could not take objection to the decree in execution proceedings. But their objection was to the jurisdiction of the Court to pass it. It was, therefore, rightly considered and allowed.

Lastly, it is argued that the present application to join the respondents as legal representatives of the deceased defendant and for execution should have been treated as one for the former relief and for setting aside the abatement and that the trial of the suit should have been resumed. It does not appear that this was suggested in the lower Court; and in fact the defendant's death is referred to incorrectly in the petition as subsequent to the passing of the decree. For this reason and on its merits the suggestion is unacceptable.

The civil revision petition is dismissed with costs.

Revision rejected.

(1) 3 Ind. Cas. 739; 33 M. 167; 6 M. L. T. 271.

(2) 26 B. 317; 4 Bom. L. R. 23.

(3) 13 A. 53; 17 I. A. 150; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 600.

(4) 17 A. 478; A. W. N. (1895) 109.

KARAM CHAND v. GHULAM HASSAN.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 189 OF 1910.

April 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shah Din and
Mr. Justice Chevis.KARAM CHAND AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—APPELLANTS

versus

GHULAM HASSAN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS —RESPONDENTS.Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 18—Notice issued by Naib-Tahsildar, whether valid—Waiver—Punjab Alienation of Land Act (XIII of 1900), s. 3 (3).

Where a Naib-Tahsildar, under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner, issues a notice with a view to find out whether any member of an agricultural tribe is willing to purchase the land proposed to be sold at a certain price to a person who is not a member of an agricultural tribe, the notice is not one given through any 'Court' as required by section 16 of the Pre-emption Act (II of 1905) and a pre-emptor who asserts his right of pre-emption but protests against the reasonableness of the price at which such land is offered to be sold, does not lose his right of pre-emption. [p. 200, cols. 1 & 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Multan, dated the 1st December 1909.

Bhagat Gobind Das, for the Appellants.

Mr. Abdul Rashid, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal has arisen out of a suit for pre-emption brought by the plaintiff-respondent, Fazal Khan, against the defendants-appellants, Karam Chand and others, in respect of certain land situate in Mauza Kot Daud which had been sold by Ahmad, respondent No. 2, to the appellants by a registered sale-deed, dated 4th January 1908, for Rs. 1,400. The District Judge dismissed the suit, holding that the plaintiff, whose right of pre-emption was undisputed, had waived that right; but on appeal the learned Divisional Judge held that the alleged waiver of his right of pre-emption on the part of the plaintiff had not been established and he decreed the plaintiff's claim conditional on payment of Rs. 1,400.

In further appeal the vendees' Pleader has contended (1) that before the sale in dispute, a notice had been issued through the Naib-Tahsildar to all pre-emptors in the village calling upon them to purchase the land in suit at the price at which it was subsequently sold to the vendees; that that notice was served upon the plaintiff; and that, since he refused to purchase the land at the price named in the notice, his right of pre-emption must be held to have been extinguished; and (2) that if the notice in question is held to have been not a proper notice under section 16 of the Pre-emption Act of 1905, the act of the plaintiff in having refused to purchase the land for Rs. 1,400 before the sale in favour of the present vendees took place for the same sum, amounts to a waiver of his right and that his suit was rightly dismissed by the District Judge.

The material facts are these. On the 1st February 1907, Ahmad, respondent, applied to the Deputy Commissioner for permission to sell the land in suit to the present vendees, who are not members of an agricultural tribe, for Rs. 1,400. The application was one made under section 3 of the Alienation of Land Act. The Deputy Commissioner sent the application to the Tahsildar, and the latter sent it to the Naib-Tahsildar for necessary action and report. The Naib-Tahsildar issued a notice on the 8th March 1907 to all the landowners of the village informing them of the intended sale of the land in question and of the price, Rs. 1,400, at which the owner, Ahmad, was willing to sell it. This notice was served on the present plaintiff on the 23rd March 1907, and on the 25th March 1907, he made an application to the Deputy Commissioner stating that he had a right of pre-emption in respect of the land intended to be sold and was desirous of purchasing it, but that the price entered in the notice was far in excess of the market value and had not been fixed in good faith; and he prayed that permission may not be given to the owner to sell the land to non-agriculturists and that he be directed to sell it to the applicant at a fair price. The plaintiff's objection, however, did not prevail, and the sale to the present vendees was sanctioned by the Deputy Commissioner.

Upon these facts the vendees' Pleader urges, relying upon Ule Ram v. Balhar Mal (1) and Sardar Ali Shah v. Jivan Singh (2), that the notice given to the plaintiff by the Naib-Tahsildar was a proper notice within the purview of section 16 of the Pre-emption Act of 1905, and that since the plaintiff had refused to purchase the land for Rs. 1,400, which was the price named in the notice he has lost his right of pre-emption. The District Judge has overruled this contention, holding that the notice issued by the Naib-Tahsildar was not a notice through a "Court" as required by the said section 16, and we have no hesitation in agreeing in that view. In issuing the notice to the landowners in the village, the Naib-Tahsildar was acting under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner, to whom an application had been made by the owner of the land for permission to sell it to certain non-agriculturists under the provisions of the Alienation of Land Act; and the notice was issued because the Revenue Authorities wanted to find out if any member of an agricultural tribe in the village was willing to purchase the land at the price named, their intention being to sanction the sale to non-agriculturists only in the event of a member of an agricultural tribe not coming forward to make the purchase. The Naib-Tahsildar was acting in this matter as an Executive Officer and not as a Court; and it is clear that neither the application of the owner of the land to the Deputy Commissioner to obtain sanction to the sale thereof to certain non-agriculturists nor the notice issued by the Naib-Tahsildar under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner had any connection with section 16 of the Pre-emption Act of 1905. The question before us was not discussed in either of the two rulings relied upon by the vendees' Pleader; and we accordingly hold that no proper notice was given to the plaintiff under section 16 aforesaid and that he has not lost his right of pre-emption.

(1) 90 P. R. 1897

(2) 22 P. R. 1904; 86 P. L. R. 1901.

MURUGESA MUDALI v. RAMASAWMI CHETTY.

The second question for decision is, whether the plaintiff has waived his right of pre-emption. No doubt the land in suit had been offered to him by the owner for Rs. 1,400, but he protested that that was not its fair market value, that the price had not been fixed in good faith and that he was prepared to enforce his right of pre-emption in Court. He never, by any act or conduct, waived his right of pre-emption; on the contrary, he all along proclaimed his intention, as the learned Divisional Judge says,

"of suing to pre-empt the land on what he considered the right price." In these circumstances, we are quite clear that no waiver of his right of pre-emption on the part of the plaintiff can be said to have been established. The vendees' Pleader cited Shambu Mal v. Jamna Das (3), Diwan Chand v. Ghulam Hussain (4), Fateh Chand v. Kirpa Singh (5) and Abdullah Shah v. Hussain Jahana Shah (6) in support of his argument that the plaintiff had waived his right of pre-emption; but not one of these decisions is in point, and we think it unnecessary to discuss them in this place.

We maintain the decree of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(3) 38 P. R. 1875.

(4) 30 P. R. 1897.

(5) 13 Ind. Cas. 561; 48 P. R. 1912; 76 P. W. R. 1912; 145 P. L. R. 1912.

(6) 20 Ind. Cas. 504; 14 P. R. 1914; 250 P. L. R. 1913; 179 P. W. R. 1913.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 1076 OF 1914.

September 28, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

MURUGESA MUDALI AND OTHERS—

RESPONDENTS NOS. 2, 3 AND 5—PETITIONERS

versus

RAMASAWMI CHETTY—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, rr. 3, 8—Extension of time fixed for payment of mortgage-money, grant of—Mortgagor, if entitled to redeem as of right after time fixed—Order made without jurisdiction—Revision.

In cases where the mortgagee sues for foreclosure, extension of time for payment is not given as a matter of course and the mortgagor is not entitled to redeem as of right after the time fixed for payment although no order for foreclosure absolute has been passed. [p. 201, col. 1.]

Faulkner v. Bolton, 7 Sim. 319; 4 L. J. Ch. 81; 58 E. R. 860; 40 R. R. 155; Nanny v. Edwards, 4 Russ. 124; 6 L. J. (o. s.) Ch. 20; 28 R. R. 24; 38 E. R. 752; In re Parbola, Ltd., Blackburn v. Parbola Ltd. (1909) 2 Ch. 47; 78 L. J. Ch. 782; 101 L. T. 382; 13 S. J. 697, referred to.

In suits by the mortgagor to redeem, the time for payment is not extended except in cases of accident or mistake. [p. 201, col. 1.]

MURUGESA MUDALI V. RAMASWAMI CHETTY.

Novosielski v. Wakefield, 17 Ves. 417, 34 E. R. 161; Collinson v. Jeffery, (1808) 1 Ch. 644; 65 L. J. Ch. 375; 74 L. T. 78; 44 W. R. 311, followed.

Where a Court extends the time when it has no power to do so, a High Court has power to interfere with the order in revision as one passed without jurisdiction, but will not do so if it appears that the order was made in the interests of justice. [p 201, col. 2.]

Petition under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the District Munsif of Dharmapuri, in Original Petition No. 563 of 1914, in Original Suit No. 28 of 1911.

Mr. T. R. Krishnaswami Aiyar for Mr. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar, for the Petitioners.

Mr. B. Narasimha Row for Dr. Swaminadhan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application to revise the order of the District Munsif of Dharmapuri extending the time fixed for payment of the mortgage-money by a decree nisi in a suit for redemption by a puisne mortgagee. The Munsif thinks that the reasons given by the plaintiff in the suit for non-payment of the mortgage-money within the time fixed were insufficient and unsatisfactory, but all the same he gave the extension prayed for, on the ground that the plaintiff was entitled as a matter of right to redeem until there is a decree for foreclosure absolute, even though the time fixed by the decree nisi had passed.

The power to extend the time for payment of the mortgage-money is now regulated by Order XXXIV, rules 3 and 8, and under these rules the Court can only extend the time upon good cause shown. This is in accordance with the settled practice in England. Even in cases where the mortgagee sues for foreclosure extension of time for payment is not given as a matter of course, and the mortgagor is not entitled to redeem as of right after the time fixed for payment although no order for foreclosure absolute has been passed [see Faulkner v. Bolton (1), Nanny v. Edwards (2), In re Parbola, Ltd., Blackburn v. Parbola Ltd. (3), Seton on Judgments page 1913 and Fisher on Mortgages, section 1958]; and in suits by a mortgagor to redeem, the time for payment is not extended except in cases of accident or mistake [See Novosielski v. Wakefield (4) and Collinson v. Jeffery (5).] Inasmuch as the lower Court extended the time for payment when it had no power to do so, this Court has power to interfere with the order in revision as one passed without jurisdiction; but I do not think that the justice of the case requires that I should interfere with the order. The suit was instituted by the puisne mortgagee against the first mortgagee who had also purchased the equity of redemption. The puisne mortgagee, it is now settled, would be entitled to institute a suit for the sale of the property subject to the first mortgage. [See Mulla Veetil Seethi Kutti v. Korambath Paruthooli Achuthan Nair (6).] But at the time when the suit was instituted, there was some doubt on the point and the puisne mortgagee seems to have instituted the suit for the redemption of the first mortgage and for sale of the whole of the mortgaged properties for the sums due on both the mortgages. At any rate that was the decree passed. The sum which the plaintiff had to deposit on account of the 1st mortgage was nearly Rs. 2,000, and he made the deposit within a month after the date fixed and he paid also interest on that sum at 12 per cent. The amount due to him was nearly Rs. 1,161; and it is reasonable to suppose that the mortgaged property was worth considerably more than the amount due on the 1st mortgage. The 1st mortgagee suffers no hardship; while on the other hand, if I interfere with the order, the puisne mortgagee would lose the whole of the amount due to him.

I, therefore, dismiss this petition, but under the circumstances without costs.

Petition dismissed.

(4) 7 Ves. 417; 34 E. R. 16.

(5) (1896) 1 Ch. 644; 65 L. J. Ch. 375; 74 L. T. 78; 44 W. R. 311.

(6) 9 Ind. Cas. 513; 21 M. L. J. 113; 9 M. L. T. 431; (1911) - M. W. N. 165.

(1) 7 Sim. 319; 4 L. J. Ch. 81; 58 E. R. 860; 40 R. R. 155.

(2) 4 Russ. 124; 6 L. J. (n. s.) 1 h. 20; 28 R. R. 24.

(3) (1909) 2 Ch. 497; 78 L. J. Ch. 782; 101 L. T. 822; 38 S. J. 697.

PRITHMI CHAND v. SAFA CHAND.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1899 OF 1912.

April 13, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shah Din and
Mr. Justice Chevis.PRITHMI CHAND—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

SAFA CHAND AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 2 (3), 22 (4) (a)—Construction of Statute—Retrospective effect—Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 11. Proviso—Period of 20 years, computation of.

Section 2 (3) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913) was not intended to give and does not give retrospective effect to sub-section (4) (a) of section 22 and this sub-section can only apply to a case in which the money deposited by a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit is withdrawn by him after the new Act has come into force. In other words, section 22 (4) (a) when read with section 2 (3) of the Act does not enjoin the dismissal of an appeal preferred by the pre-emptor in a case where he had withdrawn the money deposited by him in Court before the new Act came into operation. [p. 203, cols. 1 & 2.]

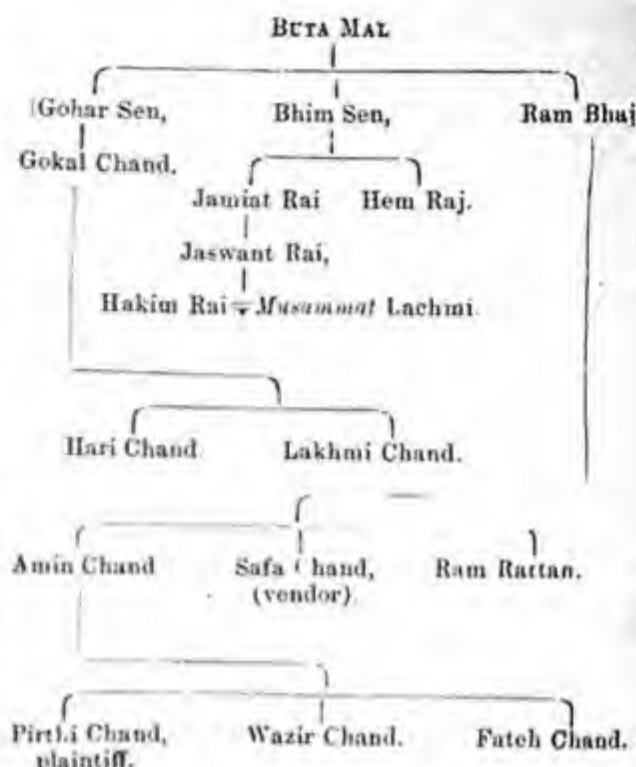

A pre-emptor who claims the benefit of the proviso to section 11 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905) should prove the existence of continuous record of ownership of land, on the strength of which he claims pre-emption, for a period of 20 years immediately preceding the date of sale, either in his own name or in that of an agnate of his. In other words, the period of 20 years, referred to in the proviso, over which the record of ownership should extend, should be computed back from the date of sale and if there occur any break, for however short a period, in the record of ownership in the name of the pre-emptor or any other agnate of his, he would forfeit the benefit of the proviso. [p. 204, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Judge, Jhelum Division, at Sialkot, dated the 10th June 1912.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Sheo Narain, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Bevan Petman, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal has arisen out of a pre-emption suit relating to certain land in Manza Diwankot, Tahsil and District Gujrat; and the principal question involved is one of interpretation of the proviso to section 11 of the old Punjab Pre-emption Act, 11 of 1905. The following pedigree is material:—

By a registered deed, dated the 11th April 1910, Safa Chand sold the land in suit to Mr. Shambu Nath Bari, Bar-at-Law, for Rs. 2,000. On the 1st August 1910, the vendor's nephew, Prithmi Chand, brought the present suit for pre-emption and he based his claim upon the proviso to section 11 of the Pre-emption Act of 1905. The vendee pleaded that the plaintiff had no right of pre-emption under the proviso to the said section 11, and that if he had any such right, he had waived it. The Subordinate Judge held that the plaintiff fulfilled the requirements of the proviso in question and had a right of pre-emption in respect of the land in suit, and that he had not waived it. The plaintiff's claim was, therefore, decreed by the Subordinate Judge conditional on a payment of Rs. 2,000. On appeal, the learned Divisional Judge set aside the decree of the Subordinate Judge, holding that the proviso to section 11 had not been correctly interpreted by him, and remanded the suit for re-decision under rule 23 of Order XLI, Civil Procedure Code, with reference to the three issues set out at page 8 of the printed paper-book. After the remand, the Subordinate Judge held that the plaintiff's case did not fall within the proviso to section 11 aforesaid and dismissed the suit, and his decree was upheld on appeal by the Divisional Judge.

PRITHMI CHAND V. SAPA CHAND.

sional Judge who followed the recent decision of this Court reported as Chajju Mal v. Telu Mal (1).

The plaintiff has preferred a second appeal to this Court, and the question for decision is whether or not he fulfils the requirements of the proviso to section 11 of Act II of 1905 and has a right of pre-emption in respect of the land in suit. Before discussing this question we must notice a preliminary objection urged on behalf of the defendant-vendee by his learned Counsel. He has contended that the appeal must be dismissed under section 22 (4) (a) of the present Pre-emption Act, I of 1913, inasmuch as the money which had been deposited by the plaintiff in Court in compliance with an order passed by the Subordinate Judge on the 2nd August 1910 had been withdrawn by him on the 3rd July 1912. We think that this contention is unsound and that section 22 (4) (a) aforesaid does not apply to this case, so far as the withdrawal of the money deposited by the plaintiff is concerned. The learned Counsel has relied upon section 2, sub-section (3), of Act I of 1913, which runs as follows:—

"Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 4 of the Punjab General Clauses Act, 1898, the Courts shall in all suits, appeals and proceedings pending at the commencement of this Act give effect, so far as may be, to the procedure prescribed by this Act."

The argument is that the provisions of the said section 22 (4) (a) which relate to procedure and which require the Appellate Court to dismiss the appeal of a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit if he withdraws the money deposited by him in Court, have a retrospective effect by virtue of section 2, sub-section (3) of the Act, and that, although the present plaintiff withdrew the money which had been deposited by him in Court before the present Act came into force, the legal consequence of the withdrawal is that he forfeits his right to have his appeal adjudicated upon on the merits and that it must be dismissed in limine. In our opinion, section 2, sub-section (3), of the Act was not intended to give, and does not give, retrospective effect to sub-section (4) (a) of section 22, and this sub-section can only apply to a case in which the money deposited by a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit is withdrawn by him after the new Act has come into force. The sub-section in question must be strictly construed; and when read with section 2, sub-section (3), of the Act, it does not enjoin the dismissal of an appeal preferred by the pre-emptor in a case where he had withdrawn the money deposited by him in Court before the new Act came into operation. We, therefore, overrule the preliminary objection.

Before considering whether the plaintiff is entitled to the benefit of the proviso to section 11 of Act II of 1905, it is necessary to state briefly the facts on the strength of which he claims that benefit. The village of Diwankot in which the land in suit is situated was owned by Jamiat Rai and Hem Raj, sons of Bhim Sen, in 1868. Jamiat Rai died before Hem Raj and was succeeded by his son, Jaswant Rai. Hem Raj died childless in December 1873, and in December 1874 his share was also mutated in the name of Jaswant Rai, who thus became owner of the whole village. On the death of Jaswant Rai in 1883, his son, Hakim Rai, succeeded to the whole village, and on Hakim Rai's death on the 24th May 1890 his widow, Musammal Lachhmi, came into possession of the village and mutation was effected in her name. She died on the 2nd September 1892, and thereupon half the village was entered in the names of Amin Chand, Safa Chand and Ram Rattan, sons of Ram Bhaj, while the other half was entered in the names of Hari Chand and Lakhmi Chand, sons of Gokal Chand. After 1894 there was a partition of the family property between the two branches represented by the sons of Gokal Chand and the sons of Ram Bhaj, and the entire village of Diwankot fell to the share of the latter. Amin Chand died in November 1909, and mutation of his one-third share in the village took place on the 21st March 1910 in the names of the plaintiff and his two brothers, Wazir Chand and Fateh Chand. On the 11th April 1908 Safa Chand sold, as has been stated above, his share in the village to Mr. Shambu Nath Bari; and it was in respect of this sale that the plaintiff, Prithmi Chand, brought his suit for pre-emption which has given rise to the present appeal. Admittedly, the parties are not members of an agricultural tribe; and the question for decision is whether the plaintiff, who is a nephew of the vendor, is entitled to a right of pre-emption in respect of the sale in dispute under the proviso to section 11 of Act II of 1905.

1) 13 Ind. Cas. 695; 53 P. R. 1912; 61 P. W. R. 1912; 108 P. L. R. 1912.

PRITHMI CHAND V. SAFA CHAND.

On behalf of the plaintiff it has been contended by his learned Advocate that he is entitled to the benefit of the said proviso, because at the date of the sale he was recorded as the owner of agricultural land in the village and had been so recorded for a period of twenty years before the sale in dispute took place through his agnates, the male descendants of Bhim Sen. Before Musammal Lachhmi succeeded on the 24th May 1890 to the estate left by her husband Hakim Rai, it had been continuously recorded for a period of more than twenty years in the names of Hakim Rai, Jaswant Rai, Jamiat Rai and Hem Raj, and the argument is that the period of twenty years referred to in the proviso to section 11, having been once completed before the sale in dispute took place, the fact that the land held by and recorded in the names of the agnates of the plaintiff was recorded between the 24th May 1890 and the 2nd September 1892 in the name of the widow, Musammal Lachhmi, was immaterial. The learned Advocate has contended that the completion of the period of twenty years before the widow came into possession, serves to distinguish this case from Chajju Mal v. Tel. Mal (1) on which the Divisional Judge has relied, for there the widow, Musammal Shibbi, had succeeded to and was recorded as owner of the land, on the strength of which pre-emption was claimed, before the land had been held by the plaintiff and his agnates for the requisite period of twenty years previous to the sale then in dispute. It is further pointed out that, in view of the facts of that case, the opinion expressed by the Division Bench in the 4th paragraph at page 195 of the report, to the effect that the plaintiff was bound to show that the land by virtue of which he claimed pre-emption had been continuously recorded in the Revenue papers for twenty years before the suit as his property or as the property of an agnate of his, was mere obiter dictum and should not be followed in this case.

After giving the matter our best consideration, we think that the interpretation sought to be placed by the plaintiff's learned Advocate on the proviso to section 11 is not correct. In our opinion, having regard to the language of the proviso and more especially to the words "who is recorded as the owner . . . of agricultural land . . . and has been so recorded for twenty years previous to the date of sale," the intention of the Legislature was that the pre-emptor who claims the benefit of that proviso should be required to prove the existence of a continuous record of ownership of land, on the strength of which he claims pre-emption, for a period of twenty years immediately preceding the date of sale, either in his own name or in that of an agnate of his. In other words, the period of twenty years over which the record of ownership should extend, should be computed back from the date of sale, and if there occur any break, for however short a period, in the record of ownership in the name of the pre-emptor or any agnate of his, he would forfeit the benefit of the proviso. That is the only rational interpretation which, in our opinion, can be put upon the proviso; the construction contended for by the plaintiff's learned Advocate would lead to anomalous results and cannot, therefore, be accepted as sound.

For the foregoing reasons, we hold that the view of the lower Appellate Court that the plaintiff had no right of pre-emption under the proviso to section 11 of Act II of 1905 is correct; and we accordingly maintain its decree and dismiss the appeal with costs.

The vendee has filed cross-objections against so much of the decree of the Divisional Judge as relates to costs, but we are not prepared to say that in dismissing the plaintiff's appeal without costs the Divisional Judge materially erred in the exercise of his discretion, and we, therefore, dismiss the cross-objections.

Appeal dismissed.

GAMAN V. IMAM BAKHSH.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2272 OF 1914.

April 17, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

GAMAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

IMAM BAKHSH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Res judicata—Partition—Partition decree not executed—Second suit for partition, whether maintainable—Decree for possession conditional on payment of money—Decree not executed—Second suit, whether maintainable.

The rights of a joint owner of land who obtains a decree for possession by partition of the joint tenancy, are not extinguished by his neglect to execute the decree within limitation. The relationship of the parties inter se continues to be that of joint owners and a second suit by him to effect partition of the joint property of which he is undoubtedly a joint owner, is not affected by the previous non-executed decree. [p. 205, col. 2.]

Madan Mohan v. Baikanta Nath, 10 C. W. N. 839; Bisheshar Das v. Ram Prasad, 28 A. 627; 3 A. L. J. 379; A. W. N. (1906) 142, referred to.

Where a decree for possession of property is conditional on payment of a sum of money, the decree-holder is not by reason of non-execution of such decree debarred from instituting a fresh suit for possession [p. 206, col. 1.]

Ram Singh v. Nodh Singh, 93 P. R. 1879 (F. B.), followed.

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Divisional Judge, Lahore, dated the 5th May 1914.

Mr. Dina Nath Mehra, for the Appellant.

Mr. Herbert, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The facts, upon which the determination of the question of law involved in the second appeal depends, lie within the narrowest possible compass. Briefly, they are that the present plaintiff instituted in 1905 a suit for possession by partition of certain immoveable property against the present defendant. A compromise decree was passed on the 15th of May 1905 by which the plaintiff was to get two kothas and had to pay Rs. 10 to the defendant. This decree, it appears, was never executed and became barred by time. The plaintiff has now brought a fresh suit for partition, and the point for decision is whether the existence of the previous decree precludes him from maintaining the present suit. The learned Judge of the lower Appellate Court has decided in favour of the plaintiff, and after hearing arguments and referring to the law bearing on the subject, I have come to the same conclusion.

It will be observed that the present suit is not to enforce the compromise decree passed in 1905. If that were the case, I should have no hesitation in holding that the suit to enforce a decree does not lie; vide Soni v. Munshi (1). But the suit, as observed, is one for partition of the property, and I do not think there is any valid ground for dismissing it in limine. The plaintiff was, no doubt, entitled to execute his previous decree within limitation, but his omission to do so, does not extinguish his rights in the property. He remained all along in possession of a portion thereof, and it seems to me clear that the relationship of the parties inter se continued to be that of joint owners. Now it is a well-established proposition of law that the right to enforce partition is a legal incident of a joint tenancy, and as long as such tenancy subsists any of the joint owners may apply to the Court for partition of the joint property. There is, therefore, no reason whatsoever for non-suiting the plaintiff. He is undoubtedly a joint owner and as such can always ask the Court to effect a partition.

A case very similar to the present one is reported as Madan Mohan v. Baikanta Nath (2). In that case a previous suit for partition brought by the plaintiffs having been compromised, an officer of the Court was appointed to effect a partition in terms of the compromise. Subsequently, the parties not appearing, execution proceedings were dismissed for default. It was held that a fresh suit for partition was not barred by section 13, or section 103, of the Civil Procedure Code. Further a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court have held that the dismissal for default of a suit for partition does not bar a second suit for partition; vide Bisheshar Das v. Ram Prasad (3). These authorities, if authorities are needed at all, are sufficient to support the conclusion at which I have arrived.

Moreover, there is another aspect of the case which, though not referred to by the

(1) 3 Bom. L. R. 94.

(2) 10 C. W. N. 839.

(3) 28 A. 627; 3 A. L. J. 379; A. W. N. (1906) 142.

SUBRAYA ACHARYA V. KESAVA UPADHAYA.

learned Pleader for the plaintiff, constitutes in my opinion a sufficient ground for holding that the present suit is maintainable. It will be noticed that the previous decree was for possession of property conditional on the payment of a sum of money to the defendant, and a Full Bench of this Court have held that the plaintiff is not by reason of such decree debarred from maintaining a second suit for possession after the expiration of the period within which he might have obtained possession by execution of the decree; vide Ram Singh v. Nodh Singh (4).

For the reasons stated above I hold that the decision of the lower Appellate Court granting a decree to the plaintiff is correct, and I accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(4) 93 P. R. 1879.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 115 OF 1914.

September 24, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

SUBRAYA ACHARYA—DEFENDANT

—PETITIONER

versus

KESAVA UPADHAYA—PLAINTIFF—

RESPONDENT.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 13—Suit to recover dues of hereditary office—Jurisdiction.

A suit by an archaka of a temple to recover the dues of his hereditary office from the trustee is within the exemption contained in clause 13) of Schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), and is, therefore, not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Puthur, in Small Cause Suit No. 280 of 1914.

Messrs. K. P. Madhava Row and K. P. Lakshmana Row, for the Petitioner.

Mr. B. Sitarama Row, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the petitioner takes the objection that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction. The suit was one by a hereditary archaka of a temple to recover from the defendant, the trustee, an amount which was alleged to be due to the plaintiff as the dues of his office, which he says is a hereditary office. The defendant admitted that the plaintiff was entitled to the sum which he sued for, but claimed to make a reduction of Rs. 4 on account of a fine which he said he had imposed on the plaintiff. The lower Court found that this fine was not proved to have been properly imposed on the plaintiff. I am obliged to allow the objection taken here, that the suit was one which a Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to try. Article 13 of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act includes a case of this kind. I, therefore, reverse the decree of the lower Court to the extent of Rs. 4; but inasmuch as this objection was not taken in the first Court, I give petitioner no costs either here or in the lower Court.

VYTHINATHA AIYAR V. VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR.

Petition allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2423 OF 1913.

September 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Tyabji and

Mr. Justice Phillips.

VYTHINATHA AIYAR—DEFENDANT

No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANTS NOS. 3 AND 4—

RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. II, cols. 1, 15, 16 (2)—“Party interested,” meaning of—Reference to arbitration by contesting parties—Decree passed in accordance with award—Ex parte defendant, whether can appeal.

A suit was brought for recovery of certain properties purchased by the plaintiff and trespassed upon by defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3. The 1st defendant contended that the properties had been sold to the 4th defendant, who was thereupon impleaded and adopted the defence. The 1st defendant died and defendants Nos. 2 and 3, his legal representatives, remained ex parte throughout. The plaintiff and the 4th defendant then agreed to refer the suit to arbitration and a decree was passed in accordance with the award. On this the second defendant appealed, on the ground that the decree was not binding on him as he was not a party to the arbitration:

Held, (1) that the appellant was not a “party interested” within the meaning of paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure and had no right to appeal; [p. 207, col. 1.]

VTTHINATHA AIVAR P. VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR.

(2) that he did not even have any equitable claim to set aside the decree, for by remaining ex parte he left the conduct of the suit in the hands of the Court and it was immaterial to him how the suit was decreed. [p. 108, col. 2.]

Per Phillips, J.—An appeal will not lie against a decree passed in accordance with an award, even where the award is not valid in law, except as provided in paragraph 16 (2) of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure [p. 208, col. 1.]

Per Tyabji, J.—(dissenting)—An appeal does lie from a decree passed in accordance with an award, purporting to bind a person who never submitted to arbitration or where there has been no agreement to refer at all. [p. 107, col. 1.]

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kumbakonam, in Appeal Suit No. 896 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Negapatam, in Original Suit No. 209 of 1910.

Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, for the Appellant.

Mr. T. V. Gopalaswami Mudaliar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

TYABJI, J.—In this case, the appellant did not appear in the Court of first instance. The other parties to the suit agreed to refer the matter to arbitration and an order to that effect was made by the Court. Judgment was pronounced in accordance with the award. A decree followed. The appellant now appeals and contends that the award purports to bind him though he was not a party to the reference. The scope of the Second Schedule, paragraphs 15 and 16, Code of Civil Procedure, was considered in Second Appeal No. 1192 of 1913 to which I was a party, and it seems to me that on the authorities as they stand, an appeal would lie from a decree purporting to bind a person who never submitted to arbitration or where there has been no agreement to refer at all. The 1st respondent in the present case concedes that the decree ought not to bind the appellant and is willing to have it made explicit that it cannot be enforced against the appellant. It seems to me, therefore, that the decree should contain a clause to that effect.

The appellant contends further that the award cannot stand to any extent as he was not 'a party interested' (within the terms of the Second Schedule, paragraph 1, Code of Civil Procedure), and he not having concurred in the reference to arbitration, the reference is altogether vitiated. He was interested, he says, as the 4th defendant is a purchaser from his father, the deceased 1st defendant, and if the suit is decided against the 4th defendant he (the appellant) will be responsible to the 4th defendant. The appellant was, however, content to let the suit go on without appearing at the hearing and to trust to the 4th defendant to contest the suit as he pleased. The 4th defendant could have consented to a decree in the absence of the 2nd defendant. He could equally consent to the selection of the arbitrator as the Tribunal which was to adjudicate upon the matters in difference. It seems to me that the appellant cannot be said in the circumstances of this case to be interested in the arbitration between the other parties to the suit, or interfere with the arbitration so far as they were concerned.

The decree should, in my opinion therefore, be modified to the extent to which it is conceded that it ought to be modified. Otherwise the second appeal should be dismissed with costs.

PHILLIPS, J.—In this case a preliminary objection is raised that under paragraph 16 (2) of the Second Schedule of the Civil Procedure Code, no appeal lies as the decree appealed against is not in excess of, and is in accordance with, the award in the suit. The suit is for recovery of certain properties purchased by the plaintiff and trespassed upon by the defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 3. The 1st defendant raised various pleas, and said that the properties had been sold to the 4th defendant who was, thereupon, impleaded and adopted the first defendant's defence. The 1st defendant died. Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 are his legal representatives. Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 remained ex parte throughout. The plaintiff and the 4th defendant agreed to refer the suit to arbitration and the decree appealed against was passed on the subsequent award. The 2nd defendant alone now appeals on the ground that the decree is not binding upon him, as he was not a party to the arbitration and consequently there is no award valid in law, and the decree based upon it is also invalid. Prior to the Privy Council ruling in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan (1), Courts had held that an appeal did lie in cases when there was no award valid in law [as for instance, in Husananna v. Linganna (2) and Ibrahim Ali v. Mohsin Ali (3)]. The facts of the case reported in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan (1) are not the same as in the present case, and in discussing the question whether an appeal would lie, their Lordships remarked (page 182): "The Court makes an order of reference on the agreement (which must be the agreement of all parties to the suit) etc., etc.", and it is contended that the ruling applies only to cases in which all the parties to the suit agree in making the reference. The subsequent language of the judgment is, however, very clear (page 183): "Their Lordships would be doing violence to the plain language and the obvious intention of the Code, if they were to hold that an appeal lies from a decree pronounced under section 522 (paragraph 15 of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908) except in so far as the decree may be in excess of or not in accordance with the award." The effect of this ruling has been considered by the Courts in India and it has now been held on its authority, that even when there is no award valid in law, an appeal will not lie except as provided in paragraph 16 (2) of the Second Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure [vide Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar Ram (4), Kanakku Nagalinga Naick v. Nagalinga Naick (5), Lal Mohan Pal v. Surya Kumar Das (6), Tallapragada Suryanarayana Row v. Tallapragada Sarabaya (7), Nidamurthi Krishnamurthi v. Gargiparthi Ganapathilingam (8), Lutawan v. Lachya (9) and Annada Prosad Dutt v. Jogesh Chandra Sen Gupta (10)].

VIJITHINATHA AIYAR v. VAITHILINGA MUDALIAR.

A different view was taken in Haswa v. Mahbub (11) and Rangaswami Aiyar v. Swami Aiyar (12); but in neither of these cases was the attention of the Court drawn to the Privy Council ruling in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan (1). It is thus clear that under the law as it now stands, no appeal will lie in the present case. Further in the present case, the appellant has no equitable claim to set aside the decree, for, by remaining ex parte, he left the conduct of the suit in the hands of the Court, and it is really immaterial to him whether the suit was decreed upon examination of witnesses in Court or upon an award made by arbitrators. By not contesting the suit he submitted to whatever decree might be passed, provided that was not in excess of the relief claimed, and it is doubtful, therefore, whether he was a party interested within the meaning of paragraph 1 of the second Schedule, Code of Civil Procedure, for there was really no matter in difference between him and the plaintiff. If this view is correct, the Privy Council ruling in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan (1) would be still more in point.

The exoneration of the appellant from the decree suggested by my learned brother does not in the circumstances appear to be necessary and the 1st respondent's consent to it appeared to me to be conditional.

I would, therefore, dismiss the second appeal with costs.

By THE COURT.—The result is that the second appeal is dismissed with costs under section 98 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Appeal dismissed.

(11) 10 Ind. Cas. 559; 8 A. L. J. 645.

(12) 17 M. L. J. 394.

(1) 29 C. 167; 29 L. A. 51; 6 C. W. N. 226; 12 M. L. J. 77; 4 Bom. L. R. 161; 25 P. R. 1902.

(2) 18 M. 423.

(3) 18 A. 422; A. W. N. (1896) 137.

(4) 33 C. 891.

(5) 4 Ind. Cas. 871; 32 M. 510; 6 M. L. T. 176; 19 M. L. J. 480.

(6) 11 C. W. N. 1152.

(7) 9 Ind. Cas. 173; 21 M. L. J. 263; 9 M. L. T. 251; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 151.

(8) 25 Ind. Cas. 583; (1914) M. W. N. 865.

(9) 21 Ind. Cas. 989; 36 A. 69; 12 A. L. J. 57.

(10) 23 Ind. Cas. 862.

KARRI NARASAYYA V. THAVVALA NAGESWARA RAO.

RAM ADIN V. MUNSHI RAM.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 982 OF 1914.

October 1, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

KARRI NARASAYYA—DEFENDANT NO. 1
—PETITIONER

versus

THAVVALA NAGESWARA RAO AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT NO. 2—
RESPONDENTS.Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115—Mistake of law as to jurisdiction—Jurisdiction dependent upon finding of fact—Interference in revision, when allowed—Misconstruction of documentary evidence, whether good ground for interference.

If an Appellate Court by an error of law finds jurisdiction in the Civil Courts, or denies jurisdiction to the Civil Courts, a High Court has power to interfere in revision under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Vuppuluri Atchayya v. Kanchumarti Seetaramachandra Rao, 18 Ind. Cas. 555; 13 M. L. T. 60; 24 M. L. J. 112, followed.

But where the jurisdiction depends on a finding of fact, unless that finding of fact rests on no evidence whatever, revision under section 115 is not legally permissible.

A High Court cannot interfere in revision where the lower Appellate Court has misconstrued a portion of the documentary evidence or ignored important evidence in the case.

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the judgment and decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kistna at Ellore, in Appeal Suits Nos. 453 and 463 of 1911, preferred against the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Ellore, in Original Suit No. 16 of 1910.

Mr. V. Ramadoss, for the Petitioner.

Mr. B. Somayya for Mr. P. Narayanamurthi, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—As regards the burden of proof the authority of the decision of Seshagiri Aiyar, J., in Vegoti Chengiah v. Putta Ramudu (1) relied on by the Subordinate Judge has been strengthened by the decisions of Division Bench in Kidambi Jagannathacharyulu v. Pidipite Kutumbarayadu (2) and Ravulapati Papi Reddi v. Nandurn Peda Venkatacharyulu (3). My opinion contra in earlier cases is not, therefore, the predominating or prevailing opinion in this Court.

If the burden of proving that the inamdar did not own the kudivaram at the time of the inam grant lay on the defendants, the Subordinate Judge holds that they have not discharged that burden. He refers to various circumstances and pieces of documentary evidence in paragraphs 12 to 14 of his judgment to support his conclusion in favour of the inamdar. Even if he has misconstrued a portion of the documentary evidence or ignored important evidence in the case (as contended by Mr. Ramadoss), I do not think that it is a fit case for interference under section 115, Civil Procedure Code. No doubt, if the Appellate Court by an error of law finds jurisdiction in the Civil Courts, or denies jurisdiction to the Civil Courts, interference in revision under section 115 is permitted. [Vuppuluri Atchayya v. Kanchumarti Venkata Seetarama Chandra Rao (4).] But where the jurisdiction depends on a finding of fact, unless that finding of fact rests on no evidence whatever, revision under section 115, Civil Procedure Code, is not, in my opinion, legally permissible. Here, even if the burden of proof lay on the plaintiff there is evidence on record from which the Court was entitled to find the facts in the plaintiff's favour so as to give Civil Courts jurisdiction.

The petition is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

Petition dismissed.

(4) 18 Ind. Cas. 555; 13 M. L. T. 60; 24 M. L. J. 112.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 473 OF 1912.

April 14, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Le Rossignol.

RAM ADIN—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MUNSHI RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.Partnership—Firm—Partners sued not as partners but in their individual capacity—Pleadings—Plaintiff, whether entitled to change position and seek relief against firm—Acknowledgment of debt without promise to pay, whether can be made basis of suit—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 43.

A plaintiff who sues some of the partners of a firm not as such partners or as representing the firm but in their individual and private capacity, can not, when he fails to prove his claim as preferred, be permitted to change his ground and continue the suit or ask for relief against the firm itself, nor does section 43 of the Contract Act apply to such a case. [p. 210, col. 2.]

RAM ADIN P. MUNSHI RAM.

A 'ruqqa' which is merely an acknowledgment or admission of indebtedness and does not contain an express or implied agreement or promise to pay, cannot be made the basis of a suit. [p. 211, col. 1.]

Pala Mal v. Tulla Rao, 119 P. R. 1908; 206 P. W. R. 1908, followed.

First appeal from the decree of the District Judge of Ambala, dated the 20th February 1912, dismissing the plaintiff's suit.

Mr. Nanak Chand for Rai Bahadur Lala Sukh Dial, for the Appellant.

Mr. Gokal Chand Narang, for Respondents Nos. 1 to 6.

Mr. Sundar Das, for Respondents Nos. 7 and 8.

JUDGMENT.—Bindraban, one of the respondents, has died during the pendency of this appeal but Jadu Rai, his adopted son, is already a party to the suit and is on the record, so that no further action is necessary.

The plaintiff, Ram Adin, sues on his own behalf and as heir of the late Umrao Singh on the ruqqa, Exhibit P—1. That ruqqa is signed by Munshi Ram and Bindraban, and defendants Nos. 3 to 6 were joined as forming with Munshi Ram and Bindraban a joint Hindu family. Defendants Nos. 7 and 8 were subsequently added by the Court on the allegation of the other defendants that they too were partners in the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban. Defendants Nos. 7 and 8 have denied any interest in the aforesaid firm and the plaintiff has insisted on several occasions during the hearing of the case that he is suing not the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban but the executors of the ruqqa, P—1, and the members of their family only.

The District Judge has dismissed the whole suit on practically one point, namely, that the transactions on which the ruqqa is based were not between the plaintiff and defendants Nos. 1 and 2 in their individual capacity but between plaintiff and the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban. Proceeding from that point, the learned District Judge has held that it would be now impossible to permit plaintiff to alter his position and to continue the suit as a suit for an account against the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban. Before us it has been argued that the transactions which form the basis of this ruqqa were in fact transactions operated by Munshi Ram and Bindraban in their private capacity. But taking into consideration that the only accounts which have been produced in support of this ruqqa have been extracted from the books of the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban, that plaintiff has produced no books of his own to show that he had an account with Munshi Ram and Bindraban in their individual capacity, and also bearing in mind that there is no allegation from either side that Munshi Ram and Bindraban had private books of account independent of the books maintained by the firm, we are far from being convinced that the finding of the learned District Judge on this point is incorrect. Having fixed this point we have now to consider whether the plaintiff can be permitted to change his ground and ask for relief against the firm of Dhani Ram-Bindraban, and after a due consideration we do not think that this course is allowable. It would involve on the plaintiff's part a total reversal of the pleas on which he came into Court. It would necessitate the decision of pleas raised between the two sets of defendants and would result in a re-trial of the whole case from the beginning. We note also that at the outset of the case, it was brought to the notice of the plaintiff by the District Judge that his failure to establish the allegation that the ruqqa was based on a private debt of Munshi Ram and Bindraban would result in a dismissal of the suit.

For the appellant it is contended that section 43 of the Contract Act would justify a continuation of the case as against the firm. Many authorities have been cited to us in support of the view that section 43 applies to a case in which some partners are selected to defend a case which might have been maintained against the whole partnership body. But it is obvious that that section does not cover the case now before us, for the plaintiff's contention from the outset has been that his claim was not against the partnership but against two individuals. The position then is this, that the plaintiff comes into Court protesting that he has no claim against the firm but sues some of its partners in their individual capacity, but failing to prove their liability to pay his claim except in their capacity as members of the firm he now desires to prove his claim by an examination of the accounts of that firm. This change of front cannot be permitted.

SIVARAMA AIYAR v. ALAGAPPA CHETTY.

In addition to the grounds on which the plaintiff has been unsuccessful in the lower Court, it appears to us that another ground exists for non-suiting the plaintiff. He bases his claim upon a ruqqa which is merely an acknowledgment of indebtedness, though the appellant contends that the said ruqqa imports a promise to pay. Pala Mal v. Tulla Ram (1) concludes the matter. In the ruqqa now before us there is nothing but an admission of indebtedness. It contains no agreement, either express or implied, to pay interest and even the admission of indebtedness is of a qualified nature, for in the ruqqa, it is specified that certain other accounts still require adjustment and that charges on account of interest have not been settled.

For these reasons the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs. We are in this connection asked to allow one set of costs to defendants Nos. 1 to 6 and another to defendants Nos. 7 and 8. As the plaintiff has failed entirely in his contentions and as on his own theory defendants Nos. 7 and 8 were not interested in this case, he might well have refrained from impleading them in this appeal. Consequently we allow separate costs to each set of defendants.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 119 P. R. 1908; 206 P. W. R. 1908.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL No. 94 of 1913.

September 6, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

P. S. SIVARAMA AIYAR—DEFENDANT
No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

MUTHU K. R. ALAGAPPA CHETTY, BY HIS AGENT VEDACHELLA AIYAR

—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 111 (g)
—"Some act showing an intention to determine the lease", meaning of—Lawyer's notice to quit, whether sufficient—Person in illegal occupation—Mesne profits, liability for.

The expression "some act showing his" (lessor's) "intention to determine the lease," occurring in section 11, clause (g) of the Transfer of Property Act, must not be confined to an attempt at re-entry or to the filing of a suit in ejectment. A Lawyer's notice by the lessor showing unequivocally his intention to determine the lease is quite sufficient. [p. 212, col. 1.]

A person who is in illegal occupation of land without the owner's permission or consent is liable for mesne profits. [p. 212, col. 1.]

Appeal from the judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wallis, in Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of this Court, in Civil Suit No. 58 of 1912.

FACTS.—Plaintiff, a Nattukottai Chetty mortgagee with possession of certain buildings known as Triumph Buildings opposite the Madras High Court, leased the same to one Mr. Patel for seven years at a monthly rental of Rs. 470, on condition that if the lessee committed default in payment of rent for two consecutive months, the lessor would be at liberty to re-enter. Mr. Patel sub-let a portion of the building to the defendant at Rs. 200 a month. Mr. Patel committed default in payment of rent, and the plaintiff gave notice to Mr. Patel and his sub-lessees to vacate the same. The defendant contended that he had paid Rs. 1,000 to Mr. Patel as advance, that he was entitled to remain in possession until that amount was paid and that he would not vacate. The plaintiff then sued to recover rent for the period the defendant was in occupation. Mr. Justice Wallis before whom the case came on for hearing on the original side of the High Court gave a decree for the plaintiff. The present appeal is against that decree.

Mr. A. Duraisami Aiyar, for the Appellant:—Section 111 (g) of the Transfer of Property Act provides that a tenancy is forfeited only when the lessor does some act showing his intention to determine the tenancy; that act must be either a suit in ejectment or re-entry by taking possession. In this case what was done was only a Lawyer's notice to quit; it is not an act done within the meaning of section 111 (g) of the Transfer of Property Act.

There is no privity of contract between the plaintiff and the defendant and he cannot, therefore, sue for rent.

Mr C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, for the Respondent, was not called upon.

JOWALA SINGH & TULSA RAM.

JUDGMENT.—The first contention of the appellant's learned Vakil is that the expression "some act showing his" (lessor's) "intention to determine the lease", occurring in section 111, clause (g), of the Transfer of Property Act must be confined to an attempt at re-entry, or to the filing of a suit in ejectment, where the forfeiture is incurred by the breach of a condition of the lease-deed providing for re-entry on such breach. We must decline to put such a restricted construction on the very general phrase "some act" occurring in the Statute. The Lawyer's notices by the plaintiff in this case showing unequivocally his intention to determine the lease are, therefore, sufficient.

The next contention is that the appellant (2nd defendant) is not liable for rent, or to pay compensation for use and occupation, because he was neither the plaintiff's tenant, nor did he continue in possession with the plaintiff's permission. The short answer to this contention is that he has been made liable for mesne profits as a person in illegal occupation and not as a tenant, permissive or otherwise.

Lastly, the learned Judge was right in making the 2nd defendant liable for mesne profits at Rs. 200 a month on his own admissions (see his evidence and his written statement in this case) that he has continued in possession of the same premises for which he had agreed to pay Rs. 200 rent to the 1st defendant.

The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 306 OF 1912.

April 20, 1915.

Present:—Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt.,
Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice LeRossignol.
JOWALA SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—APPELLANTS

versus

TULSA RAM—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Regulation (XVII of 1806)—Mortgage by conditional sale—Foreclosure proceedings—Notice, service of, on de facto guardian of minor mortgagor, whether sufficient—Consideration, receipt of, denial of—Burden of proof.

In foreclosure proceedings taken in a mortgage by conditional sale, a notice under Regulation XVII of 1806 delivered to the de facto guardian of a minor mortgagor is sufficient, whether that person is described as de facto guardian in the notice or not. [p. 213, col. 1.]

If the executant of a mortgage-deed, who admitted receipt of consideration at the time of registration, denies the receipt of consideration, the burden of proving its non-receipt is on him. [p. 213, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Gujranwala, at Lahore, dated the 1st May 1911.

Bawa Sewa Ram Singh, for the Appellant.

Lala Mehr Chand, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit for possession of land on the basis of a mortgage-deed with a conditional sale clause. The first Court framed a very large number of issues and ultimately dismissed the suit with costs, principally on the finding that service of notice under the Regulation was not valid. The lower Appellate Court, on the other hand, found service of the notice valid, and in all respects found that the plaintiff's suit must succeed and, therefore, substantially gave plaintiff a decree prayed for by him, though it became necessary to extract from the decree two small plots of land which had been sold to two persons called Bula Singh and Phula Singh. The defendants have filed a further appeal to this Court and we have heard arguments. A preliminary objection, that the appeal is time-barred, we have overruled, applying section 5 of the Act in view of the peculiar circumstances which led to the delay in filing the full Court-fee required. The grounds of appeal are four in number, but Mr. Sewa Ram Singh, who appears for the appellants, has intimated that he cannot support the contention that the suit is barred by the law of res judicata, or the contention that the suit is time-barred. There remain, therefore, the question of the regularity of the foreclosure proceedings and the question of consideration and necessity for the mortgage.

On page 5 of the paper-book in the last paragraph the story of the service of notice is told at length. It appears that on the 20th November 1897 notices were issued to the three brothers Jowala Singh, Hazura Singh and Phula Singh, the last of whom is now dead.

JOWALA SINGH v. TULSA RAM.

Those notices were handed by the process-server on 9th December 1897 to Jowala Singh for himself and for his brothers. But apparently the District Judge did not think this sufficient and ordered notices to be issued again to the two brothers of Jowala Singh, and these notices were served on them personally on the 29th December 1897. Now, it appears that Phula Singh, the third brother, was a minor. We think that this point, although the lower Appellate Court seems to have doubt about it, is quite clear; but we agree with the lower Appellate Court that the earlier service of 9th December 1897 on Jowala Singh for Phula Singh was sufficient. Although the notice did not expressly state that Jowala Singh was the guardian of Phula Singh, as a matter of fact he was the guardian, and in our opinion it is quite sufficient, where the mortgagor is a minor, that notice under the Regulation should be delivered to his de facto guardian whether that person is described as de facto guardian in the notice or not. Much stress is laid by Mr. Sewa Ram Singh on the fact that Lal Singh, lambardar, whose seal is on the notice, now denies that Jowala Singh was present at all. On the other hand, we have Ganda Singh's statement as to the writing of a report on the back of the notice and we have the actual notice itself with the report endorsed. In our opinion Lal Singh, lambardar, is either intentionally lying or is at least drawing on his imagination about an incident of which he could hardly have a recollection. On the other hand Ganda Singh, who seems to be a quite independent person, would very naturally remember the incident as he was actually called to write an endorsement; and both the lower Courts appear to be quite satisfied that the service was effected. In these circumstances it is impossible for us to upset the concurrent finding of the Courts below on this point.

Mr. Sewa Ram Singh quotes Des Raj v. Khan Bahadur (1), by way of showing that the endorsement on the notice raises no presumption that notice was served. It is obvious that this argument has no force whatever in a case like the present where there is independent oral evidence of a trustworthy kind to corroborate the endorsement. There are two other highly technical points which are taken by Mr. Sewa Ram Singh, both of them being based to some extent on a ruling, Chaudhri Hazara Singh v. Mohammad Khan (2); viz., first, that there is no proof that a copy of the application was given to the mortgagor, secondly, that demand is not proved to have been made before service of notice. These contentions are based upon ignorance of what the record contains, for Ganda Singh says quite plainly that copy of application was given, and there is also the evidence of one Chart Lal that demand was made. This demand was made apparently after the dismissal of the earlier suit which failed on the score of irregularity of the notice, and we find no difficulty whatever in believing that on this occasion at least demand was also made.

We have also heard arguments regarding consideration and "necessity." Mr. Sewa Ram Singh attempts to argue at one and the same time that there was no consideration and that the consideration existed but was met by the execution of decree proceedings of 1887, under which one-third of the land was sold for Rs. 900. We have some doubts whether inconsistent contentions of this sort are admissible; but, however this may be, we cannot find that his clients have proved either contention. As pointed out by the lower Appellate Court, the deed was registered and executant admitted receipt of consideration, and in all the circumstances the onus of proving want of consideration lay on appellants, and this onus has not been discharged. Then as regards satisfaction at the time of the execution proceedings Mr. Sewa Ram Singh is only able to point to vague generalities and conjectures, whereas we find frequent indications that the mortgage for Rs. 200 was considered as still subsisting, though mutation on it never was had. Thus the Commissioner's proposal to the Financial Commissioner for sale of one-third of the land distinctly mentions the mortgage as still in existence, and again the Subordinate Judge, in applying to the Collector for action under section 326, (old) Civil Procedure Code, recites the mortgage and talks of a proposal to combine it and the decree-money in a single big mortgage and so satisfy the decree, a scheme, however, that fell through owing to judgment-debtors' objecting.

(1) P. L. R. 1900, p. 332.

(2) 134 P. L. R. 1901.

RAJAH OF KALAHASTI v. SWARNAM KAMAKSHAMMA.

For these reasons, we think there is no force in this appeal and we dismiss it with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 494 OF 1912.

July 26, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spence and Mr. Justice Crompton-Potter.

Raja DAMARA KUMARATH MMA-

YINIM BAHADUR VARU,

RAJAH OF KALAHASTI—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

SWARNAM KAMAKSHAMMA AND OTHERS

—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11, Expt. II—Appeal, right of—Substantive law—Act, retrospective effect of—Res judicata—Grant of agra-haram—Payment of meras and ruzsums, when can be enforced.

A right to appeal to a superior Tribunal is a substantive right which belongs to a suitor and an Act which takes away a substantive right is not retrospective in effect except by express enactment or by necessary intendment. [p. 214, col. 2.]

Where, therefore, in a suit instituted before the passing of the new Civil Procedure Code, a decision on a previous suit of 1902 in which no second appeal lay, was pleaded as a bar:

Held, that Explanation II to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, did not have a retrospective effect and the earlier decision could not operate as a bar to the suit. [p. 214, col. 2.]

Colonial Sugar Refining Company v. Irving, (1905) A. C. 389, 74 L. J. P. C. 77; 92 L. T. 738; 21 T. L. R. 513, followed.

As between a zemindar and his tenants a fee payable for a particular purpose cannot be enforced when that purpose fails. [p. 215, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, it appears that a grant of an agra-haram was made conditional on the payment of certain meras and ruzsums which, however, were to continue only so long as the purpose for which they were made continued:

Held, that the payment could not be enforced when that purpose failed. [p. 215, col. 1.]

Devanai v. Raghunatha Row, 18 Ind. Cas. 298; (1913) M. W. N. 886; 13 M. L. T. 351, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, North Arcot, in Appeal Suit No. 37 of 1911 (Appeal No. 336 of 1907, on the file of the District Court of North Arcot), preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Tirupati, in Original Suit No. 393 of 1905.

Mr. L. A. Gopinathaya Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of the assertion on the part of the zemindar of Kalahasti of a claim to levy certain meras and ruzsums which the respondent agra-haramdars have denied their liability to pay, as being in their view unauthorized exactions.

The first argument is that the matter is res judicata between the parties by reason of the decision in a previous suit of 1902.

But it is clear that in 1905 when this suit was instituted that decision, according to the then prevailing law, which was settled by the Full Bench decision in Avanasi Gounden v. Nachammal (1), being one in which no second appeal lay, could not operate as a bar to a fresh decision on the same point in a subsequent suit between the parties.

After the decision in that suit the law was altered by the introduction of the Civil Procedure Code of 1908, in which the Explanation II to section 11 of that Code provided for the first time that the competence of a Court should be determined without reference to the existence of a right of appeal from its decisions.

It was held by the Privy Council in Colonial Sugar Refining Company v. Irving (2) that a right to appeal to a superior Tribunal is a substantive right which belongs to a suitor, and the well-known principle was further affirmed that an Act which takes away a substantive right is not retrospective in effect, except by express enactment or by necessary intendment.

The second objection is that the payment of the meras and ruzsums referred to in Exhibit I was part of the consideration for the grant of that part of the landlord's melvaram which went to make up the agra-haram. The Subordinate Judge found, as we understand his judgment, that the grant was subject to those payments, but he also held that it was a condition of the grant that they were to continue only so long as the purposes for which they were made continued.

(1) 13 M. L. T. 351; 13 M. W. N. 886; 13 Ind. Cas. 298.
(2) (1905) A. C. 389; 74 L. J. P. C. 77; 92 L. T. 733; 21 T. L. R. 513.

ALLIANCE BANK OF SIMLA, LTD. v. AMRITSAR BANK.

The case is thus on a similar footing to that decided in Devanai v. Raghunatha Row (3), where it was held that as between a zemindar and his tenants a fee payable for a particular purpose could no longer be enforced when that purpose failed. An attempt has been made to distinguish that case on the ground that these *agrarahamdar*s have not shown that they possess occupancy rights and that their position is thus inferior to that of the tenants in the above decision. But there is no presumption or proof that the *agrarahamdar*s are liable to be ejected from their holdings, and prima facie they appear to be in a stronger position than ordinary ryots, considering the nature and length of their tenure. Under Regulation XXV of 1802 the zemindar, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, is not entitled to collect more than the fixed quit-rent or jodi in case of pre-Settlement inams. The parties have not raised the question that this grant was subsequent to the Settlement and the earliest document between them is one of the year 1803, which by its terms purports to be subsequent to the original grant.

The questions as to which of the charges relate to purposes which have ceased to exist, are questions of fact into which we cannot enter.

This second appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(3) 18 Ind. Cas. 298; 13 M. L. T. 351; (1913) M. W. N. 886.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2935 OF 1914.

April 27, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan and
Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

ALLIANCE BANK OF SIMLA, LTD.,—

APPELLANT

versus

AMRITSAR BANK IN LIQUIDATION,
THROUGH OFFICIAL LIQUIDATORS

—RESPONDENT.

Contract Act—(IX of 1872), s. 201—Bills sent with direction to collect and remit—Trust—Fiduciary relationship—Agency—Debtor and creditor.

When a person employs another to collect money and remit it to him, the latter stands in a fiduciary relation towards the former and may in respect of the money so collected be regarded as a trustee. [p. 216, col. 1.]

In re Hallett's Estate, Knatchbull v. Hallett, (1879) 13 Ch. D. 696; 49 L. J. Ch. 415; 42 L. T. 421; 28 W. R. 732; Ex parte Platt, In re Bawa, (1889) 60 L. T. 397; 37 W. R. 463; G. Morrell, 81; Official Assignee of Madras v. Rajam Aiyar, 8 Ind. Cas. 138; 33 M. 299, referred to.

The money is held by him for a specific purpose and does not at his bankruptcy pass to the trustee in bankruptcy as the bankrupt's property. [p. 216, col. 1.]

Where the debtor is to collect and remit, there is confidence and trust. Where the debtor is to use and repay on demand there is no trust. The fact that the money so received has been mixed with other money of the agent is immaterial so long as there is a fund on which the creditor qua creditor can lay his hands. [p. 216, col. 1.]

In re West of England and South Wales District Bank, Ex parte Dale & Co., (1879) 11 Ch. D. 772; 48 L. J. Ch. 600; 40 L. T. 712; 27 W. R. 815, referred to.

In re Hallett's Estate, Knatchbull v. Hallett, 13 Ch. D. 696; 49 L. J. Ch. 415; 42 L. T. 421; 28 W. R. 732, relied upon.

The Alliance Bank of Simla, Delhi Branch, sent two bills for collection to the Gwalior Branch of the Amritsar Bank and distinctly asked the latter to send drafts on Delhi after realization. The Amritsar Bank realized the money and after deducting the usual charges remitted the balance by two drafts on the Delhi Branch of the People's Bank Limited. But before the drafts could be cashed, both the People's Bank and the Amritsar Bank went into liquidation. On these facts, the Alliance Bank claimed payment in full of the amount due on the drafts contending that the Amritsar Bank was the trustee and not a debtor qua that money.

Held, that all the requirements which were essential to the creation of a fiduciary relationship were satisfied, but that as soon as the drafts on Delhi were despatched and in accordance with the instructions of the Alliance Bank of Simla, the special business, for which the agency had been created, was completed, the agency then terminated ipso facto (vide section 201, Indian Contract Act), the fiduciary relationship came to an end, and thenceforward, the Alliance Bank of Simla was simply a creditor of the Amritsar Bank and if the drafts were dishonoured, the Alliance Bank of Simla was only entitled to be registered as a creditor and receive payment pari passu along with other creditors. [p. 216, col. 2.]

First appeal from the order of the Additional Judge, Lahore, dated the 17th November 1914.

Mr. B. Beran Petman, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Herbert and Madan Gopal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The facts of this case are simple and may be stated in a few words. The Alliance Bank of Simla, Delhi Branch, sent two bills for collection to the Gwalior Branch of the Amritsar Bank and directed the latter to send "your drafts on realization" after deducting the usual charges. It appears that the Amritsar Bank realized the money, made a slight deduction for exchange, and remitted the balance by two drafts on the Delhi Branch of the People's Bank, Limited. But before the drafts could be cashed, both the People's Bank and the Amritsar Bank went into liquidation.

RAMASAMY CHETTY v. KARUPPAN CHETTY.

On the facts set out above, which are not disputed by the parties, the Alliance Bank claims payment in full of the amount due on the drafts and contends that the Amritsar Bank was a trustee and not a debtor qua that money. The learned Additional Judge has overruled this contention, and after hearing arguments on both sides and considering the law bearing on the subject we are of opinion that the view taken by him is correct and that this appeal must be dismissed.

Now, the principle of law is firmly established that when a person employs another to collect money and remit it to him, the latter stands in a fiduciary relation towards the former and may in respect of the money so collected be regarded as a trustee; vide, inter alia, In re Hallett's Estate, Knatchbull v Hallett (1), Ex parte Plitt, In re Brown (2), Official Assignee of Madras v. Rajam Aiyar (3). The money is held by him for a specific purpose and does not at his bankruptcy pass to the trustee in bankruptcy as the bankrupt's property. As observed by Cave, J., during the argument in Ex parte Plitt, In re Brown (2): "where the debtor is to collect and remit, there is confidence and trust. Where the debtor is to use and repay on demand there is no trust." Further, it is clear that the fact that the money so received has been mixed with other money of the agent is immaterial so long as there is a fund on which the cestui que trust can lay his hands. In re West of England and South Wales District Bank, Ex parte Dale & Co. (4), which lays down the contrary rule, is not now good law and that judgment has been expressly dissented from by the Court of Appeal in In re Hallett's Estate Knatchbull v. Hallett (1).

(1) (1879) 13 Ch. D. 696; 49 L. J. Ch. 416; 42 L. T. 421; 28 W. R. 732.

(2) (1869) 60 L. T. 397; 37 W. R. 463; 6 Morrell 81.

(3) 8 Ind. Cas. 138; 33 M. 299.

(4) (1879) 11 Ch. D. 772; 48 L. J. Ch. 600; 40 L. T. 712; 27 W. R. 815.

The case so far presents no difficulty and satisfies all the requirements which are essential to the creation of a fiduciary relationship. But the matter does not end here. As stated supra, the appellant Bank distinctly asked the Amritsar Bank to send drafts on Delhi and this direction was fully carried out. We consider that as soon as the drafts in accordance with the instructions were despatched, the special business, for which the agency had been created, was completed. The agency then ipso facto terminated (vide section 201, Indian Contract Act) and the fiduciary relationship came to an end. Henceforward the appellant Bank was simply a creditor of the Amritsar Bank and if the drafts were dishonoured, the remedy was for the recovery of the debt due on those drafts. It seems to us clear that if a suit had been filed, it would have been one for money due by a debtor to a creditor and the ordinary rule of limitation applicable to such cases would have governed the action.

In view of the facts and the law referred to above, we think that this is a case of an ordinary debtor and creditor and that the claim for payment in full has not been established. The appellant must be registered as a creditor and shall receive payment pari passu along with other creditors. The appeal accordingly fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 223 OF 1913.

September 8, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

RAMASAMY CHETTY—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

KARUPPAN CHETTY AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Two suits with regard to same subject-matter tried together—Judgment in one following that in the other—Appeal against one, whether barred because no appeal against the other—Principal and agent—Silence or acquiescence of principal, whether amounts to ratification—Agent obtaining pecuniary advantage for himself, duty of—Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 88—Decree in favour of principal—Execution sale—Purchase by agent of immoveable property outside British India—Principal entitled to decree for mesne profits—Mandatory injunction directing reconveyance of property, whether allowed.

RAMASAMY CHETTY V. KARUPPAN CHETTY.

Where two suits with regard to the same subject-matter are tried together on the same evidence and disposed of by the same Judge and the judgment in one follows the judgment in the other though separate decrees are drawn up, the fact that no appeal has been filed against one of these decrees does not make it operate as res judicata and does not bar an appeal against the other decree. [p. 218, col. 1.]

Panchanada Velan v. Vaithinatha Sastriar, 29 M. 333; 16 M. L. J. 63 (F. B.), followed.

In the case of an agent exceeding his authority ratification may be implied from the mere silence or acquiescence of the principal. [p. 219, col. 2.]

Ramaswamy Chetty v. Alagappa Chetty, 28 Ind. Cas. 135; 28 M. L. J. 199, followed.

An agent who purchases property under circumstances in which his own interests are adverse to those of his principal and thereby obtains a pecuniary advantage for himself, must hold the advantage so gained for the benefit of his principal under section 88 of the Indian Trusts Act. [p. 219, col. 2.]

Where an agent purchased some immoveable property outside British India at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree passed in favour of his principal and the principal sued him for an account of the profits of the property and for a reconveyance of the property to him:

Held, that the principal was entitled to a decree for an account of the profits of the property, but that a mandatory injunction directing the agent to execute the conveyance of the property itself could not be granted. [p. 220, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Ramnad at Madura, in Original Suit No. 48 of 1911.

Mr. A. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Messrs K. V. Krishnaswami Aiyar and K. V. Sesa Aiyangar, for the Respondents.

This appeal coming on for hearing on the 28th, 29th and 30th July 1915, respectively, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—Plaintiff's father and the 3rd defendant were doing business as money-lenders in partnership at Kuala Lumpur under the name and style of S. L. V. The 1st defendant was engaged as an agent to conduct the business of the firm for three years and he executed the usual salary chit to the 3rd defendant on the 3rd of November 1903. He transacted the business of the firm as such agent till about the end of the year 1907 and came back to India in the beginning of 1908.

The 3rd defendant released his interest in the partnership to the plaintiff's father.

Plaintiff's father is dead and the plaintiff is now the sole owner of the firm.

The suit is instituted to take the accounts of the agency. A preliminary decree was passed for an account and in pursuance of that decree statements of accounts were filed, and the plaintiff after the examination of the accounts charged the 1st defendant with misconduct in respect of particular loans which have since become irrecoverable and sought to recover their amount from him. The Subordinate Judge of Ramnad has disallowed the claim as to most of the items and the plaintiff appeals in respect of some of them.

The respondent has taken an objection to the hearing of the appeal, on the ground that the question of the liability of the 1st defendant has been adjudicated upon by a prior decision which operates as res judicata. The facts necessary for the disposal of this question are these: The 1st defendant when he was appointed an agent was given a 1/5th share in the profits and losses of the firm; but instead of his being given this share in the S. L. V. firm, a subsidiary firm of L. R. M. was started which was to have a 1/3rd share in the profits and losses of the transactions of the main S. L. V. firm, and in the L. R. M. firm the 1st defendant was to have a one-half share, the plaintiff's father and the 3rd defendant, the partners of the S. L. V. firm, being entitled to the other half. The L. R. M. firm was not to transact any independent business, but was simply to share to the extent of 1/3rd in the profits and losses of the transactions of the S. L. V. firm. It is obvious that though in name there was a separate firm of L. R. M. in which the 1st defendant had a one-half share, the practical effect of the arrangement was to give the 1st defendant a 1/6th share in the firm of S. L. V. The plaintiff simultaneously with the suit instituted another suit, Original Suit No. 10 of 1912, against the 1st defendant for the dissolution of the L. R. M. firm. As the question of the 1st defendant's liability was the same in both the suits, they were tried together on the same evidence and disposed of by the same Judge. The judgment in Original Suit No. 10 of 1912 is based on and follows the judgment in Original

RAMASAMY CHETTY v. KARUPPAN CHETTY.

Suit No. 48 of 1911, though separate decrees were drawn up. Plaintiff has not appealed against the decree in the Original Suit No. 10 of 1912 and it is this judgment which is pleaded as a bar to the trial of this appeal. The respondent's Vakil relies on a decision of the Calcutta High Court reported as Madanpore Zemindar Co., Ltd. v. Nitya Kali Dasi (1), but we think the question has been decided by a Full Bench of this Court in Panchanada Tulan v. Vaithinatha Sastri (2). Following that decision we overrule the plea of res judicata raised by the respondent.

Coming to the merits of the appeal, the items for which the plaintiff seeks to make the agent responsible may be divided into three classes. Class one consisting of items said to have been lent negligently to persons who were not in a position to repay them. These items are Nos. 23, 40, 56, 143 and 72 of the A schedule. The 1st defendant has given evidence with respect to these items, and the lower Court on a consideration of the evidence has come to the conclusion that the 1st defendant was not guilty of negligence with regard to these items. Our attention has been drawn to the evidence with respect to each of these transactions, and we agree with the lower Court that there was no negligence on the part of the 1st defendant in making these loans. The next class consists of three items, Nos. 18, 102 and 110, in respect of which the charge against the 1st defendant is that he lent these items to Tamils and Muhammadans contrary to the instructions of the principals. Loan No. 18 was made on the 23rd of April 1904, No. 102 in July 1905, and No. 110 in October 1905. The earliest letter in which there is a prohibition against lending to Tamils and Muhammadans is Exhibit E, dated the 13th April 1904, written by the 3rd defendant to the 1st defendant. The 1st defendant replied on the 4th of May 1904 [Exhibit E2] and stated that he had lent to three Muhammadans prior to the receipt of the instructions in Exhibit E and said that for the future he would not lend to Tamils and Muhammadans. One of those persons to whom he had already advanced is creditor No. 18, and so far as that item is concerned, the agent has not disobeyed the instructions of the principals. With regard to the other items the respondent contends that although the principals gave instructions as to not lending to Tamils and Muhammadans, those instructions were not intended to be taken as positive prohibitions, but were merely in the nature of directions which he was to follow as far as possible. He also contends that the principals regularly received copies of the Day Books in which these transactions were entered and were asked by him to examine them and write to him if they had any objections, that the principals though they took objections to the loans made to one or two particular debtors, they took no objection to the loans made to Tamils and Muhammadans as such; in fact they have ratified these particular transactions. The lower Court agreed with these contentions and we agree with it.

After the writing of Exhibit E2, it appears that the 1st defendant was lending moneys to Tamils and Muhammadans and the principals became aware of it when the monthly kurippus were sent to them; they took no objection to the loans to Tamils and Muhammadans as such, though they objected to a loan made to one Chellayya on the ground that the sum lent was too large. [Exhibit TS, dated 2nd August 1904, and Exhibit XV dated 6th August 1904.] Correspondence went on between the 1st defendant and the 3rd defendant with regard to this particular man, Chellayya. Finally in Exhibits XXI and XXVIII, dated 18th September 1904 and 27th September 1904 respectively, written by the plaintiff's father and 3rd defendant to the 1st defendant, satisfaction was expressed as to the mode in which the 1st defendant was transacting the business of the firm. The next important letter is Exhibit E1, dated 8th March 1915, in which the 3rd defendant asked the 1st defendant not to have dealings with Tamils and Muhammadans in future. Even after this letter the 1st defendant had transactions with Tamils and Muhammadans which were brought to the notice of the principals when the copies of the Day Book were sent. On the 30th of July 1905 the 1st defendant wrote to the 3rd defendant pro

(1) 24 Ind. Cas. 243.

(2) 29 M. 333; 16 M. L. J. 63 (F. B.).

RAMASAMY CHETTY v. KARUPPAN CHETTY.

testing against the prohibition of loans to Tamils and Muhammadans and stating that he had lent to some Tamils who were well known to him and had not incurred any loss in consequence [Exhibit XXI (a)]. Exhibit F2 was the reply in which no exception was taken to the 1st defendant's course of dealing. In Exhibit F, dated 28th of September 1905, the 1st defendant, writing to the 3rd sending copies of the kurippu, asked him to examine them and write to him with regard to any objections he might have with reference to the transactions therein contained.

The reply was Exhibit F1, dated 12th October 1905, and no objection was taken to the transactions now complained of. The 1st defendant in October 1905 gave a loan to debtor No. 110 and copies of the kurippu were sent to the principals and no objection was taken to these transactions. It appears from Exhibit XXXVI, dated 7th September 1906, a letter written by the plaintiff's father to the 1st defendant, that the 3rd defendant who was till then principally supervising the business of the 1st defendant, had asked the plaintiff's father to supervise the work of the 1st defendant thereafter, and the plaintiff's father asked for the balance-sheet and for a list of debtors. Subsequent to that we find Exhibits H, F5 and XXXVIII (b), letters from the 3rd defendant and the plaintiff's father, asking the 1st defendant to close the business of the firm. On the 7th of November 1906 the plaintiff's father wrote Exhibit XXVI to the 1st defendant expressing satisfaction with the manner in which the 1st defendant was conducting the business, and in Exhibits XXVII(a) and XXXVIII(c), dated 9th December 1906 and 27th February 1907, written by the 3rd defendant and the plaintiff's father respectively to the 1st defendant, they expressed their entire approval of the manner in which the 1st defendant was doing the business; and on 8th May 1907, the 3rd defendant asked the 1st defendant to become a partner with him and open new accounts. The evidence above set out, shows that the principals took no objection to the transactions now in question and must, we think, be taken to have ratified them. The learned Pleader for the appellant contended that these facts are not legally sufficient to prove ratification and relied upon the decision in De Busche v. Alt (3). There is really no doubt or difficulty as regards the principle of law applicable to this case. In the case of an agent exceeding his authority ratification may be implied from the mere silence or acquiescence of the principal, and this principle has been adopted in Ramasamy Chetty v. Alagappa Chetty (4.)

The appellant does not press his claim to the item in D Schedule. There is only one other item which remains to be dealt with, and that relates to a purchase of lead mines by the 1st defendant. The 1st defendant had lent money to a Chinaman from whom he obtained a mortgage of certain lead mines. He obtained a decree and in execution of that decree brought the mortgaged properties to sale. As the price of lead was falling, the 1st defendant was apprehensive that this property would not fetch a fair price and wrote to his principals that if there was no satisfactory bidding at the auction, it would be necessary for them to purchase and hold the properties until they could find a buyer (see Exhibit XXXVII (j), dated 18th September 1907, and Exhibit XX, dated 6th November 1907). But instead of purchasing the property on behalf of the mortgagees, the 1st defendant purchased it for the subsidiary L. R. M. firm, in which he had a half share. If the 1st defendant had purchased the property on behalf of the mortgagees, as he said he would, the principals would be entitled to a 5/6ths share in the property purchased and the 1st defendant 1/6th. By purchasing for the L. R. M. firm, the 1st defendant got half the properties. The principals claim 5/6ths of the properties, on the ground that the 1st defendant who was bound to protect their interests purchased the property under circumstances in which his own interests were adverse to those of his principals and thereby obtained a pecuniary advantage for himself (see section 88, Indian Trusts Act). We think this contention is sound.

(3) 8 Ch. D. 286; 47 L. J. Ch. 381; 28 L. T. 275.

(4) 28 Ind. Cas. 135; 28 M. L. J. 199.

KILOTH CHOZHAN OYDAL KURUP V. KIRATHWA ILLATH NARAYANAN NAMBUDERI.

It is, however, contended for the respondent that the principals have acquiesced in this purchase and have ratified the same. The principle laid down in De Bussche v. Alt (3) applies precisely to this transaction, and there is no evidence which goes to show that the principals ever intended to release the 1st defendant from his obligation to hold the property for the benefit of the principals.

The respondent also argued that as the lands are situate outside British India, the Ramnad Sub-Court had no jurisdiction to determine the title to or decree possession of the lands. This objection was not taken in the first Court, but we allowed the question to be argued here. The plaintiff does not want an adjudication as to the title of the lands nor does he seek to recover possession. The title is admittedly in the 1st defendant. What, however, the plaintiff seeks in the suit is the enforcement of a personal equity against the 1st defendant, a British Indian subject residing within the jurisdiction of the Ramnad Sub-Court. In so far as he asks for an account of the profits of the property received by the 1st defendant from the properties so enjoyed by him and for payment of 5/6ths of such profits, we think he is entitled to a decree; but this 5/6ths will include the one-half share awarded to him in Original Suit No. 10 of 1912. The plaintiff also wants us to direct the 1st defendant to execute a conveyance to the plaintiff of a 5/6ths share of the properties in question. As these properties are situate outside the jurisdiction we could not avail ourselves of the procedure provided in Order XXI, rule 34, Civil Procedure Code, if the 1st defendant disobeyed the order. The only other way in which we could grant this relief would be by granting a mandatory injunction directing the 1st defendant to execute the conveyance which could be enforced by attachment under Order XXI, rule 52, Civil Procedure Code. We have not been referred to any precedent for issuing a mandatory injunction to compel the execution of a conveyance, and are not prepared to grant one, more especially in the case of lands situate out of British India.

The decree of the lower Court in favour of the plaintiff and the 3rd defendant will be modified accordingly and the necessary accounts will be taken by the lower Court and a final decree passed there. The parties will pay and receive proportionate costs of this appeal.

JUDGMENT.—If the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 execute a conveyance to the plaintiff and the 3rd defendant of a 1/3rd share of the property mentioned in the schedule to the plaintiff's objection statement, they will be entitled to credit for a 1/3rd share of the purchase-money with Nadappu interest in taking the accounts in this suit up to the date of the final decree in the lower Court.

Decree modified.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 118 OF 1914.

August 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and
Mr. Justice Tyabji.

KILOTH CHOZHAN OYDAL KURUP AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS NOS. 1 TO 6 AND 8 TO 11
—APPELLANTS

versus

KIRATHWA ILLATH NARAYANAN
NAMBUDRI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFF
AND DEFENDANT NO. 7—RESPONDENTS.

Landlord and tenant—Disclaimer of landlord's title, what is—Forfeiture of tenancy.

As between landlord and tenant to constitute a disclaimer by tenant of landlord's title there must be a direct repudiation of the relationship of landlord and tenant or a distinct claim to hold possession of the estate upon a ground wholly inconsistent with that relation, which by necessary implication is a repudiation of it. [p. 221, col. 1.]

Doe d. Gray v. Stanton, (1836) 1 M. & W. 695; 5 L. J. Ex. 253; 1 Tyr. & G. 1065; 2 Gale, 154; 150 E. R. 614; 46 R. R. 464, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of North Malabar, in Appeal Suit No. 106 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif, Kuthuparamba, in Original Suit No. 530 of 1911.

Mr. T. L. Rozario, for the Appellants.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar and A. S. Venku Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Appellants in this case admittedly hold the suit property under Exhibit I executed by plaintiff's predecessor, on what is known as kudima jenm or kudimanir tenure: the incidents of which are set out at pages 307, 417 and 418 of Moore's Malabar Law and Custom and also in Graime's Glossary. Plaintiff is the jenmi of the said land; he has been given a decree for eviction of appellants on the ground of disclaimer of his paramount title.

GUL MUHAMMAD v. TOTA RAM.

The chief point for decision is whether plaintiff has made out a disclaimer of his title. He relies on passages in certain documents (Exhibits C and D) taken by appellants from tenants of their own in respect of the suit lands in a plaint, Exhibit C, filed by appellants in a suit for recovery of rent. These passages refer to the land as the jenmam of appellants; and it is argued that this constitutes a denial of the jenmam title of plaintiff. For appellants it is argued that nothing of the kind is intended but that the phrase "jenmam" is loosely used, where kudima jenmam is meant.

Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar for respondent has argued that the intention of appellants is a question of fact; and that the finding of the District Judge cannot be questioned in second appeal. It appears to us that the learned District Judge has proceeded on a wrong construction of the passages in question and that if they be properly construed, there is no evidence to support a finding of disclaimer of title. He has also, as it seems to us, failed to realise what is implied in disclaimer of a landlord's title: "To constitute a disclaimer there must be a direct repudiation of the relation of landlord and tenant or a distinct claim to hold possession of the estate upon a ground wholly inconsistent with the existence of that relation, which by necessary implication is a repudiation of it." [Vide Baron Parke in Doe d. Gray v. Stanion (1) quoted in Srimati Mallika Dassi v. Makham Lal Chowdhry (2).]

Bearing this definition in mind, we think it is impossible to construe the phrase jenmam in the documents in question as "a direct repudiation" or "distinct claim." The wording of the other exhibits in the case shows that the phrase was commonly used in a loose sense and it is not denied that right up to the date of suit the nominal quit rent, which alone was reserved to plaintiff under Exhibit I, was scrupulously paid.

We think there was no disclaimer of plaintiff's title: whether, if there had been one, it would have worked forfeiture of the tenure is a question into which we need not enter.

We reverse the decree of the District Judge and restore that of the District Munsif. Appellants will get their costs in this and the lower Appellate Court.

Appeal allowed; Suit dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 86 of 1913.

May 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rattigan and
Mr. Justice Leslie Jones.

GUL MUHAMMAD—DEFENDANT—
APPELLANT
versus

TOTA RAM—PLAINTIFF, AND ANOTHER—
DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872), s. 9—Sale—Exchange—Consideration—Money and land—Principle on which nature of transaction should be determined—Pre-emption, evasion of, by lawful means.

Every transaction in which the consideration does not consist merely of money but also of the conveyance to the vendor by the vendee of some land, must be considered upon its own facts to decide whether it is purely a sale or an exchange or is of a mixed character, being partly sale and partly exchange. [p. 223, col. 2.]

Where the consideration for a transaction consisted of a cash payment of Rs. 3,600 and the transfer by the vendee to the vendor of land valued at Rs. 1,100 and the transaction was an indivisible one:

Held, that the transaction was not a 'sale' which could be pre-empted. [p. 224, col. 1.]

Gul Muhammad Khan v. Khan Ahmad Shah, 29 P. R. 1893; Khairulla v. Mir Hamza, 111 P. R. 1885 referred to.

The evasion of pre-emption by lawful means is quite legitimate. [p. 224, col. 2.]

Chowdhri Asa Nand v. Mamun, 64 P. R. 1888; Tikaya Ram v. Dharam Chand, 45 P. R. 1895, referred to.

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Multan, dated the 26th November 1912.

(1) (1838) 1 M. & W. 695; 5 L. J. Ex. 253; 1 Tyr. & G. 1065; 2 Gale, 154; 150 E. R. 614; 46 R. R. 464.

(2) 9 C. W. N. 928; 2 C. L. J. 389.

GUL MUHAMMAD V. TOTA RAM.

Mr. Fazl-i-Hussain and Bhagat Goriad Das, for the Appellant.

Mr. Santanam, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The history of this very protracted litigation is given in detail up to May 1910 in the order of the present Chief Judge in Civil Appeal No. 228 of 1910, which concluded with the words, "the District Judge should now take up this long delayed case and dispose of it with all convenient speed." This order is dated 30th May 1910, and by that time the case had, for one reason or another, been dragging along since the 5th November 1902 when the suit was first instituted. The District Judge, after this Court's order of remand, proceeded to re-try the case and eventually gave judgment in favour of plaintiff, Tota Ram, on the 22nd March 1911, granting him a decree for possession by pre-emption of the lands specified in the plaint upon payment of Rs. 4,700 by the 23rd May 1911. Defendant-vendee appealed to the Divisional Judge, but his appeal was dismissed on the 26th November 1912, whereupon he preferred a further appeal to this Court, and it is this appeal which came up for hearing before us on the 6th instant. The case has thus been before the Courts for a period of some 12½ years, but it is difficult to apportion the blame for this excessive delay in the disposal of a case which, so far as the facts are concerned, is simple enough. Briefly stated these facts are as follows:—

By deed dated the 21st November 1901 and duly registered, one Lal Ditta Mal, an Arora of Mauza Hazratwala in the Dera Ghazi Khan District, transferred the following lands in Mauza Pir Bakhsh Sharki to defendant No. 1, Gul Muhammad, an Arain lambardar of Mauza Arain, namely:—

- (1) 75 kanals 17 marlas of well Hasanwala;
 - (2) 305 kanals 12 marlas of well Israiwala;
- and

- (3) 248 kanals 18 marlas of well Niaziwala.

The consideration for the transaction is stated in the deed to have been (a) the sum of Rs. 3,900 paid in cash, and (2) the conveyance by the vendee to the vendor of the following lands, valued at Rs. 1,100, namely:—

- (1) 75 kanals 16½ marlas of well Bhatiwala;
 - (1) 36 kanals 16 marlas of well Kutabwala;
- and

- (3) 7 kanals 13¾ marlas of well Tharawala.

The three wells last mentioned are situate in Mauza Baghewala, which is about 2 kos distant from the vendor's place of residence. A suit for pre-emption was instituted against the vendee on the 5th November 1902 by three persons, Malik Mahmud Bakhsh, Ahmad Ali and Tota Ram, but the first two claimants have dropped out of the case and we are now concerned merely with the claim of the third, Tota Ram, an Arora, resident of Mauza Hazratwala. He bases his right to pre-empt on the ground that he is a co-sharer in the land sold, and it is not denied that under the law as it existed at the time when the claim was preferred (that is to say, under the Punjab Laws Act, 1872) he has the right to pre-empt, (1) if the transaction can be regarded as a "sale" within the meaning, and for the purposes, of section 9 of that Act, and (2) if defendant's plea that plaintiff consented to the sale is not established.

The District Judge found that the transaction was a "sale," that plaintiff had not waived his right to claim pre-emption, that the lands given by the vendee to the vendor were not worth more than Rs. 1,100 and that the actual amount paid in cash by the vendee was Rs. 3,600. He accordingly granted plaintiff a decree for possession on payment of Rs. 4,700 by the date specified.

The Divisional Judge on appeal upheld the decree. He was of opinion that the fact that the consideration was received partly in cash and partly in kind did not affect the nature of the transaction which was in reality a sale, "the exchange part of the transaction being inseparable from the sale part." He further agreed with the District Judge that the alleged waiver by plaintiff had not been established. Defendant has preferred a second appeal to this Court and the main question before us is whether the Divisional Judge was right in construing the deed as one of sale. Mr. Santanam for respondents further urged that even if this Court was of opinion that the deed interpreted simply with reference to its terms was not a sale pure and simple, he was still entitled to prove aliunde that the transaction, though disguised as a mixed transaction of sale and exchange, was nevertheless in essence and in fact merely a sale, effected in this peculiar form in order to evade the claims of pre-emptors. Respondent who was no party to the deed is obviously entitled to refer to the conduct of the parties and to extraneous matters to establish this plea, and we have accordingly heard the appeal argued at length on this basis.

GUL MUHAMMAD v. TOTA RAM.

As regards the deed itself we may at once clear the ground by saying that we entirely agree with the learned Divisional Judge that it represents one entire transaction, in the sense that it is impossible to divide it into two separable portions, of which one represents a sale and the other an exchange transaction. As a matter of fact it is, we think, exactly what it purports to be, a sale and an exchange inasmuch as part of the consideration is money and part other land given in exchange, but it is not possible to say of any part of the land transferred to Gul Muhammad that that part was sold or that that part was exchanged. In other words, though it was partly a sale and partly an exchange, the transaction must be regarded as indivisible and plaintiff's claim to pre-empt can succeed only if he can establish that the transaction as a whole was a sale within the meaning of section 9 of the Punjab Laws Act, it not being contended that by custom obtaining among the parties the right of pre-emption exists in respect of an exchange of immoveable properties.

Now, as we have remarked, the deed itself purports to be one of sale and of exchange, and it is not denied that the actual consideration consisted not merely of money but also of the conveyance to the vendor of a large area of land valued (and apparently not over-valued) at Rs. 1,100. This latter part of the consideration is not of such trifling character as to be ignored, on the contrary, it forms a considerable and by no means negligible portion of the consideration. In this respect, then, the present case differs radically from that upon which Mr. Santanam especially relied, Gul Muhammad Khan v. Khan Ahmad Shah (1), where the consideration for the transfer consisted of Rs. 4,500 in cash and one ghumao of land, valued at Rs. 40 or Rs. 50, and it was held that the mere addition of this small piece of land could not alter the real nature of the transaction which was that of sale. As Plowden, S. J., observed in his judgment in that case, "without attempting to define sale or exchange, we entertain no doubt that a permanent transfer of land in a village for a sum of money plus something that is not money does not, merely because of such addition, of necessity cease to be a sale within the meaning of the Act. If a transfer of land for Rs. 100 is a sale, we entertain no doubt that the parties to the transaction by agreeing that the price should be Rs. 100 and (for example) a brass loti could not alter the true character of the sale and exclude it from being the subject of a claim for pre-emption, otherwise the whole law of pre-emption in the Punjab as contained in this title of the Laws Act might be reduced to a dead letter. We consider that whatever form the parties to the transaction may choose to give it for their own purposes or for the purpose of defeating a pre-emptor's claim, the question remains open to the Courts to decide whether the particular transaction does or does not amount to a sale within the meaning of that section." We entirely accept this statement of the law and agree that every case must be decided upon its own facts. But is it possible to describe an indivisible transaction as purely a sale when the consideration consists (as it does here) of a cash payment of Rs. 3,600 and the transfer of land valued at Rs. 1,100? This is, it seems to us, a very different case from that dealt with by the learned Judges who decided Gul Muhammad Khan v. Khan Ahmad Shah (1), and the authority most in point is Khairatulla v. Mir Hamza (2), where a Divisional Bench of this Court held that a transfer of land for a consideration of Rs. 280 plus the addition of 11 kanals of land was not a sale but an exchange and as such not subject, apart from established custom, to a claim for pre-emption (see the judgments of Burney, J., dated 28th February 1884 and 12th July

(1) 20 P. R. 1803.

(2) 111 P. R. 1885.

ROSS V. SECRETARY OF STATE.

1884). In our opinion the transaction with which we are concerned was of a mixed character, being partly sale and partly exchange, the two parts being, however, so inextricably connected that it is impossible to separate them. In the circumstances, we cannot regard the transaction as a sale and as a result the plaintiff, who claims a very exceptional privilege based upon a provision of law which must be strictly construed, must fail unless he can satisfy us by extraneous evidence that this transaction was in fact a sale and not what it purports to be. Here the plaintiff has a very difficult case, as he is forced to admit that a large portion of the consideration consisted of land given by the alienee to the alienor. He tries, however, to overcome this difficulty by pointing to the fact that on a previous occasion when the present alienee exchanged certain lands with a third person, he subsequently re-purchased his land. The District Judge refers to this incident and remarks that it took place under similar circumstances, but we are unable to find any justification for the remark. It is not shown that on that occasion the present alienee did more than exchange a plot of his land for a plot of land belonging to another, and that about a year afterwards he re-purchased his own land. But apart from this objection, the broad fact remains that in the present case some 13 or 14 years have elapsed since the transaction in question and that the alienee has made no attempt to re-purchase the land transferred by him to Lal Ditta Mal. On the other hand, we have the emphatic assertion of the latter that he actually wanted land and would not have agreed to the transaction had it been only money that was offered to him by the alienee. To quote his own words, "I exchanged lands because my lands were dry and for 14 years had produced no crops, and Gul Muhammad's land was cultivated. My land was the larger area. We exchanged lands. Had the defendant not given me land, I would not have sold him any, i. e., without lands in exchange." Mr. Santanam argued that this was a mere subterfuge; that Lal Ditta Mal was badly in need of money and not of land, and that the transaction between him and Gul Muhammad took the shape it did simply to evade the claims of pre-emptors. The best answer to this argument is that though some 14 years have since elapsed, Lal Ditta Mal is still in possession of the land transferred to him by Gul Muhammad, and apparently has no intention of parting with that land which, he says, he has found most valuable. Moreover, even if the transaction had as its object the evasion of pre-emptor's claim, the means employed were not unlawful and it was open to the parties to effectuate their common intentions in a manner which would preclude pre-emptors from interfering with their wishes, [see Chowdhri Asa Nand v. Mamun (3), Tikaya Ram v. Dharam Chand (4), per Stogdon, J.]

For the reasons given we hold that the alienation in favour of Gul Muhammad was not a "sale" within the meaning of section 9 of the Punjab Laws Act and that no right of pre-emption accrued in respect of it. We accordingly accept the appeal and direct that plaintiff's suit stand dismissed with costs throughout.

Appeal accepted.

(3) 64 P. R. 1888.

(4) 45 P. R. 1895.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL NO. 32 OF 1913.

April 29, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Bakewell.

A. M. ROSS, DULY AUTHORISED AGENT OF CERTAIN TEA COMPANIES AND LABOUR ASSOCIATIONS IN ASSAM—
PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA
IN COUNCIL—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Assam Labour and Emigration Act (VI of 1901) —Principal and agent—Liability of Government for tortious acts of its servants—Government servant acting under statutory powers, whether agent—Illegal order —Government, whether liable—Public policy—Government servant, when personally liable—Defamation—
Defamatory words published in course of official duties —Reasonable and probable cause—Prohibition of illegal business—Action, right of.

The Government cannot be made liable for illegal orders passed by a Government servant purporting to act under a statutory power conferred upon him. [p. 226, col. 2.]

ROSS v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

The plaintiff sued the Secretary of State for India in Council to recover damages for loss of business on the grounds: (a) that the Collector and District Magistrate of Ganjam on the 22nd February 1910 closed a labour-recruiting depot at Berhampore, that recruiting depot having been intended for the accommodation of coolies recruited on behalf of certain Tea Planting Associations in Assam, of which Associations the plaintiff had been appointed an agent, (b) that the Governor-in-Council by a G. O. dated 12th October 1910, ratified and confirmed the Collector's order closing the depot till that date, (c) that the Government in the said order made certain defamatory remarks concerning the plaintiff, and (d) that on account of the Collector's order the plaintiff was prevented from recruiting coolies and earning commission:

Held, (per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.)—(1) that the Government could not be made liable for illegal orders made by the Collector and District Magistrate inasmuch as he could not be treated as the agent of the Government of Madras, nor could the Government ratify that act so as to make itself liable; [p. 226, col. 2; p. 227, col. 1.]

(2) that on the highest grounds of public policy the Government should not be made liable for the tortious acts of its agents or servants, except probably for acts done in the course of those kinds of transactions, which even an ordinary private mercantile firm can enter into; [p. 227, col. 1.]

Thames Eates Rogers v. Rajendra Dutt, S. M. I. A. 103 at p. 131; 2 W. R. 51 (P. C.); 13 Moo. P. C. 209; 3 L. T. 160; 9 W. R. 149 (Eng.); 1 Suth. P. C. J. 413; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 755; 19 E. R. 469; 15 E. R. 78; 132 R. R. 82, followed.

(3) that the District Magistrate himself even in his personal capacity could not be made liable to the plaintiff for the order made by him, as there was no proof that he acted maliciously or that his object was to injure the plaintiff's legal right; [p. 227, cols. 1, 2; p. 228, col. 2.]

(4) that the Governor-in-Council was not liable for publishing words concerning the plaintiff in the course of the official duties of the Governor-in-Council since it was not alleged that the publication was made maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause. [p. 228, col. 2.]

Held also (per Bakewell, J.) that the prohibition of an illegal business does not give a right of action. [p. 230, col. 1.]

Appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Wallis, dated the 6th February 1913, in the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of this Court, in Civil Suit No. 51 of 1911 reported as 19 Ind. Cas. 353.

Messrs. C. P. Ramaswami Aiyar and A. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. F. H. M. Corbett, Advocate-General, and Mr. Barton, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—Plaintiff is the appellant. So far as this suit, which is brought to recover damages against the Secretary of State for India in Council, is based upon the suspension and dismissal of Rama Sastry (a "local agent" of the Assam Planters) by the Collector and District Magistrate of Ganjam, the plaintiff gave up his contention that such suspension and dismissal were wrongful.

The remaining facts on which the claim is founded are (a) that the Collector and District Magistrate on the 22nd February 1910 closed a labour-recruiting depot at Berhampore, that recruiting depot having been intended for the accommodation of coolies recruited on behalf of certain Tea Planting Associations in Assam, of which Associations the plaintiff had been appointed as agent; (b) that the Governor-in-Council by a Government Order, dated 12th October 1910, ratified and confirmed the Collector's order closing the depot till that date; (c) that the Government on the said 12th October 1910 in the said order made the defamatory remark that "the conduct of Mr. Ross (the plaintiff) was not wholly above suspicion" in the matter of the irregularities committed by the local agent, T. S. Rama Sastri, on account of which irregularities Rama Sastri's license as local agent was cancelled by the Collector and District Magistrate.

The learned Chief Justice who tried this case on the original side, dismissed the suit making certain observations in his judgment, which observations might be stated as follows, using in great part the words of the learned Chief Justice:—

1. The Collector's order of February 1910, closing the depot to recruiting by the garden sardars working under the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, VI of 1901, on behalf of the Assam Planting Associations was ultra vires.

2. The Secretary of State in Council is not legally liable for the tortious acts of the Collector of Ganjam or of the Governor of Madras in Council. If section 416 of the old Civil Procedure Code really laid down that the Secretary of State can be made liable for the tortious acts of a local Government or of an officer of that Government notwithstanding that the East India Company would not have been liable for such acts, that section is ultra vires of the Indian Legislature, as opposed to the provisions of the Indian Councils Act of 1861. If the decision in Vijaya Ragava v. Secretary of State for India (1) holds otherwise, it is no longer an authority as opposed to the Privy Council decision in Secretary of State for India v. Moment (2). See also Shivabhanjan v. Secretary of State for India (3). In Dhacker Dadaji v. East India Company (4) Sir Erskine Perry held that the only ratification which would bind the Company was a ratification by the Court of Proprietors itself. This is not a case in which a petition of right would lie against the Crown. Hence this action against the Secretary of State, who is not alleged to have himself ratified the Collector's acts or the local Government's acts, cannot lie.

A. M. ROSS P. SECRETARY OF STATE.

3. In Tubin v. Reg. (5) it was held that, independently of the doctrine that the King can do no wrong, the Crown could not be made liable for the action of a Government servant purporting to act under statutory power conferred upon him, because the action of a Government servant purporting to exercise a statutory power cannot be held to be an act done as an agent of the Crown. See Shivabhanjan v. Secretary of State for India (3). There can be no ratification by the principal of such an act, as such an act was not done on behalf of the principal.

4. As regards the alleged libel by the Madras Government the Secretary of State (defendant) is not liable for reasons already stated, as the publication of the libel was not (a) made under the orders of the Secretary of State, or (b) made on his behalf and ratified by him. [See Jehangir v. Secretary of State for India (6).]

5. In Grant v. Secretary of State for India in Council (7) it was held that the Secretary of State was not liable for the publication of an alleged libel in the Fort St. George Gazette as, at all events, the libel was not alleged to have been published maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause; see also Chatterton v. Secretary of State for India in Council (8).

In the decision of this appeal, I shall confine myself to the following questions on which we have heard arguments from the appellant's learned Vakil, Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Aiyar:—

(1) Whether the Collector's act in closing the plaint depot gave a cause of action to the plaintiff against the Government.

2. Whether even the Collector and District Magistrate of Ganjam who passed the order closing the depot, is liable to the plaintiff.

3. Whether assuming that the remark in the Government Order referred to in the plaint is libellous and was published, the statement is privileged and the Governor-in-Council cannot be made liable for making and publishing that statement.

There can be no doubt that the Collector and District Magistrate in ordering the closing of the depot intended to use the powers given to him by section 22, clause 3, of the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, VI of 1901. That clause says: "Where the Superintendent" (in this case the Collector and District Magistrate) "considers that any depot is unhealthy or has become unsuitable for the purpose for which it was established, he may, by order in writing, prohibit the use of the depot for the reception and lodging of labourers."

I am clear that the Government cannot be made liable for illegal orders made by the Collector and District Magistrate purporting to use the powers given by this Statute Law, the authority of Tubin v. Reg. (5) followed in Shivabhanjan v. Secretary of State for India (3) being, in my opinion, almost conclusive on this point. The District Magistrate who purported to use the powers given by the Statute Law cannot

(1) 7 M. 466.

(2) 18 Ind. Cas. 22; 40 C. 391 (P. C.); 24 M. L. J. 459; 13 M. L. T. 53; 17 C. W. N. 169; (1913) M. W. N. 5; 16 Bom. L. R. 27; 11 A. L. J. 49; 17 C. L. J. 191; 6 Bur. L. T. 1; 7 L. R. R. 10; 40 I. A. 48.

(3) 18 B. 314; 6 Bom. L. R. 65.

(4) 2 Morley's Digest 307; Perry, O. C. 244; 4 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 587.

(5) (1864) 16 C. B. (N. s.) 310; 33 L. J. C. P. 199 at p. 210; 10 Jur. (N. s.) 129; 10 L. T. 762; 12 W. R. 838; 139 R. R. 104; 143 E. R. 1148.

(6) 6 Bom. L. R. 131.

(7) (1877) 2 C. P. D. 445 at p. 453; 46 L. J. C. P. 681; 37 L. T. 188; 25 W. R. 848.

(8) (1895) 2 Q. B. 189; 64 L. J. Q. B. 676; 14 R. 504; 72 L. T. 858; 59 J. P. 596.

ROSS v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

be treated as the agent of the Government of Madras, nor can the Government ratify that act so as to make itself liable for that act, because that act was not done on its behalf and the Government cannot be treated as a principal and the District Magistrate as its agent when the latter purported to exercise statutory powers. "When the duty to be performed is imposed by law" on the agent..... "the employer is not liable for the wrong done by the agent in such employment." [See Tubin v. Reg. (5) and Nireaha Tamaki v. Baker (9).] Before leaving this part of the case I might finally add that on the highest grounds of public policy, the Government should not be made liable for the tortious acts of its agents or servants, except probably for acts done in the course of those kinds of transactions, which even an ordinary private mercantile firm can enter into. This, namely, the civil irresponsibility of Government "for tortious acts" of its agents has been assumed as undoubted law in Thomas Eales Rogers v. Rajendro Dutt (10) and though it may be argued that the observation was obiter, the obiter of the Privy Council expressed through the mouth of that most eminent jurist, His Lordship the Right Hon'ble Dr. Lushington, ought, I think, to be followed by this Court.

I am further of opinion that the District Magistrate himself even in his personal capacity cannot be made liable to the plaintiff for the order made by him to close the depot, though it was an illegal order. I shall assume that the depot was a place which was provided not only by the local agent (who was bound to provide such a depot under clause 8 of rule 11 made by the Local Government in exercise of the power conferred on the Governor-in-Council by section 91, clause (b), of the Assam Labour and Emigration Act) but that that same depot was also the depot provided by the planters' garden sardars under section 62, clause (1), of Act VI of 1901. The illegal order of the District Magistrate affected directly only the local agent and then it affected the garden sardars; the local agent's license having been probably cancelled, he had no cause of action against the District Magistrate. Assuming that the garden sardars and even the plaintiff's employers whose labour supply was cut off are entitled to sue the Collector and District Magistrate for damages, they have not brought any suit. It is the plaintiff who has lost his expected commission as agent that has brought this suit. No malice or fraud or deceit is alleged as against the Collector and District Magistrate. Has an agent a right to bring a suit for recovery of damages incurred by him against a person who illegally prevented his principal's garden sardars from taking their coolies to the Emigration depot if the tortfeasor is not proved guilty (a) of personal malice directed against the agent or of fraud or deceit, (b) or, if it is not proved that his object was to injure the plaintiff's legal right (to receive commission from his employers for coolies sent through the depot)? The Collector and District Magistrate was under no obligation created by contractual, Statute or any other law to the plaintiff in the plaintiff's individual capacity. The Collector's action in closing the depot was passed against the local agent directly and indirectly against the garden sardars and still more indirectly against the planters. So far as that action affected the plaintiff's pocket, it did so in the third or fourth degree of remoteness, so to say. Passages from some of the judgments, in well known cases of Lumley v. Gye (11), South Wales Miners' Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co. (12) and Quinn v. Leathem (13) might be quoted (and they are usually quoted in those cases where a person, who is not directly affected by an alleged tortious act, seeks to recover damages) which passages, taken apart from the context, can ingeniously be interpreted to support claims by a person most remotely connected with the wrongful act for recovery of damages of as remote a kind.

(9) (1901) A. C. 561 at p. 575; 70 L. J. P. C. 66; 84 L. T. 633; 17 T. L. R. 498.

(10) 8 M. I. A. 103 at p. 131; 2 W. R. 51 (P. C.); 13 Moo. P. C. 209; 3 L. T. 160; 9 W. R. 149 (Eng.); 1 Suth. P. C. J. 413; 1 Sar. P. O. J. 755; 19 E. R. 469; 15 E. R. 78; 132 R. R. 82.

(11) 1853) 2 El. & Bl. 216; 22 L. J. Q. B. 463; 17 Jur. 827; 1 W. R. 432; 95 R. R. 501; 118 E. R. 749.

(12) (1905) A. C. 239; 74 L. J. K. B. 525; 92 L. T. 710; 53 W. R. 593; 21 T. L. R. 441.

(13) (190) A. C. 495 at p. 50; 70 L. J. P. C. 76; 86 L. T. 289; 50 W. R. 139; 65 J. P. 708; 17 T. L. R. 749.

A. M. ROSS V. SECRETARY OF STATE.

[See the observations of Lord Halsbury in Quinn v. Leathem (13) itself as to the right mode of interpreting such passages.] As Mr. Justice Joyce put it in National Phonograph Co., Ltd. v. Edison Bell Consolidated Phonograph Co., Ltd. (14): "What was said was never intended to be, and ought not to be, treated and construed as an Article of a Code or a section of an Act of Parliament." In Allen v. Flood (15) six very learned Law Lords formed the majority and three other learned Lords including Lord Halsbury were in the minority. In Quinn v. Leathem (13), the House of Lords, led by Lord Halsbury without overruling Allen v. Flood (15) explained its real effect. Even Lord Halsbury, who seems to have gone furthest in his judgment in Allen v. Flood (15) in favour of the claims of a plaintiff who is injured by the defendant's bringing about a breach of relations between plaintiff and a third party, said that the defendant should be held liable if he "maliciously and wrongfully with intent to injure the plaintiff's intimidated and coerced" the third party "not to enter into contracts with the plaintiffs." I need not say that the question of remoteness of damages is much more strictly considered against a plaintiff who makes a claim based on other torts committed by a defendant than the tort of inducing a breach of contractual relations of a third party with the plaintiff. Even as regards cases of the procuring of a breach of contract, see Rigby, L. J., in Exchange Telegraph Company v. Gregory & Co. (16) and Justice Joyce's remarks at page 350 in National Phonograph Company Ltd. v. Edison Bell Consolidated Phonograph Company, Ltd. (14).

In the present case, there is not a word in the plaint to indicate that the Collector and District Magistrate in closing the depot maliciously intended by his order to hit at the plaintiff's right to the benefit of the commission obtainable by the plaintiff from the plaintiff's employers, or that the Collector and District Magistrate was actuated by any indirect motive directed against the plaintiff. I am clear that even if the garden sardars and the planters have claims for damages against the Collector (on which I express no opinion), the plaintiff who is an agent of the planters has no legal claim to recover damages for any injury caused to himself pecuniarily and not to his employers.

On the question of the alleged liability of the Governor-in-Council for defaming the plaintiff, I have nothing to add to the reasons given by the learned Chief Justice (in which I concur) for holding that the Governor-in-Council is not liable for publishing words concerning the plaintiff in the course of the official duties of the Governor-in-Council, when it is not alleged that the publication was made maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause.

In the result, I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Two Counsels certified.

BAKEWELL, J.—By virtue of section 3 of the Assam Labour and Emigration Act, 1901, and the notification of the Local Government made thereunder, all persons are prohibited from recruiting, engaging, inducing or assisting any native of India to emigrate from certain parts of the District of Ganjam to any labour District of Assam, otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of Chapters III and IV of the Act; and under section 163 of the Act any person who knowingly does or attempts to do any of the acts so prohibited, is punishable with imprisonment or fine or with both. Under section 4 of the Act, the Local Government has appointed certain of its officers, by virtue of their official position, to exercise the powers and perform the duties therein mentioned. The general scheme of the Act is that the acts mentioned shall only be done by particular persons duly licensed by the specified authority, under the supervision and control of specified officers and in a particular manner; and the different classes of licensees and their respective powers and duties are carefully enumerated and described.

The Act provides that every intending emigrant shall be brought by the recruiting agent before a registering officer, but the Local Government has enabled certain licensees termed "local agents" to perform the duties

(14) (1908) 1 Ch. 335 at p. 349; 77 L. J. Ch. 218; 95 L. T. 291; 24 T. L. R. 201.

(15) (1898) A. C. 1; 67 L. J. Q. B. 119; 77 L. T. 717; 46 W. R. 258; 62 J. P. 595; 14 T. R. 125.

(16) (1896) 1 Q. B. 147 at p. 157; 65 L. J. Q. B. 262; 74 L. T. 83; 60 J. P. 52.

ROSS v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

of this officer. The local agents represent the employees of the emigrants in all matters connected with supervision of garden sardars under Chapter IV of the Act (section 64), the garden sardar being a person employed on an estate and deputed by his employer to engage labourers [section 2 (1) (h)]. Every garden sardar is bound under section 62 to provide sufficient and proper accommodation in a suitable place for the labourers or persons intending to become labourers collected by him and under section 68 to produce them before the registering officer.

The plaintiff owns a building at Berhampore, in the District of Ganjam, which has been used by numerous garden sardars working in the district as a joint depot for the accommodation of the labourers collected by them. In his evidence, the plaintiff said, 'the depot belongs to me. I purchased it. I own the building. I did not rent it to my employers. I bought it out of the commission paid to me.....Now it has been passed as a depot under Chapter IV of the Act since 1906. It is a place of accommodation which sardars are bound to maintain.'

The plaintiff holds Powers-of Attorney from various Tea Companies and Superintendents of Companies owning tea gardens in Assam, who are 'employers' within the Act; an 'employer' being the chief person for the time being in charge of any estate upon which labourers are employed [section 2 (1) (f)]. In his evidence, the plaintiff said that the Superintendents were resident in Assam and the chief authorities on the spot: 'they hold Powers-of-Attorney from the Companies. In 1906, I held a contractor's license. I gave it up that year. Since then I have taken no license. I first began to work with local agents about October or November 1906, if I remember a right, and continued up to the present time. I was working with local agents.' In paragraph 3 of his plaint, he alleges that various labour employers in Assam have nominated him 'as their emigration agent for the Madras Presidency for the purpose of securing coolies for labour on the several tea estates.' The plaintiff holds general Powers-of-Attorney from the several companies aforesaid and by agreement with them is entitled to be paid Rs. 7 for every coolie recruited by him; and in paragraphs 8 and 11 he says: 'The plaintiff has several local agents working under him and several garden sardars engaged in recruiting..... Both the sardars and the local agents mentioned above and working on behalf of the various tea Companies and employers of labour, are placed under the direction and superintendence of the plaintiff and work under him subject to his orders. And the depot mentioned above is also maintained under his supervision and control.'

In his evidence the plaintiff speaks repeatedly of 'my local agents', 'my depot' and 'my business.'

In February 1910 the District Magistrate and Superintendent of Emigrants, suspecting that the local agent at Berhampore was collecting coolies from parts of the District of Ganjam in which recruiting was absolutely prohibited under the Act, suspended his license and issued orders to the local officials to close the plaintiff's depot, which was under the superintendence of this agent. The plaintiff claims that these acts of the Magistrate were unauthorised and ultra vires, that they have resulted in stopping the work of emigration, have 'interfered seriously with plaintiff's business' and have prevented him from earning his commission of Rs. 7 per head of adult coolie recruited and forwarded to Assam under his supervision and of the local agent. The plaintiff in his cross-examination, and his Vakil in his argument before us, contended that he was in the position of an employer, and not one of the agents mentioned in the Act, but a kind of diplomatic agent between the employers and the local authorities. It is, however, perfectly clear from the allegation of the plaint and the plaintiff's evidence that he has been carrying on the business of a wholesale emigration agent and supplying tea planters in Assam with labourers at a fixed rate per head, and that the injury which he complains of, is the damage caused to his own business.

I think that the act contemplates only two classes of persons to whom it shall be lawful to carry on this business, namely, the employer and the employer's licensed agent, and that the plaintiff is not included within either of these classes and was, therefore, prohibited from carrying on this business and was criminally liable for so doing. The only argument of the learned Vakil for the plaintiff when this aspect of the case was put to him was that this point was not taken before the learned trial Judge, and that argument might avail him in most cases; but this Court cannot possibly ignore the facts that the plaintiff has been carrying on an illegal business and that his complaint is that the defendant and his agents have interrupted its course and prevented him from reaping its profits. I am of opinion that this suit might have been dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff has no right of action in respect of an illegal business.

FAZL-UD-DIN v. KHARAK SINGH.

If the plaintiff's contentions were correct, and he should be considered to be in the position of an employer, I am still of opinion that he has no remedy. His Vakil has abandoned the first part of the case, the suspension and subsequent dismissal of the local agent, and has relied upon the closing of the plaintiff's depot, and the latter act did not result in any direct damage to the plaintiff or his employers. The plaintiff has not shown that the garden sardars could not accommodate their labourers in other suitable places, and could not register their coolies with the Government registering officers and that the business of his employers could not be carried on without using this building, and the evidence goes to show that the stoppage in the flow of emigrants resulted from the plaintiff's attempt to continue the system of registration by a 'local agent' and the resistance thereto of the District Magistrate. The latter's power of appointing local agents is discretionary, [section 64 (1)], so that the plaintiff could not base his claim upon a refusal to appoint. It has not been shown that the District Magistrate was aware of the terms of the contract between the plaintiff and his principals, or of the manner in which a stoppage of the flow of emigrants would injure the plaintiff. The only evidence on this point appears in Mr. MacMichael's cross-examination, 'Q. You know that by this order (that is, to close the depot) you would not only be causing loss to these tea associations but also to Mr. Ross personally? A. I knew in a general way that Mr. Ross was commonly interested. Q. And, therefore, that he would be financially a loser by this order? A. Probably.'

The District Magistrate cannot be presumed to have known that the plaintiff was remunerated in a manner which suggests an active recruitment of labour by him, and an infringement of the provisions of the Act. The doer of an unlawful act is liable for its ordinary consequences, but not for consequences which he did not and could not reasonably be expected to foresee [Sharp v. Powell 17)], and I am of opinion that the District Magistrate could not be expected to foresee that his act in closing the depot would result in so injuring the business of the plaintiff's principals that further damage would result to the plaintiff himself. The observations of Lord Penzance in Simpson v. Thomson (18) relate to a negligent act, but indicate the manner in which the Court will limit the liability of a tortfeasor.

I am of opinion that the plaintiff has failed to show that the damage complained of was the consequence of the Magistrate's act, and that in any case it is too remote to give a cause of action.

I agree with the judgment of the learned Chief Justice with respect to the claim for damages for defamation and with the order proposed by my learned brother.

Appeal dismissed.

(17) (1872) 7 C. P. 253; 41 L. J. C. P. 95; 26 L. T. 436; 20 W. R. 584.

(18) (1877) 3 A. C. 279; 38 L. T. 1; 3 Asp. M. C. 567.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 258 OF 1913.

May 11, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chevis and Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

FAZL-UD-DIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus

KHARAK SINGH—PLAINTIFF,

AND OTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Regulation (XVII of 1806), s. 7—Legal representative, meaning of—'Amount due', meaning of—Redemption by owner of share in equity of redemption or by person having interest in portion of mortgaged property, if allowed.

The expression 'legal representative' ordinarily designates a person who represents the estate of a deceased but in Regulation XVII of 1806, it is used to denote a person who is the mortgagor's representative in law qua the mortgaged property. In other words, it means any person who is interested in protecting the estate and it is immaterial whether the interest is created by the operation of law or by a contract between the parties. [p. 232, col. 1.]

FAZL-UD-DIN V. KHARAK SINGH.

Dirgaj Singh v. Debi Singh, 1 A. 449, Kishen Bullabh Mehta v. Belasoo Commur, 3 W. R. 230, referred.

The words 'amount due' in the proviso to section 7 of the Regulation refer to the earlier portion of the section and denote the sum lent under a mortgage-deed plus the interest, if any, but do not include the costs of improvements or the rent which under the deed may be chargeable on the estate. [p. 233, cols. 1 & 2.]

Budree v. Oodho, 1853 N. W. P. S. D. 161, referred to.

When a mortgage is with possession, the amount required to be deposited is the sum lent under the mortgage. [p. 233, col. 2.]

Any person who is entitled to redeem may make the deposit though he is owner of only a share in the equity of redemption. [p. 233, col. 2.]

Norender Narain Singh v. Dwarika Lal Mundur, 5 I. A. 18 at p. 27; 1 C. L. R. 369; 3 C. 397; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 440; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 771; 2 Ind. Jur. 117, referred to.

Ram Bakhsh Singh v. Ram Lall Dass, 21 W. R. 428, dissented from.

A person having an interest in a portion of the mortgaged property is entitled to redeem the whole, unless his claim is opposed by a part owner of the equity of redemption (who may be the mortgagee himself), and in that case he must redeem only the part to which he is entitled. [p. 234, col. 1.]

Rathna Mudali v. Perumal Reddy, 17 Ind. Cas. 837; 12 M. L. T. 484; (1912) M. W. N. 1168; 23 M. L. J. 376; 38 M. 310; Hall v. Heward, (1886) 32 Ch. D. 430; 55 L. J. Ch. 604; 54; L. T. 810; 34 W. R. 571, and Bikram Khan v. Sidal Khan, 2 P. R. 1904; 18 P. L. R. 1904, referred to.

Nawab Azimut Ali Khan v. Jowahir Singh, 13 M. L. A. 444; 14 W. R. 17 (P. C.); 2 Suth. P. C. J. 343; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 573; 20 E. R. 602 Girish Chunder Dey v. Jaramoni De, 5 C. W. N. 83, distinguished.

Second appeal from the decree of the Divisional Judge, Lahore, dated the 14th November 1912.

The Hon'ble Mr. Muhammad Shafi, K. B., and Lala Nihal Chand, for the Appellant.

Mr. Broadway, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit with respect to a plot of land which was the property of two brothers, Ghulam Rasul and Ilahi Bakhsh, who are defendants in the case. On the 16th of November 1892 they executed a deed in favour of the defendant-appellant by which they mortgaged the estate with possession for Rs. 3,400. The other terms of the mortgage which are relevant to the points in issue in this appeal are that (1) the mortgagors shall redeem the property on the expiry of eight years, the term of the mortgage, and (2) they shall at the time of the redemption, pay in addition to the mortgage-money, the cost of any improvements effected by the mortgagee, which cost shall constitute a charge on the mortgaged property. Ilahi Bakhsh, one of the mortgagors, executed on the same day a rent-deed in favour of the mortgagee, by which he took the land on lease on a yearly rent of Rs. 206 plus the land revenue assessed thereon, and further stipulated that the unpaid portion of the rent, if any, and the land revenue, if paid by the mortgagee, would be chargeable on the land. It appears that the lessee remained in possession for two years and as he made default in the payment of the rent, a decree for Rs. 412 (the amount of the rent for two years) and costs was passed on the 7th November 1895 against his person and the mortgaged property. In 1908 the mortgagee after the expiry of the period of the mortgage issued notices of foreclosure to the mortgagors, claiming Rs. 11,000 as the amount due on the strength of the mortgage-deed and before the expiry of the year of grace, the plaintiff, Kharak Singh, who had purchased on the 16th of January 1909 Ghulam Rasul's half share in the land for Rs. 9,000, deposited Rs. 3,400 in the Court of the District Judge for payment to the mortgagee and claimed redemption of the entire estate. The mortgagee refused to accept this sum and Kharak Singh consequently brought the present action for redemption of the mortgaged property.

These are briefly the facts of the case and we may state at once that the learned Divisional Judge has, after a consideration of the material upon the record, found that the mortgagee's allegations as to an oral sale and an oral agreement to sell have not been established and that the amount claimable by him on account of repairs and improvements is Rs. 868-5-0. These are obviously findings of facts, and the law precludes us from going behind them in a second appeal. Further, the sale in favour of the plaintiff being admitted by Ghulam Rasul, it is not open to the mortgagee to impugn its validity on the ground of the non-payment of part of the consideration. Assuming that the whole consideration did not pass, it is clear that Ghulam Rasul had every right to make a gift of his property to any person he pleased and that the mortgagee has no right to challenge the title of the donee.

FAZL-UD-DIN v. SHARAK SINGH.

The questions of law, which require determination, relate to the sufficiency of the deposit made by the plaintiff to prevent foreclosure and to the right of the purchaser of the equity of redemption in a part of the estate to redeem the whole. On both these points the learned Divisional Judge has found against the mortgagee and for the reasons to be stated infra we think his decision is correct and must, therefore, be maintained.

Before discussing the points referred to above, it is necessary to deal with a contention which is raised for the first time in this Court. It is urged that Regulation XVII of 1806 allows only the mortgagor or his legal representative to make the payment, tender or deposit, and as the purchaser of the equity of redemption is not the legal representative of the mortgagor, the plaintiff had no right to make the deposit and that the deposit of Rs. 3,400 made by an unauthorised person did not bar foreclosure. We have given our consideration to this argument and have no hesitation in holding that it is erroneous and opposed to all canons of the interpretation of the Statutes. The expression "legal representative" ordinarily no doubt designates a person who represents the estate of a deceased, but the context points to the irresistible conclusion that in the Regulation it is used to denote a person who is the mortgagor's representative-in-law qua the mortgaged property. In other words, it means any person who is interested in protecting the estate, and it is immaterial whether the interest is created by the operation of law or by a contract between the parties. The narrow construction sought to be placed upon the term ignores altogether the object and the scope of the Regulation and leads to all sorts of absurd results which could not possibly be within the contemplation of the Legislature. It comes to this that as soon as there is a transfer of the equity of redemption, there is nobody who is entitled to redeem the mortgage, because a transferor is apparently not the "mortgagor and owner" within the purview of section 7 of the Regulation and the transferee has no locus standi for, according to the appellant, he is not the "legal representative" of the "mortgagor and owner." The same remark applies to the foreclosure proceedings under section 8, and it is clear that there would be no person upon whom the service of the notice of foreclosure could lawfully be made. No Court of Justice can give effect to a construction which brings about an impasse of this kind.

Further, we observe that the matter is by no means res integra and that there is a long series of published judgments decided under the Regulation which recognise the transferee of the mortgagor as his legal representative, vide, inter alia, Mohun Lall Sookool v. Goluck Chunder Dutt (1), Dirgaj Singh v. Debi Singh (2) and Mulraj v. Sobha Ram (3). The principle of law is firmly established that the term "mortgagor's legal representative" is intended to apply to all or any persons who possess title to the equity of redemption, whether absolute or defeasible under the mortgage [see Dirgaj Singh v. Debi Singh (2) and Kishen Bullubh Mehta v. Belasoo Commur (4)]. Upon an examination of the terms of the Regulation and the rulings, we are quite clear that the contention of the appellant is altogether untenable and must be overruled.

Coming now to one of the main points of the appeal, namely, the sufficiency or otherwise of the deposit made by the plaintiff, we notice that under section 7 of the Regulation the amount required to be paid or tendered is the "sum lent" under the deed, plus interest due thereon if the mortgage is without possession. It is, however, contended on behalf of the appellant that the proviso to the section which deals with deposits in Court, contains the words "amount due" and that these words are wide enough to include, not only the principal and interest, if any, but also the costs of improvements which under the deed are chargeable on the estate. No authority is cited in support of this novel contention and it is impossible to sustain it in the face of the plain language of the Regulation and the decisions which deal directly with this matter. The learned Counsel for the appellant concedes (and the terms of the section leave him no alternative) that for payment or tender the law does not require anything more than the balance of the principal mortgage money

(1) 10 M. I. A. 1; 1 W. R. 19 (P. O.); 1 Suth. P. O. J. 523; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 49; 19 E. R. 873.

(2) 1 A. 490.

(3) 31 P. R. 1883.

(4) 3 W. R. 230.

FAZL-UD-DIN V. KHARAK SINGH.

and the interest, if any; and we fail to understand why a distinction should be drawn between a deposit in Court and a payment or tender out of Court. There is absolutely no valid reason why the law should insist upon the deposit of a larger amount than that required to be paid or tendered by the mortgagor to the mortgagee. We think there is no doubt that the words "amount due" refer to the earlier portion of the section and denote not the amount due on the footing of the mortgage, but the sum ascertained in accordance with the rule laid down in the section itself.

This conclusion receives support from the language of Regulation I of 1798 which, it is to be remembered, is the principal enactment on the subject of the redemption of mortgages by way of conditional sale. The subsequent Regulation, namely, Regulation XVII of 1806, is practically an extension of the earlier Regulation and gives the mortgagor a year of grace and allows him to redeem therein the mortgaged property in the same manner as the Regulation of 1798. Now, we find that section 2 of the earlier Regulation places the matter in respect of the amount of the deposit beyond all possible dispute by enacting as follows:—"That there may be no doubt to what amount the deposit in question is to be made, it is required to be as follows:—When the lender has not obtained possession of the lands, the deposit is to be the principal sum lent, with the stipulated interest thereon, not exceeding the legal rate of 12 per cent. per annum; or, if interest be payable and no rate has been stipulated, with interest at the established rate of 12 per cent.; but, if the lender has held possession of the land, the principal sum borrowed only need be deposited, leaving the interest to be settled on an adjustment of the lender's receipts and disbursements during the period he has been in possession. In either case, a deposit made as above required, shall be considered to preserve to the borrower his full right of redemption; and if the land be in the possession of the lender, shall entitle him to demand the immediate recovery thereof, subject to the adjustment of account specified in the following section."

The object of the Regulation is to determine definitely and precisely the amount which has to be deposited, and it is clear that the mortgagor is not bound to deposit the amount of any improvements, though he has agreed to pay for them. Nor is it necessary for him to deposit any money due as rents, though that money was chargeable on the estate under the deed. This proposition of law is absolutely clear, and if any authority is needed, we would refer to the decision in Budree v. Oodho (5), and to the discussion on the subject in Ghosh on Mortgages, 3rd edition, page 971. In this case, the mortgage being with possession, the amount required to be deposited was the sum lent under the mortgage, and it is beyond dispute that that amount was deposited within time.

There is no doubt that any person who is entitled to redeem may make the deposit, though he is owner of only a share in the equity of redemption. As observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Norender Narain Singh v. Dawarka Lal Mundur (6), "each and every one of the mortgagors was interested in the payment of that money and the redemption of the estate, and each and every one of them had a right by payment of the money to redeem the estate, seeking his contribution from the others." The judgment in Ram Bakhsh Singh v. Ram Lal Das (7), cited for the appellant is not good law and has not been followed in subsequent cases. Further, it is distinguishable on the ground that in the case before us the deposit was made on behalf of the mortgagors. No objection can, therefore, be taken to the validity of the deposit made by the plaintiff.

Lastly, it is urged upon us that the plaintiff as the purchaser of one-half of the mortgaged property is not entitled to redeem the whole. It will be observed in this connection that the owner of the remainder, who is a defendant in the case, does not oppose the plaintiff's claim and the only person, who resists it, is the mortgagee. Now, the principle of law applicable to a case of this kind has been enunciated in a series of judgments and it

(5) (1853) N. W. P. S. D. 161.

(6) 5 I. A. 18 at p. 27 (P. C.); 1 C. L. R. 369; 3 C. 397; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 480; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 771; 2 Ind. Jur. 117.

(7) 21 W. R. 428.

ARUNACHELLAM CHETTIAR v. LAKSHMANA AIYAR.

is to the effect that a person having an interest in a portion of the mortgaged property is entitled to redeem the whole, unless his claim is opposed by a part owner of the equity of redemption (who may be the mortgagee himself), and in that case he must redeem only the part to which he is entitled. This is the rule laid down even in the judgment reported as Rathna Mudali v. Perumal Reddy (8) which has been so strongly relied upon by the appellant's Counsel. Nawab Azimut Ali Khan v. Jowahir Singh (9) and other cases cited on behalf of the appellant are inapplicable, for the very simple reason that the claim for redemption of the entire property was opposed in those cases by a person who was owner of a portion of the equity of redemption. The only case in which the suit of the plaintiff owning a part of the mortgaged property was successfully resisted by the mortgagee is that reported as Girish Chunder Dey v. Jaramoni De (10). But the facts of that case are not clear and it does not appear whether the owners of the remaining portion were or were not opposed to the plaintiff's claim. If that judgment intended to lay down the rule that the claim of a part owner of the equity of redemption can be defeated simply at the instance of the mortgagee, who is not at the same time owner of any portion of the mortgaged property, we must, with all respect, state that it is not good law. The right of a part owner to redeem the whole is fully recognised by English Courts and is borne out by the following observations of Lord Justice Cotton in Hall v. Heward (11):—

"The mortgage comprises two properties—one of which, subject to the mortgage, belongs to the executrix. She, therefore, is entitled to redeem, but to redeem what? The appellant says 'to redeem the one estate which belongs to her.' But there is no precedent for that. The owner of the equity of redemption in one of the two estates comprised in the same mortgage cannot claim to redeem that estate alone. The mortgagee might refuse to allow him to do so. So, on the other hand, the mortgagee cannot compel him to redeem that estate alone—he is entitled to redeem the whole, reserving the equities between him and the other part-owner—he can redeem the whole, leaving the rights of the other parties interested in the equity of redemption to be decided afterwards. The case of Pearce v. Morris (12) is an instance of this—the owner of one-fourth of the equity of the redemption was allowed to redeem the whole, leaving open the rights of the owners of the other three-fourths as between them and the party redeeming."

The exposition of law in Bahram Khan v. Saidal Khan (13) is also to the same effect. This and other authorities leave no doubt in our minds that the plaintiff, the owner of a part of the equity of redemption, is entitled to redeem the entire mortgaged property and that the mortgagee has no locus standi to oppose his claim.

The result is that our decision on the points argued in this second appeal coincides with that of the lower Appellate Court. We, therefore, affirm the judgment and the decree of the learned Divisional Judge and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(12) 5 Ch. 227; 39 L. J. Ch. 342; 22 L. T. 190; 19 W. R. 196.

(13) 2 P. R. 1904; 48 P. L. R. 1904.

— — —

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 325 OF 1914.

September 17, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter and Mr. Justice Phillips.

A. L. A. R. ARUNACHELLAM
CHETTIAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—
APPELLANTS

versus

LAKSHMANA AIYAR AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 14—Withdrawal of suit by plaintiff—Subsequent suit—Exclusion of time, whether allowed—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIII, rr. 1, 2.

Section 14 of the Limitation Act has no application to a case where the plaintiff's suit has not been

(8) 17 Ind. Cas. 837; 23 M. L. J. 576; 12 M. L. T. 484; (1912) M. W. N. 1168; 38 M. 310.

(9) 13 M. I. A. 404; 14 W. R. 17 (P. C.); 2 Suth P. C. J. 346; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 573; 20 E. R. 602.

(10) 5 C. W. N. 83.

(11) (1886) 32 Ch. D. 430; 55 L. J. Ch. 604; 54 L. T. 810; 34 W. R. 571.

ARUNACHELLAM CHETTIAR V. LAKSHMANA AIYAR.

dismissed by the Court, but has been voluntarily withdrawn by him on discovery of a technical defect which would involve failure. [p. 236, col. 1.]

Varajalal v. Someshwar, 29 B. 219, 7 Bom. L. R. 90 Upendra Nath Nag Chowdhury v. Surya Kanta Roy Chowdhury, 20 Ind. Cas. 205, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Tinnevely in Appeal Suit No. 273 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the Additional District Munsif of Tinnevely, in Original Suit No. 303 of 1910.

FACTS of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. K. Raja Aiyar, for the Appellants.—Under the Code of Civil Procedure, the plaintiff obtained permission to institute a fresh suit, but that suit was instituted after the period of limitation. Under section 14 of the Limitation Act he is entitled to a deduction of the time the previous suit was pending in his favour, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure are subject to the provisions of the Limitation Act.

Mr. E. S. Chidambaram Pillai, for the Respondents.—The plaintiff would have been entitled to the deduction of the time only if his suit had been dismissed by the Court and not when he withdrew the suit or abandoned it. The decisions in Varajalal v. Someshwar (1), Upendra Nath Nag Chowdhury v. Surya Kanta Roy Chowdhury (2) are clear on this point.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal raises a question of some interest and the circumstances in which it is raised are these:—The appellant brings this suit against two persons, who were at one time partners, in respect of moneys advanced by him to them. The only question for decision is whether this action is barred by limitation as regards the various items in the account, which became due more than three years before the date of this suit. The Courts below have held that this suit was barred in respect of these items. An ingenious argument has been adduced before us to show that that decision was wrong and the plaintiff is entitled to take the benefit of section 14 of the Limitation Act. The circumstances in which he claims that benefit are these. He instituted a previous suit against the same parties as those in this proceeding, and as originally framed, that suit included his claim now said to be barred and apparently included nothing that would have made that suit, as originally launched, bad for misjoinder or any other cause, but during the pendency of the proceeding, he was allowed to amend the plaint and to put in another cause of action as to which it is not seriously disputed that it rendered the suit as it then stood bad for misjoinder of causes of action. Thereupon he applied to the Court in which the suit was pending for leave to amend it, or withdraw it with permission to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of that action, at any rate in so far as it coincided with the claim he makes here to-day. That can be done under the provisions of rule 1 of Order XXIII. Rule 1 of Order XXIII says:—

"(1) At any time after the institution of a suit, the plaintiff may, as against all or any of the defendants, withdraw his suit or abandon part of his claim.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied (a) that a suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or (b) that there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of a suit or part of a claim, it may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit or abandon such part of a claim, with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit or such part of a claim."

That is what the plaintiff did in this case. Whether he abandoned the whole of his claim or such part of it as we are concerned with in this appeal, he obtained the right to institute a fresh suit. Rule 2 of Order XXIII is in these terms: "In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding rule, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been instituted." On the face of it, that appears to be conclusive and fatal to the appellant's case; but he contends that the rule with its reference to the law of limitation impliedly subjects the whole matter to the provisions of the law of

(1) 29 B. 219; 7 Bom. L. R. 90.

(2) 20 Ind. Cas. 205.

MADDALA BAGAVANNARAYANA v. VADAPALLI PERUMALLACHARYULU.

limitation then in force and that section 14 of the Limitation Act expressly preserves his rights. Section 14 of the Limitation Act is as follows:—"In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of Appeal, against the defendant, shall be excluded, where the proceeding is founded upon the same cause of action and is prosecuted in good faith in a Court which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it." It may be conceded for the purposes of this case, though it is not altogether clear, that there is no express finding against the plaintiff that he did not prosecute his suit in the other Court with due diligence. The question then arises whether section 14 preserves his rights in a case where his suit has not been dismissed by the Tribunal, but has been voluntarily abandoned by himself on discovery of a technical defect which would involve a failure. The matter is not free from difficulty and it has been decided in Varajlal v. Someshwar (1) that the section in question of the Limitation Act has no application to a case of withdrawal of the suit and can only apply to cases where the failure of the suit was due to the action of the Court. The same result has been arrived at by the Calcutta High Court in Upendra Nath Nag Chowdhury v. Surya Kanta Roy Chowdhury (2). These are quite clear authorities for the position advanced by the respondent and we think they should be followed, particularly when it is seen that, by so construing the section of the Limitation Act, [there is the avoiding of] any such result as the clashing of the two sections, or the necessity for reconciling any apparent inconsistencies between them. If we treat the section of the Limitation Act as unconcerned with suits which are voluntarily abandoned or withdrawn, then there is no trouble to reconcile the sections, because they do not need reconciling as they each deal with a separate subject-matter. The Limitation Act deals with suits which are terminated by the action of the Court, while the Civil Procedure Code deals, as the heading of the order shows, with cases where suits are withdrawn or abandoned by a voluntary act of the plaintiff.

We think that the appeal fails and should be dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 144 TO 146 OF 1912

March 23, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

MADDALA BAGAVANNARAYANA AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

VADAPALLI PERUMALLACHARYULU

AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—

RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 92—Sanction given to more than two persons—Suit by only two, whether competent.

Where more than two persons interested in a trust have obtained the necessary sanction under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, any two of them cannot sue without the others. [p. 237, col. 1.]

Appeals against the decrees of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kistna at Ellore, in Original Suits Nos. 84, 86 and 87 of 1910.

FACTS.—Four persons obtained the sanction under section 92, Civil Procedure Code, but only two of them brought the suit, alleging that the other two had been won over by the defendants and refused to join in the suit. The Court allowed the defendants' contention that sanction having been given to four persons, only two of them could not sue without obtaining fresh sanction. The plaintiffs appealed.

Mr. B. Somayya (with him Mr. P. Narayana-murti), for the Appellants.

Mr. V. Ramesam (with him Mr. B. N. Sarma), for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that "two or more persons having an interest in the trust and having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate-General" may institute a suit under that section. The question is whether when more than two persons interested in the trust have obtained the necessary consent, any two of them may sue without the others. We think the language used shows that the persons authorised to sue are all the persons to whom the consent has been given, and not any two of them. On the opposite contention, there might be competition between the various persons authorised as to who should sue. Besides, the provision for giving consent to two or more persons shows that the Legislature considered that in some cases it might not be desirable for only two to sue.

MAHANT DEVI v. MADHO.

In this connection it is worth mentioning that Romilly's Act, upon which this section was founded, enabled any two persons interested to apply, and that here the Legislature has empowered any two or more persons with the consent of the Advocate-General. The appeals are dismissed with costs. The memorandum of objections in Appeal No. 146 of 1912 is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 662
OF 1914.

May 11, 1915.

Present:—Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt., Chief Judge.

Musammât MAHANT DEVI—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

MADHO AND OTHERS—DEPENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

*Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss. 7, 8—
Minor girl living with mother—No property—Application to be appointed guardian—Applicant not suitable —Court's duty.*

When the sole question before the Court is whether the applicant is a suitable person to be appointed guardian of the minor or not, it is not necessary for the Court to do anything more than accept or reject his application.

Where a minor girl is living with her mother, the Court should leave things as they are, especially when she has no property, and should not appoint a statutory guardian, the mother remaining the natural guardian.

Miscellaneous first appeal from the order of the District Judge, Gurdaspur, dated the 12th February 1914.

Pandit Rambhaji Datta, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This case is a good illustration of the uncalled-for extension of jurisdiction assumed by many District Courts in guardianship work. The sole question before the Court was whether Madho, applicant, should be guardian of the minor or not. He was found unsuitable, probably with very good reason, and it was really not strictly necessary for the Court to do anything more than reject his petition. The girl was living with her mother and things might just as well have been left as they were, especially as the girl has no property. But the Court learnt that the child was said to have been married to one Rasila, who was thereupon called up; and after examining him the Court summarily held the marriage "unlawful and brought about by force," appointed the mother guardian and demanded Rs. 500 security from her, for what purpose is not stated, but perhaps by way of enforcing the Court's further injunction that she was not to marry off the girl without the Court's permission.

Though the mother, who now appeals here, does not specifically ask for cancellation of her appointment as guardian, I think this is what she would really like. She does ask for cancellation of the decision as to the minor's marriage and of the security order; and if these are cancelled she practically ceases to be a statutory guardian. I accept the appeal set aside the whole of the lower Court's order except that Madho's application stands rejected. I cancel the appointment of the appellant as statutory guardian and the demand for security and she remains natural guardian. I cancel the finding that the marriage to Rasila is unlawful, and leave that to be decided, if the matter is ever in dispute, by regular suit. I also cancel the order regarding appellant's power of marrying off the girl, should it prove that she is unmarried in law.

Appeal accepted.

SUKHLAL CHUNDERMULL P. EASTERN BANK, LTD.

SOHNA P. KHAWAJA.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL CIVIL APPEAL No. 5
OF 1915.

January 18, 1915.

Present:—Sir Lawrence Jenkins, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Woodroffe.

SUKHLAL CHUNDERMULL—

DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

EASTERN BANK, LTD.—PLAINTIFF—

RESPONDENT.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXVII—
Order to furnish security—Letters Patent, cl. 15—Appeal.*

No appeal lies against the order of a single Judge on the original side of the High Court directing the defendant in a suit under Order XXXVII of the Civil Procedure Code to furnish security before granting him leave to defend the suit.

Appeal against an order of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Chitty, dated the 4th January 1915, in Original Suit No. 1271 of 1914.

FACTS.—The plaintiff Bank instituted a suit on the original side of the High Court under Order XXXVII of the Civil Procedure Code against the defendants for amounts due on several Bills of Exchange. The defendant applied to be allowed to appear and defend the suit, on the ground that he had a good defence to the suit. The Judge on the original side allowed the application conditional on the defendant giving security to the satisfaction of the Registrar of the Court to the extent of the plaintiff Bank's claim in the suit. The defendant appealed against this order.

Mr. Zorab, for the Appellant.

Mr. Aretoom, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

JENKINS, C. J.—According to a course of decisions in this Court, the order complained of is not a "judgment" from which an appeal lies under the Letters Patent. Reference has been made to a number of Madras authorities, which are entitled to every respect but which we cannot follow in preference to the course of decisions in this Court. It has always been recognised that the Madras High Court has taken a somewhat broader view of clause 15 of the Charter than has prevailed here. The decisions of this Court rest upon what was said by Sir Richard Couch in Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. Oriental Gas Company (1). In this case there is not even an appeal allowed under the Code, so that it cannot be suggested, if the order made been had in a Mofussil Court, that an appeal would have lain under Order XLI. But that perhaps is not so material here, as it would be in Bombay where it would possibly have been regarded as decisive of the question against the appellant: Sombai v. Ahmedbhai Habibhai (2).

(1) 8 B. L. R. 433; 17 W. R. 364.

We must, therefore, dismiss this application with costs.

WOODROFFE, J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 9 B. H. C. R. 398.

COURT OF THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONER, PUNJAB.

REVENUE REVISION No. 227 of 1914-15.

August 19, 1915.

Present:—Sir M. W. Fenton, Kt.SOHNA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPLICANTS*versus*KHAWAJA AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—
RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), ss. 4 (15), 5 (1) (d)—Muafi—Mujawar—Village servant—Jagirdar.
The mujawar of a village khangah to whom some land has been granted as a 'muafi' by the village proprietors for the maintenance of the khangah, is a 'village servant', and is, therefore, excluded from the definition of 'jagirdar' as given in section 4 (15) of the Punjab Tenancy Act. [p. 239, col. 2.]

Rattan Singh v. Fajju Shah, 12 P. R. 1878; Dogar Mal v. Secretary of State, 4 P. R. 1904 Rev.; 82 P. L. R. 1904, distinguished.

Revision from the order of the Commissioner of Rawalpindi, dated the 13th May 1915.

ORDER.—The only question which I need consider among those raised by this revision application is whether the assignee enjoying a muafi granted for the maintenance of a khangah is a 'jagirdar' within the meaning of section 4 (15) and section 5 (1) (d) of the Punjab Tenancy Act, or is excluded from that definition as being a 'village servant.' The issue thus raised is clearly put in the following extract from the judgment of the learned Commissioner:—

SOHNA v. KHAWAJA.

"The principal point for decision is whether the persons in charge of this khangah, of Haji Suleiman, are village servants. If they are village servants, then they are not "jagirdars" as defined in section 4 (15) of the Tenancy Act. I consider that there is great force in the line of argument put forward by Major Coldstream, in spite of the fact that in Rattan Singh v. Fajju Shah (1) a takiadar has been regarded as muafidar or jagirdar, and that in Dogar Mal v. Secretary of State (2) an assignee of land revenue for the maintenance of a thakardawara was granted occupancy rights under section 5 (1) (d) of the Tenancy Act. As regards the first ruling, which was under the old Act, I would note that the term jagirdar was not defined in the old Tenancy Act, XXVIII of 1868. The point as to whether the takiadar was a village servant, and as such not entitled to the status of a jagirdar in claiming occupancy rights, was not discussed. In Dogar Mal v. Secretary of State (2) the proprietor of the land was the Crown, and here again the point now in issue was not discussed. The position of Government as a proprietor of land in respect of a thakardawara in its estate would perhaps be somewhat different from that of the private proprietors of a village in respect of a khangah.

"Taking the present case on its merits the mujawars were required to keep the khangah in repair and to serve travellers, giving them a smoke and water and generally attending to their needs. It was in return for this service that the village proprietors gave them certain land rent free as regards cash or payment. But the land was not actually rent free, as the rent was a service rent. I am strongly of the opinion that the mujawars' status was that of the servants of the village proprietors. These felt bound to arrange for the discharge of certain offices at the khangah and they employed the appellants for this purpose. I agree, therefore, with Major Coldstream that these mujawars, the appellants, were servants of the village proprietors and that they do not possess the status of jagirdars under section 4 (15) of the Tenancy Act."

Of the two judgments cited by the Commissioner the first, Rattan Singh v. Fajju Shah (1), may be disregarded because under the Tenancy Act of 1868 muafidars who were village servants were not excluded from the definition of "jagirdar." It is true that in Dogar Mal v. Secretary of State (2) the assignee of land revenue for the maintenance of a thakardawara was granted occupancy rights under section 5 (1) (d) but, as noticed by the Commissioner, the point was not discussed whether a person in that position could be regarded as a "village servant." In addition to the reasons given by the Commissioner for distinguishing that case from the present, it may be mentioned that the claimant to the status of jagirdar in 1904 was a descendant of the original founder of the thakardawara.

The real point in the present case is whether service of a religious or quasi-religious character, such as that performed by the custodians of a village khangah, is to be regarded as bringing the persons responsible for such service within the category of "village servant," so as to exclude them from the definition of "jagirdar." I have no hesitation in accepting the views of the Collector and Commissioner on this point. When the present Tenancy Act was under consideration as a Bill, the Lahore Committee, appointed to revise and re-draft the Bill, reported as follows with reference to the definition of "jagirdar":—

"The words 'other than a village servant' have been inserted because small assignments have often been made to priests and menials in consideration of village service, and we do not consider such persons to be equitably entitled to rights of occupancy in plots so held by them."

This seems conclusive. The muafi in the present case was originally granted by the zemindars of the village for the service of the khangah. I must hold that the defendants Sohna and Allah Lok are "village servants" and as such are not entitled to be treated as "jagirdars" or ex-jagirdars for the purpose of section 5 (1) (d) of the Tenancy Act.

(1) 12 P. R. 1878.

(2) 4 P. R. 1904 Rev.; 82 P. L. R. 1904.

DHARMARAJA IYER v. SREENIVASA MUDALIAR.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 711 OF 1915.

September 22, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.DHARMARAJA IYER AND ANOTHER—PETITIONERS

versus

K. G. SREENIVASA MUDALIAR AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2), 47, 148, O. XXXIV, r. 8, proviso—Order extending time for payment of money due under mortgage-decree, if appealable—Extension of time—Time limit under decree—Preliminary decree by Appellate Court—Determination of other questions—Suit, remitting of—“Court” in O. XXXIV, r. 8 proviso, meaning of.

An order extending time for payment of money due under a mortgage decree is neither “a decree” within the meaning of section 2 (2) nor a determination of any question coming within section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure and, therefore, no appeal lies against such an order. [p. 240, col. 2.]

Section 148 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not apply to the extension of time for doing acts allowed by decrees. [p. 240, col. 2.]

Het Singh v. Tika Ram, 14 Ind. Cas. 240; 34 A. 388; 9 A. L. J. 381; Suranjan Singh v. Ram Bahal Lal, 17 Ind. Cas. 912; 10 A. L. J. 520, followed.

It is the Court of first instance, to which a suit is remitted after the preliminary decree has been passed by an Appellate Court, which has the exclusive jurisdiction to deal with an application for extension of time presented under Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso. [p. 240, col. 2.]

Venkata Krishna Aiyar v. Thiagaraya Chetti, 23 M. 521; 10 M. L. J. 145; Sheonarain v. Chunni Lal, 23 A. 88; A. W. N. (1900) 209; Ram Dhani Sahu v. Lalit Singh, 2 Ind. Cas. 220; 6 A. L. J. 251; 31 A. 328; Shama Dhone Dutt v. Lakhinani Debi, 6 Ind. Cas. 323; 13 C. L. J. 459, followed.

The word “Court” in Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso, does not in all cases mean “the Court which passed the decree.” [p. 241, col. 1.]

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kumbaconam, in Original Petition No. 927 of 1912, in Appeal Suit No. 653 of 1909 (Original Suit No. 136 of 1908 on the file of the Court of the District Munsif of Mannargudi).

Messrs. S. Varadachariar and Ramabhadra Aiyar, for Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastriar, for the Petitioners.

Messrs. G. S. Ramachandra Aiyar and T. Muthia Pillai, for Mr. S. Muthiah Mudliar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—There is a preliminary objection taken that no appeal lies against the order of the lower Court extending the time for payment of the mortgage amount, an order passed under the proviso to Order XXXIV, rule 8, and under section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code. (As regards that portion of the order of the lower Court which effected an addition of parties under Order XXII, rules 10 and 11, we were told that this appeal was not directed against that portion).

We think that the preliminary objection is sound. The order extending time does not come within the definition of a decree (See section 2, clause 2, of the Civil Procedure Code). We are clear that it does not determine any question coming within section 47, as was ingeniously contended by the appellant's learned Vakil, Mr. S. Varadachariar.

We, however, allowed this appeal to be converted into a revision petition under section 115, Civil Procedure Code.

The question for consideration on this footing will be whether an Appellate Court, which passed the preliminary decree in a mortgage suit (which was treated as a combined suit for redemption as regards a prior mortgagee and for sale as regards the mortgagor), has jurisdiction to entertain an application for extension of time under Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso, and section 148.

As regards section 148 we concur with the decisions of Het Singh v. Tika Ram (1) and Suranjan Singh v. Ram Bahal Lal (2) that that section does not apply to the extension of time for doing acts allowed by decrees.

As regards Order XXXIV, rule 8, we agree with the cases of Venkata Krishna Aiyar v. Thiagaraya Chetti (3), Sheonarain v. Chunni Lal (4), Ram Dhani Sahu v. Lalit Singh (5) and Shama Dhone Dutt v. Lakhinoni Debi (6) that it is the Court of first instance, to which the suit was remitted after the preliminary decree was passed by the Appellate Court, which has the exclusive jurisdiction to deal with an application under Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso. Section 37, quoted by the respondents' learned

(1) 14 Ind. Cas. 240; 9 A. L. J. 381; 34 A. 388.

(2) 17 Ind. Cas. 912; 10 A. L. J. 520.

(3) 23 M. 521; 10 M. L. J. 145.

(4) 23 A. 88; A. W. N. (1900) 209.

(5) 2 Ind. Cas. 220; 31 A. 328; 6 A. L. J. 251

(6) 6 Ind. Cas. 323; 13 C. L. J. 459.

SHER SINGH v. SALIG.

Vakil, has no relevancy as Order XXXIV, rule 8, proviso, does not contain the expression "Court which passed a decree" or "words to that effect" but only the one word "Court" occurring in that expression. But it is argued that the word "Court" means, from the context in the former portions of that rule 8, only the "Court which" (actually) "passed the decree" even if that Court be the Appellate Court. But even if the word "Court" has that meaning in the former portions, we do not see that the single word "Court" constitutes the expression "Court which passed a decree" or "words to that effect" when that single word is not followed by any words corresponding to the words "which passed a decree." The said word "Court" in the clauses 1, 2 and 4 of that rule (8) which relates to the passing of final decrees in mortgage suits would, no doubt, mean the same thing as the expression "Court which passed a decree," when the Court which passed a preliminary decree was (as it would ordinarily be) the Court of first instance. But to argue, therefore, that the word must mean in all cases "the Court which passed the decree" even if that Court was the Appellate Court, and not the Court of first instance, and that, therefore, the word "Court" in the proviso also means only the Appellate Court, if that is the Court which passed the decree, and does not include the Court of first instance, except by a reference to section 37, seems merely to beg the question in issue.

Further, section 37 includes the Court of first instance only where proceedings have to be taken "in relation to the execution of decrees" in certain contingencies. The application now in question does not, in the first place, relate to the execution of any decree and in the second place, the decree-holder seeks, not to include the Court of first instance on the strength of section 37, but to either include or to mean only the Appellate Court.

In the result, we allow the revision petition and direct the Sub-Court to return the petition, so far as it prays for an extension of time, to be presented to the Court of first instance. Costs hitherto will abide. A fair copy of the petition might be attached to the original petition (which is really a combination of two separate petitions) when the latter is presented to the Court of first instance, the words "may be pleased to add them as plaintiffs Nos. 3, 4 and 5" being omitted from the fair copy attached.

Case remanded.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 26 OF 1911.

April 6, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt., and Mr. Justice LeRossignol.

SHER SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
APPELLANTS

versus

SALIG—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Custom—Succession—Pagwand—Chundawand—Mouza Kakrola, Delhi Tahsil

Among the Jats of Mouza Kakrola in the Delhi Tahsil chundawand and not pagwand is the rule of succession. [p 242, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Judge, Delhi Division, dated the 8th October 1910.

Pandit Rambhaya Datt, for the Appellants.

Lala Gopal Chand, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The parties are Jats of Kakrola village of Delhi Tahsil, and the main question for decision is whether they follow the pagwand or chundawand rule of succession.

Both the Courts below have found in favour of the plaintiff that the chundawand rule prevails in this village, and defendants have preferred this further appeal.

Ground 2, which alleges an earlier division of the property on pagwand principles, has been dropped in this Court, whilst ground 3, which raises a question of estoppel, was not any part of the defence in the Courts below, is quite an after-thought and has not been even mentioned before us.

Consequently the only point which calls for our decision, is whether the instances proved by the plaintiff justify the finding that the chundawand custom prevails among the parties.

Ten instances are set forth in the first Court's judgment, but of these, three are taken from villages other than that in which the parties reside.

BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY V. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY.

On the remaining seven we have heard the criticisms of the appellants' Counsel.

Instances 1 and 2 appear to be genuine chundawand cases and so is instance 3; the only criticism levelled at this is that the parties were minors. But the party prejudiced by the application of the rule has never contested it, nor did his guardian object at the time of the mutation.

Instance 4 is admitted to be a strong case in favour of chundawand.

Instance 5 is also a clear case, although the parties were not full proprietors.

In instance 6 the ancestral property was divided on chundawand principles.

Instance 10 corroborates the view that chundawand prevails in the village, although the parties to this mutation decided to share on pagwand principles.

Now the proprietors in this village are all descended from two men, founders of the village, who themselves were relatives and of the same tribe.

The instances date in some cases from a time anterior to 1880, and we concur without hesitation in the finding of the Courts below that, among these Jats of Kakrola, chundawand and not pagwand is the rule of succession which is followed.

One final objection raised by the appellants is that the plaintiff's suit was bad in form, inasmuch as he should have sued for possession of one-sixth, the difference between the one-third he has and the one-half he claims.

This objection we overrule; the plaintiff is in joint possession of the undivided estate with defendants and he need not ask for more than a declaration that he is entitled to one-half either by division of the joint income or by partition of his share of the land.

In this view, we dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 1748 AND 2023 OF 1912.

August 2, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, Kt., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

IN No. 1748 OF 1912

BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY
CHOWDHURY—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

IN No. 2023 OF 1912

BAIKUNTHA NATH SHARMA AND OTHERS
— PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

BHARAT CHANDRA ROY AND OTHERS—
DEPENDANTS—RESPONDENTS IN BOTH.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 23, Sch. I, Arts. 120, 142—Property attached under s. 146, Criminal Procedure Code, suit to recover possession of, and for declaration—Limitation—Continuing wrong—"Dispossession," meaning of—"Discontinuance of possession," meaning of—Attachment, ownership during—Continuing injury—Suit against Magistrate, if maintainable—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 146.

The plaintiffs claimed title to the disputed property by purchase at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree. They took possession, but were resisted by the defendants. Proceedings were instituted under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the Magistrate being unable to satisfy himself as to which of the parties was in possession of the subject of dispute, attached it under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code on the 25th April 1902. In 1909 two suits were instituted by two sets of plaintiffs for declaration of their title and for recovery of possession. The plaintiffs were found to have been in possession when, on the 25th April 1902, the property was attached by order of the Magistrate.

Held, that the suits, though framed as suits for possession, could not be treated as such and were not governed by Article 142 of the Limitation Act. [p. 244, col. 2.]

Held, further that the suits were for declaration of title under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act and there was continuing wrong independent of contract within the meaning of section 23 of the Limitation Act and that consequently a fresh period of limitation under Article 120 of the Limitation Act began to run at every moment of the time the wrong continued, and the suits were, therefore, not barred by time. [p. 245, col. 2.]

Semle:—Dispossession implies the coming in of a person and the driving out of another from possession. [p. 244, col. 1.]

Discontinuance of possession implies the going out of the person in possession and his being followed into possession by another. [p. 244, col. 1.]

If the seisin or legal possession is, during the attachment of a property under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code, in the true owner, the

BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY V. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY.

attachment cannot be deemed to amount to either dispossession of the owner or the discontinuance of his possession within the meaning of Article 142 of the Limitation Act. [p. 244, col. 1.]

If the act complained of creates a continuing source of injury and is of such a nature as to render the doer of it responsible for the continuance, then, in cases in which damage is not of the essence of the action, as in trespass, a fresh cause of action arises de die in diem. [p. 246, col. 1.]

No action can be brought against a Magistrate for recovery of possession of a property attached by him under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code. [p. 243, col. 2.]

Appeals against the decrees of the District Judge, Sylhet, dated the 19th April 1912, reversing those of the Subordinate Judge of Sylhet, dated the 27th June 1911.

IN APPEAL NO. 1748

Babus Dwarka Nath Chakrabarty and Ramini Mohan Chatterjee, for the Appellants.

IN APPEAL NO. 2023

Babus Tara Kishore Chaudhuri and Broja Lal Chakrabarty, for the Appellants.

Babu Gopal Chandra Das, for the Respondents in both.

JUDGMENT.—The events antecedent to the litigations, which have culminated in the present appeals, are no longer in controversy and may be briefly recited. The plaintiffs claimed title to the disputed property by purchase at a sale in execution of a mortgage-decree. They took possession, but were resisted by the defendants, and a breach of the peace became imminent. Proceedings were consequently instituted under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code; but as the Magistrate was unable to satisfy himself as to which of the parties was in possession of the subject of dispute, he attached it under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code, until a competent Court should determine the rights of the parties thereto or the person entitled to possession thereof. This order was made on the 25th April 1902. On the 3rd July and 11th October 1909 these suits were instituted by the two sets of plaintiffs who claim respectively an eight-annas and a five-annas share of the property, for declaration of their title and for recovery of possession. The Courts below have concurrently found that the plaintiffs have fully proved their title, and that the defendants have no case on the merits. The Courts below have also found that the plaintiffs were in possession when on the 25th April 1902, the property was attached by order of the Magistrate. But while the trial Court held that the claims were not barred by limitation, as the plaintiffs were in possession within twelve years of the suit, the lower Appellate Court has concluded on the authority of the decision in Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Isakapalli Subbiah (1) that the suits are barred by limitation, as they have been instituted more than six years after the order of the Magistrate. The result of this divergence of opinion has been that the District Judge has reversed the decrees of the Subordinate Judge and has dismissed the suits, although he has found that the plaintiffs have established their title. The plaintiffs have now appealed to this Court and have impugned the correctness of the view adopted by the District Judge. The question, consequently, arises, what is the period of limitation, if any, applicable to a suit for determination of the rights of the parties to an order under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code, where it is found that the party who is the rightful owner was in possession when the property was attached by the Magistrate. Three alternative views have been placed before us for consideration, viz., first, that the suit is in essence for recovery of possession of immoveable property, and must under Article 142 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act be instituted within twelve years from the date of the order of the Magistrate; secondly, that the suit is in substance for declaration of title to immoveable property, and must, under Article 120, be instituted within six years from the date of the order of the Magistrate when the right to sue accrues; and thirdly, that the suit is for declaration of title to land, but that there is no bar of limitation applicable, as under section 23 a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the attachment continues. If the first or the third view is adopted, these suits are not barred by limitation, while the suits must be deemed barred if the second alternative is accepted.

As regards the first possible point of view, it is clear that no action can be brought against the Magistrate for recovery of possession. In the words of Lord Morris in Khagendra Narain Chowdhry v. Matangini Debi (2), the Magistrate is in the position of a stake-holder, or, as was said in Ramaswamy Aiyar v. Muthusamy Aiyar (3), when the property is attached, it passes into legal custody, and during the continuance of the attachment, such custody must be held to be for the benefit of the true owner: Beni Prasad v. Shahzada Qhja (4), Kara Singh v. Bakar Ali Khan (5). It is further plain that there is no cause of action against the Magistrate, as he has acted in the exercise of his statutory powers. The suit must, consequently, be brought against the rival claimant, but obviously the suit cannot be framed as one for recovery of possession of the disputed land from him, as he is admittedly not in possession. The plaintiff may have been deprived of possession, but he cannot aptly be said to have been dispossessed, or, to have discontinued possession within the meaning of Article 142 of the Indian Limitation Act. Dispossession implies the coming in of a person and the driving out of another from possession. Discontinuance implies the going out of the person in possession and his being followed into possession by another. These elementary principles are deducible from the decision of the Judicial Committee in Trustees and Agency Company v. Shert (6) and Secretary of State v. Krishnamoni Gupta (7). To the same effect is the observation of Baron Parke in Smith v. Lloyd (8), that to make the Statute of Limitation applicable, there must be both absence of possession by the person who has the right and actual possession by another, whether adverse or not, to be protected. It follows that if the seisin or legal possession is, during the attachment, in the true owner, the attachment cannot be deemed to amount to either dispossession of the owner or the discontinuance of his possession. We must accordingly hold, as was done in Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Isakapalli Subbiah (1) that Article 142 has no application to a suit of this description, and we are unable to accept the contrary opinion on this point as formulated in Goswami Ranchor Lalji v. Sri Girdhariji (9). We are not unmindful that in Khagendra Narain v. Chowdhry Matangini Debi (2), the suit was framed as one for recovery of possession and that the Judicial Committee ordered that each of the parties "be decreed to be put into possession" of an equal moiety of the disputed property. It is clear, however, that the question now under consideration was not raised before the Judicial Committee, for the obvious reason that the suit there was in time, whether the six years' or the twelve years' rule was applied; the record shows that the order of attachment was made on the 10th December 1877 and the suit was commenced on the 14th December 1880. It may also be observed that the language of the order by the Judicial Committee is consistent with the view that the parties were to be put into possession by the Magistrate. It may be added that the decision in Nazir Ali Sheikh v. Adaluddi Shana (10), to which reference was made in the course of argument, is clearly distinguishable. There the Magistrate had, after the attachment, placed a stranger in possession, contrary to the provisions of section 146, Criminal Procedure Code; a suit against such stranger for recovery of possession is clearly governed by Article 142 or Article 144. We need not refer in detail to the case of Chunmull v. Khyratee (11), Goswami Ranchor Lalji v. Girdhariji (9), Akilandammal v. Periasami Pillai (12), Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Isakapalli Subbiah (1), Deo Narain Chowdhury v. Webb (13), in so far as they merely recognise the doctrine that Article 47 of the Indian Limitation Act is restricted to cases where an order for possession has been made in favour of one of the parties and has no application when the land has been attached under section 146. We hold accordingly that the suits before us, though framed as suits for possession, cannot be treated as such and are not governed by Article 142 of the Indian Limitation Act.

(1) 26 M. 410.

(2) 17 C. 814 at p. 619; 17 I. A. 62; 5 Sar. P.C.J. 528.

BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY v. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY.

As regards the second and third possible points of view, it is clear, from what has

(3) 30 M. 12; 16 M. L. J. 541; 1 M. L. T. 397.

(4) 32 C. 856.

(5) 9 I. A. 99; 5 A. 1; 4 Saraswati's P. C. J. 382.

(6) 13 App. Cas. 793; 58 L. J. P. C. 4; 59 L. T. 677; 37 W. R. 43; 53 J. P. 132.

(7) 29 I. A. 104; 29 C. 518; 6 C. W. N. 617; 4 Bom. L. R. 537.

(8) 9 Exch. 562; 96 R. R. 87; 2 Com. L. R. 100; 23 L. J. Ex. 194; 2 W. R. 271; 22 L. T. (o. s.) 259.

(9) 20 A. 120; A. W. N. (1897) 214.

(10) 16 Ind. Cas. 670; 16 C. W. N. 1073.

(11) 3 Agra H. C. R. 65.

(12) 1 M. 301.

(13) 28 C. 86; 5 C. W. N. 160.

BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY V. BHARAT CHANDRA ROY.

already been stated, that the suits must be treated as suits for declaration of title under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act. What then is the period of limitation, if any, applicable to these suits? We have been pressed, on the one hand, to adopt the view propounded in Rajah of Venkatagiri v. Isakapalli Subbiah (1), that Article 120 is applicable and that the suit is required to be instituted within six years from the date of the order of attachment when the right to sue accrues. We have been pressed, on the other hand, to hold that this is a case of continuing wrong under section 23 and that the right to sue accrues from moment to moment. The first alternative, though adopted by the Madras High Court, leads to an obvious anomaly. If the suit is not instituted within six years from the date of the order of attachment, neither of the claimants can obtain a declaration of title; yet the title continues unaffected in the true owner, for under section 28 his right is extinguished only at the determination of the period limited for the institution of a suit for possession. The Magistrate thus continues as a stake-holder for an indefinite period, as there is no statutory provision for forfeiture after the lapse of a prescribed term. According to the Madras High Court, however, the true owner, although not in a position to seek a declaration of title for purposes of recovery of the property, can obtain a declaration of title to the profits in the hands of the Magistrate; in other words the Magistrate is constituted his manager in perpetuity. The Madras High Court further seems to hold that, although a declaration of title cannot be embodied in the decree, because the prayer for declaration is barred by lapse of time, yet the finding in the judgment on the issue of title, will have the force of res judicata and will practically operate as a determination of the question of right for purposes of section 146, Criminal Procedure Code. With all respect, this bears the appearance of a distinction without a difference. To adopt the language of Lord Ellenborough in Luxmore v. Robson (14) "the common sense, the practice, and the general convenience of mankind, require that a construction different from that in the case cited should be adopted." In our opinion, the true view of the matter is that section 23 of the Indian Limitation Act governs the case. To maintain this position, it is not essential to accept the broad proposition formulated in Chukkun Lal Roy v. Lalit Mohan Roy (15) [which was reversed on appeal on another point by the Judicial Committee in Lalit Mohan Singh Roy v. Chukkun Lal Roy (16)] that a suit for declaration of title to immoveable property cannot be held to be barred so long as the plaintiff has a subsisting right to such property; nor is it necessary to depart in any way from the rule recognised in Mohabharat Shaha v. Abdul Hamid Khan (17), that a suit for declaration of title to immoveable property is governed by Article 120. On the other hand, as was explained in the case last mentioned, and as had been previously indicated in the cases of Brinda v. Kaunsilia (18), Ananda Razu v. Viyanna (19), Jugal-kishore v. Lakshmandas Raghunathdas (20), Article 120 and section 23 may have to be simultaneously applied to determine whether or not a suit is barred by limitation, for instance, in suits for partition of joint property. The answer to the question, when does the right to sue accrue, must depend on the circumstances of the particular case, and very refined distinctions have, indeed, been sometimes drawn, as may be seen from Yamuna Bai Rani Sahiba v. Solayya Karundan (21) and Pamu Sanyasi v. Zamindar of Jeypur (22). In the case before us, the view may reasonably be maintained that there is a continuing wrong independent of contract and that consequently a fresh period of limitation under Article 120 begins to run at every moment of the time the wrong continues. It is needless for our present purpose to attempt an exhaustive definition of the expression "continuing wrong." But it may generally be stated that if the act

(15) 20 G. 906 at p. 925.

(16) 24 I. A. 76; 24 C. 834; 1 C. W. N. 367.

(17) 1 C. L. J. 73.

(18) 13 A. 176; A. W. N. (1891) 15.

(19) 15 M. 492; 2 M. L. J. 258.

(20) 23 B. 659.

(21) 24 M. 339.

(22) 25 M. 540.

(14) 1 B. & Ald. 584; 19 E. R. 396; 106 E. R. 215.

complained of creates a continuing source of injury and is of such a nature as to render the doer of it responsible for the continuance, then, in cases in which damage is not of the essence of the action, as in trespass, a fresh cause of action arises de die in diem. To put the matter in another way, where the wrongful act produces a state of affairs every moment's continuance of which is a new tort, a fresh action for the continuance lies, for there is a real distinction between continuance of a legal injury and continuance of the injurious effects of a legal injury. Tested from this point of view, what is the position here? The defendants attempted to interfere with the possession of the plaintiffs, and a breach of the peace became imminent. The Magistrate intervened, as it was incumbent upon him to do, and attached the property. The result was that the plaintiffs were deprived of the enjoyment of their property. This state of things has continued, though it could have been terminated if the defendants had intimated to the Magistrate that they abandoned all claim to the property and would not cause a breach of the peace by an endeavour to obtain possession by force. We think, in these circumstances, that the case may aptly be treated as one of continuing wrong within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Limitation Act. From this view, no question of limitation arises.

The result is that these appeals are allowed, the decrees of the District Judge set aside, and the suits decreed with costs in all the Courts. The title of the plaintiffs in each case to the share claimed will be declared, and it will be further declared that they are entitled to have the property released from attachment and to be placed in possession by the Magistrate.

Appeals allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2557 OF 1913.

September 16, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and

Mr. Justice Tyabji.

K. R. MANIKAM MUDALIAR—PLAINTIFF

—APPELLANT

versus

KUMMALANGUTTAY MUNUSWAMI

NAIDU—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Malicious prosecution—Causing or procuring another to be prosecuted—Suit for damages, maintainability of.

A person who causes or procures another to be prosecuted is liable notwithstanding the intervention of some other person as the direct or technical prosecutor; it can make no difference whether the other person is or is not an officer of the law. [p. 248, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, it appeared that the defendant did not set the law in motion against the plaintiff:

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to any relief. [p. 248, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of North Arcot, in Appeal Suit No. 175 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of North Arcot, in Original Suit No. 74 of 1911.

FACTS.—The plaintiff is a Forest Ranger in North Arcot District. Defendant is a contractor. There was a sale in auction of the sandal wood and plaintiff conducted the auction sale. The defendant, i.e., the contractor made a statement before the District Forest Officer that the plaintiff sold sandalwood at Rs. 9 a cwt. but he entered its price in the Government accounts as Rs. 5 and pocketed the rest. The District Forest Officer then intimated this to the Joint Magistrate, who sent for the defendant but he would not come, and he sent a summons upon which he appeared and the Magistrate took a statement from him. The Forest Department charged the plaintiff with criminal misappropriation. He was tried and acquitted by the Sessions Court of North Arcot. He brought the present suit for damages for Rs. 4,000 against the defendant. Both the lower Courts dismissed the suit. The present appeal is against the decree.

Mr. C. Narasimhachari, for the Appellant:—In this case the statement was first of all made to the District Forest Officer. He did not at first believe it. Subsequently the District Forest Officer on independent enquiries was satisfied as to the truth of his statement. Then he sent a summons to the defendant to appear before the Joint Magistrate. He appeared and made a statement.

MANIKAM MUDALIAR V. KUMMALANGUTTAY MUNUSWAMI.

The question is whether it cannot be said that it is the statement of the defendant that led to the prosecution of the plaintiff. Fitzjohns v. Mackinder (1) is clear on the point.

The view of the District Judge that the defendant made the statement under compulsion to the Magistrate is entirely wrong. What the law requires is that the statement should have been made and the prosecution should have followed.

Mr. L. A. Venkataraghava Aiyar, for the Respondent:—In this case the defendant took no further steps than making a statement to the District Officer. He did not even appear as a witness in the Sessions case. It is the Department that instituted the prosecution against the plaintiff and there is no reason for charging the defendant with the prosecution of the plaintiff.

Further, in this case the statement was made to an officer who could not do anything himself and it cannot be said that the defendant prosecuted the plaintiff. Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh (2), Musa Yakub v. Mani Lal (3), Henderson v. Broomhead (4), Dubois v. Keats (5), Allen v. Flood (6), Revis v. Smith (7) show that it must appear that he set the law in motion and should be the prosecutor himself.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for damages for malicious prosecution.

The question in the present case is, whether the defendant "was directly responsible for any charge at all being made against the plaintiff." Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh (2). Persons who have made the original report of the alleged crime knowing it to be false, have been made by the Privy Council to "abide the consequences of their misconduct" notwithstanding that the "prosecution was not technically conducted by them," but by the Police.

The facts in Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh (2) were that the Sub-Inspector instituted the charge at the instigation of the defendants and not of his own motion (page 533) and the defendants had concocted and produced false evidence to get the plaintiff charged with the crime (page 532).

The instigation to prosecute apparently consisted in making the original report upon which the prosecution was ultimately based, and in giving a list of the persons containing the plaintiff's name and saying that the chief cause of the riot was the plaintiff. In the conduct of the case the defendants took the principal part both before the Police and in the Magistrate's Court and instructed the prosecution Counsel that the plaintiff joined the riot, which the Magistrate found had never taken place; moreover on the day of the alleged riot the plaintiff was ill at Lucknow.

The Privy Council mention two alternative cases, in one of which they say it would be improper to make the defendant responsible in damages for failure of the prosecution, and in the other, that it would be equally improper to allow him to escape (pages 533-534). The present defendant does not come under either of these categories. For on the allegations, which have not been investigated so far but which we must for the present purposes assume to be true, (1) he certainly went beyond giving what he believed to be correct information; but on the other hand, (2) it has been found that he did not bring suborned witnesses to support the charge, nor did he influence the Police or any one else to assist him in sending an innocent man for trial.

It does not follow that when a person does not come within the terms of the second alternative, he must necessarily succeed in a suit against him for malicious prosecution any more than it follows that if he fails to satisfy the first alternative, the suit must necessarily be decreed. For as already stated, the ultimate question as laid down by the Privy Council, is whether the defendant was directly responsible for the charge being brought against the plaintiff. In this connection it is necessary to refer to two

(1) 9 C. B. (N. S.) 505; 30 L. J. C. P. 257; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 1283; 4 L. T. 149; 9 W. R. 477; 142 E. R. 199; 127 R. R. 746.

(2) 30 A. 525; 12 C. W. N. 1017; 10 Bom. L. R. 1080; 8 C. L. J. 337; 5 A. L. J. 665; 35 I. A. 189.

(3) 25 B. 308; 7 Bom. L. R. 20.

(4) (1859) 4 H. & N. 569; 28 L. J. Ex. 360; 5 Jur. (N. S.) 1175; 7 W. R. 492; 118 R. R. 618.

(5) 11 A. & E. 329; 3 P. & D. 306; 9 L. J. Q. B. 66; 4 Jur. 148; 52 R. R. 361; 113 E. R. 440.

(6) (1898) A. C. 1; 62 J. P. 595; 67 L. J. Q. B. 119; 77 L. T. 717; 14 T. L. R. 125; 46 W. R. 258.

(7) (1856) 18 C. B. 124; 25 L. J. C. P. 195; 2 Jur. (N. S.) 614; 4 W. R. 506; 27 L. T. (O. S.) 106; 107 R. R. 236; 139 E. R. 1314.

MANIKAM MUDALIAR P. KUMMALANGUTTAY MUNUSWAMI.

matters: (1) A person may be directly responsible for the proceedings, notwithstanding that he may not have originally contemplated prosecution as the result of his acts or statements, and have been required by the Court to prosecute the plaintiff: Fitzjohn v. Mackinder (1), per Blackburn, J., and notwithstanding that the proceedings may be of such a special character as to require the intervention of the Political Officers of the Government with which the defendant may not have any direct connection, much less any control, over it: Cf. Musa Yakub v. Mani Lal (3), (where extradition proceedings were held to be part of the cause of action in a suit for malicious prosecution). The safeguard for the defendant in such cases is that probably he would succeed in proving that he had no malice: Fitzjohn v. Mackinder (1), "the recognizance would then furnish an answer", in the words of Littledale, J., "for this reason only, that in such a case the plaintiff could not prove that the defendant was actuated by a malicious motive in making his charge before the Magistrate." Dubois v. Keats (5). (2) On the other hand, it is clear that the mere giving of false evidence does not make the perjured witness liable to civil action: Revis v. Smith (7), Henderson v. Broomhead (4). Such an action would be not for malicious prosecution, but for damages for defamation: Dubois v. Keats (5), and it does not lie because the occasion is absolutely privileged: the reason being that "if this action could be maintained, it would tend very much to discourage witnesses from giving evidence by fear of infinite vexation": Henderson v. Broomhead (4), cf. also Allen v. Flood (6) (per Lords Herschell and Davey).

The Subordinate Judge was, therefore, clearly wrong in considering that inasmuch as the defendant gave information in the first instance not to "an officer of the law", but to a Forest Officer, the suit cannot lie. If the defendant causes or procures the plaintiff to be prosecuted, he is liable notwithstanding the intervention of some other person as the direct or technical prosecutor: it can make no difference whether the other person is or is not an officer of the law.

The District Judge, however, after holding that the defendant did not come within the second of the two categories mentioned by the Privy Council, also finds that the defendant was unwilling to complain against the plaintiff, that he made his statement to the Joint Magistrate more or less under compulsion, that the plaintiff was probably already suspected by his official superior, and that the Government resolved to prosecute the plaintiff without any further interference on the part of the defendant beyond the statement made by him to the plaintiff's official superior.

The argument for the appellant is that on these facts on the authority of Fitzjohn v. Mackinder (1), the defendant ought to be held liable. It is unnecessary to decide whether the defendant would have been liable if the prosecution had been caused (even though not intentionally) by the defendant's statement to the plaintiff's official superior; and if his had been the only substantial evidence for the prosecution or if the main part of the other evidence had been procured or suborned by him. In such a case it may be, we do not decide, that the defendant is responsible for the prosecution, though it has been conducted in the name of some other person and even though the Court or some other person has directed that the plaintiff should be prosecuted. Nor can it be considered in the present case whether the statement made by the defendant to the plaintiff's official superior would have made him liable to a suit for defamation; the present suit is not so framed, and the issues in a suit for defamation would have been entirely different, though it may be [as pointed out by Lords Herschell and Davey in Allen v. Flood (6)] that on principle the two classes of suit are connected.

It is thus clear that the present suit can be supported (if at all) only on the contention that the statement in question shows that it was the defendant who set the law in motion against the plaintiff. The District Judge's findings clearly negative this view; and when the circumstances are considered in the light of the authorities to which we have referred, there is no doubt that the result at which he arrived was perfectly correct.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

HAZARI LAL SARKAR V. MAHARAJ KUMAR KSHAUNISH CHANDRA ROY.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 741 OF 1912.

March 25, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sharfuddin and
Mr. Justice Newbould.HAZARI LAL SARKAR—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

MAHARAJ KUMAR KSHAUNISH
CHANDRA ROY BAHADUR AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.Landlord and tenant—Durputni lease—Chakran tenants—Khut rent, agreement to pay—Government revenue—Resumption of chakran land—Durputnidar, right of Zemindar, if can settle land with tenants—Mesne profits.

A was originally holding the lands in dispute as chakran lands under B, the zemindar. B resumed the lands and settled them at a money rent with A. The plaintiff, who was the durputnidar, sued for khās possession of the lands and in the alternative prayed that fair and equitable rents might be fixed for them. It was a condition of the durputni settlement that the tenants who held chakran lands for service should pay to the durputnidar khut rent which was assessed on the proportion of land revenue payable to Government on that portion of the estate.

Held, that the payment of the khut rent could not create the relationship of landlord and tenant between the durputnidar and the tenant A. [p. 250, col. 1.]

Held, further, that so long as the chakran tenancy continued B, and not the plaintiff, had the right to settle tenants on the land, but that B had no right after he had resumed the chakran tenancy. [p. 250, col. 1.]

Held, also, that under the circumstances, the plaintiff was entitled to khās possession as well as mesne profits. [p. 250, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Nadia, dated the 2nd January 1912, reversing that of the Munsif of Krishnagore, dated the 11th February 1911.

Babus Julu Nath Kanjilal and Jogendra Kumar De, for the Appellant.

Babus Ram Chunder Mozumdar, Biraj Mhan Mojumdar and Harendra Lal Roy, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the defendant No. 1 is the zemindar and the defendants Nos. 2 to 4 are the tenants in occupation of the lands in suit. These defendants were originally holding the lands as chakran lands under the zemindar. In 1901, the zemindar resumed these lands and settled them with these defendants at a money rent. The plaintiff who is the durputnidar brought this suit to recover khās possession of these lands and also prayed, in the alternative, that fair and equitable rents might be fixed for them.

The first Court granted a decree holding that the zemindar was liable to pay rent to the plaintiff. On appeal to the District Judge, the plaintiff has been granted a decree against the defendants Nos. 2 to 4 and has had his title declared to realise from them fair and equitable rents for the lands, the amount of which will be settled in a rent suit.

As the appeal has been argued, the only question we have to decide is whether the plaintiff is entitled to khās possession or not. This point turns on the question whether these lands were really chakran lands or not.

It has been found by the lower Court that the zemindar, under the terms of the putni and durputni leases, had no right to resettle the lands in suit. The plaintiff who is the appellant contends that on that finding, he is entitled to a decree for khās possession. For the respondent, it is contended that the tenancy of the defendants Nos. 2 to 4 in these lands is not a purely chakran tenancy. It was a condition of the durputni settlement that the tenants who held chakran lands for services should pay to the durputnidar what is called khut rent, and this khut rent was assessed on the proportion of land revenue that would be payable to Government on this portion of the estate. The condition, therefore, was that the chakran tenants did not get the land rent-free, but instead of paying rack rent, they had to pay only the share of the revenue on the land they held. It was contended on behalf of the respondent that this payment of khut rent to the durputnidar was sufficient to create the relationship of landlord and tenant between them and that consequently the durputnidar has now no right to khās possession.

It is to be observed that in their written statement, these defendants denied ever having paid this khut rent to the plaintiff, but now on their behalf, reliance is placed on the statement in the plaint that the defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4 have stopped paying khut rent to the plaintiff, which clearly implies that before the settlement made by the zemindar, these defendants had been paying this rent to the plaintiff. It is clear that under the terms of the durputni lease, these defendants were liable to pay khut rent to the plaintiff and it is immaterial whether it was actually paid or not. This khut rent was not really rent but a proportion of the revenue payable to Government which, under the terms of the durputni lease, was payable to the plaintiff in respect of those lands of which he got no benefit under his lease. Such a payment could not create the relationship of landlord and tenant between the plaintiff and these defendants. The plaintiff never recognised these defendants as his tenants. So long as the chakran tenancy continued, the zemindar, and not the plaintiff, had the right to settle tenants on the land. On the termination of the chakran tenancy, the zemindar, although he had no right to do so, settled these tenants on the land. This settlement would not give these defendants the right to remain on the land against the wish of the plaintiff.

SUBBA AIYAR T. S. V. SUBBA AIYAR SU.

As was held in the case of Upendra Narain Bhattacharjee v. Pratap Chunder Pardhan (1), it is clear that the proper remedy in this case is a decree for khas possession and this has not been seriously contested on behalf of the respondent, who bases his objection to a decree for khas possession on the contention that the tenancy was not a purely chakran tenancy.

We accordingly decree this appeal with costs and modify the decree of the lower Court by declaring that the plaintiff is entitled to khas possession of the lands in suit. He will be entitled to recover mesne profits for three years before the institution of the suit and also for a period from the date of the institution of the suit until recovery of possession. An inquiry will be made by the lower Court to ascertain the amount of mesne profits payable to the plaintiff.

Appeal decreed.

(1) S C. W. N. 320; 31 C. 703.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1656 OF 1911.

August 17, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

T. S. SUBBA AIYAR—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

SU. SUBBA AIYAR AND ANOTHER—
DEPENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 11—Order passed under s. 283 of old Civil Procedure Code, suit to set aside—Limitation.

Article 11 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act of 1908 has reference only to orders passed under the new Code of Civil Procedure. Therefore, an order passed in 1905 under section 283 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 need not be set aside by a suit instituted within one year from its date. [p. 253, col. 2.]

Rajah of Pittapur v. Gani Venkat Subba Row, 30 Ind. Cas. 94; 29 M. L. J. 1; 18 M. L. T. 67; 2 L. W. 661; (1915) M. W. N. 547; Gopeshwar Pal v. Jiban Chandra, 24 Ind. Cas. 37; 18 C. W. N. 804; 19 C. L. J. 549; 41 C. 1125; Lala Soni Ram v. Kanhaiya Lal, 19 Ind. Cas. 291; 35 A. 227; 13 M. L. T. 437; 17 C. W. N. 605; 11 A. L. J. 389; (1913) M. W. N. 470; 17 C. L. J. 488; 15 Bom. L. R. 489; 25 M. L. J. 131; 40 I. A. 74, referred to.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Tinnevely in Appeal Suits Nos. 81 and 99 of 1911, presented against the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Ambasamudram in Original Suit No. 174 of 1910.

This second appeal first came on for hearing on the 13th December 1912, before Abdur Rahim and Sundara Aiyar, JJ. who delivered the following JUDGMENT.—This second appeal is pressed with reference only to the properties in the 3rd schedule. They were bought by four brothers, of whom the plaintiff's father was one. This seems to be the finding of the learned District Judge, but it is not clear whether the Judge intends to find that the properties belonged to the four brothers jointly.

The other point in the defence was whether the plaintiff's right was barred. There is no finding on this question. All that the learned Judge finds is that the plaintiff has not proved that the land to which he wants his title to be declared, fell to his share or rather to his father's share on division. Supposing that to be so, still the plaintiff, unless his rights are barred, would be entitled to a share in the disputed land, and there is no reason why his title to such share should not be declared in the present suit. We, therefore, reverse the findings of the District Judge so far as the 3rd schedule properties are concerned and ask him to submit a clear finding on the following points:

(1) Whether the properties in the 3rd schedule were acquired by the plaintiff's father and his three brothers.

SURBA AIYAR T. S. V. SURBA AIYAR SU.

(2) If so, whether the plaintiff's right is barred.

(3) If the plaintiff's right is not barred, whether he is entitled to the entirety of the properties or only to a fourth share therein.

The finding will be submitted within six weeks from the receipt of this order and seven days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment of this Court, the District Judge of Tinnevely submitted the following

FINDINGS.—1. The questions remanded for findings are :—

(1) Whether the properties in the 3rd schedule were acquired by the plaintiff's father and his three brothers.

(2) If so, whether the plaintiff's right is barred.

(3) If the plaintiff's right is not barred, whether he is entitled to the entirety of the properties or only to a fourth share therein.

2. (1) Defendants assert that plaintiff and his father had no interest in the lands purchased under Exhibit B. The document itself contradicts this assertion. Exhibits C, D and F refer specifically to $\frac{1}{4}$ th shares in these lands, raising a presumption that they were purchased jointly and divided by four persons. Exhibit G, again, mentions the purchase as being by the four brothers.

It cannot, I think, be doubted that the 3rd schedule property is part of a joint purchase by plaintiff's father and his three brothers. I would accordingly answer the 1st question in the affirmative.

3. (2) Plaintiff's case is that his father disappeared in 1893, prior to which there was a partition of the property acquired under Exhibit B, in which 3rd Schedule property fell to his father's share. His case as to the partition is supported by the references to $\frac{1}{4}$ th shares in Exhibits C, D and F. There is, at the same time, nothing to show specifically that it was 3rd schedule property that fell to his father's share. That it did, is an inference based on a process of exclusion. It is argued that, the 3rd schedule property not having been dealt with in certain deeds executed by defendants, it must have fallen not to their share, but to that of plaintiff's father. Assuming, however, for argument's sake, that it was 3rd schedule property that fell to plaintiff's father, plaintiff has entirely failed to prove any enjoyment by his father or by himself subsequent to the purchase in 1890, to the partition or to his father's disappearance in 1893. His claim would, therefore, seem to be barred. His Vakil now sets up a new case of tenancy-in-common, but he cannot, I think, "have it both ways." Only if he gives up his case of partition, can he plead joint tenancy. If he elects to stand by the partition, he must prove his separate enjoyment, which he has not done. I would, therefore, answer the 2nd question, also, in the affirmative.

4. (3) This question it is unnecessary to answer. Were it necessary, my answer would be

(a) that, assuming joint purchase, partition and enjoyment within 12 years of suit to have been proved, plaintiff would be entitled to the whole of 3rd schedule property;

(b) that, if plaintiff and defendants be held to be tenants-in-common, plaintiff is entitled to $\frac{1}{4}$ of this property—both parties conceding that it would not be only one-fourth. Plaintiff, I may add, claims the whole, which would seem to show that his case rests entirely on the partition (which he has proved) and separate enjoyment (which he has not).

This second appeal coming on again for hearing on the 4th August 1914, after receipt of the findings of the lower Appellate Court called for by the order of this Court, dated the 13th December 1912, the Court delivered the following JUDGMENT.—The finding of the District Judge on the question whether the 1 acre 70 cents in dispute fell to the plaintiff's share or not is not definite. Out of the 7 acres 74 cents purchased by all the four brothers under Exhibit B, there is the evidence of plaintiff's 1st witness to show that 67 cents was sold away by the brothers in 1891. The sale-deed, however, or a copy thereof, ought to have been filed and proved, and we shall ask the District Judge to allow the plaintiff to put it in and prove the sale, with liberty, of course, to the 1st defendant to adduce counter-evidence.

Assuming that 67 cents had been so sold away, there remains 7 acres 7 cents out of which

SUBBA AIVAR T. S. V. SUBBA AIVAR SU.

- (a) one of the brothers treated 1 acre 38 cents in 1896 as his one-fourth share of the land (Exhibit D),
- (b) another treated 2 acres 43 cents as his one-fourth share (see Exhibit C), and
- (c) the third treated 1 acre 36 cents as his one-fourth share (see Exhibit F). Total 5 acres 37 cents. Deducting the 5 acres 37 cents out of the 7 acres 7 cents to be divided, there is left the remainder of 1 acre 70 cents (3rd schedule property) which the plaintiff claims as the one-fourth share of his father.

The District Judge, though he states that the plaintiff has not established that this 1 acre 70 cents it was that fell to his father's share, does not state that it fell to the share of any of the other three brothers. At least, two of these brothers repudiate any claim to this 1 acre 70 cents. On the question of possession also, while the District Judge states that the plaintiff has not proved his possession after the division of about 1891 or 1892 between the four brothers, he does not definitely state who has or who have been in possession of the 1 acre 70 cents after that date till the 1st defendant got possession and whether such possession (prior to the possession of the 1st defendant) was adverse to the plaintiff. We are unable to dispose of this second appeal without a fresh finding on the question of the title to this 1 acre 70 cents and findings on some other questions which we shall formulate below this :—

(1) To whose share or shares did the 1 acre 70 cents in dispute fall in the division between the 4 brothers in or about 1891 or 1892?

(2) Who has or who have been in possession of the 1 acre 70 cents (3rd schedule lands) from the time of the division of the 7 and odd acres in 1891 or 1892 till the 1st defendant got possession?

(3) Was the person or were the persons in possession of the said 1 acre 70 cents holding adversely to the plaintiff or on behalf of the plaintiff alone, or on behalf of the plaintiff and others in common and for the whole period or for portions (and if so, which portion) of that period?

Parties will be at liberty to adduce further evidence only on the transaction of the sale of 67 cents.

Findings should be submitted within six weeks from the date of the receipt of the records and ten days will be allowed for filing objections.

In compliance with the order contained in the above judgment of this Court the District Judge of Tirunelveli submitted the following

FINDINGS.—I. Findings have been called for on the following issues:—

1. To whose share or shares did the 1 acre 70 cents in dispute fall in the division between the 4 brothers in or about 1891 or 1892?

2. Who has or who have been in possession of the 1 acre 70 cents (3rd schedule lands) from the time of the division of the 7 and odd acres in 1891 or 1892 till the 1st defendant got possession?

3. Was the person or were the persons in possession of the said 1 acre 70 cents holding adversely to the plaintiff or on behalf of the plaintiff alone, or on behalf of the plaintiff and others in common and for the whole period or for portions (and if so, which portion) of that period?

II. Issue 1. The sale-deed relating to 67 cents has been proved and filed as Exhibit J. If this extent be deducted, the remainder of the land purchased by the four brothers amounts to 77 acres. It is clear that there was a division into four shares. One of these, 2'43 acres in extent, fell to one brother (Exhibit C). Another—1'38 acres in extent—went to the second (Exhibit D). Another—1'56 acres in extent—was the share of the third (Exhibit G). The balance of 1'70 acres would, therefore, seem to have fallen to the fourth.

Two, however, of the items of property claimed by plaintiff, measuring 1'41 acres, were mortgaged by two of his uncles under Exhibit I. In the mortgage were included (among other properties) S. Nos. 69 and 73, which indubitably had fallen to their share in the partition. All four of these S. Nos. are referred to in Exhibit I as properties they had been "enjoying by right of purchase". This dealing with S. Nos. 144B and 261D is quite inconsistent with Exhibits D and G, in which no claim was made by the mortgagors to these properties.

SUBBA AIYAR T. S. v. SUBBA AIYAR SU.

On the whole, I think that more importance attaches to Exhibits D and G than to the recital in Exhibit I. Plaintiff's father certainly had a share and it could only have been the share now claimed by plaintiff. If his uncles dealt with part of it, they must be held to have done so impliedly on his behalf, as he was absent from the village. Exhibit G, which is two years later than Exhibit I, is tantamount to an admission by one of them that the suit property did not fall to his share in the partition.

III. Issues II and III:—It may be presumed from Exhibit I that plaintiff's uncles were in possession of the lands. The evidence of D. W. No. 11 would seem to show that their possession was on his behalf. The recital in Exhibit I may, of course, be understood as an assertion of an adverse title, but it was made within twelve years of the suit and in plaintiff's absence and without his knowledge.

IV. The findings, therefore, are that the suit property fell to the share of plaintiff's father and that it was in possession of his uncles on his behalf.

This second appeal came on this day for final hearing after the return of the findings of the lower Appellate Court upon the issues referred by this Court on the 4th August 1914 for trial.

Messrs. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri and T. V. Muthukrishna Aiyar, for the Appellant:—In Article 11 of the present Limitation Act (IX of 1908) the words "Code of Civil Procedure, 1908" are found, and it means that orders passed under the old Code need not be set aside within one year from its date. In this case, the order was passed in 1905, and on the date, the new Limitation Act came into force there was a general right of suit, which is not expressly taken away by the new Act.

Messrs. L. R. Govindaraghava Aiyar and L. S. Veeraraghava Aiyar, for the Respondents:—The suit to set aside the order, not having been instituted within one year under Article 11 of the new Limitation Act, is barred.

JUDGMENT.—We accept the findings of fact arrived at by the lower Appellate Court.

Mr. Govindaraghava Aiyar, for the Respondent, contended that a suit for the relief claimed by the plaintiff, though it might have been brought till 31st December 1908, could not be brought on or after 1st January 1909, as the new Civil Procedure Code and the new Limitation Act of 1908 made an order passed on a claim petition conclusive unless set aside within one year, and he refers to Order XXI, rule 63, of the new Civil Procedure Code and Article 11 of the new Limitation Act. The new Limitation Act Article 11 refers to an order passed under the Civil Procedure Code of 1908 and neither section 158 of the Civil Procedure Code nor section 8 of the General Clauses Act constrains us to read the phrase "the Code of Civil Procedure 1908" in Article 11 as including a reference to the earlier Civil Procedure Code of 1882. The order of 1905 which is relied upon as conclusive (because not set aside within one year) need not have been set aside under the old law (as it was not passed after investigation) and Article 11 of the old Limitation Act, 1877, did not, therefore, apply; nor need it be set aside under the new Code, as it was not an order passed under the new Code and Article 11 of the new Limitation Act refers only to orders passed under the new Code. In this view, it is unnecessary to consider the question whether the provisions of the new Civil Procedure Code and the new Limitation Act were intended to and could take away the right of suit under the general law which plaintiff had till 31st December 1908 [see, however, Rajah of Pittapur v. Gani Venkat Subba Row 1) and Gopeshwar Pal v. Jiban Chandra (2).] The Privy Council case, Lala Soni Ram v. Kanhaiya Lal (3), was decided on the ground that an acknow-

(1) 30 Ind. Cas. 94; 29 M. L. J. 1; 18 M. L. T. 67; 2 L. W. 661; (1915) M. W. N. 547.

(2) 24 Ind. Cas. 37; 18 C. W. N. 804; 19 C. L. J. 549; 41 C. 1125.

(3) 19 Ind. Cas. 291; 35 A. 227; 13 M. L. T. 437; 17 C. W. N. 605; 11 A. L. J. 389; (1913) M. W. N. 470; 17 C. L. J. 485; 15 Bom. L. R. 489; 25 M. L. J. 13; 40 I. A. 74.

SAWAN MAL v. SHIB DIYAL.

ledgment did not create any title in the person whose right was acknowledged and no question of taking away any right or title arose by reason of a change of the law in respect of what kind of acknowledgment will afford a fresh starting point for limitation.

In the result, we modify the decree of the lower Appellate Court by giving relief to the plaintiff as regards the 3rd schedule properties thus restoring the Munsif's decree.

The parties will bear their respective costs here and in the lower Appellate Court.

Appeal partly allowed; Decree modified.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 590 OF 1914.

May 10, 1915.

Present:—Sir Donald Johnstone, Kt.,
Chief Judge.

SAWAN MAL AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
APPELLANTS
versus

SHIB DIYAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—
RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 65, O. XXI, rr. 92, 94—Auction sale—Passing of title to purchaser—Confirmation of sale—Sale certificate—Presumption.

An auction sale becomes absolute (i. e., title passes) only on its confirmation by the Court. But in the absence of such a certificate the Court's confirmation may sometimes be inferred from the nature of the action taken by it on receipt of report of sale. [p. 254, col. 2; p. 255, col. 1.]

Budhu v. Hira, 27 P. R. 1892; Khushal Panachand v. Bhimabai, 12 B. 589; Than Singh v. Kazim Ali, 92 P. R. 1893; Ajudhia Pershad v. Chandan, 9 P. R. 1903; 36 P. L. R. 1903; Girdhari Lal v. Bhago, 92 P. R. 1907, referred to.

Budh Singh v. Hardial Singh, 52 P. R. 1897, distinguished.

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Divisional Judge, Amritsar Division, at Gurdaspur, dated the 3rd January 1914.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Appellants.

Mr. Manohar Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In this case plaintiffs, as representing some of the original owners, sued for redemption of half of a house on payment of Rs. 400. The mortgage dates back to 1864. Defendants, representatives of the original mortgagees, pleaded right to refund of their expenditure on the house, and also that Lila Ram, mortgagee, bought at auction one-eighth share of the house which was sold by auction under a decree against one mortgagor, Bilas. The latter is the only question now for consideration. The first Court gave plaintiffs a decree for redemption of three-eighths of the house on condition of their paying Rs. 319-2-0. The lower Appellate Court, however, found that the aforesaid auction sale had never been "confirmed" and so allowed redemption of the whole one-half of the house, but disallowed defendants' claim for expenses, thus awarding redemption for Rs. 400.

Defendants have again appealed here. I find the real facts are that Bilas's one-eighth share was put up to auction and sold to Lila Ram on 9th August 1866. As mortgagees were in possession, this sale made no difference in actual occupation. When the sale was reported to the Court, it did not in so many words "confirm" the sale. It passed the following order:—

"Digridar ko bad waaza hakk-i-commission wa rasum-i-stamp wa zar-i-rahn ke ba-akhaz-i-rasid (rupiye ?) diye jayen." The available money was paid to the decree-holder; and in my opinion, this order was tantamount to confirmation of the sale. If the sale had not been confirmed, the Court would have ordered fresh auction or taken some other step; and in my opinion, the acceptance of the money by the Court and the order for payment to the decree-holder prove confirmation of the sale.

It is urged, however, that title never passed because no sale certificate was ever taken out. I have been referred to sections 256-259, Act VIII of 1859 (in force at date of this auction), to sections 311/314, Civil Procedure Code (1882); and to Order XXI, rules 92 and 94, Civil Procedure Code, now in force. I agree with plaintiffs that confirmation of auction sale is necessary before title passes, but then I hold that the sale was confirmed, and perusal of rule 92 (1), Order XXI, Civil Procedure Code, shows that the sale becomes absolute (i. e. title passes) on confirmation. As the learned commentators Woodroffe and Ameer Ali abundantly show in their notes under section 65 of the Code, the sale certificate is little more than evidence of title, a view that is further fortified by a glance at rule 94, under which the certificate is to bear the date on which the sale became absolute, i. e., day of confirmation.

VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATIRAJU v. SRI LAKSHMI NRUSIMHA ROOPA.

It is perhaps hardly necessary to support by reference to rulings a point that seems fairly clear, but the following cases are indirectly in favour of the views I have expressed above—Budhu v. Hira (1) [following Khushal Panachand v. Bhimabai (2)], Than Singh v. Kazim Ali 3, Ajudhia Pershad v. Chandan (4), Girdhari Lal v. Bhago (5). I have also studied Budh Singh v. Hardial Singh (6), but find it deals with the state of affairs between sale and confirmation.

I hold, then, that confirmation of an auction sale, where not made in precise terms, may sometimes be inferred from the nature of the action taken by the executing Court on receipt of report of sale, that in the present case the proper inference is that sale was confirmed; and that the absence of a sale certificate, where the sale has been otherwise proved to have become absolute, does not prevent title passing to the purchaser.

I, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

- (1) 27 P. R. 1892.
- (2) 12 B. 589.
- (3) 92 P. R. 1893.
- (4) 9 P. R. 1903; 36 P. L. R. 1903.
- (5) 92 P. R. 1907.
- (6) 52 P. R. 1897.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL NO. 93 OF 1911.

September 15, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

Sree Rajah VATSAVAYA VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATIRAJU

BAHADUR GARU AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFF AND HIS LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE—APPELLANTS

versus

Sree Rajah THYADA PUSAPATI RUDRA SRI LAKSHMI NRUSIMHA ROOPA SADRUSANNAMARAD DUGARAJU DAKSHINA KAVATA DUGARAJU BAHADUR GARU AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 69—"Person interested in the payment of money," meaning of—Duty of registered holder to pay Government revenue—Co-sharers, whether personally liable—Revenue—Charge on estate—Suit to enforce charge—Jurisdiction.

It is only the registered holder who is personally bound to pay the revenue to Government. Co-owners or co-sharers who are not also registered holders are not under any such obligation though the Government revenue may be a charge on the lands in their holding. [p. 256, col. 2.]

Rajah of Vizianagram v. Setrucherla Somasekharaiah, 26 M. 686 at p. 713, distinguished.

Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingaswami Sivan, 3 Ind. Cas. 624; 33 M. 41; 19 M. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 198, followed.

The "person interested in the payment of money" in section 69 of the Contract Act must be a person who is not himself bound to pay the whole or any portion of the amount. [p. 259, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, a person who is himself under an obligation to pay a portion of the Government revenue pays the whole amount due, he is not entitled to a personal decree for the amount against all his co-sharers, but can only recover a share payable on account of the property in the hands of him who is also under a personal obligation to pay. [p. 258, col. 2.]

Mangalathammal v. Narayanaswami Aiyar, 17 M. L. J. 250; 30 M. 461; Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Jamahir Kumari, 32 C. 643; 9 C. W. N. 670, referred to.

A suit to enforce such a charge should be brought only in that Court within whose jurisdiction the portion of the estate liable to pay the share is situate. [p. 257, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the Court of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Vizagapatam, in Original Suit No. 46 of 1908.

FACTS.—Plaintiff, the zemindar of Tuni, was the purchaser in auction sale of four villages attached to Pachipenta Estate. First defendant was the proprietor of that estate, and defendants Nos. 2 to 5 were the members of his family. Defendant No. 6 is the Maharaja of Jeypore who purchased another portion of the Pachipenta Estate lying within the limits of Jeypore zemindari. The Government revenue on the zemindari of Pachipenta from April 1907 to November 1908 fell into arrears and the four villages of which the plaintiff was in possession, were attached. The plaintiff paid a sum of Rs. 6,124-0-5 and got the villages released from attachment. The present suit is to recover the whole of the amount paid from 1st defendant and 6th defendant, persons who were in possession of the rest of the estate. The 1st defendant pleaded that as he was in possession of only a portion of the estate, he was not liable for the whole of the amount paid, and 6th defendant pleaded that the suit should have been brought in the Court within whose jurisdiction the portion of the estate lay. The Sub-Court dismissed the suit as against 6th defendant and decreed against the 1st defendant only Rs. 1,250-9-10, the amount in proportion to the portion of the estate of which he was in possession. The present appeal was against that decree.

VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATIRAJU P. SRI LAKSHMI NRUSINHA ROOPA.

The Hon'ble Mr. B. N. Sarmu, for the Appellants.—The decision of the lower Court is entirely wrong. Under section 69 of the Indian Contract Act the plaintiff is entitled to claim the whole amount from 1st defendant and 6th defendant. Under section 69 and 70 of the Indian Contract Act he has a right to claim. Rajah of Vizianagram v. Setrucherla Somasekharaiah (1) clearly says that all co-owners are personally liable. The facts that the estate lies within the jurisdiction of another Court is no reason for refusing a decree. Gajapathi Krishna Chandra Deo Garu v. Seiviyasa Charlu (2).

As regards the liability of the 1st defendant, it is only by his conduct that the villages were brought to sale and my client is entitled to claim the whole from him under section 69 of the Indian Contract Act.

Mr. V. Ramesam, for the Respondents:—As regards the liability of the 6th defendant it is clearly not personal. The decisions are unanimously to that effect. Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingaswami Sivan (3), Puthenpurayil Amman Parupkyi v. Mangalaseri Pullikandi Pakram Haji (4), Naraina Pai v. Appu (5). And the suit must be one to enforce a charge and should be brought in the place within whose jurisdiction the estate lies. As regards the 1st defendant, the right is one to claim contribution and that is analogous to section 82 of the Transfer of Property Act and section 55 of the Transfer of Property Act. Where the person who is interested in the payment pays it the claim is only one for contribution. Mangalathammal v. Nara- yanaswami Aiyar (6), Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Jamahir Kumari (7), Moule v. Garrett (8).

This appeal coming on for hearing on the 26th and 27th July 1915, and having stood over for consideration till this day, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

SEINIVASA AIYANGAR, J.—Two points are raised in this appeal, first as to the liability of the 6th defendant, second as to the amount recoverable from the 1st defendant, the registered holder.

So far as the 6th defendant is concerned, it is clear that the plaintiff cannot recover anything personally from him as he was under no personal obligation to pay the proportionate revenue to the Government. It is now settled that the only person who is personally bound to pay the revenue to Government is the registered holder, who is called the defaulter in the Revenue Recovery Act, and that co-owners or co-sharers who are not also registered holders, are not under any such obligation, though the Government revenue may be a charge on the lands in their holding. Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingaswami Sivan (3). Payment of the revenue by the plaintiff could not give him a larger or higher right than what the Government had. See Ghose on Mortgages, page 371; Freeman on Co-tenancy, pages 254 and 349. On this principle this Court has held in Puthenpurayil Ammal Parupkyi v. Mangaleswari Pullikandi Pakram Haji (4) and Naraina Pai v. Appu (5) that a person who pays the whole revenue to the Government under circumstances similar to the present case, is not entitled to a personal decree against the co-owners or co-sharers who were not under a personal obligation to pay to the Government. The observations of Bhashyam Ayyangar, J., in Rajah of Vizianagram v. Setrucherla Somasekharaiah (1), were based on the assumption that all the co-owners or co-sharers were liable personally to pay to the Government. Nor do we think that section 70 of the Contract Act has any application to the

(1) 26 M. 686 at p. 713.

(2) 20 Ind. Cas. 445; 25 M. L. J. 433; 14 M. L. T. 20; (1914) M. W. N. 99; 38 M. 235.

(3) 3 Ind. Cas. 624; 33 M. 41; 19 M. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 198.

(4) 15 Ind. Cas. 262; 24 M. L. J. 548; 36 M. 493.

(5) 28 Ind. Cas. 456.

(6) 17 M. L. J. 250; 30 M. 461.

(7) 9 C. W. N. 670; 32 C. 643.

(8) 7 Ex. 101; 41 L. J. Ex. 62; 26 L. T. 367; 20 W. R. 416.

VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATHIRAJU V. SRI LAKSHMI NRUSINHA ROOPA.

present case. The case of Gajapathi Kristna Chendra Deo Garu v. Srinivasa Charlu (2), on which Mr. Sarma relied, has not been followed in Rajah of Pittapuram v. Secretary of State (9), in which all the previous cases were reviewed by Spencer, J., and this case was followed in Narain Pai v. Appu (5) by Sadasiva Aiyar, J., who was himself a party to the decision of Gajapathi Kristna Chendra Deo Garu v. Srinivasa Charlu (2). The case of Yogambal Boyee Ammani Ammal v. Naina Pillai Markayar (10) is also to the same effect. If the 6th defendant had been personally liable to pay, the Sub-Court of Vizagapatam would have jurisdiction to pass a money decree, though the 6th defendant was residing in the Agency Tracts, as the cause of action arose at least in part within the jurisdiction of the Vizagapatam Sub-Court; but that Court has no jurisdiction to enforce a charge over the portion of the estate purchased by the 6th defendant as it is situated in the Agency Tracts, and the plaintiff must be left to enforce his charge in the Agency Courts. We, therefore, confirm the decree of the lower Court as regards the 6th defendant.

The next question which alone admits of any doubt, is the amount which the plaintiff is entitled to recover from the first defendant, the registered holder. The plaintiff, the 1st defendant and the 6th defendant are each in possession of portions of the estate. The Government revenue paid by the plaintiff accrued due after the purchase by the plaintiff and the 6th defendant of portions of the property in execution of a mortgage decree. If it was a case of a private sale under section 55 of the Transfer of Property Act, the plaintiff and the 6th defendant would each be bound to pay the proportionate share of the Government revenue due on the lands in their possession; the fact that the purchase was made in a Court-sale does not make any difference. The position, therefore, is this: there was a charge on the whole estate in favour of the Government, and the registered holder, the 1st defendant, was also personally liable to pay the amount of the charge to the Government. (We are assuming that the statutory liability of the registered holder is a personal liability.) The case is analogous to that of a mortgagor who has covenanted to pay the mortgage money and who afterwards sells portions of the mortgaged property to several persons subject to the mortgage. As between the mortgagor and his vendees, the mortgagor would be liable in proportion to the value of the property in his hands while his vendees would be liable in proportion to the value of the property in their hands. This, of course, would not affect the right of the mortgagee to enforce the personal covenant against the mortgagor or the charge against any portion of the mortgaged property. If in such a case the whole amount is collected from the mortgagor on his personal liability or by the sale of the property in the hands of any one of the owners, the person who so paid the money or out of whose property the mortgage amount was realised, would be entitled to contribution from the property of the other owners under section 82 of the Transfer of Property Act. The mortgaged property is considered the primary fund for payment of the mortgage-debt. [Jones on Mortgages, section 736 and section 749; also see Palmer v. Hendrie (11).] If, therefore, the present plaintiff had asked for contribution out of the properties, he could not have recovered more than the amount payable by the 1st defendant in proportion to the value of the property in his hands. For example, if the plaintiff was the purchaser of a $\frac{1}{3}$ rd share, 6th defendant another $\frac{1}{3}$ rd, the 1st defendant remaining in possession of the other third, whoever paid the whole of the charge, whether plaintiff or the 6th defendant or the 1st defendant, would be entitled to recover $\frac{1}{3}$ rd from each of the remaining two as a charge on the property. Does the fact that the plaintiff sues under section 69 of the Contract Act to recover the money personally from the registered holder, make any difference as regards the amount claimable from him? Reading the terms of section 69 literally. In the case supposed, the plaintiff, it may be contended, would be entitled to recover the whole amount and not merely $\frac{2}{3}$ rd or $\frac{1}{3}$ rd personally from the registered holder, for the 1st defendant was the person who in law was bound to pay the revenue; the plaintiff, of course, was interested in the payment, i. e., he was not a

(9) 25 Ind. Cas. 783; 16 M. L. T. 375.

(10) 3 Ind. Cas. 110; 33 M. L. T. 162; 19 M. L. J. 489.

(11) 27 Beav. 319; 54 E. R. 136; 122 R. R. 426.

VENKATA SIMHADRI JAGAPATIRAJU V. SRI LAKSHMI NRUSIMHA ROOPA.

volunteer. That, I think, would be manifestly absurd, for the property in the hands of the plaintiff is itself liable to pay $\frac{1}{3}$ rd of the Government revenue and it is this liability on his part that gives him a right to make the payment at all to the Government, so as to enable him to recover back from the co-owners the share of the revenue which they personally were bound to pay or for which the property in their hands was liable. A simple illustration will make this matter clear. A mortgages certain lands to B and sells the property subject to the mortgage to C. Supposing B sues C on the mortgage, and C to save the property pays the mortgagee; could C recover the money from A, he being the person who under law was bound to pay within the meaning of section 6? Clearly not; for as between A and C, C is the person who is bound to discharge the debt, though so far as B, the mortgagee, is concerned, there is novation of the liability of A; the position of A in such cases is said to be analogous to that of a surety, C being the principal debtor. It is the ultimate liability that determines the right to recover the amount paid to discharge the original liability. It is possible to contend in the case above said that C is entitled to recover from A personally the amount of the mortgage debt, but that A, in his turn, would be entitled to a charge upon the mortgaged property for the sum which he paid to C and recover as much as he can from the mortgaged property, which amount may conceivably be less than the amount which he paid; this would be untenable, because the purchaser of the property subject to the mortgage would then be entitled indirectly to recover back the amount paid by him for the sale of the equity of redemption. To put the converse case, if A had been sued by the mortgagee personally and had been obliged to pay B, he certainly would be entitled to call on C to pay back the money which he paid. In an English conveyance on sale of the equity of redemption a covenant would be implied on the part of the vendee to indemnify the vendor from all the consequences of non-payment of the mortgage amount by the vendee. Under the Transfer of Property Act, section 55, though there is no implied covenant of indemnity, the same result would follow as the Statute makes it obligatory on the part of the vendee to discharge the mortgage as between him and his vendor, though the liability of the vendor-mortgagor to his mortgagee is not affected. It is clear, therefore, that the person who is interested in the payment mentioned in section 69 must be a person who, as between himself and the defendant, was not bound to pay, though the defendant may be under an obligation to pay to a third party. [See Mangalathamma v. Narayanaswami Aiyar (6) and Manindra Chandra Nandy v. Jamahir Kumari (7)]. Whether the basis of section 69 is the Common Law action of "money paid at the defendant's request" or the equitable doctrine of subrogation, does not much matter, as the plaintiff can in either case recover only from the person ultimately liable. [See Moule v. Garrett (8), per Cockburn, C.J., citing Leake; Sheldon on Subrogation, page 15, section 11]. In this case, if the plaintiff and the 1st defendant were the only two persons who had an interest in the property, and if the plaintiff had paid the whole of the Government revenue, he could not have recovered more than the share payable on account of the property in the hands of the defendant. Is the plaintiff also entitled to recover from the 1st defendant the proportionate share of the revenue payable on account of the properties in the hands of 6th defendant, because the plaintiff is not the person liable to pay that sum? If the plaintiff is allowed to recover from the 1st defendant the amount payable both on account of the properties in his hands and in the hands of the 6th defendant, unless the first defendant is in his turn subrogated to the rights of the plaintiff (which is more than doubtful), the first defendant would have been compelled to pay the amount really payable by the 6th defendant; that, I think, would be unfair. The present suit is a suit for contribution and it was, of course, necessary to make all persons who are liable to contribute, whether personally or out of their properties, parties, in order to fix the proportionate amount which each person was ultimately bound to pay. If section 69 applies to a suit for contribution, it may be that no effective relief could be given against all the parties so as to dispose of all matters in controversy and avoid multiplicity of suits. In Futteh Ali v. Ganganath Roy 12 it was doubted whether a suit for contribution comes within the (12) S. C. 113; 10 C. L. R. 20.

NATHAR HUSSAIN MEERA V. DEPUTY COLLECTOR, USILAMPATI.

scope of section 69.

"The person interested in the payment of money" must, we think, be a person who is not himself bound to pay the whole or any portion of the amount. It is to be noted that there are express provisions in the Contract Act for contribution in the cases of joint promisors and co-sureties. (Section 43, clause 2, and sections 143 and 147.) We are, therefore, inclined to hold that section 69 does not apply to a suit for contribution at all. The result is the appeal is dismissed with costs.

WALLIS, C. J.—I agree.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL No. 135 OF 1914

August 11, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Wallis, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Srinivasa Aiyangar.

NATHAR HUSSAIN MEERA LEVAI

ROWTHER AND ANOTHER—CLAIMANTS

—APPELLANTS

versus

THE DEPUTY COLLECTOR OF USILAMPATI—PETITIONER—RESPONDENT.

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), s. 23—Right of owner to compensation for injury done—Principle—Measure of damages.

Where land is acquired for public purposes, the owner thereof is entitled to be compensated for any injury done to his other lands even though the loss is more than counterbalanced by the advantages he gains by the execution of the project.

Engle v. Charing Cross Railway Co. (1867) 2 C. P. 638; 16 L. T. 593; 15 W. R. 1016; 36 L. J. C. P. 297, followed.

In such a case the owner is also entitled to damages for diminished facilities of communication and access to his other lands.

Appeal against the award of the District Court of Madura, in Original Petition No. 233 of 1913.

FACTS.—This is an appeal against an award of the District Court of Madura, disallowing certain items claimed by the appellant in a Land Acquisition case. There was a channel, and on the sides of the channel there were lands belonging to the claimant. The Government in order to widen the channel and to make a flood bank acquired certain lands belonging to the claimant on one side of it,

By this acquisition, the claimant had to cross over a great distance to go to his other lands for carrying manure, etc. Before the Deputy Collector, the claimant claimed compensation even for this. Both the Deputy Collector and the District Court disallowed his claim. Against that order, the present appeal is filed.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar and K. S. Jayarama Aiyar, for the Appellants.

The Government Pleader, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—There is uncontradicted evidence that the remaining lands of the claimants were injuriously affected by the construction of the channel and flood bank. They are entitled to be compensated for this injury, even if the loss was more than counterbalanced by the advantages they gained from the execution of the project. Engle v. Charing Cross Railway Co. (1). What we have to consider is, what would be the injury to the claimants if they were cultivating the lands themselves, as they might if so minded. It is not very easy to assess the damages for diminished facilities of communication and access. The figures and evidence of the claimants are altogether extravagant; but we think that in the absence of evidence to the contrary, Rs. 500 may fairly be allowed. As regards the garden land dealt with in paragraph 12 of the award, the District Judge himself says, the lands are probably as valuable as wet lands. We increase the award from Rs. 750 to Rs. 1,000 per acre. As regards the punja lands in paragraph 13, we think the award should be increased from Rs. 350 to Rs. 500 in view of the considerations mentioned by the Judge. As regards paragraph 14, we increase the award from Rs. 190 to Rs. 220, as one of the tamarind trees in 1185A was overlooked.

There will be no order as to costs.

Appeal partly allowed; Decree modified.

(1) (1867) 2 C. P. 638; 36 L. J. C. P. 297; 16 L. T. 593; 15 W. R. 1016.

SANKARAVELU PILLAI v. MUTHUSAMI PILLAI.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1546 OF 1914

September 21, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

SANKARAVELU PILLAI, MINOR, BY HIS

ADOPTIVE MOTHER AND NEXT FRIEND,

KARUPPAYEE AMMAL—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

MUTHUSAMI PILLAI—DEFENDANT—

RESPONDENT

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Compromise incorporated in decree of Court, whether requires registration—Transfer of property by a Hindu in favour of a Hindu widow, effect of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 8.

Section 17 of the Registration Act does not apply to proper judicial proceedings, whether consisting of pleadings filed by the parties or of orders made by the Court. [p. 261, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, a compromise arrived at by the parties to a case is incorporated in the terms of the decree of the Court, such compromise can be adduced in evidence in a subsequent suit notwithstanding that it has not been registered. [p. 261, col. 2.]

Bindesri Naik v. Ganga Saran Sahu, 20 A. 171; 25 I. A. 9; 2 C. W. N. 129; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 273; Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi A. ni, 2 M. 50; 26 I. A. 101; 3 C. W. N. 485; 9 M. L. J. 147, followed.

Where, a claim by a Hindu widow to a certain property as absolute owner was compromised by giving to the claimant one-fourth of the property in dispute and it was admitted that this one-fourth was far in excess of what she would have been entitled to get if it were intended merely to take the place of her maintenance.

Held, that the presumption of Hindu Law that in a transfer by a Hindu male to a Hindu female only a limited estate is granted, did not apply and that the transfer was an absolute transfer governed by section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act. [p. 262, col. 2.]

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Ramnad at Madurai, in Appeal Suit No. 513 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Satur, in Original Suit No. 269 of 1912.

FACTS of the case appear from the judgment.

Mr. K. V. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Appellant:—Exhibit II is merely a compromise and it is only under that document that the defendant claims. It is neither a decree nor an order within the meaning of section 17 of the Registration Act and does require registration.

In Natesan Chetty v. Vengu Nachiar (1) and Ravula Parti Chelamanna v. Ravula Parti Rama Row (2), it was held that only orders or decrees of Court do not require registration, while compromise petitions filed in the course of the suit do require it. No decree was passed upon Exhibit B and the suit was dismissed.

As regards the interest taken by the widow, the general presumption is, that a Hindu widow takes only a life-interest in the estate transferred to her by a male. The property is given to the widow for "food and clothing" and it means that only a life-interest is intended to be given to her.

Mr. T. M. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Respondent:—The document is admissible in evidence without registration, as it was referred to in the order disposing of the suit and was in fact acted upon. Bindesri Naik v. Ganga Saran Sahu (3), Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi Anni (4).

As regards the interest taken by the widow, the intention that might be ascribed to the transferor, must be in accordance with the intention that he may be presumed to have under section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act and section 82 of the Indian Succession Act. In this case the widow asserted an absolute right to the whole property, and she was given 1/4th of the property. The intention, therefore, was rather to give her an absolute interest than merely a life-interest.

JUDGMENT.

TYABJI, J.—Two main questions arise for decision in this appeal, in which the rights of the parties under Exhibit II have to be determined.

The first question is whether Exhibit II required registration, or whether it can be adduced in evidence and can affect immovable property notwithstanding that it has not been registered. This question depends primarily upon the effect of sections 17 and 49 of the Indian Registration Act. Section 17 provides in the first instance that the documents mentioned thereafter shall be registered if the property to which they relate

(1) 3 Ind. Cas. 701; 33 M. 102; 6 M. L. T. 313; 20 M. L. J. 20.

(2) 12 Ind. Cas. 317; 36 M. 46; 10 M. L. T. 232; 21 M. L. J. 870; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 265.

(3) 20 A. 171; 25 I. A. 9; 2 C. W. N. 129; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 273.

(4) 22 M. 508; 26 I. A. 101; 3 C. W. N. 485; 9 M. L. J. 147.

SANKARAVELU PILLAI V. MUTHUSAMI PILLAI.

is situate in certain districts. Then certain classes of documents are mentioned which are all such as operate to create, declare, assign, limit or extinguish any right, title or interest in immoveable property; and include gifts and leases. Then the second sub-section of section 17 excepts twelve kinds of documents which need not be registered, though it might otherwise have been considered that clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) covered them, in other words, that they were documents of the classes mentioned above. Amongst the excepted class of documents is mentioned, "any decree or order of a Court or any award."

Section 49 provides inter alia that no document required by section 17 to be registered shall affect any immoveable property comprised therein unless it has been registered.

The first argument of the appellant is that Exhibit II is a non-testamentary instrument purporting to create an interest in real property and ought, therefore, to be registered under section 17, unless it is a decree or order of the Court, and that it is not a decree or order.

On this question there are two short dicta of the Privy Council to which it is necessary to refer. The first of them occurs in Bindesri Naik v. Ganga Saran Sahu (3). Their Lordships there state that "they are satisfied that the provisions of section 17 of the Act do not apply to proper judicial proceedings, whether consisting of pleadings filed by the parties, or of orders made by the Court." Then in Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi Anni (4) they state: "the vazinamah was not registered in accordance with the Act of 1877; but the objection founded upon its non-registration does not, in their Lordships' opinion, apply to its stipulations and provisions in so far as these were incorporated with, and given effect to by, the order made upon it by the Subordinate Judge in the suit of 1885. The vazinamah, in so far as it was submitted to and was acted upon judicially by the learned Judge, was in itself a step of judicial procedure not requiring registration; and any order pronounced in terms of it constituted res judicata, binding upon both the parties to this appeal who gave their consent to it."

It seems to me that when these two passages in their Lordships' judgments are read together,—and it is significant that Lord Watson delivered the opinion of the Privy Council in each case—the principle upon which their Lordships proceeded appears to be that, inasmuch as under the law as regards registration read together with the law relating to res judicata, orders and decrees of the Court do not require to be registered, all such other judicial proceedings also as are necessary to be referred to in order to determine what it is that has become res judicata—all such other judicial proceedings also are excepted from the provisions of the Indian Registration Act: unless this were the case, the law relating to res judicata would be subject to the proceedings of the Court being registered, which, it is clear, could not have been the intention of the Legislature.

There are two decisions of this Court bearing upon the point under consideration, apparently conflicting with each other, Natesan Chetty v. Vengu Nuchiar (1) and Ravula Parti Chelamanna v. Ravula Parti Rama Row (2). It seems to me that it is unnecessary for us in the present case to determine the question on which the conflict of opinion arises. For taking the view of the Privy Council to be as I understand it, in the present case, it seems to me that the composition between the parties must be taken to have been incorporated in the decree of the Court, Exhibit V, which refers in terms to the compromise, Exhibit II, and purports to sanction it on behalf of the minor. It is true that the ultimate, operative part of the decree purports to be merely that the suit shall be dismissed, yet read as a whole, it seems to me to be clear that the decree incorporates the terms of the compromise.

I feel, therefore, no hesitation in arriving at the conclusion that the lower Appellate Court was right in the conclusion at which it arrived, that Exhibit II can be adduced in evidence and can be read as part of the decree, Exhibit V, so as to affect the immoveable property compromised therein notwithstanding that it has not been registered.

I come to the second point which was argued before us, namely, that on the true construction of Exhibit II the 1st defendant therein referred to, acquired only a limited or a widow's estate in the property mentioned. We had recently to consider in Second Appeal No. 2-59 of 193 the effect of the decisions of the Privy Council and of the Courts of India which lay down that the ordinary intention of a Hindu in making a transfer of property to a Hindu woman ought to be taken into consideration when the deed of transfer is to be construed, and that the presumption, in the absence of something clear to show the contrary, is that only a limited estate is granted; the presumption may be rebutted by words showing that unrestricted power to alienate was given or that the estate was to be heritable by the heirs of the woman, and not to revert to the heirs of the grantor of the interest. I pointed out in that appeal that this rule must be taken to be an exception to the general law laid down in section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act and section 82 of the Indian Succession Act, and though I was myself inclined in that case to take the view that the full rights were given to the donee under the instrument, I felt pressed by the fact that both the lower Courts had decided to the contrary effect and that my learned brother agreed with the view taken by them. In the result I thought that it was not a case in which it was incumbent upon me to give effect to my own inclinations. I, therefore, agreed to the dismissal of that appeal.

SANKARAVELU PILLAI V. MUTHUSAMI PILLAI.

In the present case, the circumstances seem to be materially different. We have the fact, first of all, that Exhibit II was a compromise in the course of a litigation brought about, as is clear from the facts mentioned to us, by the widow for the express purpose of asserting an absolute right to the property which was the subject-matter of Original Suit No. 429 of 190.; secondly, the plaintiff, it is stated in Exhibit II, has no right, interest or claim whatever in the property allotted to the widow; on the other hand, there is no doubt a reference to the fact that the absolute rights given under Exhibit II to the widow are "towards her food and clothing charges." Thirdly, the property that is given to the widow is only a fourth of what she claimed, and it is a part of the appellant's case that this one-fourth would be far in excess of what she would have been entitled to get if it were intended merely to take the place of her maintenance. On these facts, it seems to me that it is section 8 of the Transfer of Property Act rather than the presumption of what a Hindu would ordinarily do when he purports to transfer, of his own free will property to a Hindu woman, that should govern the construction of this document. It seems to me that there is nothing to show that the dominant factor was the desire or the intention of the transferor to give only such an interest in the property as he would of his own free will like to give. The parties were at arm's length. A claim was put forward to the absolute title to the whole of the property and that claim was compromised by giving to the claimant one-fourth of the property. It seems to me, therefore, that there is no room for the presumption being drawn that that one-fourth of the property must have been given on the terms on which it would have been given had it been a free gift. It seems to me that as a consequence, Exhibit II must be given effect to as an absolute transfer of the property, in accordance with the decision under appeal.

I would, therefore, dismiss the appeal with costs.

AYLING, J.—I entirely concur with my learned brother in holding that the razinama, Exhibit II, does not require registration to render it admissible in evidence or operative as a transfer of the suit property to Minakshi.

As regards its correct interpretation, I am not free from doubt; but as my learned brother is clearly of opinion that the construction adopted by the lower Appellate Court is correct, I am not prepared to differ from him on this point.

The second appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

ANTONI JUAS PRABHU v. RAMAKRISHNAYYA.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER NO. 282 OF 1914.

September 24, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and
Mr. Justice Napier.

ANTONI JUAS PRABHU—DEPENDANT

No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

RAMAKRISHNAYYA AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151, O. XLI,
r. 23—Appeal—New party, addition of—Remand to lower Court—Procedure.*

Where an Appellate Court adds a new party, it has inherent power to reverse the decrees of the Court of first instance and remand the case for re-trial. This power has not been taken away by Order XLI, rule 23, Civil Procedure Code.

Appeal against the order of the District Court of South Canara, in Appeal Suit No. 279 of 1913, preferred against the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Mangalore, in Original Suit No. 10 of 1912.

FACTS.—The suit was for a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to take water to his field from a channel adjoining the field of the defendant and for an injunction to restrain the latter from interfering with the plaintiff's right. The Court of first instance decreed the suit. On appeal, the District Judge thought that the addition of a new party was necessary and so he added that party and remanded the suit for fresh disposal. Against the said order of remand, the present Civil Miscellaneous Appeal was filed.

Mr. K. Yegnanarayana Adiga, for the Appellant: The power to remand is only a power conferred by Statute. In this case the remand by the lower Appellate Court was entirely without jurisdiction. Order XLI, rule 23, Civil Procedure Code, has no application, as the Court of first instance did not dispose of the case on a preliminary point. So far as power to remand is concerned, there has been no change in the law. Though section 564 of the Code of 1882 has not been re-enacted in the Code of 1908, the power to remand under the new Code is the same as under the old Code Nabin Chandra Tripati v. Pran Krishna Dey (1). The procedure which ought to have been followed by the Appellate Court was to have framed the necessary issues and heard the case itself or to have sent the case down under Order XLI, rule 25. Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna (2) and Kelu Mulacheri Nayar v. Chindu (3).

Mr. P. V. Parameswara Iyer for Mr. C. V. Anantakrishna Iyer and Mr. B. Sitarama Rao, for the Respondents, were not called upon.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—I agree that the appeal should be dismissed with plaintiff's costs.

The Appellate Court has power to reverse and remand for re-trial in a case like the present where a new party is added in appeal. That power is inherent in the Court and has not been taken away by anything in Order XLI, rule 23 of the Code of Civil Procedure, especially as the prohibitory provision in section 564 of the old Code of Civil Procedure has not been reproduced in the new Code.

NAPIER, J.—I have held elsewhere that the power to remand is limited to cases where decisions on preliminary points are set aside by the Appellate Court. This view applies only, however, to cases where the construction of Order XLI, rules 23, 24, 25 is a deciding factor. In my opinion, where an Appellate Court has added a party, those rules are inapplicable and we have to seek the proper procedure in section 151, the Code not having made rules applicable to the position. We are not shown any reason why the procedure of the lower Appellate Court is unsustainable and I think that it is on the whole the most convenient. The appeal will be dismissed with costs of plaintiff.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 10 B 398.
(3) 19 M. 157.

S. N. Das
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

GLANCY v. GLANCY.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.
FULL BENCH.CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 9 OF 1914.
January 13, 1915.Present:— Justice Sir Charles Fox, Kt., Chief Judge, Justice Sir Henry Hartnoll, Kt., and Mr. Justice Parlett.BRIDGET THERESA MARY GLANCY—PETITIONER

versus

JAMES GLANCY—RESPONDENT.

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), s. 13: Dissolution of marriage—Desertion—Adultery, admission of, when not sufficient—Delay in filing petition, effect of.

The petitioner and the respondent were married on the 12th August 1890. They lived together till May 1892 when the petitioner left the respondent owing to his intemperate habits. Since then, they never met. The respondent who was in the Indian army, left the army and went to England. In 1911 the petitioner obtained his address from the War Office and wrote to him. In reply to this, he wrote: "you ask me if I have ever misconducted myself with any woman since you and I parted. I have misconducted myself with several women since I parted with you, but I will not give you their names for obvious reasons". The petitioner thereupon sued for divorce on the ground of adultery coupled with desertion.

